To which purpoſe they apply alſo that, Jer. 32. 40. but it may ſeem to be more large,as above.

CHAP. LX.

Verſ. 1. ARiſe, ſhine:] In this chapter is the glorious eſtate of the Church of God, under the Meſſias, in a moſt hetorical manner deſcribed, (the reſtitution of Jeruſalem,and the re-edification of the Temple there,being underlaid as a type of it) by the multitude of Proſelytes, and thoſe of chief note and place, that ſhould be joyned to it; and with all their beſt endowments, become ſerviceable thereunto; and the abundance of ſpirituall graces and comforts, that ſhould therein be exhibited and enjoyed, and that as in a more eminent manner and meaſure, then in former times here, ſo in a fulneſs of perfection, without any the leaſt interruption,or impeachment, everlaſtingly hereafter.

Ariſe,] Jeruſalem preſumed to be in a very low and dejected condition at preſent,being conſidered (ſo ſo the type runs) as in thraldom,at Babylon,is called upon now to ariſe; (as on the contrary, Babylon was commanded to come down,chap.47.1.) and to rouze up her ſelf to an hopeful expectation of her deliverance, reſtitution,and advancement, now approaching. So chap.52.1.

ſhine] Heb. be illightned, or be light; ſome render it, awake. I ſhould rather, look up; as we uſe to ſay, ſhake up your eye-lids. So is the word uſed, 1 Sam.14.27,29. where it is ſaid of Jonathan, upon the taſting of the honey,that his eyes were illightned,whereas, through faintneſs,he was not able to look up, or to look out with them before.

for thy light is come;] Thy night of affliction is over,and the day of thy proſperity approacheth: the day is dawning with thee; the morning is ariſing upon thee; and it is high time therefore for thee to rouze thy ſelf, and look up, chap.58 8.& 62.1. Matth.4.16. Luke 1.78,79. John 8.12. Rom.13.11,12. Eph.5.14.

and the glory of the Lord is riſen upon thee.] God is beginning to ſhew himſelf glorious,in thy deliverance and reſtauration; his glory ſhall be ſeen upon thee, as it ſometime appeared on Mount Sinai,Exod.24.15,16. and upon the Tabernacle, Exod. 40. 32,33. and in the Temple, 1 King. 8. 11. But the Metaphor, in the verb it ſelf, is taken from the Sun-riſing, and by his bright and lightſome luſtre, diſpelling and chaſing away the duſkome darkneſs of the fore-paſſed night, Cant.2.17. & 4.6. Mal.4.2. See verſ. 2, 3.

V. 2. For behold,] Take notice with admiration of a ſtrange change. So chap 51.22,23.

the darkneſs ſhall cover the earth, and thick darkneſs the people:] There ſhall be a ſtrange alteration in States: for whereas formerly other people enjoyed much peace and proſperity, while Gods people continued in captivity and thraldom. Zach. 1.11,12. Now on the other ſide, thoſe people that were their adverſaries and oppreſſors, ſhall be made to endure much calamity,and ſuſtain a great deal of miſery, while Gods people ſhall enjoy peace and plenty, chap.13.1,2. & 65.13,14.

darkneſs] For, adverſity; as chap. 59.9. ſpiritual darkneſs, where the light of Gods Word, and Spirit, is wanting, chap.8. 20. & 9.2. & 59.21. Luke 1.79. Acts 26. 18.

thick darkneſs] The word ſeemeth compounded of a term, that ſignifieth to drop, or diſtill; as Deut.32.2. & 33.28. and another that ſignifieth a miſt, or fog, chap.29. 18. & 59.9. ſo that it implies in its proper notion, a miſt, ſo thick, that it even dropeth again: ſuch a miſt, or darkneſs, as that in Egypt was, Exod. 10.22,23.

But the Lord ſhall ariſe upon thee,] The Meſſias, the Sun of righteouſneſs ſhall ariſe, and ſhine forth upon thee, with healing in his wings, Mal.4.2. an alluſion to the light, that in Goſhen they enjoyed, when all Egypt was over-ſpread with palpable darkneſs, Exod.10 23.

and his glory ſhall be ſeen upon thee.] As it was ſometime upon the Sanctuary, Lev.9.23,24. See verſ. 1.

V. 3. And Gentiles ſhall come to thy light, and Kings to the brightneſs but, hearts of thy rising.] Or, Nations shall walk in, or, by thy bright, and Kings, by the brightness of thy rising; as John 12. 35. Rev. 21. 24. not, shall repair together only, to congratulate with thee, as Chap. 39. 1. & 66. 10. but to adjoyn themselves unto thee, and to enjoy light together with thee, Chap. 56. 6, 7. & 62. 2. & 66. 11.

the brightness of thy rising.] Thy resplendent lustre, partly, in temporall dignity; but principally in spirituall excellency, upon this thy restitution, Chap. 62. 3. the Church being as the morning-star, shining bright, with light received from Christ, Rev. 2. 28. & 12. 1. the fountain of all true light, John 1. 4, 9. Or, as some render it, the brightness that ariseth upon thee, vers. 1, 2.

V. 4. Lift up thine eyes round about thee, and see:] See Chap. 49. 18.

all they, gather themselves together, they come to thee.] Or, and came to thee; as some here render it; and as it was before rendred, Chap. 49. 18. or, those all (as if in a vision, he shewed them a numberless number of people, flocking together from all parts) are gathered together to come unto thee; as Zeph. 3. 7. they rose up early, they corrupted their doings, for, they rose early to corrupt them. Or, all these that gather themselves together (this great multitude that thou seest gathered together, a defect of the relative; as Chap. 58. 5.) do all come, or, are all coming to thee, Chap. 49. 18. & 54. 2, 3.

thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side.] That is, as some, they children shall all be brought home to thee; some from places more remote; some from places neerer at hand, where they were nursed besides thee, or at thy side: as others, thy sons shall be brought from far, and thy daughters shall, as nurse-children, be carried at the side; that is, in the arms, on the one side of those, who as nurses shall bring them: and this by collation of the place, with Chap. 49. 22. and 66. 13. seems to be the genuine sense of the place. For, as for that nicety of some, that the males, as the stronger, are laid to come; the females, as the weaker, to be brought in arms; it seems over-curious, as may appear by comparing this with Chap. 49. 22. where the sons are said to be brought in lapa, or bosomes, and the daughters born on shoulders. It is but a rhetorical amplification, illustrate by a distribution, the terms wherein, may be indifferently, and enterchangeably applyed unto either subject. Whereof see more on chap. 5. 13. If we follow our version, there is a defect of the pronoun; as chap 38. 13. Howbeit some supply another way, reading it, at their side, or beside them; as Job 1. 14. (though another word be there used) that is, beside thy sons, coming joyntly along with them: a sense not improbable; but I adhere rather to the first.

V. 5. Then shalt thou see and flow together:] Or, as some, flow over: break out, as a river that furrounds its banks, chap. 54. 1. But rather retaining our received version; when this shall befall thee, thou shalt fit feeding thine eyes, as it were with the pleasing fight of it; and the heart shall even wave, and flow, in a manner, to and fro, through abundance of joy within thee, at the view of that great multitude, that thou shalt see come flocking in to thee, and flowing in upon thee: for that is the proper, and generall signification of the word here used: Which yet some render, thou shalt fit me; because from it is derived a word rendred light, Job 3. 4. & Dan. 2. 22. and thence gather, that the verb it self signifieth to shine, both here (as if it were said, thou shalt shine out gloriously in thy full lustre; as Job 29. 3.) and elsewhere, Psal. 34. 5. But the word of light seems to have its original from this root; as it hath a notion of confluence, or influence, in it. Nor is there any necessity, that it should signifie to shine, either in the one place, or in the other.

and thine heart shall fear,] Not through dread, or terrour, but with admiration, and joyes sudden and exective, cause a trembling, or fluttering of the heart many times, together with the dilatation of it, Gen. 45. 26, 17. Jer. 33. 9 Hos. 3. 5. Acts 2. 7. & 12. 14. and this more fully expla neth what was before said, thou shalt flow upon the sight of it.

and be enlarged:] For joy dilateth & enlargeth the heart, 2 Cor. 6. 11, 12. as on the contrary grief is wont to contract and draw it in, Prov. 12. 25. See chap. 61. 3.

because the abundance of the sea shall be converted unto thee, the forces of the Gentiles shall come in to thee.] Or, when the abundance, the forces of the Gentiles shall come in to thee.] Or, when the abundance, or, multitude, (for, nose, which some would fetch in from chap. 17. 12. and 63. 15. liteth not here) of the sea (of the sea it self: 17. 12. and 63. 15. liteth not here) of the sea (of the sea it self: Of which, see on vers. 6. Or, of those that coast on the sea, or trade by sea; as chap. 23. 2, 4.) shall be turned in to thee, or, toward thee, (as 2 King. 5. 26.) or, upon thee (as 1 Sam. 4. 19. Dan. 10. 16. because there followeth, vers. 6. shall cover thee. Nor need we, as some of note do, to make it a complexive form, like that, 1 Sam. 7. 2. as if the meaning at full expressed were, shall be converted, and come in to thee) and the wealth (as the word is used, Job 20. 15. Prov. 13. 22. Chap. 8. 5. & 61. 6.) Or, the troops, (because the verb is plural, both here and vers. 11.) of the nations, shall come to thee. The meaning is, that people out of all parts shall repair to Gods Church, and betaking themselves thereunto, honour him, and it, to their utmost ability, by tendring both themselves, and what ever they are stored with, unto his service, and to the service of his Church, chap. 23. 18. & 49. 23. & 61. 6. 2 Cor. 8. 3–5. For they draw it too low, that fetch in hither, the markets kept at Jerusalem, and the fish, and other wares, brought in thither, by the Merchants of Tyre, Neh. 13. 16.

V. 6. The multitude of camels shall cover thee;] The word rendred multitude, doth signifie, in the first place, a great affluence, or abundance of ought. Hence, Deut. 33. 19. the abundance of the sea; that is, of such commodities as the seas afford, (and so also might that in the foregoing verse be understood; but that the word there used, doth rather signifie, a multitude of people, chap. 13. 4.) and abundance of waters, Job 22. 11. But sometime it is used for some great troop, or company, of men, as King. 9. 17. or horse, Ezek. 26. 10. here, of camels, which were much used for carriage of wares, and commodities, in those parts, ch. 21. 7. & 30. 6. said, for the multitude of them, to cover the country; as those of the Midianites, Judg. 6. 5. So, abundance of waters, to cover, Job 22. 11. and those companies of horse, to cover with dust, Ezek. 26. 10. Yet we need not therefore with the Latine, render it, an inundation; beside of waters, the word is used, and they are said to cover the earth, Jer. 46. 8. and much less, as some would have it, that the camels should be said to cover the land, with the dust that they should raise with their feet.

the dromedaries.] The Greek rendereth it as the former, Camels: And our Jewish Criticks would make us believe, that the young camels are thus called, so long as they suck; and that when they are once weaned, then they begin to be called, Camels; because the verb, of which root it seems to be, signifieth sometime to nurse, and to wean, Gen. 1. 8. 1 Sam. 1. 22–24. as if nursing, and weaning, were the camels peculiar, and not common to them, with other creatures. They might as well affirm, that camels are so called; for that they use to nurse their old dams, and fires, as they say of the storks; (as truly, it may be, as of the sons singing towards her end) because the word signifies, as commonly, to retribute, & repay, Deut. 32. 6. 1 Sam. 24. 18. 2 Sam. 22. 21. it is well known that in Hebrew as well as in other languages, from the same root, for letters and sound, divers words spring: that in use and notion have no affinity at all one with another. Of which, see on Jer. 24. 2. But that this is a frivolous figment of theirs, is apparent: For it is absurd to imagine, that the people here mentioned should bring no camels, but wainlings, or unwained ones, rather, or should bring their wares and commodities on the backs of such: the feminine word is used, Jer. 2. 23, 24. of a beast running at large, and joyned with the wild Jer. 2. 23, 24. of a beast running at large, and joyned with the wild ass, that runs a madding in gendring times after the male. The term ass, that runs a madding in gendring times after the male. The term is no where found, save in the masculine, here; in the feminine here. It seems to be, as the old Latine rendreth it, that which the Greeks, and the Latine, from them; as we, from the Latines, term a dromedary, or a dromes; a beast commended for swiftnels, Jer. 2. 23. whence also it hath its name in Greek, and, as some would have it also, but that is somewhat too far fetcht in Hebrew: For, because from the same root ariseth, both the word, that signifieth, firstborn, and first-fruits; and that, whereby this beast is named, therefore they deem it to be called; because, in pace, it out-goeth other beasts, as the first-born cometh before other issue. But that seems true also here, that was hinted before, concerning diversity of notions, meeting in one root. The dromas is a lither and lower kind of camel, very fit in Arabia, though ufed much for burden, yet of special commendation for swiftnels, and by curriers therefore generally, in those parts employed. See of them, Strabo, lib. 15. Diodor. lib. 3. c. 54. Livy, lib. 37. Leo the Africane, li. 9.

of Midian:] People defcended from Abraham by Keturah, Gen. 25. 2. on that had their seat in Arabia, mixt with the Ismaelites, as appeareth, Gen. 37. 25, 28. and with the Cushites; as appears, Num. 12. 1. Hab. 3. 7.

all they from Sheba shall come:] The posterity of Cush, by his fourth son Raamah, Gen. 10. 7. Psal. 72. 10.

they shall bring gold, and incense.] The chief commodities of their country, 1 King. 10. 2, 10. chap. 61. 6. Ezek. 27. 22. Mat. 2. 11.

and they shall show forth the praises of the Lord.] Repairing thither, not for traffick, but to worship, Acts 8. 27.

V. 7. All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee:] Or, Shall be gathered together, and come; or, be brought to thee; as it is more fully, vers. 4. Or, shall be gathered together to bring to thee. See the like form of speech, Gen. 27. 9. Chap. 38. 21. The Kedarens, or, Arabians, called by the Greeks, Scenitæ of the tents they lived in. See chap. 21. 16. they abounded in cattel, Ezek. 27. 21.

The rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee:] The issue of Nebaioth, Ismaels first-born, elder brother to Kedar, Gen. 25. 13. called in later times by the Greeks and Latines, Nabatæans, whom Strabo, l. 16. placeth in Arabia; as also, Pliny, l. 5. c. 11. where he joyneth them, and the Cedreans, together, they shall come up with acceptance upon mine altar:] Being made burnt-offerings, thence so termed, Chap. 1. 11. See chap. 56. 7. Psal. 51. 19.

and I will glorifie the house of my glory.] Or, for (as chap. 59. 17.) I will adorn, or make magnificent, my beautiful, or, magnificent, or, goodly house: a house of beauty, magnificence, or goodliness; as, a crown of the like, chap. 61. 3. and, a name of the like, chap. 63. 14. his Temple he meaneth; a type of his Church, chap. 2. 2. See vers. 13.

V. 8.

V. 8. What are these that fly as a cloud; and as the doves to their windows?] As before, vers. 4. So here again, the Prophet speaketh, as if in a vision he saw multitudes of people, by flotes, making towards Jerusalem, like clouds, that come oft from remote parts, driven, swiftly, by the wind, chap. 19. 1. Jer. 4. 13. and coming so thick, that they cover the whole face of the heaven, and intercept the sky-light, Psal. 147. 8. Ezek. 38. 9. Joel 2. 2. Heb. 12. 1. Or, like doves, or pigeons, that fly in great flocks, & that with much speed, to their places of retreat and refuge, either when they perceive a storm towards, or when by fowls, or prey they are purfued, Psal. 11. 1. as Noahs did, when the could find no reft else-where, to the Ark, Gen. 8. 9. There is in it an intimation, as of those multitudes of people, that should come in to the Church, and adjoyn themselves thereunto, Acts 2. 37. 40, 41. & 4. 4. Heb. 12. 1, 22, 23. So of the speed and eagerness that they should express, in their repair thither, Jer. 50. 8. Matth. 11. 12. Luke 12. 1. Some Interpreters of note, read the words, not, who; but whose are these; making it the speech of Sion, or the Church; not unlike that, chap. 49. 21. Who begat these? Which some the rather embrace, because the interrogative seems to be of a singular notion only. But it is found joyned with the very same term, in a plurall notion also, Gen. 33. 5. Who are these? and may well therefore stand as our version hath it. Nor doth it hinder, but that it may be duly deemed, though to Sion, as in a vision, to see people flocking towards her, vers. 4.

and as the doves] Or, or as the doves (for they are two divers resemblances. So chap. 1. 30. & 6. 13.

that fly] a defect of the relative; as chap. 58. 5.

doves to their windows] Or, lovers; or lockers: to the loop-holes of the turrets in which they keep: a fit resemblance of the Jews returning from Babylon to their former places of abode: as doves at time of year, in some parts, to their wonted nests.

V. 9. Surely the Iles shall wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far.] This seems an answer returned, as in Gods person, by the Prophet, to Sions question. As if he should say, Doth thou ask who they are? They are they children whom the sea-coasters, and Islanders have, by mine appointment, with their ships, been attending on, to bring them home to thee.

Surely] So is this particle used, chap. 7. 9, 16. & 49. 18. Some render it here, For.

The Iles] Such as dwell on the sea-coast, or deal in shippings, as chap. 41. 4. & 51. 5. & 59. 18. See vers. 5.

shall wait for me] Or, have waited on me; as chap. 8. 17. & 30. 18. attending when to be employed by me.

and the ships of Tarshish] As being fittest, and readiest at hand, for transportation of persons into those parts. See chap. 2. 16. & 23. 1.

first] That is, as some, with the first; or, among the first of them, that have an hand in bringing of Gods people home. Others, at the first, as implying, that the first of those, that returned, should be brought home, with most ease, as if they had come by shipping. Others, carrying it back to the first words, shall wait on me in the first place; and on thee, and thine, in the next; 2 Cor. 8. 5. Others, first place; and on thee, and thine, in the next; 2 Cor. 8. 5. Others, with a principal one, to wit, ship; to be as Admiral to the Fleet: Or lastly, as others, (inferring the note of similitude, frequently used by us; Psal. 11. 1.) as formerly, or, as at first; as chap. 1. 26. supprefted: as Psal. 11. 1.) as formerly, or, as at first; as chap. 1. 26. and they suppofe it to have an eye back to Solomons days: wherein ships of Tarshish brought Solomon store of treasure, 1 King. 9. 26–28. & 10. 12. this may seem the more probable, because mention of such matter followeth. Yet I go rather (because it goeth more smoothly off) with the first.

to bring thy sons] Thy children home from the places of their captivity; as chap. 49. 22. & 66. 20. vers. 4. implying, that they should get home as easily, as if they were born in arms, or carried in litters, or conveyed by shipping. See Gal. 4. 26.

from afar:] As vers. 4. no distance of place being able to hinder the return of any of Gods captived ones, into their own countrey; nor remotenels of place, or state, the acceffe of any unto God, by Christ, chap. 43. 6, Jer. 30. 10. Eph. 2. 13.

their silver, and their gold, with them,] Either that which themselves bring as a free-will offering for Gods service, and the beautifying of his Temple, ver. 6. or, the treasure that Gods people shall bring along with them, for more ease, and safety, together with their persons, conveying it for them, as pointing unto that gold and silver, that strangers should furnish them with, at their coming into their journey, and the vessels that were to be sent back again with them, Ezra 1. 4. 6–11.

unto the name of the Lord thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel] That is, unto the place that the Lord hath chosen, to place his Name there, Deut. 12. 5. the Temple, a type of the Church, there to present them as an offering to God, chap. 66. 20. Rom. 15. 16. or, for the name of the Lord thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; out of that reverent, and religious respect and regard that they shall have unto the Lord thy God, Ezr. 1. 2, 3. & 6. 8–12. See chap. 55. 5. Of the titles given God here, see chap. 1. 4. & 41. 13, 14.

because he hath glorified thee] Or, as some, when he shall have glorified thee: as by temporall deliverance; so by the ministery of the Gospel settled with thee, chap. 55. 5. See chap. 2. 2. Zach. 8, 23. or, for he will make thee goodly, or magnificent; he is resolved to make thee flately. So vers. 7. the same word is in either place.

Vers. 10. And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls;] That is, strangers themselves; being now become Proselytes, chap. 56. 6. & 61. 5. shall joyn with you, in furthering the restauration of the Citie; and shall help to carry on the gracious work of spirituall edification, 1 Theff. 5. 11.

and their Kings shall minister unto thee:] Cyrus, and other his successors, that shall happily thee with necessaries, and accommodations in divers kind, Ezra 1. 4. 8. & 7. 12–26. Neh. 2. 8. but those especially by the ministery of the Gospel, won to the profession of the Christian faith, chap. 49. 7, 23. & 52. 15. v. 3.

for in my wrath I smote thee,] Chap. 57. 17. Jer. 30. 14. Lam. 3. 1.

but in my favour have I had mercy on thee] chap. 12. 1. & 14. 1. & 54. 8.

But] Or, yet: though in wrath I smote thee, yet out of my free favour I will now reftore thee. chap. 57. 18. Lam. 3. 32. Heb. and: as chap. 12. 1.

V. 11. Therefore shall thy gates be open continually, they shall not be shut day nor night] Heb. They shall open thy gates: as chap. 26. 3. or, thy gates shall open themselves: as chap. 48. 8. Acts 12. 10. they shall be opened, that is, stand open: as wasted, for, lye waste, chap. 34. 10. builded, for, stand built, Dan. 9. 25. they shall stand open night and day, in regard of continuall concourse, and confluence of people: and as in times of generall peace and fecurity, is wont to be, when all is quiet on every side, as some in Christs time suppose it to have been at Jerusalem; from Luke 21. 37. & John 18. 1, but of that some doubt may be; though at that time, in regard of the Pascha solemnity, whereunto out of all parts they reforted, it might for some short space be so. See Rev. 21. 25.

that men may bring to thee the forces of the Gentiles] Or, the wealth. See vers. 5. Heb. to bring the forces, or, wealth of the Nations; that is, that the forces of the nations (subdued in fight) or, their wealth (and spoils taken in fight) may be brought in to thee; as some: or, simply, for the bringing in of them in any kind, or any way whatsoever, vers. 5, 6, 7.

and that their Kings may be brought] Heb. and their Kings led. Which word, because it is sometime used of leading captive; as chap. 20. 4. the Chaldee (whom divers others also therein follow) doth so here understand: according to that, Psal. 149. 8. Chap. 45. 14. Howbeit, Others, both Jewish and ours, understan: it of Kings led, that is, conducted in state; as they use to go suffnered with officers going before them, to clear the way for them: so is the word used, 1 King. 4. 24. and it may very well be so taken in this place, of Kings entering with their attendants, conducting them in state: and the whole passage may be read, for the bringing in of the wealth of the nations, and of their Kings led in state, So, rather, then wealth of the nations, and of their Kings, as one of good note, the wealth of their nations, and of their Kings, for which (wealth, or riches, because the particle is plural) shall be born before them: as 1 Sam. 30. 20. Chap. 8. 4. for this syntax seems over-harsh; the meaning is, that not the people alone, but their Rulers also, should render themselves and their means serviceable unto Gods Church.

V. 12. For the Nation and Kingdom that will not serve thee, shall perish:] All people, or persons, great, or small, that shall refuse to submit to the scepter and government of Christ erected in thee, Psal. 110. 2. to be swayed by his Word, and Spirit, chap. 59. 21. shall everlastingly perish, Psal. 2. 12. 2 Cor. 2. 16. & 4. 3. it seems to be an allusion unto the condition of those, that refused to submit unto the people of God, when they entred upon the Land of Canaan, Deut. 20. 10–17. See Zach. 14. 16–19.

nation and kingdom] Or, nation, or kingdom: as Exod. 21. 15. & 35. 29.

yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted] Heb. and (as c. 55. 1.) those nations (to wit, that will not serve thee, to be supplied from the former branch; as in Gen. 1. 16.) shall be bring wasted, be wasted; or, being destroyed be destroyed. See the like, Deut. 7. 2. & 20. 17.

V. 13. The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fire tree, the pine tree, and the box tree together, to beautifie the place of my Sanctuary.] The goodly cedars, and other choice trees, wherewith Lebanon aboundeth, affording materials fit for flately buildings, shall be brought in, great store of them, to build and beautifie my Temple, alluding to the plenty of Cedars, and other timber trees, that Solomon procured to be brought from Lebanon, for the building of Gods Temple, 1 King. 5. 1. 0, 14, 18.

glory of Lebanon] That is, the cedars, which were of prime and chief note among the trees of the forest, Ezek. 31. 3, 8. and Lebanon of prime note, above other places, for them, Psal. 104. 16. chap. 2. 13. & 37. 24.

the fire] Thele also of much use for building, chap. 14. 8. and to beautifie] Or, adorn: as, Ezra 7. 27. See vers. 7.

and I will make the place of my feet glorious] Or, for (as v. 7. c. 59. 17.) I will make glorious; I am resolved to beflow abundance of spirituall glory, 2 Cor. 3. 7–11 18. upon the place of my feet: to, the place of the soles of my feet, Ezek. 43. 7. that is, of my special reft, and residence, chap. 11. 10. so was, in times past, esteemed, and termed, firſt the Ark, ſtyled his footſtool, 1 Chr. 28. 2. Pſal. 99. 5. & 132. 7. then the Temple, and Sion wherein it ſtood, called his reſt, Pſal. 78. 68, 69. & 132. 13, 14. all reſembling the Church, 1 Tim. 3. 15. Rev. 21. 3.

V. 14. The ſons alſo of them, that afflicted thee, ſhall come bending unto thee, and all they that deſpiſed thee ſhall bow themſelves down, at the ſoals of thy feet.] Thoſe that were before thine adverſaries, ſhall now come in to thee, and ſubmit themſelves unto thee, and to the Scepter of the Meſſias, erected with thee, chap. 49. 23. Rev. 3. 9. See ver. 12.

The ſons alſo of them that afflicted thee] Heb. And (as chap. 57. 8, 15.) the ſons of thine afflicters; their children: or, they themſelves, as, the ſons of ſtrangers, ver. 10. and ſo in the next branch, the deſpiſers of thee; or both.

and they ſhall call thee the city of the Lord, the Zion of the Holy One of Iſrael.] Either, thou ſhalt be ſo called, the verb taken indefinitely, as chap. 62. 12. or even they themſelves being convinced in conſcience of the truth hereof, ſhall now acknowledge thee, whom before they contemned, and maligned, oppugned, and oppreſſed, to be the Lords own royal City, and the place of his Holineſſes ſpecial reſidence, Ezek. 48. 53. See their acknowledgment, ch. 49. 23.

V. 15. Whereas thou haſt been forſaken, and hated ſo that no man went thorow thee] During the time of they depopulation, while thy people were abroad in captivity, ch. 3. 26. & 6. 11, 12. Jer. 9. 11, 12.

hated] Diſregarded, diſeſteemed; as Deut. 21. 15. Mat. 6. 24. nor ſought to, or looked after, Jer. 30. 17.

So that no man went thorow thee] Heb. and no paſſenger, or, and without paſſenger; as chap. 24. 10. Jer. 9. 9. a defect of the pronoun: as chap. 5. 23. & 58. 9.

I will make thee an eternal excellency] Heb. an excellency of eternity, or, perpetuity; as chap. 63. 12. a laſting excellency.

a joy of many generations] Heb. of generation, and generation; as chap. 24. 17.

V. 16. Thou ſhalt alſo ſuck the milk of the Gentiles, and ſhalt ſuck the breaſt of Kings:] alſo Heb. and, as ver. 14. All, as well high, as low, ſhall with their endowments, and abilities, of what kind ſoever, ſupply thee, ſucceour thee, ſupport thee, nourish thee, being as foſter fathers, or nurſes, to thee, as Mordecai was to Eſter, Eſt. 2. 7. ver. 4. chap. 49. 26. & 66. 12.

the breaſt of Kings] So is the word rendred, and ſeems to be uſed, Job 24. 9. Howbeit, the word that ſignifieth a teat, or dug, is ſomewhat diverſe from this. See chap. 28. 9. & 32. 12. Lam. 4. 3. and ſome therefore interpret it, not the breaſt, or teat it ſelf; but the moiſture drawn from it: and there want not of the Jewiſh Criticks, who underſtand by the phraſe here, ſuch dainties, as Kings are wont to be fed with.

and thou ſhalt know that I the Lord am thy Saviour, and thy Redeemer, the mighty one of Jacob] Or, that thou mayſt know, (by good proof, and experience, find it to be ſo; as Ezek. 34. 30. either implying the iſſue of it: as Ezek. 30. 25. or, the end of doing it, as chap. 45. 3.) that I the Lord am thy Saviour, and that the mighty one of Jacob is thy Redeemer. See chap. 49. 26.

V. 17. For braſs I will bring gold; and for iron, I will bring ſilver; and for wood, braſs; and for ſtones, iron:] I will make reparations of all thy loſſes, and damages, with advantage; all things ſhall be exceedingly improved, and changed, with thee, for the better. ch. 30. 26. & 35. 1. an alluſion to the wealth of the Jewiſh State in Solomons days, Of which, ſee King. 10. 27. 2 Chr. 1. 15. & 9. 27.

I will alſo make thine officers peace, and thine exactors righteouſneſs] alſo. Heb. and: as ver. 16. Because there can be no aſſured continuance, or conſtant enjoyment of wealth, and plenty in a State unſetled, and wherein peace and equity are not eſtabliſhed; God therefore promiſeth to furniſh their State with ſuch Rulers, and Officers, as ſhould be careful to demean themſelves equally and uprightly in their places, and to maintain the people, ſubject unto them, in proſperity and peace.

thine officers peace] Or, thine officers officers of peace, or, men of peace: as Pſal. 120. 7. I am peace; that is a man of peace: one that aſſeſt, deſire, ſeek, ſtudy peace; but here rather officers of peace: with ſupply from the other term: as chap. 10. 1. Dan. 4, 33. they ſhall be ſuch, as ſhall ſeek and ſtudy thy proſperity and welfare, (ſo is peace commonly taken, chap. 48. 18. Pſal. 122. 9.) Neh. 2. 10. Ezek. 34. 23. Heb. thine office, Pſal. 109. 8. or, over-ſight; as Num. 3. 32. or, government, for, officers, overſeers or governours: (for the word it ſelf cometh of, is uſed oft for officers, with charge of government: as Jer. 20. 1.) as Kingdome, or, royalty, for, Kings, Jer. 10. 7. it may, without any force to the text, be rendred, I will make thy government a government of peace, that is, a peaceable government; not embroyled in wars, nor taken up with military employments, as in time paſt thine exactors righteouſneſſe] Or, overſeers; as the ancient Greek rendreth it: the old Latine, thoſe that are ſet over thee: the word is uſually taken in the worſe part, for exactors, oppreſſours, chap. 3. 12. & 9. 4. & 14. 2. yet not always, but ſometime, for rulers, overſeers, or officers; ſuch as either take, or gather tole and tribute; or overſee thoſe that are in any employment, or work ſo it is taken, 2 ach. 10. 4. and ſo here; thy rulers, or overſeers, righteouſneſs: or, rulers, overſeers, of righteouſneſs; that is, juſt and righteous: not ſuch as ſhall pill, and poll thee, exact upon thee, and oppreſs thee as formerly; but ſuch as ſhall carry themſelves moderately, and mercifully: (for ſo is righteouſneſs alſo uſed, Pſal. 112. 3, 9.) See chap. 1. 23, 26. & 32. 1, 2. Neh. 5. 15. Ezek. 23. 4, 16.

V. 18. Violence ſhall no more be heard in thy land, waſting nor deſtruction within thy borders] Thou ſhalt live quietly and peaceably, free from oppreſſion, by bad rulers within thee: and free from invaſion, and incurſion, by hoſtility from abroad, Pſal. 10. 16. and 144. 24, 25. chap. 16. 4. Ezek. 34. 26. 28. Zach. 9. 8.

waſting, and deſtruction] Or, devaſtation, and deſtruction. See chap. 59. 7.

but thou ſhalt call thy walls ſalvation, and thy gates praiſe.] That is, they ſhall be ſuch unto thee, for to be called this, or that, is in Scripture language for to be. See chap. 7. 14. & 9. 6. & 47. 1. & 56. 7. ver. 14. either thy walls, and gates, ſhall be ſafety, and praiſe, to thee; that is, ſhall afford thee ſafety, and miniſter matter to thee, of praiſing God for it: or, ſalvation, and praiſe, ſhall be wall, and gate, to thee; that is, Gods protection, for which thou ſhalt have cauſe daily to praiſe him, ſhall be ſufficient, inſtead of walls, and gates, to ſecure thee. See the like expreſſion, chap. 26. 1. See alſo, Pſal. 147. 12, 14. the meaning is, that all ſhould be ſafe with them, under Gods protection: by means whereof, they ſhould have liberty to ſerve him the more cheerfully Luk. 1. 74, 75. Act. 9. 31. Nor is that explication of theirs, wholly impertinent, that would have it to be implyed, that the watchmen, placed on the walls uſually, or over the gates, chap. 62. 6. 2 Sam. 18. 24. ſhould not be taken up, with ſolicitous looking out, or expecting of ſome enemies approach, but being freed from fear of ought in that kind, ſhould fit ſecurely, paſſing their time in ſinging of praiſes unto God, chap. 52. 8. Howbeit, to draw out to ſuch particulars, is not needful. Nor is that of ſome others altogether unſuitable, that God would continually come to them with new favours, and they goe forth with praiſes, to meet him, Pſal. 89. 15-17. But I ſuppoſe, that both wall, and gate, here, are in a notion of defence; and the rather, mention ſeems to be made hereof, to comfort Gods people, when they ſhould be, without gate, or wall, for ſometime after their return; to give them aſſurance of ſafety, notwithſtanding the want of ſuch material fortifications, and defences. See Neh. 1. 3. & 2. 13, 17. & 4. 2, 3. Zach. 2. 4, 5. Nor can I therefore accord with thoſe, who refer gates here, to execution of juſtice: becauſe the gate was commonly, the place of judicature. Lam. 5. 14.

V. 19. The Sun ſhall be no more thy light by day, neither for brightneſs ſhall the moon give light unto thee: but the Lord ſhall be unto thee an everlaſting light, and thy God thy glory.] Matter of ſafety was before, ver. 18. Matter of joy, and ſolace, now followeth: both joyned together, in Sun, and ſhield, Pſal. 84. 11. The meaning is not, that after their return from captivity, in their ſtate reſtored, or at any time in this world, Gods people in any place, ſhould have no uſe of thoſe celeſtial bodies, to impart light unto them: but that their chief, and principal light and comfort, ſhould conſiſt in ſuch a plentiful enjoyment of Gods gracious favour, and loving kindneſs, that in compariſon thereof, thoſe external lights ſhould be as of no regard, or account. Though there want not thoſe, who refer this wholly unto the glorious eſtate of Gods children in the next life; when all theſe outward ordinary means of joy and comfort; temporal, or ſpiritual, expiring, or furceaſing, God himſelf ſhall immediately become all in all unto his: and then indeed ſhall be the conſummated complement of it, 1 Cor. 15. 28. Sco Rev. 21. 23.

The Lord an everlaſting light] Heb. a light of perpetuity, or, of eternity; as joy of perpetuity, or eternity, chap. 35. 10. a conſtant light: ſuch a light as hath no variation, or ſhadow of change, with it; as theſe bodily lights ott have. Jam. 1. 17. a light that ſhineth, as well by night, as by day; a light that never ſetteth, but ſhines to all eternity, ver. 20. Of this light, ſee Pſal. 4. 6, 7. & 27. 1. & 30. 5. & 36. 9, 10. & 43. 3. & 84. 11. & 89. 15.

for brightneſs] Or, for luſtre by night; as ſome ſupply from the oppoſite member: in the former branch; as the like ſupply would be from the latter branch, in the former, Pſal. 105. 39. he ſpread a cloud for a covering by day, and fire to give light by night.

V. 20. Thy Sun ſhall no more goe down, neither ſhall the Moon withdraw it ſelf.] Gods grace and free favour, in the comfortable influences, and effects of it, that ſhall be as Sun, and Moon, to thee, ſhall be in a plentifull manner, without interruption, continually preſent with thee, Rev. 22. 5. it ſhall not be clouded, or eclipſed towards thee, as in former times; by occaſion of offence, and diſpleaſure for thy ſins, chap. 54. 8. 9. & 59. 2. Lam. 4. 44. Or, as ſome, thou ſhalt not any more be through ſtreights and diſtreſſes, ſurpriſed and poſſeſſed, with ſuch anxiety, and perplexity, of ſoul and ſpirit, as ſhall cauſe thee to have no joy at all of the light, no luſt to look up to heaven. See Chap. 13. 10. Amos 8. 9, 10. both may well ſtand.

Moon withdraw it ſelf:] As to her with-drawing chamber; as of the Sun, Pſal. 19. 6. Heb. ſhall not be gathered up; as chap. 57. 1. Or, ſhall not retire, or get her away, as Num. 11. 30. Moſes retired, or, gat himſelf away into the Camp.

and the days of thy mourning ſhall be ended.] chap. 35. 10. & 40. 2. & 54. 9. Rev. 7. 16, 17. & 21. 4.

V. 21. Thy people alſo ſhall be all righteous:] Heb. And (as verſe 17.) thy people all they; (for, all ſhall be, the pronoun demonſtrative, for the verb ſubſtantive: as Jer. 4. 22. & 9. 3. & 35. 8. which therefore need not be written in a different character) righteous. Such ſhall all be, that are free denſons of the heavenly Jeruſalem. See chap. 4. 3. & 62. 12. Jer. 31. 23. Eph. 2. 19. Rev. 21. 27.

they ſhall inherit the land for ever:] The new world, by Chriſt renewed and reſtored, in a ſpecial manner here, in full perfection hereafter; wherein of that of Canaan was a type, Chap. 57. 13. & 65. 17, 18. 2 Pet. 3. 13. Rev. 21. 1. 5. 7. Some would have the words read; Thy people all the juſt of them, ſhall inherit the land for ever; as Pſal. 37. 29. but the pauſes, in the Hebrew, will not admit it.

the branch of my planting, the work of my hands that I may be glorified.] There is here a two-fold reading, the one in the text, the other in the margent. The text hath, his planting, which ſome retaining, thus read, and render it; That the branch of his plant may glorie in, or, through the work of my hands: and of theſe, ſome, by the branch, here ſpoken of, underſtand Chriſt, chap. 11. 1. whom all the faithful being graffed into, Rom. 6. 5. & 11. 17, 24. doe, through Gods bleſſing on them, become a moſt glorious plantation, ch. 61. 3. Others, by it underſtand the iſſue and poſterity of Gods people, that ſhould glory in Gods doings for them, and benefits conferred on them, Pſal. 44. 8. But the moſt, following that in the margent, my planting, do, ſome render the words, as our verſion hath them; ſome, with little difference, they are, or ſhall be, a branch of my plantings, a work of my hands, when in I will glory. Others, that the branch of my planting, the work of my hands may be glorified; and ſome would have it to be as a reaſon rendred why they ſhould ſo continue in poſſeſſion of that inheritance before mentioned: either taken from the time paſt: God himſelf hath planted them therein, and therefore would not ſuffer them to be wholly rooted out of it again, Pſal. 44. 2. & 80. 2. chap. 5. 2. becauſe he would plant it, and ſo plant it, that he might glory of it, and in it; which he could not doe, if he ſhould ſuffer it, to be pluckt up, or rooted out, Mat. 15. 13. & 16. 18. The words are thus preciſely in the original; A branch of my plantations, a work of my hands to glory in, that is, my people, being (as by appoſition joyned to what went before) a branch of my ſpecial plantation (for theſe plurals uſually import an eminency, and excellency, in each kind. See Prov. 1. 20.) my handy work (my maſter-piece) wherein I intend to ſhew my ſelf magnificent or, glorious, chap. 49. 3. the word is the ſame with that, ver. 7. and chap. 61. 3.

V. 22. A little one ſhall become a thouſand; and a ſmall one a ſtrong nation.] So reading the words, the ſenſe ſhould be; that the Church ſhould grow, not in number only, but in ſtrength and ſtature too; which is true indeed. Zach. 12. 4. Eph. 3. 16. & 4. 13, 15. But the two members of the ſentence here ſeem rather to be, in ſubſtance the ſame; the word rendred ſtrong, ſignifying no other then numerous; as Joel 1. 6. See on Chap. 16. 14. And it implyes onely a miraculous multiplication of the Church, chap. 66. 7, 8. Jer. 31. 27. Act. 2. 41. & 4. 4. & 5. 14. as if a ſmall family conſiſting but of a few perſons, ſhould ſuddenly, or in ſhort time, become a numerous Nation, chap. 66. 7, 8. Some would have the meaning to be, that men out of weak parts, and ſmall gifts, ſhall convert many, Act. 11. 20, 21. But the former ſeemeth the native ſenſe.

I the Lord will haſten it in his time] This is added, that they may not doubt of the doing of it, in regard of the improbability: or, as might be deemed, the impoſſibility of it, chap. 66. 8. he will doe it, with whom nothing is hard to be done, Num. 11. 23. Jer. 32. 27. he will ſpeedily effect it, when it's due time is come; and till then, they muſt expect, chap. 13. 22. & 8. 17. & 28. 16. & 30. 18. Hab. 2. 3. Luk. 1. 20.

CHAP. LXI.

Ver. 1. The ſpirit of the Lord God is upon me:] This Chapter, much of the ſame argument with the former, conſiſteth of three parts. 1. Chriſts calling to his Miniſtery, and the exerciſe of his Prophetical office, ſhadowed out in Eſays, ver 1-3. 2. The reſtitution encreaſe, and growth of the Church of God under him, ver. 4. 9. And 3. a ſolemn acknowledgment made in the Churches name, of the manifold bleſſings by god beſtowed on her. ver. 10, 11.

The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me:] This is not the Jewiſh Commenters only, but a great part of our Interpreters alſo, conceive to be ſpoken by Eſay of himſelf. Herein they differ only, that the former reſtrain it unto Eſay; the later extend it unto Chriſt, as more perfectly, and conſummately, fulfilled in him. And it is true, that other of Gods Miniſters, and Meſſengers, had the Spirit of God in them, and on them, and ſpake by it, 2 Sam. 23. 2. 2 Chr. 20. 14. & 24. 20. ch. 63. 11. 1 Pet. 1. 11. 2 Pet. 1. 19. but Chriſt in a far more abundant, and tranſcendent manner and meaſure, conſtantly reſting on him, and reſiding in him, ch. 11. 2. & 42. 1. Joh. 1. 33 & 3. 34. who therefore alſo in more ſpecial manner applyeth this Scripture unto himſelf, Luk. 4. 18. in regard whereof divers Interpreters, on the other ſide reſtrain it wholly unto him; of whom, that it is principally intended, I ſuppoſe, cannot be denyed, though not excluſive of Eſay, who had this Spirit on him, when he ſpake it: Nor the Apoſtles, unto whom Chriſt imparted of the ſame Spirit, for the work of their Apoſtle-ſhip, both before his aſcenſion, in a competency, Joh. 20. 22. and after his aſcenſion in a far more plentiful manner, Act. 2. 4, 33. as before his paſſion, and again after his reſurrection, he had formerly promiſed, Joh. 14. 16, 17, 26. & 15. 26. & 16. 7. Luk. 24. 49. Act. 1. 5, 8. 1 Theſſ. 4. 8.

becauſe the Lord hath anointed me,] Of this ſpiritual unction, in a competent meaſure of ſanctifying grace, do all the faithful, each one according to his degree and proportion, partake, Pſal. 104. 15. 2 Cor. 1. 21, 22. 1 Joh. 2. 20, 27. But there is, beſides this general unction, a more ſpecial anointing, by which ſome are anointed, and endowed with ſome ſpecial gifts and graces, for the diſcharge of ſpeciall places and offices; a thing typified in thoſe material unctions, whereby men were, in times paſt, ſolemnly ſet apart unto employments of note and weight, in Church and State, Lev. 8. 12. Num. 11. 17, 25. 1 Sam. 10. 1, 6, 9. & 16. 13. In either kind, was Chriſt, as man, anointed, in far more large, eminent, and excellent manner, then any other, Pſal. 45. 7. Act. 10. 38. Col. 2. 3, 9. Heb. 1. 8. and thereby ſet apart to the work of the Mediatorſhip, and to be a King, Prieſt, and Prophet, unto Gods people, being furniſhed with all endowments neceſſary for the diſcharge of thoſe offices, and with a ſuper-abundant redundancy alſo, for the conveyance of a ſufficiency of ſuch endowments unto others, for the ſpiritual behoof, both of themſelves, and others, Dan. 9. 24. Joh. 1. 16. & 10. 26 & 17. 19. Thus was he anointed from his very conception, and the aſſumption of his fleſh, by the Word, in the womb of his Mother, Luk. 1. 35. Joh. 1. 14. but it was in a more open and ſolemn manner, publikely declared and manifeſted, when at his Baptiſm, being now to enter upon the exerciſe, and execution of his office, the Holy Ghoſt, in a viſible form, deſcended, and reſted upon him, ſhortly after which alſo he preached upon this text, and applyed it unto himſelf, Mat. 3. 16, 17. Joh. 1. 32, 33. Luk. 3. 22. & 4. 1, 14, 18, 21. the ſame Spirit being afterward ſent by him, did in a viſible ſhape light upon his Apoſtles, and reſted likewiſe on them, Act. 2. 3, 4. who may well alſo be ſaid, to have been anointed therewith: as alſo was Eſay undoubtedly before his miſſion unto the Prophetical function, who might therefore truly ſay this of himſelf, as well as that, chap. 50. 4.

anointed me to preach] A complexive form of ſpeech: anointed; that is, not ſtored, and furniſhed me only with abilities for ſuch an employment; but ſet apart, aſſigned, appointed, and ſent me alſo to doe. See the phraſe uſed of Eliſeus, 1 King. 19. 16, 19. 20. 5 (where yet no uſe of any material oyl is found) compared with 2 King. 2. 9, 15. & ſo it may be truly averred of Eſay, that he was ſo ſtored and furniſhed, ſo ſet apart, and ſo ſent, chap. 6. 8, 9. & 48. 16. to preach, both the corporal deliverance from the Babylonian thraldom; and the ſpirituall deliverance, from the ſervice of ſin & Satan, by Chriſt, which ſo frequently he doth. But Chriſt, in a far more ample, excellent, and efficacious manner; not to preach and publiſh theſe things only, as Eſay, to foretell them, but himſelf alſo to effect them, Joh. 3. 16, 17, 34. & 4. 34. & 5. 23, 24, 30, 36-38. & 6. 27, 29, 38-40. and 7. 16, 17, 28, 29. & 8. 26, 29, 42. & 10. 36. Gal. 4. 4. 1 Pet. 1. 20. And for their function and employment, had his Apoſtles alſo a miſſion from him, with whom, and others his miniſters, their ſucceſſors, he promiſed to goe along, and to co-operate with them, by his Spirit to the worlds end, Mat. 28. 18-20. Mar. 15, 15, 16. Joh. 29. 21. in regard whereof, he is alſo ſaid to come, and preach by them, Eph. 2. 17. and to ſpeak in them, 2 Cor. 13. 3. that which our Prophet alſo foretold ſhould be, chap. 59. 21.

to preach good tidings unto the meek] Of the word here rendred, to preach good tidings, ſee on chap. 40. 9. & 52. 7. it is a word of middle notion, but uſed moſt in the better part: From the Greek word anſwering to it, ſo taken, hath the Goſpel (with us alſo ſo termed not as God-ſpell, or Gods-word; but as God-ſpell, that is, Good-ſpell) its name, preached, by God him ſelf, to Abraham. Gal. 3. 8. by Eſay, and other the Prophets, to the ancient Jewiſh people, Act. 5. 24. Rom. 16. 25, 26. Heb. 4. 2. by the Angels to the ſhepherds, Luk. 2. 10. by our Saviour, in perſon, to the Jews of his time, Luke 4. 43. & 8. 1. and by his Apoſtles afterward, having from him, commiſſion ſo to do, both to Jews & Gentiles, Act. 13. 32. & 15. 7. & 20. 24. 1 Theſſ. 2. 9. and what is therefore ſaid here of preaching good tidings to the meek, is by our Saviour, ſaid in terms not much diſcrepant from the ſame, that the poor have the good tidings of the Goſpel preached to them, Mat. 11. 5. Luk. 7. 22. by poor underſtanding, not the poor ſimply alone, Luk. 6. 20. but, the poor alſo in ſpirit, Mat. 5. 3. and ſo what our verſion here, according to the Hebrew, hath meek, both the ancient Greek, and the Evangeliſt alſo rendereth poor, Luk. 4. 18. as thoſe two words in Hebrew, comming from the ſame root, are in letters, and notion, very neer the one to the other. Neither are any other intended, by the one term, or the other, but ſuch as were deſcribed, chap. 57. 15. ſuch as with meekneſs receive the word of ſalvation, Jam. 1. 21. this meekneſs of ſpirit being a note of thoſe, to whom God ſheweth mercy, and impartech grace, Pſal. 10. 17. & 22. 26. & 25. 9. & 37. 11. & 76. 9. & 147. 6. Prov. 3. 34. chap. 11. 4. & 29. 19. Zeph. 2. 3. and are by our Saviour therefore pronounced happy, Mat. 5. 5. See on chap. 11. 4. where both words are found, and uſed as a parallel.

he hath sent me] This is added, as a further & fuller explication, or expreſſion, of what was before implyed, & included in the term of annoynting, of both Eſays & Chriſts miſſion and commiſſion, ſee there.

to bind up the broken hearted;] Such as are humbled, and brought low by affliction and anguiſh, and thorowly touched with a livelyſenſe of their ſins, the procuring cauſe thereof, chap.50.4. & 57. 15. Mat.11.28. it is a metaphor taken, from the practice of Chirurgery, in the binding up of wounds, to allwage the pain of them, and cauſe them to cloſe, or the binding up, and ſwathing of bones, that are broken or disjointed, as to give eaſe, ſo to ſet and knit them again: For that which is ſaid here to bind, the old Greek and the Evangeliſt, Luk.4. 18. have to heal; whence ſome Interpreters make it a complexive term and render it, by binding up to heal, they are both joyned together, Pſal. 147. 3. where the ſame form of ſpeech is uſed. See of binding up the like metaphor, chap 1.6 & 3.7. & 30.26. Job 5.18. Ezek. 30. 21. & 34. 4. Hoſ. 6. 4. and of inward brokeneſs, in alluſion to the like of bones in the body, Pſal. 51. 8. 19. Jer. 23. 9.

to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the priſon to them that are bound:] Temporal freedome by Cyrus from the Babyl-nian captivity, chap. 45. 13. & 49. 9. ſpiritual deliverance from the thraldome of ſin, and Satan, by Chriſt, Joh. 8. 32, 34. Rom. 6. 17, 18. Col. 1. 13. 2 Tim. 2. 26.

the opening of the priſon] There are here, in the original, two terms knit together, with ſuch a joynt, as doth generally joyn divers words together: Whence ſome of our Jewiſh Criticks would have here two ſeveral words: and of theſe, the former to ſignifie opening, the latter, to ſignifie, as ſome, a priſon; as others, a pit, or dungeon, cellar, or, looking out; and to import, not a bare opening of the place of reſtraint only, but a letting, or ſetting, loofe alſo out of it. But the moſt of them, becauſe the latter word in neither notion is any where at all found, would make it all but one word, the letters of the latter part of it, being redoubled, as in divers other words to add ſome emphaſis thereunto: To whom I ſhould agree, did I find in any other word of the like mould, ſuch a diviſion of the ſyllables one from another, as here, with the like line between. But wanting as yet ſuch an inſtance, I concur rather with the former, ſuppoſing the words to be twain, and the latter to ſignifie, a priſon (though not elſe where found, as many other in this Prophet) to called of taking, or receiving, and, retaining, or keeping perſon under reſtraint. So a learned man, ſkilled in thoſe languages, informs us, that a word from the ſame root, with this, is in the Ethiopick tongue, uſed for bonds, Mat. 5. 25. Mar. 5. 4. and that ſometime joyned with the word houſe, Act. 5. 19 ſometime ſimply without it, for a priſon, Mat. 14. 10. Again, becauſe a word, from the ſame root, whence this is deemed to come, with a letter fervient onely, and prefixed, is uſed, for prey, chap. 49. 24, 25. and the word, prey, may comprehend as well men, as beaſts, Num. 31. 11. where it is uſed of both; ſome therefore would here ſo expound it; to open the prey, that is, to ſet the captive at liberty: the ſame that was before mentioned: as the captive is ſaid to be opened, or, looſed, chap. 51. 14. Wherunto may be added, that the word here uſed, with a very ſmall change, and that not unuſual, doth in the Chaldee ſignifie, to ſoft or loose, or weather: and with ſuch, captives and flaves were wont to be bound. See chap. 58. 6. The former word, that hath in it a notion of opening, is moſt frequently uſed of opening the eyes to ſee; as chap. 35. 5. & 37. 16. once only of the ears, chap. 42. 20. which the aneient Greek, it ſeems, taking notice of, rendreth the words here, ſight, or, ſeeing again, or, looking up to the blind: Whence ſome imagine, that ſuch as live in darke dungeons, as being in the ſame condition with blinde ones, having no more uſe of light, or ſight, the one, then the other, might therefore, by them be ſo ſtyled: Though others conceive, that ſome parallel places being noted, by ſome in the margent, as this from Chap. 42. 7. to open the blinde eyes, to bring the priſoners out of priſon: and another, from chap. 8. 6 did after, in ſome tranſlations creep into the text: they are both alſo uſed in the Evangelick Luk. 4. 8.

V. 2. To proclaim the acceptable yeer of the Lord] So Chap. 49. 8. Heb. the yeer of liking, or, good will or, acceptance, as chap. 56. 7. of good will, as, a time of liking, or, good-will, Pſal. 69. 13. chap. 49. 5. and, a day of likinge, or, good-will, or, acceptance, Chap. 58. 5. the time in wh ch God is pleaſed to offer and exhibit favour and grace, to render and extend mercy and goodneſs, to mankind, chap. 60. 2. Pſal 102. 13. Gal 4. 4. Tit. 3. 4. yeer, as, day, afterward, in a latitude, to a time: as chap 34. 8. 8. 63. 4. and thoſe, among the ancients, are much out of the way therefore, who would hence collect, ſome of them, that Chriſt preached but one yeer in all, after his baptiſm, called here the Lords yeer of acceptance. Other of them, that he preached two yeers: the one whereof is here termed, a yeer of acceptance, in oppoſition unto, or diſtinction from the other, that was not ſuch: but by yeer, is no ſuch limited ſpace of time here intended: nor is the aſſertion it ſelf conſonant to the truth of ſtory: it being apparent, by the number of Paſſovers therein upon record, that our Savior preached yeers, more then one or two. But the word, yeer here, ſeems to have ſome reference to the yee of Jubilee, a yeer of general releaſement, proclaimed by ſound of trumpet, wherein every man was to return to his inheritance again & every ſervant to his freedom, Le. 25. 9, 10, 40, 41, 54.

and the day of vengeance of our God] The time wherein he will take vengeance for his people, upon their oppreſſours; the deliverance of the one, and the deſtruction of the other, going uſually together, See chap. 14. 1. So chap. 63. 4. & 66. 14. for they are very wide, who by vengeance, would underſtand here, nothing leſs, then what the word it ſelf generally importeth, nothing that favoureth of hatred, or harſhneſs: but a kind and equal retribution of eaſe, and good, to Gods people, for the evil, and hatefhip, which they had formerly ſuſtained, Luk. 16. 25. 2 Theſſ. 1. 6, 7. and this they ground principally on this, that the Evangeliſt, Luk. 4. 19. hath retribution; for that which is here rendred vengeance: and it is true, that their old Latine ſo hath it there; as the ancient Greek alſo rendreth it: but neither is that clauſe, at all, in the Greek Copies, of Luke: nor doth the word of retribution, neceſſarily import matter of good, or benefit, being ſo frequently uſed of vengeance, and evill, Judg. 11. 7. Pſal. 7. 4. chap. 65. 6, 7. Jer. 5. 14. & 51. 24. See chap. 34. 8. & 59. 18.

to comfort all that mourn] All Sions mourners, chap. 57. 18. ver. 3. Mat. 5. 4. Luk. 6. 14.

V. 3. To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion] Or, for Zion; either for the evils committed in her, Ezek. 9. 4. or, for the evils, thereby procured unto her, chap. 66. 10. Heb. to the mourners of Zion, or, to Zions mourners; as chap. 57. 18. the ſentence ſeemeth defective, and ſomething needful to be ſupplyed; that the verb rendred, appoint, may paſſe unto: and ſuch defects we meet with ſometime, as, take, for, take food, Gen. 42. 33. break, for break bread, Jer. 16. 7. In the old Latine Copies therefore was inſerted ſtrength; to put ſtrength to them that mourn in Zion. But becauſe ſtrength ſeems not ſuit ſo well with mourning, or, mourners for that is not the matter, that, as mourners, they need. Some other rather, from the former verſe, ſupply conſolation, ; rendring the text, to exhibit conſolation to Zions mourners: and this ſeemes moſt genuine. Though there want not thoſe, that would carry on this, to that which followeth, as having reference to all the enſuing particulars; to appoint unto thoſe that mourn in Zion, to give, I ſay, unto them: that is, to ſuch, &c.

to give unto them beauty for aſhes] To allign them ornaments or bravery, (ſo the word properly ſignifieth, chap. 3. 18, 20. Ezek. 24. 17, 23.) ſuch fair and goodly apparel, as they uſed to wear on better dayes, or when no ſpecial occaſion of grief, or mourning, Exod. 33. 5. for aſhes; or inſtead of aſhes: a ſign of ſadneſs and mourning, chap. 58. 5. Lam. 2. 10. Job 2. 12. & 42. 6. Mat. 11. 21. there is a ſweet elegancy in the original, between the two terms here uſed, which our Engliſh cannot expreſs. The meaning is, to alter their condition from ſadneſs to gladneſs; from mourning to mirth: and accordingly to alter their habit, and weed, whereby either is uſually expreſſed, Pſal. 30. 11.

the oyle of joy for mourning] the oyl of joy, or gladneſs, Pſal. 45. 7. ſuch oyntment as they uſed to anoint their heads, and faces with, to make them look more cheerfully, & with the fragrancy thereof, to refreſh their ſpirits. in their feſtivals, or when they deſired to ſhew themſelves frolick and cheerful, Pſal. 104. 15. 2 Sam. 12. 20. Eccl. 7. 1. & 9. 8. Mat. 6. 17.

the garments of praiſe] White and fair garments, Eccl. 9. 8. fit for feſtivals, and Triumph, Zach. 3. 4, 5. Mat. 22. 11. Luk. 15. 22. Rev. 3. 4. an outward ſigne of a merry heart, of a lightſom, and cheerful ſpirit within. Eccl. 9. 7.

for the ſpirit of heavineſs:] Heb. of dimneſs, Gen. 27. 1. Deut. 34. 7. chap. 42. 3. Zach. 11. 17. or, of contraction, Lev. 13. 6, 21, 26, 39, 56. becauſe grief contracts and dranks in, as joy widens and dilates, chap. 65. So Ezek 21. 7. every ſpirit ſhall contract it ſelf.

that they may be called] Heb. and (as ver. 4.) it ſhall be called to them, or, of them; that is, that they may be; as chap. 60. 18. ver. 6. ſo known, ſo accounted, and ſo acknowledged, ver. 9.

trees of righteouſneſs] Or, oaks, as ſome, See chap. 1. 29, 30. & 6. 13. trees of righteouſneſs; that is, trees of juſt, full, fair, ſtrong, ſtrength, and ſtature. See chap. 57. 5. as, ſacrifices of righteouſneſs, Deut. 33. 19. Pſal. 4. 5. & 51. 19. that is, juſt, entire, compleat, ones, Pſal. 69. 32. or, ſeemly trees, in righteouſneſs, as ſome, Eph. 7. 17. not like the grain, on the ſtony ground, without root, Mat. 13. 6, 21. or, as others, filled with, and abounding in, fruits of righteouſneſs, Phil. 1. 11. ſuch as bring forth fruit, whereby God may be glorified, Mat. 3. 8. & 7. 17. & 12. 33. Joh. 15. 5, 8. all which, the ſpiritual ſenſe may include; but the literal I conceive to be, what was firſt propounded; to wit, in the firſt place, the flouriſhing and proſperous eſtate of Gods people, diſcovering even to the natural eye, Gods bleſſing upon them.

the planting of the Lord] Or, the Lords plantation: not fair only, but firm, ſuch as may, by the thriving, flouriſhing, and laſting, of its ſhew whoſe handy-work it is, Num. 24. 6. Pſal. 92. 13, 14. & 104. 16. See chap. 60. 21. ver. 9.

that he might be glorified.] As he is by the good works, and well-doings of his people, Mat. 5. 16. Joh. 15. 8. Phil. 1. 11. Yet the words import more, that he may glory in them, or, ſhew himſelf goodly, and magnificent in them: by cauſing them to thrive, & proſper, & flouriſhas Pſ. 1. 3. Jer. 17. 8. See ch. 44. 23. where the ſame word is uſed.

V. 4. And they ſhall build the old waſts, they ſhall raiſe up the former deſolations; and they ſhall repair the waſt cities, the deſolations of many generations,] Or, that they may build, and raiſe up, and repair: as, That they may be called, ver. 3. That being ſet at liberty, returning again to their own country, they may re-edifie the cities, and and towns, that have been ruinated, and both people, and plant againe their land, and grounds, that have lien long waſt, and deſolate. So Chap. 44. 26. & 49. 17, 19. & 51. 3. & 52. 9. and 58. 12.

the old waſtes] Heb. waſtes of perpetuity: of long continuance, Jer. 49. 13. above a Jubilee time conſiſting but of fifty yeers, at moſt, Lev. 25. 9, 10. expreſſed by the term here uſed; Exod. 21. 6.

the waſt cities] Heb. cities of waſtes: as Lev. 26. 31, 32. your cities ſhall be waſtneſs: that is, cities of waſtneſs; utterly waſted.

deſolations of many generations] Heb. of generation, and generation; as chap. 60. 15. thoſe places that had lien a long time deſolate. See chap. 58. 12.

V. 12. And ſtrangers ſhall ſtand, and feed your ſhecke; and the ſons of the alien, ſhall be your plow men, and your vine-dreſſers.] That is, as ſome; Ye ſhall have generally ſo fair, and plentiful eſtates, that ye ſhall not need to make uſe of other then ſtrangers, either hired, or bought, or taken in war, for any ſervile, or meaner ſort of employments. See chap. 14. 2. Zach. 8. 9. which ſome alſo applying to the State, and condition of the Church, under Chriſt, thus of the alien, ſpeech is that your plow men, and your vine-dreſſers.] That is, as ſome; Ye ſhall have generally ſo fair, and plentiful eſtates, that ye ſhall not need to make uſe of other then ſtrangers, either hired, or bought, or taken in war, for any ſervile, or meaner ſort of employments. See chap. 14. 2. Zach. 8. 9. which ſome alſo applying to the State, and condition of the Church, under Chriſt, thus of the alien, ſpeech is that your plow men, and your vine-dreſſers.] That is, as ſome; Ye ſhall have generally ſo fair, and plentiful eſtates, that ye ſhall not need to make uſe of other then ſtrangers, either hired, or bought, or taken in war, for any ſervile, or meaner ſort of employments. See chap. 14. 2. Zach. 8. 9. which ſome alſo applying to the State, and condition of the Church, under Chriſt, thus of the alien, ſpeech is that your plow men, and your vine-dreſſers.] That is, as ſome; Ye ſhall have generally ſo fair, and plentiful eſtates, that ye ſhall not need to make uſe of other then ſtrangers, either hired, or bought, or taken in war, for any ſervile, or meaner ſort of employments. See chap. 14. 2. Zach. 8. 9. which ſome alſo applying to the State, and condition of the Church, under Chriſt, thus people hardly, and harſhly, depriving them of their means, and livelihood, making ſlaves of them, ſhould then, ſubmitting themſelves to them, willingly and ſedulously apply themſelves, to doe them any pleaſure, to be any way ſerviceable unto them; as the Gibeonites were ſometime unto the Iſraelites, Joſh. 9. 23, 27. from whoſe example, ſome reſtrain it to ſuch ſtrangers, as living in the Church, though not incorporate into it, yet ſhould be ſerviceable thereunto. See chap. 60. 10. Others extending it yet further, and taking it in a larger notion, conceive the meaning to be; that having applyed themſelves to look after the things concerning the Kingdome of God, and what eſpecially appertained thereunto; other neceſſaries concerning this prefent life, ſhould ſome way or other, be as certainly, and ſufficiently provided for them, as if they had ſuch to doe for them, Mat. 6. 33. but we need not ſtrain the words ſo far. What ſome others have of the ſpiritual husbandry, wherein ſtrangers are now moſt employed. 1 Cor. 3. 6. 9. and by a new miniſtery leſſed in room of the former, now abolished, or, of a new miniſtery leſſed in room of the former, now abolished. See ch. 61. 5. & 66. 21. Jer. 2. 21. Mat. 21. 41. ſeem to run counter to the text: ſtrangers and ſons of an alien, ſeem here the ſame; as Chapter 3. 6. and 56. 3, 6.

ſtand;] As ſervants waiting, and attending on their maſter, ready to go, and run, at his beck, or bare to be enjoyned what ſervice he pleaſeth. See chap 6. 2. or, ſtand, and feed; that is, ſtand feeding: attend the feeding of your cattle; as, they faint, they ly, for, they ly fainting, chap. 51. 20. and, ſtand, and ſauff up the wind, for, ſtand ſauffing up the wind, Jer. 14. 6.

V. 6. But ye ſhall be named the Prieſts of the Lord; men ſhall call you the miniſters of our God] Heb. And ye, (as chap. 60. 10.) or, as for you, (as chap. 57. 3.) Prieſts of Jehovah ſhall ye be called. Miniſters of our God are ye, ſhall it be ſaid unto you; or, miniſters of God ſhall it be ſaid of you: as Num. 23. 23. ch. 19. 18. & 62. 4. Joh. 13. 13. where the ſyntax ſeems the ſame with this: to be called ſuch, for ſo to be, and ſo accounted, as before, v. 3. Now this ſome reſtrain unto the Prieſts and Levites, of whom, chap. 52. 11. as if it were ſaid, Ye that are Gods Prieſts and Miniſters, though ye be now in contempt and diſgrace, ſhall then be in repute, and be plentifully provided for, as in times paſt, when the Jewiſh State did moſt flouriſh. But theſe ſeem to narrow the text too much. Others therefore giving it a larger extent, conceive the meaning to be, that all Gods people now ſhould be in that repute abroad, as if they were all Prieſts: as he ſometime ſaid of the Roman Senate, that they ſeemed to be as ſo many Kings; in which ſenſe, or the like to it, ſome would have the word rendred Prieſts, to be here taken, not for Prieſts, but for Princes, or, chief Rulers: as ſome alſo conceive it to be, Gen. 41. 45, 50. 2 Sam. 20. 26. 1 King. 5. 4. and, as it is apparently, where it is uſed of Davids ſons, 2 Sam. 8. 18. in like manner whereunto, would they have that alſo to be rendred, Exod. 19. 6. a Kingdome, and of Prieſts, but of Princes; as importing, not a ſacred, but a noble Kingdome. For whereas they require here, as they ſuppoſe alſo there requiſite, a ſupply of the note of ſimilitude, uſt omitted: though it may doe, not amiſs there, yet neither is it neceſſary, nor ſuitable here. Others underſtand it, as an enlargement of honour, and neerer approach unto God, then they had formerly enjoyed: that whereas, before, they were, the main body of them, Gods peculiar people, Exod. 19. 5. Deut. 7. 6. & 26. 18. and ſome only of them, ſet apart for ſacred functions, Deut. 10. 8. they ſhould now be taken all to be as neer to God, and in as honourable a condition, as the Prieſts and Levites, before-time were; as your whole Land, or State, ſhall be called, the Lords Sion, chap. 60. 14. ſo ſhall your ſelves alſo be called, the Lords Sion, and accounted his Prieſts, and Miniſters; and if it be ſaid, that they were ſo ſaid to be, at Gods firſt taking of them, to wit, a Kingdome of Prieſts, (for ſo the received verſion aright rendreth it, confirmed by the Apoſtle, expounding it, a royal Prieſthood, 1 Pet. 2. 9.) the anſwer may be, that they are there ſo termed, becauſe the Prieſthood was then diſperſed as it were, thorowout all their tribes and families; and ſo the whole body of the Nation ſeemed to ſhare in it; ſome reſemblance whereof ſeemed to remain in the paſchal ſolemnity, whereat, each head of a famiwas confined, for the miniſterial employment, in general, unto one tribe, Levi, and for the principal functions thereof, unto one family, Num. 18. 6, 7, 21. that which is in the New Teſtament, under the Meſſias, ſaid, accordingly, to be extended unto all the faithful, as called to be ſpiritual Kings and Prieſts, 1 Pet. 2. 9. Heb. 13. 15. Rev. 1. 6. & 5. 10. & 20. 6.

ye ſhall eat the riches of the Gentiles] Ye ſhall have ſupplies of all neceſſaries from them, either ſubdued by you, as ſome; or adjoyned to you, as others: or from both as a third for both. See chap. 60. 6, 7. and this, alſo ſome think, hath ſome reſpect to the Prieſts manner of maintenance, provided for plentifully, according to Gods appointment, by the labour and husbandry of the people, Num. 18. 12-15, 21.

and in their glory ſhall ye boaſt your ſelves] Or, by their glory ſhall ye uſurp your ſelves] Or, by their glory ſhall ye ſet your ſelves, or, grow lofty; as thoſe that derive it from a word, deemed to ſignifie, an uppermoſt branch, chap. 17. 6, 9. it is no word, deemed to ſignifie, an uppermoſt branch, chap. 17. 6, 9. it is no ced, and become very conſpicuous, through that honour, that from them, ſhall accrue unto you, as ſuch uppermoſt branches, on flouriſhing trees uſually are. See chap. 49. 18. & 60. 9. 11.

V. 7. For your ſhame ye ſhall have double; and for confuſion, they ſhall rejoyce in their portion; therefore in their land, they ſhall poſſeſs the double:] Some rent off the former branch of this verſe, and annex it to the verſe foregoing, thus reading the text; Ye ſhall feed on the wealth of the Heathen, and be lift up with their glory, inſtead of, or, in way of recompence, for your ſhame and confuſion; which among them, and at their hands, ye had formerly ſuſtained. What followeth, they refer unto the Gentiles coming in to them: they ſhall commend their portion; (that is, reſt well apaid; them: they ſhall commend their portion; (that is, reſt well apaid; deem themſelves fully ſatisfied, in that, what they have conferred to Gods ſervice, is accepted) becauſe that (which they ſhall be, as to Gods ſervice, is accepted) becauſe that (which they ſhall be, as being allured of this, that) they ſhall inherit double in their own land, (here on earth) and everlaſting joy, hereafter, Mat. 10. 29. Lord, (here on earth) and everlaſting joy, hereafter, Mat. 10. 29. Others, to joyn it to the former, as that they apply it entirely to Gods people; they ſhall have ſuch honour, as was ſaid: and it ſhall be unto you, or betide you, in lieu of your double ſhame, and of that ignominy, whereof, they (to wit, thoſe heathen, your enemies) did ſometime ſing, ſaying, This is your portion; or that this was their portion; to wit, of Gods people. Pſal. 44. 13-16. These, and divers other readings, for harſhneſſes, not unlike them, I forbear to inſiſt on, and hold to the reading that our verſion exhibeth: becauſe it ſeemeth, with leaſt force, to flow of it ſelf, from the text: all the difficulty is, in the change of the perſon, which in this Prophet is not unuſual. See chap. 1. 29. & 22. 19. & 33. 4. & 65. 13, 14. and here alſo, ver. 4, 5, 7. And this admitted, the meaning is plain, the words being thus rendred, inſtead of your ſhame, double ſhall be unto you; and, inſtead of reproach, they ſhall poſſeſs double, and everlaſting ſhall be unto them.

for your ſhame, double] Some joyn ſhame, and double together: for your ſhame, double] Some joyn ſhame, and double together: and expounding double; ſome two-fold: the ſhame of their land, and the ſhame of themſelves; a reproach lying upon both, Ezek. 36. 3, 4, 13, 15. or reproach from the Heathen, and reproach from their own country-men, unto both whom the profeſſion of Chriſtianity was reproachful, 1 Cor. 1. 13. or, miſery in themſelves, and contempt from others, Pſal. 123. 3, 4. Others, plentiful, abundant, and the term is oft ſo uſed, chap. 40. 2. Jer. 16. 18. and 17. 18. And ſo I conceive it here to be taken: but with reference unto that, which in lieu of it they ſhould now receive double, to wit, honour, v. 6. that is, large & eminent, as double honour, 1 Tim. 5. 17. or a double portion: ſignifying it from the next branch; as ſome of the Jewiſh doe ſupply poſſeſs from the laſt; thus rendring the text, in lieu of your ſhame, ye ſhall poſſeſs double: and withall adding, lieu of your ſhame, ye ſhall poſſeſs double: and withall adding, that the enſuing words, are an explication of the ſame: ſo God promiſeth to reſtore double to his people, for all their damages that they had formerly ſuſtained, Zach. 9. 12. as he did ſometime to Job, Job 42. 10, 12.

and for confuſion] Or, and, in lieu of (the preposition repeated from the former member, as the verb in the like manner, ch. 60. 17.) their reproach; becauſe the perſon is changed; as Job 18. 4. Jer. 27. 1, 2. Ezek. 31. 1. o. the preposition omitted; as chap. 59. 18.

they ſhall rejoyce in their portion:] Or, they ſhall triumph; for the word implyes a ſinging, or, ſounding, in triumphant manner, the word implyes a ſinging, or, ſounding, in triumphant manner, to repeat again what of this branch was before ſaid ſome make an inference upon the former, in regard of the illative particle, therefore; as implying, that becauſe they had undergone double ſhame, therefore they ſhould now receive double, whether honour, or what elſe. But I conceive that the retribution of double honour, was before-mentioned; and that in this clauſe is a reaſon rendred; of their rejoycing in the portion, that they should then receive. And I suppole that the word here rendred, therefore, as an illative, should rather be rendred, because, as a causal; as of neceſſity it muſt be taken, chap. 26.14. Though I find not any, either of the Jewiſh Criticks, or ours, that have obſerved it: is their land returning again to it, after their long exilement and abſence, they ſhall poſſeſs double; they ſhall poſſeſs and enjoy a double portion, either in regard of that bleſſing of God, upon that which they ſhall poſſeſs, affording double in worth; to what beforetime it did. See chap. 4.2. or, in regard of the large extent of each ones portion to that in former times they held, a great part of them being waſted and worn out, either ſlain, and famiſhed in fight, and ſiege, before the deportation; or conſumed in the captivity, and a remnant, ſome tenth of them only, returning, chap. 6.13. & 10. 21, 22. & 11. 11. and there ſeemeth to be in it, an alluſion to the Law, concerning the firſt-born, that was to have a double-portion, Deut. 21.17. and to the houſe of Joſeph, that had a double-portion of inheritance, in the promiſed land; 1 Chron. 5.1. Joſh. 17, 17. Ezek. 47.13. as if he had ſaid, it ſhall be then with each Tribe, as it was with the houſe of Joſeph before: and with each of you it ſhall be, as if he were a firſt-born; as all the faithful in the Goſpel are ſaid to be, Heb. 12. 23. Howbeit, ſome underſtand it, not of their own, but of the Heathen, their enemies land; not that they ſhould repoſſeſs their own land, (though that alſo they did) but that in their (that is, the Heathens) land, they ſhould poſſeſs double, in way of reparation, for the double damages done them. But I adhere rather to the former.

everlaſting joy ſhall be unto them.] Heb. joy of perpetuity. See chap 35.10.

V.8. For I the Lord love judgment,] There is no great difficulty in the words, or matter of this verſe, ſave in the connexion of them, with the reſt of the context. Some conceive them to render a reaſon of what went before; either concerning thoſe ſtrangers, that had contributed to his people, that he would lovingly, and liberally reward them for it: becauſe they had offered freely, not by conſtrainr, nor of rapine, but of their own lawfully gotten, 2 Cor. 8. 3-5. & 9.5.7. Or, concerning his own people, that had amids their long teadious, and grievous afflictions, continued ſtrm to him, and ſincere in his ſervice, whom therefore in equity he could not but affect and requite, 2 Tim. 1. 67 Heb. 1. 10. albeit the unſound eyes among them, he deſervedly abhorred, chap. 1. 11-15. Others, ſuppoſe it to contain matter diſtinct from the former, concerning a further benefit, that God would vouchſafe to confer upon them; to wit the renewing of his Covenant with them, and promiſing a reaſon, why, in ſuch manner, he ſhould renew it. So he before cloſed up his promiſes of favours to be conferred upon, and in their deliverance, and after their return, Chap. 59. 21. Only one learned Writer ſuggeſteth a diverſ reading, which admitted, will afford a very fit connexion of this paſſage with the former diſcourſe. He thus rendreth the words, For I the Lord love right; I hate rapine by iniquity. So preciſely the Greek rendreth it: and ſo is the word uſed in the plural form, Pſal. 58. 3. & 64.6. and in the ſingular alſo lengthned, Job 5. 16. Thus the coherence will be ſmooth, a reaſon being rendred, why God will right, and repay the wrongs and damages done to his people; becauſe he loveth right, and hateth ſuch unjuſt and injurious courſes, as had been uſhered unto them, Pſalm. 11. 5.

For] Or, Becauſe; as rendring a reaſon of what enſueth.

I the Lord love Judgment.] I love juſt, upright, and equal, dealing, delight in it, and in thoſe only that practiſe it, chap. 56. 1, 2, 4. Jer. 9.24 Zach. 8. 16, 17, 19.

I hate robbery for burnt-offering:] I abhor any oblation whatſoever, (one kind put for all, as chap. 56.7.) brought of goods gotten by oppreſſion and wrong, and cannot therefore accept of any ſervice, or ſacrifice, tendred to me, by ſuch as practiſe the ſame: that which, in former times arguing their hypocriſie, had made all their ſolemn rites, and religious performances, ſo not unacceptably onely, but even abominable in Gods ſight, chap. 1. 11-15. & 66. 3. Amos 5. 21, 24. Or, I hate rapine by iniquity; the ſpoiling of perſons and people, by injurious courſes, as was before ſpecified. See 2 Sam. 23.4-36. Hab. 1.13.

and I will direct their work in truth,] This moſt, both Jewiſh, and other Interpreters, expound, of Gods rending, or returning a reward to his people, for the miſery, and ignominy, that for his ſake, they had ſuſtained; as ver. 7. Some other, of Gods diſpoſing their affairs, in a ſucceſsful courſe, in a proſperous way; and that ſuch as ſhould be conſtant and permanent, chapter 26.3, 12. And that former intimation of Gods hating rapine, as was laſt before hinted, will very well ſort with either of theſe. Howbeit, ſome underſtand it of Gods concurrence with his good Spirit, graciouſly working upon the hearts of his people, & thereby ſo diſpoſing and managing the ways and works, that being performed in ſincerity, they might have acceptance, chap. 56. 9. the very ſum and ſubſtance of the new Covenant, or the renewed, and renewing Covenant, here after mentioned. See the like, Deut 30.6. chap 57. 18. Jer. 24. 7. & 31.33. & 32.40. Ezek. 36.26, 27. Mal. 3.3, 4. But I go rather with the former.

and] Or, therefore; as chap. 42.25. & 43.12. and ſo moſt here render it.

I will direct] Heb. I will give; but the Hebrew term is of a very large extent, uſed commonly, to make, to appoint, to put, to place, to frame, to direct, to diſpoſe. See Deut. 28.13. judg. 15.1. chap. 3.4. & 22.21. & 41.19. & 43.16. & 46.13. and it may well be here rendred, direct, or, diſpoſe. See Eph. 2.10. 2 Tim. 3.17.

their work] So the word properly ſignifieth, as Prov. 10. 16. & 11.18. Jer. 31.16. nor need we to depart from the proper notion of it, in this place. Howbeit, it is not unfrequently uſed alſo for hire, or reward, of work; as Lev. 19.13. Jer 22.13. Pſalm 109. 20. Chap. 40. 10. and 49. 4. and 62.11. and ſo many here take it.

in truth] This ſome refer to God, he will, in truth, that is truly, and ſurely, make their reward good to them; as Judg. 9. 15, 16, Pſal. 69. 13. Others, to the reward he will make them reward to be in truth; that is, firm and ſure, as chap. 16. 5. Others, to their work; he will ſo frame, direct, and diſpoſe, their work, that it ſhall be done in truth; that is, ſincerely, or ſhall be in truth; that is, ſound and ſincere; as 1 Sam. 12. 24. 1 Kihg. 2. 4. & 3. 6. Pſal. 145. 18. chap. 10 20. & 38. 3. Joh. 4. 24. cont ary to that which in former times it had been, chap 48. 1. Others, to their employments, which God would ſettle in a conſtant courſe, and to diſpoſe, that they ſhould be as well, ſure as ſucceſsfull. See chap. 39. 8. and I will make an everlaſting covenant with them.] Heb. I will cut out a covenant of perpetuity, or, eternity, to them.) See chap. 55. 3. So Jer. 32. 40. & 50. 5.

And their ſeed ſhall be known among the Gentiles, and their off-ſpring among the people. All that ſee them, ſhall acknowledge them, that they are the ſeed which the Lord hath bleſſed.] See chap. 60.21. ver. 3. They ſhall ſo grow and multiply, ſo thrive and proſper, that they ſhall become very conſpicuous, Mat. 5. 14, 16. and that it ſhall evidently appear to all that ſee them, that there is both a bleſſing of God along with them, Act. 5. 13.

ſhall be known] Shall be eminent, conſpicuous or famous: the word is uſed of ſuch, as are of ſpecial note, and of whom more ſpecial notice is taken, then of others, in the places of their reſidence, Jo Pſal. 76.1. God is known in Judah, his name is great in Iſrael; and, her husband is known in the gates, when he ſitteth among the Elders of the land, Prov. 31.23.

among the people,] Heb. in the midſt of the peoples; in the midſt, for, among; as chap. 24. 13. Jer. 39. 14. & 40. 6. peoples; as chap. 11. 10. & 14. 2. among peoples of divers and ſeveral countries, with whom they ſhall be mixt, they ſhall be ſo eminent, that they ſhall be known and diſtinguiſhed from them.

the ſeed which the Lord hath bleſſed] Or, a ſeed; (for there is no article here in the text) that (the relative is wanting; as chap. 60. 8.) the Lord bleſſeth; that have Gods bleſſing accompanying them. See chap. 44.3. & 65. 16, 23.

V. 10. I will greatly rejoyce in the Lord, my ſoul ſhall be joyful in my God:] Theſe two laſt verſes, ſome rent off from this chapter, and preſix to the next; but I ſee no neceſſity ſo to do, ſince that the ſubject matter of them ſuiteth well with the former diſcourſe. This verſe containeth a thankful acknowledgment, conceived in the perſon of the Church, of the ſpecial favour, and gracious goodneſs of God, afforded unto her, in ſuch manner, as had been before related, v. 1. 3——7.

greatly rejoyce] Heb. rejoycing, rejoyce; as chap. 66. 10. that is, exceedin. ly rejoyce: the affection of Gods people, upon their reſtitution, above-deſcribed. So ver. 7.

in the Lord] Or, for him; becauſe of him; as Pſal. 150. 2. chap. 47. 9. & 57. 17.

my ſoul] For, my ſelfe; as Pſal. 3. 2. But the form maketh it more emphatical. So Pſal. 34. 2. Luk. 1. 46, 47. the ſame thing to that purpoſe alſo repeated, Hab. 3. 18.

for he hath clothed me with the garments of Salvation: he hath covered me with the robe of righteouſneſs:] Or, with garments of ſalvation; with a robe of righteouſneſs: that is, with ſalvation, as with goodly garments: with righteouſnes, as with a robe, he hath, by his gracious deliverance wrought for me, and his beneficence, plentifully conferred upon me, made me as glorious, and as conſpicuous, in the eyes of all that behold me. as if I were arayed, in the richeſt and moſt gorgeous apparel, that is worn by any, at times of greateſt ſolemnity. So Job 29.14. Pſal. 132. 9, 16. & 149. 4. Zach. 3.4. 5. See chap. 51. 9. & 59. 17.

the robe] Of this garment. See chap. 59. 17.

of righteouſneſs,] That is as ſome, Chriſt, who is our righteouſneſs, Jer. 23.6. & 33.16. 1 Cor. 1. 30. and, the ſun of righteouſneſs, Mal. 4.2. and whom we are ſaid to put on, Rom. 13.14. Gal. 3.27. Rev. 12.1. or, his righteouſneſs to us. and made ours, Phil. 3.9. or, inherent righteouſneſs, exerciſed, and diſcovered in the lives of Gods people, Pſal. 132.9 Eph. 6.14. Rev. 19.8. But I rather, by righteouſneſs, underſtand here, Gods beneficence and bounty, with the fruits of it conferred upon his Church, his ſpouſe, in a juſt, that is, in a full, ample, large, and liberal manner and meaſure, Luk. 6. 38. See on ver. 3, 11. So ſeemeth the word righteouſneſs, to be taken, Pſal. 111. 3, 4, 9. compared with a Cor. 9, 9, 10. as alſo, chap 48.18. & 51.6, 8. & 54.17. Dan. 9.7, 9, 16.

maketh, or decketh prieſtly, or princely attire, or, bravery; a defect of the relative; as verſ. 9. the verb ſignifieth properly to exerciſe, and execute, the office of Prieſt, or, Prince; for the word ſignifieth either. See on verſ. 6. and in the next place, to uſe prieſtly, or, princely carriage, or habit; or to demean himſelf as a Prieſt, or Prince: for here, for apparel; and ſome conceive it to have reference to the high-Prieſts goodly rich robes, Exod. 28. 2, 3, 40, 41. or it may as well allude to ſome great Princes ſtately attire, at the time of ſome ſolemn feſtival, Ezek. 23. 15. the noun notes attire, or bravery. See on verſ. 3. like a bridegroom, who on his marriage day, though but a mean man, yet deſires to make himſelf as brave as he can, as if he were a perſon of ſome eminent place, a Prieſt or a Prince: or, as ſome, as a bridegrom, that (on his wedding day) manifeſteth unto, and attendeth upon his Bride among others, but in a ſuit or raiment, diſtinct from, and more eminent, then others: and ſo alſo there ſhould be an alluſion to the Prieſts miniſterial apparel.

and as a bride adorneth her ſelf with Jewels.] Or, as a Bride, that (the relative ſupplied, as before) decketh her ſelf with her implements for the word here uſed, is of a very large extent, comprehending any utenſil, veſſel, or inſtrument, uſed about houſe, or husbandry, or perſons themſelves whatſoever. See on chap. 22. 24. & 32. 7. as a Bride, that is wont to be moſt curious, in dreſſing, and decking up of her ſelf, and will be ſure not to forget, or omit any the leaſt implement, that may be deemed requiſite to make her compleatly fet out. See chap. 49. 18. & 61. 2, 3. There is a ſweet elegancy, of like ſound, in the original, between the words of bride, and implements, as in the former branch, the like between bridegroom, and prieſt, or prince: neither of which can in our Engliſh be expreſſed. Of theſe rich ornaments of the Church, Chriſts Spouſe, and of Chriſt her bridegroom, ſee Pſalm 45. 8, 9, 13, 14.

V. 11. For as the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden cauſeth the things, that are ſown in it, to ſpring forth; ſo the Lord will cauſe righteouſneſs, and praiſe, to ſpring forth, before all the nations.] God will cauſe his gracious goodneſs, which ſhall produce abundant matter of praiſe; and till all places among, you, to be ſet with, in ſo large and plentiful a manner, to extend it ſelf unto you, and to manifeſt it ſelf among you, that your whole land ſhall ſeem to be covered over with it, and it may ſeem to have ſhot ſuddenly up out of the ground; and the people that live about you, ſhall be enforced to take notice of it, as before, verſ. 9. unto that which was there ſpoken, doth this ſpeech of Gods people here relate, as acknowledging that now fulfilled and accompliſhed, that was there promiſed and foretold. See the like expreſſions, Pſal. 72. 3. and 85.11, 12. chap. 45.8.

the earth,] Or, the ground, being tilled, manured, and husbanded, chap. 5.2. Mark 4.28. Heb. 6.7.

bringeth forth her bud] Or, ſendeth out her buds, or ſprigs; for the term, though ſingular, is here collective; as Pſal. 65.10. See of the word, chap. 4.2. of the generality of it, Gen. 19.25. and of the uſe of it, by way of reſemblance, Ezek. 16.7.

as the garden cauſeth the things that are ſown in it, to ſpring forth;] A garden, a place wont to be more carefully and curiouſly kept and tended, then others ordinarily are, chap. 1.29 as ſuch a place eſpecially being well watered, chap. 58. 11. maketh the ſeeds ſown in it, to ſpring up, ſoon, and thick, and to thrive exceedingly, chap. 44.4.

the Lord will cauſe righteouſneſs, and praiſe, to ſpring forth.] He will make theſe things to be as riſe among you, as if your whole land were but one garden, ſown all over with ſuch ſeed. See the like ſimilitude, Jer. 31.27.

righteouſneſs and praiſe] The fruits of his goodneſs, and beneficence; which ſhall miniſter matter of, and produce abundance of praiſe from his people, in the cheerfull and comfortable enjoyment thereof. See verſ. 10.

CHAP. LXII.

Verſ. 1. FOr Zions ſake will I not hold my peace, &c.] In this chapter the Prophet proteſteth his ſerious purpoſe of conſtant and unwearied ſolicitation of God, for the compleat performance of his Churches reſtitution, before promiſed, chap. 60. & 61. exhorteth, and encreth, other his fellow-miniſters, to the like practice, verſe. 6, 7. and relateth again, in Gods name, with new illuſtrations, the former promiſes, confirmed with a ſolemn oath.

For Zions ſake will I not hold my peace, and for Jeruſalems ſake I will not reſt.] Some would have theſe words to be ſpoken as in the perſon of God himſelf, proteſting, that he will not let the world, and the kingdoms of the world, be at reſt, until he have, by Cyrus, reſtored his people to liberty, and ſetled them in their own land again. So ſome, both of the Jewiſh and Chriſtian Commenters, who add withall, that God is ſaid to ſit as quiet and ſilent, while he ſuffers men to tyrannize over his people; Hab. 3.5. 12, 13. & 8.3. chap. 42.14. & 65.6. Others, in the perſon of Iſrael the main body of the people, inceſſantly ſoliciting God in the time of their captivity, for reparation and reſtitution, Lam. 2. 18, 19. to likewiſe, ſome of either ſort. But others again, with whom I concur, conceive them to be ſpoken by the Prophet, in his own perſon, impoſing on himſelf, a continued task, to be inceſſantly imployed, either in the preaching and publiſhing of theſe gracious promiſes, and glad tidings, concerning the deliverance and reſtitution of his people, or in dealing with God, by intercellion and prayer for the ſpeedy performance of it. See the like in the people, Pſal 137.5, 6. in Daniel, Dan. 9.2, 3. & 10.2, 3.

Zion, and Jeruſalems] are here, one and the ſame; as chap. 2, 3. a type of the Chriſtian Church: the ſame thing in divers terms reiterated, to expreſs his earneſt deſire of the welfare of Gods people.

untill the righteouſneſs thereof go forth as brightneſs, and the ſalvation thereof as a lamp that burneth.] Until Gods people be fully righted againſt their adverſaries, and their deliverance entirely accompliſhed.

untill] Not that the Prophet either was ſure, or did make account that he ſhould ſurvive, either until the diſſolution of the Babylonian deportation (for he deceaſed long beforeit began) and much leſs untill the incarnation and appearance of the Meſſias, under whom theſe predictions were to have their full compliement; but that for his time, ſo long as he ſhould continue, he would never give over preaching of, and praying for theſe things; as the Pſalmiſt of himſelf, Pſal. 104.33. and others after him ſucceſſively, he hoped would do the like, verſ. 7. and that if he were to live and ſurvive, until either, he would never intermit, or ſucceaſe that employment: it is like the Apoſtles ſpeech of himſelf, 1 Theſſ. 4. 17. we that are then alive, and remain, to wit, at Chriſts coming, that is, I, and ye, if we be found ſurviving; or like his charge to Timothy, 1 Tim. 6. 14. to keep the things enjoyned him, until Chriſts appearance; which yet he was not to live unto; but he for his time, and others, after him, ſucceſſively, and reſpectively, for theirs. So Mat. 28.20.

the righteouſneſs thereof go forth as brightneſs] Untill God clear their cauſe, by executing juſtice on their adverſaries, chap. 51. 22, 23. & 59. 16, 17. See the like expreſſions, Pſal. 37. 6. Mic. 7. 9.

as brightneſs] Or, according to brightneſs; that is, brightly, clearly; (as, according to purity, that is, purely, exactly, chap. 1. 25. Or, becauſe the article is here included) according to the brightneſs, not the light alone, to wit, of the day, Prov. 4. 18.

and the ſalvation thereof, as a lamp that burneth] Till her deliverance and reſtitution, be in a conſpicuous and eminent manner effected, chap. 60. 1, 2.

a lamp that burneth] That burneth clearly, John 5. 35. and being ſet aloft, may be ſeen afar off, Mat. 5. 14. a defect of the relative, as chap. 61. 9.

V. 2. And the Gentiles ſhall ſee thy righteouſneſs, and all Kings thy glory.] Or, That (the copulative for the finitive; as chap. 53.12.) nations may ſee thy righteouſneſs, and all their Kings (as 52.2.) nations may ſee thy righteouſneſs, and all their Kings (a defect of the pronoun: as chap. 61. 7.) thy glory. Or, Then ſhall Nations ſee thy righteouſneſs, &c. as chap. 49. 21. the end is inthmaced in the one; the event, or conſequent, in the other. The Prophet turneth his ſpeech to Sion, to the Church: a change of the perſon, as chap. 24. 19. & 61.7. That foraign people may ſee, and take notice of what God hath done for thee, how he hath both righted and honoured thee; or, Then they ſhall ſo do. See chap. 60. 3. & 61. 6, 7, 11.

all Kings] That not the meaner fort of people only, but Kings alſo, who are wont to ſet light by, what inferiour ones have in high eſteem, may admire thine excellency; and not ſome of their petty Princes only, but all, even the greateſt, and ſtateliеſt of them ſee chap. 52. 15. & 60.10.

and thou ſhalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord ſhall name] That is, as ſome, thy name, and renown ſhall be far greater then ever it was, God ſo diſpoſing of thee; name, for note, or renown, as Gen. 6. 4. & 11. 4. or, as others, thou ſhalt be ſet in a new eſtate, ſuch as thou waſt never in before, whereof God ſhall be the author, Rev. 2.17. & 3.12. or, thou ſhalt have a new name affigned thee by God, whereby thou ſhalt be commonly known, and called, implying a ſtrange alteration of thy ſtate, from what formerly it was. See verſ. 4. chap. 65.15. Some render this alſo, in a continued tenour, That thou mayſt be called by a new name, &c as before.

a new name] That is, a pleaſant name, ſay ſome: as, a new ſong; that is, a pleaſant ſong, Pſal. 96. 1. & 98. 1. and, new wine, for, pleaſant wine, Mat. 2.10.29. but neither doth the word ſeem ſo to ſignifie in the places produced, nor need it here be ſo rendred, rather, as new wine, in the one place, is another kind of wine, then that our Saviour then drank with them: (for it is not the ſame word with that uſed, for wine new, in regard of age, oppoſed to old, Matth. 9. 17. Luke 5.38, 39.) ſo a new name here, may be put for another name (ſo is it expreſſly ſaid, chap. 65, 15.) then the had been formerly called by; as for new tongues, Mar. 16. 17. is ſaid to be ſpoken, when they ſhall ſpeak in the ſame kind, or ſort, as the other tongues, Acts 2.4. but to alter the ordinary verſion is no need.

which the mouth of the Lord hath named] Heb. hath named it: a redundant form, in that language very frequent. So Pſalm 1. 4. & 144.8. which God himſelf hath, as by word of mouth impoſed on thee, anſwerable to that ſtate, that he hath raiſed thee unto: hath named; that is, hath expreſſed, ſay the Jewiſh Criticks, referring us to the places, where it is ſaid, expreſſed by name, Num. 1.6.

1 Chron. 12.31. & 16. 41. Some of ours, set, assigned, or appointed, thee; as Gen. 30.28. appoint, or, set me out, thy wages, to rather, then as some, which the Lords mouth hath engraven: as alluding to the manner of engraving mens names, to perpetuate the memorial of them, in marble, or brass; for neither doth the metaphor of engraving, fit well with the word, mouth; nor is the word any where found used, for to engrave; though to pierce, or bore thorowe, it be sometime used, 2 King. 12.10. chap 36.6.

V. 3. Thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God.] Heb. And thou shalt be, &c. And tur, Also: as chap. 60. 17, 21. Or, That thou mayst be, &c. carrying on the sentence still, as before, verf. 2.

a crown of glory] Or, as a crown of glory; the note of similitude omitted. See Phil. 1.11. & 1 19. 119. and heretofor, verf. 1. to be a crown of glory, that is, a glorious crown. So Prov. 4.9. Jer. 13. 18.

in the hand of the Lord] Here some Interpreters make much ado, and having tyed a needless knot, devise many wayes how to untye it again: a crown, say they, is no ornament of the hand, it is wont to be born on the head, not to be carried in, or worn on, the hand: and how is Sion then laid to be a crown, or, as a crown in Gods hand? To this some answer, and so one of the Jewish Criticks, that there are some places, where they wear their crowns on their hands. So indeed the Christian Souldier, in Tertullians time, carried his lawrel wreath, or garland in his hand; because he made scruple of putting it on his head: but in what country they used to wear crowns on their hands, I suppose that grand Master could not readily have told. Others therefore suppole, that the word crown may signifie any rich, or coftly jewel in general, as rings, bracelets, and the like. Whe eof rings may the rather be so termed; because the word that this cometh of, fignifieth to encircle, to encompass, Pfalm 5.12. & 103.4. 1 Sam. 23. 26. and the ring, as an hoop, encompalseth the finger round about: and here again in the text in that of engraving, verf. 2. as well luiting with this notion; because the manner was to carry about them, the names or pictures of their special friends, engraven on their rings, to have them always in their eye. See chap. 49. 16. but of that before. Some place would be produced, where the word here found, is so liberally used; as that of 1 Macc. 4.57 of the golden crowns, wherewith the fore-part of the Temple was adorned, at the feast of Dedication mentioned, Joh. 10. 22. will not prove it. Others therefore say, that in, or on, the hand of the Lord, is no more then, in, or, on the Lord: and that it may be as well, on his head, as, on his hand. So, by the hand of thy servants hast thou reproached the Lord, chap. 37. 24. that is, haply, by thy servants; who allo did it with their mouthes, or tongues, not with their hands: but these two phrases, as they render the particle here, are not matches; & yet the one helps, and leads us unto the genuine notion of the other, being rendred as it ought. The Jewish Commenters some of them expound it, in the hand; that is, in the power and protection of God: the hand being mentioned, not as wearing the crown, but as holding and keeping the crown fast on the head of his people, from falling from it; as Lam. 5. 16. or being forced of it: as Pf. 89. 39. & 132. 18. wherunto also some of ours add, that thereby is implyed, that this crown is not to be set on Gods head, but to be put into his hand; that is, committed to his care and charge: and hand, for power or protection, is indeed frequent in Scripture. See chap. 49. 2. Pfal. 31. 15. Joh. 10.28,29. as also, for care, and charge, Pfal. 31. 5. chap. 3. 6 But this seems not to suit so well with this place: for it is not a crown set on the heads of Gods people, that is here spoken of; but Gods people are said rather to be a crown, or, as a crown in some fort, unto him. I conceive then fore, that the words should be rendred, that thou mayst be as a glorious crown, or diadem, by, or, through the hand of the Lord; that is by means of that work, which the Lord shall effect for them, by his deliverance, and advancement; the particle so very commonly used in that notion, as to import the effic ent cause or means, whereby ought is effected. So, Him that saveth by thy right hand, Pfal. 17.7. & 136.12. by, or, with a strong hand, and an outstretched out: and, by thee, & by my God we shall do valiantly; and the like, Pfal. 18.29. & 44.5. & 60.12. and hand, for, work; or, if ye so please, power-working, is no less frequent; that it may be known that it is thy hand, and that thou hast done it, Pfal. 109. 27. and, his hand is still stretcht out; that is, he is working still, chap. 5. 25. & 9.12.17,21. as also finger, is found used in the same notion, Exod. 8.19. Luke 11. 20. See also, Ezra 7.28. & 8. 22. Nehem. 2. 8. & 5. 8. and that the word Crown is commonly taken for ought that is a grace, and an ornament, that is, matter of honour, and eminency, in, or, unto, any, it is no lefs apparent; for so is wisdome said to be a crown to him that hath it, Prov. 4. 9. and a vertuous woman a crown to him that hath her, Prov. 12. 4. and childrens children a crown to their parents, Prov. 17. 6. and, the hoary head, a crown to the righteous aged, Prov. 16. 31. and, wealth, a crown to the wife, that know how to use it, as they should, Prov. 14.24. the meaning then is, not so much as some, that Gods people should be as dear, and as precious unto God, as his crown is to a King, the like whereunto, is of his signet implyed, Jer. 22. 24. as that they should become exceeding glorious and eminent, above other people, as the Crown is an Ensign of the highest state, and honour, and should in regard thereof, become very conspicuous, of great renown, far, and near, (the crown worn on the head, being more in sight, then any ornament, on any other part of the body) by Gods good hand upon them, and for them, by his works already wrought, and to be further wrought for them, and by his constant defence among them, and gracious abode with them, ready, upon all occasions, to engage himself and his power for them, chap. 4. 2, 5. & 11.10. & 60.1, 2, 7, 9, 15, 19, 20. & 61. 9-11. and consequently, that they should become as a crown unto him, the subject matter of his glory, a glory unto him, by whole hand they had thus been advanced, chap. 44.23. & 49.3. & 60.21. & 61.3. for I conceive that to come far short of the Prophets intendment, which some have, that the meaning is, that they should be a kingdome again: they had come neerer home to it, had they said, that they should all of them be Kings, or they should be a kingdome consisting of none but Kings. See verf. 6.

and a royall diadem in the hand of thy God] the same thing repeated in divers terms; but of the same notion in general.

a royal diadem] Or, as a royal crown; the note of similitude fupplied, as before. Heb. crown of Kingdome; or, a Kingdome, as Eft. 6. 8. the word, a diadem, would better fit the former term both fignifie a crown; but with some difference, in regard of the native notion of either: for the former cometh (as hath been thewed) from a word that fignifies, to environ, or encompass; and to takes in crowns, or wreaths, of all sorts: fo termed, because they do all encircle the head: and thence also hath the diadem its name in Greek; because it was bound about the head, and was lometime no other, then a fillet: as appears by the ftory of Mithridates his queen, who therewith endeavoured to ftrangle her self: but this later word hath its rising from a root that fignifies, not to encircle, but to environ. See cap. 22. 18. and doth therefore properly denote such an one, as we call a close crown; wherewith the head is not environed, and encircled only, but enwrapped, and enclosed in it: whereas open crowns, as well as close, are in the former word included; the former wherof, is but as a wreath; this as a wrapper. Now because these enwrapping tires, I mean solemn, and honorable ones, were of two sorts, the Priestly one, rendred a mitre, Zach. 3. 5. and the Princely one, rendred a diadem, as here, so Job 29. 14. though not so fitly, as hath been shewed: therefore as well for distinction, as for further amplification, the crown here alluded unto, is faid to be, the crown of a Kingdome: not such as the high Priest wore; though that also was rich, Exod. 28. 36, 37. nor such as might beseem some petty Prince to wear: but a crown-royall. such as the King of Ammons was, 2 Sam. 12. 30. such as was Solomons, Cant. 3,11. such as King Ahasuerus his, Eft. 6. 8.

in the hand of thy God] Or, by the hand. Heb. palm; for the palm of the hand doth the word properly fignifie. See chap. 1. 6. & 49. 16.

V. 4. Thou shalt no more be termed, Forsaken; nor shall thy land any more be termed, Desolate.] Or, That thou mayest be no more termed, Forsaken; nor thy land any more termed, Desolate. Heb. It shall not be said any more to thee, Forsaken; nor to thy land shall it any more be said Desolate. Of which form of speech, see on chap 61.6.

Thou shalt no more be termed, Forsaken] Thou shalt no longer continue in contempt, and disgrace, as thou hast done all the time of thy captivity; during which, the was not only forsaken of her people, chap. 60. 12. but seemed also forsaken, and forgotten, by God himself, chap. 49. 14. like a woman cast off by her husband, chap. 49. 21. & 54. 6, 7. & 61. 7. Jer. 30.17. Hos. 1.10. 1 Pet. 2.10.

nor shall thy land be any more termed, Desolate] Or, Desolation: as chap. 1. 7. & 17. 9. & 64. 10. It shall lye no longer desolate, but be peopled, and husbanded, and become fertile, and fruitfull again, chap. 4. 2. & 61.4,5.

but thou shalt be called Hephzi-bah; and thy Land Beulah:] Or, But that thou mayst be called, &c. but it shall be said to thee —— and to thy land, &c. as before.

Hephzi-bah] Or, Chephtsi-bah; that is, my delight is in her: the name of Ezekiahs queen, Manasses Mother, and it was, it seems, a name, in those times not unusual, 2 King. 21.1. it implyeth the delight that God would take in his people reclaimed now, and refined, Pfal. 132. 13, 14. & 147. 10,11. & 149.4. So the Saints are Davids Chephtsi-bam, Pfal. 16. 3.

Beulah] That is, Married; as Gen. 20.3. Deut. 22.22. chap. 54. 1. It shall be with thee, and with thy land, as with a woman that hath got a good match; whereby her state is much improved, and advanced, ch. 54.5. Jer. 3.14. Hos. 2.19,20. or, with one, who having been left by her husband, upon some breach between them, for a time, is now reconciled again to him, & lives now, the breach being wholly made up, in as entire and inward a conjugal conjunction to him, and communion with him, as ever, Hos. 2.7. 1 Cor. 7. 11. For they much diminish the force of the term, that render it, with the old Latine, following the Greek, and the Chaldee likewise, inhabited; or, as some other, possessed: albeit, that be true, which the Jewish Commenter here hath, that a land inhabited, seems to be as a married wife; a land dis-peopled, to fit as a lone for the Lord delighteth in thee] Or, because the Lord delighteth in thee; the reason why the might well be so termed, when the Lord, by restoring of her in that manner, and advancing her to that height of honour, should abundantly shew what affection he bare unto her, Pfal. 147. 11.

and thy land shall be married.] So is the word used, Prov. 30.23. It is as if he had said, Whereas thy land hath been without Inhabitants, having been dispeopled, and so like a lone woman, without children it shall now, as if it were a married wife, enjoying the company of an husband, in a comfortable and honourable way, be replenished with people, as with children, thorough Gods blessing upon it, chap. 54.3,5. Jer. 31.27.

V. 5. For as a young man marrieth a virgin; so shall thy sons marry thee.] Or, when(as Pfal. 75.2.) as (the note of similitude supplyed; as chap. 47.3.8.) a young man marrieth a virgin; so (supplyed, as Pro. 26.11.) thy sons shall have married thee; carrying on the discourse in a continued context, from the beginning of the Chapter, unto the end of this verfe.

as a young man marrieth a virgin;] He doth not say, as one of the Jewish Doctors well obferveth, as when an old man marrieth a young maid, nor, as when a young man marrieth a widow, whose prime, & flower, another hath, before him, enjoyed: but as when a young man, yea, a choice one, (for so the word here used properly fignifies: See Ch. 40.30.) marrieth a virgin: implying such an exact correspondency of condition on either side, as might give full contentment, and mutual delight, unto either: a fit compliance, whereby to decypher the most comfortable and thankfull condition of a Kingdom, or State, so unanimously compacted, and united together, that all parts and parties, in it, have abundance of mutual contentment, one in another, Pfal. 122.3 Act 2.40-47. & 4. 32-34. for they seem to shoot short, that would have it, an intimation onely of peaceable times; for that in times of peace, young men have opportunity of contracting marriage, & enjoying their matches, while they stay at home; whereas in times of hostility, they are sent out to war.

so shall thy sons marry thee:] Concerning this clause, there is much debate among Interpreters; and there seems to be in it some difficulty: For how the children of Sion should be faid to marry her, their mother, may some doubt well be moved. This difficulty will be utterly taken away, if we admit either the ancient Greek, or the old Latine verfions, which render the text, as a young man dwell-th with a virgin; and thy sons shall dwel with thee; that is, fay they, that receive and retain this reading, They people shall dwell together with us as with a family, as lovingly, and contentedly, as such a couple are wont to live together. And so the question might soon be at an end, if the Hebrew term here used, and in our Verfion rightly expressed, did not necessarily enforce to some further consideration. Some, therefore, by Sions children, here, understand such of them, as were Teachers, and Paftors, which God promiseth to raise up from among them, and to furnish his people with, Chap. 60. 19, 21. Jer. 3.14,15. faid here to marry her, yet not to themselves, but unto God and Christ, of whom, in the next branch, as makers of the match, between him and her. So Paul of himself, 2 Cor. 11.2. But I find not where this word or marrying, in Hebrew, is used, for the making up of a match between two parties; though we so use the word, sometime in our language: but for to take a wife to ones self, and to own, and possess her, as his wife, as the word originally importeth. Others by her sons, conceive to be meant her Rulers, Governours, and the meaning to be, that the should no longer continue in subjection to strangers: but should have Rulers and Governours of her own Natives, Jer. 30.21. as God had, as it is, appointed that it should be, Deut. 17.15. For the King, or Ruler, seems to be as an husband to the State, & the state as a wife to him: And the is therefore faid to be as a widow, when the is deprived of her King, her Head, chap. 47. 8, 9. Lam. 1.1. Others, again, by her Sons, would have meant her people in general, who being of the same faith and religion, with her, should be joyned fast, as in a conjugal bond unto her, that is, unto the Church, and being so united unto her, should then, together with her, be joyned in marriage unto Christ. And true it is, that Gods Church, and his People, in such tropical speeches, doe many times admit notions of divers relations, upon divers considerations, which being taken in propriety of speach, would be inconsistent one with another. So the new Jerusalem, is faid to be the Lambs bride, Rev. 21.2,9. and they are pronounced blessed, that are as guests invited unto their wedding feast, Rev. 19.9. Now, though in propriety of speech, and the truth of the thing to taken, the bride, and the guests, cannot be one, and the same: yet certain it is, that this new Jerusalem can be no other then the Church; nor the guests at this feast, any other, then the faithful, of whom this self same Church consisteth, called the Saints, Rev. 19.8. Again, here children are faid to marry her, whom yet the is faid to put on as her wedding apparel, or ornaments, elsewhere, chap. 49.18. How beit, beca ise the accommodation hereof to the present passage, seems no: to come off so smoothly; there are some other ways of solving this doubt, and salving this seeming incongruity exhibited by others. These hitherto have followed the reading, which our English Verfion, three of them retain. But our ancientest Verfion, commonly extant, rendreth it, God shall marry himself unto thy sons: For besides that, the verb is plural, which undels we will refer to Elohim, which is a plural form, and hath sometime both verbs, and nouns, plural, joyned with it; as Gen. 20. 13. Josh. 24.19. and in this very argument, chap. 54. 5. will not fair well here, and it may seem over-tar to fetch it in hither, from ver 3. this Verfion leaves out the word, thee, assixed to the verb of marrying, which may not be omitted. One therefore, of good note (remembreth it; as a young man joyneth in marriage unto him a virgin: so will he (to wit, the Lord) join a marriage to himself: thee, and thy sons; but he rendreth no reason of this reddition: And besides the insertion of the copulative, which (as it is here) may be omitted, (though whether in the conjunction of a pronoun affixed with a noun lodie may be doubted) the number of the verb gives a further just ground of demur. Others, lastly, of prime reckoning, render it on this wife: As, when a young man taketh a virgin, when thy sons take thee to wife: not meaning that they take wives for her, but for themselves: So the word thee, is said be but an expletive elegantly used, as in whole forms, see thee, Gen 12. 1. compared with Act 7.3. get ye, Gen. 12.5. depart thee, 2 Sam. 2. 22. the like whereunto, is in other languages alfo very frequent: and the reddition of the similitude should be all in the latter part of the verfe. But this seems somewhat harsh also, as well as the former. Nor doth that run any more smoothly, wh ch another hath, and I comprise under this, because I have seen not much from it, who would not have any similitude here implyed, but a collation rather of things to-retold, to wit, that there shall be again marrying of young men, and maidens with them, and keeping of nuptials well-ayd, with joy and mirth, an argument, of times of peace and tranquility: for in times of trouble and distress, such things cease, and so did with them, for some time, Jer. 7.34. & 16.9. & 25. 10 & 33.11. but that the joy and delight shall be far greater, then any joy of that kind, either among them, or else-where, that God and his Church, shall mutually enjoy either in other. And this sense to bear, the words must be rendred, A young man shall wed a virgin; but thy sons, much more delightfully, shall wed with thee; that is, in thy land; and the bridegroom shall have much joy of his bride: but God shall rejoyce much more over thee, and for much more, as Prov. 6. 16,17. & 30.19,31. but not are those places so pregnant for it, nor is and, here, in the text, where he would have it, though it be in the vulgar Latine. In this great variety I shall make bold to deliver mine own conjecture, with the grounds of it, and so leave it to the learned. An hint whereof, I have from one of the Jewish Doctors, who taking his rise from the Chaldee before-mentioned, saith the meaning is, that her people should possess her; that is, their land, and not be dispossessed of it again, as formerly they had been: and that seems somewhat indeed of it, but not all. The verb Baal, therefore doth, in the fifth place signifie, to possess, or be possessed (as we use to speak) of, ought, in general as Lord, or owner of it, 1 Chron. 4.22. after that, more specially, to take, and be possessed of a wife, Mal. 2.11. Judah hath married, or, joyned in marriage the daughter of a strange god. And indeed, Baal is the more peculiar notion of the word. So Deut. 24. 1. when a man hath taken a woman (to wit, to wife, as chap. 21. 11.) and is possessed of her, that is, doth keep, or hold her, converse & live with her, as a wife: (o rather then married her, for that was mentioned; implied, at least, in the taking of her before. Hence the noun baal, fignifieth firft, in a large extent, a Lord, Master, or, Owner of ought in general. See on Chap. 41.15. So the owner of the house, Exod. 22. 7. and, the owner of the pit, Exod. 21. 34. more specially, as husband, as Lord, Gen. 18.12. or, owner of his wife Exod. 21.3, 22. and the participle active, baal, a man possessing, or possessed of, a wife: being an husband, ch. 54.5 and the paffive bealah a woman possessed by an husband, a wife. So it is fully expressed, Deut. 22.22. a woman held, or possessed, to wit, of or by a man, as a wife by an husband. This laid as a ground, I conceive the word, rendred marry, to be here used in a sylleptical, or metaleptical notion; call it wether ye please: and it may be, the former way in the one branch; the latter, in the other: and that the text without much straining, may be thus read; when, as a young man, that shall have married, or, is in marriage possessed of a virgin: so, thy sons shall, as in marriage, possess thee, or, keep with thee, that is shall possess thee, hold, and enjoy thee, as surely as if they were joyned in marriage unto thee; or, they shall keep, and dwell, and live, together with thee (for that is the consequent of marrying) in as cheerful, and comfortable manner, with as much contentment and delight, as a young man is wont to keep, and live with, some young beautiful damsel, whom he hath taken unto wife. There is besides the supplies in the received reading, no more then that of the relative, to use, as nothing more. See Chap. 63. & 8. 61. 9. ver. 1. nor is ought here wrong from the text; but what, being fairly dealt with, it freely affordeth.

and as the bridegroom rejoyceth over the bride; so shall thy God rejoyce over thee.] Heb. with the joy, or, as with the joy of a bridegroom, over a bride, shall thy God rejoyce over thee. God will take as much delight and plea ure in thee, as such are wont to take the one, in the other: the reason why the should be termed Chephtsi-bah, ver. 4. See Chap. 65. 19. Zeph. 3. 17. and the like to us, thy God;] As verf. 3. Christ; God, and Man; and as man of thy seed, chap. 7. 14. Rom. 1.3. & 9.5. who shall joyn himself as an husband to thee, chap. 54.5. Hos. 2.19,20. 2 Cor. 11.2. Eph. 5.23.

Chap. 9.3 & 22. 17, 18, & 24. 17. they detract over-much from the tenor and fitness of the reremblance; that render the terms here, a father in law, and a daughter in law, though the words sometime so signifie.

V. 6. I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem] That these are the words of God himself, that is, delivered as spoken in his person, is generally agreed. But some read them, as our Version rendreth them in the time past, or present, as spoken of those that God had already set apart, and designed unto the office here mentioned, that which some of them conceive to have reference to Gods former speech, as they take it, verf. 1. that he would not rest, until he had restored Jerusalem, and had set some therefore to be continually minding him of it; as one of the Persian Kings, sometime, appointed one to call every day upon him, that he might not forget it, to be avenged on the Greeks. Others suppose it to be an answer, much to the same purpose, with the Prophets foregoing speech, carried on from the first verse hitherto. Others read them, in the time to come, I will set watchmen upon thy walls: and these expound them, of the course that God would take for the safeguard of the Church, after the restitution of it, for the continuance of its quiet, and flourishing condition, against all perils, or evils, whereby they might be either openly assaulted by day, or secretly surprized by night, chap. 21.6, 8.

I have set] Or, I will appoint: It is God that setteth and assigneth men to this office, Jer. 6. 27. Ezek. 3.17. & 33. 7. 1 Cor. 12. 28.

watchmen] Heb. keepers, or watchers, Judg. 1. 24. & 7. 19. the Angels, fay some of the Jewish Doctors, nor do some of ours exclude them; and they seem to be termed watchers, Dan. 4. 13 23. and are undoubtedly employed, as watchmen, for the safety of Gods people, Gen. 32. 1, 2. 2 Kings 6. 17. Pfal. 34. 7. & 91. 11. Mat. 18 10. Heb. 1. 14. but they seem not to be so much here intended; the most therefore by watchmen, here understand Prophets, and Pastors, that are set to watch over Gods people, for the safety and welfare of their souls, Jer. 6. 17. & 31. 6. Ezek. 3 17. & 33. 7. Heb. 13. 17. Yet some extend the term here unto Rulers, in general, as well Civil, as Ecclesiastical. See chap. 56. 9.

upon thy walls] The usual place, where watchmen are placed, as standing in sentinel, to see the further, & discover the approach of any enemy, or other matter remarkable that may concern the publick, 2 Sam. 13. 34. & 18. 24. Yet some would have it rendred, for thy walls, or, rounding it, for the safety of thee and them: and true it is, that the particle indeed to mention so signifies; as 1 Chro. 6. 49. chap. 31. 4. as also, that this is the end of such watching, to keep all in safety, Pfal. 127. 1. and in this regard, are the watchmen termed keepers of the walls, Cant. 5. 7. But there is no need to alter here the received reading, and most proper use of the particle, chap. 36. 11.

which shall never hold their peace] Heb. shall not be silent continually. Which shall never cease, either calling upon Gods people, by enforming and instructing them, or call on upon God in their behalf, for his mercy toward them, and blessings upon them. For these two are their special employments, as they are watchers, Acts 6. 4. and some suppose it to allude to the usuall practice of watchmen, whole manner is, fay they, to passe the time, by night especially, in chatting, or chanting, to keep one another awake: but others conceive, that to be silent here, importeth not so much ceasing to speak, as succeasing, and intermitting their watch, the profecution of their employment, and their attendance thereunto. So the word is used, Judg. 18. 9. 1 King. 22. 3.

day and night] Heb all the day, and all the night, as Eyod. 10. 13. 1 Sam. 28 20. Hence would some gather, that a guard of Angels is here implyed; as also, Rev. 4. 8. because men must of necessity have times of rest, and intermission: and one of the Jewish Commenters observeth therefore a difference between these watchers, an I worldly ones: for those, when they watch by night, they sleep in the day; whereas these watch day and night: and some run out into allegories, of watching as well in times of prosperity, designed by the day, as in times of adversity, resembled by the night; because dangers are alike in either, Prov. 30. 8, 9. but neither is any such absolute inesflancy, as they imagine, here intimated nor are any Watches in garrison towns ordinarily intermitted, though not by some individual parties continually maintained, but by a constant intercourse of other successively supplyed: nor need we have recourse to enigmatical speculations, where the notion is plain and familiar; it is nothing but a promise of a sufficient supply of able persons, that should constantly look to their charge, and diligently perform their duty imposed on them by God, and required of them, for the safety and welfare of his people, described by the employment of Watchers, and Wardens, that are set by day, to defery any open approach of an adversary; by night, to discover any more secret accesse. See the like expression of a constant watch, chap. 21. 8. and a pattern of it in Paul, Acts 20. 31. 1 Thess. 2. 10.

Ye that make mention of the Lord, keep not silence:] The Prophet here turneth his speech again, from God, to some other, whom he called upon, for the diligent, and constant performance of some offices with God, that might help to further, and hasten the conummation of his Churches glorious estate. And the verses therefore seem not to have been so exactly distinguished, either here, or in some other places of this Prophet; as chap. 3. 9, 10. & 58 9. & 59. 15 no more then the chapters of late divided. See chap 4. 1. & 26. 20. & 52. 13, 14, 15. & 64. 1. See 2 Chron. 30. 18, 19.

Ye that make mention of the Lord,] Whom the Prophet here directeth his speech unto, (for I cannot accord with those, who make them the watchmen wordes, and inferr the word saying) is not agreed upon, among interpreters. Some, both of the Jewish, & some, expound it, in general, of all the pious, and religious ones, among the people of God, that should live in that last times, wherein the Church of God should be in that low estate, and despicable condition, before insinuated, verf. 4 & chap. 61. 1-3, 7. of whose remembrance of God, in those calamitous times, mention is made, chap. 26. 8. and who are called upon, to solicite him, in the behalf of his Church, Lam. 2. 18, 19. and these read the words, Ye that remember the Lord: and so the word seems to beused, in this form, Gen. 41. 9. Or, Ye that mind the Lord; to wit, of his Church, whereof more hereafter. But others rather conceive, that some special persons are here intended, set apart into this peculiar office; to wit, such watchmen, as were before mentioned: and these, though agreeing concerning the person, yet differ about the notion of the title, or term, here given them: some rendring it, Ye that mention the Lord; either by praising of him, as chap. 12. 4. & 63. 7. or, by praying to him, as chap. 26. 13. Others, Ye that mind men of the Lord; that put men in mind of God: a special work, and duty, required of Gods Ministers, to mind them of him, of his bounty and mercy to them, and their duty, in regard thereof, unto him, Pfal. 145. 5, 6, 7. 2 Tim. 4. 1, 2. 2 Pet. 1, 13. Others, which I take to be the genuine notion of the term, Ye that are the Lords remembrancers, whose office it is, to be constantly minding God, and soliciting him, in the behalf of his Church, as being in special manner called, and set apart, to that employment. See verf. 1. Eph. 1. 16. & 3. 14, 16. Phil. 1. 3, 4. Col. 1. 3, 9. 1 Theff. 1. 2, 3, & 3. 10. and it is a term borrowed from certain officers, that are about Kings, and Princes, for such purpose, to mind them of those matters that concern the publick weal, and welfare. See on chap. 36. 2. not that God is subject to forgetfulness, as man is, who had need therefore of such minders, to help his frail memory; or, that he can forget his Church, and those things that concern the good and welfare of it, chap. 49. 15, 16. but that he hath in his holy wisdom, so disposed the passages of his Providence, for his own greater glory, and mans more abundant good, that he will be sought to, and solicited for the performance of his gracious promises, as by all his people, in general, so more specially by those, whom to this office he hath designed, Ezek 36. 37. Thus is the word used, whence this term cometh, in the title of Pfal 38. & 70. A Pfalm to mind, or, to bring to remembrance, to mind God of the prefent sad condition of the Pfalmift himfelf, in the one; and of the people of God, generally in the other; and to crave relief, and deliverance, for either: contrary to the mind of those, who expound it, to celebrate Gods mercy, in their delivery; the subject matter of either Pfalm, directly crossing that concede. This notion of the term here, the words ensuing confirm. And that in this office also, the Angels have some interest, may appear by Zach. 1. 12.

Keep not silence] Heb. let not silence be unto you; or, let not veil be unto you. So Pfalm 83. 1. let not silence, or veil, be unto thee, O God. See hereof on the former part of the verse, and Pfal. 22. 2.

V. 7. And give him no rest] him, to wit, the Lord, whom ye are to mind of the condition of his people, verf. 6. no rest, or silence: the same word that was before, verf. 6. Suffer not the Lord to rest, but call instantly, and constantly, upon him, be importunate with him, to hasten the deliverance of his people, and the restitution of his Church. See of such importunity, and wrastlings, to God very grateful, Gen. 32. 25, 26, 28. Hos. 12. 3, 4. Luke 11. 8-10. & 18. 2-8. Rom. 15. 30, for that which some of prime note here have, who render it, suffer not silence to be concerning him; that is, fay they, concerning Christ: though the particle be sometime so used; as chap. 56. 4. yet seemeth not to suit so well in this place.

till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth] Untill by eftablifhing his Church, he make it, or until he so eftablish and settle his Church, that he make it (for of the phrase, chap. 61. 5.) praise; that is, the subject matter of praise, (as chap. 60. 18.) either for which the whole world may praise him, Pfalm 67. 3, 4. & 102. 21, 22. or, for which, it may become famous thorowout the whole world, Pfal. 89. 3. Chap. 60. 9. & 61. 9, 11. verf. 1, 2. praise, for, matter of praise; as, joy, for matter of joy, chap. 65. 18.

V. 8. The Lord hath sworn,] The better to confirm, and strengthen ft engthen the hearts of his people, in an hopefull expectation of the forementioned mercies and favours, he celleth them, that the forementioned Solemn oath, both for the performance of them, God had taken a solemn oath, both for the performance of them, and for their continuance also with them. So in their directions, Heb. 6. 17, 18.

chap. 54. 9, 10. Heb. 6. 17, 18.

by his right hand, and by the arm of his power] Or, rather, by his arm of power, or might; that is, his powerfull, or mighty arm; as, his arm of glory, or bravery, for, his brave, or glorious arm, chap. 63. 12. God is said to swear, sometime by himself, Gen. 22. 16. chap. 45. 23. Heb. 6. 13. sometime, by his soul, the same with himself, Amos 6. 8. sometime, by his holiness, Amos 4. 2. sometime, by Israels excellency, which he himself alone is, Amos 8. 7. here, by his right hand, and his arm; which are no other, than his might, and power, manifested in the exercise thereof, Pfal. 136. 12. chap. 26. 11. & 30. 30. engaging his almighty power therein; because it was to be imployed, and discovered in this great, and glorious design, concerning his people. See verf. 3. It is, as if he had said, Let me not be deemed almighty; let it be said, that I wanted ability to effect it, if I make not this good. See Num. 14. 15, 16.

Surely I will no more give] Heb. If I shall any longer give. Or, which some of an oath, see on chap. 5. 9. & 22. 14. the word saying is here wanting; and to be supplied, as Pfal. 110. 4. & 132. 11. expressed Pfalm. 105. 11. Heb. 6. 14.

I will no more give thy corn to be meat for thine adversaries; and the sons of the stranger shall not drink thy wine, for which thou hast laboured:] Strange people, thine enemies, shall not enjoy the fruit of thy labours; as formerly they have done, chap. 1. 7. See chap. 65. 22.

I will no more give thy corn to be meat for thine enemies;] Or, I will no longer make thy corn meat for thine enemies; for so the word of giving doth very commonly fignifie. See on chap. 61. 8. So Pfal. 79. 2. they have given the corpses of thy pious ones meat for the beasts. And God is faid to have done it; because by his just judgment on them, for their sins, and excelles; as it was formerly threatned, Lev. 26. 18. Deut. 28. 30, 33, 52. to it had been effected, and inflicted on them. Jer. 5. 15, 17. Amos 5. 11. See Judg. 6. 3.

the sons of the stranger] Heb. strangers sons; that is, strangers; as Pfal. 144. 7. See chap. 2. 6. & 56. 3, & 61. 5.

thy corn, and thy wine] corn and wine, put for all manner of thy corn, and thy wine] corn and wine, put for all manner of provitions; because two of the principall. So Gen. 27. 28, 37. Deut. 32. 14. Pfal. 4. 7. Zach 9. 17. in which laft place the word rendred new wine, is here used for wine in generall. See Chap 49. 26.

V. 9. But they that have gathered it, shall eat it, and praise the Lord; and they that have brought it together, shall drink it in the courts of my Holiness] Thy people shall enjoy the fruit of their labours, blessing God for them; and imparting of them unto those, that have been serviceable unto them, in the getting of them in; and to the Ministers of God, that were therein to partake with them, Pfalm 128. 2. chap. 65. 21. a note of a quiet and peaceable time and state, chap 17. 13. Jer. 29. 23. Amos 9. 14.

they that have gathered it] Heb. the gatherers of it; to wit, of thy corn, verf. 8. they taking part of it, with thee, that had their pains used, to get it in for thee: for of them, equity required, that a special regard should be had, among other of meaner rank then themselves. Deut. 15. 13, 14. & 16. 11, 14. & 24. 14, 15. & 26. 12-14. the contrary practice is condemned, as an accursed course, and a crying sin, Jer. 22. 13. Jam. 5. 4.

praise the Lord] Themselves blessing the Lord for his blessing upon their labours, and serving him the more cheerfully, in regard of his goodness therein towards them, Deut. 8. 10. & 16. 10-15. & 26. 1-11. & 28. 47. and those that partaked of it with them, blessing God both together with them, and for them, Ruth 2. 4. Job 31. 16-20. 2 Cor. 9. 12, 13.

they that have brought it together] Heb. the gatherers of it; to wit, of the wine, verf. 8. or, the grapes of which it was made: this word and the former, are both of one notion; and do here include all the pains taken, as well about the tilling of their grounds, and dreffing of their vines; as about the cutting down, and bringing in, of their corn; and the cutting of their grapes, and making their wine; being put for the reft, because the end, and upshot of them, Jam. 5. 7.

shall drink it in the courts of mine holiness] Either, in my courts of holiness; that is, mine holy courts: as, mine hill of holiness, for, mine holy hill, chap. 11. 9 & 56. 7, 13. or, in the courts of my sanctuary; as the word is found used, Exod. 31. 11. Lev. 10. 18. See chap. 65. 18 that is, in the buildings, and places neer about the Temple, in which the holy things were to be eaten, Lev. 6. 16. for the Prophet alludeth here unto those solemn anniversary feasts, that were held by them, at Jerusalem, unto which the Levites among other, were invited, Deut. 12. 17-19, 26, 27. & 14. 22-29. & 16. 11, 14. and more specially unto that part of their increase, that was in a more peculiar manner appropriated unto the Priests, and was not to be eaten by any, but by them, and theirs, and that within the precincts of the sanctuary, taken at large, for the whole tabrick of buildings, within the utmost verge, or wall, of it, Lev. 6. 16. 18, 20, 26, 29. & 22. 10-13. as implying, that they should be as Priests. See chap. 56. 5. & 61. 6.

For I cannot assent unto that reverend Writer, who suppoleth a trajection to be in the words of the text, and would have them thus read, The gatherers thereof shall eat it, and the inners thereof shall drink it; and shall praise the Lord in the courts of my Sanctuary: as if the courts of Gods house, were the place here designed, not to the eating of it, but the praising of God for it; which way forever we take it, there is a passage from person to person, as chap. 61. 7.

V. 10. Go thorow, go thorow the gates] The Prophet, as in spirituall raptures is usuall, doth oft wind and turn, in his discourse, from one matter to another, from one party to another, though all concerning the main argument principally intended, the restitution of Gods people. In regard whereof, the context of his speech, both here, and elsewhere, is very abrupt, and by reason thereof, sometime allo, somewhat obscure. He had before introduced the Lord, promising to furnish his people with a constant supply of faithfull watchmen, for their better security, verf. 6. he had then called upon those, whom that office belonged unto, for the diligent performance of some duties, for the furtherance of their weal, verf. 7. he had then brought in again God by a solemn oath, alluring them of a constant course of tranquillity, verf. 8, 9. he now directeth his speech to the people themselves, and from them instantly divertech it, again, to others, that were to be helpfull, and untelull, in their return from captivity. verf. 10. then returneth again to God, and a proclamation in his name published, verf. 11, 12.

Go thorow, go thorow the gates] Heb. pass, pass by, or, thorow the gates; so is the particle taken, Jer. 7. 2. & 17. 20. now because this admitteth a divers construction: for it may be understood as well of coming in, as of going out. Hence ariseth much variety in the interpretation of the place; for some suppose it to be an intimation of the great multitudes of those, that, upon return from captivity, should come thronging into the City, chap. 60. 11. or an invitation of people to come flocking into the Church, whereof the City was a type, chap 26. 2. Others, an adhortation unto those, that being returned, were now seated in the citie, to repair to the Temple, there to perform holy duties, in way of thankfulnes to God; as Pfal. 118. 19, 20. verf. 9. And whereas the words next ensuing, of fitting the way for them, may seem to imply, that the place is not meant of persons, now returned, and at their journeyes end; but of persons preparing for, and about to travel: This to salve, some would have it understood of those already there seated and settled; as called upon to go forth at the gates to meet, and make way for others that were coming, and on the way toward them; which they apply unto the faithfull Jewes, at first, called to Christ, as excited to prepare for, and receive the Gentiles, that were to come in to them. But in all the parallel places of this Prophet, the mention of preparing and fitting the way, is constantly for the people returning from Babylon, and that by others, for them; not by them, for any other; whom they should go out to meet: though it is not denied, that their return was typical; and a type resembling the delivery of people from the thraldom of sin, and Satan, and the conversion of them, unto Christ, Acts 26. 18. Those therefore that conceive this passage to concern those that were now upon return, understand them; Some, as directed to the persons themselves, as calling upon them, to passe by the gates, and come forth out of Babylon: or other cities, where they made their abode, having by Cyrus his Proclamation, liberty now to do so, alluded unto, verf. 11. and so it is in effect the same with those places, chap. 48. 20. & 52. 11. where they are in like manner called upon, to do: and this I take to be the genuine sense of the places; though if any shall suppose, that in these words, other people are called upon, to go out of their gates, that is, out of their several cities, or places of abode, (as Deut. 12. 17. & 14. 27.) to help to make the wayes fit for Gods people to pass by, I should rather thereunto incline; then to that which some other, as well of the Jewish, as of ours, have, that it should be a command given to officers, to passe unto the gates, that is, from gate to gate, as Exod. 32. 27. or from city to city, to proclaim the liberty for return granted to Gods people, Ezra 1. 1. or, to that of our ancientest English, that rendreth it, Depart, go afunder, ye that stand in the gate; as if it were a command given to people, to quit, and clear the gates, for the freer passage of Gods people. Howsoever it be taken, the word is doubled, to add the more emphasis to it: as the like is, in the words ensuing.

prepare ye the way of the people] Or, prepare way for the people. Make the people way; or, prepare and fit the way, for Gods people to pass. See chap. 41. 3. & 57. 14.

cast up, cast up, the high way;] Or, as some render it, tread down, tread down the causey; because the verb is so deemed to signifie, Jer. 50. 26. & Lam. 1. 15. and causeyes are first cast up for the raising of them, then troden, or rolled, to make them even and plain: but of the sense of the former place there is some doubt; and the word in the later place is divers from this, and seems to be of another, the received reading is fate and sure, See chap. 57. 14.

gather out the stones;] The verb here used, signifies in general, to stone; but more especially, sometime, to pick stones out, as chap. 5. 2. sometime, to cast stones in, or at, one: as 2 Sam. 16. 6, 13.

Hence

Hence ariſeth a divers expoſition of this place. Some rendring the word, ſtone it; that is, pitch, or pave, it, with ſtone: as the particle is uſed, Cant.1.1. & 3.9. to make it the more firm, and plain; as ways well paved, or pitched, are wont to be. Others, whom our Verſion followeth; ſtone it, that is, by ſtoning: as Chap.5.2. cleer it, or, free it, from ſtone; that is, from ſtones: the word being taken collectively, as Hab.2.11. that there may no ſtones, or, ſtone, be left lying in the way for Gods people to trip, or ſtumble, at, Pſal. 91.12. as Hoſ.9.12. I will bereave them from a man; that is, ſo that there ſhall not be a man of them left: pick the ſtones out of the way, to make it the more eaſie, and the leſs troubleſome, or offenſive: and this the rather I embrace, becauſe in that place parallel to this, Chap.57.14. the words are, take away the ſtumbling, (whether ſtone, or block) out of the way of my people.

lift up a ſtandard for the people] Or, as others, to the people; (as chap.53.1.) or, peoples, rather, as chap.56.7. for the word is plural. Heb. over the peoples; ſo high, that being over them, or above them, it may be ſeen of them. Becauſe the Jews in their captivity, were diſperſed into many places, and were now ſojourning among ſundry people, there is an enſigne ſaid to be ſet up aloft; either, for thoſe people among whom they ſhould then be found reſiant, to cauſe them to bring the Jews home from among them, Chap. 49. 22. & 66.20. or, as others, to thoſe people, for the Jews abiding with them; that reſorting to it, and having gathered themſelves together, they might travell in troops, Chap. 60. 8. with more conveniency, by mutual ſociety, and ſafety. See Chap. 11. 11,12.

V. 11. Behold the Lord hath proclaimed unto the end of the world,] Heb. The Lord hath made to hear (that is, publiſhed, or, cauſed this to be heard; as chap. 45.21. 2 King.7.6.) unto the end of the earth: ſo far as any of them might, be diſperſed, Deut.30.4. chap. 48. 20. The words have reference to the Proclamation ſent abroad, through Gods appointment and procurement, into all parts, by Cyrus, 2 Chron.36. 21——23. Ezr.1.1, 2.

Say ye unto the daughter of Zion;] Let this be publiſhed, and made known, unto thoſe that belong unto Sion, to my people in all parts; ſo chap.48.20. Zach.9.9. Mat.21.5. of the daughter Sion, See on Chap.1.8.

Behold, thy Salvation cometh,] Or, is come; thy deliverance is at hand; or the time of it is come, Pſal.102.13. chap.51.5. & 56.1. & 60.1 or, thy ſalvation, for the Author of thy ſalvation; thy Saviour, as Luk.2.30. thy King, that ſaveth thee, chap.33.22. is come to thee, to ſave, and deliver thee, Pſal.74.12. Zach.9.9. Joh.12.15. and that it is thus to be here taken, the clauſe enſuing ſheweth, See chap.59. 20.

Behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him.] Of this paſſage, ſee before, on chap. 40. 10. For I ſuppoſe that learned man to be out of the way, who conceiveth the meaning of the latter to be, that God, for his work, or ſervice, done him by Cyrus, had given him his reward before-hand, chap.45.1-4. As for ſome oher, he rewarded Nebuchadnezzar afterward, Ezek.29.18-20. The prediction of Gods coming in this manner, is uſhered in with a three-fold Behold; as to note the certainty of it, as a thing in preſent ſight; ſo to intimate the State and magnificence of it, is being a matter of much admiration, and wonderment, See chap. 63.1. and the like three-fold Behold, but in an other argument, Jer. 23.30, 31, 32.

V. 12. And they ſhall call them, The holy people;] Or, and men ſhall call them, (to wit Sions ſons, or thoſe that belong to her; and ſhall now again people her, ver.5.) or, they ſhall be called (as the like, Mal.1 4.) an holy people. Heb. a people of holineſs: as, a ſeed of holineſs, for, an holy ſeed, Chap.6. 13. See Chap. 4. 3. and 60.21.

the redeemed of the Lord] Such as God, by reſcuing, and delivering them out of the hands of ſo powerful adverſaries, in ſo ſtrange a manner, hath ſhewed, that he owneth for his, chap.35. 9.& 51.10. & 63 4. See the term alſo, Pſal.107. 2.

and thou ſhalt be called, Sought out;] thou, O Sion, ver. 11. (a paſſage from perſon to perſon: as ver.2.) ſhall be called. Heb. it ſhall be called thee. See ver. 4.

Sought out] Or, Sought unto, or, Sought after: as one had in high eſtimation, and regard: whom out of reſpect, and regard, men repair, and reſort unto. See Pſal.111.2. contrary to that, which was formerly ſaid of thee, in the time of thy low, and dejected eſtate, This is Sion that none ſeeketh after, Jer. 30.17.

a city not forſaken] As thee ſeemed to be formerly, in the time of her captivity. See ver. 4.

CHAP. LXIII.

Verſ. 1. WHo is this, that cometh from Edom, with garments died from Bozrah;] Whether this paſſage hath any connexion with that foregoing, or no, is queſtionable. Some ſuppoſe that it hath. And that to confirm Gods people, in the aſſurance both of their deliverance, & of their continuance in a ſetled eſtate after their return, therein promiſed, God is brought in, returning, as in triumph, from the conqueſt, and ſlaughter of thoſe, that were the chief enemies of his people: partly thereby to make way for the one; and partly to give, ſecurity unto them, for the other: as Chap.37. 29——36. & 38.6. and it may ſeem indeed to have reference unto thoſe words; Behold, thy Saviour cometh, Chap.62.11. Whether it have or no, (and it is probable that it hath) certain it is, that the Prophets words run, as if in a viſion he ſaw the party here ſpoken of, appearing as ſome great Commander, in goodly rich robes, the more goodly, becauſe be-ſprinkled with the bloud of his enemies, returning in triumph from the ſlaughter, and conqueſt of thoſe, whom he had vanquiſhed in fight. See ſomewhat the like paſſages, in that triumphant Pſalm, 68. verſ. 7,8,12-14,17,18,21-23,33. as alſo, Rev.19.11-16.

Who is this,] It is a queſtion, who it it is, that moveth this queſtion. It is the Angels, ſay ſome of the ancients. It is Iſrael, ſay ſome of the Rabbines. It is the Church, ſay ſome of ours. It is the Prophet Eſay, ſay others, of either; to whom the ſight, or apparition was offered in a viſion, or ecſtaſie; with whom I concur. So one of the Elders to John, but as inviting him to ask, what they were, Who are theſe? Rev. 7. 13,14. And it ſeemeth ſpoken by way of admiration, as the like, Cant.3.6. & 8.5. And it is a ſecond queſtion, who the party ſhould be, that thus appeared to the Prophet. Some ſay, God, that gave order for the Proclamation before mentioned, Chap. 62. 11. So ſome, both of the Jewiſh Writers, and other[s]. Some ſay Chriſt, the Meſſias; ſo many of ours, both Old and New. [illegible] one of the chief Angels; th[illegible] the Perſian, Dan. 10. 13. ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Writers. Some, Judas the Maccabee, of whoſe victories, againſt the Edomites, Joſephus the Jew, lib.12. ch.11,12. & Mac.5.3. ſo a learned late Writer. I ſhall accord with the firſt, becauſe this place ſeemeth parallel to that other, Ch. 59.16 18. the very ſame terms, ſome of them, being uſed alſo in either.

that cometh from Edom,-- from Bozrah,] I joyn theſe two together, for the more expedite explication of either, concerning which to let paſs the Rabbines ridiculous conceit, taking Edom, ſtill for Rome, where in theſe Prophecies, they meet with it; becauſe in Hebrew the letters of either are much alike; and their State was by the Roman Empire, utterly ruined: as alſo the groundleſs opinion of ſome Chriſtian Writers, that would have Edom here to be Antichriſt; though I doubt not, much leſs deny, but that by theſe victories atchieved by God, for his people, againſt their adverſaries, and oppreſſours, are typified Chriſts proceedings againſt the enemies of his Church, and ſo againſt Antichriſt, among the reſt, Rev.19.19 21.& 20.7-10. But by Edom, in the firſt place, is here meant Idumea, the country inhabited by the poſterity of Eſau. Of which ſee Chap. 11. 14. By Bozrah, what is meant, is by ſome made more queſtionable. For whereas there were two Bozrahs, at leaſt, one, in the land of Moab, Jer.48.24. another in Idumea, Gen.36.31,33. Jer 49.13,22. and was the royal city of that Realm, Amos 1. 12. Some would have that of Moab to be here meant; becauſe they find Edom, and Moab to be joyned ſometime together, as the joynt adverſaries of Gods people; as Ch.11.14. But I ſuppoſe rather that Bozrah to be here meant, that was held by the Edomites (from whoſe country this Conquerer is ſaid to come) and was their head city: as alſo, I find them both joyned together, Chap. 34. 6. a place parallel to this But it is demanded why this gallant Commander ſhould be ſaid to come from the overthrow of the Edomites, and from Bozrah; and not rather, from the conqueſt of the Chaldeans, and from Babylon; theſe being the principal oppreſſors of Gods people, whoſe State therefore for the deliverance of them, was to be deſtroyed, Chap.14.1. & 44.14. Whereunto the anſwer is, that the Edomites are put for the enemies of Gods people in general, in regard of the ancient, inteſtine, and inbred enmity, and malignity in their firſt founder, againſt their progenitor his brother, Gen.25.22,23.& 27. 41. continued, yea, perpetuated in his poſterity, Amos 1.11. and that notwithſtanding the neerneſs of kindred between them, Mal. 1.2. and the fair, and friendly carriage of the Iſraelites towards them, in their paſſage to Canaan, Deut.2.4 6. And the Laws made afterward in favour of them, above ſome other neighbouring nations, Deut.23.7. yet none had demeaned themſelves more ſpitefully and cruelly, then they at the ſurpriſal of Jeruſalem, and the ſacking of it by the Chaldeans, Pſal.137.7. Obad.10-14. in regard whereof Gods people, as they threaten Babylon, that ſhe ſhould be ſerved with the like ſauce, as ſhe had ſerved in to them, Pſal.137.8. ſo they foretel Edom, that ſhe was to drink drunk of the ſame cup, that they had drunk ſo deep of before her, Lam.4.21. Add hereunto, that Edom is the rather mentioned, in reſpect of her Neighbourhood; to aſſure Gods people of their better ſecurity, and more conſtant tranquility, their neighbouring adverſaries being ſubdued and quelled, as well as their enemies more remote. See Chap.60.11,18. & 62,8,9. For as concerning that, which a reverend and learned Interpreter hath, that neither Edom, nor Bozrah, are here mentioned with any reference at all unto thoſe places, but in alluſion only to the names they bare; the one ſignifying, red; (a two-fold reaſon whereof, ſee Gen.25.25,30.) whence alſo the Edomean, or the red-ſea was ſo termed: and ſuiteth well with one, that cometh from ſhedding of blood, ver.3,6. in garments alſo therewith beſmeared, ver.2. the other having a notion of vintage in it; and this Warriour is ſaid alſo to come from treading the wine-preſs, ver.3. I ſuppoſe it to be ſomewhat over-curious; albeit it to the notations of terms, alluſions be oft found. But not to inſiſt on that which might be excepted, that Boſrah (whence by change of a vowel, the Punick, Batſra, and by tranſpoſition of letters, the Greek and Latine Byrſa, though Ptolomy, coming neer to the Hebrew, retain the name Boſtra) cometh not from the verb batſar, as it ſignifies, to cut grapes, Lev.25.5. Deut. 24.21. but as it ſignifies, to fortifie, or to fence, Chap 22.10. & 51.23. the Prophecy here ſeems principally to have an eye unto the place, and to the diſpoſition of the people thereof poſſeſſed; Gen.26.9,33. Deut.2.5.

with died garments] Or, with garments tainted, or ſtained. Heb. levened, as ſome: becauſe the verb it cometh of, ſignifies, to leven, or to be levened rather, Exod.12.34,39. Hoſ.7.4. But the word, though not found ſo uſed in Scripture; yet in the Writings of the Rabbines, is uſed for to dip, or to be dipped, whether to waſh, or to dy. And from words of that notion are the terms that betoken dying, tainting, and ſtaining, both in Greek and Latine derived; hence ſome render it, wetted, or moiſtened: I ſhould rather, dipped, or ſtained; and this receiveth ſtrength from that parallel place, Rev.19.13. he was clad with a garment dipped in blood, ſee ver.3. the Hebrew is, word for word, dipped, or ſtained of cloaths, or garments, that is, having his garments ſtained, as if they had been dipped in ſomewhat that might ſtain them. So ch.36.22. rent of garments, for having their garments rent: one of the Rabbines rendreth it, red, or redded, that is, died, or ſtained red. But he ſeemeth therein rather to have regarded the ſubject matter of the relation, then the ſtrict notion of the term.

this that is glorious in his apparel:] Heb. this gorgeous one in his apparel, that is, this gorgeouſly apparelled one, in ſuch a rich coat of arms, as great commanders, and generals, uſed to go out to war in. See the term applied to apparel, Job 40. 10. Pſal.104.1. Prov.31.22.

walking in the greatneſs of his ſtrength?] Or, marching, or ſtalking; as intimating a going in ſtate; as a word in Hebrew, next door to it doth, Judg.5.4. Pſal.68.7. It ſeems properly to ſignifie, a travelling unto, in, or from ſome forreign Countrey, chap.51.14. Jer. 48.12. in which latter place alſo it is uſed, for to cauſe, or enforce others ſo to do. Whence the Rabbines here, ſome of them expound it, either of driving the enemies of Gods people out of their countries, or of bringing back the Iſraelites into their own countrey, from the lands wherein they remained as exiles, ch.51.14. but it is not here in that form: one of them rendreth it girt: and God indeed is ſaid to be girt with might, Pſal.65.6. But he ſheweth not how this word ſhould come ſo to ſignifie: the old Latine rendreth it, gradiens: ſome late Writers, incedens: both terms uſed of a warlike march, and ſtately gate: and may ſeem either well to ſute with the notion here intended; which thoſe that render it travelling, ſeem not to reach: For the meaning ſeems to be, that he paſſeth along, not as one fleeing, or retiring, after ſome foil received, or diſcomfited in fight; as chap.31.8,9. but as one marching leiſurely, with a ſtately gate, and with ſtrength entire, having made a full riddance of his foes, and fearing no enemy behinde.

in the greatneſs of his ſtrength.] Or, with his greatneſs of might; that is, with his great might, as Pſal.33.17. by his greatneſs of ſtrength, that is, by his great ſtrength: and his arm of might, for his mighty arm, chap.62.8 marching with his, that is, his own might (as, his ſoul, for his own ſoul, Pſal.22.29) not, as other commanders, with ſtrength ariſing from troops of horſe, and horſemen, and companies of foot; but with his own might alone, ver.5.

I that ſpeak in righteouſneſs;] Gods anſwer returned to the Prophets demand; deſcribing himſelf, by his fidelity in his promiſes, and his ability to perform them: both which were now manifeſted by the accompliſhment thereof; as by his preſent garb, and gate might appear.

ſpeak in righteouſneſs;] That is, as ſome, that ſpeak of righteouſneſs; as the particle ſeems to ſignifie, Deut.13.12. Jer.38.24. & 48.27. of Gods Juſtice to be executed upon his enemies, and the enemies of his people; which the old Latine ſwerveth not much from, rendring it, That ſpeak righteouſneſs, that is, paſs a juſt ſentence of condemnation upon them; as to ſpeak judgements, is uſed, Jer.1.16. & 39.5. But I ſuppoſe, with others, that in righteouſneſs, here, is righteouſly: as, in truth, truly, ſincerely, Pſal.145.18. ch 38.3. ſo, in righteouſneſs, righteouſly, faithfully, (for faithfulneſs is a branch of righteouſneſs, Heb.6 10. 1 Joh.1.9.) So, to ſwear in righteouſneſs, is, to ſwear righteouſly, uprightly, faithfully, with a purpoſe to perform, chap.48.1. Jer.4.2. I utter nothing in my promiſes, but what I intend to make good, and what ye may now ſee accompliſhed. See Chap.55.10,11.

mighty to ſave.] Heb. much, or great; as Pſal.25.11. ſome render it ſufficient: ſome, ample: it implyeth indeed Gods ample power and ability, of it ſelf al-ſufficient to ſave and deliver his, without aſſiſtance of any other. See ver.5.

V.2. Why art thou red in thine apparel?] Or, Why is thine apparel red: As before ver.1. A ſecond queſtion, by the Prophet, moved unto this great Warrier, thus appearing. As if he had ſaid, If thou beeſt of that might that thou ſpeakeſt of, how cometh thy gorgeous apparel to be all over ſtained thus, like one that were come out of ſome wine-preſs, from treading of the grapes?

and thy garments like him that treadeth in the wine fat?] Or, to make the ſentence full and exact to the text, and why are thy garments, as the garments of a treader in the wine-preſs? See the like defect, and ſupply, chap.5.29. Dan.4.33. Like one that by treading of the grapes in the wine-preſs, comes to be beſmeared all over with the blood, (as it is termed, Gen.49.11. that is, the juice) of them; the liquor cruſhed out of them. See chap. 16.10.

that treadeth] Heb. a treader. One that treadeth grapes: as before the Noun regent was wanting, ſo here the Noun under regiment. Of the like whereunto, ſee on chap.61.3.

in the wine-fat] Or, wine-preſs: as it is rendred, Lam.1.15. Joel 3.13. But I ſuppoſe our Tranſlators render it thus here, for variety ſake only; becauſe another, of the ſame notion, is uſed in the next verſe. The term here is, gath: in the uſe whereof, ſome would find an alluſion to the name of Gath, a Town of the Philiſtims, where Goliah was born, 1 Sam.17.23. So called, ſay they, becauſe winepreſſes were there firſt invented, and great uſe of them in thoſe parts. But to paſs by the improbability of the notation, and the ground given for it, there is little reaſon to imagine that the Prophet, in uſing the common and moſt uſual name of a wine-preſs, and ſpeaking of Idumea, ſhould have any glance at a city in Paleſtine.

V.3. I have troden the wine-preſs alone?] Gods anſwer to the Prophets ſecond demand, ver.2. and that conceived in a metaphorical form, correſpondent to the ſimilitude, made uſe of in the queſtion. As if he had ſaid, Thou ſayeſt that I am arrayed like one that had been employed about the treading of grapes in ſome winepreſs: and it is true indeed, that I come from ſuch a like imployment: I have been treading in a wine preſs, but another manner of wine-preſs, then that wherein grapes are wont to be troden. And here again ſome conceive Bozrah to be alluded unto: For, becauſe, ſay they, the country about Bozrah was, much of it planted with vines; it is as much in effect, as if he ſhould ſay, I come from another manner of vintage, and treading of grapes for the making of wine, then that, at, or about Bozrah, uſeth to be. But whence they have this concerning the land bordering upon Bozrah; unleſs it be from the notation of the name, of which ſee on ver.1. I know not. I finde not the land of Edom, for bearing of vines, or yielding of much wine, any where commended in Scripture. This we finde, that when through the wrath of God, people endure heavy preſſures, eſpecially unto the utter undoing, and deſtroying of them, they are in Scripture phraſe compared unto grapes, that are ſqueezed, and cruſhed under mens feet in the wine-preſs, and are ſaid to be troden in the wine-preſs of Gods wrath. See Lam.1.15. Rev. 14.19,20. The meaning is plain, I have diſcomfited the enemies of my people, and troden them down, as grapes in a wine-preſs. So of Chriſt, Rev.19.15. in which place, parallel to this, the reaſon ſeems rendred, why his garment was ſaid to be dipped in blood, ver.13. becauſe it is he that treadeth the wine-preſs of Gods wrath.

troden the wine-preſs] That is, the grapes in the wine-preſs as before, ver.2. So, to drink the cup; for, the wine in the cup, Jer.49.12. Ezek.23.32.

wine-preſs] A word divers from the former, ver.2. but in ſenſe the ſame. It cometh from a word that ſignifieth, to break, or diſſolve, Pſal.74.13. chap.24.19. and is ſo called, becauſe the grapes are bruiſed and broken in it. The word is no where found but here, and Hag.2.16. where this rather then the former might be rendred, a fat: for it is there diſtinguiſhed from the preſs; (which is by a third term there expreſſed) and ſeemeth to be put for the fat, or veſſel that receiveth the wine, running into it from the preſs. And by collation of theſe two places, it may juſtly be deemed to comprehend both.

alone; and of the people there was none with me] This is added, as to render a reaſon why his raiment was ſo beſmeared with blood; becauſe he trod the wine-preſs himſelf, whereas the owners of vineyards, and great wine-maſters are wont to do it by others not medling with that kinde of employment themſelves: ſo withall to intimate the great might and valour of this gallant Warrior, that performeth all himſelf, in the ſlaughter and conqueſt of his enemies; not needing, or requiring the aſſiſtance of any, for the effecting of ought, like worldly Commanders, that of themſelves can do nothing without the help of men and ammunition; but able to diſpatch, and tranſact all that he pleaſeth by his own might alone of himſelf. See ver.1. chap 44.24. Hence divers Interpreters are induced to expound this whole diſcourſe wholly of the work of mens redemption, by Chriſt wrought upon the croſs, by the effuſion of his blood: the rather, for that there he is ſaid to have ſpoiled principalities and powers, and to have led them openly in triumph, Col.2.15. In which action of his, moſt certain it is that he had no creature his coadjutor. But others, even of the beſt note and rank, do herein diſſent from them, conceiving the current of the context to run rather another way, as reſpecting rather, in a ſpiritual ſenſe, Chriſts deſigns, as a powerfull Prince and a valiant Warriour, in the behalf of his people, by executing vengeance upon his and their enemies, then the performances of his prieſthood. Against which if it be objected; that in the deſtroying and ſubduing of ſuch, God ordinarily makes uſe of men: and it cannot be faid therefore, that therein he is alone, and none with him. To this fome anfwer, that the meaning is not, that none affifted him; but that there were none able to maintain fight with him, Chap.27.5. And the latter branch of this paffage may well admit that fenfe. Of the people; that is, of the Edomites, from the flaughter of whom I come, there was none with me; that is, none that durft, or was able to ftand it out with me. For fo is the like phrafe ufed, Pfal.55.18. where when David faith, There were many with me; he meaneth not many fighting for me; but warring with me, that is, againft me. And the words following, both in this verfe and the next, will well agree hereunto; yea, the next branch indeed feems to exact it: for there is nothing to refer the pronoun demonftrative thereunto, in thefe words, I tread them, but the word, people, in this. And this may feem to be therefore the genuine fenfe of the words. But this anfwer, though it may clear the fenfe of that paffage, and fo may take off the edge of the argument, fo far forth as it is thence drawn; yet it meeteth not with the word alone, nor with that which cometh after, ver.5. Others, therefore anfwer, that God indeed ufeth men as inftruments, as well bad as good, for the effecting of fuch things; but fo, as that, to fpeak precifely, they afford no affiftance, they add no ftrength to him: Yea, they receive from him whatfoever ftrength they have, Chap.45.1,5. Being no more able to do ought without him, then a rod or ftaff to ftrike; an ax, or a faw, to hew or faw, without the hand of the workman, or of him that holdeth it, chap.10.5,15. Nor, to add that they many times mind nothing leſs, then the doing of Gods work, or the fulfilling of his Will, chap.10.6,7. And that God oft-times, fo carrieth things, when he maketh ufe of them, that by his power alone it appeareth, that thofe works were brought about, which he is pleafed to effect by them, Pfal.109.27. Chap.49.26. Thus it is faid, Deut. 32.12. The Lord alone did lead him. And yet, he led them by the right hand of Mofes; here after, ver.12. and, by the hand, that is, Miniſtery, of Mofes and Aaron, Pfal.77.20. So, albeit, the Lord made uſe of humane helps; of foreign Princes, as Cyrus, Darius, Artaxerxes, of godly governors, as Zerubbabel, and Nehemy, of men and arms, for the reſtitution of his people and protection of them, and the re-edifying, both of Temple and City; yet by his Prophet ſpeaking to them of thefe things; Not by might, nor ſtrength, ſaith he, to wit, of man, but by my Spirit, ſaith the Lord, Zach.4.6. And although God make uſe of men alſo, for the battering, and beating down of Satans ſtrong holds, erected in mens hearts, and the ſubduing of all unto the obedience of Chriſt; yet the power, whereby all this is done, is from God alone, 2 Cor.10.4,5. and the buſineſs is ſo carried, that the power may appear to be, not of man, but of God, 2 Cor.4.7.

For I will tread them in mine anger, and trample them in my fury] Or, but I tread them down in mine anger, and trampled on them in my rage. Heb and: but the copulative is ſometime uſed as a diſcretive, or adverſative; as Chap.60.10. & 61.6. and ſometime as a cauſal; as chap.53.2. & 64.4,5. Some would have the words read, as our verſion rendreth them, not in the time paſt; becauſe it is a propheſie of a thing to come. But that is no good argument; becauſe the Prophets uſe oft times, to ſpeak of matters future, as paſt, or preſent. And here there ſeemeth a neceſſity of it; becauſe the party here mentioned is deſcribed, not as going out to war, but as returning from ſight, and from the flaughter of his foes, ver.1. as did David from the flaughter of the Philiſtines, 1 Sam. 18.6.

For I will tread them] Or, for I tread them down. Which notion of the particle, if we retain, it may be added as a reaſon, by way of explication, rendred of his firſt words; I have troden the wine-preſs: For I tred them down, and trampled on them; as the treaders do on the grapes in a wine-preſs. Or, of the word, alone; I alone did it; for I my ſelf tred down all that I met with. Or, of the tranſlation next before: going, in the ſenſe fore-mentioned, none could maintain fight with me: for I trod them all down before me. Or, according to the other ſenſe, reading the particle, but; there was none with me, but I tred them down my ſelf: mine own arm did what was done ver.5.

tread] Or, tread down; that is, diſcomfit and deſtroy, Pſal.44.5. & 60.12. chap.25.10. and there are two things here implyed in the term; the facility of the diſpatch, I trod them down, as eaſily as one treadeth down cluſters of grapes in a wine-preſs, and the havock made of the enemy; they were utterly ſpoiled, as grapes are under the treaders feet, and their blood was ſpilt on the ground, as the joyce or liquor is wholly forced out of them, ver.6.

them] That is, the Moabites, ver 1. the people next before ſpoken of: and ſo it is expreſſed, ver.6. Otherwiſe we muſt underſtand his adverſaries, thoſe he fought with: and ſo then muſt the pronoun (as ſometime it is. See Chap.30.8.) be put for the noun.

trample them] Or, trample on: It is a word ſomewhat more emphatical, then the former. See chap. 41. 25. Dan. 8.7,10. 2 Kin.9.33.

and their blood ſhall be ſprinkled upon my garments, and I will ſtain all my raiment.] Or, rather, their blood was ſprinkled upon my garments, and I ſtained all my raiment: For it is a part of the anſwer to the foregoing demand, by what means his garments came to be ſo ſtained, ver.2. as they then appeared already to be, ver.1.

their blood] Not his own blood; for he ſhed none in fight himſelf, but theirs with whom he fought: and this paſſage therefore doth not belong to Chriſts paſſion. Heb, their ſtrength, or ſupport: as the word ſignifies, 1 Sam.15.29. Lam.3.18. and the blood is ſo termed, as the Jewiſh Criticks agree, becauſe the life, ſtrength, and ſupport, of the living creature therein conſiſteth, Gen.9.4. Lev.17.11,14. See further, ver.6.

ſprinkled upon my garments] As was Jezabels upon the wall, 2 Kin. 9.23.

ſtain my raiment] By this means my garments came to be ſtained. Heb. polluted; or, defiled; for blood polluteth, Chap.59.3. Lam.4.14.

V.4. For the day of vengeance is in mine heart;] Or, was in mine heart: For he ſpeaks ſtill, as of a thing paſt; as if he had ſaid, Do ye ask why I was ſo fierce and furious againſt them, and ſhed ſo much blood with them? the day was come wherein I had reſolved, having a long time forborn them, to take vengeance upon them, for all their wrongs and inſolencies committed againſt me and my people, ch.34.8. and 61.2.

in my heart] That is, as ſome, the day much deſired and longed for, by me; as Pſal.40.8. or rather, the day, or time, in my ſecret counſel fore-appointed, and deſigned thereunto, chap.65.6. Act.17.31.

and the year of my redeemed is come.] Or, was come; the time was come, wherein my people were to be refcued out of the hands of their oppreſſors, and righted upon them. See chap.34.8. Pſal. 103.13. an alluſion to the Jubilee, the year of remiſſion of Debts, and reſtitution of States; as chap.61.2.

V.5. And I looked, and there was none to help, and I wondred that there was none to upholds:] Or, And when I beheld, that there was no helper; and wondred, that there was no upholder; then did mine own arm bring ſalvation, &c. The like Syntax, See chap. 53.2. & 59.16. a place parallel to this, whereof ſee more there: Then God ſtrook in for the relief and deliverance of his people, when all humane helps failed, and none appeared that would once offer to put forth his hand toward the helping, or upholding of them. So 2 Chron.20.12,15-17. Chap.26.18,19. & 37.3,36.

therefore mine own arm brought ſalvation unto me; and my fury it upheld me.] Or, then. Heb. and; as chap.30.20. & 37.36. God by his own might made a glorious conqueſt, and did all that was to be done; that which he can do, when means are all miſſing, and men all fail, in doing their duty, Pſal.98.1. and there needed nothing but his own juſt indignation, and zeal for his people, either to put him upon the work, or to make him go thorow ſtitch with it, chap.37.36. See ch.59.16.

V.6. And I will tread down the people in mine anger.] Or, I trod down, as before, ver.3. See there. See alſo, Chap. 14.25.

and make them drunk in my fury;] Or, made them drink in, or with my fury; his fury, being here conſidered, either, as the cauſe impellent, putting him on it, to deal with them, as he did; as chap 14.6. Pſal.95.11. vet.3. or, as the efficient cauſe unto them, through the direful effects of it upon them, of their diſmal condition, Chap.51.21,23. I made them drunk; that is, by the evils inflicted on them; I did ſo aſtonith them, that, like perſons overcome with drink, they were not able to ſtand, nor knew which way to turn themſelves, See Pſal.60.3. & 75.8. Chap.19.14. Jer.25.16,27. or, to keep to the reſemblance in which we are, the meaning may well be; I drenched them in their own blood, I gave them their fill of blood, I made them drunk with it: as with wine newly trod, chap.49.26. for ſo the word there uſed doth properly ſignifie. See Rev.17.6. & 18.24. & 16.4,6.

and I will bring down their ſtrength to the earth.] Or, I did ſhed their blood upon the ground. Heb. I made their ſtrength, or ſupport, to deſcend (that is, to go down, or run down) to the earth: the word is the ſame that was before rendred blood, ver.3. and there ſeems no reaſon to render it otherwiſe here, then there. So of Edom, and Bozrah, chap.34.7. their land ſhall be ſoaked with blood. Howbeit, ſome would have the meaning here to be, I will bring down their ſtrength, that is, their men of ſtrength; the ſtrongeſt among them: ſtrength, for men of ſtrength, ſtrong men, chap.3.25. as Juſtice, for a man of Juſtice, a juſt one, ch.41.2. Wiſdom, for a man of wiſdom, a wiſe one, Mic.6.9. and Might, for men of Might, mighty ones, chap.3.25. But the courſe of the context pleadeth ſufficiently for the former.

V.7. I will mention the loving kindneſſes of the Lord, and the praiſes of the Lord, according to all that the Lord hath beſtowed on us, and the great goodneſs toward the houſe of Iſrael, which he hath beſtowed on them according to his mercies, and according to the multitude of his loving kindneſſes.] Here ſeems to begin a new Diſcourſe, if not a new Sermon, continued unto the end of the next Chapter. Wherein the Prophet having begun with an ample acknowledgement of Gods great goodneſs to his people, complaineth, in the next place, of their ungracious, and rebellious demeanure toward him; bewaileth Gods eſtrangement of himſelf from them, for the ſame, and the evils, that thereupon had befallen them; and earneſtly ſueth unto God, yet out of his free mercy, to mind them in their preſent miſery, and to be reconciled again unto them. In this verſe, is contained his thankful acknowledgement, of the abundant mercies and beneficences of God exhibited to them, which he ſo dwelleth upon, as if he could never find words enow, or pregnant enough, to expreſs them. See Daniel dwelling in like manner, in his prayer, on the confeſſion of their ſins, Dan.9.5,6. and the like various expreſſions of the amplitude of Gods grace and goodneſs in Chriſt, Eph.2.5,7.

I will mention] Some would have theſe to be the words of the people, I ſee not why they ſhould not be the words of the Prophet, as the Chaldee makes them, though attempered and accommodated unto the condition of the people in the time of their captivity; I will mention, as chap.48.1. or, I will call to mind, as Gen. 41.9. or I will celebrate, with praiſe and thankfgiving acknowledge, as chap.12.4. But here rather, the firſt or ſecond; the main drift and ſcope of the Prophet being hereby to exaggerate their rebellious demeanure towards him who had done ſo much for them, verſ. 10. and expected other manner of behaviour from them, verſ.7. See Jer.2.2.

the loving kindneſſes of the Lord] His manifold, great, ample, abundant, loving kindneſs: and ſo afterward again, the multitude, or magnitude of his loving kindneſſes. So Pſalm. 89.1. Lam. 3.32. or his mercies brought to remembrance, partly, yea principally, to aggravate the unworthy carriages of Gods people towards him, who had dealt ſo graciouſly and bountifully with them; as Deut.32.7. 14. and partly alſo it may be, to ſtir up in the hearts of them amiſt the calamities of thoſe times, ſome hopeful expectation of finding the like favour with God againſt, as Pſal.77.5-11.

and the praiſes] A defect of the copulative, as chap. 30. 33. unleſs we will ſupply from the former branch (as Gen. 1. 16.) I will mention, or celebrate his praiſes.

beſtowed] The word carrieth uſually with it a notion of retribution, Pſal. 103.10. 1 Sam. 24. 18. but ſometime again of a free contribution, as Pſal.116.7. & 119.17. and ſo here.

the houſe of Iſrael] See chap.5.7. & 14.2.

mercies] Or, tender mercies; as the word is rendred, Pſal. 25. 6. and that in Greek anſwering it, Luk.1.78. See chap. 54.7. abundance of mercy, and tender mercy; mercy not merit, Deut. 7.7,8. & 9.4,5. So Pſal.6.4. & 25.6,7. Dan.9.9,18.

Verſ. 8. For he ſaid, Surely they are my people; children that will not ly.] Heb. And (as chap.53.2.) he ſaid: he thought with himſelf; he made account, he preſumed, (as 2 King.5.11) what time he brought them out of Egypt, & took them to be his people, that they would carry themſelves loyally, and dutifully unto him. A ſpeech taken from the affection and diſpoſition of men, who expect reſpect, ve carriage from them, whom they have ſhewed kindneſs unto; or of a Father, preſuming and hoping the beſt of a child, whom he hath had ſpecial care of, and been at much coſt with: implying how ſuch favours ſhould have wrought upon them, and how they ſhould have ſtood affected toward him, who had dealt ſo kindly and bountifully with them. Pſal.81.8-10. See the like affection aſcribed in like manner to God, Zeph.3.7.

they are] He hath not here put in a different character; for the pronoun demonſtrative, ſupplies the place of the verb ſubſtantive, as Ezek. 2.7.

my people] Whom I have taken in a more peculiar manner to my ſelf, Exod.19.5,6. Deut.7.6. & 26.17,18.

that will not ly] will not deal diſloyally, as chap.59.13. but fee that will not ly will not deal diſloyally, as chap.30.9. a defect of the relative, as chap.63.1.

ſo he was their Saviour.] Heb. and (as chap.59.19.) he was unto them for a Sav our. Upon theſe hopes, this expectation, theſe grounds, and theſe conditions, he undertook the protection of them, Exod.19.5,6. Pſa.81.8,9. the like ſyntax, ſee 1 Chron.19.12.

V.9. In all their affliction he was afflicted,] There is a double reading here in the Hebrew, ſome copies, it ſeems, anciently, having the word lo written with an aleph, and then it is an adverb negative, and ſignifies not, ſome with a vau, and then being a prepoſition, with a pronoun affixt, it ſignifies to him: the like diverſity about the ſame word, alſo, Exod.21.8. Job 13.15. Pſal.100. 3. chap 9.3. & 49.5. Lev.11.21. & 23.30. 1 Sam. 11.3. 2 King. 8. 10. 1 Chron.11.20. Eſth.4.2. Hence, the words come to be diverſly rendred. Some, with whom our verſion concurreth, In all their affliction he was afflicted. Heb. affliction was to him, as affliction is to me, for I am afflicted, Pſal.18.6. Lam. 1.20. he took to heart their afflictions; he was himſelf grieved for them, and with them, Judg. 10.18. a form of ſpeech taken from the manner of men, as the Jewiſh Maſters well here obſerve. See Pſal.106.44,45. Zach. 2.8. Acts 9.5. Others, taking it in the negative, yet reading the words by way of interrogation, (as ſome alſo do that Job 13.15. & Pſal.105. 26. to reconcile the elder verſion with the later) was not affliction to him? or was he not afflicted? for ſenſe and ſubſtance, come home to the former. But others, and ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors alſo, read them in the negative, by way of enunciation, he did not afflict them; or, affliction was not to them; they were not afflicted, that is, as ſome, he afflicted them not, (having no will or deſire ſo to do, Lam.3.33.) but they brought affliction upon themſelves, chap 3. 9. Job 36.23. Jer.2.17. or, though they vexed him, yet he ſpared them, and did not afflict them, as they deſerved that he ſhould. Pſal. 78.38. & 103.10. or they were not long in any affliction; (and a little is as nothing) becauſe he ſpared, by delivered them out of it, Pſa. 106.44. Or, as ſome, if not including both, yet admitting the one, and ſupplying the other; there was no affliction to him: he was not afflicted, he was not troubled with their troubles, he ſeemed not ſome time not to regard them, that they might have a more effectual work upon them, cha.8.17 & 30.18.& 45.15. & 57.17. Hoſ.5. 15. or, becauſe this ſeems to croſs the Prophets drift in this place: Others, there was no ſhrait to him, (as Pſal.31.9. & 59.16.& 69.17. ſtraitned in or to me, that is, I am ſtraitned, I am in ſtraits, in diſtreſs) or, he was not ſtrait-laced to me, as chap. 49. 20. the place is too ſtrait to me, or for me: he was not ſtrait-laced toward them, as we uſe to ſay; or he was not ſtrait-handed, chap. 59.1. he was not backward to help them, as they ſpeak, Joſh. 10.6. ſtacken not thine hand from helping us: he was forward to help them; or he was not weary of helping; it was no trouble at all to him to help them. Or laſtly, as a learned late Writer, He was not an enemy, or adverſary to them; (as the word commonly ſignifieth, Lam.1.5,7,10. he carried himſelf toward them, not as a foe, but as a friend. And this, as alſo the next before, may either of them carry ſome good probability with them. Howbeit, the firſt I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe, and the words to have ſpecial reference to Gods taking to heart, their afflictions in Egypt, Exod. 3.7-9.

and the Angel of his preſence ſaved them:] By the Angel of his face, (as the Hebrew ſounds) or his preſence: the Jewiſh Doctors face, underſtand, ſome of them, Micael; the tutelary Angel (as they account him) of their nation, Dan.10.13,21. called the Angel of his face, or preſence, becauſe he ſtands continually attending in Gods preſence. See Mat. 18. 10. Others, Meſſias, whom they fain to be Gods herbinger, or meſſenger, from a Latine word that importeth the former: And ſome of them ſay, that this Angel is no other then Enoch, ſince his tranſlation, ſo employed. Others again, that this is but the title of his office; but his proper name is Micael, and ſo bring it home to the firſt: nor want there of ours, who out of ſome of their Writings, wherein they talk much in a wild manner, both of the title (which is indeed no more then a meer deſcription of the Latine metator, an herbinger) and of the party that beareth it, would prove that this Metrator, can be no other then the Meſſias; as many of our Divines alſo conceive Micael to be, mentioned Dan.12.1. Jude 9. Rev.12.7. Certain it is, that this Angel here ſpoken of, is that Angel of whom God ſpake unto Moſes, Exod.23.21-23. termed both Jehovah, Exod. 13.21. & 14 19, 24. and his face, or preſence, Exod.33.14,15. and an Angel, Exod. 33. 2. who that he was no other, then the Meſſias, Jeſus Chriſt, the conductor of them in the wilderneſs, holy Steven enformeth us, Act. 7. 38. the eternal Son of G O D, the reſplendency of his Fathers Majeſty, and exact image of his perſon, Heb.1.3. in whom therefore his name is ſaid to be, Exod.23.22. he that appeared unto Moſes in the buſh, Exod.3.2. ſtyled Jehovah there, verſ.4. and by Jacob, the Angel, that delivered (or refcued) him out of all evil, Gen.48. 24. and by Malachy laſtly, Jehovah, the Angel of the covenant, Mal. 3. 1. termed an Angel, or Meſſenger, in regard of his Mediatorſhip, Heb.8.6. of Gods face; either becauſe he doth exactly reſemble God his Father, John 14. 9, 10. Col.1.15. or, becauſe he appeareth before the face, or in the preſence of God, for us, Heb.9.24. See Rom. 8. 34. Rev.8.3. this Angel ſecured, and ſafeguarded them all the way thorow the wilderneſs, from Egypt to Canaan, Deut.8.2, 4. & 32. 10,12.

in his love, and in his pity, he redeemed them.] He refcued them out of the Egyptian bondage, out of meer affection to them, and compaſſion toward them. Deut 7.7,8.

and he bare them, and carried them, all the dayes of old.] Or, he took them up, (as chap.40.15.) and carried them as the dayes of old. Heb. dayes of perpetuity, or of antiquity; dayes of yore, as in our old Engliſh they had wont to ſpeak: for in the former notion is the word taken, when ſpeech is of times future: in the later, when of times paſt, as here. He not led them onely, but lifted them; took them up in his arms, as Parents, or Nurſes, are wont to do with young children, and weakly ones, (alluded to Pſal.91.12.) chap 46.3. and carried them, as the Eagle doth her young ones, not fully fledged, or unable yet to fly, on her wings, Exod.19.4. Deut. 32.11. all the time of that their infancy, and conſtantly alſo afterward from time to time, as occaſion and their neceſſities required it, chap.46.4.

V.10. But they rebelled] They anſwered not Gods expectation, verſ. 8. they proved diſloyal children, chap.30.9. and a rebellious race, chap.48.4,8. See Exod. 16.25. Numb.14.4,11. & 16.3, 11,42. Deut.9.7,24. & 31.17. Pſal 78.56. & 95.9. & 106. 7. Ezek.20.8,13.

and vexed his holy Spirit] Heb. his Spirit of holineſs, and ſo verſ. 11. as, his hill of holineſs, for his holy hill, chap. 56. 7. his name of holineſs, for, his holy name, Ezek.36.21. his day of holineſs, for his holy day, chap.58.13. They ſo carried themſelves towards him, as might juſtly be cauſe of vexation, and grief of heart to him; a form of ſpeech borrowed, as the former, verſ. 8, 9. from the nature of man: though God be not ſubject to ſuch infirmity and paſſion, as men are. See the like forms in this kind, Gen. 6. 6. chap. 7. 13. & 43. 24. Pſal. 78. 40. Ezek. 6. 9 Amos 2. 14. Acts 7. 51. Eph. 4 30.

his Spirit.] Which he had ſet among them, and put upon them, to guide, and govern them, verſe 11. and whereby he had ſtriven, and ſtrugled with them, to reclaim and reduce them, Gen. 6. 3. Num. 14. 11. Pſal. 95. 10.

therefore he was turned to be their enemy,] Heb. and: as chap. 47. 8. he was enforced to carry himſelf, as an enemy towards them, Jer. 30. 14. Lam. 2. 4, 5. So Job 13. 24. & 30. 21. & 33. 10.

And he fought againſt them] There is a defect of the copulative; as v. 7. but it is ſupplyed with an expreſſion of the pronoun, not unuſuall, and having therefore an emphaſis in it; as if he had ſaid, he that before fought for them, did then fight againſt them, chap. 29 23. he not only forbare to aſſiſt them againſt their enemies; but fought for theſe againſt his people: he railed up adverſaries againſt them, and cauſed them to fall before them, Lev. 26. 25. Deut. 28. 25. & 32. 30, chap. 30. 17. Pſal. 44 9, 10. the hand of God was againſt them for evil, when ſoever they went out, Judg. 2. 14, 15. So he threatned, that if they walked croſſly, or thwartly with him; he would alſo deal in the like manner with them, Lev. 26. 23, 24, Pſal. 18. 26.

V. 11. Then he remembred the dayes of old,] Then; as chap. 38. 4. or, Yet: as chap. 9. 1. & 60. 1). Heb. And the dayes of old. Heb. of antiquity; as Pſal. 44. 1. See verſ. 9. This is ſpoken, as ſome conceive, of God himſelf, calling to mind what he had formerly done for this people, and as loath now to loſe all the fruit of his former favours, notwithſtanding their preſent untoward carriages, thereby induced to work new deliverances for them: (the argument, that Gods ſervants preſs him oft with, in their prayers, Exo. 32. 11, 12. Deut. 9. 26, 18, 19. Num. 14. 13-19. Joſh. 7. 7, 9.) and whether we underſtand it of a diſcourſive remembrance; (after the manner of men, given unto God) as Exod. 32. 13. Pſalm 78. 39. or, an active remembrance, in manifeſting his mindfulneſs of them, by what he did for them: as Gen. 8. 1. & 30. 22. it ſhould have reference to thoſe former deliverances, that God upon this conſideration, had in times paſt afforded this people, notwithſtanding their manifold, frequent, great, and grievous delinquencies, after he had brought them out of their troubles and diſtreſſes: and thus may ſeem probably to be the genuine ſenſe of the place. Yet others ſuppoſe it to be ſpoken of Gods people, (and ſo the moſt, as well Jewes, as ours) amidſt their troubles, better bethinking themſelves, and as calling to mind, what God had formerly done for their anceſtors. Pſal. 22. 4, 5. & 78. 34, 35. ſo complaining that at preſent he did not the like for them, Judg. 6. 13. See Pſal. 44. 1-14. And this may ſeem not altogether improbable: one main difficulty is, that the verb is here ſingular; whereas of the people he ſpake before in the plural, verſ. 10. and ſo after ward again. Whereunto might be anſwered, that the word people, being, though of a collective notion, yet of a ſingular form, it is joyned oft, with ſingular both verbs and nouns. See chap. 5. 26, 27. where the very like ſyntax is; and as the words are there rendred, they ſhall come; ſo, this ſenſe admitted, they might here be rendred, then they remembred.

Moſes, And his people] About theſe words, there is no ſmall diſagreement among Interpreters. Some of the Jewiſh Maſters conceive Moſes not to be at all here mentioned, but the word moſhe, here to be a participle of that verb, from which Moſes had his name, Exod. 2. 10. and they read the words, He remembred the dayes of old, him that drew out his people; to wit, out of the Egyptian thraldome; or, that brought him up, out of the red-ſea; as in the next branch: ſo David ſaith of himſelf, He drew me out of many, or, mighty waters 1 Sam. 22. 17. Pſal. 18. 16. where the ſame word is uſed; and ſave in the ſtory of Moſes, not elſewhere. Nor want there of ours, that go this way; but as if it were a noun, rendring the words, the deliverer, or bringing out, of his people. But the moſt, both of theirs, and ours, take Moſes to be meant here: and of theirs, ſome ſuppoſe a defect of the prepoſition, before the word people; the like whereunto they find, 1 King. 4. 15. theſe read the text thus, him that ſent Moſes to his people: But I find one onely of ours, that doth therein follow them. Others of them, will have rather a defect of the copulative, ſuch as they find, Habb. 3. 11. and with theſe moſt of ours concur, yet not agreeing about either the ſyntax, or the ſenſe of this clauſe: for ſome refer theſe words both to dayes, the dayes of old, of Moſes, and of his people, Others, to remembred; he remembred Moſes and his people, that is, ſay ſome, what by the Miniſtery of Moſes, he had done for his people, Exod. 5. 10. & 32. 1, 7. Pſalm 77. 20. Others, the covenant, that by the mediation of Moſes, he made with his people, Exod. 19. 3-9. & 24. 3-8. Gal. 3. 19. Or Moſes his vehement and prevalent interceſſion on ſundry times, in the behalf of his people, Exod. 32. 11, 12. Num. 14. 19, 20. & 16. 22. & 21. 7. Pſal. 106. 23. Now which of theſe later wayes we underſtand the words, is not greatly material; eſpecially, if we conſider them, as things in times paſt remembred: whether by God, or by his people: though the text ſeems to run more ſmoothly, if we refer them to his remembrance, rather then to theirs. But if we ſhall tranſmit the matter unto future times, and tranſfer the words to the people, that were to be in the Babylonian captivity, as the Rabbines moſt of them doethen it muſt be conceived in the time to come, and read, They ſhall remember the dayes of old: and the former words ſhould rather run in this tenour: But they have rebelled and vexed his holy Spirit; and he is therefore become an enemy unto them, he himſelf hath fought againſt them: Yet they will remember the dayes of old in Moſes his time, and his people that then were; or, Moſes, and his people: where his people, unleſs we refer it to Moſes, as if they ſhould call them Moſes his people, as God himſelf alſo, but in anger, doth, when he ſaith to him, Thy people, whom thou broughteſt out of Egypt, Exod. 32. 7. the form will not ſo well ſuit with the perſon of the people. But this rub would be removed, and all defects ſalved, without any ſupply, if, with a grave and learned Writer, we might thus read the words: And his people will call to mind the dayes of Moſes his age. But this reading, the points, or ſtops, in the original, will not admit: for they make it May at age, but none at Moſes; and in the text, his people, cometh after Moſes. ſaying, Where is he that brought them up out of the ſea] The word ſaying; is not in the text, but is inſerted by Interpreters; as Pſalm 105. 15. chap. 26. 19. & 45. 14. & 56. 12. and elſwhere, ſo here; underſtanding it as before; ſome, of God; ſome, of the people: but ſome other in ſtead thereof, inſert, But now: as the like expreſſion is, in a parallel place, Judg. 6. 13. deeming the words enſuing, to be the Prophets own, complaining, if not in the perſon, yet in the behalf of the people; as if God did not mind them, as formerly he had done, notwithſtanding their manifold ſins and exceſſes, chap. 49. 14. The Chaldee thruſts in, Leſt the Gentiles ſhould ſay; and one of the Rabbines, The Gentiles now will ſay: But theſe ſeem over-bold inſertions.

Where is he ?] Such kind of ſpeeches, concerning God, are uſed ſometime in deriſion, as intimating, that God was not able to relieve, or deliver his, in their diſtreſſes, as by the enemies of Gods people and ſervants, Deut. 32. 37. Pſal. 42. 3. & 115. 2. and ſo the Chaldee here accounteth it: ſometime in way of expoſtulation and complaint, as implying, that God did not manifeſt his power and providence, in the behalf of his people, as in times paſt he had done: ſo Judg. 6. 13. and ſo rather here. There is a third manner of uſage of ſuch like forms, to wit, in way of inquiſition, as enquiring after God, that had done ſuch things for his people, out of a deſire to know him, and ſo ſerve him: the neglect of which enquiry is taxed, both in Prieſts, and People, Jer. 2. 6, 8. and it is not amiſs, by ſome, obſerved, that it ſeems here to be intimated, that they who had not regarded to ask after God, in this kind formerly, in the time of their proſperity, ſhould be enforced to complain of the want of him, and his abſence from them afterward, in the time of their adverſity. So 1 Sam. 2. 17. & 7. 2. Jer. 22. 21. & 2. 31, 32, 37. Where is he? ſaith he, or ſay they, either the people, or the Prophet, as in their perſon; implying, that he was not now to be found; as before he had threatned, Hoſ. 5. 6. becauſe they had neglected to ſeek him, when he might have been found, Pſalm 32. 6. cap. 55. 6. But ſome of thoſe of chief note, that conceive theſe to be Gods words, render them ſomewhat otherwiſe, then the reading commonly received, thus; Where ſhould he be? as if God ſhould thus reaſon with himſelf, Where would the glory of God appear, and be manifeſted, if he ſhould ſuffer his people to periſh? Or where would the fruit of all be that he had done for his people, if dealing with them according to their deſerts, he ſhould utterly deſtroy them? Of this ſomewhat before. But it ſeemeth over-harſh here: Nor can I be induced to concur with them, in attributing this part at leaſt of the preſent diſcourſe unto God; becauſe it is apparent, verſ. 14. to be ſpoken of him, and unto him in part alſo, by ſome other, at which place they are enforced, on being in the people ſpeaking, without any colour of reaſon, cutting that off from the reſt.

that brought them up out of the ſea,] Heb made them to aſcend from the ſea: both carried them faſe thorow the ſea, the red ſea, & brought them ſafe out of it, from the very bottom of it, Exo. 14. 29, 30. & 15. 5, 8. verſ. 13, 14. one of the greateſt miracles that God ever wrought for his people, which God himſelf therefore mentioneth, as one of his Maſter-pieces, chap. 50. 2. and it is by them therefore likewiſe moſt frequently commemorated, Nehem. 9. 11. Pſalm. 68. 22. & 77. 19. & 78. 13. & 106. 9. & 114. 3, 5. & 136. 13, 14. eſpecially in the times of their diſtreſſes and extremities; as here, ſo Pſal. 74. 13, 14. chap. 51. 9, 10. verſ. 12, 13.

with the ſhepherd of his flock?] There ſeemeth to have been here alſo a double reading in the ancient copies, ſome having the word with a ſoundleſs jod, and ſome with an he in the end: Whence ſome of the Jewiſh criticks read it, nor ſhepherd, but ſhepherds; which our margent alſo gives us. Thoſe that read it in the ſingular number with an he, expound it of Moſes, of whom, v. 11. and who was the Leader and Governor of Gods people; yea, as a King among them, Deut. 33. 4, 5. and unto ſuch is the name of ſhepherd given, chap. 44. 28. Ezek. 34. 23, 24. Thoſe that read it in the plural, with jod, expound it of Moſes and Aaron both, according to that in the Pſalm 77. 20. Thou leadeſt thy people like a flock by the hand of Moſes and Aaron: whether of the two we take to, the flock is ſaid to be neither the ones, nor both's, but Gods, the ſhepherd of Iſrael, Pſal. 80. 1. who led it by them, verſe 11. Howbeit, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, following the Chaldee, render the words, words, as a ſhepherd his flock; that is, ſupplying the verb from the foregoing participle; as a ſhepherd bringeth forth, or leadeth out his flock: for ſo is that word oftentimes taken at large; as Lev. 15. 14. Joſh. 24. 17. Ezek 42. 1. Jer. 50. 9. and the manner of ſhepherds, in thoſe parts, is to lead out their flocks, Joh. 10. 3, 4. to the paſture: with, though it ſhould be here a note of ſimilitude, which I ſuppoſe is hardly found; and the former expoſition being familiar and readily, there is little reaſon to refuſe it.

where is he, that put his holy Spirit within him ?] Heb. his Spirit. where is he, that put his holy Spirit within him ?] Heb. his Spirit of holineſs (as ver. 10.) in the midſt of him; that is, within him, or in him; as Zach. 12. 1. with 1 Cor. 2. 11. ſo the moſt, both of the Jewiſh, and ours. But the Jewiſh reſtrain it, to the Spirit of Prophecie. Ours extend it, to that ſpiritual endowment, wherewith Moſes was, in a very large meaſure, furniſhed, and thereby enabled, both for the inſtructing, and government alſo of Gods people. See Num. 11. 17. Deut. 18. 15. but other, of either ranks, render it, in the midſt of him, or of them, (becauſe the word people, to which they ſuppoſe it referred, is a collective) that is, among them; as the Canaanites dwelt among ſt the Ephraimites, Joſh. 16. 10. and ſo Neh. 9 20. thou gaveſt them (to be ſupplied from the words foregoing) thy good Spirit to inſtruct them; for it was given to them, and placed among them; becauſe beſtowed upon thoſe with them, and over them, in their behalf, and for their behoof, 1 Cor. 12. 23, 23. See chap. 59. 21. and this is that Spirit, which they vexed by rebellious courſes, 1 Theſ. 4. 8. ver. 10.

V. 12. That led them by the right hand of Moſes] See Pſal. 77. 20. on ver. 11. Yet it is ſaid. The Lord alone did lead him, Deut. 32. 12. of which place, ſee on the word, alone, ver. 3. a defect of the pronoun, as Neh. 9. 20. chap. 57. 13. but ſupplied here from ver. 13. where it is expreſſed.

by the right hand of Moſes] Heb. at the right hand of Moſes. So the old Latine rendreth it; and moſt Interpreters, both Jewiſh and Chriſtian: In which form of ſpeech, becauſe the right-hand is uſed commonly, in a ſucceſſfull and wel-boding notion, and the left, in the contrary, Mat. 25. 30, 34, 41. Some would have noted the ſure and faſe paſſage, and journeying of the people under Moſes his conduct: But that ſeems over-curious; and the term of right-hand ſeems to have, after the phraſe moſt frequent in Scripture, not ſo much a notion of proſperous ſucceſs, (which among heathen people it uſually hath, Ezek 21. 21, 22.) as of power and ability, the right-hand being generally accounted the ſtronger, and the more active then the left. So Pſal. 21. 9. & 89. 26, 43. Others therefore read it, that lead them, being at Moſes his right hand, to help and aſſiſt him. So the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 16. 8. he is at my right-hand, that I be not moved; and, the Lord at thy right-hand ſhall ſtrike thorow Kings, Pſal. 110. 5. and the Jewiſh Doctors, ſome of them, ſuppoſe, that there is an eye had in this term, to the ſtaff, that Moſes held in his right hand, over the red-ſea, as the dividing of it, Exod. 14. 16, 21. The Greek readeth it, that led Moſes by the right hand; and ſo is God ſaid, to hold by the right hand thoſe, whom he ſtrengtheneth and ſupporteth, Pſal. 63. 8. & 73. 23. ch. 45. 1. but neither is any inſtance produced of the uſe of the particle here prefixed in that notion: and the form of the ſubſtantive ſhews, that Moſes is ſubjoyned to it, as governed by it.

with his glorious arm] Heb. his arm of bravery, (as the word is rendred, chap. 3. 18.) or gallantry, (See ch. 63. 3.) for, his brave, or gallant arm; as, his arm of might, for, his mighty arm, ch. 62. 8. and a name of gallantry, for, a gallant name, or fame, ver. 14. The particle with, is not in the text: but the want of it is very uſual, as Pſal. 17. 13, 14. & 44. 3. chap. 51. 19. Now by his arm, Some of the Jewiſh Doctors underſtand the Angel that conducted them, Exod. 14. 19. moſt of ours, Gods mighty power aſſiſting Moſes, and working by him, whatſoever was done of him, for the ſafety and protection of the people committed unto him; as the word is, in this argument eſpecially, moſt frequently taken, Exod. 6. 6. & 15. 16. Deut. 4. 34. & 5. 15. & 7. 19 & 9. 29. & 11. 2. & 26. 8. Pſal. 77. 16. & 89. 11. & 136. 12. And this ſome ſuppoſe the rather added, in regard that the former word ſeemed to have ſome glance at the ſtaff in Moſes his hand, to ſhew that the dividing of the red-ſea, upon holding up of the ſtaff over it, was not effected by any vertue, either in his hand, or in the ſtaff it held; but by the powerful act of God alone. See Exod. 15. 21. Howbeit, ſome, for that according to this reading, there are defects in the text; the one, of the pronoun before-mentioned; the other, of the prepoſition here interpoſed, ſuppoſe that the text, as it is, without any ſuch ſupplies interjected, may be thus read and rendred; That made his glorious, or gallant arm, to go, or walk at Moſes his right hand; that is who by his mighty power went along with Moſes, and was ever at hand to be aſſiſtant unto him, according to his promiſe, Exod. 3. 12. & 33. 14. Nor is this reading altogether improbable: the moſt that I ſuppoſe can be objected againſt it, is, that the word of making to walk, or go, may ſeem not to ſuit ſo well with the word arm; and that it is in the next verſe applied to the people.

dividing the water before them] Or, that divided (for it runneth in the ſame ſtrain with the former, that led) the water (to wit, of the red ſea before-mentioned, v. 11.) before them: before his people, the Iſraelites, to make a paſſage thorow it for them, Exod. 14. 21, 22. Joſh. 3. 16. ch. 43. 6. So Neh. 9. 11. chap. 43. 12. Some would draw away the former clauſe to this branch, reading the words, That by his glorious arm divided the Sea before them: but this reading croſſeth the ſtops in the original; which without cauſe to diſturb, or ſolicite, is not meet.

to make himſelf an everlaſting name.] To procure to himſelf, by a work never before the like heard, an everlaſting fame; both in regard of his almighty power therein manifeſted, and of his providence therein appearing over his people: name, for, fame, or renowne; as Gen. 6. 4. & 11. 4. Jer. 32. 20. and, a name of eternity, or perpetuity, for, an everlaſting name: as Chap. 56. 6. Yet the words are by ſome deemed to import, not ſo much the end, as the event; not ſo much what God aimed at, in the doing of it, as what he got by the doing of it, accrued and redounded unto him, as Chap. 59. 19. Exod. 14. 17. of ſuch forms, ſee on Chap. 3 8.

V. 13. That led them thorow the deep, as an horſe in the wilderneſs, that they ſhould not ſtumble.] A further amplification of this ſtrange work. The like whereunto, yea, the very ſame in effect, ſee Pſal. 106 9.

led them] Heb. made them to go: the word uſed before, ver. 12. as alſo in the Pſalm.

thorow the deep] Heb. depths, or deeps; and ſo alſo is it, Pſal. 68. 22. & 106. 9. implying, that it was not in ſome ſhallow or ſhoaly place, that the people paſſed that Sea, but where it was with the deepeſt. See Exod. 15. 5, 8.

as an horſe] This is not in the Pſalm, but is inſerted here, by the Prophet, for the further amplification of this act of God; in the conduct of them, enlarged alſo further, ver. 14. God is faid to make Judah his goodly horſe for battel, Zach. 10. 3. and men are very chary of thoſe choice ones, that they keep for ſuch purpoſe.

in the wilderneſs] This in the Pſalm ſeems to be referred unto the people, becauſe of an horſe is no mention there made; and may imply, that they went as ſafe and as eaſily thorow the ſea, as they had travelled, either before, or afterward, in the Wilderneſſe. But here it is referred unto the horſe: he led them thorow the deepeſt of that ſea, as ſafely and inoffenſively, as a man could lead an horſe, or as an horſe goeth in the wilderneſs; that is, (ſaith one of the Rabbines, whom ſome other alſo herein concur with) on dry land: the wilderneſs, for dry land; becauſe Waſts, in thoſe parts, are commonly ſuch, chap. 42. 18. Jer. 7. 6. But I conceive rather that the word rendred wilderneſs, doth here ſi, nifie a plain; as alſo another of the Jewiſh Doctors here ſuggeſteth: nor is it otherwiſe to be taken, Jer. 9. 10. Lam. 4. 19. & 5. 9. and that the text would there at leaſt, if not in the Pſalm alſo be rendred, as an horſe goeth in the plain; that is, as he goeth on plain ground, where there is neither clod, nor ſtone, nor ruck, nor ridge, without ſtumbling. See ver. 14.

that they ſhould not ſtumble] Or, ſo that they ſtumbled not, Jer. 31. 9. Heb. they ſhall not ſtumble, or, did not ſtumble. So Pſal. 78. 53. he led them ſafely, or, ſecurely; and they feared not; that is, ſo that they feared not: they were without fear; but here the particle is omitted, as oft, in the like ſyntax, chap. 40. 24. & 41. 7. & 43. 17. & 58. 6. See the promiſe, Pſal 90. 12.

V. 14. As a beaſt goeth down into the valley,] In the former part of this verſe, moſt Interpreters conceive to be a full, and formal ſimilitude, conſiſting of two parts, a propoſition, and a reddition, more largely laying forth, what was more conciſely delivered, v. 13. in thoſe words, as an horſe: the former part whereof they ſuppoſe to be contained in theſe words; which ſome therefore thus read, As a beaſt, that goeth down into the vale is led; (ſupplying the relative, as ver. 8. the verb from the words next enſuing: as Chap. 18. 7. & 30. 17.) that is, gently, and quietly, as an horſe is wont to be led, or beaſt driven, down an hill, not head-long, as thoſe ſwine, whom the Devils drove, Mat. 8. 32. ſo rather, if we retain this verſion then, as ſome would have it eaſily; for this reaſon, becauſe it is eaſier going down, then it is going up, an hill: and ſome would have an eye herein to be had, to the condition of the Jews own country, which being mountainous, much of it, Pſal. 125. 2. Luk. 1. 39. their manner was to drive their cattel down to graze in the vale. Others would have it to allude to the ſure deſcent into the channel of the red-ſea, from the land, or the ſhore; that muſt of neceſſity, by fair above it; as before to their aſcent, or, coming up again, from the ſame, on the other ſide, in the word, made to aſcend, ver. 11. But I ſuppoſe the word rendred, goeth down, doth here ſignifie no more then as it alſo doth oft elſewhere, to go on, or to along: hereof, ſee inſtances enow. ch. 38. 8. and ſo the Chaldee, whom ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters follow, ſeemeth here to take it: the words therefore, as I conceive, may be thus rendred: As a beaſt goeth along in the vale; or, As a beaſt that goeth along in the vale; that is, freely, eaſily, without any let, or impediment, as a beaſt, whether horſe, or other, (for the former reſemblance is here enlarged) travelleth in the vale, where the way is uſually clear before it: and thus taking them, that which a learned Writer ſuggeſteth, to me ſeemeth very probable, who annexing this, unto that in the verſe before-going, thus readeth them together; That led them thorow the deeps, as an horſe in the plain, without ſtumbling; as a beaſt going down, or, going along in the vale: ſo conſidered, they make up the former illuſtration; do not begin any new collation, to be abruptly broken off again, in the very next ſentence. The meaning is, that God did not only divide the sea, to make way for them thorow it; (which albeit he had done, and done no more, they might have been stifled in the mud, and buried in the oaze, or have tumbled down head-long, in the descent, on the one side, or never have been able to get up again on the other) but he so disposed the matter, that as the water stood like solid stone walls, on either side of them, Exod. 15. 8, 16. so the muddy soil, was as firm ground under their feet, Exod. 14. 22. & 15. 19. Neh. 9. 11. and they had their whole way thorow the sea so fitted for them, that notwithstanding any such descent, or ascent, or ought else, that might obstruct, or impeach their passage, they made it, as easily, as if they had gone on plain, and even ground all the way: thus did God as their herbinger, level their way for them, Chap. 26. 7. and 40. 4. & 45. 2.

the Spirit of the Lord caused him to rest] How these words come in here, is by many much questioned. Some would have them, to be inserted, as a parenthesis, between the proposition, or the former part, and the reddition, or latter part of that similitude, which they suppose to be in this verse; because, so, the note of reddition, comes after it: and that for this cause inserted, to prevent, and meet with, a doubt, that might arise in some mens minds, how it were possible that such miraculous matters should be brought about; which to remove, it is by the way cast in, that it was the Spirit of God, that did all this, unto whom nothing is either impossible, or difficult, Job 42. 2. Psal. 115. 3. & 135. 6. Jer. 32. 27. Others, among whom, one of the Jewish Commenters, would draw this passage within the latter part of the similitude, supposing a trajection in the words, which should thus be disposed, so thou leadest thy people, and the Spirit of the Lord made them to rest. But this seemeth to make over-bold with the context. And no lesse wide seems that to stray from the text, which a reverend Writer of ours hath on it, who knitting these words to the former part of it, thus rendreth the context: As a beast, which the Spirit of God leadeth, goeth in the valley; to wit, quietly and in safety. For howsoever it be true, that Gods providence and protection, reacheth even unto beasts, Psal. 36. 6. and that God, for man, taketh charge of them, and care for them, Gen. 8. 1. Num. 20. 8. Yet is there no such thing intended, by the Prophet, in this place. Nor seemeth that so suitable which a late learned Annotator suggesteth, who thus rendreth the words, As a beast goeth down into the valley, and the wind of God giveth him rest; so didst thou lead thy people; that is, as the descent of a beast down a steep hill, especially travelling with a burden on his back, is troublesome and toilsome; but the wind, when he is therewith wearied, giveth him some rest and refreshing; so leadest thou thy people a toilsome journey through the Wildernesse, to bring them to rest in the land of Canaan: And whereas the affix him is masculine, whereas the word beast is feminine; that he seeketh to salve, by referring it to the word horse here intended, v. 13. the like whereunto some suppose to be, Gen. 4. 7. & 13. 10. 1 Sam. 15. 9. But the resemblance seemeth not to come so handsomely off; and howsoever some of the Ancients have so expounded, The Spirit of God, that is, the wind of God, Gen. 1. 2. alledging to that purpose that, Psal. 147. 18. He maketh his wind blow; yet the version seemeth harsh, and in neither place convenient. More probable to me seemeth the conceit of that learned Writer before-mentioned, who supposing no such formal similitude, consisting of proposition, and reddition, to be contained in this verse; but the former branch to depend upon the verse before-going, doth make these words an entire axiom, neither having any such special relation to either, nor being any such insertion between either of those two supposed parts of a similitude, as those other Authors conceive of them; but an adjection only to what went before, concerning Gods setling his people quietly in the land of promise. Of which, more anon.

the Spirit of the Lord] The Word of the Lord, saith the Chaldee: whereby some conceive to be meant, the second person, the Son, Joh. 1. 1, 14. the Angel that went before them, say others, vers. 9. the Spirit of the Lord, whereof, ver. 10, 11. the holy Ghost, the third person, say others: God himself, say the Jewish Doctors, and others also of ours: the Spirit of the Lord, here, say they, as his soul, Chap. 42. 1. for himself: and the Lord himself is said to have gone before them Exod. 13. 21. Num. 14. 14. and to lead them, Neh. 9. 12. Psal. 77. 20. But howsoever the name of Spirit, is given to all the three persons; to the Father, Joh. 4. 23, 24. to the Son, 2 Cor. 3. 17. to the Holy Ghost, 1 Joh. 5. 6-8. and the external operations of the deity, are undivided: yet I conceive the distinction of persons to be intimated in such forms as this, and the third person to be more peculiarly here implyed.

caused him to rest] Concerning both the notion of the verb here used, and of the person here pointed to, there is some diversity of opinion, as well among the Jewish Criticks, as among our Writers. Some reading the words, as our version, He caused him to rest, understand it as, of the people hereafter mentioned: whom, say they, God gave rest from their adversaries that pursued them, by a safe conveyance thorow the Sea, of the one; and the total subversion in the same Sea, of the other, Exod 14. 26-30. Psal. 78. 53. & 106. 10, 11. Others rendring them, he led him. So the Chaldee, some of the Jewish, the ancient Greek, the old Latine, and divers of ours, as well as those that follow it. And among these, some understand it, as the former, of the people; so the Greek, who render it therefore in the plural, them; as before, that led them, ver. 13. and so the same should be said here, with that in the next branch. Others, of Moses, by whom God led them, Psal. 77. 20. the Spirit of God, say they, led Moses, and them, by him. See ver. 13. The reason of the main ambiguity, is, for that the words of resting, and leading, are both for letters and sound of very neer affinity the one with the other; and words of such neighbournesse, do oft mutually lend to, and borrow, the one from the other; as by many instances might be shewed: The analogy of the form, here used, pleadeth for the former; the tenour of the context seems in the judgment of many learned, to speak for the latter. I conceive it may include a double notion, as some other, taking part from two divers roots, are deemed to do. I will point only at one of them: it is but one word that is rendred, Zach. 10. 6. I will bring them again to place them: and in like manner, I suppose that this may here be rendred, The Spirit of the Lord leading him, or them, (to wit, his people) caused them to rest, that is, so led them, that they travelled quietly, and had places of rest, by the way: to which purpose it is said, Num. 10. 33. that the Ark went before them, (the visible sign of Gods special presence among them) to search out rest (that is, a resting place) for them. Nor do I mislike what some of the Jewish Writers here have, to wit, that the Prophet having before spoken of their passage thorow the Sea, ver. 13. and having done with that, doth here come to speak of Gods conduct of them, after they came out of the Sea, all the way thorow the wildernesse, untill they came unto Canaan: to which purpose the learned Interpreter before alledged, carrying on the rest here intended, to their rest in that land: whereof see Deut. 13. 9. Psal. 95. 11. Chap. 14. 3. rendreth the words, The Spirit of the Lord brought them to rest; as if it were said, The Spirit of the Lord led them, (that is, never left leading of them) untill he brought them unto rest: and this exposition receiveth strength from that, Jer. 31. 2. where it is said, of those that escaped the sword in the Wildernesse, that God went out to make them rest, that is, to settle them in the land of Canaan, where they were to rest. See the note on the place. I add onely what I further conceive, that the words may well be read, by way of interrogation, as all the former along are; The Spirit of the Lord that brought them to rest? to wit, Where is he? as before, ver. 11. the stop in the original favoureth it; nor doth the defect of the relative, in the text, at all hinder it, being a matter so rife, as before, ver. 8. So it should be the close of the expostulation before-going, debated hitherto, whether by the Prophet with himself, or the people with themselves; not directed yet to God, unto whom, in the next words, the tenour of the discourse turneth.

So didst thou lead thy people,] Or, Thus didst thou lead thy people; that it may have reference to the whole former passage, not to any particular branch of it alone. See the like conclusion, where the speech is likewise directed unto God, when as it ran otherwise before, Judg. 5. 31.

to make thy self a glorious name,] Heb. a name of bravery, or gallantry. See ver. 12. Chap. 62. 3. and this seemes added, as intimating, what honour and renown God might gain to himself, by manifesting his power and providence, in the delivering of them now: though in an humble and modest manner, they do not, as yet, expressly mention it, or directly crave it; yet thereby to induce the Lord to do the like for them, that then he had done; if not for their sakes, who had deserved nothing less at his hands, yet for his own names sake, and in regard of that glory, that might thereby accrue unto him. See Psal. 106. 8. and 116. 1. Chap. 43. 25. and 48. 9, 11.

V. 15. Look down from heaven, and behold from the habitation of thine holinesse, and of thy glory.] Here, they, or the Prophet, in their person, beginneth to fall directly unto prayer, and supplication, for favour and mercy; yet mixed with some passionate, but submissive expostulation, herein differing from the former, that it is directed unto God himself.

Look down from heaven,] Or, Behold from heaven. So Deut. 26. 15. Psal. 80. 14. Lam. 3. 50. not that God hath not an eye in all places, Pro. 15. 3. as well on earth, as in heaven, 2 Chron. 16. 9. nor that he is not present, as well here on earth, as in heaven, Jer. 23. 25. but because heaven is as his palace, in which he doth in greater glory and state manifest himself, Psal. 11. 4. & 115. 3. there his throne is, Psal. 11. 4. & 103. 19. or that is his throne, chap. 66. 1. from which as being high and lofty, Chap. 6. 1. (as a King sitting above others, in his chair of estate, 1 King. 10. 18, 19. looketh down upon those, that either stand, or ly prostrate, before, but far beneath him) is God said to look down upon men here on earth, Psal. 14. 2. & 33. 13.

and behold] Or, see; as chap. 37. 17. behold, and see; as Psal. 80. 14. as, see, and behold, Lam. 1. 11. words much of the same notion, used to expresse their earnest desire, that God would be pleased, not barely to see them, or look on them; for nothing is hid from his sight, Chap. 26. 17. Job 34. 21, 22. Prov. 5. 21. & 15. 11. Heb. 4. 13. but to have respect, and regard to them, to look with tender pity and compassion upon them; and to make it appear, by some gracious effect, and deliverance, wrought for them, that he so did. So Psal. 25. 18. & 74. 19. & 84. 9.

the habitation of thine holinesse, and of thy glory.] Or, thine holy, and glorious, or magnificent habitation: A description of heaven; yet yet in such terms, as are given also to the Temple, a type of it. Heb. thine habitation of holinesse (and so Exod. 15. 13. Deut. 26. 15. Psal. 68. 5. & 136. 2. Jer. 25. 30.) and of thy gallantry, or magnificence; as ver. 15. See Chap. 60. 13, 15.

where is thy zeal, and thy strength, the sounding of thy bowels, and of thy mercies towards me?] A new expostulatory complaint, that there seemed now not to appear any such affection in God towards his people, or any such ability with him, to do for them, as he had given evident signs, and conspicuous proof of, in times past: so ver. 11.

where is] What is become of them? Where are they to be seen? So Psal. 89. 49.

thy zeal] Such an ardent affection of love, as cannot endure to see the party beloved, to be wronged or molested. See Chap. 9. 7. & 26. 11. & 37. 32.

thy strength] Heb. powers, or valours: for, exceeding great power, and valour; as Job 41. 12. Psal. 71. 16. & 90. 10. & 147. 10. or, for valiant acts, as Deut. 3. 24. Psal. 145. 12. & 150. 2. See Jer. 14. 9.

the sounding of thy bowels] Some would have it to be, the strutting of thy paps, or breasts; as if it were a metaphor taken from women that give suck, whose paps, or breasts, when they are full of milk, pain them, and they cannot be at rest, untill they have milked it out, and so given themselves some ease: but the mention of bowels, whose place, the belly is not the breast admitteth not this trope. Some render it, the multitude of thy bowels: and the word here used doth sometime signifie a multitude. See Chap. 13. 4. & 17. 12. & 33. 3. and the word bowels, in Greek, is used for a tendernesse of affection, arising from pity and commiseration, Luk 1. 78. Phil. 1. 8. & 2. 1. Col. 3. 12. 1 Joh. 3. 17. and so the meaning should be, multitude of tender compassions; and of multitude of mercies, and tender mercies, is found mention in Scripture, Psal. 51. 1. & 69. 16. see also, ver. 7. But neither doth the word, here used, when it is taken for a multitude, signifie any multitude in general; but a multitude of men, or persons, gathered together; so called, not in regard of their number so much, as of the noise that they are wont to make: Nor is the Hebrew term of bowels, or entrails, here found, any where simply so used, as the Greek is, with whom, the word also deduced from it, hath a notion of compassion, and commiseration in it, Mat. 9. 36. Mar. 1. 41. Luk. 7. 13. whereas, in Hebrew, from the word that so signifies, there is none such: The word therefore is here to be taken, in reference to its first and native signification, wherein it signifieth a noise, Amos 5. 23. which hereby appears in that the verb of sounding, or making a noise, from whence the word cometh, is in this notion commonly joyned with the word bowels, Cant. 5. 4. Chap. 16. 11. in which forms of speech, there is a metaphor taken from those rumblings in the bowels, that sudden and strong passions of this nature do sometime produce: and it may well be here rendred, yernings; as the like is, 1 King. 3. 26. where it is said of the mother of the child, which the King bad should be divided; her bowels yerned upon her son: though the words there be divers, but in the same notion with these. It is a resemblance taken from humane frailty, to help mans shallow capacity, attributed to God, as here, so Jer. 31. 20. Hos. 11. 8.

and of thy mercies towards me?] Or, and thy tender mercies. See ver. 7. the word, in the singular number, signifieth properly the womb, Gen. 20. 18. Exod. 13. 2. and more generally, the belly, Chap. 46. 3. where both are put as parallel; and belly, for womb, Psal. 132. 11. and so uterus, in Latine, used of either sex. Hence, in the plural, it is used for bowels; because the belly is the place of them. So of Joseph it is said, Gen. 43. 30. his bowels yerned upon his brother: and of that mother before, the like; in both which places the same word is used: so that this word may well also be here rendred, bowels (being of the same notion with the former; as womb, and belly, are one, and the same, in the place before-mentioned) had we like variety of words, fit to expresse both by: for the sense of either bowels, or entrails (which in the former member may not do amiss) seems the same.

are they restrained?] This distinction of the text, in our version, is somewhat discrepant from the pointings in the original, wherein the stop, is at the latter word, that signifies bowels, and the word rendred toward me, is carried on, and joyned to this last. This most other, both Translators, and Expositers, have observed, and therein therefore this our last version seems to go by it self; to reckon up all the various readings, and rendrings, would be too tedious. I will point at some few of the principal only; the old Latine giveth it us in the enunciative; they contain, or, restrain, themselves upon me, or, toward me: that which a learned late Writer controling, would rather have it read, they do with violence (like a torrent, Job 6. 15. Psal. 126. 4. hence so called) pour themselves forth upon me: a metaphor from waters, that having been pent up some time, break forth, and run down with more violence, when the floud-gates are set open: but this is directly contrary to the main drift of the whole passage; and the Geneva version therefore coming neerer home to the Latine, they are restrained from me: wherewith those also do, in sense and substance, concur, who read them interrogatively apart by themselves; and render them, as doth the Italian, Do they restrain themselves towards me? Nor do they much differ in regard of the sense of the place, who bring this last branch, within compass of the foregoing interrogation, which the lesser stops hinder not; either renewing the interrogation, at the mention of mercies; because no conjunction cometh between that, and the former: and reading it, (which divers do) the yerning of thy bowels, and thy mercies, are they restrained? or, as, others, should they restrain themselves towards us? or, carrying on the whole, in a continued tenour to the end of the verse, as our ancienter English Versions, and some other do; How is it, that thy jealousie, thy strength, the multitude of thy mercy and loving kindness, will not be intreated of us? But these do not so fitly, and exactly expresse the notion of the word here used: the word is in a reciprocal form, and signifies properly, to contain, or, in a manner, to coerce ones self, that is, by force, to restrain, and keep in, from expressing, and manifesting it self, some inward affection, that is hard to conceal, and would be breaking out. So of Joseph it is said, when his bowels yerned upon his Brother Benjamin, he made haste to withdraw, and having wept a while in private, (for he could not wholly forbear) he washed his face, and coming out again, he refrained, or, restrained, himself, Gen. 43. 30, 31. and again, Gen. 45. 1. Joseph could no longer refrain himself; it is applyed unto God, Chap. 42. 14. & 64. 12. I concur therefore with those, that adjoyn these words to the latter part of the interrogative, reading them, either with a learned late Writer, Where is the yerning of thine entrails, and thy bowels, (so I conceive it to be most fitly rendred) which restrain themselves towards me? (the relative supplyed, as ver. 8.) or rather, with the Greek, which instead of the relative, supplyeth the particle, that, (as the like is, ver. 13.) Where is the yerning of thine entrails, and thy bowels, (what is become of them?) that they (to wit, thy entrails, or bowels) do restrain themselves towards me? that they keep themselves in, as shut up, under forcible restraint, and do not break out into tender pity, and compassion towards me, in this my present doleful, and distressed condition? it is that which John saith, If a man see his brother in want, and shut, or close up, his bowels from him, 1 Joh. 3. 17. or, if any shall deem it better, to sever them from that branch, and take them apart by themselves, I should choose to render them in a potential notion; can they contain themselves at us? or, towards us? as if they had said, how is it possible, that such compassionate bowels, as thou aboundest with, beyond the reach of mans thought, should be able to contain themselves from yerning upon me, at the sight, and consideration of my present condition? the potential use of these forms is frequent. See Num. 23. 8, 10, 21. Chap. 38. 18. the like expostulatory complaint of the suspense, or, restraint, of Gods mercies, see Psal. 77. 7-9. Chap. 64. 12.

V. 16. Doubtlesse, thou art our Father;] To move God the rather to compassion towards them; and to intimate why they expect it from him, and may seem not without some good ground, to complain of the restraint of it, they mind God of the relations between him and them. So Chap. 64. 8.

Doubtlesse] Or, Certainly. So is the particle used, Chap. 49. 18. & 60. 9. Yet it is here by some rendred, For; as chap. 28. 27. and it may be read, Since that, as some render it: or, Yet; or, Howbeit: as Job 5. 7. Chap. 9. 1. and 31. 4. and 49. 25.

thou art our Father] Deut. 32. 6. Mal. 2. 10. Mat. 6. 9. and a father cannot but be compassionately affected towards his children, Psal. 103. 13. Mal. 3. 17. Mat. 6. 26, 32. & 7. 9-11. Luk. 11. 11. & 15. 17, 18, 20. or, thou art he, upon whom alone we depend, as upon our Father, for support and relief. See Mat. 23. 9.

though Abraham be ignorant of us, and Israel acknowledge us not] Or, for (as Psal. 12. 1.) Abraham knoweth us not, nor doth Israel know us: he is alike ignorant of us: for it is but the same notion, in divers terms, as is very frequent with this Prophet; and so the latter word is commonly used; as Gen. 27. 23. Ruth 3. 14. 1 King. 20. 41. As for Abraham, and Jacob, they were our fathers indeed; but we are now out of their cognisance: and it were in vain for us to expect ought from them, who being departed hence, are strangers to the affairs of this world, and altogether unacquainted (for ought we know) with our present condition. So the Jewish Commenters themselves on this place; Abraham, saith one, knew us not, when we were afflicted in Egypt: nor did Israel know us, when we wandred in the Wildernesse; for they were long before taken out of the world. And another of them; fathers of flesh and bloud, may know their children, and their childrens children, so long as they live; but Abraham, and Israel, were dead many ages agone; but thou alone art our living, and lasting Father: and thou dost, thorow all ages, continue so to be; and we have no father here to seek to, besides thee. See Job 14. 21. 2 King. 22. 20. and this exactly goeth with the Hebrew. Yet some would have the meaning to be that they were grown so degenerate, that neither Abraham, nor Israel, were they alive again, would own them. See Joh 8. 39, 40. Rom. 9. 6, 7. And others, that though Abraham, and Israel, should refuse to own them, yet would not God cease to be their Father; as Psal. 27. 10.

Abraham, and Israel] These two he mentioneth, say the Jewish Doctors; because the one was the first of the three chief Patriarks, and the covenant was by God, with him plighted, to himself, and his seed, to be God to him, and them, Gen. 17. 7. the other, because he was the last of them; and his whole issue taken into the covenant: whereas Isaacs whole seed was not. See chap. 43. 1. & 44. 1.

thou, O Lord, art our Father] Or, as feme, yet (supplyed, as Chap. 49. 4. & 57. 10.) thou art our Father; or, but supplyed, as chap. 54. 15. thou art our Father; thou continueſt ſo to be; as Dan. 1. 21.

our Redeemer, thy name is from eternity.] Thou art both our Father, and our Redeemer, chap. 44. 24. See Deut. 32. 6. or, becauſe of the ſtop, at our Father, in the text, as ſome read it, our Redeemer is from of old thy name; thou haſt, thorow all ages from time to time, been called, and accounted, the righter, and reſcuer of us thy people, Pſal. 90. 1. See chap. 47. 4.

V. 17. O Lord, why haſt thou made us to erre from thy wayes, and hardened our heart from thy fear?] Why haſt thou given us up to a ſpirit of errour, and obſtinacy, by denying unto us the conduct and guidance of thy good Spirit. verſ. 11. and leaving us to be led away by our own corrupt and perverſe luſts, Pſal. 81. 12. Rom. 1. 26. 28 and ſo it may ſeem to have reference unto that dreadful and direfull doom, by God, paſſed upon this people, chap. 6. 9, 10. or, why ſhouldeſt thou, by ſuffering us to lye under ſuch heavy preſſures for ſo long a time together, in the hands of cruell oppreſſors, give this people occaſion to leave thy law; and in a deſperate obſtinacy, caſting off thy ſervice, to betake themſelves to wicked and heatheniſh wayes. See Pſal. 125. 3. Whether way of the two we take, I ſuppoſe it to be by the Prophet conceived, not as ſome would have it, in the perſon of the profane, and worſe ſort among them, murmuring againſt God, and imputing to him, the cauſe of all their miſcarriages; but in the perſon of the pious, and better party, lamenting, that God had, (though juſtly) thus given up his people unto errour, and obſtinacy; and as amazed to conſider, that God their Father, who had formerly been ſo gracious to them, and chary of them, ſhould now inflict on them, ſo heavy a judgment as to withdraw himſelf from them, and to leave them thus to themſelves; and bewailing the horrid effect, and event, that it either already had, or was like to have, with many, who were, or would be, thereby induced to withdraw themſelves from God, and betake themſelves to heatheniſh ſuperſtitions, and the ſervice of other gods: and this later, with a learned Writer, I encline to, as conceiving it to be the genuine ſenſe of the text.

made us to erre] Or, wander. So Abraham of himſelf, when God cauſed me to wander, Gen. 20, 13. But I ſuppoſe, if we follow the former ſenſe, it would rather have be rendred, why haſt thou permitted, or ſuffered, us; or, as ſome, daſt thou permit, or, ſuffer us, to wander from, or, out of, thy wayes? for in this notion, not of impulſion, but of permiſſion, is this form frequently uſed, and ſometime rendred. So Prov. 10. 3. The Lord will not ſuffer the ſoul of the righteous to famiſh: and, Thou ſhalt not ſuffer a witch to live, Exod. 22. 18. & Pſal. 37. 33. The Lord will not condemn (that is ſuffer him to be condemned, but cauſe him to be cleared, verſ. 4. Pſal 109. 21.) when he is judged; as alſo, Pſalm. 119. 10. let me not wander, or, ſuffer me not to ſtray. (the very ſame word that is here uſed) from thy commandements; or, according to the later reading, Why ſhouldeſt thou cauſe us to wander from thy wayes? Why ſhouldeſt thou give this people any occaſion, which their wicked hearts are over-prone to take, to do ſo; as if thou hadſt put them thereupon. So it ſhould be, not unlike that ſpeech of David, 1 Sam. 26. 19. by driving me from abode in the Lords inheritance, they ſay, Go ſerve other gods: as if they ſhould ſay, We ar gain will there, or can there, accrue unto thee, by keeping us ſo long, in this forlorn condition, (as they reaſon, Pſal. 30. 9. & 44. 12.) eſpecially, by the revolt of many of thy people from thee, a thing likely thereupon to enſue?

and hardened our heart from thy fear] Or, why haſt thou hardened our hearts, (for the word hearts, is here collective, as Pſal. 119. 70.) hardened our hearts; as it is ſaid of Pharao, delivered up by God, unto the hardneſſe of his own obſtinate heart, by Gods forbearance, and mercies, yet further obdurated, Exod. 7. 3, 8, 15, 19, 32. 8. 9. 7, 12, 34, 35. & 10. 1, 20, 27. & 11. 10. & 14. 4, 8. But ſo the word here uſed, is no where found, ſave here, and Job 39. 16. where it is ſaid of the Eſtrich, that ſhe hardeneth her ſelf againſt her young ones, as if they were not hers; from thy fear, that we ſhould not fear thee: for that is the conſtant notion of this form; as Pſal. 69. 23. from ſeeing, for, that they may not ſee: from ſpeaking, for, that one may not ſpeak, 1 Sam. 25. 17 from houſe, ſo that no houſe is left, Chap. 23. 1. from entrance, ſo as none can enter, Chap. 24. 15. thy fear, for, the fear of thee; as Pſal. 5. 7. and as, his knowledge, for, the knowledge of him, Chap. 53. 11. not as the ſubject, but as the object of either: or, why ſhouldeſt thou harden our hearts from thy fear? that is, from thy ſervice. So as we ſhould not ſerve thee, but leaving thee and thy ſervice, go after ſtrange gods; as they, Jer. 44. 16, 17. for ſo is the word, fear, very frequently uſed in Scripture. See 2 King. 17. 25-28, 32, 33, 35, 36, 40, 41. Chap. 29. 13.

Return for thy ſervants ſake, the tribes of thine inheritance,] Or, unto the tribes of thine inheritance: as Moſes at the ſtay of the Ark, Return, O Lord, unto the many thouſands of Iſrael; a defect of the particle, as 1 King 3. 15. Chap. 52. 4.

Return] Turn from thy wrath, and return in mercy, and favour; be reconciled again to thy people: as Pſalm 80. 14. & 90. 13.

for thy Servants ſake] For Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacobs ſake, unto whom thou madeſt thy promiſes, Gen. 22. 17, 18. & 26. 3, 24. & 28. 13, 14. Pſal. 105. 9, 10. in regard whereof, thou haſt thy ſelf profeſſed to have ſelected us, and to affect us, Deut. 7. 6-8. So Moſes, Exod. 32. 13. for theſe, though not excluding other their religious, and pious progenitors, as David among the reſt, of whom mention is alſo made in the like kind, Pſal. 132. 1. chap. 37. 35. or, for thoſe few, thy faithful ones, that remain yet among us. See chap. 65. 8. but here rather, the former.

the tribes] This ſome by way of appoſition, joyn to the words before going, thy ſervants, expounding it of thoſe, their anceſtors, who were, ſay they, as Reeds, (to the word in its native notion ſignifies) out of which theſe people, as ſprigs, did ſpout. But I conceive it rather to be meant, as before was ſaid, of the people themſelves, who were divided into tribes, and according to their tribes had the land of promiſe divided among them, Num. 34. 13-15. Pſal. 78. 55. of thoſe, not for whom, but unto whom, God is entreated here to return.

thine inheritance] As well the land it ſelf, (which ſeemeth here intended, by what followeth, verſ. 18.) as the people are called Gods inheritance; and the Rod of Gods inheritance; becauſe lands of inheritance, upon diſtribution, among coparceners, were oftimes meted out by the rod, Pſal. 74. 2. & 78. 71. & 79. 1. & 94. 5. cha. 19. 25. So rather, then as ſome, both of the Jews, and others, that render the word here Rods, and expound it, Rulers; as relating to that, chap. 43. 28. and this therefore they plead unto God, as intimating, that it might bee deemed a diſhonour unto him, not to regard his own inheritance, (whether the men, or the land) but to ſuffer it ſo to be trampled on, and ſuch waſte to be made of it, Jer. 50. 11. Joel 2. 17. & 3. 2.

V. 18. The people of thine holineſs have poſſeſſed it but a little while] Or, Thine holy people (Exod. 19. 6. Deut. 7. 6. Heb. thy people of holineſs: as, thy mountain of holineſs, chap. 56. 7. and, thy cities of holineſs, chap. 64. 10.) have held it but a little while; the pronoun it, is not in the text, but to be ſupplied; as chap. 46. 11. & 57. 8. and hath reference to inheritance, verſe 17. that is, the land of promiſe. as moſt here take it. Where queſtion is moved, how it ſhould be ſaid, that Gods people had poſſeſſed their land but a little while, when as they had held it for ſo many hundred years. Whereunto ſome anſwer, that it is ſaid, a little while, becauſe a long time ſeemeth but little, when it is once paſt; in that eſtate, and thoſe things eſpecially, that men deſire longer to enjoy, Job 9. 25, 26. Pſal. 90. 4. Others, a little while, in regard of Gods promiſe, that they ſhould poſſeſs it for ever, Gen. 17. 8. & 26. 3. & 28. 13 Exod. 32. 13. which promiſe yet had a condition alwayes implyed in it, and is expreſly mentioned, 2 Chron. 33. 8. See Jer. 18. 9, 10. and theſe anſwers are the moſt probable, the words being thus rendred. For ſome take in the word, Sanctuary: So the ancient Greek, joyning this branch to the former verſe: Return to the tribes of thine inheritance, that thy people may poſſeſs thy Sanctuary a little longer. But this the words will not well bear. Others reading this whole verſe thus; Thine holy people but a while poſſeſſed thy Sanctuary, which our enemies trample on: and here one of the Jewiſh accountants helpeth them a little, that go this way, which he ſeems alſo ſomewhat to encline to, obſerving on the place, that the Temple ſtood but 420 years: whereas from the promiſe made of the poſſeſſion of the land, to their deliverance out of Egypt, was above 430 years, Gen. 15. 13. Exod. 12. 41. and from their deliverance out of Egypt, or, (as they uſe to ſpeak) from the Lamb, or, the Law, to the Temple, 480 years, 1 King. 6. 1. But one of ours rather would have it ſo ſaid; becauſe they had ſlighted it, and made little good uſe of it; and might well be laid therefore but a little while to have poſſeſſed it. But this ſeemeth to be over-much ſtrained, beſides, that it maketh a needleſs rejection of the terms in the text. Others therefore underſtand it of the adverſaries of Gods people; one reading the words, They have almoſt poſſeſſed themſelves of thy people. Another, For a little ſpace of time have they poſſeſſed thy people, and trampled upon thy ſanctuary; that is, for three year and a half, under Antiochus, Dan. 12. 7, 11, 12. But the former cometh ſhort of the Prophets purpoſe; the later directly croſſeth his drift; a fond thing to imagine, that the people of God ſhould complain, that their enemies had been but a while poſſeſſed of them. The old Latine readeth it, As a thing of nought have they poſſeſſed thine holy people; that is, as thoſe that follow it, they poſſeſs, and uſe thy people, as ſome ſorry thing of no account. See verſe 19. & Lam. 1. 11, 17. & 3. 45. and the common uſe of the word may ſeem to wind it ſomwhat this way; for it is uſed ſometime for little, where of Zoar was ſo termed, Gen. 19. 20, 22. ſometime, for the younger, as in Latine, the leſs: and as great, for, elder, Gen. 25. 23. ſometime, for, a ſmall company, 2 Chr. 24. 24. ſometime for one of ſmall account, or reckoning, Pſa. 119. 141. Mic. 5. 2. See chap. 60. 22. but of time, or ſhortneſs of time, I no where find it uſed. And I deem therefore this reading not improbable; the rather, becauſe the particle prefixed, hath oftentimes the like uſe, as Gen. 16. 3. when it is ſaid, that Sarah gave Hagar unto Abraham, not to be his wife, (as it is amiſs rendred) but, to be as his wife. And I ſhould much rather incline to it, then to that, which yet ſome of prime note hold out, Even unto the leaſt do they as by right of inheritance poſſeſſe thine holy people. But this I leave to the judgment of others, hinting only mine own diſſent.

the judgment of others, hinting only mine own diſſent.

our adverſaries have troden down thy Sanctuary] Or, tread down, or, trample upon, thy Sanctuary; that is, as ſome, thine holy land: whereunto the name of Sanctuary, is ſometime given, Exod. 15. 17. Pſal. 78. 54. Jer. 12. 10. See Chap. 63 18. Or, as others, rather, thine holy houſe, thy Temple, thy Palace, where thou hadſt wont to appear to thy people; and where thy people had wont to worſhip thee, Chap. 64. 11. Pſal. 74. 3 4. Lam. 1. 10.

V. 19. We are thine; thou never bareſt rule over them, they were not called by thy name] That is, We are yet ſtill thy people, verſ. 18. thy ſervants, thy ſubjects, ſo called, and ſo accounted, and ſuch as do call upon thee, Chap. 48. 1, 2. & ver. 8. That which theſe people, our enemies, ver. 18. never were, never did, Chap. 65. 1. Jer. 10. 25. or, we have been thy people of old. So the Chaldee, and one of the Jewiſh Doctors, on the place, and ſome other; We are thoſe, whom thou haſt long ſince taken to thy ſelf, to be thy peculiar people, Ver. 19. Exod. 19. 5, 6. Deut. 7. 6, 7. that which they never were, Amos 3. 2. But the word, thine, is not in the text; and at we are, or, we have been, there is a ſtop. The ancient Greek, and the old Latine, therefore, whom divers others, even of ours, follow, read the words, thus; We have been, or, are, as from the beginning, when thou didſt not rule over us, nor was thy name called upon us; that is, before the deliverance out of Egypt, ſay ſome, or, (becauſe that ſeems not ſo to be. See Acts 3. 7. & 4. 12.) before Abrahams time, ſay others, Joſh. 24. 2, 3. We are no more regarded, nor looked after by thee, then before thou tookeſt us to be thy people: the note of ſimilitude is ſupplyed; as Chap. 62. 5. the particle of time; as Chap. 48. 13, 21. Divers of ours, with whom I concur, we are become, as thoſe, whom thou didſt never bear rule over, nor were ever called by thy name: or, as I conceive, more exactly to the terms of the text; we are, as if we were thoſe, whom from of old, thou hadſt not ruled over, nor had thy name been called upon. We are in that deſpicable condition, ſo vilely uſed, & baſely dealt with, as if we were none of thy people, much leſſe ſuch as have been ſo long time thy ſubjects, living under thy protection, & whom thou haſt been pleaſed from time to time, to own as thine. See Chap. 26. 13. and ver. 18. as if we were thoſe (the like ſupply, ſee Job 39. 16 ſhe carneth her felt harſhly towards her young ones, as if they were not hers) whom from old (as ver. 16.) thou hadſt not ruled over, or thou hadſt not (as Chap. 64. 4.) ruled over; (Heb. ruled over them; the demonſtrative, for the relative: as Chap. 42. 1. & 46. 4. or, a defect of the relative; as ver. 8. and a redundancy of the demonſtrative: as Jer. 1. 2.) nor had thy name been called upon. So the Hebrew. Ones name is, in Scripture, ſaid to be called upon thoſe, that bear his name, or are called by his name, as having relation to him, in ſome kind, or other, as their Superiour, and one that hath ſpeciall intereſt in them, and power over them. So Children are laid to have their fathers name called on them, Gen. 48. 14. the wife her husbands, Chap. 4. 1. the ſubjects, and ſervants, their Sovereign Lords, and their Maſters. So here. See Jer. 14. 9. Dan. 9. 19. So Deut. 28. 10. 2 Chron. 7. 14. Chap. 48. 1. & 43. 7.

CHAP. LXIV.

Verſ. 1. O That thou wouldeſt rent the heavens, that thou wouldeſt come down] That this Chapter runneth on in one tenour, with the latter part of the former, is not doubted. But here appeareth plainly, what was formerly obſerved (ſee Chap. 58. 3. & 62. 6.) that the Maſorets, or who ever they were, that divided the books of Scripture, into Chapter, and Verſe, did that divided the books of Scripture, into Chapter, and Verſe, did not ſometime exactly diſtinguiſh either: For theſe words, together with thoſe, that make up the firſt verſe of this Chapter with us, are in the Hebrew copies, caſt into the laſt verſe of the Chapter foregoing, and ſo cloſe up that Chapter; (ſee the like 2 Chron. 30. 18, 19.) and this Chapter is made to begin at our ſecond verſe, which hath a maniſeſt dependance upon this, whereas this hath no ſuch coherence with that, which by them it is annexed unto. So that this Chapter, according to the diviſion of the Greek, & Latine verſions, as we have now divided, and of our Engliſh ones likewiſe, beginneth in the middle of a verſe, according to the diſtinctions in the Hebrew, and that with better ground, if we regard the courſe of the context, as any intelligent reader may eaſily diſcern. Yet this to ſalve, the Chaldee thus rendreth this paſſage; not, as a learned man relateth him; Bidſt not thou rent the heavens for us? but, as if the word were not lu, but lo; Thou haſt not rent the heavens for them; to wit, for thoſe, over whom thou didſt not rule, nor were called by thy name, Chap. 65. 19. whereunto one of the Jewiſh Commenters treading in his ſteps, addeth, As thou didſt ſometime for us. But herein the other Jewiſh Maſters diſſent from him, and agreeing with us, refer us, for the ſignification of the particle of time, to Pſal. 81. 13. which Writers do now generally accord in: Onely ſome of them render it in the time paſt, O that thou hadſt rent the heavens, and come down; when Nebuchadnezzar was about the ſtorming of our city; as thou didſt, when thou cameſt to deliver thy people from Pharao's purſuit or them, Exod. 14. 24. Pſal. 77. 16-18. and as thou didſt againſt Sennacheribs Forces, when they lay before Jeruſalem, Chap. 30. 30. & 37. 36. But the moſt, as our Verſions, in the preſent, or future, for not on, if not for to make thy name known to thine adversaries,] That thine adversaries may see and take notice of thy power: name, for, might, power, majesty, and the like; as 2 King. 8. 42, 43. Pſal. 106. 8.

that the nations may tremble at thy preſence.] Heb. the nations will tremble at thy preſence: but there is a defect of the particle that; as Chap. 63. 13. See Exod. 15. 14-16.

V. 3. When thou didſt terrible things which we looked not for;] Or, As when, &c. carrying on the ſentence: the note of ſimilitude ſuppliyed; as chap. 62. 5. See v. 2. Oh that thou wouldeſt do now ſuch dreadfull things, as, in times paſt, thou didſt for our fore-fathers; and that then, when they little looked for any ſuch matters.

thou didſt terrible things] In the behalf of thy people, both while they were yet in Egypt, and afterward alſo in the Wilderneſſe, Pſal. 78. 12, 13, 43-53. & 105. 27-36. & 106. 9-11. Neh. 9. 9-11.

which] The relative ſuppliyed; as Chap. 63. 8.

we looked not for] We, that is, our fore-fathers, with whom, we are as one race, as one body. So Jer. 2. 6, 7. Mic. 6. 4. This is the rather inſerted, to ſtrengthen their faith, and to encourage them to ſeek unto God, for the like terrible things now to be done for them; conſidering, that God had been pleaſed, in times paſt, to do ſuch things for thoſe, who then expected them not. See Pſal. 65. 5.

thou cameſt down] To deliver thy people, and to deſtroy their oppreſſours, Exod. 3. 8. a metaphor taken from the practice of ſome great Prince or Potentate, that ſhould come down, in ſtate, from his Palace, to hear the ſuits of poore ſuppliants, and to ſee juſtice done for them, upon ſuch as had wronged them. So ver. 1.

the mountains flowed down at thy preſence.] Or, ſo that (ſuppleyed, as ver. 2.) the mountains melted at thy preſence. Theſe words have, queſtionleſs, reference to ſome particular ſtory of things, formerly paſt and done. And it is by moſt Interpreters deemed, that there is in them a ſpeciall reſpect unto Gods glorious appearance on the top of Mount Sinai, at the giving of the Law; at which time, ſay ſome of the Rabbines upon this place, the thick cloud wherein God appeared, and out of which he ſpake, and from which thoſe fearfull thunder-claps, and flaſhes of lightning, proceeded, Exod. 19. 16, 18, 20. & 18. 20, 21. did withall pour down ſuch ſhowrs of rain, as in ſuch caſe is wont to be, that the mountains all about, nor Sinai alone, but mount Paran, Hab. 3. 3. Mount Seir, Deut. 2. 5. and others, did run down with ſtreams of water. And we find indeed ſomewhat the like to have been at the paſſage of Gods people thorow the red ſea, and the ſubmerſion of Pharao and his forces, that purſued them, Judg. 5. 4. Pſal. 68. 8, 9. & 77. 17. but of any ſuch ſhowres that ſhould be at the time of the giving the Law, I read not: Nor ſeems it very probable, if any ſuch were, that they ſhould reach ſo far, as to Mount-Paran, and to Mount-Seir, much leſs, ſo far diſtant from Sinai. But I ſuppoſe the word rend ed, flowed down, as deemed to come from one commonly uſed of waters, Job 36. 28. Pſal. 147. 18. Jer. 9. 18. would, in this place, at leaſt, be rendred, ran down, or melted, as in the like argument, where that word is queſtionleſs uſed, it is rendred, The mountains melted at his preſence, Judg. 5. 5. And as the Pſalmiſt, though uſing another word there, The mountains melted like wax, at the preſence of the Lord, Pſal. 97. 5. Here ſo the rather, if not in regard of the foregoing reſemblance of the melting of metals, ver. 2. becauſe that is by ſome queſtioned; and the word is here in ſomewhat another form, then that in the other place, ſo rendred: yet ſo that it is by a Jewiſh Critick conceived to come from a root, that ſignifies, as by melting to waſte, whence a river is ſo termed, Deut. 21. 20. Prov. 23. 21. becauſe by riotous courſes, he melteth, and waſteth away his means. And though it ſhould not be denied, but that the words might have an eye to that dreadfull ſight on Sinai; yet rather with reference to the five, and the flaſhings of it, then to any water, or floods thereof, that ſhould at that time be ſeen. And it may well be deemed, that there is withall ſome alluſion, to the uſuall manner of thoſe burning hills, ſuch as Etna in Sicily, Soma in Italy, Hecla, and Hogla in Iceland, which breaking out, are wont to run down with ſtreams of fire, and ſulphury matter, into the ſeas beſide them, and valleys beneath them. Nor is it unlikely, but that, as in thoſe Egyptian tempeſts, it is ſaid, that the fire ran along upon the ground, Exod. 9. 23. ſo in that terrible apparition, the mountain which was all on a flame, Deut. 4. 11. did run down with fire, as if it had been melted and diſſolved therewith; as it is ſaid, that in the generall execution of Gods vengeance upon his enemies, the mountains ſhould be melted with their blood; that is, they ſhould run down with ſuch ſtreams of bloud, as if they were melted therewith, or diſſolved thereinto, Chap. 34. 3. Nor is it needfull, becauſe mention is made of mountains; that therefore we ſhould have recourſe unto thoſe more remote ones. There ſeemeth to have been a cluſter, or combination of mountains in that place, the two principall and higheſt whereof being Sinai, and Horeb, and they joyning much and neer together, the place in the Mount, on which God ſo appeared, is ſometime called Mount-Horeb, Exod. 3. 1. & 33. 6. Deut. 4. 10, 15. & 5. 2. ſometime Mount-Sinai, Exod. 19. 11, 18, 20, 23. of Seir, and Moriah, fee ſomewhat the like, on Chap. 2. 2. & 14. 13. Howbeit, in regard that that apparition on Mount Sinai was not intended for ſuch for a terrour unto Gods enemies, as to ſtrike a reverent awe, and dread of his Majeſty, into his own people, Exod. 20. 19, 20. Deut. 5. 29. I conceive the words here to have reſpect, not unto that alone, but unto other Gods majeſtical manifeſtations of himſelf in dreadfull manner about thoſe times, for the preſervation of his people, and in way of oppoſition to their adverſaries, and unto that more ſpecially before-mentioned, when Pharao purſued them, being then neer the brink of the red ſea, having gotten them, as he thought there, in a trap, Exod. 14. 3. at Pihahiroth, that is, at the mouth of the mountains (ſo the word ſignifies) between the jaws whereof they ſeemed to be ſhut up, no way left to eſcape, but by ruſhing into the Sea, wherein they muſt of neceſſity periſh, Exod. 14. 3, 9. and the mountains there mentioned, may well be thoſe among others, between which they paſſed neighbouring to neer upon that place, where that admirable deliverance was wrought for Gods people, with ſo remarkable a deſtruction of their inſolent adverſaries. See Hab. 3. 3-15. I ſhall propound but one conjecture more, which I ſhall leave to the conſideration of the learned. I obſerve that an Interpreter, of ſpeciall note, carrieth the latter part of this verſe, to the beginning of the firſt, the words being in either place preciſely the ſame: and renders the words, as there; ſo in here; Oh that (I ſay) thou wouldeſt ſo come down, that the mountains might run down at thy preſence: ſo the whole tenor of the context between the one and the other ſhould be inferred by way of parentheſis; which if it be admitted, I ſuppoſe that the former words of this verſe might not improbably be deemed to have reference unto that ſtrange, and indeed unexpected (in all likelihood, for the manner of it) defeat given unto Sennacheribs army before Jeruſalem, and the deliverance of the city and ſtate, thereby produced, Chap. 37. 36. and then the mountains here mentioned, might have ſome eye alſo unto thoſe mountains, on which God threatned to tread down the Aſſyrian, Chap. 14. 25. See the lively deſcription of that defeat, Chap. 30. 27, 33. Howſoever, they ſtray from the genuine ſenſe of the text, that would by mountains have here underſtood, mighty men, or great Potentates; as Chap. 2. 14. drawing hither that, chap. 33. 10-12. which is but to ſow together things unſuitable.

V. 4. For from the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye ſeen, O God, beſides thee, what he hath prepared for him, that waiteth for him.] Or, Nor have men ever heard, or heard of; nor hath any eye ſeen a God beſides thee that hath done, or can do ſo for him, that waiteth for him. Theſe two Verſions exhibit, though not all the particular, yet the principall differences, ab ut the ſenſe of this paſſage. It is not without juſt cauſe deemed to be here brought in, as in the perſon of Gods people, to intimate, that they wanted not ſome good ground to ſolicite God to do for them, as they here deſire, in their preſent diſtreſs; becauſe they knew him to be ſuch a God, as was able to do for thoſe that depended upon him, as no other was ever known to do for his people; or becauſe thoſe wonderful works that he had done, could do, and would do, for thoſe that relied and reſted upon him, were ſuch, as no humane eye, or ear, had ever either ſeen, or heard. See Chap. 66. 8.

For] Heb. And; as Chap. 63. 8.

from the beginning of the world] Heb. from the world; whence a Rabbine here expounds it, the people of the world; as the boar from the wood, for, of the wood, Pſal. 80. 13. but I find not where this form is ſo uſed: It is rendred ſometime, from everlaſting, (which ſeems a very improper ſpeech) or, from eternity, Pſa. 8. 23. Pſal. 90. 2. Chap. 63. 16. ſometime, from of old, Gen. 6. 4 Chap. 7. 11. or, in old time, Joſh. 24. 2. and ever of old, Chap. 25. 6. (where the one ſeems ſuperfluous) and with the negative, never, Chap. 63. 19. and may well be ſo rendred here.

men have not heard] Men is not in the text: the Jewiſh Maſter before-mentioned; they of the world have not heard; but the verb ſeems indefinite, they have not heard; and the noun, faith another of them, is included in the verb; the hearers, or they that hear, have not heard; as, they embalmed him, that is, the embalmers embalmed him, Gen. 50. 26. or, more plainly, they have not heard, that is, there hath not been heard; as, they ſhall call them, for they ſhall be called, Mal. 1. 4.

nor perceived by the ear] This word, as it is oft joyned with the former, Deut. 32. 21. Pſal. 49. 1. Chap. 1. 10. & 28. 24. & 51. 4. ſo they are much of the ſame notion the one with the other: yet ſome here ſo diſtinguiſh them, as if the one implyed the hearing of a thing immediately; the other, a receiving it by report from others. So that whereas there be three ordinary means, by which men come to notice of things; either by hearing them immediately themſelves, or by hear-ſay from others, or by eye-ſight; all three ſhould be here excluded: whereunto the Apoſtle ſeeming to have an eye to this paſſage, addeth a fourth, 1 Cor. 2. 9. the diſcourſe of reaſon; nor hath entred into mans heart: but that alſo receiveth ſtill ſome ground from ſenſe. Now theſe two branches, or this branch rather conſiſting of two ſprigs, ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters ſeem to refer unto the terrible things mentioned ver. 3. ſuch, as the like before, had never been heard, Chap. 48. 6. See Deut. 4. 32-34.

neither hath the eye ſeen, O God, beſides thee] That is, as thoſe that go this way, which ſome alſo of the Jewiſh Writers do; no humane eye, or ſenſe, ever was able to reach, or apprehend, the things things that God intended, to do for his, before he did them; or that he intended to do, before they be done, though to God himſelf they were well known before, Act. 15. 18. to which purpoſe, the Apoſtle alſo ſeemeth to apply them, 1 Cor. 2. 9, 11. Others read them, no eye hath ever (ſuppleyed from the former branch) ſeen God beſide thee: there was never any ſuch a God heard, (as Deut. 4. 35, 35, 36. & 5. 24.) or heard of, (as 1 King. 8. 42.) or ſeen (Deut. 4. 36.) that hath done or can do, the like things that God, hath. See Pſal. 66. 8. & 89. 6, 8.

what he hath prepared] Heb. what he will do, or hath done; for the tenſes are oft promiſcuouſly uſed: yet the word is ſometime rendred, to prepare, as Ezek. 46. 2. and ſo our Tranſlators here give it, the rather, I ſuppoſe, becauſe the Apoſtle uſeth that term, 1 Cor. 2. 9. though the ancient Greek hath it not: And they are miſtaken therefore, who ſay, that the Apoſtle here followed them. Thoſe that take the word God, before it, in the vocative caſe, are entorced here to acknowledge a change of the perſon, he hath prepared, or done, for, thou haſt prepared, or done; or, he will do, for, thou wilt do: as hope hath deſired, for, they have deſired, chap. 1. 29. and, thou that teareſt thy ſelf, for, teareſt thy ſelf, Job 18. 4. thoſe that make it an accuſative, as a governed caſe, do not alter the perſon, but inſert the word ſo, that hath to done, or can ſo do: the former ſupply both the antecedent and the relative, included in the word what; that is, that, or thoſe things, which, as the like is, verſ. 5. & Jer. 2. 8, 11. the latter, the relative only, as before, verſe 3. that, or which, (to wit, God) hath done, will do, or can do; for the indicatives are oft in a potential notion. See on chap. 49. 15. Some of either take the words in the time paſt; as meant of acts already done: ſo doth the old Latine. Others take them, in the time to come; ſo doth the ancient Greek. And from ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, we have an hint given us, that ſome of their ancienter Doctors expounded them, of the times of the Meſſias, & matters under him, to be effected. On which, the Apoſtle is alſo commonly ſuppoſed to underſtand them (ſee chap. 2 16.) as being of the mind, that no prophecies went beyond the Meſſias his dayes. But others of them underſtood them, as they profeſs alſo to do, of the world to come. I agree to them, that hold the text to have an eye to what God had formerly done for his people; ſuch things, as no other God had ever been known to have done, or was able to do. See chap. 41. 21-29. & 43. 9-13. And this is confirmed by that which followeth, running on in the ſame ſtrain, v. 5. The Apoſtle ſeemeth to have made uſe of the Prophets words, applying them to his preſent diſcourſe, as he doth thoſe other of the Pſalmiſt, Rom. 10. 18. borrowed from Pſal. 19. 4.

for him that waiteth for him] For him; or, for them, (and the Apoſtle hath it in the plural) for the word is taken either collective-ly, for all thoſe, or diſtributively, for any one of them: The like ſee verſ. 5. & chap. 17. 15. that waiteth for him or for thee: If there be ſuch a change of the perſon, as was before intimated, and the true God be here intended, for thoſe that patiently wait, and depend upon thee, chap. 8. 17. & 28. 16. & 30. 18. or, that waiteth for him; to wit, on any other god beſides thee; as Baals Prieſts did on him, who could not do for them, as the true God did for Elias, 1 King. 18. 26, 29, 36-38. But the other alſo, according to this expoſition, is thus gh not expreſſed, yet implied; for when it is ſaid, no other God hath ever been known beſides thee, that hath done, or can do ſo for them, that expect help from them: It is plainly intimated, that God had done, and could do ſtrange things, for thoſe that rely upon him; and that ſometime, even beyond their expectation, as it is v. 3. For what is here ſaid, that wait on him, the Apoſtle hath, That love him. And indeed, as none truly wait on him, but thoſe that ſincerely love him; ſo all that truly love him, are content, and willing to wait on him for them. See 2 Tim. 4. 8. with Heb. 9 28. Jam. 1. 12. Nor do I doubt but the Apoſtle had an eye to this place; howſoever the Ancients ſome of them have not ſticked to affirm, that the teſtimony alledged by him, is not at all found in the Books of the Old Teſtament; and ſome, both of them, and of later times, would have it taken out of ſome Apocryphall Writing, going under the name of Elias; as of that of Jude, verſ. 14. out of the like of Enoch: but ſuch baſe counterfeits the Apoſtle would ſcorn to own, or to grace, as theſe contemptible allegations they do.

V. 5. Thou meeteſt him that rejoyceth, and worketh righteouſneſs, thoſe that remember thee in thy ways.] Or, Thou didſt meet him that rejoyced and wrought righteouſneſs; and, or even, thoſe that remembred thee in thy ways: For it ſeemeth a continuation of their commemoration of Gods dealings, for, and with, his people in times paſt.

Thou meeteſt] Or, didſt meet: haaſt wont to meet. The word here uſed, is diverly taken, ſometime, in a notion of kindneſſe, and reconcilement, as the Prodigals father ran to meet him while he was yet afar off, Luke 15. 20. and as we uſe to ſay, I will meet him half way; when we are willing, upon equal terms, to come to an accord with one, with whom we have been at variance: ſo moſt take the word here. Thou didſt in former times, meet our forefathers in mercy and goodneſſe, thou didſt freely of thine own accord, ſhew them abundance of kindneſſe, and didſt prevent them, even unasked, with thy favours, Pſalm. 21. 2, 3. or, as moſt of the Jewiſh Commenters, When thou waſt diſpleaſed with thy people, yet didſt thou accept of the interceſſion of thoſe righteous ones, that were among them in their behalf, Exod. 32. 11-14. Numb. 14. 13, 20. Pſalm. 99. 6-8. Of this uſe of the word, ſee on chap. 47. 3. & 53. 12. & 59. 16. But the former ſenſe ſeemeth more natural, this later more ſtrained; ſcarce finding any clear inſtance to back it: that yet more conſtrained, which they relate from ſome other of their maſters; who becauſe they find this word, of meeting, not ſeldom uſed, in a contrary notion, as we alſo uſe it, when we ſay of one, whom we intend ſome ſhrewd turn to, I will meet with him; & ſignifies, to run on, or fall ſoul, as we uſe to ſay, upon one, Num. 35. 19, 21. 2 Sam. 1. 15. 1 King. 2. 29. whereof alſo, ſee on chap. 47. 3. would have it here ſo to ſignifie, Thou didſt ſlay, or, take away, or, Thou haſt ſlain, or, taken away, the righteous ones: Underſtanding in ſome of them, of the times paſt, of Moſes and Aaron, whom God took away, when as yet, at their entreaty, he had ſpared, and deſtroyed not, the mutinous multitude, Num. 20. 12, 24. Others, of the time preſent, that God had taken away all the godly ones, that might ſtand in the gap, to intercede for his people: the complaint of the Prophet, that lived in the ſame times with Eſay, Mic. 7. 1. See chap. 59. 16. verſ. 7. but neither doth the word it ſelf, in the places produced, ſignifie to take away, or to ſlay, though joyned with thoſe, that ſo ſignifie; nor is the ſyntax here, the ſame with that there uſed; and cannot therefore here have place.

him, that rejoyceth, and worketh righteouſneſs] Or, him that rejoyced, and wrought righteouſneſs. This ſome Jewiſh Writers underſtand as ſpoken of Abraham: Thou waſt beneficial to Abraham, that rejoyced in thy favour, and walked uprightly, Gen. 15. 1. & 17. 1, 17. Others of Moſes & Aaron, as was before hinted. But the word, though ſingular, yet doth not deſign any one particular perſon, or perſons; but is indefinite, as the like in the cloſe of verſ. 4. The term of rejoycing, ſome refer to the word, before going, and render the words, Thou didſt meet with joy, him, or them, that wrought righteouſneſs. But, beſide, that they take no notice of the copulative, the word here uſed, is never a noun; ever, either a verb, as chap. 66. 14. or a participle, as Pſalm 119. 162. and ſo here. Others, therefore generally joyn it and the next epithet together; but ſo as they take this former in divers notions; for ſome underſtand it of the outward eſtate of the perſons intended: rejoycing, that is, being in a cheerfull and proſperous condition, as oppoſed unto the ſad eſtate, wherein themſelves were at preſent. But the moſt rather conceive it meant of their inward diſpoſition, that rejoyced, and wrought righteouſneſs, that is, that rejoyced to work righteouſneſs, (ſee the like, chap. 61. 5.) that ſerved thee cheerfully, and delighted in well-doing. Deut. 16. 11, 14, 15. & 28. 47. Pſalm 2. 11. & 37. 4. & 68. 3. & 112. 1. chap. 58. 13. of the phraſe, working righteouſneſs, ſee on chap. 56. 1.

thoſe that remember thee in thy wayes] Some read theſe words, in the future, they will remember thee in thy wayes; ſo the meaning ſhould be, thy people, who at preſent being at liberty, and in proſperity, regard thee not, nor look after thee; yet when they ſhall be in diſtreſs, and under reſtraint, will then think upon thee, and ſeek to thee for relief, chap. 26. 16. Lev. 26. 39. Jer. 2. 31, 32. & 22. 23. Pſal. 78. 31. Dan. 9. 4. Hoſ. 5. 15. Others in the preſent, as our verſion, but moſt in the time paſt; Yet ſo, that ſome diſtinguiſh theſe from the former, rendring the words with a ſupply of the copulative; and thoſe that remembred thee in thy wayes, that is, thou didſt deal graciouſly, not with thoſe alone, that in times of proſperity had walked uprightly before thee; but with thoſe alſo, who when thy judgements were upon them, being thereby reclaimed and reformed, did then mind thee, and ſue to thee for mercy, chap. 26. 8, 9. Deut. 30. 1, 2, 3. Pſal. 22. 27. 2 Chr. 15. 4. But others rather conceive theſe to be the ſame perſons with the former, by another character further deciphered, and render the text therefore with the ſupply of an explicative; even thoſe that remembred thee in thy wayes: ſuch as were conſtantly mindful of thee, and of their duty to thee, according to the divers paſſages of thy providence about them, as well to praiſe thee in proſperity, as to pray unto thee in adverſity, to ſerve and to bleſs thee in both, chap. 26. 13. Deut. 8. 11, 19. Job 1. 8, 21. & 2. 3. & 13. 15. & 27. 3-6. Pſal. 44. 17, 18. the wayes here mentioned, ſeeming to be rather wayes of providence, and diſpoſal, then wayes of injunction, and direction; as thoſe, Pſa. 119. 1, 2. & 128. 1. whether way we take it, there is in the text a defect both of the antecedent, and relative; ſuch as before, v. 4. as alſo of the copulative, according to the one, as chap. 63. 7, 10. of the explicative according to the other, as chap. 51. 22. & 57. 2. though there want not here, that ſupply, ſome, the cauſal, reading the words, becauſe they remembred thee in thy wayes: others, the illative therefore, or, then, they praiſed thee for thy wayes: for thoſe thy dealings with them, as chap. 57. 17. Of the uſe of the word, remember, ſee on chap. 12. 4. But I adhere rather to the laſt of thoſe before mentioned.

or, when thou art wroth; because we have sinned; by those, or, for those, (to wit, such righteous ones, were they alwayes among us,) we also might ever, or, as of old, be saved. Among ours, some, Behold, thou art wroth; and we sin still, in them (to wit, our sins,) have we alwayes been; or, against them (to wit, thy wayes, thy precepts) have we ever sinned; and yet have we been saved: as Psal. 106.6 & Neh.9.26-28. or, as some, and how should we be saved? as Ezek. 33. 10. Others, behold, thou art wroth; because we have sinned; in those (thy wayes) had we ever been, we also had been saved: had we continued in thy wayes, as they did, we had been saved from those miseries, wherein now are, Deut. 30 20. Chap. 26. 16. or, had we remembred thee, or, been mindful of thee, perpetually, in those (thy wayes) we also had been saved. Others, reckoning it to God; in those (thy wayes) is continuance, that we may be saved: (and, for, that; as Chap. 53. 2. and so Psal. 80. 3.) thou continuest constant in those thy courses with us, to work thereby our salvation, Rom. 2. 4. 1 Cor. 11. 32. Others, but in those (thy wayes) thou art ever, therefore are we saved; or, therefore we shall be saved: (the copulative, in an illative notion; as Chap. 48. 7.) thou continuest constant in thy mercy and goodnesse; and that is the reason, why we are not yet destroyed: or, it is that that putteth us in hope, that thou wilt yet save, and deliver us, out of our present difficulties. Lam. 3. 21, 22. Mal. 3. 6. Divers other expositions there are; but these have authors of note, and may seem more then enow. I concur with that latter of the Jewish Doctors; the rather, for that it suiteth best with what followeth, ver. 6, 7.

behold,] Or, if; as Jer. 1. 10. and, if, for, when; as Psal. 63, 6. or, though: as Job 13. 15.

thou art wroth] A degree above anger: when thou art, or, though thou beest, grievously angry. So Chap. 47. 6. & 57. 16, 17. ver. 9 for we have sinned] Heb. and: here, for; as Psal. 60. 11. & 108. 12. Chap. 53. 2, 11. or, because, rather; as Chap. 57. 17. 2 Sam. 24. 1. because one had moved David; or, David had been moved: where this use of the particle observed, would help much to cleer that place; because we have sinned, or, do sin, (as 1 King. 8. 46.) and provoke thee unto wrath, by our sins: though one of the Jewish Criticks, (to intimate, that sin goeth before wrath, and wrath cometh after sin,) would have the notion of it here, not because, but after; as Exod. 14. 21. and made the sea dry-land, and (that is, after) the waters were divided: and, Exod. 16. 20. and it bred worms, and putrified; that is, after it had putrified: and so here; thou art wroth, and we have sinned; that is, after we have sinned; not beforet but this seems somewhat nice; and the other is more familiar, and frequent.

in those] Or, by those; as Chap. 38. 16. or, for those: as Chap. 47. 9. & 57. 17.

is continuance] The Hebrew word here used, is very general; it hath in it a notion sometimes of eternity; sometime, of antiquity; sometime, of perpetuity; sometime, of duiturnity, durability, continuance, constancy: whence it cometh to be rendred, sometime, of old; sometime, for ever. So verf. 4. here, whether it be understood of the time past, or present, it may be rendred the former way: a defect of some particle there is, which way soever it be rended; as the like is, Psal. 89. 1, 2. Nor do I see why there may not the note of similitude, be supplyed; that it might be rendred, as of old; according to that, Lam. 5. 21. Mic. 6. 14.

and we shall be saved] Or, by them of old yet we were saved; or, for them, yet are of old, we might be saved: and, for, yet; as Chap. 42. 25. & 46. 7. the practice is transposed: as chap. 17. 14. 2 King. 2. 14. Job 23. 12. God might still in mercy, either at their instance, or in times past, (see on ver. 4.) or, in respect of them, or, out of favour to them, be induced to spare us: as Gen. 18. 32. had we any such now among us. See Jer. 5. 1.

V. 6. But we are all as an unclean thing] Or, rather, unclean person; because the terme is masculine. Their present wretched, and forlorn condition, is in this verse, and the next described; as opposed to the state and condition of those, that were beforementioned, ver. 4, 5. In former times there were such among Gods people, that walked uprightly, and were in special grace, and favour with God; for whose sake God conferred many blessings upon them, and that helped, when God was at any time displeased with them, being provoked to wrath by their sins, to make up the breach between him, and them, Psal. 106. 23. but those righteous, and godly ones, are now all gone, Jer. 5. 1. Mic. 7. 2. Psal. 12. 1. there is such an universal corruption of all sorts with us, that the main body of our people seemeth no other, then a lump of some filthy matter; such unclean stuff, as by the Law was to be burnt, or, abandoned, Lev. 13. 55, 57 & 14. 45, 46. or, like some leprous person, one overspread with leprosie, or some other foul, and loathsome malady from top to toe; such an one as is deferibed, Chap. 1. 4. and very unfit therefore to appear in Gods presence, deserving rather to be sequestred from his sight; as the leper, and persons unclean otherwise, were shut out of the Camp, and secluded from ordinary society with men, Levit. 13. 45, 46. Num. 5. 23. & 12. 14. 2 Chron. 26. 20, 21. of such general defections, see Psal. 12. 3. Jer. 9. 2, 2. Chap. 59. 3, 4. the scope is to shew, that it is not to be marvelled, if God, who is of so pure eyes, Hab. 1. 13. cannot endure to look upon such polluted creatures; if none be found fit to intercede with him for the rest; when they are generally all to desired. See ver. 7.

and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags:] There is no small debate about the subject of this proposition, the word, righteousnesses: and great variety of opinion, concerning the attribute the word rendred, filthy rags. By the former, to wit, righteous ffes, some understand those legal rites, ceremonies, and sacrifices, in the observation, and performance whereof, they deemed their righteousnesses to consist, (see Chap. 57. 12.) but were so performed by them, that they found no grace, or acceptance, with God, yea, were very loathsome, and abominable in his sight, Chap. 1. 11-14. & 66. 3. the Jewish Commenters give the word a larger extent; the good works, say they, that they did in those times, were done, either out of vain glory, to gain applause, or, out of emulation, to out-strip one another; or out of other like corrupt grounds, and other like sinister ends, which made them such in Gods sight, as is here said. Such were the Pharisees both devotion, and almsdeeds, Mat. 6. 2, 5. & 23. 5. and so some preached the Gospel, Phil. 1. 15, 16. See 1 Cor. 13. Many of ours draw it out further, and take in all the best works and actions, even of the best, and in the best manner performed, as not free from some default, and desilement, that might deservedly render them, such as is here implyed, in Gods sight, if he should look narrowly, into them, and deem of them, according to the exact tenour, and rigour, of his Law, Rom. 7. 21. And thus both divers of the Ancients, and very many, not Protestant only, but Popish Writers also, not a few, do both expound, and apply the place; these latter, with those Ancients, giving testimony thereby, unto the truth, herein maintained, by us, against those of their side, that do therein controll, and oppose us. Some yet further enlarge the subject matter here mentioned, as comprehending the natural constitution and condition of all mankind, being fin, by breeding and birth, as is deferibed, Eccl. 8. 16. 4. 6. But herein for the genuine sense of the place, others of ours, and those of chief note, depart both from these, and the former, advisedly obferving, that the Prophets intendment here, is to make acknowledgment of such enormious evils, not bare inbred vitiosity, or, defects, of meer infirmity, but vile, and abominable practices, as had incensed the wrath of God against his people, to such an height of heat, as to cast them out of their land, and to leave them unto a long, tedious, and grievous captivity. That which induced those, both ancienter, and late Writers, to bring within compasse of this doom, in this place, those defects, and defaults, adhering to, and allowing the purest practises of the most sincere, seems to have been; because the Prophet saith, our righteousnesses; as speaking in his own person, and putting himself in among the rest. But they obfe ve not what one of the Jewish Doctors suggesteth, that the Prophets, (which, saith he, they learned from Moses, Exod. 34. 9.) speak often in the person of the people, as their mouth to God; and yet withall comprising themselves in what they speak, as members of that body, in whose person they speak, as taking to heart, and affected with the evils, that do generally, either inseet, or inseft, that body, as if therein they partaked with them; albeit they were wholly free from them themselves. So Ezr. 9. 6, 7, 10, 15. Dan. 9. 5, 6, 10, 11. The words may well be understood with those Jewish Doctors, (whom some of our best Interpreters herein condelcend unto) of those outward semblances of holinesse and righteousnesse, that some among them, in those times, might sometime make some flourish of, when they were inwardly full of nothing but filth, and corruption, and their very lives also otherwise very vile and abominable, as it was with some of the Pharisees, Mat. 23. 14, 23-28. Howbeit, I conceive the genuine sense of the place, to be other then is commonly received, and to speak rather of the persons themselves, compared one with another, though in regard of their properties, and practices, then of the properties, and practices of the same persons, collated some of them, with some other: by our righteousnesses, therefore I take to be meant, the most righteous of us, or among us; it is no unusual thing in Scripture, to put the abstract for the concrete. So, wisdome, for a man of wisdome, a wise man, Mic. 6. 9. folly, for, a woman of folly; a foolish woman, Prov. 14. 1. peace, for, a man of peace; a peaceable man, Psal. 120. 7. strength, for, men of strength; strong men, Chap. 3. 25. pride, for, men of pride, proud men, Psal. 36. 11. now these abstracts in a plural form, enhance the notion of the word to a superlative degree: as, most proper, for the greatest, and most fearfull person, Prov. 1. 20. & 9. 2. and, a man of understandings, for, a man of very great understanding, Prov. 11. 12. and nearer home yet to our purpose, desires, or, delights, for, a man of desires, or delights; (as it is more fully expressed, Dan. 10. 11, 19.) one very much desired, or delighted, in, Dan. 9. 23. for what is there rended, greatly beloved, is no more in the Hebrew, then, desires, or, delights: and, the spouse of her love, Cant. 5. 16. he all, or, all of him, is desires, or, delights: that is, he is altogether most desireable, or, most delightful; (it is rendred, altogether goodly) or, there is nothing but most desireable, or delightful, in him: in like manner here, as righteousnesse is by our Interpreters deemed to signifie, a man of righteousnesse, or, a righteous man, Chap. 41. 2. (but of that, see there) so here, righteousnesses, for, men of righteousnesses; that is, men of the greatest righrighteousnesse; the most righteous among us; those that seem, or are deemed, the very best among us, are no better then some unclean things, (as he said, some unclean person before) or such as is here further inflanced. This exposition I gather from a parallel place of a Prophet, contemporous to Esay, Mic. 6. 7. where the Prophet having complained of a generall defection in the State; the pious man is perished out of the land; and not an upright one left among men, all lie in wait for blood, they hunt every man his brother with a net, ver. 2. that is, by joyneth, verf. 4. the best of them is a briar, the upright is sharper then a thorny hedge; worse to deal with, he meaneth. See 2 Sam. 23. 6, 7. it is true, there is no more in the text, then good, and upright: but the words are aright rendred, best, and upright; for these positives with the Hebrews, when they are used by way of collation, if the collation be of one person, or party, with some one other, make up the first degree of comparison, which we call the comparative; when with more then one, the second, which we call the superlative. So the great Shall serve the little; that is, the greater, or elder shall serve the less, or younger, Gen. 25. 23. because spoken only of two; and, of Japhet, the great, for, the greatest, or, eldest, Gen. 10. 21. 85, of Cham, the little; that is, the least, of Noahs three, Gen. 9. 24. as Micah therefore saith there, the best, and uprightest, among them; to Esay, here, the most righteous of us; speaking of the same people, both the one, and the other.

as filthy rags] He said in general before, of his people, that they were, the whole body of them, as some unclean person, some leper, or the like; he proceedeth now to shew more particularly what the very best of them were like. Concerning the notion of the word here used, and not else-where read, as also concerning the notation of it, there is great variety of opinions, even among the Jewish Criticks themselves. Some of them render it, a coat of patches, or rags; a beggers coat made up of rags, of old cloth, worn out, and cast away; from a Chaldee word that so signifies. Others, a garment defiled with blood, from a word that signifies prey, or spoil, Gen. 49. 24. for that garments so taken from ravenous beasts, or, by men in fight, are usually such, Gen. 37. 31, 33. chap. 9. 5. See Lam. 4. 14, 15. Others, a clout of sores; a clout, or rag, pulled off from some matury sore; from a Chaldee word so fignifying, Lev. 13. 2. Others, the cloth, or sheet, mentioned, Deut. 22. 15, 17. from a term that imports effluxion. Others, a birth clout, or cloth used about child-birth; from a Chaldee word fignifying to bear, or be with child, Gen. 4. 1. Others, lastly, a cloth, or cloth of separations, or, a menstruous cloth, or clout; as coming from a word, that fignifies, both in Hebrew and Chaldee, as before, to put away, or to remove and separate, Prov. 25. 20. Dan. 2. 21. and as having affinity with another word of that notion, Ezek. 7. 19, 20. & 36. 17. and this moft pitch upon; the old Latine among others, and our oldeft Englith: Nor is the Greek deemed to entend other, when it rendereth it, as a sitting woman, being fuppofed to have an eye to that of Rachel, Gen. 31. 34, 35. Now the Chaldee, who rendereth it an abominable thing in general; but hath a word, in particular designing this, derived from it. And to some such loathsome and naftly ftuff, in all likelihood, doth the Prophet compare the moft righteous among the main multitude of his people. See chap. 30. 22. Lam. 1. 17.

And we all fade as a leaf,] A juft confequent of this their sinfull and polluted condition: we are thrown all of us down; and carried away into captivity.

and] Or, therefore; as chap. 12. 3. & 47. 8.

we all fade] Or, fall; or, we are all faded, or fallen: for though the word here used, be commonly fuppofed to fignifie the former only, (whereof yet no proof can be made, because it is no where elfe found in the form here used) yet that root, which it hath very neer affinity with, and it is by fome of the Jewish Criticks referred unto, doth frequently imply both, to fade, and to fall. See chap. 28. 1, 4. we are, not with the bleffed man, like the tree, whole leaf never faideth, nor falleth. Pfalm 1. 3. but with thofe curfed wretches, Jer. 17. 5, 6. like a tree whofe leaves fade, and fhed, chap. 1. 30. or, rather, we are altogether like a company of fuch leaves of trees, that at time of year fhed them, as fade, and fall to the ground, at the beginning of Winter, in the eighth month, Bull, 1 King. 6. 38. fo termed from the word here ufed; becaufe then the leaves of fuch trees begin to fade, and fall; though fome from the other root, in regard of the rains that fall then. See Pfalm. 37. 2. & 90. 5, 6.

and our iniquities like the wind have taken us away.] We are for our iniquities hurried out of our land, and carried away captive, as fuch withered leaves; or other fuch like dry and light ftuff, carried away with fome bluftering guft of wind in a ftorm. See the like, chap. 57. 13. Jer. 4. 11. Hof. 4. 19.

taken us away] Heb. taken us up: but the word withall implies, fometime, having taken up, to bring away. So the Eaft-wind is faid to have brought in the locufts, Exod. 10. 13. fometime, having taken up to carry away: And fo the Weft-wind is faid to have carried them away, Exod. 10. 19. and in this latter notion is it here taken. They were by the wind of God's wrath fo their fins taken up, and carried into Chaldea; as the Prophet was fometime by the Spirit of God taken up in Chaldea, and carried from thence to Jerufalem, Ezek. 8. 3.

V. 7. And there is none that calleth upon thy name, that stirreth up himself to take hold of thee:] Amidft thefe our troubles, or notwithftanding them, there are very few, or none among us, that feek unto thee as they fhould; or that put out themfelves, to endeavour by any means, to pacifie thy wrath, and procure thy gracious return again to us.

none] Not fimply none, for fome godly in all times; but fo few, that they are not feen, they appear not, they are drowned in the multitude. So Pfalm 14. 3.

that calleth upon thy name] that addreffeth himfelf unto thee, for the redreffe and removall of thefe evils, Pfalm 14. 4. chap. 43. 22. Dan. 9. 13. Hof. 7. 7, 14.

ftirreth up himself to take hold of thee] Either to ftay thee with us; when thou threatneft departure; (as when he ftood on the threfhold of the Temple, Ezek. 10. 4.) as they preffed our Saviour to ftay with them, Luke 24. 28, 29. or, to induce thee to return in mercy again to us, fince thou haft withdrawn thy felf from us, Jer. 12, 7. Ezek. 10. 18, 19. See chap. 59. 11.

for thou hast hid thy face from us] Or, though thou haft hid thy face from us, as the particle is ufed, Pfal. 23. 4. chap. 53. 8. Or, as fome, when thou didft hide thy face from us, as the fame particle is ufed, Job 5, 21. Pfal. 75. 2. Joel 2. 20. And this later reading feems very probable, thus knitting this with the former; Neither were they any that called upon thy name, nor that ftirred up himself to take hold of thee, when thou didft hide thy face from us. When at firft thou beganneft to manifeft thy difpleafure towards us, by withdrawing the light of thy countenance from us. See chap. 8. 17. & 57. 17.

and hast consumed us,] Or, didft consume us; as before. Heb melt us, or diffolve us, Job 30. 22. chap. 14. 31. Ezek 21. 7.

because of our iniquities] That were before faid to carry them away. Heb. in the hand; that is, in the room, or place of our iniquities, in the land where they were committed, while we were yet in our own countrey: fo is the word ufed, chap. 56. 5. or, by the hand, that is, by means of our iniquities as chap. 62. 3.

V. 8. But now, O Lord,] After this dolefull deploration of this their finfull and fad condition, followeth a pathetical imploration of favour and mercy, which they make way unto, or entrance into, by minding of God, or themfelves rather, (thereby to raife within themfelves, the better bope of fpeeding and prevailing with God) of that fpeciall relation that God had unto them, as a Father. So the prodigal, Luke 15. 17, 18.

But] Or, yet; as chap. 17. 6. though we have carried our felves thus ungraciously, and unworthily, towards thee, Deut. 32. 5, 6.

thou art our Father,] A very pithy and affectionate compellation, by a fweet and compaffionate appellation, Pfa. 103. 13. fo David to Saul, 1 Sam. 24. 11. See now my Father. See chap. 63. 16.

we are the clay, and thou art our potter,] Or, we were clay, and thou waft our potter, or the framer of us; that is, when we were at firft but as a lump of clay, a rude mafs, without form or fhape, a confufed multitude, thou didft mould and faftion us into a State, both Civil and Eccleftaftical, into a body politick, into a Church, chap. 43. 1, 7, 21. & 44. 2, 21, 24. a metaphor taken from the Potters employment; (as thofe other forms alfo, though to another purpofe, chap. 29. 16, Jer. 18. 6.) but having withall fome eye to the manner of Gods framing mans body at firft, Gen. 2. 7. as alfo to the faftioning of it, ftill in the womb, Job 10. 8-12. & 31. 15. Pfalm 119. 73. & 139. 13-16. Jer. 1. 5.

we all are the work of thine hands.] Not as we are men only, or of Adams pofterity; but as by thy fpecial procurement we are made a people, yea, a peculiar people for thy felf, chap. 43. 21. an argument that God himfelf ufeth to fhew, why he would not, yea, could not, forget them, chap. 44. 21. and that his people are wont to prefs him with, thereby to perfwade him the rather to fpare them, Job 10. 8, 9. Pfal. 138. 8.

V. 9. Be not wroth very sore, O Lord,] It will not ftand with the tender affection of a parent, to be over-fierce, over-rough, or rigorous, to his child, to fcourge him over-much, or over long. Heb. Be not wroth unto much, or to extremity; though thou beeft wroth, becaufe we have given thee juft caufe of wrath by our fins, verf. 5. yet be not over-wroth with us, either over-much, or over-long; let not thy fierce wrath burn and devour like fire for ever, Deut. 32. 22. Pfal. 79. 5. See on verf 12.

neither remember iniquity for ever.] Retain not wrath againft us for ever, in regard of fore-paffed exceffes; a tender parent is not wont fo to do, but is very prone, and ready, to pity and pardon, Pfal. 25. 7. & 79. 5-8. & 103. 9. Lam. 5. 20.

Behold, see, we beseech thee]Or, to behold now, or, we beseech thee, See chap. 58. 3. a very pathetical form of fpeech. So David, See now, yea, fee, O my Father, 1 Sam. 24. 11. be pleafed yet to caft a glance of thine eye upon us, to fee in how lamentable a condition we remain; as if the very fight of them, in what plight they were, might of it felf be fufficient, to move him into commiferation of them. See chap. 63. 15. Lam. 1. 9, 20. & 2. 20. & 3. 50.

we are all thy people. Or, we all are thy people: Not we are thine only people, all the people that thou haft; though that alfo, in fome fenfe, was, at that time, true, Exod. 19. 5. Pfal. 147. 20. But we all of us, as bad as we have been, or are, and as badly, and bafely, as we are by our enemies entreated, are thofe that thou haſt been pleaſed to take into covenant with thee, and to make thy peculiar people, Deut. 5.3. & 29.10-19. See chap. 63.19.

V. 10. Thine holy cities are a wilderneſs; Zion is a wilderneſs, Jeruſalem a deſolation.] From themſelves, and their relation to God, they paſs to God himſelf, his intereſt, and honour, concerned in this their preſent condition, and the deveſtation of their country, thoſe places eſpecially, which himſelf had made choyce of for his peculiar reſidence among his people, and their ſolemn attendance on him, and ſervice of him, there; that ſo, if not for themſelves, who had deſerved ſo ill of him, yet in regard of himſelf and his own concernment, he might be induced unto mercy and commiſeration of them, and to wraſh and indignation againſt their oppreſſours, who ſodefpitefully uſed, as well him, as them. So Pſal. 74.22,23.

Thy holy cities] Heb. The cities of thy holineſs, or rather, Thy cities of holineſs; as, Thy mountain of holineſs, Pſal. 15. 1. and thy city of holineſs, Dan. 9.24. Thy cities, not ours; and, holy cities, having ſpecial relation to thee. Now hereby ſome underſtand onely Jeruſalem, and Sion, afterward mentioned; and render the words therefore, the cities of thy Sanctuary. See chap. 31.9. But moſt, rather, the cities of Judah in general, Jer. 10.22. called holy cities, as the whole land, an holy land, Zach. 2.12. becauſe aſſigned to Gods people; as holy people, Exod. 19.6. Deut. 14.2, 21. to inhabit, chap. 63. 18. & 65.9. and becauſe they had in them ſet, and ſolemn conventions, for the conſtant ſervice of God, every Sabbath in their Synagogues, Pſal. 74.8. Acts 15.21.

are a wilderneſs] Or, are become a wilderneſs; have lien ſo long ruined, that they are become like a meer wilderneſs. See verſ. 11.

Zion is a wilderneſs, Jeruſalem a deſolation.] Or, Zion is become a wilderneſs, Jeruſalem a waſte. See chap. 1. 7. & 62.4. the ſubject matter riſeth; not the leſſer cities onely, but the mother city Jeruſalem, and the Seat of thy royall Palace, and of thy Temple, Sion; and the ſentence runs conciſe and quick. So Micah's prophecy fulfilled, Jer. 26.18. Mic. 3.12. Pſal. 79.1.

V. 11. Our holy, and our beautifull houſe, where our Fathers praiſed thee, is burnt up with fire.] The ſubject matter riſeth yet a degree higher, as from the lower cities to Jeruſalem, and Sion; ſo from theſe to the Temple; the other were oft ſpoyled and ſacked, when Jeruſalem and Sion, yet held out and were ſaved, chap. 1.7,8. & 7.1.& 36.1. & 37.35. and Jeruſalem might be taken and ſackt, and yet the Temple ſaved, 2 Chr. 25. 23, 24. but now, not thoſe inferiour cities onely, but Jeruſalem and Sion; nor thoſe alone, but Gods Temple alſo is deſtroyed together with them, Pſalm 74. 3.6, 7.

Our holy and our beautifull houſe] Heb. our houſe of holineſs(as, cities of holineſs, verſ. 10.) and of bravery, goodlineſs, or gallantry. See chap. 60. 7. our houſe; ſo they call Gods Temple, though termed commonly Gods houſe, chap. 56. 5,7. & 60.7. and ſet it forth with glorious attributes, thereby to expreſs and teſtifie their affection to it, as not ſo much affected with the loſs of their own houſes, as the loſs and want of it. So Pſalm 84. 1, 2.

where our Fathers praiſed thee] They ſay, not we, but our Fathers; as fearce daring once to mention their own ſervices there: they had been either ſo regardleſſe of Gods houſe, chap. 65. 11. Ezek. 8. 16. or in that manner there ſerved him, that their performances there might well (they feared) be moſt loathſome and abominable to him, chap. 1.11-15. & 66.3. Jer. 7.9-11. but yet minding him, how formerly in better times he had by their Anceſtors there been ſerved.

is burnt up with fire] Or, rather, is burnt down with fire, Pſalm 74.7. Heb. is become unto a burning of fire; or, is become a burning of fire; becauſe the particle is in ſuch forms oft redundant. See chap. 5.9. & 13.9. for the ſyntax of it, with this word, ſeemeth divers, chap. 9.5. of the burning of the Temple, ſee 2 King. 25. 9. 2 Chron. 36. 19. Jer. 52.13.

and all our pleaſant things are laid waſte.] Heb. all our deſires, or delights; for the word is a ſubſtantive, as appeareth by the conſtant uſe of it, 1 King. 20.6. Ezek. 24.16,21,25. but the abſtract is here put for the concrete, as before, verſ. 6. deſires, or delights, for matters of much deſire, or moſt delight; that is, moſt deſirable, or delightfull: Our moſt deſirable, or delightfull, either things, that is, matters in general; as it is expreſſed, 2 Chron. 26.19. where it is ſaid of the Chaldeans, that they deſtroyed all her (that is, Jeruſalems) matters of deſires, or delights, rendred there, goodly veſſels: But the word there uſed is of a far larger extent, then our Engliſh veſſel, and reacheth unto any utenſil, or other matter of uſe whatſoever. See chap. 22.24. & 32. 7. and ſo is the adjective, or concrete of the ſame root and notion uſed, Lam. 1.7,10, 11. or, our moſt deſirable, or pleaſant places; as it is ſupplied, Hoſ. 9.6. becauſe of that which followeth, are laid waſte. Heb. is, or is become unto a waſte; as Jer. 7.24. & 22.5. as to a burning, before. So alſo, verſ. 10. the verb being ſingular, it would be rendred to anſwer the Hebrew exactly, each of our moſt deſirable, or delightful, matters, or places, is become a waſte; and it may ſeem to have reference to the Kings Palace, and the great mens goodly houſes, with their appurtenances, orchards, gardens, and the like places of delight and pleaſure; which together with the Temple, were likewiſe burnt down and demoliſhed, 2 King 25.9. Jer. 39.8.& 52.13. the word is ſometime applied alſo to perſons; as Cant. 5.16. whereof ſee before, on verſ. 6. & Lam. 2.4. Hoſ. 9.16.

V. 12. Wilt thou refrain thy ſelf for theſe things, O Lord?] Or, canſt thou contain thy ſelf at theſe things? as one of the Rabbines well rendreth it. How canſt thou endure to ſee thy Cities, Synagogues, thy Temple it ſelf, ly thus waſte and ruined, and thine own honour thereby ſo exceedingly empeached and empaired, Pſal. 74.10,18,22,23. See chap. 63.15.

wilt thou hold thy peace] Or, canſt thou be ſilent? How canſt thou endure to forbear, and let them alone that thus wrong thee? See chap. 42.14.

and afflict us very ſore] Or how canſt thou endure to afflict us ſo extreamly? Heb. unto very much. Or, as ſome render it, unto extremity. So verſ. 9. Howbeit, I obſerve that the form here uſed, is applicable as well to extent of time, as to intenſion of degree; and in ſuch uſe of it, ſignifies either over-long, or, for ever: ſo ſome Jewiſh Criticks take it, in thoſe words, Pſal. 119.8. forſake me not over-long (as our Geneva verſion rendreth it) Or, for ever; wherein other of their own that controll them, to give it ſome ſenſe fit for that place and paſſage, are conſtrained to offer force to the text, & to knit that clauſe to the former part of the verſe, reading the words, I will keep thy ſtatutes exceedingly, or exactly, (as anſwering to what went before, v. 4.) O forſake me not. But beſide that the pauſes there oppoſe them, carrying on unto this clauſe the word of forſaking: There is another place in that Pſalm, verſ. 43. which cannot be ſo avoided. Take not the word of truth out of my mouth for ever; that is, Never let the word of truth be taken out of my mouth; as chap. 25.2. For it is a very poor and ſorry ſenſe, that their verſion hath, who render it, Take it not meth out of my mouth; nor theirs much better, that render it utterly: The Pſalmiſts meaning ſure was, never, at any time, or at all. And I conceive therefore, that it may here be ſo rendred, as thoſe of Geneva have it, in the former place, as well, afflict us over-long, as, afflict us overmuch, or, afflict us for ever, and ſo the Chaldee here rendreth it. See Pſalm 79.5. & 88.5.

CHAP. LXV.

Verſ. 1. I am ſought of them, that aſked not for me;] This Chapter the Jewiſh Commenters annex to the former, ſuppoſing that God, in the firſt words of it, returneth an anſwer to the prayer of the captive people, conceived in the later part of the chapter fore-going. But it ſeems rather to contain a new Sermon divers from the former. And in it we have a clear prediction, both of the converſion, and comming in, of the Gentiles; and of the rejection of the Jewes, with a relation of their particular ſins, and their obſtinacy in them, for which they were to be rejected. However a remnant of them to be reſerved, whom God would proſecute with ſpeciall favours in the times of the Meſſias eſpecially, when his Church ſhould be renewed.

I am ſought of them, that aſked not for me] In theſe words the Jewiſh Doctors conceive that God, in way of anſwer to the former complaint of his people, concerning his harſh uſage of them, and the continuance of the captivity, doth render a reaſon why it ſo fared with them, to wit, for the obſtinate carriage both of their fore-fathers, and themſelves; who albeit he had from time to time called upon them by his Prophets, to return from their wicked ways, and rebellious courſes, and come in to him, yet had ſtood out ſtill againſt him, and rejected his gracious invitations and offers. So that they underſtand this whole paſſage, verſ. 1.2. of their own people, and tell us, 'tis all the fame thing four ſeveral times told over, in divers terms, to add the more emphaſis to it. But from the Apoſtles allegation of it, Rom. 10. 20, 21. it evidently appeareth, that the former part of it, ſpeaketh of the Gentiles; the later part, only of the Jewes: The Jewiſh Criticks, to draw this Scripture their ways, are mightily puzzled about the ſignification of the firſt word: for there ſeems, ſay they, a contradiction in the text; I am enquired of, and they aſk not: and this to aſſoil, they render the words, ſome, I was ready to be enquired of, entreated by, and reconciled to your fore-fathers, when they had offended me, had they fought me in their afflictions, but they aſked not after me. So ſay they, is the word uſed, Pſal. 111.2. The works of the Lord are ready to be fought, and found out. Others, giving the paſſive reciprocal notion, as oft-times it hath (ſee chap. 26.20.) I made my ſelf to be fought, that is, offered my ſelf to be fought unto by them; according to that, chap. 63.5. thou diddſt meet, that is, prevent them with mercies unaskt. Others, taking the word as a potential (of which, ſee on chap. 63.12.) I might have been fought of them, if they would; but they had no mind to it. Others, as ſpoken by way of interrogation; Should I offer my ſelf to be fought of thoſe that aſk not after me? Ours, divers of them ſomewhat ſtrain themſelves needleſly about it. Some render the words, I am expoſed to thole that aſked not: and the word indeed in the Rabbinical language is commonly uſed for to expound; whence midraſſes, or expoſitions, are ſo termed: But that ſuiteth but ſorrily with this place, or the notion here intended. Others, becauſe the Apoſtle ſeems ſo to render it, I am ſought, ſay they, that is, I am found; ſeeking, put for finding, as Eccleſ. 3.6. a time to ſeek, that is, to get; becauſe the one is the end, and uſual conſequent of the other:

Mat.

Mat. 7.7. Luk. 11. 10. ſo Prov. 13.9. He that covereth a fault, ſeeketh love, i.e. findeth, getteth, gaineth it, and ſo on the other ſide, finding, for ſeeking, Gen. 19. 11. they wearied themſelves with finding, for ſeeking, Jer. 9.5. the dove. But the word of finding, uſed by the Apoſtle (with whom the two branches are tranſpoſed) hath reference, not to this word, but to the word following, which the ancient Greek alſo ſo rendreth. This word, both that Verſion, and the Apoſtle retaining it, rendreth, I am manifeſted, or, I have been made manifeſt; and theſe ſtrains all ſeem needleſs. The old Latine, which ſome, without cauſe, here controll, telling us, that the word is here paſſive, gave the right ſenſe of the text, They ſeek me, that before aſked not of me, word for word, I am ſought to, by thoſe that have not aſked, to wit, ought of me; that is, I am now enquired of, ſought unto, called upon, (ſo the word is commonly taken: ſee Chap. 55. 6. Ezek. 36. 37.) by thoſe, who in former times, having no notice at all of me, Chap. 52.15. & 55.5. Rom. 15. 20,21. had not wont to aſk ought of me, that is, to ſeek to me for ought. So is the word moſt frequently uſed, 1 King. 3, 5, 10, 11. Chap. 7. 11. & 9.2. Hoſ. 4. 12. Zach. 10. 1. and I rather chooſe therefore to make the ſupply of me, then for me. See Rom. 10. 14. It is apparently ſpoken of the Gentiles, converted by the miniſtery of the Goſpel. The ſpeech is conciſe and quick; a defect both of the antecedent, and relative, before the latter verb, as Chap. 64. 5. and in the next branch: Of the pronoun after it, as Chap. 46. 3. & 50. 2, 4. in the next branch expreſſed,

I am found of them that ſought me not] I prevented their ſeeking of me, by ſending and ſeeking of mine own accord to them, 2 Cor. 5. 20. Eph. 2. 17. Which ſome of the Jewiſh Authors would again turn aſide unto Terah, and thoſe before Abraham, that had not fought God, before God fought them, Joſh. 24. 2, 3.

I ſaid, behold me, behold me, unto a nation that was not called by my name] The Jews to pervert this paſſage, miſerably wreſt theſe words, expounding them, a nation not called by my name; that is, a nation that ſo carry themſelves, as if they were none of mine. But to leave them to their forced interpretations. Nor are ſome of ours, ſo cleer in their expoſitions of this paſſage: For ſome take them, as ſpoken in way of invitation to the Gentiles, as if God did there by call upon them, to look after him, and come in to him, as Chap. 45. 22. or tender, and offer himſelf unto them, (as the Prophet of God, Chap. 6.8.) being ready to entertain them, and make them his people, which before they were not, Deut. 32.21. Hoſ. 2. 14. Rom. 9.25. and this way our Verſion ſeems to encline. Others, as directed, and delivered, at departure to the Jews; Behold me, behold me, now leaving you, and paſſing to a nation that were none of mine before, according to that of the Apoſtle; Behold, we turn to the Gentiles, Act. 13. 46. The words run in the Hebrew, I have ſaid, or I ſay, (ſo would it be rendred to fit with the former) Lo I, Lo I; or, as it is repeated, verſ. 1. Here am I, here am I, Gen. 22. 1, 7, 11. & 27.18. Chap. 6.8. and it is the voice of God returning a gracious anſwer unto the ſuits and ſupplications, of thoſe that ſeek to him by prayer; here am I at hand, ready to hear and help. So Chap. 58. 9. when thou ſhalt cry, he will ſay, Lo I; or here I am: and it is doubled, to intimate his forwardneſſe, to hear, and grant their requeſts: whereof ſee, verſ. 24. The latter words, ſome render, unto a nation that did not call upon my name, as Chap. 64.7. Jer. 10.25. and this ſenſe would well ſuit, both with the terms of the firſt branch, and with the former member of this, if the words of the text would bear it: But this word of calling here, is not a participle active; but a verb, in a weighty form paſſive: and there is but a vowel difference between either, which cauſed the miſtake. Our Verſion renders it aright, that was not called by my name, as Chap. 63. 19. that had not in times paſt born my name; had not been called, or accounted my people; there is a defect of the relative, as Chap. 64. 3, 4. This whole verſe, ſome Interpreters render all in the future; I ſhall be ſought to; I ſhall be found; I ſhall ſay; becauſe it is a Prophecy of future times. But the Prophets manner is not unuſual to ſpeak of things to come, as paſt, or preſent: ſo Ch. 13.4, 5. & 19.1. Rev. 1.7.

V. 2. I have ſpread out mine hands all the day unto a rebellious people,] Here we cloſe with the Jewiſh Commenters, and with good warrant from Rom. 10. 21. agree unto them, that the ſpeech is of them, and their nation, whom God had long laboured with from time to time, to reduce and reclaim; but in vain: and for their wilful obſtinacy therefore was now reſolved to reject, and to receive the Gentiles in room of them, Rom. 11. 11-24.

ſpread out my hands] As the manner is of thoſe that requite audience, Act. 26. 1. or deſire acceptance, Prov. 1. 24.

all the day] Continually, conſtantly; as Chap. 62. 6.

unto a rebellious people] Or, a refractary people, Jer. 5. 23. that would by no means be reclaimed, ver. 12. Chap. 66.4. Jer. 7.13. & 11. 7, 8. for that oppoſition of the word, that a Rabbine gives on the place, a people gone out of the way; though it ſuit well with what followeth, and the word may be deduced from that which ſignifies, to go aſide, Exod. 32. 8. yet it doth not ſo fully expreſs what the word uſually importeth, and is commonly therefore to another root referred.

which walketh in a way that was not good] Heb. that walk (for the word is plural, becauſe the word people, collective; ſo ver. 3.) the way not good; that take no good courſe; or, in a way (the particle ſupplyed: as Neh. 9.19.) that is not good; that is not any anſwer the preſent walk; or, if we retain was, then, as ſome, that walked; not good: a form of diminution, for, evill, very bad, ſtark naught: as 1 Sam. 2.24. Pſal 36.4. Prov. 24.23. & 28.21.

after their own thoughts] Following, not the motions, and directions of my Word, and Spirit; but led by their own minds and luſts, Num. 15.39. 1 King. 13.33. Pſal. 81.11,12. 2 Pet. 3.3.

V. 3. A people that provoketh me to anger continually to my face;] Heb. that provoke me, or, provoked me; as before, ver. 2. See Chap. 3. 8.

to my face] That is, either ſimply, in Gods ſight, as Exod. 20.3. Deut. 5.7. & 31. 29. as if a ſervant ſhould do things directly croſs to his maſters known mind and command, to his face: ſo David aggravateth his own ſin, Pſal. 51. 4. or, as ſome, in Gods own houſe, in his Sanctuary; of which, Pſal. 42.2. and of their grievous profanations of Gods Temple, ſee 2 King. 16. 10-15. & 21.4,5,7. & 23.4,6. 2 Chr. 36.14. Jer. 7. 10, 11. & 11.15. Ezek. 8. 3-16. & 43. 8. But the former ſenſe ſeems the more familiar.

that ſacrificeth in gardens] Heb. that ſacrifice (as before) in the gardens: ſuch as they have ſet apart for idolatrous ſervices, and dedicated to their idols. See Chap. 1.29. & 66.17. the reaſon, ſaith one of the ancients, why Naboth would not part with his vineyard, to be converted, by Ahab, into a garden, that it might not be to abuſed: but that is a groundleſs conjeture. Howbeit, ſome underſtand it of their groves; whereof, ſee Deut. 16.21. Judg. 6.25. & 23.4,6. 2 Chr. 36.14. Jer. 7. 10, 11. & 11.15. Ezek. 8. 3-16. & 43. 8. But the former ſenſe ſeems the more familiar.

and burneth incenſe upon altars of brick] Heb. and burn incenſe (as before) upon bricks: who leaving Gods houſe, and his altar, ver. 11. ſacrifice, and burn incenſe to idols of their own chooſing, in places of their own deſigning, upon altars of their own erecting: Which, in contempt, he calleth bricks; (ſo the word properly ſignifies, Exod. 1.14. & 24. 10.) from the matter whereof they were uſed to be converted, by Ahab, into a garden, that it might not be to abuſed: but that is a groundleſs conjeture. Howbeit, ſome underſtand it of their groves; whereof, ſee on Chap. 17.8. & 27.9.

and burneth incenſe upon altars of brick] Heb. and burn incenſe (as before) upon bricks: who leaving Gods houſe, and his altar, ver. 11. ſacrifice, and burn incenſe to idols of their own chooſing, in places of their own deſigning, upon altars of their own erecting: Which, in contempt, he calleth bricks; (ſo the word properly ſignifies, Exod. 1.14. & 24. 10.) from the matter whereof they were uſed to be converted, by Ahab, into a garden, that it might not be to abuſed, braſſe, 2 King. 18. made; as Ezekiah the brazen ſerpent to be abuſed, braſſe, 2 King. 18. 4. Some expound it, of ſuch flores, with figures engraven upon them, whereof mention is made, Lev. 26. 1. & Numb. 33. 52. But this ſeems a groundleſs conjeture. Others, of the tile-ſtones, wherewith their houſes were covered, on the tops whereof being flatroofed, they were wont to ſacrifice, and burn incenſe to their idols. See Jer. 19. 13. this is more probable then that; but the firſt carrieth moſt likelihood.

V. 4. which remain among the graves] Heb. Who ſit in, or, on, the graves: but to ſit, is oft uſed, for to ſtay, or abide, as 2 Sam. 7. 18. Jer. 39. 14. and the particle, in, or, on, is ſometime uſed among: as Chap. 57. 6. that abide among the graves, to conſult with ſpirits, that haunt ſuch places; or, to have dealings with the dead, Deut. 18.11. 1 Sam. 28. 8, 11. & Chap. 8. 19. Mar. 5. 5. The Chaldee rendreth it; that dwell in houſes built of the duſt, or, moulds, taken from graves.

and lodge in the monuments] That is, in their idol-Temples, as the old Latine hath it, or, in caves, under-ground; or, cut out in rocks, as the Greek, there to expect dreams from their imaginary deities: which was an uſual practice among the Pagans, as appeareth from Ariſtophanes; Ariſtides the Sophiſter-; and others; and Jerome on this place teſtifies to have been practiſed by them, in his dayes. The word here uſed is ambiguous; it ſignifieth properly, places kept, or obſerved. Where it is rendred, Chap. 1. 8. beſieged: and ſo it ſignifies, Ezek. 6. 12. ſome would have it here to ſignifie ſuch horrid places, as people therefore are worſt cautiouſly to obſerve, for to ſhun and avoid. See on Chap. 1.8. Others, ſecret, hidden, places: as hidden things, Chap. 48.6. which agreeth well with thoſe ſecret vaults, caves, and cloſets, wherein the heathen had wont to have private commerce with their gods. Others, and this way the Jewiſh Criticks moſt go, render it, waſtes; deſolate places, ſuch ſay they, as are oft-times haunted with Devils, Mat. 12. 43. and ſo they would have the word taken, Chap. 49. 6. but of that there is or, as ſome of them, among the corpſes, that are kept in the graves, and there held as in priſons, or holds, Chap. 14. 18. Ezek. 32. 23. or, with the corpſes, for ſuperſtitious purpoſes, reſerved and kept by them. Some late Writers of note, that lodge with the kept ones. So, ſay they, in deriſion, are their idols here termed; becauſe they were kept carefully for fear of being loſt, as ſometimes they were, Gen. 31. 19, 30. Judg. 18. 14, 24. being not able to keep, or ſave themſelves, much leſſe thoſe, that ſerved them, by whoſe care and proviſion, they were to be kept from miſcarrying, Chap. 41. 7. and 46. 1, 2, 7.

that eat ſwines fleſh] Forbidden by Gods Law then in force, Lev. 11. 7. Deut. 14. 8. Chap. 66. 3, 17.

and broth of abominable things is in their veſſels:] Or, and in whoſe veſſels the broth of abominable things is: the demonſtrative, for the relative; as Chap. 54. 5. and a defect of the particle in, as Chap. 57. 8. there is here a two-fold reading. Some read the firſt word merak, which ſignifies broth; ſo uſed, Judg. 6.19,20. and no word merak, which ſignifies broth; ſo uſed, Judg. 6.19,20. and no word where elſe found. So the Chaldee, Greek, and old Latine, render it; and the Jewiſh Criticks do moſt follow this reading: and they conceive the word following, to ſignifie the concaſſe or any unclean creature, from Ezek. 4. 14. and conſequently, ſuch broth meant here, wherein the fleſh of any ſuch had been ſod: but ſome other read it perak, that ſignifies a fragment, or part torn off; from a word, that ſignifies to tear, or break, off, Exod. 32.2. Nah. 3. 1. and thoſe that follow this reading, expound the word following, from Lev.

7.18. & 19.7. where the same is used of the flesh of some sacrifices reserved till the third day, deemed then to be abominable: and of such fragments, or parcels, of flesh, contrary to the Law so reserved, would they have the words here to be understood; but no clear place appears for this use of the former word: and the other reading is the more received; and the rather, for that the latter word, where it is used of such remainders so reserved, seems to have some reference unto such unclean flesh, as implying, that being so reserved, they should be no more accepted, then any such flesh, in its kind unclean.

V. 5. Which say, Stand by thy self, come not neer to me:] These persons as impure and profane, as they were, yet would seem to be holier, then others, and counted all unclean, and polluted, beside themselves. So the Pharisees, in Christs time, Luk.5.30. & 7.39. & 18.11, 12. and the Samaritanes anciently, Joh.4.9. as the stories of them relate; and the Jews, and Heretickes, in Jeromes time, yea to this day.

Stand by thy self,] Heb. Approach, or, Draw neer, to thy self: keep apart by thy self; to the Jewish, and most of ours: though some, Get thee to thine; that is, to others like thy self.

Come not neer to me] touch me not; as the Samaritanes are reported to have cryed usually to others, not of their way, as fearing to be defiled by them: this is supposed also to have been the reason why the Pharisees used to wash so, when they came home from the market; as having contracted some defilement by the touch of others there, Mar.7.4. See Luk.7.39.

for I am holier then thee] So the Chaldee render it; and the Jewish Commenters unanimously expound it. Heb. I sanctifie thee; and because the word, sanctifie, is in Scripture used, sometime, for to set apart for some sacred use, Levit. 17.5. 1 Sam. 16.5. or, for slaughter, Jer.12.3. Some render the words, I will sanctifie thee; that is, I will make a sacrifice of thee; I will slay thee: and they suppose the words to have been spoken to the Prophet, repairing to them, when they were buried about some of their abominable services, or sacrifices, to reprove them for the same, as giving him warning to keep aloof off, and let them alone, otherwise threatning to make a sacrifice of him. Others, because the word, Kadesh, is sometime used, for some nucleus, vile, and abominable person, Gen.38.31. Deut.23.18. 1 King.14.24. & 15.12. Hos. 4.14. and it is so rendred, Job 36.14. would therefore have the verb here to be taken in that sense, and render it, I pollute thee; that is, I account thee a polluted, and unclean person; as Acts 10.15. & 11.9. Do not thou pollute; that is, account polluted, or unclean: and the old Latine rendereth it, Thou art unclean: to which purpose, some apply that, Lam.4.15, some colour might this Interpretation seem to receive, from what is spoken of these persons, Chap.66.17. where it is said of them, that they sanctifie themselves in the gardens: if the word sanctifie, might be taken there for, to pollute; as certain it is, that their sanctification was no other then a gross pollution; and the word sanctifie, might by a kind of antiphrasis, be used for to defile, or unsanctifie: as the word to bless, sometime; for, to curse, Job 1.5. 1 King.21.13. but the words following there, carry it another way: nor is any true sense produced, where this verb is found. We return therefore to the first, and generally received Interpretation; wherein all the matter of doubt, or difficulty, ariseth from the defect of a particle, or preposition, such as in the affixing of pronouns to verbs, is oft-times omitted; this supplyed, it would be, I am holy from thee: of this kind of defects, see on Chap.28.15. & 47.8. & 48.10. & 49.24. of this particle in particular; Jer.10. 20. my children are gone out me, for, gone out from me. Now this preposition in Hebrew, as מגן, in Greek; πρὸς, in Latine, hath a peculiar use, in comparative notions: so good from, or above, as it is, sometime, not amiss rendred, Judg.5.24. Psal.45.7. is, better, Prov. 22.1. Eccl.7.1. wife from, or above, is, wifer, 1 King.4.21. Ezek. 28.3. and, holy from, or, above, is, holier. But an exact, and full instance of the like defect is in the same particle, in the last use, we find, Jer.20.7. where the Prophet speaking to God, saith, thou art strong me, for, strong from, or above, me; that is, stronger then I, as it is well rendred there: and it may be, would as well be, holier then thou, here. The ancient Greek renders it, I am clean; but they take not notice of the pronoun affixed.

these are a smoke in my nose, a fire, that burneth all the day.] These are a continual provocation, and vexation, unto me, (see Chap.65. 10.) like smoke, that rising from green wood, or other like wet fuel, is most grievous and offensive to mans nose, and eyes, Prov.10. 20. See Chap.3.8. or, as some; These will I in mine anger (as Chap.9.21.) dispel, and disperse, like smoke, Psal.68.2. and make fuel of them, matter for the fire, Chap.1.31. & 9.18. As others, My wrath incensed by them, shall smoke against such, and burn everlastingly against them, Deut.29.20. & 32.22. Psal.18.8. & 37. 20. & 104.32. & 144.5. Chap.14.31. & 30.33. & 34.9. & 66.24. The first seemeth most natural.

all the day] Or, all day long; continually: their continual provocations of him, opposed to Gods continual invitations of them, ver.2. So Hos.11.2.

V.6. Behold, it is written before me] Or, is written, and lyeth before my face: a defective form of speech; of which kind, see on Chap.38.21. These their courses are upon record with me; and this record lieth always open before my face, (as was before said of their sins, ver.3) that I may not forget them: a metaphor taken from the manner of men, great ones especially, that keep books, or records, wherein they enter such matters, as they would not have to be forgotten, Ezr.4.15, 19. & 6.2. Est.6.1. So Deut.32.34. Psal.56.8. Jer.3.22. Hos.7.2. Mal.3.16.

I will not keep silence] I will no longer forbear, as hitherto I have done, Psal. 50.21. & 83.1. See Chap. 42.14. and 64.12.

but will recompence, even recompense into their bosome] Or, will repay, yea, repay (as Chap. 44.15. Heb. and; as Chap. 56.5,7.) into their lap: as it is rendred, Prov. 6.33. that is, abundantly, largely: a figurative form of speech, borrowed from those, that deliver not, what they give out, by tale, measure, or weight, but pour it forth into the receivers lap, without any regard how much they give of it. So Psal.79.12. Jer.32.18. Luk.6.38. the word is redoubled, to put the doing of it out of doubt. So Deut.32.41. Chap.59.18. Jer.51.56. Ezek.21.7.

V.7. Your iniquities, and the iniquities of your fathers, together, (saith the Lord)] Some Interpreters repeat here, from ver.6. I will recompense, or repay; and insert it into the text: but that is needlesse; for the former words of this verse, have an immediate dependance upon those words in the former verse: and our Version therefore closeth that verse only with a comma; that neither Verses, nor Chapters, are always exactly distinguished, was before observed. Chap.58.3. & 64.1.

Your iniquities] Or, their iniquities; a change of the person: as Chap.1.29.

and the iniquities of your fathers together] The meaning is that when God should set upon it, the sins of that nation being come to their full height, (as of the Amorites he speaks, Gen.15.16.) he would remember, as well their ancestors sins, (which he had upon record, ver.6.) as their own; and would take vengeance for both together; that which no way impeacheth the justice of God: who although he lay nothing upon any person, but what his own particular sins deserve, yea, what comes indeed far short of what is due to them, Ezr.9.13. Job 37.23. yet he hath an eye oft in inflicting judgments, on notorious wicked ones, descended also from such, unto the sins of their ancestors, and either enhanceth, or lengtheneth, their afflictions, to make their sufferings the more exemplary, that men may observe how execution of vengeance, though for some time delayed; yet even here falleth, at length oft, with a full storm, on the race of the wicked. So 1 Sam.3.12. Jer.2.5. Lam.5.7. Matth.23.32,35,36. and 27.25. 1 Thessal. 2.15,16.

which have burnt incense upon the mountains, and blasphemed me upon the hills] Or, reproached, or dishonoured, me, Chap.37.4. Psal.89.51. for it is no verbal, or vocal; but a reall, and actual reproach, that he chargeth them with; to wit, their idolatrous services on such places frequently exercised, Chap.57.7. Jer.3.1,6. Ezek.18.6,11. & 22.9. Hos.4.13.

therefore will I measure their former work into their bosome.] Or, I will, I say, (Heb. and I will, as Chap.58.10. & 59.17.) mete out the reward of their former work (Heb. first, for, former, ev'n *past*ed; as Chap.41.22. & 42.9. and work, for, reward of work, as Chap.49.4. & 61.8. & 62.11.) into their lap; as ver.6. a threefold repetition, to assure the certainty of it; as Ezek.21.14,27. and an interchange of persons, as Chap.1.29. & 64.4.

V.8. Thus saith the Lord,] Gods forest, and fiercest menaces, have yet always some matter of grace, and mercy, mixed with them, for the support and comfort, of the few faithful: that which is here therefore annexed, and subjoyned, to this dismall doom, concerning a remnant still to be spared, and reserved, for the propagating of his Church.

As the new wine is found in the cluster, and one saith, Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it:] Or, As when (see Chap.17.5. and 64.1.) wine (as Chap.63.2.) is found (as Chap.13.8.) in a cluster, one saith, (or, it is said, then use to say, Jer.3.1. Mal.1.4.) Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it. As when a vine being blasted, or otherwise decayed, is grown so bad, and so barren, that scarce any good cluster of grapes can be discerned on it, (Jer.8.13.) whereby it may be deemed to have any life left in it, or any likelihood conceived of its recovery, and ever becoming fruitful again; and the husbandman therefore is about either to stub it up, or to cut it down by the ground, if one chance to espy on some branch of it, some one cluster that hath grapes with liquor in them, whereby it may appear, that there is life yet, in some part of it, and some hope therefore, that it may, by good husbandry, the dead branches of it being cut away, grow fruitfull again; he may thereby be induced to forbear the utter rooting out, or hewing down, of it. This seems to be the genuine sense of the similitude: for the old Latine rendring it, a grane in a cluster; hath led Interpreters aside unto another similitude, of saving a cluster for a found grape, or two, among many withered, or rotten ones; applying it unto the saving of those, that had any matter of found grace or goodness, in them, notwithstanding the generality of the judgment, to be put in execution upon the main body of the profane, and rotten-hearted, Chap. 17.6. & 24.13. but that seems to be besides the Prophets scope in this place; in this comparison, at least.

a blessing in it] That is, according to some Interpreters, some good liquor in it, through Gods blessing upon it; all things compared, when the said, as it is there rendred, wo troop cometh. Gen. 30.11. and Jacob, alluding to this name, Gad, a troop shall overcome him; but he shall overcome them at last, Gen.49.19. and from the same root indeed, comes the word there rendred, a troop, as very commonly also elsewhere; but the word Gad, save in that speech of Leah, is no where else found. Those that take it here, in that notion, understand by it, either the multitude of their idols, which they so doted upon, that they thought they could never have enow of them, Judg.10.6. Jer.2.28. & 11.13. and are said therefore to be in their whoredomes unfatiable, Ezek.16.24.26, 28,29. & 23. 40-44. so the Chaldee seems to take it; or, the host of heaven the celestial bodies, which they worshipped instead of the maker both of themselves, and them, Jer.7.18. & 8.2. and so found some of the Rabbines upon this place. But the most of them hold it to be the name of a particular star, or an imaginary deity, to wit, Luck, or Fortune, in Arabick so termed; and in effect both fancies come home to one: for they that make a star of it, which some affirme to be the planet Jupiter, say, there is no star, for luckinesse, where it favoureth, like to it; and they tell us withal, that in old time, they used, in every house to have a bed, or, a table, (for on beds they tabled anciently) continually spread for this idol; which was commonly called; Good lucke table, or bed. And Jerome relateth, that in Alexandria, and other cities of Egypt especially, on the last day of the yeer, there used to be a table spread and furnished, with variety of dishes, and delicacies, both of meat and drink, for this idol, either in way of thankfullnesse, for the prosperity and fertility of the yeer past; or to procure and obtain from it the like for the yeer ensuing.

and that furnish the drink offering] Heb. that fill mixture; that is, wine: at first so termed, because they used in their ordinary use of it, to mix it with water, to abate the strength of it: but from that use in processe of time, both in Hebrew, and other languages, the Greek especially, the word of mixture, came to be used for wine; or, any such liquor as wine: so Psal.75.8. the cup in Gods hand is said to be full of mixture; that is, of strong liquor: and to take us off from fancying some mixture there intended, Rev.14. 10. the wine in that cup is said to be (word for word) mixed unmixed: which may seem to imply a contradiction; but is well rendred, poured out (or, if ye will, poured in) without mixture (for the verb to mix, or mingle, is from the same ground, and root, both in Hebrew, Greek, and Latine; for to pour in, pour out, and powre out, wine, or other liquor, simply, without respect had to any mixture: and so would it be rendred, Prov.9.2. where it is said, of wisdome, she hath powred out her wine; to wit, into cups, ready to be served out: where they render it amisse, she hath mingled her wine; that is hucksters fashion, alluded to, Chap.1.22. not hers. So Prov.23.30. it is said of wine-bibbers, that they go out to seek mixture; that is, wine, or liquor; where also it is ill rendred, mixt wine: for it is the more, not the mixt, that they affect, and look after; and no lesse absurd is one of the Jewish Doctors note here, mixture, that is, wine mixt with water: they would not in likelihood deal so with their deities, especially when they intended, as for the most part they did, to drink most of it themselves: another of them much better expoundeth it, a drink offering, as our version also rendreth it; but the word signifies, as hath been said, and shewed: and to fill wine, or, fill out wine, or other liquor, is a form of speech with us also not unusual.

unto that number] The word here used is commonly deemed to spring from a root, that signifies to number, Gen.13.16. Num.23. 10.2 Sam.24.1. Dan.5.23,26. Whence some render it by number: and of these some suppose it to be meant of pouring out a certain number of cups, either according to the number of their idols, unto which they performed those rites; or of those persons that joyned together in the service. Some again, of their own, drinking by number: For thus, as sometime at their extraordinary feasts, they used to drink healths, according to the number of letters in the parties name, that they drank the health to: so in the feasts they used to celebrate in honour of their idols, they were wont to drink, in honour of her, as many cups, as they desired years, to have their life prolonged by her, by which means sometime their dayes came to be abridged of what otherwise they might have been. Of the former, see Martial, lib.1. Epig.r. 12. Of the latter, Ovid, in his Fast, lib.4. Others render them, as our Version hath it, unto that number, or, unto the number; that is, as before, to the numberlesse number, either of their idols, or of the celestiall bodies: though some more specially to the seven planets or the constellations, which the Astrologers have reduced to a certain number. Others, lastly, render it, as our margent exhibits it; unto Meni, or unto Mni, which they suppose to be the name of one of the Planets; that which we call Mercury, and to be the Mochams God, so termed from numbring, or casting up of accounts, a businesse, about which they are much conversant; and from the word Manch, in Hebrew, Mna in Greek, and Mina, in Latine, for a pound, hath its name. And of this name, that an idol was ancient-ly in Armenia and Phrygia, worshipped, is by a learned man out of Strabo, and Jamblichus, reported: Whereunto may be added, that Armenia is supposed to have been termed, as some, from Aram, and

for that troop] Or, for the troop: so the word seems to signifie in the speech of Leah, at the birth of Gad, whom she therefore so named, when she said, as it is there rendred, a troop cometh. Gen. 30.11. and Jacob, alluding to this name, Gad, a troop shall overcome him; but he shall overcome them at last, Gen.49.19. and from the same root indeed, comes the word there rendred, a troop, as very commonly also elsewhere; but the word Gad, save in that speech of Leah, is no where else found. unto that number] The word here used is commonly deemed to spring from a root, that signifies to number, Gen.13.16. Num.23. 10.2 Sam.24.1. Dan.5.23,26. Whence some render it by number: and of these some suppose it to be meant of pouring out a certain number of cups, either according to the number of their idols, unto which they performed those rites; or of those persons that joyned together in the service. Some again, of their own, drinking by number: For thus, as sometime at their extraordinary feasts, they used to drink healths, according to the number of letters in the parties name, that they drank the health to: so in the feasts they used to celebrate in honour of their idols, they were wont to drink, in honour of her, as many cups, as they desired years, to have their life prolonged by her, by which means sometime their dayes came to be abridged of what otherwise they might have been. Of the former, see Martial, lib.1. Epig.r. 12. Of the latter, Ovid, in his Fast, lib.4. Others render them, as our Version hath it, unto that number, or, unto the number; that is, as before, to the numberlesse number, either of their idols, or of the celestiall bodies: though some more specially to the seven planets or the constellations, which the Astrologers have reduced to a certain number. And of this name, that an idol was anciently in Armenia and Phrygia, worshipped, is by a learned man out of Strabo, and Jamblichus, reported: Whereunto may be added, that Armenia is supposed to have been termed, as some, from Aram, and and Minni, or Menni, as the Latine rendreth it, mentioned Jer. 51. 27. or, as others, of Har, and Minni, as the mountainous part of Minni, which Minni being the ancientest appellation of that countrey, may probably be deemed to have been the name of some great man that there ruled, and was after his decease (as the manner was) deified by his posterity. See the like, Chap. 46. 1. Jer. 50. 1.

V. 12. Therefore will I number you to the sword,] Heb. And; Yet sometime the copulative is put for the relative, as Chap. 47. 8. & 63. 12. But it may well be here an expletive only, as oft it is, Exo. 1. 1. Ezek. 17. 22. Jon. 1. 1. I will number you to the sword; or, if some emphasis be deemed in it, I will even, or in like manner, number you to the sword: Because the word before-going, had either a notion of numbring in it, or a neer affinity in sound, at least, with the Hebrew word, that so fignifies; God, by the Prophet, taketh occasion to deliver their doom, in these terms, as if he had faid; I will also in no small number, fee you apart for the sword; or I will deliver you up to it (that is, as the next words shew, I will destroy you to slaughter) by number and tale, so that none of you shall escape. See the manner of setting out some in that sort, that may seem here alluded to, 2 Sam. 8. 2.

and ye shall all bow down to the slaughter] As you used to bow your selves down before your idols, Chap. 44. 15, 17. or like those beasts, which you used to knock down, to sacrifice to your idols. See the use of the word, Judg. 5. 27. Chap. 10. 4. & 46, 1, 2. and like allusions, Chap. 1. 29, 30.

all] Not some, but all of you: I will not stand to tithe you out, as in execution of mulcts used is usually done, or fewer and fingle out, as well some to be saved, as others to suffer, as David did with the Moabites, 2 Sam. 8. 2. but deliver you all out to slaughter, and that by rale, that none of you may escape.

because when I called, ye did not answer; when I spake, ye did not hear] Or, Ye would not answer; ye would not hear; to expresse more pregnantly their wilful obstinacy. Heb. because: I called, and ye answered not; I spake, and ye heard not. But the like Syntax is frequent, as Chap. 44. 14. & 53. 2. & 59. 16. and the indicative in a potential, or spontaneous notion, as common: and so it is well rendred, Psal. 81. 11. Jer. 36. 25. and would also be, Prov. 13. 1, 8. Jer. 7. 24, 26. Zach. 1. 4. See Prov. 1. 24, 25. Chap. 50. 2. & 66. 4. Jer. 7. 13.

I called — spake] In, and by my Prophets, whom ye refused to hear, and obey, Zach. 7. 7, 11, 12. 2 Cor. 5. 20. & 13. 3.

but did evil before mine eyes] Or, did that which was evil in my sight. (See Chap. 57. 1.) that is, that that is displeasing to me, as 2 Sam. 11. 27. chap. 66. 4. See ver. 3.

and did choose that wherein I delighted not:] Or, which I would not, to wit, have to be done, as 1 King. 13. 33. Psal. 40. 6. with Heb. 10. 5. but expresly forbad, and utterly abhorred. See chap. 66. 3, 4.

V. 13. Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold,] Behold, intimating a strange alteration, as chap. 51. 22. & 62. 11. four several times repeated, to make the deeper impression.

behold, my Servants shall eat, but ye shall be hungry; behold, my Servants shall drink, but ye shall be thirsty.] Or, when my Servants shall eat, ye shall be hungry; when my Servants shall drink, ye shall be thirsty; or, my Servants shall eat, when ye shall be hungry; my Servants shall drink, when ye shall be thirsty. Heb. and ye shall be hungry, and ye shall be thirsty: the same Syntax with that ver. 12. Those that have been loyal and faithful to me, ver. 9. whom ye have vilified and abused, ver. 5. Chap. 66. 5. shall enjoy plenty, and live cheerfully, when it shall be far otherwise with you, Psal. 37. 11, 19, 20. and 68. 1, 3. 6. Eccles. 9. 7.

behold, my Servants shall rejoyce, but ye shall be ashamed.] Chap. 66. 5. Dan. 12. 2. the syntax, as before.

V. 14. Behold, my Servants shall sing for joy of heart; but ye shall cry for sorrow of heart, and shall howl for vexation of Spirit.] A further inlargement of the last branch of the verse fore-going. See Psal. 68. 3. Prov. 29. 6. Luk. 6. 20, 21, 24, 25.

joy of heart] Heb. goodaefs of heart, as Deut. 28. 47. fo, a good heart, for, a merry, or a chearfull heart. Eft. 1. 10. Prov. 15. 15.

vexation of Spirit.] Heb. breach, or, brokenneſſe of Spirit; as, Prov. 15. 4. a breach in the Spirit. See Chap. 61. 1.

V. 15. And ye shall leave your name for a curse unto my chosen.] Your very name shall be accursed, and used in cursing, as when men say, God make thee like such an one. See Chap. 43. 28. Jer. 24. 9. & 29. 22. & 34. 9.

for a curse] Because unto solemn oaths were execrations usually annexed; Let that befall me, that befell such an one, if I fail, or break my faith, Num. 5. 21. 1 King. 19. 2. Neh. 10. 19.

my chosen] See ver. 9.

for the Lord God shall slay thee] Heb. and; (as Chap. 64. 4.) Adonai Jehovah shall slay thee: a change of the number; as Chap. 64. 5. See ver. 12.

and call his servants by another name:] Heb. shall to his Servants call another name; as Deut. 2. 11, 20. chap. 47. 1. By name, is ones state, or condition, in Scripture, commonly implyed; and by change of name, is an alteration of state ordinarily incinuated. Hereof see, chap. 62. 4. by oath v name then, is here meant, either another state, then they were formerly in, in regard whereof other terms should be given them, and speeches used of them, then heretofore had been, Hos. 1. 6, 9. & 2. 1, 23. Rom. 9. 26. 1 Pet. 2. 10. or, a divers state and condition from the wickeds, before spoken of; such as should be used, not in cursing, but in blessing. See Gen. 28. 3, 4. & 48. 20. Ruth 4. 11. and this way the Jewish Commentators go. Howbeit, divers Interpreters here maintain debate about this other name, or new name; (as it seems termed, Chap. 62. 2. as, other tongues, and new tongues, are one, and the same, Mar. 16. 17. & Act. 2. 4.) And dispute much what particular name it should be; and some here would have it to be the name, of a stable people; or, the people of the true God, ver. 16. Others, the name of Gods children, Joh. 1. 12. Gal. 3. 26. & 4. 4-6. Others, the name of Christians, at Antioch first given them; now an honourable title, where as the name of a Jew is grown reproachful and odious, Act. 11. 28. 1 Pet. 4. 16. But that of the Rabbines seemeth most agreeable to the course and current of the context.

V. 16. That he who blesseth himself in the earth, shall bless himself in the God of truth; and he that sweareth in the earth, shall swear by the God of truth.] So that men, in blessing and swearing, shall make use of your names; as in cursings, and execrations of theirs, ver. 15. Though some suppose, that by blessing, and swearing, is here intended the whole Worship of God, as Chap. 19. 18. Jer. 4. 2. and the meaning to be, that all religious Worship, shall be given generally to the true God, and not, as formerly, to idols, chap. 45. 23. But this seems not the scope of the Prophet in this place.

That] Or, So that: To make the connexion of this with the former the more clear.

he who blesseth himself] Or, that blesseth, simply, either himself, or any other: he that willeth, desireth, or prayeth for good unto any: for these forms are not always, in notion, or use, reciprocal; as by many instances might be shewed. See Gen. 22. 18. & 26. 4. chap. 66. 10.

in the earth] Either on earth, as chap. 42. 4. Mat. 16. 10. & 18. 18. or in the land, to wit, where Gods servants abide, as chap. 5. 8. & 6. 12. & 60. 18.

shall bless himself] Or, bleſſe, simply.

in the God of truth] God indeed is so styled, a God of truth, Psal 31. 5. Jer. 10. 10. whereof see there, and the word, amen, here used, given unto Christ, expounded, faithful and true, Rev. 3. 14. but the word is an attribute, not an abstract, and hath relation therefore to some subject, which to make the sense entire, therefore must be supplyed: it signifies, firm, faithfull, stable, stedfast: wherewith his subject here, (like whereunto, we have frequently found in this Prophet. See Chap. 4. & 17. 5, 10.) which some supply people, rendring the words, shall bleſſe by the God of the faithfull, or firm, and stable people, Psal. 89. 36, 37. they shall in blessing use the name of God, as having relation to his people, and mention them withall as a people blessed, and established, by him: as they shall bleſſe in Gods name, as craving and expecting the blessing from him: so mentioning Gods people, and their condition, as a precedent, and pattern, of the good that they with unto any. So Gen. 28. 4. & 48. 15, 16, 20. Ruth. 4. 11. See Zach. 8. 13.

that sweareth in the earth] On earth, or in the land, as before, and as Chap. 66. 8.

shall swear by the God of truth] Or, by the God of the faithfull, or firm, and stable people, that is, they shall in their solemn oaths, mention together with him, his goodnesse to them, and their blessed estate, and settled condition, by reason thereof. In solemn oaths, they used as execrations and cursings, if they meant not truly, or should deal unfaithfully: so blessings also, and expressions of desire to live and thrive, do well and prosper, as their intentions were sincere, and their performances should be faithfull. So the Apostle, 1 Cor. 15. 31. by our rejoycing which we have in the Lord Jesus; that is, so may I have joy together with you in the Lord God; and as we use to say, So help me God. The meaning then is, that in conceiving oaths, they should use such forms as these, or the like; The Lord that blessed such, and such his servants, bleſſe me, and mine, in like manner, and no otherwise, then as I shall deal sincerely and faithfully, in that, which by oath I now oblige my self unto.

because the former troubles are forgotten, &c.] When (as Job 5. 22. & 5. 21.) the former afflictions shall be forgotten: When former matters, both your sins (as Chap. 43. 25. Jer. 31. 34. fay Gods) and your sorrows and sufferings (as Chap. 54. 4. wherein all agree in) shall no more be minded, then as if they never had been. See Zach. 10. 6.

and because they are hid from mine eyes.] Or, and when they shall be hid from mine eyes. This some (as was before hinted) understand of their sins, the procuring causes of their former afflictions and sorrows; which as they are said to lie open to Gods eye, so long as men after the committing of them continue obstinate and impenitent, ver. 3. 6. so, upon mans repentance, they are said to be covered, and hid from Gods sight; he regarding them no more now to take vengeance, or cast off, for them, then if he neither saw, nor knew them, Psal. 32. 1. & 85. 2. Chap. 38. 17. Mic. 7. 19. But because there is no mention at all of sins, in the text; Others therefore understand this also, as the former, of their sufferings and afflictions, that God out of his tender affection to his children, that had been long in straits and difficulties, as not able to endure longer to see them them in that misery, should utterly remove them now out of his sight, by delivering his people out of them, and putting a full period to their grievous prellures, Exod. 3. 7, 8. Num. 23. 21. Psal. 106. 44, 45. Chap. 16. 4. & 26. 19. & 60. 18. See Chap. 63. 15. & 64. 12.

V. 17. For behold,] A further more strange alteration, subjoyned, to give further assurance of the change formerly mentioned, not without a multiplyed iteration of this note of wonderment, ver. 13, 14. See the like of our Saviour, Joh. 5. 25, 28.

I create new heavens, and a new earth :] Or, I am creating a new heaven (as Chap. 1. 2.) and a new earth; I am even now about it, as Chap. 51. and so ver. 18. I am making of a new world; I am about to alter and change the face and state of all things, that the whole frame of the creature shall seem not to be the same, that before it was. This applyed to the external state and condition of Gods people, may bear that interpretation, that some here have given it; the sky not cloudy and gloomy, as hinting Gods wrath, and expressing his frown, Joel 2. 2. Amos 5. 18. but clear and fair, and light some, and seasonable, Chap. 30. 26. and 60. 1. the ground not horrid, and waste, and shapelesse, and fruitlesse, Jer. 4. 23-26. but pleasant, delightfull, fertile, and fruitful, Chap. 4. 2. or that which some other have, that the change of their condition shall be so great, their prosperity such, in regard of their former afflictions and adversity, that coming suddenly out of the one into the other, they shall seem to be in a new, in another world. See Psal. 126. 1. But, being spiritually understood, is applyable to the state of the Church, in the times of the Gospel, under the Kingdome of Christ, in regard of those plentiful endowments of spirituall graces, that therein should abound, the mysteries of Salvation, being much more clearly revealed, and the service and worship of God in a more spiritual way setled, those former types and shadows, being taken away and removed, Joh. 1. 16, 17. & 4. 21-24. Act. 2. 17, 33. & 3. 21. Heb. 8. 9. 10. & 9. 10. 12. & 10. 1-9. and hereunto do the Apostles apply this renovation of the Church, in this world then to be inchoated, 2 Cor. 5. 17. to be consummated in the next, 2 Pet. 3. 13. Rev. 21. 1, 5. and thus also do some of the Jewish Doctors expound it. See Chap. 66. 22.

and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind.] Heb. ascend into the heart; as Jer. 3. 16. 1 Cor. 2. 9. and it seems a form of speech taken from those vapours, or steams, that being sent up from the stomack, and possessing the brain, are wont to produce fantasies and dreams; as if it were said, they shall not so much as be once dreamed of. The meaning is, that the spiritual excellency of the Church in those times, shall so far exceed that, which in former time it had been, that the confideration of the one, shall seem to drown and abolish the memorial of the other, Jer. 3. 16. 2 Cor. 3. 7-10.

V. 18. But be ye glad, and rejoyce for ever, in that which I create:] Or, am creating; as ver. 17. a defect both of antecedent, and relative; as ver. 1.

be glad, and rejoyce] This some of the Jewish Commenters conceive to be spoken, as that which should be the constant and continual language of those times, exciting one another to chearfulness and joyfulnesse, such as the condition of the times required. So it should be like that, Let us rejoyce, and be glad, Psal. 118. 24. Rev. 19. 7. But it is rather the speech of God himself, as calling upon his people, to rejoyce in the good intended by him, for them, in the restitution of his Church, Chap. 66. 10. so withall alluring them, that howsoever it fared with the wicked ones, ver. 12-15. yet it should go well with them, Chap. 3. They should not want matter, and occasion of joy; and withall, that this matter, and occasion of joy in them, should not be momentany, and fading, suddenly come, and soon gone, like Jonas his gourd, Jon. 4. 10. but should be permanent, and perpetual, Chap. 35. 10.

in that which I create] Or, am creating; restitution and renovation, especially for the better, is deemed as a creation, ver. 17. Psal. 104. 30. So Psal. 51. 10. Eph. 2. 10. & 4. 24.

for behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoycing, and her people a joy.] Heb. I am creating, as ver. 17. the word of creating here implying not a bare restitution only, but a restitution in a glorious and magnificent manner: for of such kind of works also is the word used, Gen. 1. 26, 27. Deut. 4. 32. chap. 40. 26. I am repairing her, and restoring her to so glorious a condition, as will make her matter of abundance of joy, both to her, and them, and all that see it, which in the former case either, I am about the doing of that, that I have been so much, and so long solicited for, by my servants, chap. 62. 7. Heb. for rejoycing, and for joy; as, for a blessing, Psal. 37. 26. Prov. 10. 7. or, a blessing, simply; and joy, and rejoycing, for matter of mirth and joy; as praise, for matter of praise, chap. 60. 18. & 61. 11. for rejoycing, and for joy, that is, to be matter of rejoycing, and of joy; as, for a curse, that is, to be matter of a curse, ver. 15.

V. 19. And I will rejoyce in Jerusalem, and joy in my people:] They shall rejoyce in me, chap. 61. 10. and I will rejoyce in them, chap. 62. 5. as it is much matter of joy unto an affectionate parent to see his children do well; and to a gracious Soveraign to see his people prosper and flourish, Psal. 35. 27. Jer. 32. 41. 1 Thess. 2. 19, 20. & 3. 8, 9. 2 Joh. 4. 3 Joh. 3, 4. and the voice of weeping shall be no more heard in her, nor the voice of crying.] See the like promises, chap. 35. 11. & 51. 11. Jer. 31. 12. Rev. 21. 4. for those Jewish Doctors narrow the text overmuch, that restrain weeping, and crying here, to the mourning for persons, either slain, or taken away by immature death; because of that which followeth, ver. 20. Howbeit, it is well observed, both by some of them, and other learned, that in these, and the like predictions and promises, the terms, no more, and for ever; as they concern the state and condition of this present life, have in them a notion of duration; as they have reference to the life to come, a notion of perpetuity: as also that for the subject matter of them, or the things therein propounded, or promised, as they concern the former, they import a degree emly of eminency; as they have relation to the latter, a pitch of absolute perfection. In this manner are we to understand, as these, and the enfuing passages; so also those, chap. 54. 9. & 60. 18. and other the like.

V. 20. There shall be no more there an infant of days, nor an old man, that hath not filled his dayes: for the child shall die an hundred years old; but the sinner being an hundred years old shall be accursed.] Albeit, there be no such great difficulty in this passage, but the literall sense of the words, (as I conceive) if the Hebrew terms used in it, be advisedly weighed, will appear to be obvious enough, and familiar: Yet it is strange to see what a number of interpreters, that are commonly in hands, lea ve any very few, at least, found, that hold out the genuine sense of the place. The Jewish Doctors understand it of the length of years that their nation shall attain to, in the dayes of the Messias, to wit, that then they should live as long as the Fathers did before the flood; and that therefore a man at an hundred years should be counted but a boy, or child, still; and one that should dy at these years should be deemed some accursed creature, as having his life shortned by God for his sins. Others, run out to morall, and mystical senses. Some, that whereas in former times, they had many grey heads, with green wits; many ancient for years, but of babish disposition, and childish behaviour, there should now be none such known; but their old men should be grave, found, and discreet, able to fulfill, and perform all offices required of them, at that age, in their places: and as for those boyish, or childish old men, for behaviour and carriage, they should, as accursed wretches, be censured and worn out, in the time of the captivity. Some, that whereas God did formerly threaten, that if the Magistrates did not duly perform their duty, in doing justice upon delinquents, he would himself do it, by taking away persons so spared, by untimely and ilslelefe death, Lev. 20. 4, 5, 20, 21. as he did Er, and Onan, Gen. 38. 7, 10. that now should not be, it should not need: for that the Magistrates should now be very strict and exact in the execution of justice, not sparing any for age, though he were an hundred years old. Some, that whereas by the Law, a petty School matter, kept men like children, and thereby kept their first elements, or rudiments, unto their old age, the Gospel should bring them unto maturity and perfection. Gal. 3. 24 & 4 3. Heb. 7. 19. Others, that in the times of the Gospel, all true Believers should be continually growing up in grace, untill they came to a full growth, in which then they should continue for ever, Eph. 4. 12-16. Others, that a child in the Kingdom of Christ, shall be happier, then an old man in the Kingdom of the world: for a child in the Kingdom of Christ, shall attain to an happy perfection of life; whereas in the Kingdom of the world, a sinner, even then when he seemeth to have attained a perfection of life, shall be accursed. Others, rather at all to the reference, and the life to come, wherein there shall be no difference of old and young, but children shall rise in a perfect stature, and old men shall be raised in yo. th like vigour and strength. Some few have discovered, that long life is here promised, after their return from captivity, to Gods people: but in opening of the words, they have gone somewhat wide. For the better conceiving whereof aright, we are to consider that length of life, is, in Scripture, frequently promised, as a blessing, Exod. 20. 12. Deut. 4. 1, 40. & 6. 2. Psal. 21. 4. & 61. 6. & 91. 16. Prov. 3. 2, 16. Eph. 6. 2. and, on the other side, the shortning of mens lives mentioned, and threatned, as a curse, 1 Sam. 2. 32. Job 15. 32, 33. Psal. 55. 23. & 94. 23. & 102. 24. Eccl. 8. 13. God therefore, among other blessings which he would confer upon his people now refined, and restored, promiseth this, as one ord. narily much defired, that none among them, young or old, should be taken away by untimely death, but should live to the utmoll of that, which in the course of nature they might reach; and others of the first condition, and constitution, are (where not impeached by any contrary occurrent, from within, or from without) wont usually to attain. See ver. 22. Zach. 8. 4. Howbeit, that the wicked, such as remained still unreformed among them, (as some few yet, even in those times might) though their lives in those times of publicke peace and tranquility, might be prolonged; yet a curse of God should purlue them, and at last seize upon them, they should be but accursed creatures, Psal. 140. 11. Eccl. 8. 12, 13. But we shall discuss the terms apart as they ly in the text.

There shall be no more from thence] There shall not hereafter, as in former times, go out, or be carried out, to wit, unto burial, from thence; that is, from Jerusalem, ver. 19. but put here for the whole Land and State of Israel; because the head City of the Kingdom: and thus far the Jewish Commenters go along with us. See Eccl. 8. 10. So must the words, from thence, be understood, as with a notion of place; not, as some, from thence forth, in a notion of time: the word is no where found so ſuled.

an infant of dayes] The word, here used, seems by a late learned Scholiast to be taken for an embryo, or child conceived & contained as yet in the womb: for he rendreth the text, a young ling, or little infant, that shall not fulfill, or accomplish his dayes; that is, saith he, that shall not live out the time of it with life. So this branch of the promise, should be equivalent with that, Exod. 23. 26. that none among them going with child, should miscarry, or, be abortive. And it is true indeed, that a word of neer affinity to this, and whereby the Jewish Commenters here expound this, is used of such, Job 3. 19 as infants that are to saw light; as also that, Gen. 33. 13. a word deemed to be of the same kindred with this, is rendred, great with young. But this, I suppose, here, to have been this learned mans singular conceit, and to leave it. That word wherewith these Jewish Masters here render it, is supposed commonly, to signifie a sucking-child, or a suckling; but we find those two distinguished, the one from the other, 1 Sam. 15. 3. & 22. 19. Jer. 44. 7. Lam. 2. 11. See on chap. 49. 15. and as that, so this seems to be used more generally chap. 49. 15. and as that, so this seems to be used more generally chap. 49. 15. and as that, so this seems to be used more generally for a child, or boy, though of some bigness; for as of the one it is said, the children eat bread, Lam. 4. 4. so of the other, boyes despise me, & speak against me, or prate of me, Job 19. 18. which of sucking children, can neither of them fully be said. But by a child, or a boy of dayes, what should be meant, is further questioned, and here some would have the meaning to be, one of many dayes, as Josh. 23. 1. 2. gone se dayes, is used for stricken in age: & Dan. 10. 14. the vision is for dayes, that is, for many dayes, as our English well renders it; and so a boy, or a child of dayes, should be one, that hath lived a long time, many dayes, is far stricken in years, and yet continueth still a child, childish, or boyish. Others would have it, a child of dayes; that is, of few dayes: as, a number, for a small number. See chap. 10. 19. But to let pass these needless fupplies, a child of dayes, here signifies, as the words simply and properly import, a child for dayes; one in regard of dayes, or age, but a child: and the opposite word, old man, joyned with it, doth evidently evince that to be the true notion, both of the word, and form, here used. So that the meaning of the words, no child that shall not fulfill, or accomplish his dayes, is, that their children should not come to untimely ends, as formerly, having their brains dashed out by the enemy, 2 King. 8. 12. Psalm 137. 8, 9. Jer. 9. 20. or being starved for want of food in the siege of the citie, Lam. 2. 11, 12, 22. but should live and attain to their just growth, and full stint of years; and herein also the Jewish Criticks accord.

nor an old man that hath not filled his dayes;] Heb. and an old man: but the copulative, is here in a disjunctive, or disjunctive notion; as, father and mother, for, father or mother, Exod. 21. 15. 25. the child, and the old man are here opposed: so the old man, and the full of dayes, a distinguished. Jer. 6. 11. and the Jewish Masters here, are somewhat curious in their explication of these terms: a man, say they, is deemed an old man at sixty, but is not said to be full of dayes, or to have filled his dayes, until he reach unto seventy, the stint of mans life, Psal. 90. 10. for it is said of David, that he died full of days, 1 Chr. 29. 28. and yet he lived not beyond seventy; for he began to reign when he was thirty year old, and reigned forty, 2 Sam. 5. 4. but, say they, now they were to live hundreds of years, as they did before the flood: had they said an hundred years, they had not spoken much amiss: for the words following imply as much: but their computation is with the nicest, & their affertion too hyperbolical; a man is then said to have filled or accomplished his dayes, when he hath lived so long, as in course of nature, he might well reach, being not, by any casualty intervening, debarred from attaining thereunto.

for the child shal die an hundred years old:] The child, or boy, or lad, or youth, or young man; for it is not the word that was before used, but another, which in Scripture feemeth to comprehend, infancy, childhood, & youth: and sometime also to take in men of middle-age. Some would stint it at twenty years; and it is given to Joseph at seventeen, Gen. 37. 2. but to Benjamin, when he is deemed to have been above thirty, Gen. 43. 8. this child, or what you please to call him, the son of an hundred years shall die, so the words lye, and are word for word in the text. Hence those Rabbinicall fictions of men living so many years, that at an hundred they should seem to be but children and boyes. And on the other side the fancies of those, who have out of this form, coined us a proverb, A child of an hundred years old, for an old doater, or a fool, ſtiled therefore afterward, fay they, a sinner: Whereas the syntaxis familiar, and as clear as the day-light, or sun-shine; the child, or youth (that now is) shall dye the son of an hundred years; that is, shall be an hundred years old when he dieth. So Gen. 11. 10. Sem, the son of an hundred years, begat Arphaxad. And Abraham was the son of an hundred years when Isaac was born to him, Gen. 21. 5. in the same form run all those genealogical reckonings, Gen. 5. 32. & 7. 6. & 12. 4. & 16. 16. & 17. 1. & 25. 20. 26. & 37. 2. & 41. 46. & 50. 26. and very frequently elsewhere: neither young, nor old, shall dy, until they have made up a compleat age: such as an hundred years hath anciently with Greeks and Latines, been deemed to be; whence their ludi ſeculares, held solemnly every hundreth year: a form of speech here used to express length of life.

but the sinner being an hundred years old, shal be accursed.] Heb. and the sinner, the son of an hundred years shal be accursed. Where because the word rendred a sinner, comes from a verb which, in the first place signifies to miſs the mark. So Judg. 20. 16. hence some would here also have it so to be taken, and this branch thus rendred, he that misseth (or falleth short) of an hundred years, shall be accursed, that is, shall be deemed so to be; but this sense cannot be made out from the words, without manifeſt wringing and wronging the text. Others taking this word aright, run as wide in the later: for because it is said, Deut. 21. 23. that he that is hanged on the tree is accursed; would have the meaning to be this, that wicked men, as well old as young, shal be, by execution of justice done on them, made exemplary, & so deemed, as accursed; and that such become somtime matter of a curse, in proverbial phrases and by-words, appears by Jer. 29. 22. Sec v. 15. But this is but to ſtep out to fetch fire, or water, a-broad, when we have either of them under our noſes, at home. The genuine sense of its own accord offereth it self to us. That amidst all this prosperity & tranquility, all this flourishing estate & condition of Gods people, the man that liveth among them unreclaimed, and unreformed, continuing ſtil in a sinful course of life, shal be never a whit the more happy for all that felicity, though through Gods patience his life be never so long prolonged, but shal at length prove a cursed wretch. See Job 21. 7. 20. Psal. 37. & 73. Prov. 1. 32. Eccles. 8. 12, 13. chap. 3. 10, 11. & 48. 22. & 57. 20. 21. It seems to be not much unlike that, Rev. 20. 6. Blessed is he (not that liveth in the times of the ſirſt reſurrection; that is, in the times of the restitution of the Church to its purity and peace, but he) that being holy, hath his part in the ſirſt reſurrection, through a spiritual change wrought in his soul, in raising him from the death of sin, to the life of grace. Joh. 5. 25. I shal add only a final punctilio, if I may so term it, which yet, as to me seems, might conduce to make the connexion of this clause, with the rest of the context, a little clearer, to wit, if that the copulative here were rendred, by the diſcretive, though: and the whole clause put into a parentheſis, (though the sinner an hundred years old be accursed) because in the very next words, he goeth on in relating what benefits, together with this long life, the godly party should enjoy.

V. 21. And they ſhall build houſes, and inhabit them, and they ſhal plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them.] They, to wit, my ſervants, v. 13, 14. ſhal live to poſſeſs quietly, the houſes built by them, and to receive and enjoy the fruit of their labours. v. 9. See Psalm 128. 2. Jer. 29. 5.

V. 22. They ſhall not build, and another inhabit; they ſhall not plant, and another eat] To wit, the fruit of what they plant; as in the former branch, inhabit the houſes by them built; both to be underſtood from v. 21. not only for that the curſe threatned, Deut. 28. 30, 39, ſhould now have no place; they ſhould not build, or plant for an enemy to poſſeſs and enjoy, ch. 62. 8, 9. but that they ſhould not build or plant for poſterity alone, but ſhould ſurvive long, to enjoy whatſoever, in either kind, they had taken pains about themſelves: and this to be principally here intended, appeareth, both by what t went before, v. 20. and by what here followeth.

for as he dayes of a tree, are the dayes of my people] Or, ſhall the dayes of my people be; as of a laſting tree, that continueth for many ages: not as of a fading leaf, as formerly, that at time of year, ſheddeth, chap. 64. 6. it is well known of what continuance Oakes and Elms are, to omit all others: nor need we therefore have recourſe here with the Jewiſh Doctors, therein following the Chaldee Paraphraſt, where with the Greek alſo concenteth, to the tree of life, Gen. 2. 9. which, say they, laſted five hundred years. See Pſalm 128. 5, 6.

and mine Elect ſhall long enjoy the work of their hands] Or, my choyce ones (as verſ. 9.) ſhall live long to ſpend themſelves; and even to wear out, (ſo the word properly ſignifieth, Job 21. 13.) what by their labours they have gotten and gathered, Pſalm 128. 2. 6. for rather, then, as ſome other, they ſhall make their handy work durable. See chap. 23. 18.

V. 23. They ſhall not labour in vain] As thoſe do that cannot enjoy the fruit of their labours; but others eat what they have tugged and toyled for: or whoſe labours prove fruitleſs for want of a bleſſing from above, Lev. 26, 16. Deut. 28. 30. Jer. 51. 58. Hab. 2. 13. Hag. 1. 6. 1 Cor. 15. 58.

nor bring forth for trouble] Or, unto trouble. Their iſſue ſhal enjoy the like quiet and proſperous condition together with their parents, having no occaſions of mourning miniſtred unto them, by the unſeaſonable death, & loſs of parents, or their diſmal occurrents; which in times of publick calamity do ſo frequently fall out, that the iſſue of thoſe that live in thoſe times, may ſeem bred to nothing, but to ſorrow and grief; as in times of peſtilence, for the grave; in times of war, for the ſword: and they are wont therefore to be deemed happy, that are in ſuch times without iſſue. See Deut. 28. 4. Hoſ. 9. 12, 13, 14. Mat. 24. 19.

for they are the ſeed of the bleſſed of the Lord, and their off ſpring with them.] To wit, is bleſſed: Gods bleſſing is entailed upon them: it taketh in their iſſue together with them, Exod. 20. 6. Pſalm 37. 25, 26. & 115. 13, 14. See chap. 61. 9.

V. 24. And it ſhall come to paſs, that before they call, I will anſwer] And it ſhall be as chap. 2. 2.) before they call, and I will anſwer; as chap. 57. 11. I will be more forward to grant, then they to crave; more ready to anſwer, then they to aſk. See inſtances hereof, Pſal. 32. 5. Dan. 10. 12. Luke 15. 18, 20.

and whiles they are yet ſpeaking, I will hear] By gracious acceptance of their ſuits, and granting to them, what they are ſpeaking ſpeaking and ſaing for, Dan. 9. 20. 23. So Act. 10. 44. & 11. 15. See chap. 58. 9.

V. 25. The wolf, and the lamb, ſhall feed together;] That is, fay ſome, juſtice ſhall be ſo ſtrictly and ſeverely executed, that there ſhall be no murther, nor robberies committed, as in former times, chap. 11. 2, 3. See Deut. 13. 11. But the meaning rather ſeems to be, that ſuch as had been of a fierce and ſavage diſpoſition formerly, ſhould now be ſo altered and changed, that they might ſeem to be transformed out of wolves into ſheep; ſo altered, at leaſt, as if a wolf were grown ſo tame, that he might ſafely be truſted with ſheep, and ſuffered to go among lambs, contenting himſelf to feed quietly, and harmleſly, not on them, but with them. See chap. 11. 6.

together] Heb. as one; ſo this form is uſed, Ezra 2. 64. & 3. 9. & 6. 20. Neh. 7. 66. ſo alſo, Pſal. 82. 7. which there not obſerved, hath cauſed a miſtake in the meaning of the text.

and the lion ſhall eat ſtraw like the bullock] Not prey upon cattel, as in times paſt. See chap. 11. 7.

and duſt ſhall be the ſerpents meat.] He ſhall reſt content with the food, by God, aſſigned him, Gen. 3. 14. and not faſten on man, or beaſt, not feed on, or hurt at all any other creature; all ſhall be harmleſs. See chap. 11. 8.

They ſhall not hurt nor deſtroy in all mine holy mountain, ſaith the Lord.] Or, none ſhall hurt, nor deſtroy, in all mine holy mountain. Heb. mountain of holineſs, as verſ. 11. thorowout my whole Church, among my people, chap. 2. 2 Pſal. 15. 1. & 24. 3. Sion, for Jeruſalem; becauſe the chief part of it, where in Gods Temple, and the Kings palace, ſtood; and Jeruſalem for the whole land; becauſe the mother citie. See on verſe 20. from thence. Of the whole paſſage, ſee chap. 11. 9.

CHAP. LXVI.

Verſ 1. THus ſaith the Lord;] This chapter, though it ſeem a diſtinct Sermon from that next before-going; yet is much of the ſame ſubject & matter, and argument with it, and hath many forms and expreſſions, the ſame that we there had: it conſiſteth of various paſſages, inter-woven the one within the other, of mercies and comforts to the godly, of judgements to the wicked: together with Prophecies concerning the ſtrange, ſudden, and unexpected reſtitution of the Church, and the dilatation of it into all parts.

The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footſtool:] Becauſe the carnall Jewes confided much in the materiall Temple, and the externall ſervices, and ſacrifices, therein performed, Jer. 7. 4, 10. when as neither their hearts were upright with God, nor their lives otherwiſe conformable to the Rule of his Word; God, by the Prophet, endeavoureth to beat down, and raze the grounds of this their vain confidence; in the former, in this verſe; in the later, verſ. 3.

Heaven is my throne] That is, the place of his Majeſticall preſence, where, in moſt glorious manner, he manifeſteth himſelf unto the bleſſed ſpirits, as a King ſiteing in his royall robes, on his throne, Pſal. 11. 4. & 103. 19. Mat. 5. 34.

the earth is my footſtool] So is the earth in general termed; becauſe the loweſt part of the world, which he uſeth with his powerful preſence, Pſal. 110. 1. Mat. 5. 35. but in a more ſpecial manner the Ark as a place on which he ſeemed to reſt, as mens feet do on a footſtool, 1 Chr. 28. 2. Pſal. 99. 5. & 132. 7. Lam. 2. 1. See ch. 60. 13.

where is the houſe that ye build unto me?] Or, where is there an houſe, that ye ſhould, or can, build for me? the pronoun demonſtrative, put for the verb ſubſtantive: as 1 Sam. 9. 18. Job 39. 19, 24. Pſal. 25. 12. Chap. 50. 1. and the verb taken potentially, as chap. 49. 15. & 64. 11. when as I ſtil heaven and earth with my preſence, Jer. 23. 25. what houſe can ye build, that ſhould hold, and contain me? Do ye imagine, that I am included in, or confined unto, my Temple, as one of your idols, unto ſome cell, or houſe, that ye have framed for it? Chap. 44. 13. See 1 King. 8. 27, 2 Chr. 6. 18. Acts 7. 47-50. & 17. 24.

and where is the place of my reſt?] Or, or (the copulative for the diſjunctive; as Gen. 19. 6.) where is there a place (as before, & Job 38. 19.) for my reſt? or, as ſome, what place (for the old Greek rendreth it, and ſo Luke, Acts 7. 49.) is my reſt? reſt, for a place of reſt: as Pſal. 95. 11. & 132. 14. ſuch a place for me to reſt and repoſe my ſelf in, as if I could not find reſt any where elſe, but there; as the dove in the deluge, Gen. 8. 9. Howbeit, in ſome reſpects the Temple, in regard of the Ark, termed Gods footſtool, is ſomtime called Gods reſt, or his reſting place, Pſal. 132. 8. as a type of his Church, wherein he is pleaſed to reſt, and repoſe himſelf, by his Spirit, Cant. 1. 7. chap. 11. 10. See chap. 60. 7. 13.

V. 2. For all thoſe things hath my hand made] Or, Since that (Heb. And; as Job 19. 28. & 21. 22.) my hand hath made all thoſe things: (as verſ. 8.) to wit, heaven & earth, (v. 1.) and whatſoever is contained in either of them, even whatſoever ye ſee and behold, above, or below, in the ſky, or on the earth, chap. 40. 26. Gen. 1. 1. & 2. 1. Pſal. 146. 6. Joh. 1. 3. Acts 7. 50. Heb. 3. 3, 4. & 11. 3. for they ſeem to go aſide from the true ſenſe of the text, who expound them of the Temple, and the facilities, as being all Gods creatures, 1 Chr. 29. 14, 16.

and all thoſe things have been, ſaith the Lord] Or, are; that is, have their being. Acts 17. 25, 28. and ſubſiſt, Col. 1. 6, 17. or are; that is, continue, as the word is uſed, Dan. 1. 21 So Pſa. 1 9. 89 91. they continue in being, as ſupported by him, Heb. 1. 2, 3. they are to wit, by my hand; thus rather then as ſome; have been, that is, had a beginning: or, as ſome other, were, to wit, the work of my hands: though that was in the former branch intended. Since that all things, both heaven and earth, with all the contents and furniture of either, have had their being at firſt from him, and are ſtil upheld by him, he hath no need at all of them; but can well be without them: as he was alſo before they were; much leſs hath he need of any houſe to receive him, or of any ſervice of man therein to be done him, Pſal. 16. 2. & 50. 10, 11. Acts 17. 25.

but to this man will I look, even to him that is poor, and of a contrite ſpirit, and trembleth at my word] Or, yet, (Heb. and: as chap. 60. 10. & 63. 11.) to this man do I look, to one afflicted, or humbled, and ſmitten in ſpirit, and that trembleth at my word. Albeit, that I am ſo infinitely high and great, and ſo allſufficient of my ſelf, yet will I look after, regard, and take notice of any one that is of an humble mind, and of a penitent ſpirit, and that doth ſincerely tear me, Pſal. 33. 18. & 34. 18. & 138. 6. & 147. 11. ſuch are they that I deſire, and delight to abide with, the hearts of ſuch are the houſe that by my Spirit, I am willing, and well content, to inhabit, Prov. 8. 31. 1 Cor. 3. 16 & 6. 19. Eph. 2. 22. as alſo thoſe affections, and diſpoſitions, are the ſacrifices that he accepteth of, and taketh delight in, Pſal. 51. 16, 17. See chap. 57. 15.

poor] To wit, in ſpirit, Mat. 5. 3. or rather, here, at leaſt, afflicted, or humbled; for that the word properly ſignifies, and is well ſo rendred, Pſalm 18. 27. & 22. 24. & 88. 15. Prov. 15. 15. & 22. 22.

of a contrite ſpirit] Heb. contrite of ſpirit; as ſome: ſuppoſing it to come from a word that ſignifieth to grind, or to worx, Ezek. 13. 22. & to be the ſame with that, which, from thence derived, is found, Pro. 15. 13. & 17. 22. & 18. 14. rendred ſomtime, a broke n ſpirit, ſomtime a wounded ſpirit: but though in found it come neer to it, and be in ſubſtance the ſame with it, yet it ſeemeth to come from another root, and to ſignifie properly ſmitten; and by ſmiting, weaken'd: uſed elſewhere of the body 2 Sam. 4. 4. & 9. 3. but here applied to the mind, and ſignifies one ſmitten in his heart; as it is. Pſal. 102. 4. or, deje cted in ſpirit, as ſometime it is uſed alſo for an abject, Pſal. 35. 15. In ſtead of thoſe two, chap. 57. 15. we have two others; though in root and found different from them, yet in notion neer them, to wit, contrite, and low of ſpirit: but two of the ſame, not notion onely, but notation alſo with them, chap. 53 4.

and trembleth at my word] Or, and that trembleth; for the relative is wanting, as c. 65. 1. a note of one that truly feareth God, to ſtan-d in awe of his word, and with due reverence receive it, Eſr. 9. 4. & 10. 3. So 2 King 22. 11, 19. Pſal. 119. 131. chap. 50. 10. Jer. 36. 16.

V. 3. He that killeth an ox, is as if he ſlew a man:] As this people confided much in their Temple, ſo in their ſacrifices: and other ex-ternal ſervices therein performed, no leſs, as 1 Chr. 13. 10, 11. God therefore in theſe words acquaints them, how he eſteemed of thoſe performances, where thoſe inward affections and diſpoſitions of ſoul & ſpirit are wanting; no better then as oblations conſiſting of ſuch abominable things as the heathen offered to their idols; yea, no better then as the committing of the hainouſeſt crimes, that may either againſt God or man be committed, ſuch as were murther, the hainouſeſt offence in the ſecond table inhibited, and idolatry in the firſt. See Prov. 15. 8. & 21. 27. chap. 1. 11-14.

he that killeth an ox] To wit, for ſacrifice; as in the next branch, of aſh ep.

as is he ſlew a man] Heb. killing an ox, ſmiting a man; or a ſlayer of an ox, a ſmiter of a man, that is, a murtherer of him: ſuch a one as God would have by force haled from his altar, and put to death, Exo. 21. 14. for the term of ſmiting is uſed oft-times for ſlaying, as num. 35. 11, 15, 30 Jer. 40. 14, 15. God, by the Prophet ſo ſpeaks, as putting no difference at all between the one and the other; between their ſlaying of an ox for ſacrifice, & the murthering of a man; between the ſprinkling of his altar by them, with the bloud of a beaſt, and the polluting of it with the gore bloud of one of their children, that they ſlew and ſacrificed to their idols, Pſal. 106 37, 38. that which they make offer of unto God ſometime to do for him, if he would accept, & give them leave to live as they liſt. d. Mic. 6. 6 7. yea, and acted ſometime on the very ſelf ſame day, wherein they ſpeech the more emphatical. See on chap. 49. 6. 7. wherein the ſenſe is wantings as Gen. 49. 6. chap. 47. 3. & 58. 1. which yet maketh the ſpeech no leſs emphatical. See on chap. 49. 6. 7.

he that ſacrificeth a lamb, as if he cut off a dogs neck] Heb. a ſacrificer, or, a ſlayer, (as Exod 13. 4.) of a ſheep; for to the wo d ſignifies, See chap. 53. 7. a sacker of a dog, or one that necketh a dog, that is, beheadeth him, or cutteth off his head by the neck; as the word is alſo uſed, Deut. 21. 4. for the verb is derived from a noun that ſignifieth the hinder part of the neck, on which, in the beheading of man or beaſt, the executioners ſtroke is wont to light: and hence alſo in the Jewiſh Talmud, the neck, is termed, the bonet, or place of ſlaughter; becauſe in ſlaying of beaſts for ſacrifice, they gave to wit, to Deut. 2. 27. to neck, for to cut off by the neck: (though ſometime alſo to break the neck. So it is rendred, Exod. 13. 13. & 34. 20. (as to a foot, for, to pluck up by the roots, to wot out, Job 31. 12. Pſal. 52. 6. and to tail, for, to curtail, or, to cut out the tail, or, hinder part of ought, or party of ſome troop, cut off the tail, or, hinder part. Hoſ. 10. 19. See the like, chap. 10. 28. & 22. 25. here. Deut. 25. 18. Hoſ. 10. 19.

the beheading, or killing of a dog, by necking, or knetching of him, is mentioned as a matter intended for sacrifice, a thing by the ritual law then in force, so vile and abominable, that whereas some other beasts, as the ass, though unclean, & excluded from being made matter of sacrifice, or the sacrifilings thereof, to be tendred for an oblation, yet might be redeemed, and somwhat accepted in lieu of them, Exo. 13. 13. there was solemn provision made, in express terms, that no price of any dog should be brought into Gods house, Deut. 23. 18.

he that offereth an oblation] Heb mesheth an oblation to ascend, or, a misher of a meat, or meal, or, corn-offering to go up; as 1 Sam. 7. 10, Jer. 33. 18. See chap. 1. 13. & 57. 6. & 60. 7.

is as if he offered swines blood] There is no more in the text, then swines blood: the rest is supplied from the former member of the sentence, and as in the other branches. See the supplies from fore going members, Gen. 1. 16. 30. 2 Chr. 10. 11. Prov. 15. 15. chap. 58. 13. Swine were unclean, and their flesh not to be eaten, or so much as touched, Lev. 11. 7, 8. much lesse their blood to be offered on Gods Altar, as was the blood of beasts allowed for sacrifice, Exod. 23. 18. See chap. 65. 4. verse 17.

he that burneth incense, as if he blessed an idol:] Heb. a remembrancer of incense, (that is, one that with incense makes a memorial: as Lev. 2. 2.) or, as some, a celebrater, or praiser (of God) by incense; one that, by such means, would seem to praise God, and express his thankfulnes to him. See Psal. 141. 2. chap. 1. 13, Mal. 1. 11. (and of this use of the word here used, see chap. 12. 4.) a blesser of vanity, or vexation: so is an idol here termed; because no other then vanity, 1 Ier. 10. 15, and matter of meer vexation and affliction, unto all those that serve them, obey them, and trust in them. See ch. 41. 29. & 46. 1. and of the signification of the word, ch. 1. 13. & 10. 1. Howbeit the Chaldee Paraphrast, whom some of the Jewish Doctors follow, expound it another way; he that makes a memorial with incense, as if he blessed me with some rapine; that is, as if he presented me (for, a blessing is used for a present, Gen. 33. 10.) with somwhat gotten by oppression, which I professe to abhor, ch. 61. 8. but the former sense seemeth genuine; and the meaning to be, that their incense-offerings were so far from being any gratefull favour unto him, that they did but vex him, as much by presenting him with them, as they could by praying to, praising of, and tendring themselves, and their service to some idol. See Ezek. 20. 39. where God expressly professeth, that he would rather they should go serve any the vilest & basest idols, being such as they were, then perform any service in his house to himself; as deeming himself more profaned and dishonoured by this later, then by the former.

yea, they have chosen their own wayes,] Or, because, or since that they chose wayes of their own. Heb. also they, or they also, that is, say some of the Jewish Commenters, both their fathers, and they also, as ch. 65. 7. but these particles are of very various use, and this in particular, as it is an illative, Job 7. 11. so it seems here to be a causal; and gam to be put for because, because, Gen 6. 3. and so also one of the Jewish Criticks here expounds it; affirming, that in these words God rendreth a reason, why he so deemed, and esteemed of their services; to wit, because their persons, and their practices were such, so detestable, and so directly contrary unto that which he required. See the same reason of the like rendred, Ezek. 20. 39. Ier. 7. 21-28. Some render the words, they choose these things (to wit before-mentioned) in their wayes: which reading, were it admitted, the former might seem to bear a far other sense, then hath been given of it; to wit, they that sacrifice an ox, or a sheep, or, bring an offering, or burn incense, are such as are withall, murtherers and sacrificers of dogs, and swine, and idolaters: but this misreading, and misrendring here, ariseth from a supposition, that the particle ach, should here signifie in, as it oft doth: whereas indeed it is but a bare note of the verbs government of the noun: whereunto it is prefixed; which as it is in the syntax of divers other verbs, so in that of this very frequently, as may be seen, Deut. 7. 7. & 14. 2. & 18. 5. & 21. 5. 1 Sam. 10. 26. & 16. 8, 9. 10. as also, chap. 14. 1. & 44. 1, 2. and hereafter again twice, verf. 4. yea, very seldome otherwise: it is therefore at right rendred, he chooseth your own ways, or wayes of your own: such as your selves have devised, and your hearts hang after, but are none of mine, but directly repugnant to what I require. See chap. 65. 2. & verf. 4.

and their soul delighteth in their abominations.] They have no delight in ought but such abominable practises as they have made choice of, and beraken themselves unto. Of the word rendred abominations, see on verf. 17. their soul, for themselves; as Psalm 3. 2. & 33. 20. & 107. 18. & 124. 7. y. t the phrase maketh it more emphatical; as Psal. 11. 5. Zach. 11. 8. Heb. 10. 38. their abominations, as before, their own wayes.

V. 4. I also will choose their delusions, and bring their fears upon them:] One of the Jewish Masters finding two gams, or alsoes, here; the one, in the verse before; the other, in this, would have them rendred, that they may the one answer the other. both th y have chosen, and I also will choose; as the like, saith he, is found, Deut. 22. 25. Num 18. 3. Eccles. 9. 1. though scarce any of these places are parallel to this. But I suppose rather, that the former gam, was there used as a causal; this here, as an illative; because they have chosen, therefore will I choose, and may well have a two-fold reference, as to their impiety before-mentioned; so to their obstinacy therein, hereafter subjoyned. Howsoever, there is in the word thus repeated, an implication of a retaliation; as if he had said, They have made their choice, and I will make mine: they have taken the courses that they pleased with me, and I will take what course I please with them. See the like, Lev. 26. 27, 28. Psal. 18. 26. chap. 65. 12. Jer. 34. 17. The Jewish Critick before mentioned, would have somewhat here supplied from verf. 3. to wit, I will choose, and delight in their delusions: it may be the rather, because of the particle beth, here again found; but of that before: and though as much may be implied, yet the supply is not necessary.

their delusions] Or, devices, or designs: the word is no where found, but here, and ch. 3. 4. from which place, together with some other, where the verb it comes of is used for, in contumelious manner, to mock, & abuse, as Judg. 19. 25. 1 Sam. 31. 4. Jer. 38. 19. some Interpreters here render it, delusions, illusions, pestilences, or mockeries; and this some take actively, or subjectively, their illusions, pestilences, or mockeries; and that is, the abuses, indignities, & dishonors done by them, and offered to Gods sacred majesty; and these put for the reward of them, or the reward for the same due unto them. Others passively, or objectively, their illusions, or mockages, that is, the reproachful & disgraceful usages, that they shall be exposed unto, undergo, and endure; and this I take to be the genuine sense of the place; so, my wrong, for the wrong done, not by me, but to me, Gen. 16. 5. and, my violence, for the violence offered to me, Jer. 51. 35. and this well suiteth with what followeth, their fears. So the meaning will be, As they have made choice of such ways and courses as please not me; so will I make choice of such things for them, as they shall find small pleasure in, such as shall bring nothing, but reproach and derision, dread and disdraction upon them, that shall expose them to shame, and terror, Jer. 18. 16. & 19. 8. & 24. 9. & 25. 9. 18. & 29. 18. Howbeit, because a word of the same allyance with this, is used sometime for devices; sometime, designs, and that usually in the worse part, for evil devices, and evil designs, Deut. 22. 14. Psal. 141. 4. Ezek. 20. 43, 44. & 21. 24. & 24. 14. the greatest number of Interpreters, would have this word also to signifie, here; by devices and designs, understanding the due and deserved reward of them; as chap. 65. 7. But the use of the word is without example. The Jewish Commenters have hints of either.

and will bring their fears upon them] Such terrors and affrightments as they shall sustain, and be distracted with; as Psal. 34. 4. Jer. 20. 4. Some conceive the meaning to be, that God would bring upon them those evils, which at present they feared, and by betaking themselves to those idolatrous services, and practices hereafter mentioned, v. 17. hoped to avert, according to that, Prov. 10. 24. The fear of the wicked, (that which he feareth, and out of fear, seeketh by evil courses to avert, or avoid) shall befall him. See Jer. 42. 16. Ezek. 11. 8. and pregnant instances hereof, 1 King. 12. 26-30. with 13. 34. and Joh. 11. 48, 50. with Luke 19. 43, 44. & 20, 24-26. But the people in likelihood, at the time of this prophesie, were rather possessed with security, then surprised with fears.

because when I called, none did answer; when I spake they did not hear:] Or, none would answer, and would not hear. Heb. I cryed, and there was no answerer, I spake, and they heard not. See chap. 65. 12. but they did evil before mine eyes] Or, that which was evill in my sight, that is, displeasing to me. Heb. and, as chap. 29. 13. and, the evil in mine eyes, as chap. 65. 12. Jer. 7. 30.

and chose that in which I delighted not.] Made choice of such courses, and walked advisedly therein, as I detested and abhorred, verf. 3. See chap. 65. 12.

V. 5. Hear the word of the Lord, ye that tremble at his word:] Ye that truly fear God v. 2. for to them he now turneth his speech; as chap. 50. 10. & 51. 1, 7. partly, to encourage and strengthen them, against the reproachful, disgraceful, and despiteful usages, which at present they sustained at the hands of their own profane & ungodly people: and partly, because they onely, and such as they were, had right to, and were to share in those favours, and mercies, that God promiseth here to bestow upon his Church, in, and after the restauration of it.

your brethren] In name and profession, but false and counterfeit ones, 2 Cor. 11. 26. Gal. 2. 4. and this term seems the rather here given them, to aggravate their harsh and unbrotherly demeanure toward the godly, as Ezek. 18. 18. Obad. 10. 12. 1 Joh. 3. 15.

that hated you, that cast you out, for my names sake,] Or, that hate you, &c. that malign and oppugn you for your sincere service of God, and cleaving close to him; or, as one of the Rabbines, not amiss, for their trembling at his word, Psalm 38. 20. Cant. 1. 6. verf. 2.

cast you out] So some of the Jewish Criticks, according to that, Job 18. 18. and so it should imply, that censure of casting out, the lowest degree of Excommunication in the Jewish Church, called Niddui, by a word from that root; or, put you off, or far from them; as others of them, conceiving the word here used, to come from another, but neere neighbour term, that signifies, to remove, or put far off, Amos 6. 2. and they refer it to the worned speeches of those, Chap. 65. 5. and Lam. 4. 15. who, though most vile themselves, shunned others truly pious, as persons polluted, and such as should pollute them, if they came neer them. The two roots are so neer a kin, that among the Criticks it is questioned, whether the term niddah, that hath a notion of separation for uncleanness, cometh from from the one, or from the other; and the meaning here is, those that either by unjust censure, under pretence of a legal proceeding, cast you out, as persons unworthy of communion with Gods people; or that shun you, as persons so polluted, and defiled, that there is no dealing with you, without being defiled by you. See Joh. 9. 34. & 16. 2.

for my names sake;] As Mat. 10. 22. & 19. 29. Luk. 21. 17. Joh. 15. 21. that is, for my sake; for me, for your loyalty to me, Psal. 44. 22. & 69. 7. Mat. 5. 10, 11. Mar. 10. 29. and thus most, both annex, and expound, this clause, which yet some of the Rabbins, with whom one of ours, an Interpreter of prime note, concurreth, knit unto the words following, and make part of these presumptuous ones words, by, or through my name, God is glorified. But the phrase to me seems unepath; and I leave it therefore to the judgment of others.

said] Or, say, to wit, when they do thus express, and manifest their malevolent, and malignant affection, and disposition towards you.

Let the Lord be glorified:] An Egyptian Rabbine, of no small note among his countrey-men, interpreteth these words far otherwise then we read them, as, if, in them, this ungodly people should complain, that God was over-heavie, and burdensome to them, in requiring of them, such a strict observation of his rites and precepts; and renders the words, The Lord is burdensome, or that heavy, alledging 2 Sam. 13. 25. and affirming withal, that in that form, wherein it is here used, it doth never signifie otherwise: but herein another of his own coat controlleth him, and pointeth him to a place, Joh 14. 21. where, in the same form, it signifies, to be honoured, or had in honour. And these, either of theirs, or ours: that thus render it, as the most do, expound it, some of them, as spoken by them in way of justification of their ways and courses in general, to wit, that they honoured God more, by serving him as so many places, and with such variety of all sorts of sacrifices, then those did, that confined his service to one place onely, and restrained his sacrifices to a small number of creatures, see Chap. 56. 7. or, of this particular act of theirs, in casting out of his servants, or seq iestring themselves from them, as pretending that they had very good, and just ground, and cause so to do, and that they did a service very acceptable to God, and such as much conduced to the honour of his name, in so doing. So Joh. 16. 2. and they render the words, the Lord is glorified; to wit, by us, in what we do. But others rather conceive it spoken, in way of derision, Let God be glorified, or appear in glory; as Chap. 2. 11. 2 Thess. 1. 10. Tit. 2. 13. let him manifest his might, and majesty, in doing some remarkable matter for you, if ye be so deare to him, and are so deep in his books, as ye deem and pretend your selves to be; as deriding, and jeering them, for their vain (as they counted it) confidence in God, and hopefull expectation of his glorious appearance, to redresse and right their wrongs. So chap. 5. 19. Psal. 22. 7, 8. Mat. 27. 43. 2 Pet. 3. 3, 4. and this suiteth fitly with what followeth.

but he shall appear to your joy, and they shall be ashamed,] Or, but he shall appear to your joy, when they shall be ashamed; as Chap. 65. 13. See Psal. 50. 1-5. 2 Thess. 1. 7-10. Heb. and he shall appear: whence some take occasion to annex the former member of this branch, as least, if not both, to the words foregoing, making it part of those profane ones speech; some rendring them; and let them be seen to your joy. Others, and let us see, or that we may see, somewhat done that may minister matter of joy to you, and such as ye are: but the copulative, in a directive notion, is frequent, chap. 60. 10. & 61. 6. and these readings do too much disjoynt the text; nor can I concur with those, who, though severing this branch from that speech of theirs, render it; but we (that is, I and ye together) shall see (as Chap. 41. 23.) your joy: for the syntax will not bear it; after the verbs of sight, the particle is not wont to be vacant.

V. 6. A voice of noise from the citie; a voice from the Temple; a voice of the Lord that rendreth recompence to his enemies.] Some would thus hang this verse upon the foregoing passage; they shall be confounded by a voice of noise, &c. Others, disjoyning this verse from that, yet so as to carry on the context, prefix some words, and render the text; For these shall be heard a voice, &c. But I concur rather with those, who conceive that the Prophet abruptly, on purpose, breaketh out into these words, as if, in a Prophetical rapture, he heard the noise of that voice, or those voices, that here he speaks of. See the like, Chap. 13. 4. Jer. 50. 22, 28. & 51. 54. and it seems not fit so fasc, to enervate, and diminish, the force and emphasis of Prophetical strains, by any unnecessary additions. But what manner of voyce this should be, or when uttered, and heard, is much questioned. Some would have it a voice of triumph, and joy, of shouting in the citie, of thanksgiving in the Temple, upon Judas Maccabeus his recovery of the citie, and restitution of the Temple, after the spoyl and pollutions, by Antiochus, of either, 1 Maccab. 4. 52-58. The Jewish moft refer it to the Messias his dayes, at what time such a voice should go forth, to set forward the expedition, against Gog, and Magog, Ezek. 38. 21, 22. The moft of ours refer it to the surprisal of Jerusalem, and the destruction of the Temple, either by the Chaldeans, as some, 2 King. 25. 4, 9. or, by the Romans, as oth rs, Mat. 24. 2, 13. & 23. 38. Luk. 19. 43, 44. & 21. 20, 22. This last is moft likely.

a voice of noise] Or, of tumult. So the Chaldee: that is, a tumultuous noise. So Chap. 13. 4.

from the city] To wit, Jerusalem; of people, upon the surprisal of it by the enemies forces, running to and fro in the streets, like persons distracted, and like blind men, falling foul one upon another. See Zeph. 1. 10, 17. Lam. 4. 14, 15.

a voice from the Temple.] Of people fled thither for succour and safeguard; or of the Priests, and other Officers, as much distracted and distrelled, as the people; or, of both crying to heaven, but in vain then, for help. Hither some refer what Iosephus the Jew relateth, in his Jewish war, l. 7. c. 31. of the Temple doors flying open suddenly of themselves; and a voice heard, at the feast of Pentecost, by the Priests from the inner Sanctuary, after a noise or soms stirring, or shuffling within, saying; Let us depart hence; as also of one Jesus Bar-Ananus; that at the feast of Tabernacles, went up and down the citie, crying, A voice from the East, a voice from the west, a voice from the four winds; a voice against Jerusalem, and the Temple, a voice against all this people: all which prodigious occurrents, are reported to have been not long before the destruction of that citie, and Temple, by the Romans. Howbeit, they seem not to be the cry intimated, and pointed to, in this place. For the Jewish Masters seem to sweive from the true sense of the text, who because Heaven is sometime called Gods Temple, or Palace, (one of the words imports either) Psal. 11. 4. would have the Temple here to be Heaven; and the voice, Gods thundring voice, Psal. 29. by drum, and tempest from heaven: as Josh. 10. 11. Judg. 5. 20. discomfiting the forces of Gog, and Magog, Ezek. 38. 21, 22. See Rev. 20. 8, 9. But the Materiall Temple on earth, built in that City, seems rather, here specified; and that the rather mentioned, to controll their vain confidence in it, as implying, how little relief, or safeguard, they should then receive from it. See ver. 1. Lam. 2. 20.

a voice of the Lord] Not his still and gracious voice, speaking now by his Prophets, and calling upon them for repentance, with tenders of mercy upon their repentance, which they refused then to hear, ver. 4. but his roaring voice of vengeance now to be executed upon them, for their manifold excesses, and refusal to be reclaimed by the former, Ezek. 9. 6, 7 & 24. 1. So Joel 2. 11. Amos 1. 2. the word voice repeated, hath no small emphasis in it; which they seem to lessen, who by variety of terms expresse it.

that rendreth recompence to his enemies] Heb. repaying a retribution, or reward, to his enemies. But who these enemies are, the question is. Some would have them to be strange nations, the enemies and oppressours of his people, Chap. 59. 18, 19. Jer. 50. 15, 28. Others rather, the obstinate wicked ones amongst his people, whom he justly styleth his enemies, as here, so elsewhere, Chap. 1. 24 of whom he useth the very same terms, Chap. 65. 6, 7. and to whose confusion he threatned to appear, ver. 5. See ver. 14.

V. 7. Before she travelled, she brought forth; before her pain came, she was delivered of a man-child.] The moft Interpreters, both Jew and Christian, understand these words, of the strange, sudden, and unexpected delivery of the remainders of Gods people, out of the Babylonian bondage, by Cyrus; whereof, see Chap. 43. 18-21. and this as it seemeth to be a collation of dissimilitude, compared with their deliverance out of Egypt, which was not without much tugging and struggling, effected, Exod. 3. 19. & 5. 9, 19, 21, 23. & 6. 9. whereas this was done without any labour, or travel at all on their parts, upon Cyrus his Proclamation only sent out, 2 Chron. 36. 22, 23. Ezr. 1. 1-3. Psal. 126. 1. So it is not unfitly deemed, by a comparison of similitude, to have some glance at the deceit of the Egyptian Midwives, concerning the Hebrew women, that they were so vigorous, and quick, in their travel, that they were usually delivered ere the Midwife came at them, Exod. 1. 19. Sion is compared to a teeming woman; the people of Israel, to such an ones children; which she is said to be delivered of, without pain, or throws, in two cafe ordinary: as Varro reporteth of the Illyrian women, who being at harvest work in the field, when they were neer their time, would but step aside, and return again, bringing a child with them, as if they had found it, behind the hedge; Varro, of husbandry, l. 2. c. 10. Howbeit, divers Interpreters understand it of the restitution and restauration of the Church, under the ministery of the Gospel, when so many thousands were so soon, and so suddenly converted, without any great labour, or pains-taking about them, of those by whom they were converted, Act. 2. 41. & 4. 4. and that these expositions conceived, as subordinate the one to the other, may very well be admitted. But as for that groundless fancy of Popish Writers, expounding these words, as spoken of the Virgin Maries delivery of Christ without pain; not unlike that their fiction of the ox, and the asse, in the stable with her, from Chap. 1. 3. I let it passe, as fearce worthy the mentioning.

She was delivered of] Heb. She hath delivered. So the word properly signifieth, Chap. 31. 8. but it is applyed to delivery of children, by birth here; as to the delivery of a fowles young ones, by hatching, Chap. 34. 15. and the reason of the phrase is, because they seem to be delivered, by birth, the one, by hatching, the other, out of those streits wherein they were formerly, being enclosed and pent up, the one in the womb, the other in the shell: and on the other side, with us, the woman is said to be delivered, because she is rid of the burden that she went with before.

a man child] As Gen. 4. 1. Joh. 16. 21. a man, Heb. a male; as Rev. 12. 5. as noting both the more might of it: as Rev. 12. 5. See Phil. 105. 37. and the more joy for it, as Joh. 16. 21. for the female is deemed the feebler sex, 1 Pet. 3. 7. and leste joy usually at its birth: but, that which is more; the term here, seems to be taken collectively, a male, for, males: as Gen. 3. 7. 9. for multitudes are here intended at one birth. See ver. 8. and to draw it to Christ, said to be formed in the hearts of believers, Gal. 4. 19. seems somewhat harsh. Or the joy at the return of the people from captivity. See Phil. 126. 1, 2. Chap. 60. 4, 5. at the conversion of people unto Christ. See Act. 2. 46. & 8. 8. & 11. 18, 23.

V. 8. who hath heard such a thing? who hath seen such things? shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? or shall a nation be born at once?] Was it ever known, heard, or seen? (see Chap. 64. 4.) or is it a thing possible, that a whole country of people should be born in one day; or, that a woman should be delivered of a whole nation at one birth?

shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day?] According to this version, the meaning may seem to be, as if the question were, whether the whole earth, or all a whole country, that is, all the women in the world, or, all of some country, should be made to bring forth, together, in one day; or, as some, whether the earth be able, in one day, to bring forth the seeds of herbs, and plants, committed unto it, and laid up in it, as at the first, without any such sowing, it did, Gen. 1. 11, 12. or, whether it can bring forth (which is more then so) such living wights of all sorts, in one day, as in the six day of the creation it did, Gen. 1. 24. because the old Latine hath it; shall the earth bring forth in one day? But the words would rather be read, can a land, or, a country be brought forth in one day? So the Chaldee, Is it possible, that a land should be made, or, produced, in one day? and one of the Rabbines more fully; is it possible that a woman should in one day be delivered of children enow, to fill a whole land, or a country? Verbs indicative used in a potential form, are common in Scripture. See on Chap. 49. 15. & 64. 12. and earth, for, land; no leste wise. See Chap. 26. 15, 18. & 65. 16. yet the word, of it self ambiguous, might here the rather be used, with some glance, at the production of both heaven and earth in one day. Gen. 1. 1. as implying Gods power, that he, who at first produced the whole earth, and heaven together with it also, in one day, is no leste able to make his Sion bring forth children enow in one day, not to people some one land only, but to fill the whole world. See Chap. 27. 6. The verb here used, signifies in its first form to be grieved, or, to be in pain, generally, Jer. 5. 3. more particularly, to be in travel, as women are wont to be neer unto their time of delivery, Chap. 23. 4. & 26. 18. in its other forms, it hath a notion of framing, forming, producing, or, of being framed, formed, produced, in general, without special relation to any pain, or, travel, Psal. 51. 5. & 90. 2. Prov. 8. 24. & 25. 4. and is observed by one of the Jewish Criticks upon this place, that the active form of the term, here used, is taken sometime in a transient notion, for to make to travel, or bring forth, or be in pain: as Psal. 29. 8. but that very seldom: sometime, yea, most commonly, in a standing sense, for to be in travel, Chap. 26. 17. and here, ver. 7. and by consequence, because birth usually followeth travel, (returning to a transient notion; but in another kind,) to bring forth. See Chap. 45. 10. and the passive form here accordingly, to be produced, or brought forth.

or shall a nation be born at once?] Or, can a nation be born at once, as before; the disjunctive, inserted, is needleste: there is a particle indeed in the text, that commonly signifies, if, but is here no other, then a meer interrogative note, as Job 6. 5. and here again, ver. 9. The meaning is; Is it possible, that a woman should have as many children at one birth, as were enow to constitute a nation? as if he should say, in the course of nature it is not: for as for those stories related by John Aventine, in his Bavarian history, the one; and by Thomas Fazel, in his Sicilian history, the other; of two German Countesses of Henneburg, Margeret, and Maud, the one whereof should have 364. the other, 1514. children at a birth, they are deservedly deemed fabulous; and may justly challenge the whetstone. But that of the multitudes of those that returned to Jerusalem, after Cyrus his Edict of liberty published, to wit, 42360. at once; besides 7337. servants, and maidens, see Ezr. 2. 64, 65. which might well be deemed a nation brought forth in one day: as also that, whereunto some apply this of those multitudes of converts in the primitive Church, 3000 at one time, and, 2000, if not 5000. at another, Act. 2. 41. & 4. 4. may well have place here.

for as soon as Zion travelled, she brought forth her children.] Or, as others, that Sion is in travel, and withal bringeth forth her children. And because there may seem some contradiction in this, to what was before said of delivery without travel: Some answer, that the meaning was in the former place, before she was scarce in any travel; in this place it is, that some travel she should have, but that so light, and short, that it might well be deemed, in a manner, as none, Chap. 26. 20. The Hebrew is, word for word, that Zion, or, yet Zion (as the particle is taken, and rendred, Job 5. 7. Eay 9. 1, & 31. 4. & 49. 25. which those mistake, that render it, as soon as Sion) hath travelled, yea, brought forth her children; to wit, at once, or, in one day: for that is the thing intended, and intimated, and is from the former part of the verse, to be supplyed, in the application of it unto Sion; for therein the miracle (as one of the Rabbines hath well observed) consisteth, that she should be delivered of so many sons so suddenly, as in one day: and the word et travel seems rather in this place, to design the time of travel, then the pains, or pangs of it; the both came neer to childbirth, and was delivered of her children, at once, in one day: her burden, or children, stuck not at the breach, or the birth, to put her to any pain. See Chap. 37. 3. Hos. 13. 13. vers. 9.

V. 9. Shall I bring to the birth, and not cause to bring forth, saith the Lord] Or, Should I bring to the womb to mouth, and not cause to bring forth? Some of the Rabbines would have it should I bring upon the flood? to wit, that mentioned, Exod. 1. 16. that is, lay they, should I cast my beloved wife, Sion, into child bearing pangs, and throes, by bringing in Gog and Magog upon her, Ezek. 38. 9, 16, 17. and not withal afford her deliverance resembled here by birth. But of the word, which the verb here used, hath relation unto, see on Chap. 37. 3. and another of them rather reading it, as it was before rendred, expoundeth it well; Shall I set upon a work, and not go therow with it; cause the children to come to the very opening of the womb, and not enable them to come forth, or not afford strength to bring them forth? Some of ours, Should I open other womens wombs? or, should I that open the matrice to others? (and make them fruitful, Gen. 29. 31. & 30. 22.) not my self begot, or, breed? (as Gen. 11. 27. but remain sterile) or cause my Sion to bring forth? But the former sense being obvious, and such as the words of themselves freely afford, I see not why we may not rest therein.

shall I cause to bring forth, and shut the womb? saith the Lord: Heb. Am I he that cause to bring forth? and shall I shut, or, restrain? that is, as the Jewish Commenters, am I he that have conferred upon mankind the power of propagation, Gen. 1. 28. and that have caused people in all parts of the world to propagate? and should I now deny this fertility to my Sion? But the Hebrew may as well be rendred; Am I he that begat? (to the word is expressly rendred, Jer. 16. 3. their mothers that bare them, and their fathers that begat them) and should I restrain, from bringing forth? for that is the sift, and native notion of the word. So Gen. 16. 2. God hath restrained me from bearing. Should I that have begotten children upon Sion, restrain her from being delivered of them? it is true, that the same word is used in that phrase, of shutting up the womb, Gen. 20. 18. but that is meant of restraint from conception, not from birth; for whereas divers render it, shall I be restrained? they depart from the constant use of the word, which is never other then active; there is only in the text, a defect of the pronoun demonstrative, her, (as Deut. 25. 12.) relating to Sion, mentioned, verf. 8.

V. 10. Rejoyce ye with Jerusalem, and be glad with her, all ye that love her.] An exhortation directed to all Sions well-willers, inciting them to rejoyce with her, as friends and allies are wont to do, at the child birth of one, that hath been long barren and childleffe, Luk. 1. 14, 58. or upon the restitution, or recovery of one, that had formerly been decayed, and ruined, in his estate, Job 42. 11.

be glad with her] Heb. of her, or in her; or, for her: as Psal. 9. 14. & 31. 7. for of, or, in Gods goodneste shewed unto her; yet is the particle sometime rendred with: as Psal. 2. 11. but then denoting the manner how; not the company with whom. See Chap. 65. 19. and hereafter, ver. 13.

rejoyce for joy with her, all ye that mourn for her] The same thing in other terms. Heb. rejoyce with joy that is, be exceeding joyful: as Chap. 61. 10. Mat. 2. 10. 1 Pet. 1. 8. all ye that mourn for her, or, that sorrowed for her; formerly, in the time of her afflicted and dejected condition. See Chap. 61. 3. Zeph. 3. 18. the Hebrew term is in a reciprocal form; but of that, see Chap. 65. 16.

V. 11. That ye may suck, and be satisfied with the breasts of her consolations:] Or as the Chaldee rendreth it, for that, or, because, (for the particle hath oft a causall notion, 2 Chron. 21. 7.) ye suck, or, ye shall suck, and be satiated; that is, suck your fill, (as they shall eat and be satisfied; that is, eat their fill, Psal. 22. 26.) with the breasts; or, of the moisture that cometh from the breast. See Chap. 60. 16. that ye may partake with her of those blessings, both temporal and spiritual, that God shall very largely endow her with, and bestow upon her; and as her foster children being nursed by her, 1 Thes. 2. 7. Tim. 4. 6. may receive abundance of refreshments and comforts from her, Psal. 36. 8. Ezek. 14. 22, 23. 2 Cor. 1. 4-6.

that ye may milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her glory] Or, because ye shall milk out, &c. much the same, in other terms, with the former.

milk out] Or, wring out; as Chap. 16. 4. Prov. 30. 33. for the proper notion is the same, though the forms divers: as the Jewish Critick here well obloves; the word it self is no where else found.

and be delighted] Or, delight your selves; take your pleasure, as Psal. 37. 11.

with the abundance of her glory] As Psal. 37. 11. in abundance of peace, or prosperity: but the terms here and there are divers; the word here used, is not in the like notion any where else found: the Jewish Critickes will have it signifie splendour, or brightnesse; the rather in regard of a Chaldee word of that notion, coming very neer to it: and this fitteth well with what we had, Chap. 60. 1-2.

V. 12. For thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing stream] I am resolved to bleste her with abundance of prosperity; and to make her glorious, by the accesse of the Gentiles to her, with whatsoever from them may help to grace and adorn her. See Chap. 60. 5-14.

Behold, I will extend to her] Lo I am extending to her, or bringing in upon her. Of the form, see on Chap. 65. 17.

peace like a river] Or, prosperity, (as Psal. 72. 3, 7.) as a flood, Chap 48. 18. See Chap. 59. 19. as Euphrates, saith the Chaldee. So Psal. 72. 8. Zach. 9. 10.

like a flowing stream] Or, an over-flowing stream, or river: as Chap. 30. 28. as Nilus, the river of Egypt, Chap. 27. 12. See Jer. 47. 2.

then shall ye suck] Heb. and ye shall suck; and there is the middle distinction in the text; as ye shall suck Kings, and Queens, Chap. 60. 16. so ye shall suck her, ver. 11. or, ye shall suck it; that is, part of that prosperity and glory, that shall flow in upon her, and from her, be conveyed and imparted unto you, ver. 11.

ye shall be born upon her sides;] Heb. side: in her arms on the one side, as children use to be carryed. See Chap. 49. 22. and not 60. 4. Psal. 90. 12. yet some, because the Latine renders it, Ye shall be carryed at her breasts, or teats; would make it to have relation to infants that hang upon the teat: but that seemeth somewhat more exact.

and be dandled upon her knees.] The word here used signifies to take much delight in ought: the Psalmist of us eth it, to expresse his delight in Gods Law, Psal. 119. 16, 24, 46, 70, 77, 92, 142, 144. and of the comforts and refreshments, which from thence his soul received, Psal. 94. 19. it is used of children, playing and sporting themselves, Chap. 11. 8. and some therefore here render it; ye shall play upon her knees; as alluding to children that sit playing in their mothers lap. Howbeit, it seemeth not amiss rendred, dandled: for in such dandlings, children much delight: and it is implyed, that they should be as dalings, children of delights, Jer. 19. 20. (where this word also is used) and, children of dandlings, as they (where this word also is used) and, children of dandlings, as they are wont to be, that were young ones, their darling ones, especially, whom they take most delight in, frequently in their laps, and on their knees, Gen. 30. 3. & 50. 23. Ruth 4. 16. According to the received reading, there should be here a defect of the pronoun possessive her; as Chap. 27. 22. Howbeit, the words may be read well enough without it; Ye shall be born in arms, and dandled on knees; that is, ye shall be carefully, and curiously, or tenderly, and delicately, nursed up, as darling children, of great ones especially, are wont to be, that are almost perpetually, either in the arms, or on the knees. See Num. 11. 12.

V. 13. As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you:] Heb. as the man whom his mother comforteth, that is, as any man comforteth his wife, or his spouse (though the Church be so to him, Hos. 2. 19, 20.) as it is said, that *David comforted Bath-sheba*h, after the decease of her little one, 2 Sam. 12. 24. But because the tender affection of mothers to children, is by common experience well known, (See Chap. 49. 15.) to expresse therefore his compassionate disposition, and tendernesse of affection to his people; As a mother, saith he, comforteth her child. As a mother, when her child weeps and cryes, having taken some hurt by a fall; or the like accident, doth by all tender and gentle usage, bemoaning it, hugging it, and affectionate speech to it, seek to quiet and still it again; or, as when upon some wanton, or wasteful carriage of the child, he hath shewed her self displeased with it, and it may be hath withall chastised it, or carryed her self strangely toward it, and perceiveth that the child taketh it to heart, and is troubled not a little therewith, she cannot rest, nor be at quiet, untill she have reconciled her self again to her child; (See David's affection toward Absolom, 2 Sam. 13. 39.) and by all fair and sweet insinuations, and expressions of renewed love and affection, endeavoureth therefore to cheer it again: In like manner will I cheer up, and comfort the dejected spirits of my people again, whom I had for a while put to some heavinesse, by chastising them for their sins, Chap. 12. 1. & 14. 1. & 51. 3. & 54. 7, 8 & 57. 15, 17, 18. & 61. 2, 3. See Psal. 94. 19. Act. 9. 31. 2 Cor. 1. 3-5.

as one] Heb. as a man; though a child be intended; as Gen. 4. 1. Joh. 16. 21. or, a man, for, any one; as Chap. 40. 26.

and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem.] Beholding Gods goodnesse towards her, rejoycing in it, and enjoying of it together with her, ver. 10. 14.

Ver. 14. And when ye see this, your heart shall rejoyce,] Heb. ye shall see this (supplyed, as Chap. 59. 15.) and your heart shall rejoyce; ye shall rejoyce heartily: so Psal. 105. 3. or, For when ye see this, your heart shall rejoyce; as rendring a reason of, or, further confirming, what was delivered in the close of the verse fore-going. The like syntax, see Chap. 53. 2. & 59. 16. & 65. 12.

and your bones shall flourish like an herb:] Or, as the tender herb; as it is rendred, Deut. 32. 2. or, the tender grasse; as Prov. 27. 25. or, the green grasse, as Psal. 23. 2. your strength and vigour shall revive, and recover verdure again, as grass and plants do in the spring, that in Winter time were withered, and seemed as dead, Chap. 26. 19. & 44. 4. & 61. 11. when the vigour and strength of mans body is decayed and consumed, his bones are said to be wasted and withered, or broken and shattered, or disjointed and disfeasered, or dispersed and scattered, Job 33. 19. Psal. 6. 2. & 22. 14. & 31. 10. & 32. 3, 4. & 53. 5. & 102. 3 & 141. 7. Prov. 12. 4. & 14. 30. & 17. 22. Chap. 38. 13. Jer. 50. 17. Lam. 3. 4. Hab. 3. 16. and on the other side, when vigour and strength is recovered again, the bones are said to revive, and to be refreshed, and to be filled with moysture and marrow again, Job 21. 24. Psal. 51. 8. Prov. 3. 8. & 15. 30. & 16. 14. Chap. 58. 11. In like manner did Gods people deem of themselves in the time of the captivity, that they were no other then, as a company of dead and dry bones, that lay dispersed and scattered, here and there, without regard, Ezek. 37. 11. but God telleth them, that those their dead and dry bones, should revive, and grow moyst, and recover lite and vigour again; as those in the vision, Ezek. 37. 1-10.

and the hand of the Lord shall be known towards his servants] Gods goodnesse, his good hand, his power manifested in the good of his loyal, and faithful people (Chap. 65. 13, 14.) shall evidently appear, Ezr. 6. 7, 9. & 8. 18. Chap. 62. 8.

and his indignation towards his enemies.] Heb. and (or, but; as Chap. 65. 11.) he will have indignation against, or, be wroth with his enemies; or, as some would have it rendred, he will detest, or depse his enemies; as it is rendred, Num. 23. 7. 8. But I conceive it may very well be rendred, as it is, Zach. 1. 12. he will have indignation towards his enemies. Our Translators seem to have taken the verb for a noun. The deliverance of Gods servants, and the destruction of his, and their enemies, go frequently together. See Chap. 1. 27, 28. & 14. 1. & 61. 2. & 63. 4. God will, in the restoring of his people, make a difference to be seen between the one, and the other; as Deut. 4. 34, 40. Mal. 3. 17, 18. & 4. 1, 2.

V. 15. For behold the Lord will come with fire.] God will come to execute judgment, and take vengeance on the wicked, in most terrible manner; for nothing is more fearfull, or formidable, (a terrible man, or beast, then fire; nor were fire-works also anciently unusual, in warlike expeditions; and devastations thereby most frequently effected, Josh 6. 24. & 8. 19. Judg. 9. 49 & 20. 40. Jer. 38. 18. & 52. 13. that which is alluded unto in this, and the like expressions, Psal. 50. 3. & 97. 3. Dan. 7. 9, 10. Amos 7. 4. though some of the Jewish Doctors expound it; with hot fire.

and with his chariots like a whirl-wind;] Or, and his chariots shall be, or shall come, (supplyed from the former clause) like a whirl-wind; as Chap. 5. 28. Jer. 4. 13. of Gods chariots: See Psal. 68. 17.

to render his anger with fury] Or, to put in execution his anger with fervour, Ezek. 38. 18. Mic 5. 15.

and his rebuke with flames of fire.] Or, fiery flames, or flaming fire; as Psal. 29. 7. & 105. 32. Chap. 29. 6. & 30. 30. Of his rebuke, see Chap. 50. 2. & 51. 20. & 54. 9. This vengeance of God was in part executed on the wicked of his own people, at the destruction of Jerusalem, Jer. 1. 15, 16. & 39. 2, 8. and in part, on the oppressours of them, at the ruine of Babylon, Jer. 50. 18, 31, 32. but shall fully be accomplished at the last day, at the general judgment that shall then be, 2 Thess. 1. 8. 2 Pet. 3. 7, 10, 12.

Ver. 16. For with fire, and with his sword, will the Lord plead with all flesh:] God will no longer debate in words with men, as formerly he did, by his ministers and messengers, the Prophets, Mic. 6. 1, 2. but he will now plead with fire and sword, the ordinary instruments of hostility, such as men in armes are wont to plead, and decide matters with. So Ezek. 38. 22.

with fire] As before, ver. 15.

with his sword] No ordinary one. See Chap. 27. 1. sword, for all manner of Warlike weapons; as Gen. 27. 40.

plead] Heb. be judged, or tried; as Psal. 37. 33. & 109. 7. or, plead, and debate, the matter; as Chap. 43. 26. Ezek. 20. 36. or, execute judgment; as 2 Chron. 22. 8. or, proceed in judgment; as Jer. 2. 35.

with all flesh] Either with the main body of the wicked Jewish people; as Mat. 24. 22. and thefe of all sorts and ranks among them; as Chap. 1. 5, 6. if that particular rule, one for in theis words intended; or, with the generality of wicked ones, thorowout the whole world, if the full ecumenical judgment be designed, see Act. 17. 31. Rom. 3. 19, 20. See Chap. 34. 1, 2. Jer. 25. 31.

and the slain of the Lord shall be many.] The Lords people is to make a great slaughter. See Jer. 25. 33. the slain of the Lord for, those that are slain by him; as, the slain of the sword, for, such as are slain by it, Chap. 22. 2. Lam. 4. 9.

V. 17. They that sanctifie themselves, and purifie themselves in the gardens.] He proceedeth more particularly, to define who the persons be, against whom he is resolved thus to proceed: by the description of whom, it evidently appeareth, that the judgment here denounced, doth in a more special manner concern the wicked ones of the Jewish Nation, before deciphered, Chap. 65. 4, 5.

that sanctifie and purifie themselves] That use superstitious rites of expiation, supposing themselves thereby to be made holy and pure. Thus rather then as some, that first pollute, and then purifie themselves with water, like Pilate, that by washing his hands, thought he might discharge himself of the guilt of Christs blood, Mat. 27. 24. See chap. 65. 5. that sanctifie and purifie themselves; that think they do so, when they do nothing less; as, that blesseth himself, Deut. 29. 19.

in the gardens] Set apart for idolatrous services, chap. 1. 29 & 65. 3. in the pools or lavers, that there they had for such uses; or, for the gardens, to prepare and fit themselves for the exercise of their idolatry in them: so is the particle used, 1 Sam. 1. 27. Ezek. 6. 9, 11. as among Gods people, the manner was, after any legal uncleannes contracted, to purifie themselves, by aspersion of pure water upon them, or by dipping themselves therein, before they repaired unto Gods Sanctuary for the performance of any holy duty, Numb. 19. 7, 8, 13, 19, 20. alluded to Psalm 26. 6. so in imitation thereof, both heathen people, and these idolatrous Jewes did, by such like washings, deem themselves cleansed from the soil of their sins, and made fit for their idol service; but it is more likely, that in those gardens then out of them, they did so purifie themselves for the services to be acted in some other part of them, or in some Temple thereunto adjoyning; as the heathen had their delubra, or holy lavers, neer to their Temples.

behind one tree in the midst] This passage hath no final variety of notion by Interpreters fastened upon it. The Greek renders it, in the porches, or entries, before dore, or without dore: The old Latine clean contrary; behind dore within, as chap. 57. 8. that is, say some Fa:hers, in secret, where they might not be seen. or taken suddenly, in the manner, Jer. 2. 26, 27. but as the former hath no footing at all in the text; so this later very little. The Chaldee, which some of the Rabbines follow, renders it, not simply one after another as some cite him, and some of outs render the text; but, company after company, one company of them after another, until the whole Society of them be sanctified. Others of them, which our Version admitteth behind some one tree, or other, in the grove, or in the garden, Jer. 3. 6. Whereunto some of outs add, as a thing not unlikely; that as every one of them had a god of his own, so each of them had his peculiar tree, whereat he did service to that his idol. Others, behind some one fountain, or pool; for they observe here a double reading; the one of a masculine, the other of a feminine form; and they supply terms accordingly correspondent to either. Some of outs would have it rendred for some one strange god; that purifie themselves in the gardens, for the service of some strange god: But the word that they render strange, is not found so to signifie in the form here used. Others therefore, give it otherwise in terms; but in effect to the same intention, after some one false god, or other, which they follow and serve. Others, lastly, which to me seems most probable, conceive the word achad, or echad, or as it is not unusually pronounced, ahad, and ehad, rendred commonly, here one, to be, in this place, a proper name: yet not a name of God, as some superstitiously would have it to be, Job 31. 15. Zach. 14. 9. but of an idol Ahad, or Ehad, whom also by a gemination of the final consonant, they termed Addad; for so Macrobius in his Saturnales, lib. 1. c. 23. reporteth, that the Assyrians called the chief God that they worshipped, Adrad, by a word, saith he, that signifieth one; whence also he gathereth, that by this name, they understood the Sun, who is but one, and ever one, otherwise then the Moon. And this some learned suppose to be the same with Hadad; which seems to have been a name very common among the Kings of Edom, or Idumea, Gen 36. 35, 36. 1 Chron. 1. 46, 47, 50, 51. 1 King. 11. 14, 17, 25. but grew afterward much more common with the Kings of Aram, or Syria, 2 Sam. 8. 3, 5, 8. & 10. 16, 19. 1 King. 11. 24. & 15. 18, 20. & 20. 1, 33. 2 King. 6. 24. & 8. 7, 15. & 13. 3, 24. See Jer. 49. 27. & Josephs Antiquities, l. 7. c. 6. Howbeit, because these two names differ in the initial letter, I conceive them not to be the same. But to return to those that understand the word here of that Assyrian, rather then Syrian idol, thought it might be common to them both) Some of them render the words, after Ahad, whom they go after, that is, follow and adore; as Judg. 2. 11, 12. Others, behind Ahad, that is, behind the Temple of Ahad, amidst the walks and gardens adjacent.

in the midst] That is, say some, openly, publickly, in open view, shamefully acting such things in their impious rites, as were most unseemly. But I find not where this form is so used in Scripture. Others therefore expound it of those fountains, or lavers, in those gardens, where in they purified themselves, which were usually situate in the midst of them: though we need not to drive it so neer home, as to say, with some Jewish Criticks, that their gardens were at the either end of the gardens, and these fountains, or lavers in the midst, having the one grove before them, and the other behind them, as the men of Ay, had the Israelites, Josh. 8. 22.

and the abomination] Heb. the sheckets, which some suppose to be the name of some particular kind of unclean creature; and one of the Jewish Doctors seems to intimate as much, when he saith, There are some nations that eat the sheket, and the mouse: and the placing of it here between two other distinct kinds, may well be deemed to imply no lesse. And if place may be afforded for conjecture, the joyning of choled, or holed, commonly rendred a wesel, with that which is deemed a mouse, Lev. 11. 29. may afford some suspition, that sheknes here may be the same with that choled, or holed there. Howbeit, the word is used more generally, for abomination, or any abominable thing, Lev. 11. 10, 11, 12, 20. Ezek. 8. 10. as also is another word derived from it, Dan. 9. 26. & 11. 31. compared with Mat. 24. 15. the plural whereof we had before, verf. 3. as also Jer. 4. 1. & Zech. 20. 7. 8.

and the mouse] Some having rendred the former abominable creatures, (See Zach. 9. 7.) render this, as the mouse, and the copulative is sometime put for the note of similitude; as Job 11. 33. & 34. 3. but seldome, I suppose, in that manner, as here. The mouse, is, among other unclean creatures reckoned up and expreslly inhibited for mans meat, Lev. 11. 29. Yet that mice, some kind of them especially, were commonly eaten, in many places, among other people, and that reputed also as a dainty dish, doth, by Authors of good note and credit, appear; for Varro in his Treatise of Husbandry, l. 3. c. 15. relateth, how for dormice, one kind of them, they made Warrens for the breed of them, and coupes for the fatting of them; and Pliny, l. 8. c. 47. reporteth, that in the Lawes sometime made to restrain excess in diet, the use of dormice, together with some shellfish, and sarcata fowl, was inhibited. The name some would have given them, from a word, that signifies to disturb, or trouble: whence Achor, chap. 65. 10. because they are wont to disturb and trouble the house, by gnawing the fields, by digging; both by devouring and destroying things of use, 1 Sam. 6. 5. And we read indeed of an Iland called Gyaros, in the midland sea, to have been so infested with mice, that the inhabitants were enforced to quit it, Pliny, l. 8. c. 29. 57. And Eustathius on Homer, from ancient Writers, reporteth, that in some places, by the name of Sminthius, they worshipped Apollo, for ridding their grounds of this kind of vermine, if mice may, at least, be properly so called. But the notation of the word, in regard of the letters of it, seems not very probable: and I have some doubt, which I shall onely propound, and leave to the learned, whether the word here used, signifie a mouse, or no: and the ground of my doubt is; because the creature here mentioned, is ranked among creeping things, Lev. 11. 29. and I see little reason, why the mouse, or the wesel, or the ferret, should go under that name, more then the hare or the coney, (which some also render, a mountain mouse,) Lev. 11. 5, 6, 26. or why they should not be comprehended under the general head of beasts, before mentioned, Lev. 11. 2. and come within the general rules concerning Beasts there delivered, ver. 4, 5. the rather, for that I find creeping things still distinguished from beasts, Gen. 1. 24. & 7. 14, 21, 23. I conceive therefore to think, that the creature here, and elsewhere mentioned, is some creeping thing, not unlike the scorpion, as they differ not much in name; the one termed Achav, the other, Akgab, Deut. 8. 15. and that divers sorts of creeping things, as Lizards, and locusts, (for they are reckoned also among the creepers, and are not forbidden food, Lev. 11. 21, 22.) and the like, were with many people in times past, not unusually eaten, (as frogs, and snails, and tortoises, also are, in many places at this day) is not onely, by divers other Authors, but of some of them, to wit, the Locusts, by Scripture it self testified, Mat. 3. 4. Mark 1. 6. yea of others, beside the divers sorts of locusts, under the names of the solcam, and the chargol, or hargol, and the chagab, or hagab, with their severall kinds, Lev. 11. 21. which it had been in vain to allow for meat, had they not been fit for food, or not usually eaten. But hereof let others further consider, and deem, as themselves shall please. The word is no where found in Scripture save here, in that place of Moses, and the story of the Philistines, with such kind of creatures annoyed, 1 Sam. 6. 4, 5, 11, 18.

shall be consumed together, saith the Lord] See chap. 1. 28.

V. 18. For I know their works, and their thoughts] Heb. And I their works, and their thoughts. Which sundry Interpreters supposing to contain an entire sentence, but with suppression of some word, or words, (as in passionate speeches it oft falleth out) conceived, do some supply, as our version, and some Greek Copies, I know, as Hos. 5. 3. Amos 5. 12. and the Chaldee, they are revealed, or ly open, before me: which some of the Jewish Commenters expound of the thoughts of Gog and Magog, the enemies of God people, Ezek. 38. 10. that God knew their thoughts, though they little dreamed of his, as Mic. 4. 11, 12. To which purpose also others of them, with whom, some of outs also consur, render it, I am with them. It is I that bring them together, and cause them to come up, and camp against Jerusalem, Ezek. 38. 4, 8. Zach. 14. 2. Others supply, I will visit, or take vengeance upon them, for their courses, and their counsels; as chap. 65. 6, 7. which would well suit with the clause beforgoing. Others again, reading the words by way of interrogation, with a kind of indignation, And their works and their thoughts, should I endure? not unlike that, Jer. 5. 9. & 9. 9. But I rather here accord with those, that knit these words together in one sentence, with those that come after, reading the text thus; As for me, when their works and their thoughts are come, (that is, when the time of taking vengeance for them, shall shall come) I will gather all nations, &c. or, as others, As for me, since their works and their thoughts are such; or, because of their works, and their thoughts, it shall come to passe that I will gather all nations. Since that this people do take such courses, and go on obstinately in the same, verf. 3, 4. I will execute judgement upon them, and casting off those, that thus persist in their impieties, take in the Gentiles to me, in their stead, Rom. 11. 11, 12, 15, 17.

For I] Heb. And I; or, As for me: the word is put absolutely, as 1 Chron. 28. 2. See chap. 65. 11.

their works] Or, for their works; as, for the fear, Mal. 2. 5.

thoughts] As chap. 65. 2.

is shall come] Or, it shall come to pass; or, the time shall come.

that I will gather] Heb. and I will gather together; so the copulative is used, chap. 65. 24.

all nations, and tongues] People out of divers nations and languages, Acts 2. 8-11. Rev. 7. 9.

and they shall come, and see my glory] Or, that they may come and see my glory; the particle used, as before. That being brought into the Church, they may have reverend, and imparted unto them, that gracious and glorious presence of God, in his sacred ordinances, which the Jewish people alone did formerly enjoy, Psalm. 97. 6. Chap. 40. 5. 2 Cor. 3. 18. & 4. 6. Ephes. 3. 6. The Jewish Doctors expound it, of the nations of the world, being brought to see Gods glorious might, declared in the Messias his dayes, in the destruction of Gog and Magog, Ezek. 38. 23. & 39. 6, 7.

V. 19. And I will set a sign among them,] What this sign should be, and where it should be set, is much questioned. The Jewish Commenters would have it to be, the rotting of the flesh, and eyes, and tongues of those, that served under Gog and Magog, against Jerusalem, Zach. 14. 12. Ours, (to pass by the superstitious conceits of some Popish Writers, concerning the sign of the Cross; to which they apply that also, March. 24. 30. and some other farfetched, and over-brained expositions) do most of them pitch upon one of these two notions: the one, of a sign, or ensign, erected to to call and gather people together: as chap. 11. 12. & 49. 22. & 62. 10. that which some conceive sound of Christ himself, said to be set for a sign, chap. 11. 10. Luke 2. 34. Others, of the ministery of the word, and other externall signes of Christian profession, together, with the miraculous works accompanying the same, erected first among the Jewes, for the conversion of the elect among them, and the bringing in of the Gentiles unto them; and afterward also among the Gentiles. Some expound this branch of the erecting of it among the Jews, chap. 2. 2, 3. Mark 16. 15-20. Luke 24. 47, 49. Acts 1. & 5. 12-16. Some, of the setting it up among the Gentiles, Gal 2. 1. whereof, see on the next branch: and though the word used for a sign in those other places of this Prophet, be divers from that here used, nor doth the word here used, ordinarily so signifie; yet it is so taken, Psalm 74. 4. in those words, they set up their ensignes for signes, or, as signes; to wit, of conquest, and triumph. The other notion is of a sign, or mark, whereby one may be delcryed, and distcerned from some other: as it is said, God set a sign, or a mark, upon Cain: and so some render the words here; I will set a sign, or, a mark, not among them, but upon them; as the same particle is used in those words, Neh. 9. 10. thou didst set, or shew signes and wonders upon Pharao, and upon his servants, and upon the people of the land; and they understand it of a privy note, or mark, whereby God would set upon his elect, whom he meant to preserve, whereby to mark them out for salvation, as temporal here, in the times of execution to be done upon the wicked crew, among whom they were mixed; so eternal hereafter; alluding to that sign of distinction between the Hebrews & the Egyptians in Egypt, for the saving of the one, amidst the destruction of the other, Exod. 12. 7, 13, 22, 23. See the like, Ezek. 9. 4, 6. Rev 7. 3. & 9. 4. and of calling and marking for life eternal, 2 Cor. 1. 21, 22. Eph. 1. 13, 14. & 4. 30. 2 Tim. 2. 19. & this exposition, the word of escape following, seems to confirm. Now the text thus read & rendred, the word them, must be restrained unto Gods faithful servants before mentioned, verf. 14. which because it is somewhat remote, I suppose we may well retain the received verfin. among them; as the particle is rendred, Psal. 18. 49. ch. 57. 6 & 65. 4. and hereafter, verf. 19. So it may well include the mixt body of the people, among whom those faithfull ones abode, upon whom alone this saving mark was to be set. And I conceive that the copulative hath the notion of a causall in this place; as chap. 53. 2. & 65. 15. and the text might better be rendred; For I will set a sign among them, and send those that escape of them, unto the nations, as shewing by what means that should be effected, which was before mentioned, concerning the coming in of Gentiles, verse 18.

and I will send those that escape of them, unto the nations] Heb. I will send of them, or, from them escaped ones, (that is, some of them, that do escape) unto the nations. This the Rabbines understand of those Gogs and Magogs forces, who though not slain, yet with their flesh wasted, and tongue and eyes eaten out, should, as spectacles of Gods wrath and vengeance, being dispersed into remote places, publish without speaking, Gods powerfull proceedings, and miraculous dealing with those foreign forces that had invaded his peoples land, Ezek. 39. 11, Zach. 14. 12, 16. But our Writers expound it generally of the reliques of the Jewish nation, chap. 37. 31. Jer. 44. 14, 28. Mat. 24. 22, 24. Rom. 11. 5, 7. the Apostles, and other faithful, by whom the Word and glad tidings of salvation by Christ, was carried abroad and divulged among the Gentiles in all parts of the then known world. Mat. 28. 18. Mark 16, 15. Luke 24. 47. Acts 8. 14. & 10. 45. & 11. 18 23. & 13. 46-49. & 15. 7, 14. Rom. 10. 15, 18. & 15. 19, 20. Eph. 2. 17. Col. 1. 23.

to Tarshish] That is, as some, to the sea. So the Chaldee and the old Latine. Which some expound of people coasting upon the Arabian & Persian Gulfs. Others, to the Ocean: as if it were said, that they shall go carrying about the Gospel both by sea and land, unto the parts hereafter named. See chap. 60. 9. yet others among whom the Greek Interpreters take it, for the name of a particular place, whether Tarsus, in Cilicia, as some; or Tarteſus in Spain, as others, see on chap. 2. 16. & 23. 1.

Pul] This some suppose to be the same with Put, or Phut, mentioned. Jer. 46. 9. & Ezek. 30. 5. and both indeed are deemed to be regions situate in Africa; but to be distinct and divers places. An Interpreter of prime note would have this Put, or Phut, to be Cyrene, lying between Egypt & Tunis, taking the ground of this his conjecture from the name of a King, that somtime there reigned, called, as he supposeth, Aphulla; but by Justine, l. 22. corruptly, Ophellas. But herein a late learned Writer controlleth him; shewing, that Kings time to be many hundreds of years too young to give this name to that place, what ever it was, that is here so called: as also from Diadore, l. 20. and others, that that Kings right name was not Aphulla, but Ophellas, or Ophelles; the man himself a Grecian, and the name a Greek term. He would have it to be Phile, an Iland, with a Citie therein of the same name, with the Iland situate amidst the stream of the river Nilus, about some hundred furlongs above Sciene and Elephantine in the confines of Ethiopia and Egypt, whereof Strabo, Heliodore, Pliny, and many other, as being a place of some note: and he supposeth it to have its name from the same ground, with Elephantine; (Phile and Elephantine, being two Cities, for size and fashion, bigness and beauty, so neer matches, nor in situation far distant, that some Authors have confounded them, and taken the one for the other) and to have been so called of the word Phil; which with Syrians, Chaldeans, Arabians, and Ethiopians, is used for an Elephant; that Elay in stead of Phil giveth it Phul: the like change being found in many other proper names in Scripture, as in Pau, Gen. 36. 39. & Pai, 1 Chron. 1. 50. Tou, and Toi, 1 Chron. 18. 9. & 1 Sam. 8. 9. Peruth, and Perida, Ezra 2. 54. and Neh. 7. 57. But it may be doubted, whether the word Phil, for an Elephant, be in those languages so ancient, as to give the name either to this Put, or to that Phile; and whether it came not from the Greeks into those languages; as to the Greeks in likelihood by the Panik, from the Hebrew Eleph, an ox; by them applied to the Behemoth, that eateth grass, like an ox, Job 40. 15. nor had the Latines at first any other name for them, then oxen, as by some old bywords, in common use among them, appeareth; until they had that of Elephants from the Greeks: besides, it appeareth not that this Phile, situate thus in the midst of the river, had any large territory belonging unto it: nor is it very probable, that two cities, no further distant, possessed both by the same nation, somtime wholly, and in part constantly, and having no notion the same name, should the one be so called by an Ethiopian term, the other by a Grecian: and if the names of ancient Kings be deemed to be a matter of any moment, to afford light of conjecture, for the finding out of places, as bearing their names; it might be supposed, that this Put should rather be some place in or about Assyria; since that Put, and Pil, are in Scripture records, found to have been anciently, even before Elays time, in the names of the Kings of Assyria. See Puls, 1 Chron. 5. 26. & 2 King. 15. 19. and Pul-eser or Pulnefer, 2 King. 16. 7, 10. 2 Chron. 28. 20. and from this Assyrian Pul, or Phul, may some of those Πύλαι, or Pylæ, in Peloponnesus, whereof Strabo, and Pausanias, have had their name; as also that Φύλαξ, or Phylus, in Thessaly, whence Apollo had a surname, as Strabo, l. 9. and Φυλεύς, or Phylus, whom they feigned to be augeas, or a giant, one of those whom the earth bare; from one of those ancient Puls or Phuls, in likelihood. See Pausanias in his Messenicks. Besides that 1 find Afhur and Elam, whereof more anon, mentioned in a place parallel to this, among those regions, out of which Gods people were to be gathered. See chap. 11. 11. Howbeit, if the conj cture concerning this Assyrian Pul, shal to the learned seem light, I am well content that it so pass, desiring only to see some other more likely.

and Lud] Lud was the name of one of Sems sons, brother to Afhur, and Aram; the one the father of the Assyrians: the other of the Syrians, or Aramites, Gen. 10. 22. from him it is generally deemed, that Lydia, situate in that part of Asia, which we now commonly call Anatolia, his posterity there seating it self, had its name: it was the kingdome sometime of Gog, or Gyges, (as Ποντ. Byrsa chap. 63. 1.) See Herodote, l. 1. and of this Lydia, and these Lydians (for the name of the Country is put for the people) Interpreters, with one consent, understand this place, nor otherwise do most understand that in Ezekiel, 27. 10. where Peres, Lud, and Put, are joyned together, as affording souldie.

ſouldiery to Tyre. Howbeit, becauſe it is ſaid, Gen. 10. 13. that Miſraim begat Ludim; and that Cuſh, and Put, and Lud, are mentioned among thoſe that were in league with Egypt, Ezek. 30. 5. and that as Pul, and Lud here; ſo Put, and Lud there, are joyned together, as neighbours: as alſo, that as Lud here; ſo the Ludim, Jer. 46. 9. are commended for archery: hence, that learned Writer, before mentioned, concludeth, that the Lud, both here, and in Ezekiel ſpoken of, as alſo thoſe Ludim, (the ſame in likelihood with theſe) are not the Lydians, ſo commonly called, but the Ethiopians, neighbours to Egypt, and their confederates; and, in ancient records, renowned for their skill at the bow. Concerning which, I ſhall not much contend, only the arguments, ſome of them, ſeem not ſo weighty; ſince that it appeareth, by Herodote, l. 1. not only that the Lydians were, in ancient times, deemed one of the ſtrongeſt, and valianteſt people in all Aſia; but that they were alſo in confederacy with the Egyptians, whom Crœſus therefore had thoughts of ſending to, for ayd againſt Cyrus: and for the joyning of them together, with Put elſewhere, with Pul here; it is no good proof of neighbourhood between Lud and Put; no more then between Peres, and Lud: and beſide, that the ſite of Pul here, is uncertain, the reaſon of the copulative, here inſerted, may be, becauſe this member of the ſentence endeth with an attribute annexed to them, of handling the bow; whereof further anon.

that draw the bow;] Heb. drawers of bow, (as Jer. 46. 9.) handlers, treaders (or, benders) of bow. Theſe, ſaith one of the Rabbines, are the Turks: but who the Anceſtors of the Turks, whom we now ſo term, were; or how in thoſe times they were ſtyled, or where they abode, is uncertain. The like character of expertneſs in the uſe of the bow, is given by Jeremy, as well to Elam, Jer. 48. 35. (where he giveth him the bow, as our Prophet doth the quiver, Chap. 22. 6.) as to Ludim, Jer. 46. 9. and it may well be queſtioned, whether this attribute of drawing the bow, being in the plural number, whereas Pul, and Lud, are both ſingular, be the character of the latter onely, or rather common to both; and that rather the reaſon of the copulative, then the neighbourhood of the nations. Our Tranſlators ſeem ſo to have deemed; and the Hebrew points which they exactly here follow, ſeem to carry it this way: that which addeth ſome ſtrength to my former conjecture concerning Pul, as either in, or appertaining to Aſſyria; for that Elymais (which all grant to be Elam) is by Strabo, l. 16. aſſigned to the Aſſyrians, as part of Aturia, (which indeed is no other then Aſſyria) and the Elymeans noted for skilfull archers.

to Tubal] The old Latine here, hath Italy; as alſo Joſeph the ſon of Gorion, placeth Tubal in Tuſcany; and it was a groundleſs ſurmiſe therefore of a learned Writer, to imagine, that ſome Hebrew Copies, had anciently Ital, for Tubal: for this ſeemeth to have given occaſion of that erroneous opinion. Tubal we find to have been one of the ſons of Japhet, Gen. 10. 2. whoſe poſterity therefore bare that name: where their ſeat was is queſtioned; for to paſs by ſome of the Ancients, who aſſign them Theſſaly in Greece, wherein none, I ſuppoſe, now follow them. Some place them indeed in Europe, and would have them to be the Spaniards, or the Iberi in Spain, at leaſt: for though that name did more ſpecially belong to the people, inhabiting one part of that vaſt country, bordering upon the river Iberus; yet the Romanes, as Strabo teſtifieth, uſed anciently, to call the whole countrey Iberia. But others with more probability place them in Aſia, where Iberi are alſo found; ſuppoſed by Strabo to have paſſed thither out of Europe; and unto theſe, Joſeph the ſon of Matthias, whom moſt of our therein follow, in his Antiquities referreth them. Nor doth that learned late Writer ſtep far from him, who ſeemeth to have preciſely diſcovered both their place, and their name, out of the monuments of antiquity yet extant. For of Tubal, ſaith he, have the Greeks made Tibar; as of Picol, Phicor; of Belial, Beliar; whence the region Tibaris, Diodore, l. 4. and the people, at firſt Tibari, and then Tibareni; who dwelling in part of Pontus, were neer neighbours both to the Chalybes, men of ſpeciall note for ironworks, from whom, ſteel, in Latine, hath its name; and to the Moſchi, with whom, in Herodotes ſtory, the Tibarenes are commonly joyned; as in Scripture alſo Tubal is with Meſhec, being the poſterity of Meſhech, brother to Tubal, Gen. 10. 2. See Ezek. 27. 13. and 23. 26. and 38. 2, 3. and 39. 1. Beſides, that ſome prints of the name of Tubal, or Thubal remain in Thabilaca, a City, by Ptolomy, reported to be about thoſe parts, ſo called. Howbeit, ſome ſuppoſe this nation to have had the name of Tubal, from Tubal-Kain, (whence the Latines had their Vulcan) the ſon of Lamec, one of Kains poſterity, the firſt inventer of Smithery, Gen. 4. 22. not as ſome of his race (for that periſhed in the flood) but becauſe of his trade, which they were generally addicted unto.

and Javan] Javan was likewiſe one of Japhets ſons, brother to Tubal, and Meſhec, Gen. 10. 2. Thoſe of his poſterity were termed by the Greeks, and Latines, Iones, Iaones, and Iades; which, though it cleaved moſt conſtantly to thoſe Greeks that were ſeated in Aſia, and came to be peculiarly appropriated unto them; yet the title of Javan anciently took in all Greece, and Macedonia alſo with it: whence it is, that Alexander is termed the King of Javan, Dan. 8. 21.

to the Iles afar off] Or, ſimply, by way of appoſition, the Iles, or thoſe Iles afar off; or, thoſe remote countries, (as the word is oft uſed in this Prophecy. See Chap. 20. 6. & 49. 1.) ſuch eſpecially, as were beyond the ſea, or coaſted, and bordered upon the Sea, See Chap. 11. 11. to thoſe, with whom the Jewiſh people had little commerce in times paſt.

that have not heard my fame,] Or, the report of me; as Chap. 53. 1. where Chriſt had not been named, Rom. 15. 19. where the Goſpel had never been preached before, Chap. 52. 15. & 65. 1.

neither have ſeen my glory;] In that manner, as his own people had done, Pſal. 27. 4. & 63. 2. & 106. 5.

and they ſhall declare my glory among the Gentiles.] Or, that they may declare my glory among the Gentiles; as ver. 18. fulfilled in the Apoſtles, and other of the faithful, ſent out from the Jews, to publiſh the glad tidings of the Goſpel, concerning the glorious riches of Gods grace, in the ſalvation & inheritance purchaſed by Chriſt. See before on the firſt branch of this verſe. See alſo, Rom. 10. 14. 18. & 16. 25, 26. Eph. 1. 17-22. & 3. 8, 9.

V. 20. And they ſhall bring all your brethren for an offering unto the Lord, out of all nations,] They ſhall bring home into the Church of God, the converts of the Gentiles, and preſent them there as an offering unto God. See Chap. 60. 9. The Jews underſtand it of the remainder of their nation, that had not yet returned home, thus to be ſent into their countrey in great honour and ſtate, after the diſcomfiture of Gog, and Magog: And a late Writer of the diſmiſſion, and ſetting free of the Jews, taken captive in the Macedonian and Syrian Wars, after Judas the Maccabee his proſperous ſucceſſes. But the bringing in of the Gentiles, ſeems rather to be deſcribed here, as elſe-where; with ſpecial eye, and reference, to the return of the Jews from the Babylonian captivity, together with the accommodations of ſeveral nations, at Cyrus his command, afforded unto them, for the more eaſeful and commodious conveyance of them into their own country, Ezr. 1. 1-6. See Chap. 45. 9, 22. & 60. 4, 9.

your brethren] The convert Gentiles, made, by faith, the ſeed and children of Abraham, as well as ye, Rom. 4. 11, 12. Gal. 3. 16, 29. yea, the children of God, as well as ye, Joh. 1. 12, 13. & 11. 52. Gal. 3. 26, 28.

for an offering to the Lord] Conſecrate to him and his ſervice, Rom. 12. 1. & 15. 16. Phil. 2. 17. the word, for, is ſupplyed; as Gen. 4. 3.

out of all nations.] See ver. 18.

upon horſes, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon ſwift beaſts,] Various means of conveyance heaped up, to intimate a plentiful affordance of all gracious helps requiſite for the bringing of Gods Elect home unto Chriſt. See other expreſſions looking the ſame way, Chap. 60. 9. ver. 12. Of horſe, and chariots, ſee on Chap. 24. 7. Gen. 50. 9. nor need we, with the Jewiſh Commenters, ſuppoſe iron chariots, though ſuch were uſed in war, Judg 4. 3. theſe being intended onely for travel.

litters] The Jewiſh Criticks are much divided about this word, being found no where in this notion, but here, and Num. 7. 3. there in the ſingular number; here in the plural. Some of them, would have it ſignifie paniers, or doſſers, or the like, faſtened together, and ſo laid upon a beaſts back, to carry neceſſaries in, and to ride, if need be, between them: but what ſhould ſuch implements do with wains, or wagons, wherewith it is there joyned. Others therefore render it wains, or wagons yoaked, drawn with a yoke of oxen each of them, which might well ſuit with what followeth of twelve oxen, for ſix wagons, could any good reaſon be rendred of ſuch ſignification of the word. Others tell us, the right is, that it goes for ſome beaſt; and we find a creeping creature indeed ſo termed, Lev. 11. 29. but very unfit ſure to be uſed about wagons: Our Interpreters well render them, their covered wagons; that is, cloſe wagons as ſome term them: the word, in its firſt notion, ſignifieth, a tortoiſe, though the Greeks render it, a crocodile. Now from the ſwelling up (for it hath very neer affinity with a word that ſignifies to ſwell, Num. 5. 21, 22, 27.) or, riſing, ſhieldfaſhion (whence a ſhield alſo is, in Latine, ſo termed) of the tortoiſes ſhell, both in Latine, and other Languages, were arched, and vaulted roofs, or works of any ſort ſo called; and from that faſhion of covering, were thoſe wains, or wagons, ſo termed, being appointed to carry the materials of the Tabernacle; and it may well here be rendred, coaches, or litters, ſuch being uſually much of that making. And that learned man therefore ſeemeth to have ſpoken himſelf without ground, who denieth any ground to be found in the Hebrew, for the rendring of them arched, or covered wains, or wagons, as ſome Interpreters of prime note have done: his rendring them narrow wains, or wagons, becauſe the like Ethiopick term is uſed for narrow, Mat. 7. 13. to me ſeemeth leſs probable, and further fetcht: but thereof, let others deem.

mules,] On theſe, great ones, Kings ſons, yea, Kings themſelves uſed to ride, 2 Sam. 13. 29. & 18. 9. 1 King. 1. 33. and with horſes, and mules, in great ſtore, beſides camels, and aſſes for carriage, were thoſe furniſhed, that went up, firſt, after the diſſolution of the Babylonian deportation to Jeruſalem, Ezr. 2. 66. Neh. 7. 68.

ſwift beaſts] To the ſame purpoſe, moſt of the Jewiſh Doctors, affirming the word to ſignifie a kind of camel, ſwifter then ordinary (ſee on chap. 16. 1.) ſuch as the dromedary, chap. 66. 6. ſo called, ſay they, of a word that ſignifieth to skip, or dance, 2 Sam. 6. 14, 16.

becauſe they have a kind of skipping or jumping pace; though ſome from the ſame place and ground, would have it rendred, pacing beaſts, or amblers that keep a meaſure in their pace, and ſeem to dance as they go; as the word is in that place rendred. The Chaldee rendreth it with hymns, or praiſes; and one of the Rabbines following him, with mirth and dances; as David conveyed the Ark to Sion: and another, with ſheep, for ſacrifices, expounding this, by that, which in ſound of letters cometh neer it, Chap. 16. 1. and indeed the word rendred dancing, ſeems to have its originall from the manner of ſheep, rams eſpecially, ſporting themſelves in their paſtures; the word car, ſignifying as well paſture, as ſheep, ram, or wether, Chap. 16. 1. and thence the word, carcar, to skip, and ſport, as they uſe to do, Pſal. 114. 6. The ancient Greeks render it, with ſhades, or umbellaes; ſuch as travellers uſe to carry in thoſe hot countries on the top of a cane, made on light ſtuff, and ſpread circlewiſe, for ſhadow. Some other of the Greek, and ſo the old Latine, which ſome of ours alſo follow, in caroches, or coaches; ſuppoſing it to be another ſort of receits, for carriage, diſtinct from the former. The ambiguity is the greater, becauſe the word is no where elſe read: I ſuppoſe the firſt moſt probable, becauſe it ſorteth beſt with the root, whence the word ſeems to ariſe.

to my holy mountain Jeruſalem, ſaith the Lord,] Heb. upon, or unto, (as 1 Sam. 1. 10. & 2. 11.) my mountain of holineſſe (as chap. 65. 11, 25.) Jeruſalem; either by appoſition ſimply, Jeruſalem; ſo termed, becauſe it ſtood, though in a plain, yet on a knole. See Jer. 17. 3. or, to my holy mountain, the hill of Jeruſalem, as Chap. 10. 32. or, at Jeruſalem; as Pſal. 68. 29. to mount-Sion, a type of the Church, Chap. 56. 7.

as the children of Iſrael bring an offering in a clean veſſel, into the houſe of the Lord.] That is, ſay the Jewiſh Maſters, they ſhall bring them in goodly apparel, and rich rayment, ſuch as is fit to go unto Gods houſe with, Zach. 3. 4, 5. and as a gift, or offering, that was not to be redeemed, Lev. 27. 28, 29. The meaning is, that as nothing, which was not pure, or holy, might be brought into Gods houſe, Chap. 52. 11. Ezr. 8. 28. Pſal. 93. 5. ſo theſe Gentile Converts ſhould no longer be deemed prophane, or impure, and ſecluded, and ſequeſtred, therefore, from acceſſe unto Gods houſe; but as perſons purified, by faith in Chriſt, ſhould be admitted into the body of Gods Church, his houſe, 1 Tim. 3. 5. and have ſociety in it with the Saints. Act. 10. 15. & 11. 8, 18. & 15. 9. & 26. 18. Eph. 2. 19. See Chap. 56. 3, 7.

into] Or unto; the particle is wanting; but to be ſupplied; as Chap. 13. 2.

V. 21. And I will alſo take of them for Prieſts, and for Levites, ſaith the Lord.] The Jewiſh Doctors are ſomewhat puzzled about theſe words. Some of them ſay the meaning is, concerning theſe onely now brought, whereof ſome might be of the Prieſtly linage, and ſome of the Levitical Progeny; that albeit, they had ſtaid long behind their brethren, in forrein parts more remote, inſomuch that they were grown now out of remembrance; yea, had peradventure alſo lived after the faſhion of thoſe Heathen, among whom they abode, or had been in ſervitude, and put to baſe employments among them, which might be deemed to make them unfit for, and uncapable of returning to ſuch offices again: yet upon their return, God would take them again, ſuch of them as were of the Prieſtly race, for Prieſts; and ſuch as were of the other Levitical Families, for Levites, and for Levitical employments. But ſome of them go a ſtep further, and ſay it is meant, as well of the Gentiles that bring them, as of thoſe that are brought by them, that God would take them into office. That which others ſtartle at, as if ſome Gentiles then ſhould be admitted into ſuch places; And this to avoid therefore, ſome of them expound the text, I will take of them for the Prieſts, and for the Levites; that is, ſay they, not to be Prieſts, or Levites, but to do ſervice unto them; to be as the Gibeonites, hewers of wood, and drawers of water, for the ſervice of the Sanctuary, and of them, that either as Prieſts, or Levites, ſhould miniſter therein, Joſh. 9. 23, 27. To which purpoſe alſo they would force in that of Zach. 14. 21. In that day the Canaanite, (that is, ſay they, the Gibeonite) ſhall be no more in the Lords houſe: for theſe Gentile Proſelytes ſhall then ſerve as they did. They might more ſeemingly have alledged that paſſage, Chap. 61. 5, 6. But of that ſee there. Mean while ye may obſerve, how poor ſouls, they ſhut their eyes againſt the light that not ſhineth only, but blazeth and flaſheth full in their faces. They ſhall be brought, ſaith God, in ſtate, as holy ones, home to my houſe; and I will alſo (as ſpeaking of a further, and higher degree of honour) take of them; what to do with them? think we; to account them as accurſed ones, and to make bond-ſlaves and drudges of them? as Joſhua ſpeaks of the Gibeonites. No, nothing leſs, but to advance them to honourable places, to make Levites and Prieſts of them; as moſt of them expound the words of the text: even he himſelf, among the reſt, who relates the other, as his Fathers opinion. And it were a fond thing to ſay, that God would take of them for Prieſts and Levites, that were ſo born, and ſuch already. Of the convert Gentiles, though aliens by birth, therefore the place is cleer, whom God elſewhere promiſeth, that he will not onely bring to his houſe, but as he ſaith of the Eunuch (for the promiſe alike concerneth either) give a name, and a place, in his houſe, and within his wals, Chap. 56. 5-7. The onely difference between that place, and this, is, that the office, or place there-mentioned, is that ſpirituall Prieſthood, which all true Chriſtians ſhare in, and is therefore there promiſed unto every one of them in general: of which, 1 Pet. 2. 9. Rev. 1. 6. & 20. 6. whereas here under the name of Prieſts, and Levites, is intimated the miniſtery of the Goſpel, the office of Paſtors and Teachers, whoſe calling, and employment is, to teach, inſtruct, and edifie Gods people, Jer. 3. 15. Eph. 4. 11, 12. 1 Tim. 3. 2. & 4. 13, 16. 2 Tim. 2. 24, 25. & 4. 1, 2. that which was the office of the Prieſts, and Levites, in times paſt. Deut. 33. 8, 10. 2 Chron. 17. 7-9. & 19. 8-10. & 30. 22. Mal. 2. 6, 7. and it is not therefore ſaid here, I will take them all, as in that other place: but of them, not all, 1 Cor. 12. 28, 29. Eph. 4. 11. Heb. 5. 4. but ſome of them, as Timothy, Act. 16. 2, 3. Titus, Gal. 2. 3. and others. Howbeit, I ſuppoſe they are a little over-curious, that would have Biſhops, or Presbyters, and Deacons, Act. 6. 2-3. Phil. 1. 1. 1 Tim. 3. 2, 12. here intended, as anſwering to the Prieſts, the one; to the Levites, the other.

V. 22. For as the new heaven, and the new earth, which I will make, ſhall remain before me, ſaith the Lord; ſo ſhall your ſeed and your name remain.] Here again, do ſome of our Jewiſh Maſters ſtrain their wits. For they will needs have the former part of this collation, to be underſtood of the frame of heaven and earth, at firſt created, Gen. 1. 1. and the heaven, ſay they, is called a new heaven; becauſe it continueth in that newneſſe in which it was at firſt; nor is it grown old, but it is ſtill as it was at firſt, Pſal. 119. 89-91. and the earth is termed new, becauſe it ſtill continueth as at firſt it was; howſoever, the race of thoſe that are upon it alter and decay, go and come, Eccl. 1. 4. But they forget what God had promiſed before, Chap. 65. 17. to wit, that he would create a new heaven, and a new earth, unto which theſe men, did they not wilfully wink, might eaſily ſee, that this paſſage hath a manifeſt and cleer relation. It is true indeed, that God doth ſometime illuſtrate his conſtant purpoſe of the continuance of his Church to the worlds end, by collations taken from the conſtant, and continued courſe, and entercourſe of the creature, from the firſt conſtitution of it unto the worlds end, Jer. 31. 35, 36. & 33. 25, 26. But it is apparent, that he here ſpeaketh of that new heaven, and new earth, that was to come in the Kingdom of the Meſſias, Heb. 12. 28. unto whoſe times alſo, the moſt of them refer that prediction; and, under whom, the face and ſtate of the Church ſhould be ſo renewed, that is, ſhould ſeem to be a new world, 2 Cor. 5. 17. See on Chap. 65. 17.

V. 23. And it ſhall come to paſſe, that from one new Moon to another, and from one Sabbath to another, ſhall all fleſh come to worſhip before me, ſaith the Lord,] The conſtancy of the faithful, under the Goſpel, in frequenting the ſervice, and worſhip of God at their Church-meetings, is here foretold; deſcribed in terms borrowed from, and alluding unto, the ſolemn manner and ſet-times of conventions, to that purpoſe, which were in ordinary uſe formerly among Gods people, Pſal. 110. 3. See the complement, Act. 2. 42, 46.

it ſhall come to paſſe, that] Heb. it ſhall be, that; as Chap. 4. 3.

from one moneth to another, and from one Sabbath to another,] Heb. from moneth in, or to his moneth; or, from new-moon in, or to his new moon; and from Sabbath in, or to his Sabbath; that is, as the Jewiſh Commenters well expound it, every moneth, or new-moon conſtantly; and ſo, every Sabbath. So oft as new moon, or Sabbath, ſhall come, So 1 Sam. 7. 16. 2 Chron. 24. 5. & Zach. 14. 16. a place parallel to this, from yeer in, or unto yeer, that is, conſtantly every yeer, or yeer by yeer; as Neh. 10. 35, 39. one of the Jewiſh Criticks draweth hither that, Exod. 5. 19. the matter of the day, in its day; to which might be added, ſomewhat neerer to this, the matter of the yeer, in, or, within, or by the yeer, 2 Chron. 9. 24. but the forms are not the ſame with this; that, of any other, comes neereſt to it; from day to day, and from moneth to moneth, Eſt. 3. 7. Again, one of them would have the lengthening of the former prepoſition, by a ſyllabical adjection, to imply the conſtancy of their acceſs, without omiſſion of any of thoſe times. And true it is, that in ſome formes, the word ſo uſed, ſeems to have ſome emphaſis; as 2 King. 4. 8. where, from his paſſing by, is not amiſs rendred, ſo oft as he paſſed by; as alſo, 1 Sam. 18. 30. from their going forth, might as well be rendred, ſo oft, as they went forth. Howbeit, becauſe that adjection is ordinarily, in other forms of ſpeech, where no ſuch matter is intended; as Chap. 28. 19. Exod. 36. 5. as alſo it is found, in like manner, used, with other particles, Judg. 6. 5. Jer. 51. 28. nor are the forms alike to this, in the places produced, in which also the phrase seems to have such force from the preposition it left, rather then from that adjection; the note seemes to me, to be of no great weight: the same Author would have the words read distinctively; from moneth to moneth, or from Sabbath to Sabbath. The one, for those that were more remote from Jerusalem, and therefore could not come above once a moneth thither: The other, for those that were nearer at hand, and might repair thither every Sabbath: but then the Sabbath should rather have been set in the first place, every Sabbath, or every new-moon, every moneth at least: and this therefore seemes a meer needlesse nicety. These fer-times are mentioned, because the most frequent solemnities, the new-moon coming every moneth, Num. 10. 10. Psal. 81. 3. the Sabbath every week, Lev. 23. 2, 3. See Amos 8. 5. There want not of ours, that expound the words, as under stood, not of coming to worship, moneth after moneth, or Sabbath after Sabbath; but of a continual service of God, without intermission, all the time between new-moon, and new-moon, and between Sabbath, and Sabbath, (as intimating the observation of a perpetual Sabbath) and not at set-times and festions onely, as it was with the Jewish people, Rom. 14. 5. Gal. 4. 10. Col. 2. 16. But the confluence of the phrase doth sufficiently confute them.

all flesh] All sorts of men: all people and nations indifferently, without exception, exemption, or exclusion of any; as well Gentiles, as Jews, ver. 20. Chap. 40. 5. & 56. 7. Joel 2. 28, 32. Rom. 10. 12, 13.

come to worship before me.] Or, in my presence, Heb. to my face; as Psal. 42. 2. in the Assemblies of Gods people; where God is, by his ordinances, in special manner, present, as sometime in his Tabernacle and Temple: for they Judaize too much, that restrain this to the Gentiles repairing to worship in the utter Court, whereunto sometime they had free access, 1 King. 8. 42, 43. See Joseph of the Jewish wars, l. 6. c. 14.

V. 24. And they shall go forth, and look upon the carcasses of the men, that have trasgressed against me;] From the mercies and favours wherewith God would so abundantly endow and dignifie his faithful servants, the Prophet returneth to those heavy judgments, that God would execute upon those wicked and disloyal ones, whom he had threatned to be avenged on before, ver. 15, 16. of which he would have his faithfull ones, whom they had scorned and wronged, to be spectators and eye-witnesses, Psal. 58. 10.

they] Those added to the Church, ver. 23. Act. 2. 47.

go forth] Come out of their graves, say some of the ancients, understanding it, of the resurrection, Joh. 5. 28. come out of the world, say some late Writers, and joyning themselves to the Church; go out of Jerusalem, say some of the Rabbines: and it is not improbable, that an eye might be unto some such occurrents concerning that people, wherein, having been streitned by sieges, or inroads, upon the defeat of the adverse party, they regained liberty to look freely abroad. See Chap. 33. 17.

and look upon] Or, to see; as Josh. 24. 9. some exemplary judgments of God, inflicted and executed on the wicked, for their contempt of the Gospel, their protanenesse, idolatries, and other impieties. See Rev. 6. 4, 8. & 8. 7, 9. & 9. 5, 6, 18, 20. & 16. 2-10, 21. & 19. 20, 21. for that seems too harsh of those, who would here expound, seeing, by hearing, the torments of hell preached: Nor that of others so fit, that refer it, to the reall sight of hell, and persons therein tormented, after the last day, Rev. 14. 10. though I deny not, but that by the hideous spectacles here-mentioned, those torments are here typified.

the carcasses] Of those of Gogs and Magogs forces, that shall lie slain upon the mountains neer unto Jerusalem, say some of the Rabbines, Ezek. 39. 4, 5, 9. or lying, as others say, in the valley of Jehoshaphat, Joel 3. 12, 14. and others, again, in Tophet, in the vale of Gehinnom, Chap. 30. 33. Jer. 7. 31-33. and it is not unlikely, but that some respect might be had in this passage, either to the carkasses of those that lay slaughtered for some time in the former place, after that they had dispatched one another, in the reign of Jehoshaphat, 2 Chron. 20. 23, 24. or, of those Assyrians in Sennacherib's Camp, destroyed by the ministery of an Angel, Chap. 37. 36. whom that latter place of Tophet concerneth. Apparent enough it is, that this execution of Gods wrath on the wicked, is here described, by a resemblance taken from dead bodies, that after great slaughter made of them, lie a long time above ground unburied, either as deemed unworthy to be at all interred; or, because in regard of the multitude of them, it cannot suddenly be effected. See Ezek. 39. 12.

for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched;] Or, how their worm dyeth not, nor is their fire quenched; as the particle is sometime used. See on Chap. 51. 2. The Prophet, in this clause, pursueth the allegory taken from corpses unburied: and this the Jewish Doctors, some of them, taking notice of; but without taking it literally, say, this shall be part of the strange sign, ver. 19. that though be shewen upon Gogs, and Magogs army, that though the judgment inflicted on them, be by fire, Ezek. 38. 22. yet the worms, that bred in their carcasses, lying many moneths unburied, Ezek. 39. 9. shall live in the fire: which fictions, others to shun, say, that the worm hath reference to the bodies unburied; the fire, to their cities burnt down with fire from above, Ezek. 39. 6. See Rev. 20. 8, 9. But such salves need not: the worm hath reference to such vermine, as is wont to breed in, and feed on, dead corples; such carcasses especially as lie so long above ground, untill they rot, and become as dung, or carion, Job 12. 14. & 21. 26. Psal. 83. 10. Chap. 14. 11, 19, 20. the fire, to the burning of such bodies, not now to be stirred, or removed, but to be consumed by fire, in the places where they lie, Chap. 9. 5. & 30. 33. Ezek. 39. 9. So that the resemblance is taken from the bodies that lie rotting on the face of the earth; till they crawl all over with worms and magots, and in regard both of their unsinnefle to be managed, and the multitude of them, it is a long time, ere they can be consumed with fire; and because the sight of such must needs be a very loathsome spectacle, it is therefore added; and they shall be an abhorring unto all flesh.] Or, are a loathsomnesse, or most loathsome unto all flesh; unto every creature; or to all those that behold them, one or other; as ver. 23. the word here used, is no where else found, but here, and Dan. 12. 2. where it is rendred, contempt: but might better be, loathsomnesse, or detestation there; most loathsome, or, most detestable here: (loathsomnesse, being put for extream loathsome, or detestation, for most detestable: as abomination, for most abominable, Jer. 44. 4. desolation, for, extream desolate, chap. 64. 10.) for contempt, is a term of too low an alloy. The ancient Greek rendreth it, here, a sight, or, a spectacle, clipping off its first letter: The old Latine, a satiety of sight, which came from the Chaldee, who cut it asunder, and unadvisedly made two words of one. Some of the Jewish Criticks say, it cometh from a word, that signifies, a worm: they all herein agree, that it imports somewhat very loathsome, and detestable. By the whole similitude, or allegory, that dreadful, direful, and detestable condition is expressed, that shall, at first, or last, befall all obstinate wicked ones, sometime in exemplary judgments executed upon them in this world; partly, by inward torture of mind, Dan. 5. 6. partly, by corporal pains, 2 Chron. 21. 18, 19. Act. 12. 23. and ignominious usages, Chap. 22. 17, 18. Jer. 22. 18, 19. amids which, this also is one part of their misery, that they are, generally, rather abhorred, then pitied, Psal. 52. 5-7. & 64. 7-9. but ever, if they do escape vengeance here, after this life, immediatly in their souls; and at the last day, in soul and body joyned together again; which the Jewish Writers also grant to be here principally intended: at what time their condition shall be everlastingly such, as if carcasses swarming with worms, feeding on them, and committed unto the fire, could be sensible of either, and should always so live and continue, with those worms inceslantly gnawing of them, and that fire unquenchable, for ever tormenting them; for thus are the torments of hell, in Scripture, described, wherein wretches are to abide eternally, without either end, or ease, with some relation therein had to Tophet of Gehinnom, where corpses lay continually rotting, or fire was constantly burning for the consuming of them. See Ch. 30. 33. Mat. 3. 12. & 10. 28. & 18. 8, 9. & 23. 41, 46. Mar. 9. 44. Jam. 5. 3. Rev. 14. 10, 11. & 19. 20. & 20. 14, 15.

The Jewish Masters out of a superstitious fancy, because they would not have this Prophecy conclude with such dismall terms, as this last verse endeth in, repeat again the foregoing verse after this, as thereby to salve and avert the evil presage of it. But that is a ridiculous, as conceit, so device and practice of theirs. Well it would be, both for them, and others, so to order their ways here, that they might not meet with such a dismal close, or pass unto such a direful condition, when they depart hence. See the like at the end of the Lamentations of Jeremy.

ANNOTATIONS ON THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET JEREMIAH.

The Argument.

THE Prophet Jeremy was a Priest, and so an ordinary Teacher; (which some other of the Prophets were not) before his entrance upon this extraordinary employment. This he began (being in his younger years thereunto called) under a good King Josiah; in times, though bad enough (the main body of the people, notwithstanding all the care and endeavour of that godly Governour, continuing still inclined to their former idolatry, and other wonted evil courses) yet nothing so bad, as not long after they proved, when that pious Prince was by immature decease taken away, who had kept them yet within some compass of external conformity, and restrained them from the publick profession, and open practice of such abominations, while he lived. But the Kings that succeeded him, being themselves also addicted to like impieties, and excesses, and complying with the people therein; all things in short time, grew to such an height of corruption, both in Church and State, that the Prophet having a long time, as one striving and strugling against the stiff stream of a strong torrent, in vain laboured to reclaim them; and having endured much opposition by the false Prophets, and sustained much hard measure from the Priests, Princes, and People, for the faithful performance, and due execution of his office, (under which some expressions of humane frailty, at some times, brake from him) he was, at length, constrained to denounce from God, the utter ruine and destruction of that whole State; which, by the Chaldeans, God accordingly made good. Howbeit, withal for the comfort and support of the faithful, he foreelleth their return, after seventy years captivity; and the enlargement of the Church, by that blessed Branch, the Messias: withal, adjoyning divers Prophecies against those several Nations, that had been either the destroyers, or the oppressours of Gods people.

Upon the surprisal of the City by the Chaldeans, he was by the King of Babylon his special appointment, set at liberty: but was shortly after carryed away by force, into Egypt, among the rest of the people, which Prince John, and his Complices, upon the murther of Gedaliah, whom the Chaldean King had made Governour of the Land, for fear of the Chaldeans, against Gods expres charge, did thither transport. There continued he prophesying, how long, it is not certain: howbeit, being called unto that office in the thirteenth of Josiah, it could not be lesse than between fourty and fifty years that he spent in that employment. In Egypt it is not unlikely that he ended his dayes; though how, in what manner, or by what means, is as uncertain, as the time of his abode in those parts.

Some other things seems to have been written by him, which are not now extant, besides the Sermons and Prophecies recorded in this booke: as a solemn Lamentation composed upon the death of Josias, 2 Chron. 35. 25. that roll or volume, which Baruc engrossed for him, containing a Summary of all his fore-going Sermons; Chap. 36, 2, 18. and the same enlarged with some farther Additionals, Chap. 36. 32. But the main, yea, in likelihood the whole sum and substance of both these, we have at large in the records of this Book. As for that Epistle, that goeth under his name, as written to his Countrey-men, that either were to be, or were already in captivity at Babylon, (diverse from that specified and recorded here, Chapter 29.) it is deservedly deemed a meer counterfeit, as well as those Prophecies of Baruc, whereunto it is adjoyned.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1. THE words of Jeremiah the son of Hilkiah of the Priests, that were in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin.] The three first verses of this Chapter seem to contain an Inscription, or Title, of the main body of all the Prophecies, and Sermons, in this whole book recorded: of all in general, in this verse: of those more specially from his first calling, unto the time of the captivity, in the two next verses.

The words] That is, Sermons, or Prophecies; as, The word that Esay saw, Esay 2. 1. and, The words of Amos, Amos 1. 1. and, The words of the Preacher, Eccl. 1. 1. some render it, The book, and would have it to design no more, than what is delivered from hence, unto the end of the thirty nigth Chapter: from whence say they, another book beginneth: as in the Revelation of John, from the eleventh Chapter the like, Rev. 10. 9, 11. But I suppose the term here to be of larger extent, and to take in the whole volume of Prophecies, that bear the name of this Prophet. Nor is it probable, that all those ensuing prophecies from Chapter 39. should be of later date, than Zedekiahs captivity; yea, concerning some of them, the contrary is apparent. See chap. 51. 59.

Jeremiah] Heb. Jirmjahu; and so constantly in this book; as Jeshajahu, and Jechiekjahu, and the like; though elsewhere also, sometime, Jirmja: whereof see on Esay 1. 1. The Greeks render it Jeremias, Mat. 2. 17. & 16. 14. we in English, ordinarily, Jeremy; as Zechary, and Timothy, 1 Tim. 1. 2. and so our former Versions exhibit it. It seems to signifie one raised up by God, 1 King. 14. 17. & 16. 2. 1 Sam. 2. 7. Psa. 9. 13. and was a name, not unusual, among Gods people, as appeareth, 2 King. 24. 18. 1 Chro. 5. 24. & 12. 4, 10, 13. Neh. 12. 1.

the son of Hilkiah] Added to distinguish him from others, that might be in those dayes of that name. Of the groundlefs conceit of the Rabbines, concerning such denominations of Prophets from their Parentage; see on Esay 1. 1.

Hilkiah] Heb. Chilkijah, or Hilkijah, as the name is found written, 1 Chro. 6. 13, 45. or, Chilkijahu, or, Hilkijahu; as here, and Esay 22. 20. See there. The Greek, and Latine, ordinarily render it, Helkias; as Beniamin, for Binjamin, Phil. 3. 5. and for Jolhijah, Josias, Mat. 1. 11. Of this name divers were, as one here mentioned; and another that was high Priest under Josias, 2 King. 22. 8. whom the Chaldee Paraphrast, the Jewish Doctours, divers of them, and not a few Christian Writers, with whom the Authors of our Geneva Annotations concur, suppose to have been the Father of this our Prophet: But hereof there is no great probability; for, to omit all other arguments, that seem to perswade the contrary, the high Priest had his house and abode constantly at Jerusalem; whereas this Hilkiah had his dwelling at Anathoth, subjoyned here, in likelyhood, of purpose to distinguith him from that other of the same name, being high Priest; yet living, and exercising that function, some space of time, after that Jeremy began at first to prophesy, as appeareth from 2 Kin.22.4. compared with the very next verse of this Chapter. Nor seems that of force sufficient to take this off, that of Abiathar the high Priest under Solomon, it is said, that he had fields of his own inheritance at Anathoth, 1 Kings 2.26. for albeit, he so had, yet lived he at Jerusalem until Solomon depoted him, and confined him thither; whereas of this Hilkiah there is no such thing read, but that he made his abode at Jerusalem, as his place required, 2 Kings 22.4,8. of the Priests that were in Anathoth] Heb. Of the Priests in Anathoth. Or, at Anathoth, rather; because the name of a Town, or City; as 2 Kings 2.18. 1 Chron.4.28,31. one of the Priests that dwelt there: it being one of the Cities out of the Benjamites lot assigned to the Priests, Jos.21.18. 1 Chro.6.60. see Esay 10.30.

in the land of Benjamin] In that portion of the land of Canaan, which by lot was assigned unto the posterity of Benjamin, Jos.18.11. Jacobs youngest sonn: Of whose name, see Gen. 35.18. Heb. Binjamin: But we follow herein the Greek pronunciation, as in many other names, Acts 13. 21. Phil.3.5. See chap.37.12.

V. 2. Unto whom the word of the Lord came in the days of Josiah, the son of Amon, King of Judah, in the thirteenth yeer of his reign] In these words is precisely related the time, and yeer, wherein Jeremy was called unto this Prophetical function, from being an ordinary Priest, to be an extraordinary Prophet, and began to execute the same.

unto whom the word of the Lord came] Heb. whom the word, or, a word of the Lord (as 2 Sam.7.4.) was unto him; a kinde of elegant redundancy, in that language, very frequent: The like whereunto, see Gen.1.11. Psa.1.4. 2 Sam. 6. 22. Now by the word of the Lord, here, fome understand a charge, or commission, made out by God unto Jeremy, for the exercise, and execution of his Prophetical employment, and the publishing of these his Prophecies; as they conceive the word to be taken also, Hos.1.1. Lu.3.2. Joh.10.35. word, for charge, or commission, or command; as 1 Kin.12.24. Esth.1.12. & 3.15. and so ch.26.1. Others conceive it to design the subject matter of his prophecy, or that which was revealed to him, and he enjoyned to publish; as, the word which Esay saw, Esay 2.1. & Gen.15.1. the word, or, a word of the Lord was to Abraham; where no such charge, or commission, is implyed: and to the word of the Lord, here; and the words of Jeremy, v.1. are in effect, and substance, one and the same; called the word of the Lord, because proceeding from him, and delivered in his name, v.4,7. the words of Jeremy; because by him delivered, as Gods mouth, and messenger, to his people, ch. 15. 19. & 26. 12,15. And this latter I encline to, though the word may well comprehend both, since that the former also, together with the revelation, did constantly concur. So Mic.1.1. Zeph.1.1.

in the days] The time of the reign, See on Esay 1.1.

of Josiah] Heb. Jesiahu; as Jirmiahu, v.1. and sometime Jesaiah; as Zach.6.10. for the name (though not the person) is the same. Greek, Josias, Mat. 1. 10. which our English seems best acquainted with: and it seems to import one firmly founded, or grounded upon God. See Esay 1.6.7. & 46.8. Of this good Kings religious reign, but over a people, though by his pious, and sedulous provisions, restrained from their wonted pollutions, and reduced to an out-side of conformity in publick profession, & practice, of the sincere service of God; yet remaining still, in regard of disposition of heart and affection, much unreformed, and unreclaimed. See 2 Kings 22. & 23. 2 Chro.34. & 35.

the son of Amon] Of whose irreligious reign, and how he renewed and restored again those abominations and idolatries, which his father Manasses, upon his humiliation and serious repentance, had abandoned and abolished. See 2 Kin.21. 19, 23. & 2 Chro. 33.21, 24. The name signifieth, a nurse-childe, Prov.8.30.

in the thirteenth yeer of his reign] Some five yeer before the book of the Law found in the Temple, by Hilkiah the high Priest, 2 Kings 22. 3, 8. and Josias reigning one and thirty yeers in all, 2 Kings 22. 1. it followeth hence, that Jeremy prophesyed eighteen yeers under Josias.

V. 3. It came also in the days of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah King of Judah, unto the end of the eleventh yeer of Zedekiah, the son of Josiah, King of Judah, unto the carrying away of Jerusalem captive, in the fifth moneth] As in the former verse was related the beginning of Jeremies exercising this extraordinary function; with an intimation of the time of his prophesying under Josias: So in this verse is further related the continuance of it, under his successours, unto the captivity that was under Zedekiah, by the space of two and twenty years, see 2 Kings 23.31,36. & 24.8,18. which taking in those eighteen under Josias, make up at least fourty: whence it may be that Jewish fable, that God should tell Moses of a Prophet to come, meaning Jeremy, that should reprove them on this side, and reprove them on that side; that should prophesy fourty yeer one way, and fourty year another way; as if he spent in prophesying, as many years after the captivity, as he had done before it.

It came also] Heb. and it was: It was, as before, ver.2. and, for also; as Prov.28.16. Esay 63.3. he had also Prophetical visions, and revelations in those times. See Esay 1.1. & 2.1. Jon. 1.1. & 3.1.

In the days of Jehoiakim] Here question is moved, Why Jehoahaz, and Jehoiachin are not here mentioned, as well as Jehoiakim, whereof the one reigned before him, comin between him, and his father Josias: the other succeeded him, coming between him, and his brother Zedekiah. Where unto the common answer is, that these two are omitted, because they reigned a little above three monoths a peece, some half a yeer only; and that at two several times between them, 2 Kings 23.31. & 24.8. 2 Chron.36.2,9. which answer may well serve for the former; concerning whom also it is uncertain, whether any special prophecy were revealed to Jeremy, or delivered by him, in his days. And for the latter, there was no special cause of naming him, whether ought in that kinde came out under him, or no; since that his short reign comes within the compass of the two lists, and limits of time here fixed. See chap. 22. 11, 24.

Jehoiakim] Of this Jehoiakim; and his name, see on chap.22.18. of his wicked reign, 2 Kings 23.34,37. & 24.1,6. 2 Chro.36.4,8.

the son of Josiah] Of whose issue, see further on chap.22.11,18.

unto the end of the eleventh yeer of Zedekiah] Heb. until the eleventh yeer of Zedekiah was accompl.fied; as Lev. 25.29. where there seems to be some diversity of account between this, and that which followeth, where the fifth moneth is named; that which comes short by a whole moneth of the half, by many more of the whole yeer. But the answer hereunto is easie, that the fifth moneth, though it ended not the yeer, in regard of its ordinary, fer, and standing computation, yet it might end the eleventh yeer of Zedekiahs reign, having entred about that time thereinto.

the son of Josiah] 1 Chro.3.15.

unto the carrying away of Jerusalem captive] Heb. until Jerusalem (that is, the people thereof) departed; or, went into captivity; as Judg. 18.30. unto the day, that the land departed, or was captived. There are two captivities mentioned; the one under Jehoiachin, 2 Kings 24.13. the other, under Zedekiah, 2 Kings 25.11. and of this the Prophet expresly here speaketh. Howbeit, the meaning here is, not that the Prophet, at this second captivity, ceased prophesying, for it appeareth that he prophesyed after ward, both in Judah, chap.40.43. and in Egypt, chap.44. but that he prophesyed so long under the State that then stood, when he entred upon that office.

in the fifth moneth] See on chap. 52.12,15.

V. 4. Then the word of the Lord came unto me, saying;] Heb. And the word of the Lord was unto me, saying; as verse 2,11. Jon. 1.1. yet because this seems to have reference to the time of his first call to this office, verse 2. the copulative is not amisse here rendred, then; as Exod.7.9. Esay 36.3,9,11. A change of the person; as Mic.3.1.

V. 5. Before I formed thee in the belly, I knew thee; and before thou camest forth out of the womb, I sanctified thee, and I ordained thee a Prophet unto the Nations] The words of God to the Prophet, acquainting him with his ancient purpose, and determination, to assign him to that office, which he now called him unto. See Esay 49.15.

formed thee] Heb. moulded, or framed, and fashioned thee; as the Potter doth the clay, whereof he maketh some earthen vessel, Gen.3. 7,8. Esay 43.1. & 44.2. & 64.8.

in the belly] In thy mothers womb: so is the word belly used, Esay 46.3. & 49.15. He that at first framed man out of the earth, doth still frame man in the womb, upon the earth, Job 10.9. and 31.15. Psa.119.79. and 139.15,16.

I knew thee] I had thee in mind, I took special notice of thee, as of one to be thus employed. So Exod.33.12,17. Rom.8.29.

before thou camest out of the womb I sanctified thee.] The same thing in divers terms; I designed thee to be a Prophet before thou wast either bred, or born. It is no more than what the Apostle saith of himfelf, that God had severed him, that is, in his secret purpose, fet him apart, from his mothers womb, unto that Ministery, which afterward he called him unto by his grace, Gal. 1.15. See the use of this word Sanctifie, Esay 13.3. chap.12.3. and 51.17,28. which they strain too far here, who, with the Jewish Writers, expound it, of a reall and actual sanctification of the Prophet, by infusion, and collation of spiritual grace upon him, while he was yet in his mothers womb: which howsoever concerning John the Baptist, the Evangelist, in the Angels words to his Father, seems cleerly to aver, Luke 1.15. in regard whereof, it is said of him, by some of the Ancients, that he was new bred, yet unborn. Yet I suppose it cannot be with good ground, from Scripture, affirmed of any other.

and I ordained thee a Prophet] Heb. I gave thee; I assigned, or appointed thee so to be; as Esay 49.6. It is in plainer terms, what he had before said of him: the copulative need not be inferred, being not in the Text.

unto the nations.] The Jewish Doctours have many odd querks and questions, here, about Jeremy: where, to let pass, what they say of his parents preparation to the begetting of him, and the ftength of natural constitution designed unto him, and the prediction delivered to Moses concerning him, whereof some what before; ore; and that he should prophesy one while to the Jews, another while to the Gentiles: and as long to the one, as to the other. They first move a question, Why God should tell him all this, when he called him, concerning his predestination of him unto, and preparation of him for this office, rather than Esay, or any other of the Prophets? and to this they answer, that it was to encourage him, because he hung back, and would have excused himself, ver.6. which Esay did not, Esay 6.8. and therefore needed no such spurre. But then they move a new question, Why did not God use the like motives to Moses, who was as unwilling, as Jeremy, to go on Gods errand, Exod. 3.11. and 4.1,10,13. To which they answer, that Moses was a man of greater wisdome, than Jeremy, and knew it well enough of himself: And besides, he had a power given him to work miracles, which Jeremy had not, Exod. 4.2,8. And true it is, that in all likelyhood, God used this speech unto Jeremy, to confirm, and encourage him to that weighty work, which he was now about to employ him in; the rather, in regard of his age, being called to it very young; the consideration whereof, made him so loth to come to it, ver. 5. but God neither is wont, nor is tyed to use the same ways and means of encouragement, at all times, and upon all occasions, unto all, which at some times, to some he doth. Another question they move, Why it is said, that God had given him to be a Prophet to the Nations, when as he seems rather to have been sent unto the Jews? To this, some of them answer, that by the nations, are the Israelites themselves here understood, so called; because they walked after the fashions and courses of the Nations, and were in that regard, in no other account with God. See Esay 1.4. Chap. 9.25,26. But others of them answer, with the Chaldee Paraphrast, that therefore he is said to be given for a Prophet to the Nations; because he was to render unto them the cup of Gods wrath, chap. 25.15. and they adde withal, some of them, that the particle unto, may here signifie against, as it doth, Psalm 51.4. and 56.3. Job 7.20. and 8.4. and that he did prophesy against the Nations, or Gentiles, it is expresly said, chap. 46.1. as against Egypt in that chapter, and chap. 43.10,13. against Palestine, chap. 47. against Moab, chap. 48. against Ammon, Edom, Damascus, Kedar, Hazelam, chap. 49. against Babel, chap. 50. and 51. Howbeit, we need not conceive this so to be spoken of the nations, as to exclude the Jewish people; for howbeyed God were pleased thus to speak unto the Prophet, to let him know what a large and ample commission he was to have, and how honourable an employment, as verse 10. the like whereunto, see Esay 49.6. yet his meaning was not thereby to exempt the Jews from his charge, but to comprehend them, with other nations, therein; as Jerusalem, and all the Cities of Judah are mentioned among the nations, and set in the Front, whom with the cup he is first sent unto, chap.25.15,17,18.

V. 6. Then said I;] Heb. And I said. See on ver.2.

Ah, Lord God,] An interjection of grief and complaint; as Josh. 7.7. Judg. 6.22. chap. 4.10. used here by the Prophet, in way of introduction to that speech, which he was to make unto God, requesting to be excused, and discharged of an employment of that nature, as both considering with himself the weightiness of the work, 2 Cor. 2.16. and conscious to himself of his own weakness and insufficiency for the performance thereof, and the discharge of the duties therein required, 2 Cor.3.5. see chap.17.16. and of Moses the like, Exod.3.11. and 4.10,13.

Behold, I cannot speak] Heb. I know not to speak; as Esay 29.12. I know not a book, for, I cannot read. See the like, chap. 6.15. and 8. I know not how to deliver thy message, in such manner, as I ought. For it cannot be conceived simply, as if either, in regard of infancy, or dumbnesse, procured by some casualty, he were speechless, as Zachary, Luc.1.20,22. for he could not then have given this answer. Nor doth his meaning seem to be, that he had some impediment in his speech, as it seems Moses had, Exod. 4.10,14. or that he complaineth of some moral defect, or default; as Esay seems to do, Esay 6.5,7. but that he was one unfit to speak by way of instruction, and reproof, and that not to one nation alone, but to many, as was intimated in his charge, wanting gravity, and authority; in regard of his age and years especially. See 1 Sam. 16.11. and 17.12,13,42. Psa.119.141. 1 Tim.4.12. Tit.2.15. see also Exod. 4.10.

for I am a child] Or, a child I am; for the pronoun demonstrative very frequently supplyeth the place of the verb substantive: as chap. 3.12. Hos. 11.9. Mal. 3.6. Here the Jewish Masters about Jeremies words of himself, are at some variance among themselves: for one of their principal Doctours (of whom they use to say, that from Moses to Moses, this Moses (for that was his name) had no mate) telleth us, that the ancient Rabbines have a rule, that the Spirit of prophecy resteth not upon any that is not wise, prudent and rich: and yet I suppose Amos was not very rich, when God called him, from being a neat-herd, and gatherer of Sycamores, to be a Prophet, Amos 1.1. and 7.14,15. but a child, or a youth, therefore cannot be a Prophet; because he carrieth no power or authority with him: and lest this of Jeremy might deceive us, he telleth us, that the word naar, here used, doth not always signifie a child, or, a youth: for it is used of Iosuah, when he was neer threescore yeer old, Exod. 33.11. But concerning Ioseph, the great Doctours memory failed him; he is so called indeed, when he was seventeen yeer old, Gen.37.2. and Benjamin, when thirty, at least, Gen. 43.8. See on Esay 65.20 but of Joseph no where, at that age: for, as for the place, which not the Doctour himself, but his Translatour directeth us to Gen.42. 22. neither is the word there Naar, but Jalad; whence may come our English, lad: nor do they speak there of Joseph, according to the age that he was then of, Gen.41.46. but according to the yeers that he was of, when they sold him; but those two places, not advisedly look'd into, seem to have bred the mistake: and for Joshua it is indeed generally agreed, that he was, at the time here designed, between fifty and threescore: but that term is there given him, as it is of elsewhere in Scripture; not in respect of age, or yeers, but in regard of service, Ministery, and employment, under another: so the words themselves lead us, as by the hand, there to understand it, calling him withal, Moses his Minister; as one, that then waited, and attended upon him, being about thirty yeer, by the computation of some, younger than Moses; the like use of the term, without reference to age, see Gen. 14.24. Exod. 24.13. 1 Sam. 25. 5. and in a place parallel unto that, Esth. 2.2. But to so expound it here, there is nothing either in Text, or Story, to induce, much lesse to inforce. And other of the Jewish Writers therefore on this place, herein depart from their great Doctour, rightly deeming it to have been spoken by Jeremy, in regard of his yeers; as in respect thereof, not esteeming himself fit so to undertake so great an employment, as having not yet, it may be, been inured much unto speech in publick, nor likely, when he should speak to persons of place and quality, and concerning such matters, as Gods Prophets were usually sent about, to be by any much regarded; and that God indueth young ones, as well as old ones, with the Spirit, and gift of prophecy: they instance in Samuel, 1 Sam.3.1,10,19. and in Daniel, with his three companions, Dan.1.17,19,20. to which might be added that of Joel, 2.28. wherein God promiseth to conferr of his Spirit, whereby his secret Will should be revealed, to old men by dreams, to young men by visions: howsoever that great Master, in the now Israel, seek to thrift off the latter branch, by turning it off to the vain visions, and illusions, or delusions of false prophets; as sorrily and absurdly, as some of our grand Sectaries, and affecters of new-lights among us, do pervert the former; as intimating, that the old Teachers should but dream, and dote, when as their now upstare younger ones should have the cleer revelations, and see the divine visions.

V. 7. But the Lord said unto me] Heb. And: the copulative for the adversative; as Esay 66.2.

Say not I am a child; for thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee, and whatsoever I command thee thou shalt speak] The words may be read two ways: either as spoken by way of injunction; as if it taken two ways: either as spoken by way of injunction; as if it were said, Make no such excuses, nor use any such pretences, but do as I bid thee, go whithersoever I send thee, speak whatsoever I give thee in charge: as Num.22.30,35. chap. 26.2. Mat. 10. 27. for the Future Tense is oft used in an imperative motion, Exo.20.3,7,13, 17. Mat.19.8. with Mat. 10, 19. or, as delivered by way of prediction and promise, as if God had said, Talk not of thy yeers, or thine inability to speak, thou shalt be furnished with sufficiency of ability, both to go whithersoever I shall see good to send thee, and to speak whatsoever I shall give thee in charge. So Exod. 3.12. and 4.11,12. Judg. 6.14,16. Mat. 10.19,20. Mar. 13.11. Luc.21. 14,15.

to all that I shall send thee] Heb. upon all that I shall send thee: that is, upon whatsoever errand, and about whatsoever business I shall send thee, Esay 55.11. Acts 26.16. yet the particle is sometime used for unto; as 1 Sam.2.11. Psa.13.6. Esay 53.1. and then the sense will be, unto what persons soever I send thee: as Mat.10. 18. Rev. 10.11. this the rather is mentioned, faith one of the Rabbines, nor amisse, because he was to go to Jerusalem, which was out of his wonted walk, and there deal with the King, and Peers of the Land, that wherewith he had not been formerly acquainted.

V. 8. Be not afraid of their faces] In the former words God gave the Prophet assurance of a sufficient supply of parts, and ability for the discharge of his duty: now he giveth him further assurance of protection, security, and safeguard, upon the discharge of his duty: the one, to remove all pretence of disability; charge of his duty: the one, to remove all pretence of disability; the other, to free him from all groundless fears.

Be not afraid] As Absolom to his servants, 2 Sam. 13.28. God much more to his Ministers and Messengers. So ver. 17. Ezek.3.9. Acts 18.10.

of their faces] Their stern looks, Ezek.3.9. the wrathful disposition, and affection of men, discovereth it self ordinarily in their looks, and their faces, Dan. 3.19. whence the face is sometime used for wrath, Psalm 34.16. It may be rendred simply, Fear not before them, as it is Amos 2.9. or, at the presence of them: as Psal. 68.2,8. either when thou comest to deliver my message to them: as Psalm 119.46. or, shalt come to be conveyed before them, for the delivery of the same, Mat. 10.18,28. But the word seems here to have some emphasis in it, which our Version fitly expresseth.

for I am with thee, to deliver thee, saith the Lord] Gods presence with his Messengers is a guard, and a safe-guard all sufficient, against all opposition whatsoever, Psalm 2.3.6. & 23.4. & 27.1. Earthly Princes, and Soveraigns, are not wont to go with those whom they send on embassage; God goeth along with those, whom he sends; and is, by his powerful protection, at all times, and in all places, present with them. So Exod.3.12. Deut.31.6,8. Josh.1.5. chap.20.11. Acts 18.10. Heb.13.6.

V.9. Then the Lord put forth his hand, and touched my mouth; and the Lord said unto me, Behold, I have put my words in thy mouth] By these words it appeareth, that that which the Prophet here relateth, was done in a vision, wherein God appearing in some visible shape to the Prophet, did, by this external sign, confirm and oblige to him both his mission, and commission, to go upon his errands, and the endowment also of speech, and language, conferred upon him, for the delivery of his messages. See the like, Esay 6.7. but that there done by the ministery of an Angel, this immediately by God himself. For there is no ground, with some Interpreters, to induce the employment of any Angel here. And as for those, who with the Chaldee Paraphrast, by hand, understand here the gift of prophecy, because of that phrase, the word of God, by the hand of such an one, Hagg.1.3. Mal.1.1. they seem to be out of the way: the word hand, there signifying no other, than ministery: as it is well rendred, Hos.12.10. and as it is also used, Esay 37.24.

Then] Heb. And: so v.6.

put forth] Heb. sent: or, sent out. So 2 Sam.15.5.

touched my mouth] Heb. upon my mouth. So Esay 6.7. or, reached to my mouth: as Judg.20.41.

Behold] As thou seest this outward sign; so assure thy self of the thing thereby signified. So Esay 6.7.

I have put my words in thy mouth] That thou mayest be as my mouth to my people, chap.15.19. God sends no dumb messengers. See the like form of speech, Num.23.5,16. chap.5.14. and another somewhat neer it, Psa.40.3.

V.10. See] As, Behold, before v.9. repeated again for more certainty. So Esay 65.13,14.

I have set thee, this day] Heb. the day, for this day: and so v.18. as Psa.2.7. So, the yeers, for this yeer, chap.28.16.

over the Nations, and over the Kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down, to build, and to plant] Jeremies mission, in general, was before-mentioned: his commission, and the subject matter of it, together with the object, or parties, whom it concerned, are more expresly and distinctly, here specified. The objects, and parties, whom it concerned, and to whom it was extended, are whole Kingdomes, and Nations; as Rev.10.11. the subject matter of it, is referred to two heads, for evil, or for good, to destroy, or to save; by denunciation, and menaces of wrath, the one; by promises of mercy and goodness, the other: both, by publishing that word, by God, put into his mouth; which should as assuredly be fulfilled, and effected, as if the Prophet himself had done it, chap.44.26. and 55.10,11. chap.5.14. See God expounding himself to the Prophet, chap.18.7,9. and see the like manner of speech, Exod.8.5. Most absurd, and ridiculous, therefore are those Popish Parasites, that out of these words would bring the Popes power of setting up, and pulling down, of Kings and Princes, and disposing of their Kingdoms and Crowns, at his pleasure: a lively character of that sinful cast-away creature, as the Apostle styles him, that should lift up himself above every one that is called God, 2 Thess.2.4. It was great pity that poor Jeremy had not some one of them about him, to acquaint them with this his power, to root out, and to pull down] There is a nearness of sound between these two in the original, which might be imitated in our English, if it were rendred, to pluck up, (to the word properly signifieth, and is so rendred, chap.31.12.) and to pull down: there is in the one, a metaphor taken from husbandry; from architecture in the other, as by their opposites, in the latter end of the verse appeareth. See chap.45.4. These terms of destruction seem to be ranked in the first row, because they were to take up the first place, in his prophesying. See v.12,16.

to plant] So Psa.44.2. and 80.8.

V.11. Moreover the word of the Lord came unto me, saying] This seems at the same time, in the same vision, to have been represented unto the Prophet, as well the Almond-tree rod, as also, the boiling caldron, v.13. and both at the time of his first calling unto this employment. Heb. And (as Esay 8.1.) a word of the Lord was to me, as v.2,3. So Chap.2.1.

Jeremiah, what seest thou?] This question God moveth to him, to fix him up the rather to attend unto, and take special notice of that that was represented unto him; which otherwise it may be, he would have the less regarded. So Amos 7.8. and 8.2. Zach.4.2. and 5.1.

And I said, I see a rod of an Almond-tree] I see (to wit, in vision; as Esay 6.1.) a rod (as it is rendred, Gen.30.37.) or, a staff, (as Num.22.27.) of an almond-tree: a visible sign for confirmation of what was to be delivered; as Chap.19.10. Such a rod, or staff, in likelyhood, as was Aarons, with leaves at least, if not with blossoms, or almonds, upon it, as his had, Num.17.8. and such as the hoary-head is compared unto, Eccl.12.5. otherwise he could not so well have discerned it to be a rod, or staff of such a tree. Thus I rather conceive it to have been, then as some of the Jewish Doctours deem, without leaf, or blossom; in regard whereof, God should afterward say, that he had guessed well, wenting that that might have readily informed him of what tree it was: and that it may not seem uncouth, that a branch with leaves and blossoms upon it, should be termed a rod, or staff; we have elsewhere the like, in a place, as some think, alluding to this, where, as it is said, that violence is risen up to a rod, or staff; so that this rod, or staff hath blossomed: and the morning of vengeance is therefore come, that destruction is approaching, Ezek.7.10,11. a good comment upon this place. The old Latine rendreth it, fondly, a waking rod: which yet some Popish Writers are pleased to applaud; and one of ours, a watch-mans rod, as far as that, from the meaning of the word.

V.12. Then said the Lord unto me] Heb. And, as v.9.

Thou hast well seen] Heb. Thou hast done well to see: Thou hast seen aright, as, do well to play, for, play cunningly, or, skilfully, Esay 23.16. Psalm 33.3. Ezek.33.32. and, as to do well to be angry, for to be very angry, Jon.4.4,9.

for I will hasten my word to perform it] Heb. I am waking unto, or watching over my word to do it: the word implyeth two things, sedulity, and speed. So Psalm 127.1. Unlesse the Lord do keep the city, the warder waydeth, or watcheth, but in vain: and, blessed is the man that is watching at my gates daily, (that is, early there) waiting at the posts of my doors, Prov.7.37. and, a leopard shall watch over their cities, Chap.5.6. so Esay 29.20. the watches of iniquity, that is, such as pursue it eagerly & wish speed, as the words ασυλλη & σπευδ in Greek (which may not unfitly be deemed to come from this Hebrew shaked, as from the Greek λίκνος, the Latine lupus) imply either. So that the meaning is, that the Lord was busily contriving an heavy judgment, (resembled by a rod, or staff: as Esay 10.5.) which he would very speedily, very suddenly, bring upon his people. So Chap.44.27. and there is in the word an allusion to the Hebrew name of the Almond-tree, which in that language, hath thence its name: because it is wont to bud and blosſom, the earliest of any, as the Mulberry, the latest. See Plany, l.16.c.25. The like allusion to the name of the thing, in vision represented. See Amos 8.1,2. In imitation here of in that tale of Susanna, Daniel is fained to descant upon the Greek names of the trees there mentioned, v.54,55,58,59. whence, by some of the Ancients, it is well concluded, that the story was not written in Hebrew, where the words have no such consonance. See the gracious promise of God to his people, upon their return to him, contrary to the heavy doom here mentioned, and n enaced, Chap.31.27. But what was here threatned, for in part, performed, at the death of Josias, a losse beyond esteem; and after it suffered by the Egyptian King, that pilled and polled the Countrey of their wealth and treasure, 2 Kings 23.33, 35. and then by the Chaldeans, Syrians, Moabites, and Ammonites, all joyning together against them, to work their destruction, 2 Kings 24.2.

V.13. And the word of the Lord came unto me the second time, saying, What seest thou?] Heb. A word of the Lord was unto me the second time, saying: that is, a second word, or further speech, was God, in the same vision, at the same time, pleased to make to me, demanding again of me, what I saw? for there is no article here, in the Original: nor is the supply of any, needful. So also, v.11. nor is the pause between the second time, and saying; but between unto me, and the second time, to be joyned therefore with saying. Of the demand, see v.12. See also, Jon.3.1.

And I said, I see a Seething-pot] Heb. a pot blown up: and so made to boil, Job 41.20. Now this pot, thus seething, or boiling with fire under it, is a resemblance of Jerusalem, and of the grievous condition of the inhabitants thereof, which they should be in, during the siege of the City. Ezek.11.3,7. and 24.3,5. though some would have the analogy consist in the liquor boyling over, out of the pot; and the Inhabitants by violence, cast out of the City: but I suppose rather, the miseries sustained within it, here intended. See somewhat the like, Mic.3.3. Rev.16.9,11. And thus the people themselves seem to have understood this passage, when in derision, as pointing at this of Jeremy, they say, This City is the caldron, and we are the flesh, Ezek.11.3. Nor is it the flesh, but the liquor, wherein it is sod, that is wont in boyling to run over. Howbeit, by the pot some here understand, not the City of Jerusalem, but the Chaldean Army, that should come in like a seething-pot full of scalding water upon them, and run upon the City of Jerusalem only, but upon the whole Country of Judea: Not unlike to those vials, or vessels, that are said to be poured out upon several persons, and places, Rev.15.7. and 16.1,4,8,12,17. Yea, one proceedeth further, and would have it to be a deep hearth of fire, that the Assyrian, Chaldean, and other Asian Kings, with whom the Fire was esteemed a deity, and worshipped as a God, were wont to have carryed before them, and their Armies, when they went forth upon any expedition. Concerning which, divers Authors are by him produced: to which, others also might be added. See on Esay 33.14. But I conceive it much safer, to interpret Scripture by Scripture, and one Prophet by another, living especially together some part of their time; and and having reference, in likelyhood, the one of them, to that which had been delivered before by the other. That which moved these Interpreters to step aside here, shall hereafter be met with in its place.

and the face thereof was towards the North,] The words thus rendred, have no good coherence with the fore going branch; I see a seething-pot, and the face thereof was towards the North; a needless interthing-pot, and the face thereof was towards the North; a needless interjoyning the text: It would be rendred, as the Hebrew, word for word, yeelds it; I see a seething pot, and the face thereof towards the North, or, with the face of it Northward; and, for, with; as the North, or, with the face of it Northward; and, for, with; as Exod.1.5. Neh.12.42. Chap.2.37. Howbeit, in the last words there is a kind of redundancy in the text; for it is, as if it were said; from the face of Northward, or, toward to Northward: Much the like is, 1 Chr.26.17. Psal.9.17. Amos 4.3. Now by the face of the pot, some of the Jewish Doctors understand the mouth of the pot; but that simply considered, cannot so fitly be here meant; for the mouth of a pot standing on the fire, looketh plumb upward, not to this side, or that side, as did the mouth of the bases on which the lavers were set, 1 Kin.7.31. Other of them therefore by the face, would have meant, that side of the pot on which it hath a lip or notch, or the like; for the more convenient pouring of ought out of it: another, the ranges, on which the pot is wont to be set, that fire may between them be kindled, and burn under it: of which, Psal.68.13. where the words would be read, though ye have lien between the ranges; as shullions oft, for warmth do, when the pot is away; and to this laſt I encline: yet adding withal, that the mouth of the ranges, or furnace either, rather than the ranges, or furnace it self, seems by face to be here designed: more plainly thus, the pot appears boiling; there must be fire under it to make it boyl; this fire, in likelyhood, contained within some range, or furnace; that range, or furnace, must on the one side, at least, have an open passage, whereby to put fuel in, for the feeding of the fire; this open place, is most fitly termed, the face of the furnace; and why not of the pot also, set upon it, and so fastned to it, that it might well seem one with it, I see not; and this looked northward, because from thence they were to come, that should kindle the fire under this pot, and so set it on seething: so v.14. and this taketh away the difficulty, that made those Interpreters interpret this pot, not of Jerusalem, but of the Chaldeans.

V.14. Then the Lord said unto me] Acquainting me with the meaning of this apparition; as before, v.12.

Out of the North an evil shall break forth upon all the Inhabitants of the land,] Out of the North; that is, from Chaldea, and Babylon, situate North from Jerusalem, Chap.4.6. & 6.1. Ezek. 26.7.

shall break forth] Heb. shall be opened, or let loose; as Esa. 51. 14. Thus wicked persons, though never so powerful, yet are kept under restraint, as in bands, until God pleaſe to let them loose for the punishment of others, as bad, it may be, or worse, than themselves, Rev.7.1,3. & 9.14.15.

of the land] Or, of this land; for that is the land here pointed at, in ch.25.9. though it be true, that God gave the whole earth, or world, in those days and parts commonly known, into the hands of the Chaldean King, who did grievously, in all parts, oppresse it, ch.27.6. Esa. 14.16,17.

V.15. For lo I will call all the families of the Kingdoms of the North, saith the Lord,] Heb. Lo I calling, or am calling, (See Esa.65.17.) to all the families of the Kingdoms Northward; that is, I am, by a secret, but efficacious act, and passage of providence, so disposing of things, that all those of several Countries, in the Northern parts, under the command of the King of Babylon, shall come together with him, and be subservient unto him, in the subduing, and destroying of this city, and country. See chap.5.15. & 6.22. & 10.22. & 15.9,16. for that is the manner of Gods call here spoken of. See Esa.46.11. & 48.13. Zeph. 1.7.

families] That is, countries, or people of divers countries. See on Ch.3.18.

and they shall come] At my call; for they cannot but come, whom God so calleth, Esay 7.18,19. and 40.26. and 48.13.

and set every one his throne, at the entring of the gates of Jerusalem, and against the walls of it, round about, and against all the cities of Judah.] The end of their coming, to besee, and surprise the cities of Judah, and Jerusalem it self. See Chap.52. 4,5.

set] Heb. give; as ch.6.27.

every one] Heb. a man; as ch.6.3.

at the entring of the gates] Heb. at the opening of the gates: the word is used, sometime, for the door, or, wicket, that in great gates standeth open oft-times, when the double leaves are shut: sometime, for the porch, or entry, before a gate; as ch.26.10. sometime, for the way that lyeth before it, and leadeth to it; as Gen.38.14. Judg.9. 35. 2 Kin.7.3. See ch.43.9. and so it is here to be taken: the gates being usually the places, against which Besiegers, and Assailants, are wont to pitch, as well to restrain egresse, as to make their assaults, Judg.9.52. See Esa.22.7. There is another sitting of them, not at, but in the gates of Jerusalem, now surprised and taken, part of it; mentioned, ch.39.3. which some, amiss, confound with this. The particle at, is wanting here; as also, Gen.19.11. & 43.19.

against all the walls of it round about] Or, upon, as some; as v.14, but here, against, rather; because the siege, rather than the surprisal, is here intended, and the strictness of it intimated. See ch.4.16,17. & 5.6. & 6.22,23.

V.16. And I will utter my judgment against them,] Or, pass sentence, or, give judgment upon them; as it is elsewhere better rendred, chap. 39.5. This some expound of a verbal, or vocal denunciation of judgments, by Huldah, Jeremy, Ezekiel, Zephany, Uriah, and others. But it seems rather to import an efficacious, and actual doom, that God would in his own appointed time, pass upon them, and put in execution, by the Chaldeans. See the use of the phrase, chap.4.12. & 39.5.

touching all their wickednesse] Or, for all their wickednesse; as chap. 33.5.

who have forsaken me] Or, because they have forsaken me: so is the relative used, 1 Kin.15.13. ch.13.25. See ch.17.13. & 19.4. or, whereby they have forsaken me; as Deu.28.20. See Esa.1.4. & 65.11. ch.7.5. & 16.11. & 22.9.

and burnt incense unto other gods,] Or, to strange gods, chap. 7.9,18. & 19.4,13. one part of worship put for the whole; as Esa. 65.3.

and have worshipped the works of their own hands.] Idols of their own making, Esa.2.8,20. ch.16.20. and 32.20.

V.17. Thou therefore gird up thy loins,] The Lord having acquainted the Prophet with the subject matter of his message, enough to dishearten and discourage one of more years, and (it may be) of better parts, and more native boldness of spirit, than he, as yet, had; doth now, notwithstanding, impose the charge upon him, enjoyneth him to go readily, and speedily, about it; and withal, prom seth to furnish him, with an abundant sufficiency of invincible strength, and impregnable protection, against all power whatsoever, that should by any be raised against him.

Thou therefore] Heb. And thou: So chap. 6.11. and 7. 16.

gird up thy loins,] Prepare thy self for thine employment; addresse thy self manfully, and readily thereunto: A proverbial form of speech, borrowed from the practice of those, who wearing side, and sweeping garments, as in those parts they much did, and do still, are wont to truss them up, and gird them unto them, when they are about to undertake some journey, or to set upon some weighty, yea, or but ordinary work, Exod.12.11. 1 Kings.18.46. 2 King.4.29. & 9.1. Job 38.3. & 40.1. Prov.31.17. Luk.12.35. 1 Peter 1.13.

and arise,] This word doth not imply, either any certain posture, at the present, of the party spoken to, or import an alteration thereof, but present, of the party spoken to, or import an alteration thereof, but requireth onely a present and speedy addresse unto the employment enjoyned, setting all other affairs and employments aside. So chap. 13.4,6. Jon.1.2.

and speak unto them all that I command thee;] Heb. shall command thee, or, shall give thee in charge. See v.7.

be not dismaid at their faces] Or, before them, or, at their presence. See on v.8. lest I confound thee before them.] Or, lest I break thee to pieces: the word is the very same with the former; and it signifieth, sometime, to dismay, or affright; as Job 7.14. & 31.34. Hab.2.17. and, to be dismayed, or affrighted; as Deut.1.21. & 31.8. Josh.1.9. chap.17. 18. sometime, to break in pieces; as Esa.9.4. and, to be broken in pieces; as Esa.8.9. chap.50.2,36. and in this latter notion, it may well here be taken. Howsoever, it is, as if God had said, Be not afraid of them, so as to forbear telling them out of fear, what I bid thee, lest I fright thee in a worse manner, than they are able to do, so as utterly to destroy thee. See Matt.10.28. Luk.12.4,5. So dangerous a matter is it, either for fear, or favour, to conceal Gods errand that he sendeth us on, and not to dare, or not to do our duty, 1 Cor. 9.16.

V.18. For behold,] Heb. And I, lo; or, As for me, lo; As if he had said, Do thou thy duty; do as I bid thee; and for my part, assure thy self, that I will not fail to make good, what I do by promise engage my self for, unto thee. See the like syntax, Gen.6.17. 1 Chr.28.2. Esa.65.1.

I have made thee this day] Heb. given thee; as v.5,15. for the word of giving, is, in Hebrew, of a very large extent. See ch.49.15. Ezek. 3.17. & 12.6.

a defenced city] Heb. for a city of defence; as Psa.108.10. ch.34.7. that is, to be like a city strongly built, and firmly fenced, supported for the structure of it, not with timber, but with iron columns; and environed, not with stone, but with steel wals. See the like Esa.50.7. ch.6.27. & 15.20. Ezek.3.8,9.

and an iron pillar] Heb. for a pillar of iron: the word pillar, here used an iron pillar] Heb. for a pillar of iron: the word pillar, here used, hath in it a notion of standing upright, firm, and fast, 2 Kin.11. 14. and iron is used commonly to denote strength: hence, sprars of iron, 1 Sam.14.14. and iron is used commonly to denote strength: hence, sprars of iron, Job 40.18. and bars of iron, Psa.107.16. and, a staff, or, sceptre of iron, Psal.

Pſal.2.9. and, an horn of iron, Mic.4.13. and, a yoke of iron, Deut.28. 48.ch.28.14.

and braſon walls] Heb. for walls of braſs, or fleel; as the word is oft taken; Pſal. 18.34. chap. 15.12,20. So Zach.6.1. hills of ſuch.

againſt the whole land] There is the generality of his charge; the land, for the inhabitants of it in general, ver.14.

againſt the Kings of Judah, againſt the Princes thereof, againſt the Prieſts thereof, and againſt the people of the land.] Heb. unto the Kings of Judah, unto the Princes thereof, unto the Prieſts thereof, and unto the people of the land; and ſo it hath reference to the former reſemblances, I will make thee ſuch, or have made thee ſuch, as I have ſaid to all theſe; and the Lord ſub-joyneth this particular enumeration, to the former compriſal of them, in groſs; partly, thereby to foreſhew him, what he was to expect, to wit, that all ſorts, and degrees, would be ſure to oppoſe him, and band together againſt him; (as indeed they did, ch.11.19,21. & 20.2. & 26.8. & 36.26. & 38.4.) and partly, to aſſure him, that though they ſhould all joyn in one againſt him, yet he ſhould prove too hard for them; they ſhould no more be able to prevail againſt him, than as if they ſhould puſh at an iron pillar, or a ſteel wall. See our Saviours words to his, Luk.21. 17,18.

V.19. And they ſhall fight againſt thee; but they ſhall not prevail againſt thee:] Heb. they ſhall war upon thee, or, againſt thee; as Jud.20. 11. The text may well be thus rendred, For though they fight with thee, or wage war againſt thee, they ſhall not prevail againſt thee, or, with thee. Heb. They ſhall not be able to prevail over thee, or, againſt thee. So Eſa.16.12. Hoſea 13.4. The like ſyntax, ſee Eſa. 50.2. & 58.9. Joh 13.25. And ſee the like promiſe repeated, chap. 15.20. So Pſal. 129.2. Eſa. 7.1. Revel. 17.14. They ſhall not be able for all their plots, and practices, to take thy life away from thee; but thou ſhalt ſurvive, to ſee their ruine, chap. 20.10,11, & 26,24. & 39. 11,12.

for I am with thee, ſaith the Lord, to deliver thee.] And that is ſecurity ſufficient, though all other fail, and all forſake. See verſ.8. chap. 20.10. 2 Tim. 4.17,18. for if God be with us, who can be againſt us? They muſt prevail firſt againſt him, ere they can prevail againſt them, that withſtand, and oppoſe thoſe whom he ſtandeth by to back and protect, Exod.14.25. 2 Chr. 14.11. Act.5.39. Rom. 8, 31, 37.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. MOreover, the word of the Lord came to me, ſaying;] Whether this were the firſt Sermon, that the Prophet Jeremie did directly preach unto the people, is uncertain, though it be the firſt here upon record: for the main ſum, and ſubſtance, of thoſe things, in the former Chapter recorded, is moſt concerning the time and manner of his firſt calling to the office, and ſuch general inſtructions, that God was pleaſed then to give him concerning his carriage in it, and diſcharge of it: which was yet to be divulged by him, to procure credit and authority, unto what he was to deliver, as from God, and in his name, to his people. But in this, according as by God, he was expreſly enjoyned, verſ. 2. he directeth his ſpeech unto the whole body of the State, in the name, and as in the perſon of God, debating the caſe, and expoſtulating with them; minding them of his mercies, and favours ſhewed them, taxing them for their baſe and unworthy carriage toward him, convincing them of their extream folly and madneſs, in bringing miſchief and miſery upon themſelves; and forewarning them of the ſorry ſucceſs they ſhould find, by relying on ſuch, as would not be able to relieve them. For the words of this verſe, ſee Chap. 1.11.

V.2. Go, and cry in the ears of Jeruſalem, ſaying,] Go. Heb. to go, or going; as Eſa.20.2. an enterchange, as ſome, of the infinitive, for the imperative; or, as others, a defect of the imperative; which more fully ſhould be, going go, that is, be ſure thou go. See on Eſa. 59.13. So ch.3.12. & 19.1.

Cry] Cry aloud; as Eſa.58.1. or, proclaim; as Eſa.61.2.

in the ears] In the hearing; as Eſa.5.9. & 22.14.

of Jeruſalem] The inhabitants thereof; as Eſa. 1.27, there, leaving Anathoth, the place of his former abode, he was now to reſide, and to preach unto them. See Chap. 1.1. and 37.12.

Thus ſaith the Lord;] The Prophets ordinary preface, ſhewing whoſe meſſage they came with. So Eſa.5.5,1. Ch.43.

I remember thee] Heb. unto thee, or, for thee; Whence ariſe various opinions, concerning the end of Gods repetition, and mentioning of the ancient matters, that here he mindeth them of; for ſome would have it to be for this end, that thereby they might be put in hope of being received again into favour with him, notwithſtanding their diſloyal, and unworthy carriages; as chap. 3.1. he retaining ſtill in his mind, his kind and loving affection to them, at firſt; and they ſuppoſe therefore ſome emphaſis to be in the particle here uſed; as the like may ſeem to be in that, Neh. 13.23. this alſo remember for me: but the very ſame form of ſpeaking is found elſewhere uſed, where no matter of favour is intended; as Pſal. 137.7. and not far from the former place, Neh. 13.29. where our Tranſlators, not amiſs ſuppoſing the particle to be a meer expletive, render the places; Remember me concerning this; and, Remember them; and, Remember the children of Edom: the likelyeſt place, that can be produced, ſeems that, Lev.25.45. I will for them remember the covenant of their anceſtors: rendred there, for their ſake: as by ſome, for thy ſake, here. But others ſuppoſe, that Gods main end herein, is to aggravate their unthankfulneſs, and to amplifie the baineouſneſs of their ſin, who had carried themſelves ſo vilely, and unworthily, towards him, who had ſhewed ſo much kindneſs, and love, unto them. So Eſa.63.7.9. Amos 2.9,11. Mic.6.3,5. And following this, (which I rather encline to) the verb may be taken in a notion of mentioning, or minding another of ſomewhat; in which ſenſe the paſſive form is very frequently found uſed: and then, if the particle be deemed an expletive, the text may be rendred; I will mind thee of the kindneſs of thy youth; as in that former place of Nehemy; and ſo Pſal. 136. 23. or, if it ſeem to be of ſome force, I mention unto thee the kindneſs of thy youth: I deſire to put thee in mind of what love and affection I ſhewed, when I firſt entred into covenant with thee, in the very beginning of thy being a people, what time thou waſt, as yet, but a yong ſtate.

the kindneſs of thy youth, the love of thine eſpouſals,] How theſe words, which in our Verſion hang over-looſly, may be aptly kept knit unto the reſt of the context, hath already been ſhewed. Some refer both branches to the people, as intimating their affection, and diſpoſition to God at firſt: and ſo the words ſhould be read; I remember thee, for the kindneſs of thy youth, and the love of thine eſpouſals: as Mal. 2.5. but that, the main tenour of the ſtory of thoſe times controlleth. See Deut. 9.6,24. Eſa. 48.8. Others, divide them between God, and the people, referring the former to him, the latter to them: but they ſever things that are not to be disjoyned. They onely expound the text aright, that aſcribe both unto God: yet not as yet fling ſtill ſo to affect them, as ſome would have it, reading them thus; I remember thee with the love of thy youth, and the love of thine eſpouſals; like that, Pſal. 106.4. but as minding them onely of what love and kindneſs he then had ſhewed them.

the kindneſs of thy youth] Or, thy child-hood; as it is rendred, Gen. 8.21. but here, rather, youth; becauſe ſpeech is here of this people, as of a damoſel fit for eſpouſal; the kindneſs that I ſhewed thee coming out of Egypt: that is the time that is ſo oft termed, ſometime, the birth, ſometime, the youth of this people. See Eſa. 44.2. & 46.3. & 54.6. Ezek.16.43,60. Hoſ.2.3,15.

the love of thine eſpouſals,] The word here uſed, is no where elſe found; but cometh from a term, that ſignifieth a ſpouſe, or a bride, verſ. 32. the love that I bare and ſhewed unto thee, when I entred into a ſolemn covenant with thee, and ſo eſpouſed thee to my ſelf, Exod. 19.5,6,8. & 24.7,8. Deut. 4.20,23,24. & 5.2. & 26. 16,17. & 29.10,15. Chap. 31.31,32. Ezek.16.8,60. Hoſ.2. 19,20.

when thou wenteſt after me in the wilderneſs, in a land that was not ſown] Heb. thy going after me: whence ſome would expound it, of her; that is, this peoples pious affection and diſpoſition towards God, in being content to follow his conduct, and keeping cloſe to him, in that tedious and uncouth paſſage thorow the waſte Wilderneſs: To which purpoſe, alſo, is that alleaged, Deut. 32.12. and there was no ſtrange god with him: but this, as was before ſaid, the ſtory it ſelf refelleth, ſhewing in what manner, with murmuring, and repining, they there went after him, and how even there they went on whoring after idols. See Pſal. 106.7,32. Amos 5.25,26. As for that of Moſes, it intimates only, that God had no coadjutor in the conduct of them, not that they worſhipped no other god, either with him, or in his ſtead. See Eſa. 43.12. The words in our Verſion are not amiſs rendred; and for better, than as ſome, how thou wenteſt after me; as Lam. 1.9. there is in the text only a defect of the particle frequently omitted; expreſſed, Deut. 4.22. & 6.7. but omitted, 1 Sam.15.7. & 27.8. & 29.6. the goodneſs and kindneſs is intended, that God ſhewed, in conducting, ſafeguarding, feeding, and furniſhing them with all neceſſaries, in that wilde and waſte place, where there was no tillage, nor ſuſtenance conſequently, to be had, for the maintenance of mans life. See v.6. Num. 20.5. Deu.8.15,& 29.5,6. & 32.10,12.

V.3. Iſrael was holineſs unto the Lord;] Conſecrated and dedicated to God, as his peculiar, Exod.19.5,6. Pſal. 114.2. chap. 31. 44. Some ſuppoſe an alluſion here, as Zach.14.20. to the inſcription on the High-Priests frontlet, Exo.39.30. but the term is of larger extent; and reacheth unto any time, perſon, place, or ought elſe, that is conſecrated, and ſet apart for holy uſes, or for Gods ſervice, as in a more ſpecial manner his. So it is uſed, Exod. 31.15. Lev.21.7. & 27.14,23. Eſa. 23.18. in all which places, and in the like ſpeeches, holineſs is put for holy: the abſtract for the concrete; and ſo here.

and the firſt-fruits of his encreaſe:] The and, here, would be expunged; for it is not in the text, and it makes the reading ambiguous: for the words ſo read, may bear this ſenſe, that the firſt-fruits of Iſraels encreaſe, as well as himſelf, were holineſs to the Lord: which though a truth, yet is not the meaning of the words here. It would rather be be read, either by way of apposition, ſimply, the firſt fruits of his increaſe: or (the note of ſimilitude being inſerted; as Eſa.62.5. & 66.3.) as, the firſt fruits of his encreaſe: which, as other the holy things, being ſet apart for God, were not to be eaten by ſtrangers, Exod.22.29, 30. & 34.26. Lev.22.10. Num.15,19,21. Deu.26.2,10. Such are all Gods people, his firſt-fruits, Jam.1.18. his firſt born, Exo. 4.22. Heb. 12.23. See Hoſ.9.10.

all that devour them ſhall offend, evil ſhall come upon them, ſaith the Lord.] The words thus rendred, imply nothing leſs, than that which is here intimated, and intended. For the deſire and ſcope of this paſſage, is not to ſhew how the caſe ſtood now with them; but how, in former times, it had: and the words therefore would be rendred, as the former branch was, in the time paſt, all that devoured them, treſpaſſed; contracted guilt, made themſelves guilty of a treſpaſs aſſumed; and liable to judgment, Exod. 4.23. as thoſe did, that gainſt God, and liable to judgment, Exod. 4.23. as thoſe did, that ſinne or devoured ought that was holy, Lev. 5.15. Prov.20.25. evil befel them: none that then wronged them, eſcaped without ſome exemplary puniſhment, Exod. 17.8,14. Num. 21.23,34,33. 35. & 25.17,18. & 31.2. Pſal. 105.14,15. & 106.11. And there is in the words thus rendred, a ſecret intimation, that the caſe was now altered, it was otherwiſe now with them; ſtrangers now prey'd upon them, and devoured them, at pleaſure, as if they were ſome profane, and common thing, that any one might, without guilt, or fear of control, feed upon, might lawfully enough be dealing with, verſ.14.16. chap.12.10. & 50.7. See Eſa.43.28. & 47.6.

V.4. Hear ye the word of the Lord, O houſe of Jacob, and all the Families of the houſe of Iſrael.] An introduction uſual with the Prophets, requiring due attention to what they delivered, as not their own word, but the Lords. So Eſa. 1.10. & 38.14. & 66.5. ch.7.2. & 17.19. & 19.2. Hoſ.4.1. Jacob and Iſrael, here, one and the ſame; as Eſa.42.24. & 43.1. and, the houſe of Jacob, and of Iſrael, for his poſterity; as Eſa. 2.5. & 8.7. and all the Families thereof, for, all the twelve Tribes; as ch.31.1.

V.5. Thus ſaith the Lord; what iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me,] God having before minded them, what kindneſs he had, at firſt, ſhewed unto them, and how chary he had been of them; that the equity of his proceedings may the more cleerly appear, if he deal otherwiſe now with them; than formerly he had done, doth here challenge them, to ſhew wherein he had wronged them, or broken covenants with them, or given any juſt occaſion to their fore-fathers to depart from him, and leave him, as they had done. See the like, Eſa. 1.2,3,18. & 5.3. Mic. 6.3,4. verſ.31.

and have walked after vanity,] That is, after idols, moſt vain things, that cannot avail them ought, being nothing, but meer vanity: the abſtract, for the concretes; as Eccl.1.2. & 12.8. as noting their extream folly, in forſaking God, to follow ſuch, 1 Sam.12.20,21. Eſa.41.29. & 44.9. chap.1.16. & 8.19. & 10.15. See 2 Kin. 17.15. So Rom. 1.21.

and are become vain.] Senſleſs & fottiſh, in their counſels and courſes; like their idols whom they ſerve, Pſal.115.8. Jon. 2.8. Rom.1. 21,22. The words would be rendred, what iniquity did your Fathers find in me, that they went far away from me, and walked after vanity, and became vain; that it have the better coherence with what followeth.

V.6. Neither ſaid they; where is the Lord that brought us up out of the land of Egypt?] They did not ſo much as once think thus with themſelves; as chap.5.24. They regarded not to mind him, or make enquiry after him, who had done ſo much for them, verſ. 8. Pſal.14.2. The deliverance of them out of Egypt, is moſt frequently mentioned, as one of the moſt remarkable works, that was ever done for any people; and ſuch, as could not but moſt deeply, and firmly engage, and oblige both them, and their poſterity, to ſerve him faithfully and conſtantly, who had manifeſted, and magnified, as well his might, as his mercy, in working ſo great and ſtrange a work for them, and to cleave cloſe unto him for ever. See Exo.20.2. Lev.25.38. Pſal.81.10. Eſa. 63.9,11,13. Hoſ.13.4. Mic. 6.4.

brought us up out of] Heb. made us to aſcend; as Pſa.135.7.ſo reſpecting the ſituation of that place, lying low, and depreſſed; ſo ſome. Or, that brought us forth, ſimply, without any ſpecial reference unto aſcent, or deſcent; as the word is oft uſed, Ezek.27.22. clſ. 50.9. See Eſa.52.4.

that led us thorow the wilderneſs,] See verſ.2. Exo.13.21,22. Num. 20.33.

thorow a land of deſerts, and of pits,] Heb. a land of waſtneſs; as chap.50.12. & 51.43. and of pits; as chap.18.20,22. Prov. 22.14. & 23.27. a place deſtitute of all neceſſaries, verſ.2. and full of dangerous paſſages: yet, the word pit is uſed oft for the grave, Pſa. 30.3. & 103.4. which may here alſo be alluded unto; as if it were ſaid, a place where nothing but death (for want of food) and burial, could be expected. See Exod.14.9,10.

thorow a land of drought] Where no water was to be had, but what by miracle God afforded them, Exo.16.3. & 17.3. Num.20.2,5. Deu. 8.15.

and of the ſhadow of death,] A land wherein they were expoſed to dangers, daily threatning death; as Pſal. 23.4. Luke 1.79. See Deut. 8.15. & 32.10. In the word, ſhadow of death, or deadly ſhade, there is alluſion, as ſome think, unto ſuch paſſages between hilly groves, in deſert places, ſo over-ſpread, and over-ſhadowed, with boughs of trees, that they ſtrike an horrour and dread into ſuch as are to paſs thorow them; the rather, in regard of ſuch harmful creatures, as may lye lurking there, and cannot eaſily be deſcried, nor avoided, when diſcovered: ſuch apprehenſions, ſo powerfully working many times upon men, that they ſeem dead, even before they die. Others, ſuppoſe an alluſion to the ſhadow of ſome trees, deemed dangerous and deadly, not to plants onely, that grow neer unto them, (ſee Plin.l.17.c.12.) but to men, or beaſts, eſpecially, that lie and ſleep under them, l.ſiny, l.16.c.10. Plutarch, in his Sympoſiacks, l.3.c.10. Others, to that cloudineſs, that riſeth before mens eyes, as over-ſhadowing their ſight, when they tio drawing on to departure; or, to the ſtate of death it ſelf, that is compared to darkneſs, and conveyeth the deceaſed to a place of obſcurity and darkneſs, Job 30.21,22. where the phraſe it ſelf is uſed; a ſhade of death, for, a deadly ſhade, ſuch as death bringeth with it; as ſleep of death, for, deadly ſleep, ſuch as death caſts men into, Pſal. 13.3. See on Eſa.9.2.

thorow a land which no man paſſed thorow, and where no man dwelt] A land exceeraily deſolate, either thorow which none had formerly paſſed; much leſs made abode in, or affording neither ſit abode, nor convenient paſſage for any. So chap. 6.8. & 9.12.

V.7. And I brought you into a plentiful country,] Or, Yet I brought you; as Eſa.60.10. & 63.11. A change of the perſon; as Eſa.61.7. & 64.4. Heb. into a land of Carmel. See of the term, Eſa.35.15. and of the land of Canaan, Num. 13.27. Deut. 8.7,9. & 11.10, 12. and God ſpeaketh here, as if he were parlying with thoſe, that lived in thoſe times, and directing his ſpeech unto them. See verſ. 5,9. to eat the fruit thereof] To enjoy ſuch commodities, as it afforded. So Neh.9.36.

and the goodneſs thereof:] As Eſa.1.19.

but when ye entred, ye defiled my land, and made mine heritage an abomination.] Heb. and ye entred, and defiled my land. See the like ſyntax, Gen.14.14. Eſa.30.20. & 35.4. & 65.12. & 66.14.

defiled my land] By idolatries, and other wicked courſes, Pſa.78.58. & 106.38. ch.3.1. my land. So Lev.25.23. the land is mine, and ye are but ſojourners with me in it.

made mine heritage an abomination.] So horribly polluted that land, which I had aſſigned unto you for an inheritance, Pſal. 136.21, 22. or, as ſome, that was as dear unto me, and I was as chary of, as if it were mine inheritance, Deut. 12.12. that it became moſt abominable, (the abſtract, for the concrete; as Eſa. 1.13. & 41.24. So ch. 6.19. & 8.12.) that I could not but abhor it, Chap. 16.18.

V.8. The Prieſts ſaid not, where is the Lord?] They that ſhould have exhorted, and incited others, to mind me, and ſeek after me, did not at all mind me, or ſeek after me, themſelves. See verſ. 6.

and they that handled the law,] The Priests and Levites that ſhould ſo have done; did, for, ſhould have done: the Indicative form in a notion of duty; as the like, Eſa. 26.9. that ſhould have opened, and taught it to others, Deu. 33.10. Neh. 8.8. Mal. 2.7. Rom. 2.20.

knew me not] They were ignorant of me themſelves, whoſe office was to bring others to the knowledge of me, Hoſ. 4.6. Luke 11.52.

the Paſtors alſo tranſgreſſed againſt me,] That is, the Governours, both Civil, and Eccleſiaſtical, ſay ſome; or, the Kings, and Princes: ſo the Jewiſh Commenters here expound it; they that ſhould be unto the people, as ſhepherds to the flock. See Eſa.44.28. & 56.11. ch.3. 15. & 12.10. the Princes dealt wickedly, as well as the Prieſts, 2 Chr. 36.12,14. ch.5.5.

and the Prophets propheſied by Baal,] They became Baals Prophets; they worſhipped idols themſelves, and taught the people ſo to do, 2 Kin.18.22.

and walked after things that do not profit.] Heb. went after ſuch things as will not profit; in cannot profit; ſo Job 15.3. Lam.4.17. that is, after idols, that could do them no good; as v.5, 11. 1 Sam. 12.21. Eſa.44.9,10. Hab.2.18. a defect both of antecedent, and relative; as Exo.23.20. 1 Chr.15.12. And when Prieſts, Princes, and Prophets, were all ſo corrupt, what was the ſtate of the people like to be? See chap.5.31.

V.9. Wherefore I will yet plead with you, ſaith the Lord; and with your childrens children will I plead.] This ſome underſtand of a verbal pleading; and expound it of a courſe that God intended to take ſtill from time to time, by his Prophets, to convince them of their ſinful & wicked courſes, as he had in former ages done, before he would proceed to execute judgment upon them, and that to render them the more inexcuſable, ſee ch.7.25. 2 Chr.36.14,15. Others, underſtand it of a real pleading; as Pſal. 74.22. Eſa. 51.22. by inflicting of evils, and execution of judgement: he would further puniſh them, as he had done their fathers before them, ſince that they trode in their steps, Chap.7.26. yea, not them alone, but their posterity also, either the hainousness of their sins deserving no less, Exod. 20. 5. & 34.7. or fore-seeing that their issue would walk the same way, that they did; as Moses (saith the Rabbine) foresaw, what the people would do after his decease, Deut. 31. 29. especially being trained up so, as by their parents they were, ch. 7.18. But the former I conceive the more probable, and more proper sense of the place, especially, if it be applied to Gods present debate with his people, which, I suppose, it doth alone concern; for it seemeth to me, as a passage from that former expostulation, that God had before with them, concerning their fathers, what reason they had to leave him, and desert his service; or what occasion he had given them so to do, vers. 5. unto a new debate with them, upon another ground, vers. 10. which he desireth may remain upon record unto Posterity, to convince them also of the like extream folly, if they follow their impiety. So that it is, as if he had said, I have argued the case with your fore-fathers already, let me debate the matter a little further with you; and let your posterity also consider well what I now say. See Deut. 31. 19, 31. and so is the same word afterward used, for debating the case or pleading, v. 29.

V. 10. For pass over the Iles of Chittim, and see; and send unto Kedar, and consider diligently, and see if there be such a thing.] A new argument of debate God here entreth upon with his people: wherein he challengeth them to produce any people, in any part of the world, then commonly known, that had dealt with their idols, as they had done with him: the Heathen were more constant and faithful to their idols, than they had been to the true God. See the like argument, Mal. 3. 8.

pass over] Or, go over to; as Esay 8. 8. because they were to pass the Sea unto those parts. Howbeit, the meaning is not, that they should either make some set journey, or send some messengers on purpose, to make diligent enquiry, how things there were; but that they should consider seriously what concerning them they knew, by report, or otherwise; and withal intimating, that if they should either by journeying themselves, or by diligent enquiry otherwise, endeavour to ensoin themselves herein, they would find it to be so as he said. See the like, Chap. 7. 12. Amos 6. 2.

the Iles of Chittim] The Iles, or lands; as Esay 20.6. & 41. 1. chap 47. 1. either situate in the mid-land sea, or coasting on the other side of it more Northward. See of Chittim, on Esay 23. 1. to the Iles; as to Kedar: a defect of the particle with either; as 1 Kin. 3. 15.

Kedar] Arabia, that lay Southward from Judea. See Esay 21. 16. & 60. 4. as if he had said, Go which way ye will, to any country, North, or South: Yet some suppose that by the Chittim, are understood, the more civil people; such as were the Greeks and Macedonians; by the Kedarens, people less civil, and more savage, as those Kedarens were, having no certain place of constant abode, See chap. 49.29. For the Rabbines doat and dally here after their wonted manner, when they tell us, that these two Nations are here mentioned, because the one worshipped the water, and the other the fire; and yet would not these leave worshipping the fire, though they saw that the water put out the fire.

if there be such a thing] Heb. if; or, whether there have been such a thing as this: a defect of the antecedent; as Judg. 19. 30. and it would be in the time past, because of that which followeth, vers. 11.

V. 11. Hath a nation changed their gods?] Or, whether any nation have changed their gods? Whether the heathen keep not constant to their country idols. See 2 Kings 17. 29, 33. Mic. 4. 5.

which are yet no gods:] Heb. and they no gods; but meer counterfeit ones, idols, ch. 16. 20. Esa. 37. 19. Gal. 4. 8. and, for, yet; as Esa. 60. 10. & 63. 11. So vers. 21.

but my people have changed their glory, for that which doth not profit.] Heb. and; as ch. 2. 7. But my people have not onely changed, but made a most foolish exchange; they have put away, and parted with the true God, who was their glory, Psal. 106. 20. of whom they had good, and great cause to glory that they had such a God, Psal. 44. 8. & 148. 14. & 149. 2. and who made them truly glorious, Deut. 4. 6—8. Psal. 149. 4. Esa. 11. 10. & 60. 3. for that which they had just cause to be ashamed of, vers. 26. for a thing of no worth, for that which could do them no good, could stand them in no stead. See before on vers. 8.

V. 12. Be astonished, O heavens, at this, and be horribly afraid, be ye very desolate, saith the Lord.] Some by the heavens, here, would understand the Angels, as called upon to stand amazed at the extream folly, and strange impiety of Gods people. But the celestial bodies seem rather spoken to, by a rhetorical elegancy, and form of poetical and pathetical language, oft used in Scripture; as Deu. 32. 1. Esa. 1. 2. as implying that their courses were such, as might justly fill the whole world with astonishment; and that the very sensless creatures, the heavens especially, those glorious ones, were they apprehensive of such things, would abhor them, be agast at them, and tremble to think what would be the end and issue of them. So rather, then, as some of the Jewish Doctors, who following the Chaldee, would have the meaning to be, as if the heavens were called upon, to bewail and lament the desolation of the land, that was to be, the destruction of the city, and the subversion of the Sanctuary.

be horribly afraid] Or, agast, Ezek. 27. 35. & 32. 10. it signifieth properly such a disturbance, as a strange storm and tempest is wont to affect those with, that are surprised with it: it hath some affinity also with the word, that signifieth, hair, and hairy, or rough: whereof, see on Esa. 34. 14. and may imply such an horrour, as some horrid occurrent is wont to produce; such as would make ones hair, as we use to say, stand an end.

be very desolate] Or, utterly dryed up, and exhaulted; as Esa. 19. 5, 6. withdraw your lustre, lose your light, be clouded, and darkened; as if you were in some desolate estate, in some dismal condition. See Esa. 13. 10, 33. & 24. 23. Ezek. 32. 7, 8. but especially, Mat. 27. 45. where the sun, that glorious light, seemed to be abashed, amazed, and agast, at that transcendent and matchless impiety committed, in putting of the glorious Lord of life, to an ignominious and accursed death, Act. 3. 15. 1 Cor. 2. 8. Gal. 3. 13.

V. 13. For my people have committed two evils] Two grand, two most notorious evils.

they have forsaken me the fountain of waters,] A well-spring of all manner of good, yeelding water, that runneth constantly, and never faileth, and one that was such inceallantly unto them, while they continued loyal, and dutiful to him, Psa. 36. 9. ch. 17. 13. & 18. 14. Esh. 4. 14. & 7. 38. Rev. 22. 1. Of the word, see on chap. 6. 7. it is a metaphor taken from waters, arising, and issuing from a spring, that are wont to hold out all the year long, Esa. 58. 11. and are, in Hebrew, therefore termed, living waters, Gen. 26. 19. opposed to such waters, as proceed only from some excess of rain, as land-floods that, shooting down from the hills, run, with a violent torrent, in the Winter time; but in the heat of Summer, are dryed up, and fail, Job 6. 15—20.

and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water.] So it is not amiss rendred the more distinctly to design that second evil of the twain, before-mentioned; as the leaving of God all-sufficient, the ever-living, and inceallantly flowing fountain of all good, Jam. 1. 17. to the betaking of themselves to sorry base idols, unable to do them the least good, that is, to give them so much as a drop of water, when they want it, chap. 14. 22. Zach. 10. 1, 2. Howbeit, the words run, in the Hebrew, to hew them out cisterns; as the words are rendred, Deut. 6. 11. & Neh. 9. 25. to dig them wells; as if one having his habitation neer a fair and cleer spring, affording plenty of water all the year long, should abandon the place, upon some groundless dislike, and in a fond humour go and seat himself elsewhere, where if he will have water, he must dig for it; and if by digging, he cannot find it, he must dig pits, to keep what cometh by rain, occasionally otherwise: and that which is subjoyned, and makes his condition the worse, these wels, or pits, when he hath digged them, prove faulty; so as they are not able to keep what is committed to them, but it foaketh all away, leaving nothing behind but mire and mud, which usually also breedeth vermin, and noysom savours withall.

broken cisterns] Or, pits: it seemes to have been a proverbial form of speech, like that, wells without water, 2 Peter 2. 17.

that can hold no water] Heb. that will not hold water; and so we use to say of a cloven dish, or a broken pitcher; it will not hold water: when our meaning is, it cannot: so ver. 8. that will not profit, for, that cannot profit. Such broken pits are all idols, unable to afford any relief, or refreshing, unto those, that rely on them, Esa. 46. 7. and not idols alone, but all outward stays whatsoever, that men, relinquishing God, the only sure stay, trust unto, and so make idols of them, chap. 17. 5. wherein also this people were faulty, resting sometime upon Asshur, and sometime upon Egypt, that proved broken canes to them, vers. 18. 36. See Esa. 30. 1, 5. & 36. 6.

V. 14. Is Israel a servant? is he an home-bred slave?] The Lord proceedeth to shew what condition this people had cast themselves into, by forsaking of him, and putting themselves under the protection of others, unable to do ought for them.

Is Israel a servant?] Some take this to be spoken, as if God should demand of them, whether he had used Israel, as a slave, and not rather as a son, Deu. 8. 5. & 32. 6. so it should be, as that afterward, vers. 31. Others, rather referring it, to his evil entreaty, and base usage by others; Is he a slave, that he is so slavishly used? like that, chap. 49. 1. and the Jewish Doctors here not unfitly add; How cometh it to pass, that he who was in so great respect and reckoning with God, as was related, vers. 2, 3. that he accounted him, as his first-born son, Exod. 4. 22. should now be left unto such a despicable condition, that every one should at pleasure, wrong him, and domineer over him, as if he were a common slave: Though herein they seem to be out of the way, in that they make this the demand, not of God, or the Prophet, but of Israel himself, or of the people, which God, by the Prophet, should return answer unto, vers. 17.

is he an home-born slave?] Such an one, as being born in his Lords, or Masters Family, of one that was his slave before, was, in that regard, a slave by birth, Exod. 21. 4. Lev. 22. 11. alluded to Psal. 116. 16. these were with the Latines called Verne. So whereas there were two sorts of slaves, slaves bought with money, and slaves born in the house, Gen. 17. 12, 23, 27. God seemeth to have here respect unto either; demanding, whether Israel were so impoverished, that by extream poverty he had been compelled to sell himself for a slave, Exo. 21. 7, 8. Lev. 25. 39, 47. or was born in the family, and under the dominion of them that thus tyrannized over him, as having in that regard, such interest in him, and power over him. Esa 26. 13.

why is he spoiled?] Heb. why is he for spoil? as c. 49. 22. Esa. 42. 24. what is the reason that stranger-s make a spoyl of him, as if they had a good right to, and interest in whatsoever he were possessed of, as the Lord or Owner hath in whatsoever goods, or estate, his slave hath. See 1 Kin. 20. 3, 5, 6.

V. 15. The young lions roared upon him, and yelled.] Or, young lions roar aloud over him. Heb. Over him young lions roar, give out their voice; as Psal. 18. 13. Amos 1. 2. & 3. 4. By young lions (of the term, see Esa. 30. 6.) are understood, the Kings of Syria, Assyria, and Chaldea; called lions, for their fierceness; and young lions, for their strength. See chap. 4. 7. & 50. 17. said to roar aloud over him; as a lion is wont to do upon his prey, or over his prey; either when he comes to seize on it, or is already possessed of it. See Esa. 5. 29. & 31. 4.

and yelled] Heb. give out their voice; for there is no copulative in the text: this some understand, as of a General, or Commander, giving out a command, or some signal, for assault; and it may seem so taken, Joel 2. 11. & 3. 16. but it is commonly used for any loud cry in general. See Psal. 46. 6. Prov. 2. 3. Chap. 22. 20. & 48. 34. Hab. 3. 9. they roar, utter their voice, tor, roar aloud, or, roar lickeouslly; as, they make deep corrupt, for, they corrupt deeply, Hos. 9. 9.

his cities are burnt without inhabitant.] Heb. burnt from no inhabitant, or, from without inhabitant; as chap. 46. 19. that is, to burne, that they lye as a waste wilderness; as chap. 9. 12. which none can inhabit; and so chap. 9. 10. burnt from no passenger, or, from without any passinger; that is, so burnt up, that none passeth by. See of this use of the particle, on Esa. 23. 1. & 24. 10. See of the desolation here mentioned, Esa. 1. 7. 2 Chr. 28. 5, 20, 21. & 33. 11. & 36. 6, 7, 10.

V. 16. Also the children of Noph, and Tahapanes have broken the crown off thine head.] The Egyptians also they make a spoyl of thee, 2 Kin. 24. 33, 35. 2 Chr. 36. 3. And he saith, the Egyptians also, as some would have it, because they were a more effeminate people; as if he should say, not the Assyrians onely, a manly, and warlike people; but that womanish Nation, the Egyptians, with whom the men do womens work, as Herodotus. 2. But others, rather, because this people was too prone to confide in them; though they got no help, or good, but much hurt and harm, from them, v. 18, 36. Ezek. 29. 6, 7, 16.

the children] Heb. sons; that is, the Inhabitants, or Natives, as the sons of Jerusalem, Esa. 51. 18, 20. and, the daughters of Sion, Esa. 3. 16.) of these two principal Egyptian Cities; put here, because royal Seats, for the whole Kingdom, and land of Egypt.

the children of Noph] As, the children of Eden, Esa. 36. 12. Of this city, see on Esa. 19. 13.

Tahapanes] Or, Tachapanes; a famous and principal city of Egypt, ch. 43. 8. Ezek. 30. 18. so called, in likelyhood, from Tahpanes, or Tachpanes, in Solomons time, Queen of Egypt, 1 King. 11. 19, 20. it flood not far from Pelusium. Whence it is commonly termed by the Greeks, and Latines, Daphnæ Pelusiacæ, to distinguish it from another place of that name neer to Antiochia, so named from a grove of laurel growing there; as Lovetto, in Italy, hath its name from the like. But they are much out of the way, that would render the same reason of the name of this Egyptian city; because the Greeks corruptly so term it, or dream of any laurel grove in those parts. It is supposed to be the same with that called, also, Hanes, or Chanes, Esa. 30. 4.

have broken the crown of thine head] So the Jewish Masters expound it, taking the word, in the notion of breaking asunder; as it seems taken, chap. 11. 16. Mic. 5. 6. and, he saith, say they, thy crown of the head; because wounds on the head are dangerous, those on the crown of it, especially, as cleaving the head asunder, Psal. 68. 21. & 74. 13, 14. the Chaldee doth thus paraphraste it, They have slain thy men of might, and plundered thy goods. The Greek renders it, They have known thee, and mocked thee; in such a notion, as those words are used, Gen. 19. 5. & 39. 17. and the old Latine, They have defiled thee to the crown of the head; which some expound, of no part left free from their filthy lust; as of the Chaldeans, Lam. 5. 11, 13. Others, of those idolatries, that they were defiled with in Egypt, as well as in Chaldea, chap. 16. 13. & 44. 17. Others, of abusing them in base manner, and by cruel oppressions, riding over their head, or insulting over their Princes, who are as their heads; that, say they, of the Assyrian reached up to the midst of the neck, Esa. 8. 8. & 30. 28. but this should go over the very crown of the head, Deu. 28. 43, 44. Psal. 66. 12. for that no part should go free, from top to toe, from abuse and oppression, Esa. 1. 5, 6. the heads of the people, the Princes themselves not escaping, Lam. 5. 12, 16. But these lay too much weight upon two vitious versions, rendring the verb in such a notion, as it is no where found used. Some late Interpreters render it, They have fed upon the crown of thine head, taking the word in a notion of feeding; as it is used, chap. 3. 15. Esa. 6. 13. or, of depasturing, rather; as chap. 6. 3. with 12. 10. and Esa. 3. 14. they have fleeced thee, despoiled thee, and eaten upon thee; either, fed upon the crowns of thine head; or, fed upon thee in the crown of thine head; that is, say they, in the Southern part of thee, that lay toward Egypt, situate South from Judea, Esa 30. 6. ch 13. 19. the head of a land, by a trope; as the shoulders of it, Deut. 33. 12. or, rather, they spoyl and make havock of the, in the best and principal part of thee; as Isa. 28. 4. and this last, I conceive, to be the genuine sense of the text: a defect of the preposition; as Isa. 32. 6. & 57. 8. and of the pronoun; as Isa. 60. 4.

V. 17. Hath not this procured this to thy self, in that thou hast forsaken the Lord thy God, when he led thee by the way.] The Jewish Commenters conceive these words, to be, as an answer, by God, returned to the peoples complaint, of their present low, and forlorn condition, and Gods neglect of them in it, v. 14. But they seem rather (for those were Gods words, not theirs) an argument, that God useth, to convince them of their extream folly, in forsaking him, and thereby plunging themselves into such a doleful, and dismal condition. So v. 19. ch. 4. 18.

procured this] Heb. done this; as chap. 4. 18.

in that thou hast forsaken the Lord thy God] It was not his leaving of them, but their leaving of him, chap. 1. 16. vers. 13. who leaveth none, till they leave him, 1 Chron. 28. 9. 2 Chron. 15. 2.

when he led thee by the way] Heb. in the time, wherein he was leading thee on the way: a defect both of the relative, and of the verb substantive; as Gen. 39. 4. That by his providence governed thee, and led thee on in safety, protecting thee from all evils, while thou followedst his conduct, and would so have done still, hadst not thou forsaken him, and refused to have been conducted by him, Psa. 91. 1, 13. Isa. 58. 8, 11. or, who prescribed thee a way, and course of life, to walk in, which if thou hadst observed, thou hadst been safe and successful, Psa. 81. 13, 16. Isa. 48. 18, 19 & 64. 5. Ezek. 20. 10, 11. But the former here rather, because it alludeth to the conduct of them in the Wilderness, Exo. 13. 21. Isa. 63. 12. v. 2.

V. 18. And now what hast thou to do in the way of Egypt, to drink the waters of Sihor; or, what hast thou to do in the way of Assyria, to drink the waters of this river?] God here instanceth in, and twitteth them with two of their chief cisterns, or broken wells, whereof, albeit, they had proof enough to be sorry for, how little good they had gained, or got, by seeking to them, and making use of them, yet they would needs be running after them still. See 2 Chr. 28. 16, 20. Isa. 30. 1, 7. & 31. 1, 3. & 36. 6.

now] Having before so oft had experience of the ill-succes-s of such courses, v. 36.

what hast thou to do in the way of Egypt] Or, with the way of Egypt; as the particle is rendred, Psa. 147. 20. Heb. what to thee, to the way! So 2 Sam. 16. 10. what to me, and to you? for, what have I to do with you? and, what to me, and to thee? for, what have I to do with thee? 2 Kings 3. 8. See the like, Mark 1. 24. & 5. 7. John 2. 4. onely there is here a defect of the copulative: what need or occasion hast thou to send, or to travel, into Egypt? like those, Numb. 14. 3, 4.

to drink the waters of Sihor] Of Nilus, the river of Egypt, Amos 9. 5. so called, of its blackness, by reason of the mud and slime, that it brings down with it, wherewith it bateleth their grounds; Or, as some, by reason of the black colour, of the grounds and lands it passeth thorow, which yet cometh, in effect, home to the former; for such stuff must the river of necessity bring down with it, as is the land that it passeth by. See on Isa. 23. 3. and it seems very strange, that some granting Sihor; to be Nilus here, should affirm it to be some small rill, or rivelet, elsewhere; as Joshua 13. 3. 1 Chron. 13. 5. To drink the water of Nilus in Egypt, is put here, for to seek help and relief there. But he delivereth it, in these terms; as if he should say, that they could have nothing to do there, or no errand thither, unless it were to drink of the puddle water of that river, when they had, or might have had, as good, yea, far better than that, nearer at hand, at home. See chap. 18. 14. So 2 Kin. 1. 3. or, what hast thou to do] Heb. and; the copulative in a disjunctive notion; as Isa. 48. 5. & 58. 13.

to drink of the water] To seek ayd, either of them, or their idols, 2 Chr. 25. 14, 15. & 28. 23.

of the river] Euphrates, the river of Assyria, Isaiah 8. 7. in way of eminency so termed, Psal. 72. 8. Isaiah 7. 20. See Gen. 15. 18.

V. 19. Thine own wickedness shall correct thee.] That is, as some, thy courses, without any further dispute, or debate, give in evidence sufficient to convince, and condemn thee; as Isa. 3. 9. Hos. 5. 5. but the words would rather be read, Thine own wickedness might correct thee; thy bad courses proving such, as they have formerly done, might be (one would think) sufficient to reclaim thee, and amend thee, to make thee abandon them, and be fearful of returning again to them. See Hos. 2. 7.

and thy back-sl dings shall reprove thee.] Thou must taste the bitterness of thy wicked courses, thou must feel the smart of them, before thou wilt wax wise, Esa. 28. 19. Job 33. 14, 22. a note of a servile and base disposition, Prov. 20. 30. & 29. 15. or, rather, as before, thy backslidings, or perverse courses (as ch. 5. 6. & 14. 7.) might reprove thee, or, convince thee (as Job 6. 25.) might, by convincing, instruct thee, and teach thee more wisdom; as ch. 6. 8.

know therefore, and see] Heb. and, (as Ch. 1. 17.) know and see; as 1 Sam. 12. 17. that is, take notice, (as v. 23.) and consider; as v. 31. weigh well with thy self, what it is, that hath brought all these evils upon thee; for by thine own experience, thou canst not but know it; as knowing is taken, Gen. 2. 17. 2 Cor. 5. 21.

that it is an evil thing, and bitter, that thou hast forsaken the Lord thy God,] As before, v. 17.

evil] Not in a moral, but in a natural notion; though true in either: but this here, not that, intended; such as procureth evil of punishment, and misery: as, I create evil, Esa. 45. 7. and, evil befel them, vers. 3.

bitter] Such as bringeth bitter, that is, grievous, distasteful, ill-pleasing things; upon thee. So the word, bitter, is commonly taken, Ruth 1. 20. Prov. 21. 6. See ch. 4. 18.

the Lord, thy God,] Me, who am the Lord thy God: the noun, for the pronoun; as Esa. 2. 1.

and that my fear is not in thee;] My fear, for, the fear of me; as, thy fear, for, the fear of thee, Psa. 5. 7. and, his fear, for, the fear of him, Job 3. 11. and, his knowledge, for, the knowledge of him, Esa. 53. 11. See ch. 5. 22, 24. the want of this fear, the ground of all sin, and cause of all evil, Gen. 20. 11. Psa. 36. 1. Mal. 3. 5. Rom. 3. 15, 18.

is not in thee] Heb. unto thee: but so the particle is also used, Gen. 24. 45. 2 Kin. 7. 12.

saith the Lord God of Hosts.] See Esa. 1. 24. & 10. 24.

V. 20. For of old time I have broken thy yoke, and burst thy bands; and thou saidst, I will not transgress.] Or, when (as Psa. 72. 2. Joel 2. 20.) of old (as Esa. 63. 9, 19.) Or, For when of old, I brake thy yoke, I burst asunder thy bands, thou saidst, I will not transgress. See the like syntax before, v. 7. when I brake the yoke that the Egyptians had laid upon thee, Exo. 1. 13, 13, 14. and dissolved those bands, wherewith it was so fastened unto thee, that thou wast not able to shake it off, (See Esa. 10. 27. & 58. 6.) when I set thee free from the Egyptian bondage, when I brought thee out of Egypt, v. 6. Psa. 81. 5, 6, 10. thou didst then by solemn promise engage thy self to yield obedience to me in all things, and not wilfully to transgress my commands, in ought, Deu. 5. 27. & 26. 17. & 27. 10, 26.

yoke] For servitude and thraldom, Esay 9. 4. Chap. 28. 3, 10, 14.

bands] An allusion, either to such bands, as captives, prisoners, or slaves, are wont to be kept in, Chap. 39. 7. & 40. 4. or to such as the yoke is wont to be fastened with, unto the neck of the beast that draweth in it. See Esay 58. 6. Chap. 30. 8. Lam. 1. 14.

I will not transgress.] Or, I will not serve; to wit, any other god, but thee alone, Exod. 20. 3, 23. Josh. 24. 16. Psal. 81. 9. Ezra 10. 12. for there are here two divers readings; arising, as in divers places elsewhere, from the affinity in shape of two Hebrew letters, by the easie mistake of the Scribes eye, or the sudden slip of his pen, put oft the one for the other. So Diphath, for, Riphath; and, Rodanim, for, Dodanim, 1 Chr. 1. 6, 7. with Gen. 10. 3, 4. and Hadaresers, 1 Chron. 18. 3. for Hadad-esers, 2 Sam. 8. 3. the like in this word, see Chap. 15. 14. that which our Version hath, seems the right reading, and is owned by the Jewish Criticks: for as for the ancient Greek, and old Latine, who following this latter, render the words, Of old thou hast broken thy yoke, and burnt thy bands (as chap. 5. 5.) and saidst, I will not serve thee, like those, Psal. 2. 3. Luke 19. 14. they alter much the rest of the text, where no variety of reading is.

when upon every high hill, and under every green tree, thou wanderest, playing the harlot.] When; or, but; or, yet; as Esay 31. 4. & 49. 25. Notwithstanding these thy engagements to me, thou dealest most dilloyally with me, leaving me to run after thine idols, and in every place that thou takest liking to, and deemest fit for thy purpose, defiling thy self with them, see Esa. 57. 5, 8. chap. 3. 2, 6. after the manner of the heathen people, Deu. 12. 2. 2 Kin. 17. 9, 11.

high hill] Where they had their high places, Psa. 78. 57, 58. Ezek. 20. 28, 29.

green tree] Or, flourishing, goodly, thick, shady, shrowdy tree, Eze. 20. 28. Hos. 4. 13. So 2 Kin. 16. 4. Isa. 57. 3. & 57. 9. ch. 11. 16. & 17. 2, 8. Cant. 1. 16. Our bed is fair and flourishing. He hath an eye as to their high places, so to their groves, Deut. 7. 5. & 12. 3. & 16. 21. See Esa. 17. 8. & 27. 9.

thou wanderest] Thou goest astray from him, unto whom thou hadst by covenant joyned thy self, (see on Esa. 57. 8.) and runnest on madding, and gadding, after idols: the word signifies, to travel, or, journey, or, go to and fro, Esa. 63. 1. properly, from ones own place, or seat, into some strange land, or foreign parts, Esa. 51. 14. Jer. 48. 12. these are all the places where it is found.

playing the harlot.] Committing whoredom: so is idolatry commonly styled in Scripture, ch. 3. 1, 2. Ezek. 16. & 23. Hos. 1. 2. & 9. 1. the reason you have before, verf. 2.

V. 21. Yet I had planted thee, a noble vine, wholly a right seed.] I settled thee, at first, in a right and goodly Church-constitution; both free from all superstitious, and idolatrous services, and so moulded, as was most seemely, and sightly.

Yet I had planted thee,] Or, And I did then plant thee, Exod. 15. 17. Psa. 44. 2. & 80. 8. Esa. 5. 2.

a noble vine] The Church of God is, in Scripture, frequently, compared to a vine, or vineyard, Psal. 80. 8. Matt. 21. 33. Mark 12. 1. Luk. 20. 9. See Esa. 5. 1. & 27. 2. Howbeit, the word, vine, is not here in the text: the Hebrew is no more than forek; which some therefore understand of the place where it was planted. I planted thee, in forek, in a choice place; for not vines only, but other things; as silk, or fine linnen, such as lawns, and the like, have this attribute given unto them. See Esa. 19. 9. and that from a place so termed, Judg. 16. 4. some choice kind of vines had this name, it is commonly deemed; and the word might be used, as Carmel, v. 7. more generally, for other the like: as also it is apparent, that the place is commended for a rich and choice place, wherein God feated his people, Exod. 15. 17. Esa. 5. 2. but the forek, is in the latter place distinguished from the seat, or soyl, wherein it was planted. See Esa. 5. 3. The moft therefore refer it, not to the place, but to the plant: and of these, some read the words with a note of similitude; as, forek, as a choice vine. I had as much care, in planting of thee, as a man could have of the choiceft vine, or plant, that could be, Esa. 5. 3. & 17. 11. & 27. 3. Some, I planted thee for a Sorek, for a choice Vine; I so planted thee, that thou mighteft prove such an one. Others, laftly, with forek, that is, with plants, or slips, of forek; such as come thence: as for choice flips and plants, curious people are wont to fend far and neer, Esa. 17. 10. and such flips are termed Surkim, as flips of Sorek, Gen. 49. 11. Esa. 16. 8. and this beft agreeth with that parallel place, Esa. 5. 3. that which I conceive to be meant principally of thefe ordinances, that God, by Moses, fetled among them, when he moulded them first into a Church, and State. See Esa. 44. 2.

wholly a right seed.] Heb. all of it a seed of truth; a seed of truth, for, a right, true, genuine, or, generous, no baftardly, no counterfeit seed; as, men of truth, for, true, and trully, Exod. 18. 21. Neh. 7. 2. and God is faid to have given his people in Mount Sinai, ordinances right, and laws of truth, and statutes, and precepts good, Neh. 9. 13. and it is the usual epithite, that the Pfalmift gives unto Gods Word, and Ordinances, that they are all truth, Psal. 119. 142, 151, 160. and they are the seed, wherewith God feteth, or foweth his Church, Matth. 13. 24, 27, 37. Luke 8. 5, 11. for seed is used in a large notion, as well of flips that are fet, as of feeds that are fown. See Esa. 17. 10, 11. I fuppofe therefore the words would be rendred, with seed all of it right, or true: the particle with, is oft suppressed; as Esa. 17. 10. Yet some read the words, whose whole seed might be truth; that is, say they, whose fruit might all be firm, or sure; from which he might certainly expect good fruit; as Esay 5. 4. But seed, for, fruit, seems to found here somewhat harsh.

How then are thou turned into the degenerate plant of a strange vine unto me ?] By what means is it come to pass, that thou are so strangly altered and changed? For it is spoken by God, in way of admiration, as wondring at the sight of so uncouth an alteration. See the like, Esa. 1. 21. and of this affection attributed to God, Esa. 59. 16.

How then] Heb. And how; as ch. 1. 12, 14. Esa. 40. 18.

art thou turned unto me ?] Or, turned me? for there is an elegant redundancy in the word, to me, very familiar, not in Hebrew onely, but in other languages also, and in our own. So, I will go me, Cant. 4. 8. and, Go thee, Gen. 12. 1. Cant. 2. 10. and, Stay ye, Gen. 22. 5. he shall flee him, Esa. 31. 8. See verf. 22. chap. 5. 5. & 12. 8. & 16. 20.

into the degenerate plant] There is neither into, nor plant, in the text; but some such fupply is needful of either: the term used here, is an adjective plural: it hath in it a notion of revolting, or, departing, ch. 17. 13. for it is found onely in this form here, and there; it is not amiss rendred degenerate, but muft have some plural substantive joyned with it; it may be rendred degenerate slips: fo a strange vine, or plant, Esa. 17. 10. where see many instances of the like defects.

of a strange vine.] Strange plants, and seeds, are sometime mentioned, in way of commendation; because such are usually rare, and choice ones. See Esa. 17. 10. but here, in way of disconmendation, nor having so much relation to forrein parts, (though in that kind also strange fashions, and services, were reproveable in Gods people, Esa. 2. 6. Zeph. 1. 8.) as in way of oppofition to such flips, and plants, as God had planted his vineyard with; that flips of Sorek, should prove flips of Sodom, Deut. 32. 32.

V. 22. For though thou wash thee with nitre, and take thee much sope, yet thine iniquity is marked before me, saith the Lord.] Though thou (what ever means, and courses thou canst devise, either to cleanse, or use all the means, and courses thou canst devise, either to cleanse, or to cleer thy self; yea the foul bloches of thy wickednefs, sticking faft upon thy foul, will appear ftill, as freth, as ever in my fight; nothing will avail thee, either to free thee from the filth, and guilt of them; or to leeure thee from my wrath.

For though] Or, Although: for so much the two particles joyntly signifie; and the words seem to be, not so much any rendring of a reason of the fore-going reproof, as a paffage unto a further conviction of her, by removal, and rejection of such colourable pretences, as Gods people imagined to purge themselves with.

wash thee with nitre] The Hebrew word used here, and Prov. 25. 20. is that, from whence the Greeks, Latines, and We, have the name of this material, of fingular use; not onely for the scouring of apparel, and taking out of ftains, and bloches, from clothes; but for the clearing of the skin, and taking spots and freckels away from the body. Of it, See Plin. l. 31. c. 10. and it is deemed therefore by some, to have its name from a word, that signifies to loose, or dissolve, Rabbi Habak. 3. 6. because as vinegar dissolves it, Prov. 25. 20. so it dissolveth, and looseth, from clothes, and bodies, any foul and filthy matter.

take thee much sope] Heb. multiply to thee sope: to multiply sope, for, to use much sope: as, to multiply prayer, for, to make many prayers, Esa. 1. 15. to multiply gifts, for, to offer many gifts, Prov. 6. 35. to multiply songs, for, to sing many songs; or, to use much singing, Esa. 23. 16. to multiply medicines, to use many medicines; much Physick, ch. 46. 11. to multiply cities, for, to build many cities, Hos. 8. 14. multiply to thee sope; that is, use much sope about thee; or, use thee much sope: by a familiar and frequent redundancy, as our Version seems to have taken it: whereof, see on v. 21.

sope] So some of the Jewish Doctors, by a forrein term, expound it: but then these of them say, it is a kind of herb; (with whom the old Greek, and Latine, concurreth) which Fullers much use, being of the same nature, and efficacy, with nitre, and sope: it seemeth to be that which the Greeks call struthium; the Latines, radicula; some later ones, saponaria, or, sopewort. Of its fingular quality in this kind, see Plinv. l. 18. c. 3. Howbeit, others suppose it to be a kind of mould, such as we call Fullers-earth: and one of the Jewish Masters would have it to be alome: that it was of much use with Fullers, for the cleansing of cloathes, is apparent, by Mal. 3. 2. it is called sometime, bor; as Job 9. 30. Esa. 1. 25. sometime, borith; as in Malachy, and here; from a word that signifieth, to cleanse and purifie. By these natural means of abstersion, and cleansing, some understand here all rites of expiation, either religious, as ablutions and asperfions, Num. 19. 9, 10, 12, 18, 19. Heb. 9. 10, 13. oblations, and sacrifices; to this purpofe applying that, 1 Sam. 3. 14. Heb. 10. 2, 8. or superstitious, by the use whereof they imagined their sins to be all wiped away; and themselves made as pure, and clean, as if they had never done ought amiss, Chap. 65. 5. & 66. 17. Others, all those colourable pretexts, and pretences, whereby they fought to smooth over their wicked courses, and to extenuate, at least, the guilt of them, if not wholly to excuse them. See verf. 23, 33, 35.

is marked] This word being here only found, is by Interpreters therefore very diverfly expounded. Some render it, it is revealed; it lies open before me, Job 34. 21, 22. Prov. 15. 11. Heb. 4. 12, 13. Others, it is written; it remains upon record with me, Deu. 32. 34. Job 14. 17. Esa. 65. 6. Hos. 13. 12. but these give no reason why they so render it: the word cetem, whence it seems derived, doth in Scripture signifie, fine gold, or, gold of special note, Job 28. 16. & 31. 24. whence some render the word, it shineth, it glitters, like gold: a very unfit form, to express the filthiness and foulness of ought: another therefore, carrying on the sentence, Though thou wash thy self with nitre, and use much sope about thee, and thine iniquity gild it self over, with the finest gold before me: yet how canst thou say I am not polluted? This course of the context should we admit, I should rather conceive the word to be taken in that sense, wherein it is, by the Arabick Interpreter, commonly used, for to conceal, or to hide, Luk. 1. 24. 2 Cor. 4. 3. though thine iniquity conceal it self: though thou seek to hide, and conceal it, all that possibly thou canst, Job 31. 33. Psal. 32. 3. Prov. 28. 13. But I suppose that the context rather runneth the other way aright: the word cetem therefore hath in the Chaldee, and Syriack, another notion, wherein it is among the Jewish Doctors very frequent: for it signifies with them, either a spot, a blot, a blemish, cleaving to the skin; as Jam. 3. 6. in the Syriack Version; or, a mark, a braud, entring deep into the fleth; as in the same, Gal. 6. 17. Hence, some render it, it is exceedingly, or, remarkably foul, or, filthy: the old Greek, and Latine, thou art besmotted with thine iniquity; but this the text will not so well bear. Others, thine iniquity is deeply imprinted upon thee; as Chap. 17. 1. Either of these last, or both (the word it seems to come of comprehending both) may well be received; thine iniquity is so exceeding foul, and so cleaveth so fast to thee, and hath entred so deep with thee, that no tere, or sope, no washing thee with these, or the like, that is able to fetch it off, or get it our. See Job 9. 30, 31. Howbeit, a learned late Writer, rejecting all other Interpreeations, would have it rendred; thine iniquity is laid up before me; producing, and drawing hither, as a parallel place, that of Moses, Deut. 32. 34. This is laid up before me, sealed up in my treasures; (that of Job 21. 9. God will hide (that is, lay up) his iniquities for his sons; that of Hos. 13. 12. Ephraims iniquity is tyed up (as moneys in a pouch, or purse) his sin is hidden; that is, laid up in Gods mind and memory: the main ground of this interpretation, here, is, because the Arabick word, chetema, signifieth to hide: so found used in the Arabick, Psa. 50. 14. Luk. 1. 24. & 8. 17. 2 Cor. 2. 3. Heb. 4. 13. And if so I shall leave to the judgment of the learned: onely adding, that yet, to me, the proportion, and opposition, seemeth to be more natural, and familiar, between washing, and scouring; and remaining ftill deeply stained, than between washing, or scouring, and being laid up, or hid.

before me] Or, in my sight; howsoever, thou mayst, either fooh up thy self in thy sin, or, delude others with vain pretences; yet thou canst not blind, or bleer mine eyes. I see thy filthiness, as it is, Gal. 6. 7. Heb. 12. 13.

V. 23. How canst thou say, I am not polluted ?] How canst thou be so shameless, as to offer, or allay once, to cleer thy self, when as thy wickedness is so evident? See Prov. 30. 20.

canst thou say] Heb. wilt thou say; but the word is in a potential notion, as the other like, v. 23. Esa. 49. 15. Ch. 11. 12. Yet some render it not amiss, How dareft thou say? See the like, Esa. 10. 14. & 36. 9. Zach. 1. 21.

polluted] As an Adulteress, Numb. 5. 20.

I have not gone after Baalim ?] Or, I do not go after Baals; as answering to that charge against her, of running, and gadding to and fro, verf. 20. by way of denial; as after also, verf. 35.

Baalim] Or, Baals; the word baal, signifying properly, a Lord, Master, or Owner; and in the next place, an Husband, as such to her; that is joyned to him in wedlock, See on Esay 46. 1. It was a term that they commonly gave unto idols, Hosea 2. 16, 17. and the name was therefore common unto many of them: hence Baal-Peor, Psal. 106. 28. and Baal-Zebub, 2 Kings 1. 2. and the like; and in the plural, comprehending the whole crew of them, Baalim, or Baals, Judg. 2. 11. Hosea 2. 11.

see thy way in the valley,] God, because she so pleaded not guilty, poineth her, as with the finger, unto those particular places, where she had with her idols, defiled her self. So Chap. 3. 2.

thy way] way, for course, or carriage; as Psal. 1. 6. Esa. 55. 7. for those Rabbines seem here to go out of the way, that would here have way a path, that should be made by her frequent passing to and fro.

in the valley] The valley over against Beth-Peor, in the plains of Moab, from whence they went up to worship Baal Peor, Num. 22. 41. & 23. 28. & 25. 3. So some of the Jewish Doctors, following the Chaldee Paraphraft. That of the sons of Hinnom, say others, where they burnt their children in sacrifice, Chap. 7. 31. as pointing her to the bones of them that lay there. But the term seems more large, as was also their practice. See Esa. 57. 5, 6. for the Jewish Doctor seemeth over nice here, who having moved the question, why God should bid her look to her way in the valley, whereas before she was charged with sacrificing on the hills, verf. 20. maketh answer before: Firft, that a way is not so easily seen on the hill, being oft stony, and rocky, Prov. 30. 19. as in the vale; as it parts were not as visible on the one, as in the other: And secondly, that the way in the valley, was for no other end, but to go up to the hills, to sacrifice there: whereas by that place of Esay it appears, that they exercised their idolatries, as well by the brook sides in the vale, and where they had thady trees growing, as well as upon the top of the hills.

Know what thou hast done] Or, take notice what thou dost; as v. 19. Ch. 3. 13. Prov. 27. 23.

thou art a swift dromedary, traversing her ways] Or, to make the context run on the more smoothly; take notice what thou doft; how thou art as a light dromedary, that traverseth her ways: the note of fimilitude is oft omitted; as Psa. 1. 1. Esa. 21. 8. v. 3. and thus the Jewish Doctors with the Chaldee Paraphraft, read it. Or, as for me, O thou swift dromedary, that traverseft thy ways: her ways, for thy ways; a change of the person, as Job 18. 4. O thou that teareft thy soul, for, that teareft thy soul.

dromedary] Of this beast, see on Esa. 60. 6.

swift] Heb. light; as Esa. 19. 1. and the word may well be here retained, as it is, ch. 3. 9. & 4. 24. though what the Rabbines here tell us of the female, in this kind, being lighter, and swifter than the male, seems but a fable. Of the female the Prophet speaks, for another cause; as the like, verf. 24.

traversing her ways] The word is no where else read; that it cometh from, signifieth a sne-catcher, Gen. 14. 23. Esa. 5. 29. hence some render it, retaining her ways; keeping ftill to her wonted guise; as the catcher, fay they, keeps the thoe faft to the foot. Others, dilatour, or evaricator, thy way; fo the ancient Greek, and old Latine: that is, running at large, and ridding thy way, at pleasure; as alluding to the loosing of the latcher, Mark 1. 7. Others, latcheting, or, declinating, thy way; that is, as by thy loose latcher, or somewhat that thou drawest after thee, or droppeth from thee; so marking the way along, as thou goest, that thou mayst thereby be traced: that which the Chaldee Paraphrast may seem also to hold out, who renders it, marring, or defiling, thy way; using a term, from whence, in the Chaldee, is a word deduced, that signifies dung, and other like filth. Others, lastly, and so some of the Jewish Doctors, doubling, or implicating, and entangling; or, as our English exceedingly well, transcipping thy ways: as the latchet, to fast in the sandal to the foot, is drawn over and over; or, as the shoe-latchet is tyed up in knots, and so drawn several ways, to make the shoe fit fast to, and even on, the foot: and it is an allusion to the manner of the dromedary, and other beasts of the like kind, left at large, whose females, in gendring time, being mad for the male, run in a confused manner to and fro after them, and one while after one of them; another while after another: not unfitly resembling the practice of this people, that, being mad upon their idols, thought they could never have enow, or enough of them, and were continually therefore running after some one, or other of them, and much pleasing themselves in variety and change. See verf. 28, 36. chap. 11.13. Ezek.16.25, 29. & 23.5, 20. I shall subjoyn yet, what I find lately in a learned mans Annotations; he would have it to be rendred, either from an Ethiopick word, signifying, late, or at even, Matt. 28.1. Mark 13.35. that latcheth, or, benighteth, her ways; alluding to the nighttime, wherein wild beasts flit abroad, Pfal.104.20. (but that is spoken of beasts of prey; whereof this is none) and leofe people look out, Job 24.15. Prov.7.9. or from an Arabick term, fignifying, a companion, or partner, that maketh her ways common; like a common harlot, promiscuously admitting all comers, Ezek.16.25. But these I leave as conjectures to be deemed of by others.

V. 24. A wild asse used to the wilderne's, that snuffeth up the wind at her pleasure;] To the former similitude of the dromedary, he addeth this of the wild asse, as wild, and as wanton, as the other; and such as there is no restraining of, from her wild vagaries, or surprising of her, fave when she goeth great with young.

A wild asse] Some, to joyn this to the former, render the words, A wild asse she is; and then, why not rather, as before, A wild asse thou art; or like a wild asse; as, a lions whelp, for, like a lions whelp; and, a strong asse, for, like a strong asse; and, a serpent, for, like a serpent, Gen.49.9.Isa.14.29. or, following the other Version, which need not be rejected, O thou wild asse. The word here used, some would have to fignifie wild, in general: and to answer, the Latine, fera, as in letters, and found, it doth: and to be appliable therefore, as well to a wild man, as a wild beast, Gen. 16.12. such as all men are naturally said to be, Job 11.12. but the word seemes rather to denote some particular kind of wild beast; which yet the Jewish Masters are not wholly agreed upon. Some give us strange names of it, and tell us, it is a beast that sleepeth one whole moneth in the year: some dormouse belike they deem of. But the most herein concur, that it is the wild asse, called Onager: and so the old Latine here rendreth it, and the Greeks elsewhere, Job 6.5. & 39.5. Pfal. 104. 11. Esa. 32.14. as to the Chaldee Paraphrast so taketh it: though some take the word that he here useth, more generally, Dan. 4.21. But another question is among them, Whether it be the male, or the female, that is here spoken of: about which, both they, and ours, are divided. And the adjectives both, whether nouns, or pronouns, are, some of them, in the masculine form, some, in the feminine: Whence some conclude for the one sex, and some for the other: But one of them well observeth, that the genders in the names of beasts, as ox, asse, and the like, are promiscuously used; which in other languages also is not unusual: but the tenour of the context seems to imply, that as a she dromedary, verf. 23. So a female Onager, is here intended: Yet not, as they here again inculcate, because the female is the better runner of the twain: as of the hind, they fable the like, on Pfal. 18. 33. where the word may be rendred, as well hart, as hind: as lions, where yet the word is lionesses; but the participle joyned with it, masculine, Zeph.3.3. See Chap. 4.30.

used to the wilderne's] Heb. taught the wilderne's, that is, enured, and accustomed to it; as ch.13.23.Hof.10.11. that unmeth at large there, Job 39.5,6. for how foever the word here used, fignifieth, plain sometime, as well as a wilderne's, see on Esa. 63.13. and a Rabbine would have it so taken here, because running there is more ready, and less subject to impeachment; yet I suppose the word here need not be diverted from its native notion, that of Job, and this so well suiting together.

that snuffeth up the wind at her pleasure,] Heb. that (a defect of the relative; as Esa.65.1.) snuffeth up the wind, as chap. 14.6. but the snuffing up, or rather, the drawing in of the wind, there, is not the same (though the words be the same, and the subject the same, and the Rabbins therefore confound them) with the snuffing up of the wind, here mentioned: for that is a drawing in of the fresh ayr, to allay the inward heat, arising from drought: whereas this snuffing up of wind, is, as the Hebrew here hath it, in the desire, or lust of her soul; (as Deut.12.15. all that thy soul lusteth after,) when the windeth the male, going proud, as of some other creatures we use to speak: & one of the Rabbines therefore observeth not amiss, that this snuffing appertaineth to the sense of smelling, and is spoken of drawing in the wind, or ayr, by the nostrils: though he here misapply it, supposing it (wherein some other also concur with him) to be intended here, as done for the more freedom of breath, that she may run the more speedily; shortness of breath, and difficulty of breathing, being a great impediment to speed, which is clean besides the Prophets intent in this place: as also, that seems no less of some other, who so take it, as if it implyed, that she would rather endure hunger and drought in the Wilderness, than repair to places habitable, and be serviceable to man.

at her pleasure] Heb. in her soul's desire, or lust; when she lusteth after, and longeth for, the male. There is here a double reading, his soul, and her soul: and the former, it seems, some more curious, than skilful, Scribe, would needs be putting in, because he found the word, taught, in a masculine; whereas the word snuffing, being in a feminine, might have taught them, to let it stand, as he found it: but the latter is the more generally received. And I wonder much at that learned Scholiast, who tearing the text asunder, would not have those words spoken of the wild asse, but of Jerusalem, because the former words were in a masculine form; whereas these run in the feminine: but of the promiscuous use of the genders in living creatures, enough before; and we may find both, sometime, used of the very self-same thing; as Ezek. 2.9. Jon. 1.17. & 2.1. (for what some of the Rabbines dream of two fishes there, is both frivolous, and fabulous) yea, the very like is, by the learned Scholiast himself obferved in the very next verfe; and by one of the Jewish Commenters, chap. 3.5. & 4.14. and though Jerusalem, or the Jewish people, be intended in the text; yet it is in an allegorical way, under the resemblance of such a creature, and her usual carriage; besides, that he seemeth to be as far wide from the Prophets intendment, when he supposeth, that in this passage Jerusalem thrusting after idolatry, is compared to, yea, or resembled by, the thirst of wild asses; whereof the Psalmist speaketh, Psal.104.11. whereas that there touched upon, is no other, than such as is ordinary, and common, with other beasts, to wild asses; nor as that of the hart, Psal.42. 1. though extraordinary, yet differing much also from th's here; the one proceeding from foe want; from meer wantonnefs the other.

in her occasion who can turn her away?] What the word rendred occasion, fhould here fignifie, is much questioned. The particle in, is not in the text: the most interpreters therefore admit it not. The old Latine knitteth the first word to the former, rendring the text, snuffing up the wind of love, or lust, rather: and this would suit well with the subject matter of the place, and the Prophets entendment here; but neither do the passes in the original allow it; nor is any ground given for such fignification of the word. The Chaldee Paraphrast rendreth it, as a dragon; and some of the Jewish Doctors following him, dragon-like, or after the manner of dragons: they build partly upon that place, chap. 14.6. where it is faid, The wild asses stand in the high places, and snuff up, or draw in the wind like dragons: and partly, upon the affinity of found, and identity of some letters in either term: but there is no analogy that will fitly deduce, either the one from the other, or both from the same source. Some other of the Jewish Doctors would have it taken in a notion of yelling; or because it is an asse that it is ascribed to, it might better be, braying; because a word neer it, and of the same flock with it, is used for snuffing, Esa.29.2. Ezek.2.5. Some of ours, a fer time; rendring it, in, or at, her fet time. Some, her course; her running, and ranging. Some, her incurse, or assault, running upon the male, to incite him to cover her. Some, in her occurse; in the lighting upon, or meeting with, her: and these all from that use of the word, whence it is derived; whereby it fignifieth, to cause ought to befal one, or to meet with one, Exod.20.13. Pfal.91.10. Prov.12.21. The most, her occasion, or opportunity, or in her opportunity, or occasion; because the verb whence it comes, is so used, 2 Kin.5.7. he seeketh an occasion (or picketh a quarrel) against me: and the noun, thence derived, very little differing from this, Judg. 14.4. he sought an occasion against the Phil stines: he intended to pick a quarrel with them: and though that learned Scholiast reject this, as a poor, and cold expression; yet to me it seems to suit very well with the Prophets intent: for it is, as if he had faid, when she findeth opportunity, or taketh occasion rather, to run thus on madding after the male, there is no staying, or turning of her; do what any can, she will have her will, she will have her way. Thus reasoning our Version, which I prefer, there is onely a supply of the preposition, which is very frequently suppressed; as Esa. 44.12. & 48.4. or, if that be omitted, there is a redundancy of the pronoun demonstrative; her occasion, who can turn it back? But the former seems the better.

all they that seek her will not weary themselves;] So the Jewish Commenters, for it would be to no purpose; because it is a creature that will not be taken, or tamed, Job 39.5.8. though that is somewhat too large: But the meaning is, that there is no dealing with her, while she is in this fit, she is so wild and fierce then; there is no taking of her, while she runs thus a madding: Yet some late Writers of note render it, to a clean contrary purpose; all they that seek for her, need not weary themselves: that is, fay they, running it to Jerusalem, resembled to a common strumpet; all that desire desire to be naught with her, need not to take pains to seek her out; or they may find her at hand, ready at all times to receive such, ch. 3.2. Ezek.16.25. and 23.44. but this suiteth not so well with the similitude.

in her month they shall finde her] What some learned Interpreters here have of the monethly course, (which the old Latine here exhibiteth, and Popish Writers much beat their brains about, devising how to make good) and of the manner of Jewd women, admitting loose persons like themselves, without distinction of times, Ezek. 22.10. strangely straining to fetch in hither for the backing hereof, that of Hosh. 5.7. and others of the new moons, on which for idolatrous services they were wont to meet, Hosh.2.11. I let pass, because I deem them to be clean beside the intent and scope of the place; which I conceive to be meant of such as hunt for, and seek to take the wild creature here spoken of: And this the most, as well Jewish, as our Interpreters also, agree in: of the moneth, only the que stion is, what moneth should be here meant. And one of the Rabbines telleth us, not that the wild asse, but that the strange creature, (I know not what, for two strange names he gives us for it, and saith, some fay it is the one, and some the other) here mentioned, lieth fast asleep all one month in the year; and that is the moneth, in which men may easily surprise her. But that is one of his idle fictions, whereof he hath not a few. Others, take it for the moneth, or moneths, (the word collectively taken; as day for days, Gen. 8.6. and year for years, Gen. 5.4,5,6,7.) wherein the goeth great with young, and groweth near her time, when she is heavy, and cannot so well thift for her self: the moneths, of which, Job 39.1,2. and this indeed seemeth the genuine sense of the place: the meaning whereof well may be, as it is appliable to Jerusalem, and the Jewish people, that albeit, there were now no dealing with them, while they were thus in the fervour of their filthy lust, so desperately bent to run after their idols, that they would have their swing whatsoever it cost them, or whatsoever came of it, v. 25, 31, 33. Chap. 22.21. Yet the time should come, when being in streights, and distresses, they would be lesse wild and fierce, grow tamer, and become more tractable, and easier to be dealt with, by those that seek after them for their good, v.27. Hosh.5.15. and 6.1.

V. 25. withhold thy foot from being unshod, and thy throat from thirst] That these words contain in them, an wholesome admonition, given either by God, or from God, to this people, is generally agreed on. In regard whereof, some put into the Text, I said, or, when it is said unto thee. See the like Psal.73. Psalm 27.8. Acts 15. 5. But about the exposition of them, there is no small difference. For some understand the words, as if it were faid, Do not wear out thy shooes, and expose thy self unto thirst, by taking journies unto remote places thorow waste wilderneffes, where water is not to be had, for the procuring of aids from foreign people. See Josh.9.13. Esay 36.6. and 57.15.v.6. Others, do not, by putting off thy shooes, (as persons do, when they go to bed) addrefs thy self unto the adulterous bed, Esay 57.7. or do not uncover thy feet (as Deut.28.57. Esay 7.20.) do not prostitute thy self, Ezek. 16.25. forbear thine adulterous thirst after idols. See the use of the metaphor, Prov. 5. 15,18. Eccles.26.12. Others lastly, which I conceive to be the right, break off these thy wicked and wretched courses, (to wit, in running and gadding after strange people, and strange gods) which will at length, if thou go on in them, bring thee into captivity, and in it, to extream beggery and misery. See Prov. 6.26.and 30.16, 20. Esay 20.2,4. and 47.2. Chap 13.22. and 14.10. and 48.18.

withhold thy foot] Or, withdraw thy foot. So Prov. 1.25. and 4.27.

from being unshod] That is, that thou mayest not come to be unshod, to go bare-foot, and bare-legg'd, Esay 20.4. and 47.2. without hose or shooes. See Chap.13.22. and so, from thirst; that thou mayest not bring thy self to thirst; that is, to extream want, having not so much as water, wherewith to quench thy thirst, Psalm 107.5. Esay 5.13. See the like use of the particle, Esay 23.1. and 24.10. Ezek. 16.41.

but thou faidst] Heb. and; as v. 11. Thou returnedst a directly erosse answer, a plain negative; whereby is confirmed what was before faid, of no staying, or turning her, in the heat of her lust, v. 24. See Hof. 5.4.

There is no hope] The word, here used, hath a notion of despair in it; as appeareth by the use of it, 1 Sam. 27.1. Eccl.2.20. And the most read it here, in way of asseveration, rendring it, in a Latine proverbial form, it is done: there is an end then, so let it be. Others, it is desperate; the case is desperate. Others, I am desperate, I am at a point. Others, as our Version, There is no hope; there is no hope of reclaiming us. Others, which I encline to, as the fittest; There is no remedy, as we use to say, Past cure, past cure: Yet some Interpreters of note read it, by way of Interrogation; and that, it may be, the rather, because the answer in the like case is found turned in the negative, Esay 57.10. Thou went wearied with the length of thy way; and yet thou faidst not, There is no hope: And they render it therefore, Should I despair? Should I grow out of heart, and give over my course, and the way that I am in? and the negative following so close upon it, seems to adde some strength to it. I shall leave it to the consideration and censure of the Learned. The same is found, Chap.18.12.

No] Either we will not follow your advice: as Prov. 1.25. Chap. 6.16. and 44.16. or, we are not out of hope, by our own ways, to attain our ends, and sufficiently to defend our selves, from thefe, and the like evils, and we are resolved therefore constantly to perfist in them, Esay 28.14,15. and 57.10.

for I have loved strangers, and after them I will go] Or, I love strangers; mine affection is strongly and firmly set upon strange people, and strange services; and them I will after, whatever come of it, Esay 2.6. Ezek.23.7. See chap.18.11,12.

V. 26. As the thief is ashamed when he is found, so is the house of Israel ashamed, they, their Kings, their Princes, and their Priests, and their Prophets;

V. 27. Saying, to a stock, Thou art my Father; and to a stone, Thou hast brought me forth] That is, faith the Chaldee Paraphrast, and the Jewish Masters after him; as it is with an honest man, when he is taken stealing, and had the reputation of an honest man, when he is taken so, and so cometh to be discovered, that then shame and ignominy befalleth him, by the loss of his former reputation and credit: for an open, or a profeffed thief, hath no shame of ought. In like manner is it with this people, who bearing the name of Gods people, as their Fathers did before them; and professing to serve the true God, and him only, may justly be ashamed, when they are taken in such geofs and palpable idolatries, worshipping stocks and stones instead of him; yet the meaning, fay they, is not, that they were indeed ashamed: had they been so indeed, they would have turned from them, and not gone after them still, but that they had good and just cause so to be, Chap.3.3. and 5.15. and 8.12. But most of ours, rather; As a thief that hopeth to carry the matter so closely and covertly, that he shall go away with his pilferings, and thefts, undiscovered; yet is confounded and put to shame, when contrary to his expectation, notwithstanding all his flights, and wiles, whereby he made account to escape, he is intercepted, and not only mifseth of his prey, but is expofed to publick disgrace, and made liable to legal penalties: so shall this people, all sorts of them, be put to shame and confusion, when they shall find their idols, whom they now trust in, and rely upon, to fail them, and prove utterly unable to relieve, or deliver them, in their difficulties and distresses, v. 27,28,36. Esay 1.29,31. and 2.20,21. and 20.4,5. Chap.3.24,24. Hos.4.19.

As a thief is ashamed] Heb. According to the shame of a thief; as, according to the overthrow of Sodome, Amos 4.11. See Chap.48.27.

when he is found] Either upon search made for him, found out, and apprehended, as Achan, Josh 7.1,18. or, taken in the manner, as we use to say, and as they speak upon a groundless suppofition, Gen.44.12,16.

is the house of Israel ashamed] So most Interpreters read the words in a passive notion; and so it is apparently taken, Ch. 46.24. and 50.2. Joel 1.11. yet some late Interpreters of note, render it in an active notion; they have put to shame the house of Israel, them, &c. and when them ashamed; that is, their idols have so done: and so likewise they render it, Chap.5.15. and 8.12. and so in this form it is once found used, 2 Sam.19.5. but the other is the more frequent, and the Syriac seems to favour it here.

the house of Israel] See ver. 4.

Kings, Prince s] The chief that had better breeding, and should have been exemplary to others. See Chap. 5.5. So Chap. 1.18. ver. 8.

Prophets, and Priests] See v. 8. saying] Or, That say. See Esay 8.12.

to a stock] A stock, and a stone, for, idols made of the stock of a tree, or of stone, Deut. 28.64. Esay 40.20. and 44.14,17. Dan.5. 4,23. so in contempt he terms them, from the subject matter of them; as their altars also, are termed bricks, Esay 65.3. So chap. 3.9.

Thou art my Father] Giving the honour of God (who indeed was their Father, Deut.32.6. Esay 64.8. Chap. 3.4. Mal.2.10. Mat.23. 9.) to idols; and being so fottish, and senseless, as to take a dead stock, or a stone, void of sense and life, for their Father, and so to call or account it, Esay 44.17.

Thou hast brought me forth] Or, begotten me: as the word is commonly used, Gen.4.18. and 10.8. thou art my Maker: they make stocks and stones, idols, made of such matter, and of their own making, their Makers, v. 28. See on Esay 8.12.

for they have turned their back unto me, and not their face] Or, but they turned their back unto me: so is the particle used, Esay 30.16. and 49.25. they look after their idols, but they look not after me, but turn their back toward me, Chap. 32.33. Ezek. 8.16. See Esay 1. 3,4. Heb. the hinder part of the neck, Psalm 18.40. See Esay 66.3. Heb. the hinder part of the neck, an elegant antanaclasis, or diversity of notion in the same terms; as if it were faid, they face me with the back part of the neck, and not with the face. See Chapter 7.24. and 18.17.

but in the time of their trouble they will say, Arise, and save us] Or, as Esay 65.20. v.11. Though they now thus neglect me, as if they had no need of me, v. 31. and run after their idols, relying wholly upon them; yet when troubles come upon them, and they they find now to their shame, how little help their idols are able to afford them, they will then be glad to seek to me for succour and safety, Judg.10.10, 15. Esay 26. 16. Hos.5.15. this is that which he said before,in her mouth the will be found, v. 24.

Arise, and save us] The usual note of Gods people, in time of distress, Psalm 3.7. and 7.6. and 10.12. and 44.23. whom these wicked ones would then imitate.

V. 28. But where are thy gods that thou hast made thee? let them arise, if they can save thee, in the time of thy trouble] Gods answer to them, turning them over to their idols; whom forsaking him, they had served, to try what they could do for them, and to seek for relief, and refcue from them. And some therefore put into the Text, Then will I answer them. So Dut 32.37. Judg.9.11, 14. 2 Kings 3.13. Hos.13.10. Chap.11.11,14.

But where] Heb. And where; or, where now; as Esay 8. 7. and 31.3. What is become of your idols now? where are they, that they help you not? as Chap.37.19.

that thou hast made thee] Or, that thou madest, or, hadst made thee, Esay 2.20. Chap.1.16. and 16.20.

arise, if they can save thee] Or, arise, and try whether (as Judg.9. 38.) they can save thee, or no; a complexive form of speech, such as Esay 28.21. see Esay 47.12,13.

arise] Implying, that they were not able to stir from the place where they were let, and fixt, Esay 46.7. Chap.10.5.

if they can save thee] Heb. well, or, fitsaith, save thee: but the word is in a potential notion; as the like, v. 8,11. see Esay 45.20.

in the time of thy trouble] Heb. of thine evil: as Psalm 49.5. So before, v. 27.

For according to the number of thy cities, are thy gods, O Judah.] What needeth thou come to me, when thou hast idols so many, and those so near at hand to go to: enow, and near enough, were they able to do ought for thee, or to afford thee any succour. So Chap. 11.13.

according to the number of thy cities] A defect of the particle, the note of collation, or similitude; such as the Jewish Criticks observe, Exod.14.13. to reconcile the words there with what afterward followeth: not the Egyptians, whom, but in that manner, which ye see to day, ye shall never see more: for it is said, they saw them after lie dead on the shore, Exod.14.30. So Exod. 34.18. according to that which I commanded thee; and Chap.32.11. according to the precept, and the ordinances. They had several tutelar Deities for their several cities; after the manner of the Heathen, that had every countrey, and city, an idol, one or more, of their own, 2 Kings 17.29,31.

V. 29. Wherefore will ye plead with me?] To what end will ye stand out, and offer to debate the matter with me, when the evidence given in is so clear against you? v.2,3,4. Chap.3.2. yet some of the Jewish Interpreters turn it another way, expounding it of fuch contending, as gave the name to Meribah, Exod. 17.2,3,7. why do ye quarrel with me, when mischief befalleth you, and demand why I deal so with you? and that they were indeed too prone to, chap.5. 19. and 22.8. But that seemeth not intended here.

Ye all have transgressed against me, saith the Lord.] Or, ye have all rebelled against me: as it is rendred, Esay 1.2. all, for all sorts, from the highest to the lowest: see v. 26. so Mal.3.9.

V. 30. In vain have I smit ten your children, they received no correction] I have tryed all courses with you, by fair means to win you, by harsher courses to reclaim you; but neither have prevailed to work any amendment with you: see Esay 1.5. and 9.13. chap. 5.3. Amos 4.6,11. Zeph.3.2.

in vain] Without any good effect; as chap. 6.29.

smitten] As Esay 27.7. chastised: as Prov. 23.13,14. or, wounded: as 1 Kings 20.37. so chap. 30.14.

your children] Whom you train up in such idolatrous ways, as your selves take to, chap.5.7,17. and 7.18. and becaufe from the least to the greatest, they were transgressors alike, chap. 6.13. and 8.10. So the Jewish Commenters, and some other. But your children, seems here rather, as others conceive, to comprehend as well parents, as children, the whole body of the Jewish people: and it seems to me to be no other, than as if he had said, thy sons, or children, o Judah, whom expresly he named, v. 28. as, thy sons, O Sion, against thy sons. O Javan, Zach.9.13. fo the sons of Judah, Joel 3. 6. and the children of thy people, for thy people any of them, Lev. 19. 18. see v. 16. and chap. 5.7.

they received no correction] Or, they would receive no instruction; though they were corrected, they would take no warning by what they suffered: they would not be instructed, that it might have been for their good, Psa.94.12. So the word is rendred, Prov. 5.12,23. & 6.23. & 8.33 & 12.1. & 13.18. & 15.32. & 24.32. and so it would here be rendred: for though the word primarily signifie chastisement, as Prov.13.24. & 23.13. and therefore taken, such instruction, as cometh by chastisement, correction, in its native fenfe, as we term it, Prov.22.15. yet instruction would do better than correction here, becaufe the thing by chastising here intended is instruction: whereas correction is with us most commonly used for the chastisement it self. Now as to receive instruction, is to yeeld to what, by admonition, reprehenfion, or correction is required, and so to be bettered there by, Prov.19.20,27. chap. 35.13. so not to receive it, is to stand out against it, to refuse to yeeld to it, or to be bettered by it, chap.5.3. & 7.28. & 17.23. & 32.33.

your own sword hath devoured your Prophets, like a destroying lion] Ye have been so far from hearkning to admonition, and receiving of instruction, that, in savage and barbarous manner, ye have slain those Prophets, which called upon you for repentance, that your selves might not be slain, 2 Chron.24.20,21. chap. 26.23. Nehem. 9.26. Mat.23.29,35,37. Luc.11.47. & 13.33,34. Acts 7.52. 1 Thef. 2.15.

your own sword] Or, your sword: yet not as fome, the sword that hath smitten you, not wherewith ye smite, but wherewith ye have been smitten: but here rather the other: as Psalm 37. 15. and the sword here put at large, for any forcible means of taking away life: see Mat.21.35,36. & 23.37.

hath devoured] Heb. eaten: as Esay 1.20. hence the sword is said to have a mouth, chap.21.7. Luc.21.24.

your Prophets] The Prophets that God sent to you: as Zachary, 2 Chron.24.20,21. Urijah, chap.26.23. and others, not a few, 1 Kin. 18.13,14. & 19.10. So the most, both Jewish, and ours: yet some of either would have it, your Prophets, as chap. 37. 19. and their Prophets, v. 26. the false Prophets; either as pointing to such executions, as themselves had sometimes done upon them; 1 Kings 18.40. 2 Kings 10.15. (but that can have no place here) or, as intimating that the same sword, that had ranged among them, had taken away, together with them, their false Prophets, who had promised them safety, Hos. 4.5. but nor doth this seem very probable to be meant in this place.

like a destroying lion] In a cruel and savage manner; as a lion, that killeth not only, but teareth and teareth to peeces, Psalm 72.

V. 31. O generation, see ye the word of the Lord] God here again returneth to his former expostulation with them, pressing them to shew, what wrong he had done them, or wherein he had carryed himself so hardship towards them, as should cause them to leave him, and relinquish his service: see v. 5.

O generation] Some would have the article here, to be a note of demonstration, and knit this and the last words of the foregoing ver. together, thus rendring the Text, like a devouring lion is this generation: but this too much disjoynteth the context. Others would have it a note of admiration, and exclamation: as if it were said, Oh generation! or, how strange a generation is this, what times are we, of this age, fallen into? see Esay 23.8. But others rather a note of compellation; calling upon the people then living, to hearken seriously to what he said, and pressing that upon them now, which he had upon their fathers before, v. 5. so the article is used, Deut. 32.1. Psal.5.6. and 14.5. Joel 1.2.

see the word of the Lord] See: that is, consider seriously; as v. 19. See the word: as, hear the rod, Mic. 6.9. for the heart hath an eye to see the one, as well as an ear to hear the other: there is an inward eye, as well as an outward, Deut.29.2,3,4. Prov.20.12. Eccl. 1.16.

have I been a wilderness unto Israel?] Have I held my people to hard meat, as cattel kept upon some bare and barren heath, or wilde waste? or, have I not made them my pasture sheep, and been careful to provide good feeding, and all other necessaries for them, Deut. 32.13,14. Psalm 23.1,2. & 103.3. Esay 5.2,3,4. Ezek.34. 14,30, 31. or, have I been unto you, as that wilderness, thorow which I led you to Canaan? v. 2, 6. did not I make that vast and waste wilderness, to be as no wilderness unto you, whatever it was to any other, by furnishing you abundantly with whatsoever was needful for you, during the whole time of your abode in it? Deut. 8.3,4. & 29.5. Neh. 11. Neh.9.20,21. Psalm 78. 15,16,23,30. or, hath my service been unto you, an unfruitful service, like a barren land, which though a man take never so much pains about it, and be at never so much cost with it, yet will yeeld him nothing answerable to either? Heb.6.8. as of the service of God those complain, Job 21.15. Mal. 3.14. or rather, have I not dealt at all times bountifully and liberally with you, so long as you followed me, and continued loyal unto me? Deut.28.1,13. 2 Chron. 19.3,5. & 26.5. & 31.10. & 32. 22,23. chap.22.15. Mal.3.10.

a land of darkness?] Either by way of apposition to the former: a land of darkness, as that waste and wilde desert was: or by way of disjunction; the disjunctive supplyed, or a land of darkness; as some other horrid, and horrible place. The like wane of the disjunctive, see Esay 17.6. & 27.7. The word here used, no where else found in this form, is diverfly rendred: for the old Latine expresseth it, by a term, that hath in it a notion of latenes; as we should say, a late-ward land; that is, a land, in which it is long, or late, in the yeer, ere ought cometh up, or attaineth, at least to any maturity or growth. So is a word of the same root rendred by divers, Exod. 9.32. where it is faid, of the rye, and the wheat, they were late-ward; not so forward as the flax, and the barley: and of later fruits, the Jewish Doctours do commonly use the word: as also the Chaldee, Eccl. 11.6. and those that go this way, thus paraphrase the place; Have I been to you as a wilderness that yeeldeth no fruit at all? or, as a late-ward land, that cometh up very slowly with ought? have I been either barren towards you, or backward with you, in doing for you, as occasion required? and not rather bountifull, and forward, in conferring conferring upon you whatever your hearts could desire, Psalm 37.4. & 81.10. But the most, both Jewish, and other, go another way, as our Version also doth. The root it cometh of, is very commonly used for darkness; properly a thick, misty, pulp like darkness, Exod. 10.22. chap.23.12. Joel 2.2. Amos 5.20. Zeph. 1.15. Yea, hither also do some refer that, Exod. 9.32. of those kinds of grain, that they were yet hid in the ground, they lay in the dark; but as the simple word is used of that palpable darkness, that over-spread Egypt, Exod.10.22. fo the word, thence deduced, much of the same making with this, is used of that black, cloudy darkness, that God set between the Egyptians and the Israelites, at the red Sea, to keep them asunder, Josh.24.7. and to add a further degree unto it, the syllable jah, containing one of Gods names, whereof see on Esay 26.4. is, as the Jewish Criticks well observe here, annexed unto it; as if it were said, land of darkness of God; that is, of extream darkness: as, a flame of God, for a most vehement flame, Cant. 8.6. where a term of the same frame: and, a trembling of God, for a very great trembling, 1 Sam.14.15. and a sleep of God, for a very deep sleep, 1 Sam.26.12. Of the like form of terms, see on Esay 6. 13. and 19.24. By the word then thus resolved, is here meant, either a land of extream misery; darkness put for misery, as Sam.2. So Esay 8.22. & 9.19. or rather, a land continually possessed with extream darkness, receiving no light at all from heaven, or any of those celestial creatures: and consequently, unfit to afford abode for man or beast, and unable to produce ought that may be useful to either: and which therefore no marvel if people should abandon, to seek some place of better abode elsewhere, Psalm 107.4,5. leis then, as if God had said, Have I been such to my people, that their wants and ftreights with me, should inforce them to leave me? Some late Writers of prime note, derive the word from another root, that signifies to fall, or to shed: and render it, a land that feadeth, or feaseth her fruit, Isa.1.30. & 28.1,4. wherein nothing cometh to maturity, but falleth ere it be ripe, and fit for food: or, a land that casteth down her Inhabitants; makes them fall, and fail, either for want of food, which it yeeldeth not; or, through excessive pains, wherewith it tireth, and weareth them out in tilling of it: as Num. 13.32. and it is true, that the Jewish Criticks tell of a two-fold pointing of the word, in divers books; but neither suits well with this notation, unless we leave out a letter.

a wilderness, and a land of darkness?] For, as a wilderness, and as a land of darkness: as v.3.23.

wherefore say my people, we are Lords, we will come no more unto thee?] If my people cannot thus justly complain of me, or my service, what is the reason then, why now they think they are grown Lords, they withdraw themselves from me?

say] Entertain such thoughts; as Psalm 14.1. & 30.6. v. 25.

my people] Those that I took to me, when they were in a very low condition, to make them my peculiar people, Deut.4.20,34. & 7.6,7. & 32.9,10.

we are Lords,] The word here used, is by divers diverfly rendred. The Chaldee, as spoken in way of complaint, we are expelled, cast off, or cast out: as from an Arabick term, fain one, that signifieth to expel. One of the Jewish Commenters, we are separated from thee: to which purpose also the old Latine, we are gone, have departed, or withdrawn our selves: as God complaineth of them, chap. 5.23. The ground hereof is deemed to be from the use of a word so signifying in the Talmud: but that is of another form than this here; nor is ever so used in Scripture. But it may rather seem to have been in relation to another root, whereunto also some of the Jewish Criticks refer this: which albeit it properly signifie, to descend, or go down, Judg.19.11. yet is frequently used, without any such special intimation of descent, for to go, or to depart. See Esay 30. 2. & 31.1. & 38.8. A late learned Annotator giveth a two-fold exposition of it, diverse from any of the former: He would have it rendred, either, we will: it is our pleasure; we are resolved upon it, that we will come no more at thee, we will have nothing any longer to do with thee: from an Arabick word that fo signifieth; as he would have this also so to do, Gen.27.40. & Hosh. 11.12. or, if that is used, Lam.1.9. as if the people should complain of God, that they never had merry day, but matter of mourning, from time to time, so long as they served him. See chap. 44.17, 18. But some other of the Jewish Doctors, whom most of ours follow, and our Version concurreth with, take the word in a notion of ruling, both here, and Hos. 11.11. as also, another of neer affinity with it, doth most frequently import, Lev.26.17. Isa.14.2. and they render it therefore, we rule, or we lord it: as the Apostle seemeth to speak, 1 Cor. 4.8. Ye Lord it without us: We are grown up to a goodly Kingdom, furnished with Princes and Potentates; we have gotten that strength, that we have no further need now of thy support: and this seemeth to suit best, both with the scope of the place, and the use of the word elsewhere. See chap.22.21. Hos.8.4. The ancient Greek rendreth it, we will not be ruled: as v. 20. I will not serve: but that Version putteth in the negative, which is not in the Text, and turneth the verb out of its active form into a passive.

we will come no more unto thee] Or, at thee: we will be ruled no longer by thee; we can do well enough without thee; we will live no longer under thy strict government. So Deut.32.15. ch.22.21. See too much of this in Uzziah, 2 Chron. 26. 15, 16. a tang of it in David, Psalm 30.6. in Ezekiah, 2 Chro.32.25.

V. 32. Can a maid forget her ornaments? or, a bride her attire?] God proceedeth to discover, not the unthankful carriage only, but the extream folly of this people, who though God had not only been no fruitless land to them, as was formerly said, v. 31. but an ornament, an honour, a dignity unto them, the main matter of their glory, (see ver. 11. Isa.60.2,3,15,19. and 62.2,3.) that made them to be of high esteem and repute, in the eyes and minds of other nations, Deut.4.7,8. 2 Sam. 8.10, 13. 1 Kings 8. 41, 42. 2 Chron. 32.2,33,30. Psalm 148.14. & 149.9. Ezek. 16.10, 14. yet they were more regardless of him, than a young maid, or a bride would, or could be, of her jewels, or such her attire, and ornaments, that might grace her in the eyes of those that beheld her, Isa. 62. 10.

Can a maid forget?] Heb. will a maid forget? But it is here not amiss rendred, as in a potential notion; as the like, v. 23. and so would that be rendred, Isa.49.15.

her ornaments] Heb. ornament, or array, Ezek. 16.11. See on Isa. 49.18.

or] A defect of the disjunctive: as ver.31.

a bride] A bride, and a young maid, saith the Rabbine, are here one and the same: for no bride, but a young maid, is to wont to be set out, nor any other young maid ordinarily; and would have a glance here, to be had unto Gods espousall of her at mount Sinai, ver. 2. but this seems too nice. See Esay 49.18. and 62. 10.

her attire] Heb. her bindings; the Greek and Latine, her breastband, or stomacher: but it would rather be, her head-bands. See Isa.3.20.

yet my people have forgotten me.] Or, that my people have forgotten me. Heb. and: as Isa. 22. 20. ver. 1 1,27.

my people have forgotten me] Have given over my service, and neglect me; do no more regard or look after me, than as if they had clean forgotten me, or had never known me, Deut. 32. 15,18. Psalm 106.21. Hos.8.14. So Psalm 44. 17,20.

days without number] That is, as we use to say, time out of mind: not now alone, but for a long time past, Isa.48.8. Mal.3.7. Heb. days: now alone, but for a long time past, Isa.48.8. Mal.3.7. Heb. days: wherof there is not number: so Cant.6.8. a defect of the relative: as ver. 24.

V. 33. why trimmest thou thy way to seek love?] Heb. why doest thou do well in thy way, or, make good thy way? as chap 7.3. whence divers Interpretations arise. The moft received, both with Jews, and other: Why doest thou use so many tricks and devices to gain love, and to draw forrein people unto thee, whom thou hopest for help? See chap.4.30. The word is used, as well of evil, as of good: as Mic. 7.3. and it is used of Jezabels dressing her head, 2 Kings 9.30. See Isa. 23.16. where the word is likewise used. Others, Why doft thou use vain pretences, to varnish, and smooth over thy wicked courses, as hoping thereby to re-gain favour, and get in with God again, and as if it were possible to delude him? as Psa. 78.36,37. cha.3.4. or thereby making account to execute thy courses, as if it were only for fear of some enemy, when it is indeed for fatisfaction of thy filthy lust, that thou seekest to them. See ver. 35. Some other, in the last place, Why doest thou take such long and tedious journeys, to draw lovers, spiritual adulteresses, to thee, See Isa.57.9,10. which may very well agree with the 2 Comment upon this place: and this I take to be the genuine fenfe of it. It is well observed by a Rabbine, who yet goeth the former way, that the word is used generally to be exemplo, eminenti, or excessive, in ought: fo, to do well in play, is to play skilfully, Psal.33.3. Ezek.33.33. to do well in ought, or, to make anger good, for to be very angry, Jon. 4.4,9. to do well in evil, for to do evil, sedulously, earnestly, effectually, Mic.7.3. fo here, to do well in thy way, or, to make a good way, is to travel hard: to take a long, a tedious journey; to go a great and wearisome way.

therefore also hast thou taught the wicked ones thy ways.] There are two readings, both here, and chap.13.21. The one reading hath it in the first person; I have taught: which those that retain, expound the words, as spoken by God concerning himself. I have acquainted forrein people with the wickedness of thy ways, that they may come in to execute judgement upon thee for them, chap. 1.15, 16. & 40.2,3. Lam.4.15. But the other reading is the more generally received, and seems the right; and one of the Rabbines who retaineth it, rendreth the words, Thou hast inured, or accustomed thy self to the worst of ways: as the word was used, v.24. See chap.13. 23. But this, though one of ours approve it, seemeth somewhat forced. Others rather, with whom our Version agreeth, Thou art so lewd in thy courses, that wicked women (for the word is feminine) harlots themselves, may learn of thee; thou goest in thy filthiness so far beyond them, ch.5.28. 2 Chro.33.9. Ezr. 5.6.7. & 16.31,33, 34. 48.

Therefore] Or, as one of the Jewish Commenters, surely, verily: whom one of ours following, would have this particle to be also so taken, Gen.4.15. chap.5.2. Hos.2.16. which may do not amiss here: so acen, and lacen, should in those places be the same.

V. 34. Also in thy skirts is found the blood of the souls of the poor innocents] Thou art guilty not of spiritual adultery, idolatry alone, but of murther also, and that of poor innocents, which thou hast added added thereunto: the marks and evidences whereof are so fresh upon thee, that it cannot be either concealed, or denyed.

Also] Over and above, or beside thine idolatry, Ezek. 16.20,21. 2 Kings 21, 16.

in thy skirts] Heb. in thy wings, Psalm 91. 4. Isa. 18. 1. whence some would have it to be an allusion to fowls of prey, eagles, or patterocks, that having seised upon chickens, pigeons, partridge, or the like, and torn them in pieces, have their wings, and feathers, all over stained with the bloud of them. See chap. 12. 9. But neither is the word in this form, used of them: and the Text seems rather to look another way. The word wing, is used commonly for the skirt of a garment, Num. 15. 38. 2 Sam. 24. 4, 5, 11. and wings, for skirts, Deut. 22. 12. in this form especially: and it is rather therefore an allusion unto such, as having been killing people, and shedding of bloud, have their garments stained and defiled with gore bloud, Isa. 63. 2, 3. For that learned Scholiast seems to me strangely to torture the Text, who expoundeth it of blood concret, drawn from such, as she should hire to commit filthiness with her: to blood here should be somewhat like that, John 1. 13. and garment, such as Jude 23. but the notion is too obscene, and the exposition forced.

the blood of the souls of poor innocents] That is, either simply the bloud of such: souls, for persons, as Exod. 1. 5. 1 Pet. 3. 20. or, their life-blood, as we use to say: for some bloud may be let out, and drawn from one, and yet life left: soul, for life, as chap. 19. 9. and 34. 20. the former I suppose the right; but the form makes the speech the more pathetical.

of the poor innocents] Or, of poor innocents: for there is no article in the Text, which, as it is here rendred, might very well be understood of their children, which they slew in sacrifice to their idols, 2 Kings 16. 3. and 21. 6. Psalm 106. 37, 38. chap. 7. 31. and 19. 5. Ezek. 16. 20, 21, 36. and 23. 37. but according to the usual course of construction in Hebrew, wherein the manner is to place the substantive before the adjective, it should rather be rendred innocent poor ones: and so comprehend (though not excluding those) all the bloud, that by oppression, and evil practices, was shed in Jerusalem: Of the abundance whereof, see 2 Kings 21. 16. and 24. 4. Isa. 1. 15, 23. and 59. 3, 7. Ezek. 7. 23. and 9. 9. Lam. 4. 14. For otherwise, that of the poorer sort of men they used to make sacrifices when they could come by them, is not by any testimony or Scripture so evident; that of Hos. 13. 2. is ambiguous.

I have not found it by secret search, but upon all these.] There needs no search be made for the discovery of it: it is apparent to be seen upon all parts of thine apparel.

by secret search] By narrow search, or, by privy search: as we use to speak. Heb. by digging: thorow walls, Ezek. 8. 8. and 12. 5. or, by looking open: of doors, or houses, Exod. 22. 2. One of the Rabbines, whom a late learned Writer also followeth, readeth the words, Thou didst not finde them breaking up of houses (or, with such a tool, as Thieves are wont to carry about them, and to make use of for that purpose) but because of all these things, didst thou slay them: to wit, because they repoved thee for them, and would not do as thou didst. But this offereth over-much force to the Text: from which the old Latine strayeth not a little in the former branch, that rendreth the words, I have not found them in ditches: that is, fay they, that follow it, in obscure cells and caves: such as harlots had wont to lurk in out of sight: but thou exercisest thy fornications, in open, publick, and eminent places, Isa. 57. 7. Ezek. 16. 24. true indeed, but nothing to the Prophets purpose in this place: and the Greek as far in the latter branch, rendring the words, but upon every tree, or oak; which some of the Ancients expound of the trees, under which they slew them in sacrifice, v. 20. And a late learned Writer of the oaks, or trees, that they found those poor fouls climbing up to get food, when they seized on them, to make sacrifices of them: but the errour ariseth from a gross mistake of the word, which the Latine discovered, and the interpretation is so unworthy to worthy an Authour.

but upon all these] Bet; as v. 27. upon all these: to wit, the skirts of thy garments: as if he should say, Thy garments are all over stained with bloud: not your hands only, as Isa. 1. 15. See 1 Kin. 2. 5.

V. 35. Yet thou saist, Because I am innocent, surely his anger shall turn from me.] Heb. And: as ver. 27, 32. But it may well be read in way of interrogation, And saist thou, so, or, Canst thou say, or, David thou (or, thou (yet after all this, hast thou the face to say it) I am guiltless? Sure his anger will turn from me. See ver. 23.

Because] Or, That: as Isa. 52. 5, 6. But I suppose the particle here redundant: thou saist that I am clear, for thou saist I am clear: as Rev. 3. 17. thou saist that I am rich, for thou saist I am rich.

I am innocent] Cleer, guiltless. So the Prov. 30. 20.

his anger shall turn from me] Heb. is turned from me: but the time past is used oft in a future notion. So Mic. 7. 8. I have risen, for I shall rise. God hath no cause to be angry with me: Gods anger is said to turn away, when he ceaseth to manifest it, Isa. 5. 25. and 9. 11.

behold, I will plead with thee, because thou saist, I have not sinned.] For this very cause I will plead with thee, because thou pleadest not guilty; and by pleading not guilty, dost redouble thy guilt. So the Rabbine, The denial of a fault, is a doubling of it.

I will plead with thee] Or, I will proceed in judgment against thee. Heb. I will be judged with thee: as Isa. 66. 16. chap. 25. 31.

because thou saist, I have not sinned.] Because thou standest upon thy justification, ver. 23, 29. and wilt not be brought to acknowledge thy sin, chap. 3. 13. though the proofs and evidences of it are so pregnant against thee, ver. 20, 23, 34. I will, without any further debate, proceed to pass sentence upon thee, and put it speedily in execution, chap. 1. 18. One of the Jewish Doctours knits to this verse, the last words of the fore-going, ver. 34. as having reference to this clause, thus reading the Text: For all these things, and because thou saist, I am not guilty——I will enter into judgement with thee. But these words seem rather to have reference to what went before there, as was above shewed.

V. 36. Why gaddest thou about so much to change thy way?] To what end dost thou run to and fro in this manner, one while one way, another while another way, to seek succours abroad? Isa. 57. 10. v. 18, 25. chap. 14. 10. like a Trader that haunteth Marts and Markets, repairing now to one, then to another, Ezek. 27. 19. where the same word is used; one while sending to the Assyrians, 2 Kings 16. 7. 2 Chron. 28. 16. Hos. 5. 13. another while to the Egyptians, Isa. 30. 2. and 31. 1. chap. 37. 5. Hos. 12. 2.

to change thy way] Or rather, changing thy way: for this was not the end of her gadding, to change her way; but the manner of her gadding rather, that she did in gadding, change her way: or, did so gad to and fro, that she was oft taking a new way: so the particle is used, and this form would be rendred, Gen. 3. 22. Exod. 14. 11. Num. 5. 6. Deut. 9. 18. See Isa. 3. 8. & 10. 2.

thou also shalt be ashamed of Egypt, as thou wast ashamed of Assyria] Thou shalt receive no more succour, or relief from the one, than thou didst formerly from the other.

thou also shalt be ashamed of Egypt] Thou, as well as others, that resort to Egypt for succour, Isa. 36. 6. for the words thus rendred, may seem to import: but that is not the genuine intendment of them. They would rather be rendred, as they lie in the Original, Of Egypt also thou shalt be ashamed, or, thou shalt be ashamed of Egypt also: that the collation may appear to stand between Egypt and Assyria, not between other people, and themselves.

of Egypt] As they were, Isa. 20. 5. and 30. 5. and 31. 5. chap. 22. 22. and 37. 7. 2 Kin. 24. 7. of Assyria] Who distressed them, rather than delivered them, 2 Chron. 28. 20.

V. 37. Yea, thou shalt go forth from him, and thine hands upon thine head.] Thine Embassadour shall return from Egypt, whither thou hadst sent them for succour, v. 18. with heavy hearts, and in a dejected habit; having their expectation frustrate, and failing of those ends, which from thence thou hopedst to obtain. Thus the most: Howbeit, one of the Hebrew Commenters rendreth it, Thou shalt go from hence, from the place where thou now art, into captivity: nor shall all aids thou canst procure from Egypt, or any other, be able to save thee, chap. 37. 7, 10. And this I conceive to be the genuine sense of the place.

from him] Heb. from this; to wit, place; as, in this, for in this place, Num. 22. 19. 1 Sam. 14. 34.

and thine hands upon thine head:] Or, with thine hands upon thine head: for so the copulative oft knitteth notions together, so Isa. 35. 10. 59. 13. shall return, and come to Sion, and joy upon their heads, for with joy upon their heads: and chap. 1. 13. I see a boiling pot, and the face of it North-ward, for with its face North-ward.

the hands on the head] A lamenting gesture, used commonly by women, importing extream grief, and anguish of heart and spirit. See an instance of it in Tamar, ravished by her brother Amnon, 2 Sam. 13. 19. and well suiteth with one expelled her country, and going out into captivity.

for the Lord hath rejected thy confidences] Rejected; as Isa. 41. 9. or, refused; as Job 34. 33. where opposed to choosing. Thus if we take it here, we may, with the Rabbine, read it, The Lord hath rejected thee for thy confidences. God, because of thy resting upon foreign forces, and not relying upon him, (2 Chron. 16. 7.) hath rejected, and cast thee off, chap. 6. 30. and 7. 29. a defect of the pronoun: as Isa. 51. 23. and 60. 15. of the particle for; as Mal. 2. 5. or, the word may signifie, as it doth frequently, despised: as it is rendred, Psalm 53. 5. Judg. 9. 38. Esa. 33. 8. or, abhorred: as Job 7. 16. And referring it, as our Version doth, to the confidences, I suppose it may well be rendred, the Lord disalloweth: for what we reject, or refuse, we disallow: or, setteth light by them: for so we do what we despise: or, as some render it, the Lord abhorreth them: he cannot abide such perfidious dealing, God approveth not of these thy courses, that thou takest for the securing of thy self: he protesteth against them by his Prophets, Isa. 30. 1, 15. or, he setteth light by them, he scorneth them, and your folly, in imagining to secure your selves by them, Isa. 30. 6. and 31. 2, 3. Either of these will well fit with the words of the Text. I incline to the first. and thou shalt not prosper in them.] Or, therefore thou shalt not prosper by them: so is the copulative oft used, chap. 1. 17. ver. 9. No counsels can prosper, that God approves not, Psalm 1. 6.

CHAP.

Chap: iii

Verse 1. They say, That the first Verse is the end of this chapter belong to the former; but the judgment of many of the best Interpreters, as well as reason has often taught us to hold them to the former, is that wherein they are much puzzled. This first word may seem to imply, that the discourse should begin with a continuation of the former argument; and those that so deem, render it, as indeed it signifieth word for word, saying; as Chap. 2. 1. Yet among these again, there is some difference, as there was about the sense of the last clause of the foregoing discourse: for one of the Jewish Doctors supposeth, that God in the speech subjoyned, rendreth a reason, why he must needs reject Jerusalem; to wit, because his own Law had said, that if a man should take again his wife, that had been separated from him, and had been joyned to another, the land would be defiled by it; and therefore he could not without some aspersion, and dishonour to himself, receive her again, who had left him, and joyned her self to idols, until he had given her up into the hands of her enemies, and by a long and tedious captivity under such, made her to forget those her lovers, whom she had adjoyned her self unto. Some of ours, and those of note, suppose the coherence to be this, God rejecteth the courses that thou trustest to, and will frustrate them, and turn them to as shine evil, because of thine obstinacy; saying, That if a man should repent indeed of them, he would receive these again, though an husband in such case by the Law might not do it; but that there is no such matter with thee; for thou perseverest still in thy wicked wonted courses, vers. 2, 5. A learned Scholiast coming after them, though not standing in the text he concur with them, yet receiving no satisfaction (it seems) from these their expositions, faith onely, that the coherence is obscure, and so leaveth them, and it. And indeed most Interpreters here leave them, supposing this passage to make entrance into a new argument, whereby God yet professeth a willingness to receive the Jewish State again into grace and favour, notwithstanding their manifold profe-espalled abominations, upon their sincere acknowledgment thereof, and serious repentance for the same; albeit, in the like case, an husband so used, by the Law might not so do: and they render the former, some, It is said, Some, They say. Some it is said; put the case, as we say: That which our ancienter Versions seem to have followed. The old Latine, It is commonly said; Whence some gather, that it was grown to be a vulgar, or proverbial speech, common in mens mouths, when they would intimate some irreconcileable matter; A woman that is gone from her husband, and hath been joyned to another, may not again be entertained: and this indeed seems to be the right notion of the term here, though none of them, that so expresse it, either give instance of it, or shew any ground for it. It is in the Hebrew onely in the infinitive mood, in a gerundial notion, with a particle prefixed, and knit to it, saying, or, In saying: but these infinitives are frequently used in an emphatical, but defective form of speech: whereof, see instances not a few, on Isa. 59. 13. Of this word, in this very form with the particle, see Isa. 44. 28. where it is as here, in saying to Jerusalem, for, That in saying fay of Jerusalem; as the foregoing words, v. 26. where the verb finite is expressed, do plainly shew; as also, Isa. 9. 9. which cometh full home to this, In saying one of the pride and stoutness of hearts. In saying, they say, for, they say commonly, or they use to say. So is it more fully with the participle, Chap. 23. 17. They are saying saying, that is, they are still, commonly, or continually saying; and with the verb finite, Ezek. 28. 9. wilt thou in saying say, for wilt thou still say? Our received Version therefore may well be retained, They say; for the speech is indefinite; though the Latine be more full; and our English might so also be, if it were rendred, They say commonly, or, They use to say: and we would not have recourse to such strained and forced conmen to those other Interpreters are enforced to flee unto. The like syntax is also, Isaiah 44. 14.

If a man put away his wife, and she go from him, and become another mans, shall he return unto her again?] In this form it may be, that this proverbial speech was used among them, when somewhat was pressed upon them, that their stomacks went against, as to be reconciled to one, whom they conceived to have deeply wronged them, or against whom they had conceived some deadly fewd; Should a man entertain a wife again, that he had cast off, when she hath been another mans? Howsoever it is apparent, that the interrogative here hath the force of a negative, which it addeth also to some emphasis unto, and the Law expresly forbids it, Deut. 24. 1, 4.

put away] Heb. send, or, send out; as Gen. 8. 7, 8. or, as we use to say, dismiss, and it is commonly used of such dismission, or divorce, as is here intimated, Deut. 22. 19, 29. & 24. 1, 3, 4. Isa. 50. 1. Mal. 2. 16.

become another mans] Heb. be to another man. So Lev. 22. 12. Deu. 24. 2.

shall he return unto her again?] That is, may he entertain her to be his wife again? No, he may not; for so the words of the Law are, He may not return to take her (that is, receive her again) to be his wife, as before the had been. Howbeit, it may seem that these words have not so much an eye to the inhibition of the Law, as to the usual dispositions of mens minds in such cases: and it is not therefore said, It is said in the Law, as our Saviour saith, It is written in your Law, John 8. 17. or, The Law saith it; as the Apostle, Doth not the Law say it? 1 Cor. 9. but, They say; it is that which men commonly use to say: and the words therefore may well be rendred, will he, or would he return to her again? That is, Would he be reconciled again to her? for that is the usual notion of turning, in such forms, Isa. 63. 17. Zach. 1. 16. & 8. 3. would any man take such an one into favour again? could he set his affection so again upon her, as to be reconciled to her, and entertain her again? albeit, that there were no law, that inhibited the doing of it.

Shall not that land be greatly polluted?] Or, Should not that land be exceedingly profaned? Heb. in being profane, be profaned? for these geminations of the word have much emphasis in them. So polluting pollute, Lev. 13. 44. for so the words there are. The Land, or State, wherein such base and abominable courses should be suffered, that women should go to and fro enterchangeably, in such manner forward, and backward, from man to man, would become vile, and much loosenesse, and dissolute carriage would be, in it, thereby occasioned: and this is deemed to have respect to those words of the law; It is a thing abominable in Gods sight, and thou shalt not make the land to sin. Deut. 24. 4. and thou shalt not make the land to sin. Deut. 24. 4. and by such promiscuous couplings, lands are said to be defiled, Levit. 18. 27, 28. the same word, and form of speech, concerning a land, or state, see Num. 35. 33. Psal. 106. 38. Isa. 24. 5. Yet there want not that read, and render the words; Is not that land profaned, or, polluted? That is, Is not the land that this people dwell in exceedingly profaned and polluted, by the manifold abominations that they commit, and exercise in it? vers. 2. 9. But I go rather with the former.

But thou hast played the harlot with many lovers:] Heb. and thou hast committed fornication with many friends, or companions; and accordding to the latter exposition of the former branch, the copulative may well be in his proper sense retained, carrying on the demand, Is not the land wherein thou dwellest, or, which the Lord thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, Deut. 24. 4.) extreamly profaned, or polluted, by thee? and hast not thou committed fornication with many thy mates? or, by thy committing fornication with many mates? as the copulative is used, Chap. 1. 13. & 2. 39. Howbeit, following the word, some, It is said, Some, They say. Some it is said; put the case, as we say: That which our ancienter Versions seem to have followed. The old Latine, It is commonly said; Whence some gather, that it was grown to be a vulgar, or proverbial speech, common in mens mouths, when they would intimate some irreconcileable matter; A woman that is gone from her husband, and hath been joyned to another, may not again be entertained: and this indeed seems to be the right notion of the term here, though none of them, that so expresse it, either give instance of it, or shew any ground for it. it be the attribute there of any place or no, and the improbability of his going down into the vale, or the plain, there to meet God; who would not imagine, that, I say not, Balaam might, but that he should rather, though being already on the high places whereon they used to sacrifice, yet ſtep aſide to ſome cliff, as ſome not amiſs render it; or to ſome place ſomewhat higher and more eminent, than that where he and the reſt then were? ſo that this place little helpeth to ſtrengthen this new conceit; and that, Iſa. 13. 1. where the Hebrew uſe and notion of the verb original, plainly diſcovereth it ſelf in an attribute given to an high mountain; beſides, thoſe other places where it is uſed, both here, and elſewhere, in this prophecy; as verſ. 21. Chap. 4. 11. & 7. 29. & 12. 12. & 14. 6. do ſeem clearly to carry it the received way; as when we come to ſcan them, ſhall be ſhewed. It is true, that the Chaldee oft-times renders it ſtreams, or floods; and from him one of the Jewiſh Commenters (but none of the ſoundeſt) in this place ſo expoundeth it: but ſtreams, though they run in the valleys, yet they come down thither from the hils, Pſalm 104. 10. and ſtreams of water are promiſed on the lofty mountains, Iſaiah 31. 25. as well as in the valleys, Iſa. 41. 18. ſee on the place. The ancient Greek, and old Latine, here, as alſo elſewhere, render it right forward, little regarding how it ſuiteth with the ſequel.

ſee where thou haſt not been lien with] Implying, that there was ſcarce any place free from her pollutions, Iſa. 57. 5, 8, Chap. 2. 20. verſ. 6, 13. Of the word here uſed; as alſo, Deut. 28. 30. (in which place, as in this, the over-mannerly Maſorets have been pleaſed to check the Pen-men of Scripture, and appoint an honeſter term to be read in the room of that they found written.) See on Iſaiah 13. 16.

in the ways haſt thou ſate for them, as the Arabian in the wilderneſs:] Thou haſt carryed thy ſelf, like ſome ſtrumpet, that is wont to ſit by the high-way ſide, waiting and watching for cuſtomers: the manner of ſuch, that of Tamar ſheweth, Gen. 38. 14. See Ezek. 16. 24, 25, 31.

ſate for them] That is, ſate looking, or waiting, for them; to wit, for thoſe thy companions, and copelmates, verſ. 1. a complexive form of ſpeech; as Chap. 2. 28.

As the Arabian in the wilderneſs] The Greek rendreth it, as a Crow in the wilderneſs; becauſe the word for a Crow, in Hebrew, hath the ſame radical letters with this; but the vowels differ much: nor is the form the ſame in either. The old Latine hath, as a thief in the wilderneſs: and the Arabians are indeed to this day noted for people that live much upon pillage: which trade, ſuch as follow, are wont to lye in wait by the high-way ſide, in waſte, or woody places, eſpecially for paſſengers, to ſpoyl them, Judg. 9. 25. Hoſ. 6. 9. Luk. 10. 30. But others rather, and ſo the Jewiſh Writers, conceive it to have reference to another uſage of that people, who dwelling in tents, and inhabiting thoſe deſarts, by which Merchants uſed to paſs with wares and commodities, were wont to pitch their tents neer to the places of their ordinary paſſage; and there to wait their coming, to truck and trade with them. See Gen. 37. 25. Job 6. 19. Iſa. 15. 7. & 21. 13. and ſo the reſemblance agreeth very well; ſhe waited for her cuſtomers, (as they for their chap-men) whom ſhe drove a trade with. See the ſame collation laid the other way, Iſa. 23. 17, 18.

in the wilderneſs] As thoſe of Arabia the deſart: who are hence alſo by ſome thought to have their name. See Iſa. 21. 13.

and thou haſt polluted thy land with thy whoredoms, and thy wickedneſs.) Or, profaned thy land (as verſ. 1.) with thy whoredoms, and thy naughtineſs; as with thine idolatries, ſo with other thy wicked courſes, and oppreſſion and murther, Chap. 2. 34. See Chap. 16. 18. Ezek. 36. 17.

V. 3. Therefore the ſhowrs have been withholden;] Thou haſt been chaſtiſed with drought, Deut. 28. 23, 24. Iſa. 5. 6. See Chap. 9. 12. & 14. 1, 2, 22.

Therefore] Heb. And; yet ſo the copulative is taken, Ch. 1. 17. & 2. 19. but I ſuppoſe here rather; as verſ. 1. (See there) And though; for Gods purpoſe is here to note out her incorrigible diſpoſition, that by no gentle chaſtiſement would be brought to ſhame of, or ſorrow for, her ſin, Chap. 3. 20. and 5. 3.

the ſhowrs] That is, fay the Jewiſh Doctors here, the former rain, that falleth uſually in the eighth moneth, called Marcheſvan, or Bull, 1 King. 6. 38. containing part of our October, and part of November; and was requiſite for the bringing up of their ſeed; called therefore the ſeeds rain, Iſa. 30. 23. to which purpoſe alſo, was the more ſtore of rain in thoſe regions, being hotter, and the ground generally dryer than with us, required; and in regard whereof it is ſaid, Joel 2. 23. that God will give them the former rain in juſtice, or, unto juſtice: which our Verſion rendreth moderately. Some other, duly, in his due ſeaſon, Deut. 11. 13. I ſhould rather ſay plentifully, or, liberally; as Pſal. 68. 9. in juſt and full meaſure; as Pſa. 72. 3. Hoſ. 10. 12. and it is therefore alſo here ſo called, by a term, that hath a notion of muchneſs, or multitude in it; uſed alſo, Deut. 32. 2. (where it is diſtinguiſhed from the ſmaller rain, that drilleth down, as thin as an hair) Pſal. 65. 10. & 72. 6. Chap. 14. 22. Mic. 5. 7. though it have another name more peculiar to it elſewhere: whereof ſee Chap. 5. 24. and Iſaiah 30. 20. as alſo in regard hereof, that moneth wherein it uſually falleth, is ſaid to be called the moneth of Bull, from the abundance of rain then falling, as making a deluge: and this the rather ſeems probable, becauſe it is diſtinguiſhed here from the latter rain: though the word otherwiſe be more general.

have been with-holden] To wit, from thee, and from thy land, Amos 4. 7. The reaſon, ſee Chap. 5. 25.

and there hath been no latter rain] Heb. latter rain was not: the latter rain, is that which falleth in the firſt moneth, Joel 2. 23. called Niſan, by a Syriack term, Neh. 2. 1. Abib, by an Hebrew, Exod. 13. 4. containing part of our March, and part of our April: this was much deſired for the filling of their corn, being then in the ear, and the fitting of it for harveſt; for from the corn then eared, hath that moneth its name in Hebrew. See Job 29. 23. Prov. 16. 15. And this latter rain ſeems to have its name from a word found onely, Amos 7. 1. where it is commonly deemed to ſignifie the latter hay, or graſs; by the Latines called ſanum cordum, ſo not a few render it; but I conceive it rather with one of the Rabbines, (whom yet I find none that follow) to ſignifie that which the Latines call culmum, and ſtipulam, the corn, ſaith he, grown up unto its cane, or reed, that is, ſtem, or ſtalk: Before which, while it is yet in the blade, it is oft, either cut down for, or eaten down by cattel, ere it groweth over-rank: A courſe not unuſual, at this day with us, for the ſoiling of ſtoned horſes; and ſuch, in likelyhood, were the Kings horſes, for which ſuch corn was cut.

and thou haddſt a whores fore-head, thou refuſedſt to be aſhamed.] Some others, but; as Ch. 2. 25. I rather, yet; as Ch. 2. 35. For all my chaſtiſement of thee, in this manner, yet thou wouldſt not be drawn to take ſhame to thy ſelf, to acknowledge thy ſin with ſhame; as Ezra 9. 6. or to be aſhamed of what thou haſt done, and to repent thee of the ſame; but like a common ſtrumpet, that is aſhamed of nothing, but to ſeem aſhamed of ought; thou haſt perſiſted in the open practice of thy former uncleannеſſes, Ch. 6. 15, & 8. 12. Amos 4. 7, 8. Zeph. 3. 5.

a whores fore-head] A proverbial form; ſhame appears in the face, Pſal. 69. 7. Dan. 9. 8. and none more ſhameleſs, than common harlots, whence Babylon hath her title, telling what ſhe is written in her fore-head, Rev. 17. 5.

V. 4. Wilt thou not from this time cry unto me, My Father, thou are the guide of my youth?] There is a two-fold reading in the original. The one runneth thus; Have not I cryed unto thee, to wit, by my Prophets, that thou ſhouldeſt ſay of me, Thou art my Father, and the guide of my youth? But this both forceth, and forceth the text beyond reaſon, or due regard. The moſt, both Jewiſh, and ours, follow the other, which our Verſion alſo exhibiteth; yet do they differ much in the expoſition of it: For ſome take it, as ſpoken in the time future; Wilt thou not at length, lear ning wiſdom by thoſe chaſtiſements, wherewith thou haſt already been exerciſed; and finding by woful experience, how little relief thou canſt get from theſe, on whom thou relied'ſt, repent thee of thy folly, and ſeek again to me? Chap. 8. 4, 5. Eſa. 1. 5. & 9. 12, 13. Some, in the time preſent, as intimating her ſhamelеſneſs, verſ. 3. as if it were ſaid, Dareſt thou yet, after all this? Or, haſt thou the face to cry unto me in ſuch terms as theſe, & ask whether I will ever retain wrath towards thee? where as thou goeſt on ſtill to give me juſt occaſion ſo to do. Others, again, in the time paſt, rendring the words, Didſt thou not from this time cry unto me? Or, Haſt thou not from this time cryed unto me? That is, Didſt thou not yet all this while make ſhew, as if thou haddſt not left me, but didſt ſtill continue loyal and faithful to me? for in the deepeſt of their idolatries, they would ſeem ſtill to retain Gods ſervice. 2 King. 17. 32, 33, 41. Chap. 7. 9, 10. Ezek. 23. 38, 39. Zeph. 1. 5. Or, Have ye not ſince your rain hath been reſtrained, and ye have been puniſhed with drought and dearth, in fawning, but falſe-hearted manner, fought unto me, imagining thereby, though without reformation, or amendment of ought amiſs, to paciſie my wrath, and obtain ſome releaſement of the preſent evil? Chap. 2. 35. & 36. 6. Pſal. 78. 34, 37. Iſa. 48. 1, 2. & 58. 2, 3. Hoſ. 5. 15. & 6. 1, 4. & 7. 14. and this expoſition, the form of the verb favourcth, being in the time paſt, and is more probable, than that of ſome other, who (either not regarding the negative particle here, or taking it onely for a note of interrogation, as in Greek ſometime it is; and as ſome other of note alſo do, Mal. 1. 10.) render the words: Wilt thou, or, wilt thou ſtill cry unto me, in this manner? as the ſpeech of God, reproving them, for repairing, or ſeeking to him, whom they had formerly caſt off, to run after idols, and others: not unlike that, Judg. 10. 13, 14. Pſal. 50. 16. Chap. 2. 26. Ezek. 20. 39.

Wilt thou not cry?] Or, Haſt thou not cried?

from this time] Wherein I now admoniſh thee, Chap. 2. 25. or, wherein I have chaſtiſed thee, verſ. 3.

cry to me] Or, call me; as Iſa. 2. 19. Ch. 33. 3. Hoſ. 2. 18. for in this ſyntax, the particle is oft redundant.

O my Father,] Lamenting as a child to his Father offended; as Luk. 15. 21. Chap. 31. 18. not unlike that of David, to Saul, 1 Sam. 24. 11. or, My Father, by way of appoſition; call me as I command thee, and would have thee to call me, verſ. 19. and as thou oughteſt to do: call me thy Father; ſo account, and ſo acknowledge me, verſ. 19. that is, one that have loved thee as a Father, carryed a Fatherly affection towards thee, Deu. 8. 5. Pſa. 103. 13. Mal. 3. 16. or that hath hath been thy Maker, Iſa. 43. 1. & 44. 2. & 64. 8. for what one upon the place ſuggeſteth, that the manner was among the Jews, that the bride delivered over to the bridegroom, uſed then to call him her Father; becauſe ſhe was then to leave her Father, and cleave wholly to him, Gen. 2. 24. and he thence-forth, to be as a Father to her, ſeems groundleſs, and nothing probable.

the guide of my youth] Becauſe the old Latine hath it, the guide of my virginity: therefore ſome would haue this, to reſpect the name of Father, before, given unto God here: for the Father, ſay they, hath the care and charge of his daughters virginity, until ſhe be joyned unto an husband, Deut. 22. 15, 16. But this conceit hath no place here; and ſome other, though acknowledging the right reading, yet by guide of my youth, underſtand one, that hath ſoſtered, and brought me up from my youth, my foſter-father, as we uſe to ſay. But the words, which in the original are expreſly, as we have them, contain in them, the ordinary ſtyle of an husband, Prov. 2. 16. eſpecially ſuch an one, as hath marryed a wife, in her youth, or younger years, Mal. 2. 14. as God did this people, Cha. 2. 2. and to him, in divers reſpects, are theſe two relative titles given, the name of a Father, as he made them a People, a Church, and a State, Iſa. 64. 8. the name of an husband, as by entring into covenant with them, he eſpouſed them to himſelf, Ezek. 16. 8. See Iſa. 54. 5. the words may be read, as the former, in way of compellation alſo, if we ſo take them, O thou the guide of my youth; as the words of a wife, ſeeking for reconciliation to her husband, being juſtly diſpleaſed with her, 1 Cor. 7. 11. or, as they are in our Verſion, calling upon God, in ſuch terms, as he likes, and allows, Hoſ. 2. 1, 6.

V. 5. Will he reſerve his anger for ever? will he keep it to the end?] Theſe words, the Jewiſh Doctors make the Prophets words, by an interrogation, implying an undoubted negative; as if he had ſaid, Would'ſt thou but thus ſeek unto God, God (thou needeſt not doubt of it) would no longer retain his wrath, but would be at one with thee again, verſ. 12. Deut. 4. 29, 31. & 30. 1, 3. 2 Chr. 7. 13, 14. But others, the moſt, and beſt, rather underſtand them, as the words of the people, running on in a continued tenour with the former; and thoſe either enjoyned them to uſe, and required to be uſed of them; as Hoſ. 14. 2, 3. Joel 2. 17. or uſed indeed by them: and complaining unto God (though not in ſincerity) as Gods own people are oft wont to do, when ſome breach hath fallen out between him and them, lamenting and complaining of the continuance of his wrath and indignation, and labouring to paciſie, and appeaſe it again. See Pſal. 77. 7-9. & 85. 5. Iſa. 64. 12.

reſerve his anger for ever] A defect of the noun, for the verb to paſs unto; as Gen. 42. 33. take, for, take food; gather, for, gather grapes, Lev. 25. 11. eat, for, eat bread, Chap. 16. 7. tread down, for, tread down their enemies, Zach. 10. 5. and in the preſent notion very rife. So Lev. 19. 18. thou ſhalt not reſerve againſt the children of thy people, Pſal. 103. 9. He doth not reſerve, or retain, for ever, Nah. 1. 2. he reſerveth for his enemies: and hereafter again, I will not retain for ever, verſ. 12. now the Jewiſh Doctors here inſert to make the ſenſe full, thy ſin, I will not always keep in mind thy ſin, Iſa. 43. 25. chap. 31. 34. and indeed ſo it ſeems, to be not unfitly made up in that place of the law, Thou ſhalt not revenge nor retein, keep in mind a wrong or upkindneſs done thee; which ſome of the Jewiſh thus explain. Simeon commeth to Reuben to borrow an ax of him, and he denies it him, ſome time after Reuben comes to Simeon to borrow of him a ladder. If Simeon anſwer him, I will not lend you my ladder becauſe you would not lend me your ax, he revengeth; if he ſay, though you would not lend me your ax, yet I will lend you my ladder, he reteineth: thus they. Howbeit, in the moſt places, and ſo here, the word wrath ſeems to do beſt.

to the end] Or, perpetually, without end, for ever; for is is in notion the ſame with the former. See Iſa. 13. 20. & 25. 8. So 2 Sam. 2. 26. Pſal. 9. 19.

Behold, thou haſt ſpoken, and done evil things, as thou couldeſt.] Here we meet with a double reading again: for ſome copies have it, I ſpake, or, I have ſpoken. I Gods Prophet, or, I the Lord, by my Prophet, have ſpoken to thee, and admoniſhed thee of theſe things, endeavouring to reclaim thee, verſ. 4. Chap. 2. 25. but thou perſiſteſt ſtill in thy wicked courſes, and will not be reclaimed. But the other reading, which our Verſion exhibiteth, is moſt generally received; yet with ſome variety of expoſition: for ſome render the text, as here we have it, Thou haſt ſpoken, and done evil things as thou couldeſt: what thou haſt ſpoken of thy deſperate reſolution, Chap. 2. 25. that thou makeſt good by thy wicked actions, obſtinately perſiſting in the practice of evil, all that poſsibly thou canſt, Chap. 8. 6. Or, as ſome other, Thou doſt both ſpeak, and do evil ſtill, and preſumeſt; to wit, by thy obſtinate wickedneſs againſt my goodneſs, that I cannot remit, or ſlacken my wrath. See Chap. 15. 6. & 44. 22. Rom. 12. 21. Others again, ſuppoſing the foregoing words to be the ſpeech of the people, thus thou haſt ſpoken, but (as Ch. 2. 11, 25.) thou didſt wickedly ſtill all thou couldeſt; as Hoſea 7. 14. they cry not with their heart to me, when they howl on their beds; they aſſemble themſelves, to ſeek to me for their corn, and their wine, but they rebel ſtill againſt me. So Iſa. 58. 2, 3. And this laſt expoſition ſeems to me very probable.

as thou couldeſt] Heb. and thou couldeſt: which ſome render, thou prevaileſt, or haſt prevailed; which they ſeem to expound diverſly; one, of their perſiſtence in evil; what thou reſolveſt on, thou goeſt on in, and there is no ſtopping, or reſtraining of thee. Chap. 2. 24. & 8. 6. Another, of prevailing againſt Gods gracious diſpoſition, and reſtraining him, from ſhewing favour to them, as otherwiſe he would, Chap. 5. 7, 9. Another again, of prevailing with God, upon his repentance; and he renders the text, Haſt thou thus ſaid, though thou haſt done evil things, yet thou ſhouldeſt have prevailed: and ſo indeed is the word uſed, 1 Kin. 22. 22. Ch. 38. 22. But here it ſeemeth rather to go in its moſt ordinary ſenſe, and the text to run with it moſt ſmoothly: and thou couldeſt, that is, either, when thou couldeſt: ſo the copulative is uſed, Ch. 34. 1. whenſoever thou canſt get any opportunity of putting thy wicked plots and purpoſes in practice, Mic. 2. 1. Or, as thou couldeſt; What thou couldeſt, as far as thou waſt able, or haddſt power in thine hand; as Mic. 2. 1. If thou didſt not always what thou haddſt determined to do, it was for want of ability; not for want of good-will. So is the copulative uſed, Job 21. 33. & 34. 3. and ſo it anſwers that, Gen. 44. 1. as they can carry, that is, as much as they are able to bear. The Jewiſh Critick obſerveth here, that the former two verbs are feminine; this maſculine; which to ſalve, he ſaith, that the former hath reference to the word congregation; the latter, to the word, people. See the like, Iſa. 27. 7, 8. But of the promiſcuous uſe of the genders, ſee on Iſa. 15. 1. and on Chap. 2. 24, 33.

V. 6. The Lord alſo ſaid unto me, in the days of Joſiah the King;] Here, as moſt agree, beginneth a new Sermon wherein the Lord, by the Prophet, firſt relateth Iſraels revolt from him, and how thereupon he had dealt with them: Then taxeth Judah, and that as herein worſe than Iſrael, in having not taken warning by what had befallen Iſrael: yet inviteth both to repentance, promiſeth reſtitution, upon repentance; and a re-uniting of both people under the Meſſias: which gracious invitation the faithful party accept of, and make their addreſſes unto God.

The Lord alſo] Heb. And the Lord; as Chap. 1. 3. or, Moreover; as Chap. 1. 11. or, Again; as Iſa. 8. 1. becauſe it beginneth a new Sermon.

ſaid unto me] Acquainted me by revelation, to this purpoſe, with his mind. So verſ. 11. Chap. 11. 6.

in the days of Joſiah the King] Under the reign of King Joſiah, Ch. 1. 2. See verſ. 10.

Haſt thou ſeen that which back-ſliding Iſrael hath done?] Haſt thou not taken notice of the idolatrous courſes, that thoſe of the ten Tribes took?

Haſt thou ſeen?] Or, Haſt thou not ſeen? as 1 Sam. 2. 27, 28. did I appear? for, did I not appear? and, did I chooſe? for, did I not chooſe? See Chap. 31. 20.

ſeen] Conſidered, or taken notice of; as Ch. 2. 19, 23, 31. for whether Jeremy ever ſaw what was done among thoſe people, is uncertain; ſhe ſhould ſee what had been done by them, before their deportation, being yet unborn, was not poſſible.

that which] Or, what: for there is no that in the text. So Exod. 19. 4. Mic. 6. 1.

back-ſliding] Or, revolting; as it is rendred, Chap. 5. 23. So v. 11, 12. See Hoſ. 4. 16.

Iſrael] The ten Tribes, ſo termed, as the greater part of Iſraels proſperity, after their revolt from the houſe of David, upon the death of Salomon, 2 Kin. 12. in way of diſtinction from Judah. See Iſa. 7. 1.

hath done] Or, did: for he ſpeaketh of things, long ſince paſt, and done before their deportation, 2 Kin. 17. 7, 12.

[he is gone up upon every high mountain, and under every green tree,] Or, how [he went up: a defect of the particle, how; as Exo. 19. 4. See Ch. 2. 20. 2 Kin. 17. 10.

and there hath played the harlot.] Or, and committed fornication there. See verſ. 1. Some render the words, where thou committeſt fornication, or, playeſt the harlot; as if in theſe words God ſhould turn his ſpeech unto Judah: and the word in its regular form doth ſo import: but as yet there is no addreſs at all to Judah: and the like irregular form is found in ſome other words, Deut. 32. 18. Chap. 18. 23.

V. 7. And I ſaid, after ſhe had done all theſe things] Or, yet I ſaid unto her. And, for, yet; as Ch. 2. 35. v. 3. and a defect of the pronoun; as Iſa. 37. 22. & 66. 12. I did not yet preſently caſt her off, but ſought to reclaim her, and invited her by my Prophets to repentance, 2 Kin. 17. 13. Hoſ. 12. 6. & 14. 1. So v. 1, 12.

Turn thou unto me] Or, Return unto me; as v. 1. to wit, by repentance, and reformation, Iſa. 57. 6, 7. Act. 3. 19. & 26. 18, 20. Heb. Thou ſhalt return: the future indicative, for the imperative; as, Thou ſhalt love, Deut. 6. 5. and, Thou ſhalt not withhold, for, withhold not, Pſal. 40. 11.

but ſhe returned not] 2 Kin. 17. 14. Hoſ. 7. 16. & 11. 2, 5. Heb. and; as Ch. 2. 11. v. 1.

and her treacherous ſiſter Judah ſaw it.] Judah; the other two Tribes, Judah, and Benjamin, which continued ſtill conjoyned, when the ten revolted: the name impoſed from the principal of the twain, that enjoyed the Soveraignty, thereby to diſtinguiſh it from the other ten. See Iſa. 1. 1.

ſiſter] Iſrael, and Judah, are, in regard of conſanguinity, being both of the linage of Jacob, termed ſiſters, Ezek. 16. 46. & 23. 2, 4.

treacherous] Or, perfidious, having violated her faith plighted unto God, when the whole body of that people entred into covenant with him at firſt, Deut. 5. 2, 3. & 29. 10. 12. which ſhe had profeſſed to continue in, and keep inviolably, after the revolt of the ten Tribes, 2 Chron. 13. 9. 10. yea, had often-times renewed, 2 Chr. 15. 12. 15 & 23. 16. & 29. 10. & 34. 30-32. but again ſtill violated, by returning eſt-ſoons to her former abominations, 2 Chr. 21. 6, 10, 11. & 24. 17, 18. & 28. 2, 3. & 33. 2, 9. and at preſent, howſoever ſhe would ſeem ſtill to continue conſtant in the ſervice of God; yet all being but counterfeit, her ways being otherwiſe very lewd and wicked, Chap. 6. 19, 20. & 7. 9-11. Howbeit, the ſame term is afterward given, as well to the one, as to the other. See verſ. 20.

ſaw it.] Saw; that is, knew; as Pſal. 37. 25. & 40. 3. with 34. 2. could not be ignorant; could not but take notice, both of what her ſiſter had done; and how ſhe had been invited by me to return: for by the ſame Prophets God had ſent to them both, 2 Kin. 17. 13. a deſcant of the pronoun, it; as Iſa. 44. 19.

V. 8. And I ſaw,] The ſequel of the context in the enſuing diſcourſe, being ſomewhat obſcure and intricate, hath much troubled the Interpreters, and enforced them to take divers tracts. One of the Jewiſh Commenters gives me an hint of that, that may ſerve as a thread to lead us thorow this Labyrinth. He obſerveth well, that the ſeeing, here ſpoken of, hath a ſpecial reference unto that which cometh after, verſ. 10. concerning the return of the Jewiſh people unto God, in the religious reign of Joſiah, that for the generality of it, it was not found and ſincere; that which, though Jeremy, and many others, could not diſcern; yet God, who tryeth and ſearcheth the heart, ſaw, 1 Sam. 17. 7. 1 King. 8. 39. Pſal. 7. 9. Prov. 15. 11. & 17. 3. & 21. 2. chap. 17. 10. and the ſile of the context is therefore to be continued from this to that; which I conceive may moſt conveniently be thus done, without ſtraining, or forcing the text, as many here do. And I have ſeen, or ſee, that though for all this, wherein revolting Iſrael had committed adultery, I had diſmiſſed her, and given her a bill of divorce; yet her perfidious Siſter Judah was not afraid, but ſhe alſo went and committed fornication; (for ſo it was, that with her notorious fornication ſhe polluted the land, by committing adultery with ſtones, and with ſtocks) and that for all this her perfidious Siſter Judah hath not returned unto me with all her heart, but counterfeitly, ſaith the Lord. But we ſhall examine, and explicate the words apart, as they lye in order in the text.

And I ſaw] Or, have ſeen, or do ſee; as if he had ſaid, I asked thee before, whether thou hadſt not ſeen, how it had been with Iſrael, verſ. 6. I ſhall now tell thee what I have ſeen, and do ſtill ſee in Judah; and more it may be than thou doſt, that as they have not taken warning by Iſraels fall, but have been as notoriouſly lewd, as they; ſo their external reformation hath not been cordial, but counterfeit; I ſee; as Chap. 23. 13, 14. Some others, And when I ſaw. Others, And it ſeem'd good unto me. Others, otherwiſe; according to which they attemper the ſeveral Verſions of the words enſuing: wherein our Verſion faileth, leaving the words hanging in ſuſpence, as if it had been rather, ſhe ſaw, than I ſaw. And the old Latine indeed ſeems ſo to have rendred it; for it knitteth the words following unto the laſt clauſe of the verſe before-going: and ſo ſome Greek Copies alſo ſeem to have had it. But that the Hebrew, which the Chaldee alſo conſtrues with, controlleth: which yet ſome Interpreters of prime note, though rendring the text themſelves otherwiſe, yet in the expoſition run unto.

when for all the cauſes whereby back-ſliding Iſrael had committed adultery, I had put her away, and given her a bill of divorces.] Others, when I ſaw that for the actions, wherein ſhe had committed adultery, I muſt diſmiſs her, I gave her a bill of divorce. Others, It ſeemed good to me for all theſe cauſes ——— to diſmiſs her, and give her a bill of divorce.

when] Or, though; as Iſa. 12. 1. & 64. 6.

for all the cauſes] Or, for all; or, becauſe of all: for that is all the word ſignifies, Gen. 21. 11, 25. Num. 12. 1. & 13. 24. Judg. 6. 7.

whereby back-ſliding Iſrael had committed adultery] Or, wherein. Heb. which: but herein little difference. Of the terms here given her, ſee before, verſ. 6. what is there termed fornication, is here called adultery; as alſo, verſ. 9. Ezek. 16. 37. becauſe fornication, and adultery, in a wife, are all one, Matt. 19. 9. and this her adulterous carriage, was the cauſe of her abdication, Ezek. 23. 5. 8.

I had put her away,] Heb. diſmiſſed her. See verſ. 5. to diſmiſs her; or, that I muſt diſmiſs her, ſuit not well with the text.

and given her a bill of divorce;] Heb. a book of her divorce, or, her book of divorce, as we uſe to ſay, make, or, give him his mittimus. Of the term, ſee on Iſa. 50. 1. and God is ſaid to have diſmiſſed, and divorced her, by putting that State from under the wings of his protection, Ruth 3. 9. and delivering it up into the hand of the Aſſyrians, who utterly ruined it, and carried away the main body of her people, and placed them in forrain parts, 2 King. 17. 6. Ezek. 23. 9. what the Rabbines here debate about the different caſes of Judah, and Iſrael, ſee on Iſa. 50. 1.

yet her treacherous ſiſter Judah feared not] Or, that yet her perfidious ſiſter was not afraid: for the particle, that, very frequently ſuppreſſed; as Iſa. 7. 1. & 36. 1. muſt of neceſſity be ſupplyed, either after I ſaw, or in the front of this clauſe: otherwiſe the members of the ſentence will have no good coherence. Of Judah, and the ſtyle here given her, ſee v. 7.

but went, and played the harlot alſo] Heb. and (as v. 1, 7.) ſhe went, and committed fornication; or, ſhe alſo went on whoring: as, he went and wept, for, he went weeping, Pſal. 126. 6. there is an emphaſis in the pronoun here expreſſed, and not therefore to be omitted. See on the pronoun here expreſſed, and not therefore to be omitted. See on Jer. 7. & Hoſ. 4. 15. & 11. 12. She that had retained the profeſſion of Gods ſervice, when her ſiſter had wholly ſhook it off, and for her idolatries was divorced; yet was not deterred from running out into the like exceſſes, for which her ſiſter had ſo ſuffered, Ezek. 23. 11. See 2 King. 17. 19.

V. 9. And it came to paſs through the lightneſs of her whoredom, that ſhe defiled the land:] Or, For ſo it was, that by her notorious fornication, ſhe profaned, or polluted, the land. This paſſage, ſome underſtand of Iſrael; ſome of Judah; ſome partly, of the one, and partly of the other: which laſt, ſeems more improbable, than either of the former: of which twain, I conceive the latter to be the genuine; and the whole verſe ſhould be cenſored with notes of interſertion, as above.

And it came to paſs] Heb. And it was; as 2 Kin. 4. 6. & 6. 30. or, For ſo it was; as Gen. 12. 1. Iſa. 65. 15.

through the lightneſs of her whoredom] Lightneſs: So the old Latine ſeems to have taken it; as coming from a word, that ſignifies light, Iſa. 19. 1. Chap. 2. 23. and we uſe indeed to term ſuch as here are intended, light women. The Jewiſh Doctors, with the Chaldee, ſeem to refer it to the ſame root, but as it hath a notion of contempt, and vileneſs, 1 Sam. 2. 30. and ſo it ſhould be, through the vileneſs, or baſeneſs, of her whoredom. But the word ſeems not to come from that root; nor is it ever found uſed in either of thoſe notions: it ſignifies commonly a noiſe, or ſound: but not ſeldom alſo, howſoever ſome have queſtioned it, a fame, or report. So it is taken, Gen. 45. 16. Cha. 4. 15. & 50. 46. thus here underſtood, by the fame of her whoredom; will be meant, the report of it blazed abroad; or, as ſome other, by an hypallage, or inverſion of the words, not unuſual, the fame of her whoredom, for, her whoredom of fame; that is, her famous, (or infamous rather) her notorious whoredom; as, ſilver of ſh. kels, for, ſhekels of ſilver; or, ſilver ſhekels, Lev. 5. 15. and, the greeneſs of the tender graſs, for, the tender graſs of greeneſs; that is, the green tender graſs, Pſal. 37. 2. and it may be ſo termed, not onely in regard of the fame, and brute, ſpread abroad of it; but in regard of the notoriouſneſs of it, in it ſelf; ſuch as doth of it ſelf proclaim and publiſh the ſhame and filth of thoſe that practiſe it: as foul and hainous ſins are ſaid to have a voice, and to cry aloud even to heaven it ſelf, Gen. 4. 10. & 18. 20. and this the words following, ſeem to confirm. Now being thus taken, (which I take to be the right) ſome conceive it to be ſpoken of Iſrael: as alſo, ſome going the former way of this ſyntax, render the words, notwithſtanding the report, or fame of her whoredom; that is, although the report of Iſraels idolatry, dwelling ſo neer her, could not but come to her ſiſter Judahs ears, Ezek. 16. 46. But I find not where the particle, here prefixed, is ſo uſed. Others, who take the latter, and (as I ſuppoſe) higher way, render it, for her famous, or notorious whoredom; to wit, it came to paſs, that ſhe defiled the land: which I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe of the words; though more fully expreſſed, if inſtead of for, we ſay with, or by, or by reaſon of; for the particle is here a cauſal: as Pſal. 18. 12, 15. Iſa. 21. 3. & 33. 3. & 63. 17. but that which they fail in, is the miſapplication of it; in that they underſtand it, as ſpoken of Iſrael, whereas the courſe of the context aright conceived, and duly conſidered, will evidently ſhew it to be intended of Judah, who in the very next words before going, is ſaid to have gone a whoring, verſ. 8. and concerning whoſe whoredoms, and the notoriouſneſs thereof, he ſpeaketh further in this verſe.

that ſhe defiled the land.] Heb. and ſhe profaned, or polluted the land: ſo is the copulative in this form of ſpeech very frequently uſed, Iſa. 22. 20. & 37. 26. & 65. 24. & 66. 18. See the ſame before, Chap. 2. 7.

and committed adultery with ſtones, and with ſtocks.] With idols made of either. See Chap. 2. 27. or, by committing adultery with ſuch: as ſtand and feed, for, ſtand feeding, Iſa. 61. 5. See verſ. 8. Some render it for ſhe committed adultery. But the cauſal is not needful here.

V. 10. And yet for all this, her treacherous ſiſter Judah hath not turned unto me with her whole heart, but feignedly, ſaith the Lord.] Or, And that for all this yet; as having relation to what was before ſaid in the perſon of God, verſ. 8. I have ſeen, or, I ſee, that neither Judah took warning by what had befallen her ſiſter for her impieties and idolatries; for after that ſhe fell into them afreſh in the reign of Manaſſes, 2 Chr. 33. 3-9. 22. as alſo that although they ſeemed to make goodly ſhews, and fair ſemblances of returning again to me, in the days of good Joſiah, 2 Chr. 34. 29, 33. & 35. 1-18. yet were they never throughly converted, or cordially turned from their former idolatrous courſes, as appeared by their ſudden relapſe, and return again to them, preſently after his deceaſe, 2 Kin. 23. 32-37. & 24. 9, 19. 2 Chr. 36. 12, 14.

V. 11. And the Lord ſaid unto me,] Or, The Lord alſo ſaid unto me: as Chap. 3.

The back-ſliding Iſrael hath juſtified her ſelf more than the treacherous Judah,] Iſrael is not ſo bad as Judah; Iſraels ſin is not ſo hainous as is the ſin of Judah: both in regard of her perfidiouſneſs, that would ſeem to retain Gods ſervice ſtill with her, and renewed covenants oft with him; (which Iſrael never did) but brake them as faſt again, ſee verſ. 7. and partly, alſo, becauſe ſhe would not be warned by the fight of that, which had for ſuch idolatrous courſes befallen Iſrael, verſ. 8 ——10. more than treacherous Judah.] Heb. from, or in regard of; as if he had ſaid, Iſrael may go for an honeſt woman in compariſon of Judah; the is ſo far the worſe. The like ſtem, ſee Eſther 2. 17. Prov. 22. 1. Eccl. 7. 1. Iſa. 54. 1. and in the like argument, Luke 18. 14. Of the terms given to either, ſee verſ. 6, 7.

V. 12. Go, and proclaim theſe words towards the North,] God hereupon, the rather to ſhame Judah, and to encite her to repentance, biddeth the Prophet, turning towards thoſe parts, wherein thoſe of the ten Tribes remained captive, to proclaim a gracious invitation of them, to return again to him, with a promiſe of mercy and favour, to be ſhewed unto them, when they ſhould ſo do; together with a ſecret intimation, that it would ſometime be ſo done; and that under the Kingdom of the Meſſias the reſerves of either family ſhould be reunited.

Go] Heb. Going. Either the infinitive for the imperative, or the imperative ſuppreſſed. Going go; that is, go out of hand, preſently, letting all other affairs apart. So Chap. 2. 2. & 13. 1. Howbeit, as the Jewiſh Commenter well obſerveth, Gods meaning was not that the Prophet ſhould travel into thoſe countries where that people then abode; but to addreſs himſelf unto the performance of the duty enjoyned him, fetching his face that way; as the like is enjoyned Ezekiel, Chap. 20. 46. & 21. 2. and the word therefore (ſaith he well) is to be taken in a notion of addreſs: as Eccl. 2. 1. Jon. 1. 7.

and proclaim] Heb. and thou ſhalt cry. See the like, Chap. 2. 2. & verſ. 7.

toward the north] Becauſe the regions of Aſſyria, and Media, into which thoſe of the ten Tribes were tranſported by Tiglath-Pileſer, and Salmaneſer, 2 Kings 15. 29. & 17. 6. lay North-Eaſt from Judea. See Chap. 50. 3, 9. as on the contrary part therefore Ezekiel being among the Jewiſh Captives in Chaldea, lying North likewiſe from Judea, Chap. 1. 14. is willed to look Southward, when he was to prophecy againſt Judah, and Jeruſalem, Ezek. 20. 46. & 21. 1. So that he was to utter theſe words, in the hearing of thoſe of Jeruſalem; as ch. 2. 2. but with his face toward the places where Iſrael was in captivity, ſo ſpeaking, as if he were parlying face to face with them.

and ſay] Heb. and thou ſhalt ſay; as before, thou ſhalt cry.

Return, O thou back-ſliding Iſrael, ſaith the Lord,] The ſubject matter of that which he was to proclaim; a new ſummons of Iſrael to repentance. See v. 6, 7, 14. ch. 31. 22.

and I will not cauſe mine anger to fall upon you.] I will not proceed further in wrath againſt you.

cauſe mine anger to fall] Heb. make my face to fall: face, for, anger, or, wrath, as Pſal. 34. 16. Lam. 4. 16. becauſe anger diſcovereth it ſelf in the countenance; to fall: a metaphor, either, from thoſe that fall in fight upon their foes, Joſh. 11. 7. or rather from ſtorms and tempeſts, that fall from above, to the ſpoiling and deſtroying of people, and other creatures here beneath, Gen. 19. 24. Pſal. 11. 6. Rom. 1. 18. See Chap. 30. 23, 24. and the Jewiſh Doctors ſupply here not amiſs from the clauſe following, for ever, becauſe it had in the diſperſion of them fallen in part, and that heavily, on them already.

for I am merciful, ſaith the Lord] Or, pious, pitiful, Deut. 4. 31. Pſal. 86. 15. & 103. 8. & 145. 8. and I will not keep anger for ever.] I will ceaſe to be further wroth with you, Pſal. 103. 9. See on v. 5.

V. 13. Onely acknowledge thine iniquity,] No promiſe of pardon, but upon condition of repentance, Iſa. 1. 19, 20. & 55. 7. nor ſincere repentance, without ſerious ſight, and ingenuous acknowledgement of ſin, Prov. 28. 13. Heb. yet; as Pſal. 73. 1. know, that is, take notice of, or acknowledge; as Pſal. 51. 3. Iſa. 59. 12. See chap. 2. 23.

thou haſt tranſgreſſed againſt the Lord thy God,] And haſt therefore been juſtly delivered up into captivity, 2 King. 17. 18.

and thou haſt ſcattered thy ways to the ſtrangers under every green tree,] Running ſometime one way, & ſometime another, after ſtrange gods, and forrain people, 2 Kin. 17. 4, 9, 10. v. 6. See the like, ch. 2. 23, 25. The Rabbine perverteth it, when he expoundeth it, of the opening of the feet, Ezek. 16. 25.

and ye have not obeyed my voice, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. ye have not hearkned unto my voice; calling upon you, by my Prophets, for reformation of theſe your wicked ways, and miſcarriages, 2 King. 17. 13, 16. verſ. 7.

V. 14. Turn, O back-ſliding children, ſaith the Lord,] Or, Return, Turn again, as v. 12.

for I am married unto you] Or, I have married you: for the verb is active, and is in that form uſed over of the man. Deut. 21. 13. & 24. 1. Iſa. 54. 5. & 62. 10. Mal. 2. 11. of the woman perpetually in the paſſive form, Gen. 20. 3. Deut. 22. 22. Prov. 30. 23. Iſa. 54. 1. & 62. 4. I am your husband that have married you; I took you at firſt into covenant to me, and ye did enter into the ſame with me, and plighted your faith unto me among the reſt of my people, Deu. 29. 1. 15. and I am ready, notwithſtanding your long continued revolt, upon your ſincere, and ſerious repentance, and return to me, to enterta n you, and to renew my covenant again with you, Hoſea 2. 19, 20. v. 1. Some of the Rabbines render it, I am your Lord; and it is not for mine honour, that my people ſhould be in the hands of their enemies, Iſa. 52. 5. Ezek. 36. 20. and the word indeed in its firſt and proper notion ſo ſignifies. See chap. 2. 22. but in this place, the conſtant tenour of the context, comparing this people to a diſloyal wife, carrieth it rather the other way. For as for that, which one of them telleth us of a conceit of his Fathers, that it ſhould be rendred, I have been vexed, or grieved by you, or am grown a weary of you; or, I loath, and abhor you: for ſo the word ſignifies, whereby he expreſſeth it, Gen. 27. 46. Lev. 20. 23. Num. 21. 5. Iſa. 7. 16. with all adding, that the word doth always ſo ſignifie, where the particle let, followeth it; it ſeems to me unworthy of any conſideration: nor had I mentioned it, but that I find ſome Writers of note, taking notice of it, and ſome great Criticks enclining to it, if not approving of it. It is true, that God is ſaid to be vexed and grieved, and wearied with the ſins of his people, Iſa. 43. 24. & 63. 10. ch. 15. 6. Ezek. 6. 9. but this in no wiſe ſorts here with the ſequel of the context: and for that of the particle, it is no where found in conſtruction with this verb, ſave here, and chap. 31. 32. a place parallel to this; and no ſuch judgement therefore can be built thereupon; and it ſeemeth to me, to have no other uſe in either place, than it hath in the like ſyntax, with divers other verbs in that language, with which it is generally deemed to be redundant.

and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Z on.] Our Interpreters generally expound this of the paucity, or ſmall remnant of thoſe, that ſhould be reſerved, and return, whether into their own country, as they ſuppoſe ſome did with thoſe of Judah, at the diſſolution of the Babylonian Captivity; or unto God, being converted, and adjoyned unto his Church, according to thoſe foregoing prophecies, Iſa. 11. 11, 12. & 17. 6. & 24. 13. On the other ſide, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors carry it beyond all reaſon wider another way; as if the meaning were, that if there were but one true convert in a city, that whole city ſhould be reduced, together with that one: and ſo if but two onely ſuch in a family, that whole family ſhould, together with thoſe two, be brought back; and ſo they ſhould all at length return to their own country again. But I ſee not how the words can admit of ſuch a ſenſe. The former, it is true, they may well bear: howbeit, ſo taken, they ſeem not ſo well to ſuit with the perſons ſpoken to. The revolted Iſraelites are invited to return; and God promiſeth, if they ſo do, to take them; whom but the Iſraelites that do return? ſome one out of a city, conſiſting of ſuch; and not the whole city rather, if there were an whole city of ſuch? or one out of a city, conſiſting of Iſraelites, among all whom yet but one ſuch ſhould be? I ſuppoſe it not probable, that there were any ſuch cities conſiſting of Iſraelites onely. I embrace, therefore, that here, that one of the Jewiſh Commenters ſuggeſteth, whom a learned late Writer followeth; That God would make ſuch an exact ſearch for them, in looking after them upon this their ſincere and ſerious return, in all places, in which they had been diſperſed; that though there ſhould be but ſome one only of them, in a city, or ſome two onely in a whole country, yet they ſhould not be neglected, but ſhould be called out and reduced. It is a plain parallel place unto that of Iſa. 27. 12. See the note there. And whereas it may ſeem to be ſomewhat improper to ſay, one out of a city, and two out of a family; (for ſo it would for the fuller expreſſion be rendred) as if a family were of a larger extent than a city. To this, the Rabbine anſwers not amiſs, that the word family is in Scripture ſometime uſed for a country, or the people of a country; as chap. 1. 15. Gen. 12. 3. (compared with, chap. 22. 18. where for families, in the former place, is nations, in the latter) Zach. 14. 17, 18. and may well ſo alſo be uſed in this place.

I will bring you to Zion] Either joyn you unto Judah again, that you may worſhip God at Jeruſalem with them, chap. 31. 6. Ezek. 27. 11, 22. or joyn you unto my Church, whereof Sion is a type; that ſo all Iſrael may be ſaved, Rom. 11. 26. See Iſa. 56. 7. & 66. 20. See alſo verſ. 18.

V. 15. And I will give you Paſtors according to my heart, which ſhall feed you with knowledge and underſtanding.] As God promiſeth upon their repentance, to reduce, and reſtore them; ſo to ſettle a government among them, for the continuance of them, in a right and religious courſe and carriage, and ſuch Rulers over them, as ſhould not either miſlead them or oppreſs them, which others formerly had done, Iſaiah 13. 12. Chap. 23. 1, 2. Ezek. 34 2 —— 4, 10. but ſhould rule and govern them in a religious manner, with a wiſe and diſcreet regard of their good, Iſaiah 60. 17, 18. Chap. 23. 4.

I will give you] It is God that gives Governours, whether good or bad; bad; as a blessing, the one; as a chastisement and exercise, the other, Hos. 13.11. Act. 13.20,21. Ephes. 4.11.

Pastors] Rulers, either in the State, as some, Chap. 12.7. Mic. 5.5. or in the Church, as others, Ephes. 4.11. or in both, Isa. 56.10,11. See Chap. 23.1,4.

according to mine heart] Such as I like and approve of, and know to be faithful, and such as shall govern you according to my will and desire, 1 Tim. 1.12. an allusion to Gods testimony of David, 1 Sam. 13.14.

which shall feed you] As John 21.15-17. 1 Pet. 5.2. or, rule you, cha. 23.2. Ezek. 34.2. Act. 20.28.

with knowledge and understanding] This clause either respects the manner of their ruling in skilful and discreet manner, Psal. 78.72. 1 Pet. 5.2. or the subject & matter of their feeding, the food wherewith Gods people were to be fed, the spiritual food of found knowledge, and right understanding of Gods truth. Deut. 33.19. Neh. 8.8,13. Mal. 2.7. Eph. 4.11. 1 Tim. 3.2. 2 Tim. 4.2. But I suppose, that it hath respect here to the former.

V. 16. And it shall come to pass when ye are multiplyed and increased in the land, in those days, saith the Lord, they shall say no more, The Ark of the covenant of the Lord; neither shall it come to mind, neither shall they remember it; neither shall they visit it, neither shall that be done any more.] This place seems as pregnant as is possible, for the utter cessation and abolition of those visible pledges of Gods special presence among his people, which before had by God himself been to that purpose sanctified, set apart, and settled among them, after the enlargement and growth of his Church under the Messias. Which yet the Jewish Masters, though acknowledging the Messias his times here to be intended, labour, by a very sorry shift, to put off: for the meaning, say they, is, that in those times they shall not need to think of sending for the Ark of God, to be with them in their camp, or of carrying it out with them into the field, as in times past they had done, Josh. 3.3,6. 11. & 6.8,13. 1 Sam. 4.4,5. & 14.18. 2 Sam. 11.11. & 15.24. because all shall then be quiet, there shall be no war, after the expedition of Gog and Magog is once over, Isaiah 2.4. But besides that we read not that after the Temple was once built, the Ark, once therein seated, was ever removed, brought out again, or any such use at all made of it: the words are very general, and very express, that it should not at all be sought to, or once minded, or any use at all made of it. And yet this, as slight a shift as it is, is by a learned late Writer also held forth, and approved. Nor want there other of ours, and some of chief Note, that will not suffer this Scripture to go the way before-mentioned; but turn it another way; some expounding it, that whereas formerly the Jews herein gloried over Israel, that they had the Ark of God with them, a pledge of his special presence among them, which the other had not, 2 Chron. 13.9,10. such a conjunction and concord, should be now between them, that Judah should no more glory herein, God should be alike present with either. Other again, that after their restitution, the Jewish people themselves should not so much trust unto, and repeye upon, those outward pledges of Gods favour toward them, and presence among them, the Ark, and the Temple, as formerly they had done, Chap. 7.3. But these considerations, as well as the former, do all come far short of, and are a great deal too narrow, to reach the large and wide extent of the expresions of Gods Spirit in this place. That which some others have, that therefore no regard should in those times be had of the Ark, because the whole City should be deemed equally holy with it; for whereas the Ark was as Gods Throne, or Chair of Estate before, (See on Isa. 37.16.) and the Temple in regard of it, Chap. 14.21. & 17.12. Ezek. 43.7. now Jerusalem, the whole city should be so esteemed, vers. 7. it fitteth well with the state and condition of the Church; but could not consist with the ordinance of God, so long as a Temple, whether with an Ark, or without an Ark, allowed and approved of by God, in its peculiar use and force stood. For as concerning what some others say, That in the second Temple there was no Ark at all; and would have this Scripture to intimate as much: It is first a great question, whether it be a truth, and not a Jewish fable: the grounding of it on that defect of a letter in a word, Hag. 1.8. is without doubt, both frivolous, and ridiculous. But whether it were so or no, it cannot concern this place: for if there were no Ark in it, it was a defect; and that such as was not by any means extraordinary otherwise supplyed: and it is esteemed by the Jews themselves as a blemish; whereas the want of an Ark, the use of it, and regard to it, here implyed, is mentioned as no small benefit and dignity to the Church, of the times here intended; they should have no need now of such an ordinance; they should not miss it, they should find no want at all of it.

it shall come to pass] Heb. it shall be: as vers. 9.

when ye are multiplyed and encreased] Heb. and have fructified, or, are grown fruitful, Gen. 26.22. Exod. 1.7. both words are oft joyned together, but the latter here usually in the former place elsewhere; as Gen. 1.22,28. & 9.1,7. chap. 23.3. but as here, so Ezek. 36.11. a place parallel to it: and it seems to imply, that they should be fruitful in converting of many from abroad, and bringing them in unto the Church. See vers. 17.

in the land] An eye to the land of Canaan, resembling Gods Church; called therefore the holy land, Zach. 2.12.

in those days] Or, times: as Chap. 1.2,3.

they shall say no more] Or, it shall not be said; as Chap. 16.14. So Ch. 31.29. there shall be no more talk of it.

The Ark of the covenant of the Lord] So is the Ark commonly called, Numb. 10.33. Deut. 10.8. & 31.9,25,26. Heb. 9.4. as also other whiles, The Ark of the testimony, Exod. 25.22. & 30.26. & 31.7. and the ground of either style is the same, to wit, because the two Tables of the Law; wherein the Covenant made between God and his people, was contained, Exod. 34.28. & 40.35. Deut. 9.9,11,15. and were therefore a Testimony of the same, 2 Kng. 11.12. Isa. 8.20, were referred in the Ark, Exod. 25.16,21. & 40.20. and as the Ark is therefore so called in regard of them, as made principally for them, 1 Kng. 8.9. so is the Tabernacle also called the Tabernacle of the Testimony, as intended chiefly for them, and is, Exod. 30.26. & 38.21. Act. 7.44. the Ark therefore containing them, being seated in the innermost, principal, and most sacred place, both of the Tabernacle, and the Temple, Exod. 40.21. 1 Kng. 8.6. Heb. 9.3,4. and Gentile under him ferled, was utterly to cease; much more the place designed for it, with the whole furniture thereof, service retrained to it, and rites appertaining thereunto, John 1.17. & 4.23. Col. 2.17. Heb. 10.1, 8, 9.

neither shall it come to mind] Heb. ascend, or, go up, upon the heart. Men shal not mind it; they shall not so much as once dream of it. See Isa. 65.17. So Ch. 7.31. 1 Cor. 2.9.

neither shall they remember it] Or, neither shall they mention it, or, make mention of it: for the syntax here seems to lead unto that notion of the word; it shall not be remembred, or mentioned any more: for the verb is indefinite, as that before, they shall say, for, it shall be said: and also in the next branch, neither shall they visit it] That is, it shall not be visited; there shall be no more repairing unto the place of its residence, to pray, and worship there before it, as now there is, Deut. 12.11-14. 1 Sam. 7.2. 2 Sam. 7.18. 1 Kin. 8.29,30,33,34. 1 Chr. 13.3. Psa. 42.2. & 84.7. & 95.2. & 99.5.

neither shall that be done any more] No such visitation of it shall any more be used; or rather, as some other render it, neither shall it any more be magnified: it shall not be in any repute, or esteem; so the word seems to import, Deut. 32.6. 1 Sam. 12.6. The Spirit of God using here so many pregnant expresions, and so fit, full and instantly inculcating, in such variety of terms, one and the same thing, seems to have foreseen how loth and backward people would be, this people especially, to admit of, and assent unto, the matter here foretold; and how prone and forward by slights and subtilties, to writhe and wrest this prediction to some other intent and purpose; and to have delivered it therefore in such expres and precise terms; as might cut off all ambiguity, and meet with all such devices as humane wit should invent, either to elude, or divert it.

V. 17. At that time they shall call Jerusalem the Throne of the Lord] Or, Jerusalem shall be called; for such indefinite forms are by the passive best expected. So vers. 16. Mal. 1.4. Jerusalem, Gods Church, whereof that was a type, Gal. 5.26. Rev. 21.2. shall be called; shall so be, and be so accounted; as Isa. 60.14. & 61.6. the Throne of the Lord; in regard of his constant residence, and sitting in state and power, by his ordinances, and by the exercise of them there, together with his Spirit accompany ng the same. See Ch. 14.21. & 17.12,& before on v. 16.

and all the nations shall be gathered unto it] That so Jacobs Prophecy may be fulfilled, concerning the gathering of the nations unto Shiloh at his coming, Gen. 49.10. and the word here used, is the same with that, Gen. 1.9. where God saith, Let the waters under heaven be gathered together into one place: as also it is said in that parallel place, Isa. 2.2. the nations shall flow into it; as insinuating both their multitudes, and their so wardness, or eagerness, rather forcing, than forced in, Psa. 110.3. Matt. 11.12.

to the name of the Lord to Jerusalem] To the place which God shall make choice of, to place his name there, Deut. 12.11. which was sometime Jerusalem, Psal. 122.3,4. is now the Church, 1 Tim. 3.15. Rev. 21.2,3. but Jerusalem now without Ark or Temple; for those things are now past and gone, vers. 16. Rev. 21.22. Yet some read it, for the name of the Lord to Jerusalem. But the former I approve rather, as precisely answering the particle, used twice here in the text; which though it be sometime indeed so used, as in the former place they would have it, as Gen. 2.23. yet why it should here swarve from its most proper notion and use, I see not. See Isaiah 60.9.

neither shall they walk any more after the imagination of their evil heart.] Neither the Israelites, nor the Proselyte Gentiles, shall take such evil courses, as before times they did; but shall live according to the prescript of Gods Will and Word, Isaiah 2.3.

the imagination] The word here used is very frequent, both in this Prophet, Chap. 7.24. & 9.13. & 11.5,13. & 16.12. & 18.12. & 23.17. and elsewhere, Deut. 29.19. Psal. 81.12. but concerning the native and genuine sense of it, there is much difference among the learned, as well Jewish, as others: for some render it, stiffness, obstinacy, stubbornness; deriving it from a term commonly used among the Talmudists, implying firmness, and fastness. Others, thers, pravity, and perverseness; deducing it from a word that signifies the navel, and the knotty wreaths of its Ezek. 16.4. Job 40.16. Others, wrinesse, or obliquity. Whence enemies are deemed by them to be so termed; because they look awry on those whom they are at enmity with, Psal. 5.8. & 27.11. & 54.5. & 56.2. & 59.10. though rather, because they have either a cautious, or an insidious eye on them, they observe and watch them to do them a shrewd turn, 1 Sam. 18.9. Psal. 56.6. Chap. 20.10. Other lastly, as ours here, imagination, or cogitation, or contemplation, or thought, or sight: which last seems most genuine; because all those that thus diversly render it, yet herein concur, that they hold it to rise from a root that signifies to see, or to view, Num. 23.9. & 24.17. yet herein may some difference arise, in that sight applyed to the soul, sometime respecteth the mind and its imagination, judgment and approbation of ought; as Psal. 17.2. let thine eye-lids see the right; that is, consider and approve it: and so the imagination of the heart should be, what the mind conceiveth, resolveth and approveth of: sometime, it respects the will and affection; as Psal. 66.18. if I see iniquity with my heart: if mine heart hang after it; if I affect it, and have a desire to it: so it should import here the desire of the heart: according to either it may be rendred, the sight of the heart: they shall not follow what their corrupt heart likes and loves; what it approveth and affecteth. See the like phrase, Num. 15.39. Eccl. 11.9. Isa. 57.17.

V. 18. In those days shall the house of Judah walk with the house of Israel,] Some render it, The house of Judah shall go to the house of Israel. So the ancient Greek, and the Old Latine; that is, say some, The one shall go to the other, that they may return joyntly in company home together: and so is the particle used, Isa. 22.15. and in the latter part of this verse: And these suppose an allusion in these words to the return from the Babylonian captivity, Judah said to go to Israel, because Cyrus his proclamation did principally concern them, abiding in Babylon, and other parts of Chaldea: But that they should send too, and invite those of the ten Tribes remaining in Assyria and Media, to come and go along with them: whereof, though we find no record, yet it is not unlikely that divers of the other Tribes did, whether invited by them or no. Or, as others, there shall be free and open passage from the one to the other, that they may have mutual trade and commerce the one with the other; as Isa. 19.23, 24. contrary to that which had formerly been, Luk. 9.53. John 4.9. But the Chaldee, and the Jewish Commenters, whom some others also follow, reade the words as our Version hath them, Judah shall walk with Israel: and they point us to places where the particle is else where so used, Exod. 35.22. 1 Sam. 20.8. Isa. 7.2. Ezek. 16.37. Mic. 7.13. the meaning then is, they shall be reconciled either to other, and shall converse in familiar and friendly manner the one with the other, for that is usually designed by the term of walking together, Psal. 55.14. Amos 3.3. the enmity that had been formerly between those two houses, shall then cease: the ten Tribes being then reunited to the other two Tribes, and the other two joyning in amity with them, and both walking in one way together with those proselytes, v. 17. See Isa. 11.13. Ezek. 37.19,22. Hos. 1.11.

the house of Judah, with the house of Israel] Of these two houses, see Isa. 8.14. and they shall come together out of the land of the North] From Chaldea, and Assyria, the place of their captivity, both from Judea Northward: See vers. 12. Chap. 1.13. & 31.8. The spiritual deliverance, and restitution of them, by Christ, with the constitution of them in the body politick of his Church, being shadowed out in these prophetical Sermons, by those temporal deliverances and restaurations, that together of those two people, or any considerable party of either, God was pleased to afford. So Isa. 11.& 54.& 60. Chap. 31. & 33.

to the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers.] Or, that I gave. Heb. which I caused your fathers to inherit, or to possess, as an inheritance, Psal. 44.2,3. & 78.51. & 135.12. & 136.21,22. the land of Canaan, see v. 16.

V. 19. But I said, How shall I put thee among the children, and give thee a pleasant land, a goodly heritage of the Hosts of nations?] Some read these words in the time past, How did I put thee among the children, and gave thee a pleasant land, &c. as if God should relate what he had formerly done for this people; as Esa. 63.7,8. Amos 2.9,11. but the most conceive them as the words of God, relating what he intended to do for them, upon condition of their repentance, and continuance in loyalty to him.

But I said,] Heb. And I said, which some also here retain. Others, I said indeed; as Isa. 30.20. As if he had said, I had such thoughts as these with my self, for he speaketh after the manner of men, in dealing and discoursing with men. See Isaiah 63.8.

How shall I] Or, should I. The voice of God either admiring, and devising with himself, as some, by what means a people brought so low, and worn out with long captivity, might or could be restored to a flourishing state and condition again, like that, Ezek. 37. 3. can these bones live? or, as others, rather, not so much wondring, as demanding of them, how he should do that for them, which he had before said, he would do, to wit, bring them home, and settle them in their land again, vers. 18. such an one, as is here related, when as they had dealt so perfidiously with him in times past, and had so desperately provoked him, vers. 6, 9, 13, 20. Somewhat like that, Hos. 6.4. & 11.8.

put thee among the children] Or, as some, among my children: a defect of the pronoun possessive; as Job 13.18. Isa. 49.16. how should I reckon or account thee as one of mine adopted ones, Hos. 1.10. The syntax will not admit that of a learned late Writer, I will make thee sons; that is, faith he, I will bless thee with a plentiful issue, Isa. 44. 3,4. v. 16.

and give thee a pleasant land] For a childs portion; a possession, among my people, who are as children to me, Exod. 13.11. Psa. 16.6. & 136.21,22.

a pleasant land] Adesirable, or delightful land. Heb. a land of desire, or delight. So is the land of Canaan termed, Psal. 106.24. Zach. 7.14. Of the phrase, see Isa. 2.16.

a goodly heritage] Heb. an heritage, or possession of goodliness, or beauty. Of the term, and form, see on Isa. 4.2. & 13.19. & 24.16. & 28.1, 4, 5. It is an attribute given oft to the land of promise, 2 Sam. 1.19. Eack. 7.20. & 25.9. Dan. 8.9. & 11.16, 41, 45.

of the Hosts of Nations] Somewhat to this purpose, the Greek; and the Latine, just to rendreth it: but the Greek, and some other, insert the word, God; the land of the God of Hosts, the almighty ruler of the Nations. Others, insert the word land onely, supplyed from the former branch, and they expound it, some, a land of hosts of nations; that is, a land held by people that were strong and mighty, Num. 13.28, 29, 32, 33. Deut. 4.38. Amos 2.9. or warlike, and ready to wage war with those that should offer to invade them, Num. 21.23, 33. But the Chaldee Paraphrast, with whom the Jewish Doctors here concur, expoundeth the word here used, to the same effect with the former, as they may well both belong to the same root, and they may well import the same thing, save that the one is singular, the other plural: and it is by them two ways rendred, either the heritage of the delight of delights, or delicious fees of delicious fees of the nations, or the delight of delights, or delicious fees of delicious fees of the nations; that is, the most goodly, pleasant, and most delightful country, ons; that is, the most goodly, pleasant, and most delightful country, that any nation is possessed of: Or, a land of the desires of the nations; that is, such a land as all Nations much affect and desire; the word coming from a root that in the Chaldee, or Syriack tongue ragher, signifies, to will, or desire, Dan. 5.19. & 7.19. and this latter notion seems in this place the genuine. See Ezek. 20.6. where this land is styled by the former term here used, the goodly one of all lands; that is, the goodliest and most desireable of any.

and I said, Thou shalt call me my Father, and shalt not turn away from me.] Or, as some, further I said; as Chap. 1.11. & 2.1. I should rather render it, yet I said; as vers. 7. As if he had said, After such grose other thoughts as might dishgrade me, from shewing such grace and favour unto this people, I yet at length resolved to do it, upon condition, that they would take me for their protector, and continue loyal to me.

call me my Father] So account me, and so acknowledge me, vers. 4. Psal. 89.26. Mat. 23.9.

shalt not turn away from me] From following me (as Matt. 24.24.) to go after strange gods, Deut. 7.4. Heb. from after me; as 1 Sam. 15.11.

V. 20. Surely as a treacherous wife departeth from her husband; so have ye dealt treacherously with me, O house of Israel, saith the Lord.] Concerning the connexion of these words with the former, there is some diversity of opinion among Interpreters, whence the initial particle is diversly either rendred, or supplyed. For some reade as our Version, Surely; and the word here used most usually so signifies, Gen. 28.17. Exod. 2.14. vers. 23. Yet some render it, But; and so it seems to be used, Psal. 66.19. & 81.7. Zeph. 3.7: and this last place may seem parallel to the present: for God there telleth, what he presumed and promised to himself of them; and expected from them: but what there refuseth, what contrary courses they took; and it may be deemed, that God doth the like here: and this suiteth well with the Exposition of those, who understand the foregoing verse, of the time past; to wit, of Gods seating and setling them at first in that land. But Others, some render it with the supply of a causal, For surely, which I conceive to fore best with the sequel of the context: as if God should in these words have rendred a reason, why he would have her engage her self unto such future loyal carriage; because she had in this kind been very faulty before, vers. 6, 13. the like defect of the causal, see Gen. 42.18.

as] The note of similitude is wanting; as Job 7.9. but it may here be included in the particle expressed; as in other the like of it is, see Isa. 29.16. & 64.9.

a treacherous wife departeth] Heb. a woman dealeth disloyally; a woman, or, a wife, as Ch. 3.6.20. dealeth disloyally, for, dealing disloyally departeth: or in disloyal manner leaveth, and departs from her husband, Prov. 2.17. a complexive form, like that, Isa. 38.17. thou hast loved my soul from the pit; that is, out of love delivered, or saved my soul from the pit; as Psal. 103.4.

from her husband.] Heb. friend; as Hos. 3.1. either her husband, whom she hath in a solemn legal manner bin joyned to, or to whom she hath otherwise engaged her self; as that Levites concubine, Judg. 19.1,2, and that Samaritan woman, John 4.17,18. a learned man obſerveth here, that the word cometh from a term, that ſignifieth to conſort, or keep company with one, Prov. 29 .3. and that thence an Ethiopick word derived, is uſed for a bridegroom, Mat. 9.15. and would have this to taken here.

ſo have ye dealt treacherouſly with me, O houſe of Iſrael] Or, ſo ye houſe of Iſrael (ye Iſraelites) have dealt diſloyally with me; unto whom ye had ſolemnly plighted your ſelves, as in a conjugal bond, v. 14. ſee verſ. 8.

V. 21. A voice was heard upon the high places weeping, and ſupplications of the children of Iſrael.] This voice divers Interpreters underſtand of a lamentation, and out-cry, made by the people, in regard of their grievous preſſures, and fore calamities, either breaking in upon them, as thoſe that apply it unto Judah and Jeruſalem, ſurpriſed and ſacked, as ſome, by the Babylonians; as other, by the Romanes; (who ſeem to be clean out of the way) or continuing ſtill with them, and lying heavy upon them; as thoſe that apply it unto Iſrael, whom queſtionleſs it concerns. But others rather, and ſo the Jewiſh Commenters, expound it, of a bewailing of their ſins, and acknowledgment of them, with a ſeeking unto God for mercy and pardon: and this the term of ſupplications leadeth us unto. The like, ſee Zach. 12.10.

A voice was heard] So the Greek, and the Old Latine, whom moſt follow: Yet ſome late Writers, ſhall be heard: but it ſhould rather be, A voice is heard: for, as the Jewiſh Critick well obſerves, it is not a verb, but a participle of the preſent tenſe; as the like is, Chap. 31. 15. a place parallel to this: and it is, as if the Prophet had ſaid, Methinks I hear ſuch a voice already, ſee Iſa. 13.4.

upon the high places] The Greek here, by a groſs miſtake, renders it, A voice from the lips: the old Latine, in the ways; as Amos 5. 16. But the right of it is, as the Jewiſh Commenter well expreſſeth it, in the eminencies, or hieb, and eminent places; as Chap. 7. 29. which ſome underſtand, on the houſe tops: where in publike calamities, lamentations, and outcries, were ſometime made, Iſa. 15. 3. & 22. 1. Chap. 48. Others, ſuppoſe it an alluſion to the manner of thoſe that keep Sentinel in places erected for that purpoſe; or that having ſome buſineſs of importance to impart unto others, get up into ſuch places, or repair to ſome higher ground, from whence they may the better, and by the more, be heard, Deut. 27. 12, 13. Judg. 9. 7. Iſaiah 40. 9. whether way in that regard we take it, the phraſe ſeems to import, either a loud cry; as Chap. 22. 20. or an open cry; as our Saviour uſeth the like term, Matth. 10. 27. with reference to ſuch places, from whence ſuch cries may be lowdeſt and fartheſt heard: for I cannot concur with that learned man, that would have it rendered, in the low places, or in the plains, ſee on verſ. 2.

weeping and ſupplications] According to this reading, there is a defect of the copulative; as Iſa. 30. 33. & 32. 13. which the Chaldee ſupplies: and they are found ſo conjoyned, Chap. 31. 9. but the words in the original ſeem here to run in another ſyntax, thus; A voice of weeping of ſupplications; that is, of weeping in ſupplications, or, of ſupplication tears: of weeping, or, mournful ſupplications; of ſupplications joyned with weeping. So Ezek. 7. 16. Zach. 12. 10. Ch. 31. 18. ſorrow for ſin, and the expreſſions of it, ſhould be ſomewhat proportionable to the hainouſneſs of it; Peter when he had fallen foully, wept bitterly, Matt. 26. 75.

for they have perverted their ways, and they have forgotten the Lord their God:] This ſome take as rendring a reaſon of their preſent calamity, the ground that had given them this cauſe of lamentation, Chap. 2. 17, 19. & 30. 15. verſ. 25. Iſa. 59. 14. Others, rather conceive it as the ſubject matter of their lamentation; they bewail-ed their ſins and forepaſſed tranſgreſſions, as Ephraim, the ſame with Iſrael: Chap. 31. 18. of which purpoſe alſo ſome of the Rabbines ſupply the word of confeſſion; confeſſing, that they have perverted their ways: but that is not neceſſary: for the text without it runs ſmoothly enough thus; A voice of weeping in ſupplications, or ſupplications joyned with weeping, that they have, or, becauſe they perverted their ways; that is the thing that in their prayer they lament and bewail: it is not unlike that, Lam. 5. 16. woe is worth us, that ever we ſinned: the particle is in either place the ſame.

perverted their ways] See Lam. 3. 9. forgotten the Lord their God] Hoſ. 2. 13. & 8. 14. See Ch. 2. 32.

V. 22. Return ye backſliding children——Behold we come unto thee.] In theſe words the Prophet ſeems to perſonate both the Miniſters of God, that ſhould invite this people to return unto God, in the former branch; and the people wrought upon by their miniſtery, returning an anſwer unto their call, in the latter branch; for the better clearing whereof, ſome inſert theſe ſupplies, Return ye backſliding children; ſhall the Lord ſay, and Behold we come unto thee, ſhall they ſay; or, Return ye backſliding children, ſaith he; Behold we come unto thee, ſay they; for the Prophet ſpeaks it in a prophetical ſtrain, as of a thing preſent. See the like, Pſal. 27. 8. 2 Sam. 18. 3. Iſa. 26. 19. Ch. 2. 25.

Return ye backſliding children;] Gods gracious invitation of them, by his Miniſters, and meſſengers, Act. 2. 38. & 3. 19. 2 Cor. 5. 20. See v. 14. Hoſ. 14. 1.

and I will heal your backſlidings.] Or revolts: all the breaches made between you and me, ſhall be ſalved and made up again; I will paſt them all by, and be reconciled again to you; yea, I will remove all thoſe evils, and repair all thoſe ruines, which by your revolt from me, you had brought upon your ſelves, ſee Iſa. 57. 18. Ch. 32. 40. Zach. 10. 6.

Behold, we come to thee:] Their anſwer, as ready to return at God's call; as Pſa. 18. 44. ſpoken rather in the perſon of the people of Iſrael, to ſhame Judah: not unlike to that, 2 Sam. 19. 11, 12. then, as ſome would have it, the ſpeech of God, putting ſuch words into their mouthes, as he would have them to uſe to him, v. 4, 5. Hoſ. 14. 2, 3, reading the words; ſay, Behold we come to thee.

for thou art the Lord our God.] Thou art he that haſt right to us, and art beſt able to ſave us, Iſa. 55. 7. Ch. 14. 22.

V. 23. Truly in vain is ſalvation hoped for from the hills, and from the multitude of mountains:] The reaſon why they repair to God, and ſeek unto him; becauſe they now find the vanity and inability of all other ſtays, and that he alone is able to ſave them. The Hebrew is conciſe; in vain from the hills, the multitude the mountains; but the ſupply is from the next branch: the like whereunto, ſee Pſal. 20. 7.

Truly] Or, Surely; as verſ. 20.

in vain] Heb. in, or, unto falſhood, or, a lye, or, vanity. So Cha. 8. 8.

from the hills] By the hills and mountains, ſome here underſtand the ſtrength of their hills and forts; thoſe eſpecially about Jeruſalem, or thoſe of Samaria, and others in thoſe parts, which they formerly had much relied upon, and truſted unto, Ch. 5. 17. & 21. 13. Pſal. 125. 2. Amos 6. 1. or the aids that they expected from beyond the hills, Pſa. 121. & 60. 11. by mountains eſpecially, the helps of great Kings, as the Aſſyrian and Egyptian, Hoſea 5. 13. & 7. 11. & 12. 1. & 14. 3. But others, and ſo the Jewiſh Commenters, their idols, whom they had worſhipped upon the hills and high places, verſ. 6. Chap. 2. 20. but now found altogether unable to afford them any relief, or delivery, Ch. 2. 23, 23. & 10. 5, 14, 15. Iſaiah 46. 7.

and from the multitude of mountains;] Or, from the multitude in the mountains; that is, the multitude of idols that were worſhipped on the mountains: for the Jewiſh Criticks obſerve, that the former word doth not lean upon the latter, but is in a form abſolute and entire, and a defect there is of the particle in, to be ſupplyed; as Deut. 22. 21. 2 Kings 12. 11. Howbeit, a learned man would have the word rendered mountains, to be not a noun, but a verb, that ſignifieth to lift up, or to offer, whence the word for an oblation, Iſa. 40. 20. and he thus rendereth the whole ſentence, Surely in vain is it from off the hills to offer a multitude, to wit, of oblations, or many oblations; or becauſe the word hamon ſignifieth, as well noiſe, or tumult, as multitude, Pſal. 65. 7. to offer with noiſe, or tumult, a defect of the particle; as Iſa. 33. 5, 7. as having reference to the mountains on which they were wont to ſacrifice to their idols, v. 6. Ch. 2. 20. The words will admit either.

truly in the Lord our God is the ſalvation of Iſrael.] Or, ſurely, as before. It is the true God alone whom we were ſometime joyned unto, that is able to ſave us. Pſal. 3. 8. & 44. 7. & 130. 7, 8. Iſa. 43. 11. & 45. 15, 17. & 63. 1. Jon. 2. 8.

the ſalvation of Iſrael] That is here, our ſalvation: the noun for the pronoun; as Iſaiah 2. 1. but they ſpeak ſo the rather, in regard of the promiſes made by God unto Jacob, concerning himſelf, and his ſeed, and God had by that name taken them unto himſelf, and into his protection, Pſal. 135. 4. Iſa. 41. 8, 14. Chap. 14. 8.

V. 24. For ſhame hath devoured the labour of our fathers from our youth, their flocks and their herds, their ſons and their daughters.] Our idols have brought nothing either to us, or our fathers, but damage and detriment, both in their ſtate, and their iſſue; yea, deſtruction on either.

For] Heb. And; as Iſa. 65. 15.

ſhame] Shame, ſay ſome, that is, ſin; for ſin brought in ſhame, Gen. 2. 25. & 3. 7. and is that alone whereof men juſtly may, and ought to be aſhamed, Ezra 9. 6. Chap. 2. 26. verſ. 3. 25. Ch. 8. 12. Ezek. 43. 10, 11. Rom 6. 21. Eph. 5. 12. Phil. 3. 19. or, that ſhameful thing, as ſome not amiſs render it, that is, ſay they, their idol Baal, Cha. 11. 13. Hoſ. 9. 10. whence Jerubaal, Judg. 6. 32. is termed Jerubbeſheth, from the word here uſed, 2 Sam. 11. 21. a name uſed, as Baal, Chap. 2. 23. for their idols in general, as being all moſt baſe and ſhameful things.

hath devoured] Or, conſumed; waſted and deſtroyed (as Iſa. 9. 18. Joel 1. 19.) all theſe things here reckoned up, being either waſtefully ſpent upon them, Ezek. 16. 16, 21. Hoſ. 2. 8. or, waſted and conſumed by Gods juſt judgment upon them for the ſervice of ſuch, Hoſ. 2. 3, 4, 9, 12. Cha. 5. 17.

the labour of our fathers] The fruits of the earth, and the wealth, gotten by their induſtry and painful labour. So Pſalm 128. 2. Iſa. 45. 14. Chap. 5. 27. & 20. 5. See Ezek. 23. 29. Hoſ. 2. 9. & 8. 7.

from our youth] Or, childhood; as Gen. 8. 21. from time to time, as far as we can remember, or have been able to obſerve ought, we find that nothing hath thrived, but all hath gone backward, and been waſted with our fathers, and our ſelves; or ever ſince the time that we were firſt a Nation, as Iſa. 48. 8. ſo Chap. 2. 2. & 22. 21. yet here it may ſeem to be taken the former way. See verſ. 25.

their flocks and their herds] Their cattel of all ſorts; the leſs, as ſheep and goats, both which the former word comprehendeth, Exod. 12. 5. and the greater, as beeves, which the latter properly ſignifies, Iſa. 65. 25. either being ſpent in ſacrifices to their idols, Amos 4. 4, 5. or deſtroyed by the enemy, or the curſe of God otherwiſe upon them, for their idolatry, Ch. 5. 17.

our ſons and our daughters] Either their idols requiring them alſo for ſacrifice, on whom they ſpared not to beſtow them, Pſal. 106. 37. 2 King. 17. 17. or taken away from them by the ſword, plague, and famine, ſent in upon them by God for theſe their idolatries. See Deu. 28. 51, 57. Hoſ. 2. 4. & 9. 11, 16.

V. 25. we lie down in our ſhame, and our confuſion covereth us; for we have ſinned againſt the Lord our God, we and our fathers, from our youth unto this day, and have not obeyed the voice of our God.] We have likewiſe brought abundance of ſhame and confuſion upon our ſelves, by treading continually in the wicked ſteps of our forefathers.

lye down in ſhame] As a man that being in ſtreits, or diſcontent, and knoweth not which way to help himſelf, is wont to caſt himſelf down upon his couch, 1 Kin. 21. 4. or as ſick men, not able any longer to hold up the head, are compelled to betake themſelves to their bed, 2 Sam. 13. 5. 2 Kin. 1. 4. or as ſome ſluggards, that lye on their head and as ears, wrapped up, and buried (as it were) in their bed-cloaths; as the Aſſoſſe, of the wicked of the world, that lye wallowing, as ſwine, in mire and dirt, that they lye down in wickedneſs, 1 Joh. 5. 19. and the Latine proverbial form, of ſome, that they lye all in leven, as over head and ears in it.

confuſion covereth us] As Pſa. 44. 15. the ſhame of my face covereth me; an alluſion here to the coverings that men have caſt over them, when they lye in bed, Iſaiah 28. 20. we have nothing but ſhame to wrap our ſelves in; nothing but confuſion to cover our ſelves with: by the like ſimilitude, it is ſaid of Babel, the worm is ſpread under thee, and the magot cover thee, Iſaiah 14. 11. ſuch ſhame and confuſion have thoſe ſhameful things our idols brought us unto, verſ. 24.

for we have ſinned] Or, becauſe we have ſinned, Iſa. 64. 5. ch. 6. 13. verſ. 21.

againſt the Lord] Heb. to the Lord. So Deu. 1. 41. Judg. 1 0. 10. 1 Sam. 7. 6. Pſa. 51. 4.

we and our fathers] A ſinful race of us, Iſa. 1. 4. So the ſervants of God ordinarily in confeſſing their ſins, not excuſing themſelves by them, or by their examples, juſtifying their own evil courſes; as thoſe, Jer. 44. 17. but humbly acknowledging the guilt and evil of either, Ezr. 9. 7. Neh. 1. 6. & 9. 33, 34. Pſa. 106. 6. Iſa. 64. 6. ch. 14. 20. Dan. 9. 16.

from our youth] See on verſ. 24. for this may well be taken the latter way there mentioned.

unto this day] See Deu. 9. 7. & 29. 4. 2 Kin. 17. 34, 41. Ch. 7. 25. & 32. 31.

have not obeyed the voice of the Lord.] See verſ. 13.

CHAP. IV.

V. 1. If thou wilt return, O Iſrael, ſaith the Lord, return unto me:] Whether this Chapter begin another Sermon, or continue the former, is ſomewhat doubtful: as alſo, whom the two firſt verſes concern, whether the ten Tribes, or the other two.

O Iſrael.] Thoſe that conceive this to be the beginning of a new Sermon, by Iſrael underſtand Judah, mentioned after, v. 3. and ſo is Judah ſometime termed, as being, though not the greater, or larger, yet the better, and more principal part of Iſrael, Gen. 49. 10. So is it ſtyled, 2 Chr. 12. 1. & 15. 17. & 21. 2, 4. & 29. 21, 24. But thoſe that continue this with the former (whom, upon due conſideration, I rather concur with) by Iſrael, underſtand the ten Tribes, as before, were invited to repentance, ch. 3. 12.

If thou wilt return, return unto me.] The words run thus, word for word in the original; If thou wilt return, O Iſrael, ſaith the Lord, unto me, thou wilt, or ſhalt return: Which divers Interpreters diverſely render. Some, as our Verſion, if thou wilt return, return to me; that is, turn not this way, or that way, from one idol to another, or one forrein friend and helper to another, or one evil courſe to another, as bad or worſe than it, Chap. 2. 36. but home to me, as thou profeſſeſt to do, Chap. 3. 22. and do it heartily, not feignedly, as thy ſiſter Judah hath done, chap. 3. 10. to me, I ſay, chap. 2. 7. that ſeaven and ſee the heart, 1 Sam. 16. 7. Prov. 15. 10. & 16. 2. chap. 17. 10. Others, If thou wilt return to me, (as thou profeſſeſt to do) return: do it ſincerely, with thine whole heart, as Joſias did, 2 King. 23. 25. not with an heart, and an heart, Pſal. 12. 3. with a double, Jam. 1. 8. or, a divided heart, Hoſ. 7. 14, 16. this reading, the ſtops in the text favour, making a ſhort ſtay, at unto me: they come in effect much to one, and either of them fit well with the latter part of the foregoing Chapter, where a large profeſſion is made in the perſon of Iſrael, or the people of the ten Tribes, of their return to the true God, the God of Iſrael, their God; which they are here admoniſhed to ſee to, that it be found and ſincere, as chap. 24. 7. and for the latter word, being no other than the former again repeated; it is not unuſual, that the future indicative form be uſed for the imperative; as in this very word, chap. 15. 19. Prov. 1. 23. But it may well be rendred, ſuſpending the ſentence, if thou wilt return to me, wilt return; I ſay. The ſame thing emphatically repeated; as Iſa. 17. 5. & 57. 19. or, as ſome again, and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, if thou wilt return to me, thou ſhalt return; to wit, from thy captivity again, as God had formerly promiſed, Deut. 4. 29, 31. & 30. 2, 5. chap. 3. 14. and this way the Chaldee Paraphraſt goeth. Howbeit, ſome others, both Jewiſh, and ours, take the word here in the latter branch, not in a notion of returning, but of reſting, and abiding quiet. Of which uſe of the word, ſee at large, on Iſa. 30. 15. as alſo, ſomewhat hereafter, on chap. 30. 10. of theſe, ſome expound it, thou ſhalt reſt, applying it to Judah; that is, thou ſhalt quietly abide in thy land, where now thou art, and ſhalt not wander, or go out of it into captivity; as they underſtand the next branch: or, as ſome, underſtanding it, as ſpoken by way of admonition, as Iſa. 7. 4. keep thy ſelf quiet, and look not after this courſe, and that courſe, for thine own ſecurity and ſafety, but reſt upon God alone, Iſaiah 28. 16. But I take it here rather in the former notion, and as a branch of the condition.

and if thou wilt put away thine abominations out of my ſight, then ſhalt thou not remove.] Heb. and wilt not, or ſhalt not wander: And here again Interpreters run ſeveral ways; ſome referring it to Judah, as our Verſion rendereth it, then thou ſhalt not wander; that is, go out of thy land into captivity, 2 King. 21. 8. Lam. 1. 8. or, then thou muſt not wander, or, then do not wander; for both come to one: if putting away thine idols, thou wilt return to me, thou muſt not wander again after them, or out of them, but keep cloſe unto me, Chap. 2. 25. & 14. 20. Deut. 4. 3, 4. & 30. 20. Pſal. 81. 8, 9. and, for then; as Iſa. 40. 19. chap. 2. 21. thus they ſir Iſrael as well as Judah. And I ſuppoſe they may be thus rendred in a continued, but ſtill ſuſpended, ſentence, If thou wilt return to me, and if thou wilt put away thine abominations, and wilt not wander: this is word for word the text.

thine abominations] Thine idols, which my ſoul loaths and abhors, Deut. 27. 15. Ezek. 11. 18. & 20. 7, 8. Of the term, ſee on Iſaiah 66. 3, 17.

out of my ſight] That is, ſaith the Jewiſh Doctor, out of every place wherefoever they are, for Gods eye is in every place, Prov. 15. 3. much more out of his land, which he hath a ſpecial eye upon, Deut. 11. 12. and moſt of all, out of his houſe, his Temple, which he hath a continual eye unto, 1 Kin. 8. 29. & 9. 3. in which yet they had placed their abominable idols, 2 King. 21. 7. & 23. 4, 6. 2 Chr. 36. 14. Ezek. 8. 5, 6. thus applyed and reſtrained unto Judah. Others, more at large, out of all places, as well publike, as private alſo, Deut. 27. 15. Iſa. 44. 13. Ezek. 8. 12. or not out of your houſes onely, but out of your hearts; for there alſo I ſee them, Ezek. 14. 3, 4. chap. 17. 1. verſ. 14.

V. 2. And thou ſhalt ſweare,] As by way of inſtruction, as Deut. 10. 20. where ſwearing by the name of God, is made a part of Gods religious worſhip. Or, And wilt ſweare, as carrying on ſtill the condition. See Iſa. 19. 18.

the Lord liveth] Or, by the life of the Lord; as, by the life of Pharao, Gen. 42. 15, 16. the ordinary form of an oath uſed in thoſe times, 1 Sam. 14. 39, 45. & 19. 6. if thou wilt, when thou doſt ſweare, ſweare by the Lord, Pſal. 63. 11. Iſa. 65. 16. not by Baal, or any idol whatſoever, Joſh. 23. 7. Ch. 5. 7. & 12. 16. Zeph. 1. 5.

in truth, in judgment, and in righteouſneſs.] In ſincerity, not in hypocriſie, in a true, right, and religious manner: not falſly, feignedly, fraudulently; as thoſe, Iſa. 48. 1. Ch. 5. 2.

in truth] Or, truly; as Judg. 9. 15, 16, 19. 1 Sam. 12. 24. ſwearing nothing, but what is agreeable to truth: not abuſing Gods name, to atteſt an untruth, Exod. 20. 7. Lev. 19. 12. Zach. 5. 4. & 8. 17.

in judgement] Or, conſiderately, Pſal. 112. 5. well weighing, and adviſedly conſidering, what it is that thou art to ſwear, and who it is by whom thou art to ſwear; that thou neither profane his name, and make it common, by light uſage, or upon light occaſions, Mat. 5. 34, 37. Jam. 5. 12. nor make uſe of it unadviſedly; but uſe it reverently, religiouſly, in matters of weighty concernment, Joſh. 1 0. 14, 15. Mat. 14. 7. though ſome refer it to matter of judicature; as Prov. 16. 10. & 24. 23. but the word judgment, is of a far larger extent. See Iſa. 56. 1.

in righteouſneſs] Or, juſtly; as Pſal. 72. 2. Iſa. 63. 1. binding thy ſelf unto nothing by oath, but what is equal and juſt; not making an oath a bond of iniquity, 1 Sam. 25. 22. Matt. 14. 7. ſwearing with a full purpoſe, to perform what thou doſt by oath oblige thy ſelf unto; and being careful accordingly to make the ſame good, Pſalm 15. 4. Mat. 5. 33.

and the nations ſhall bleſs themſelves in him, and in him ſhall they glory.] Or, then; as chap. 1. 4. See verſ. 1. for the Jewiſh Doctor well obſerveth, that this cometh in here, as an effect, and event, that ſhould enſue upon Iſraels performance of the foregoing offices: though he carry it not along, as I conceive he ſhould do: the copulative running along in the original, in ſpeeches of this nature, through each branch the ſame, makes it uncertain ſometime where the condition ends, and where the matter, enſuing upon the performance of it, begins. Hence miſtakes in not feeling the connexion aright; and breaking off the condition too soon. So in Jacobs vow, Gen.28. 20. If God will be with me, and will keep me, and will give me food and raiment; 21. and I return in safety to my fathers house, and the Lord will be my God: 22. and this stone which I have pitch shall be Gods house, and of all that thou shalt give me I will tithe out unto thee: where they break off the condition amiss in the midst of vers. 21. rendring the words, then the Lord shall be my God: whereas it ought to be carryed on unto the end of that verse, and the note of engagement fixed at the beginning of vers. 22. then it is how shall be Gods house, &c. In like manner, here is the condition needlessly interrupted, which might well be carryed on without intercision from the beginning of the Chapter, to this branch; If thou O Israel will return to me; and if thou will put away thine idols, and will not wonder; and will sweare by the Lords life, in truth, and judgment, and righteousness; then shall the nations bless themselves in him, and in him shall they glory: That is, when thou shalt thus religiously demean thy self, then shall other people moved by thine example, come in also unto God, and worship him, together with thee, Ptal. 47.8,9. that which was before hinted. ch. 3. 17.

Shall bless themselves in him] The word indeed is thus actively and reciprocally used. Deut. 29. 19. yet sometime onely passively; as Gen. 22. 18. & 26. 4. compared with chap. 12. 3. it is somewhat ambiguous, whether way it be taken, Psal. 72. 17. they shall bless themselves by him, or, they shall be blessed in him. Now the Jewish Doctors take it here; some, the former way; some, the latter; but both applying it not to God, but to Israel: the former thus expound it; they shall bless either themselves, or any other, in him; that is, in Israel: as for example, say they, when a man blesseth his son, he shall wish, or pray, that he may prove like such or such an Israelite. See somewhat the like to this, Isa. 65. 16. The latter render it, they shall be blessed in him; that is, in Israel, the seed of Abraham, and Isaac, in whom all Nations should be blessed, Gen. 22. 18. & 26. 4. And breauſe the change of thee to him, the second person to the third, might be objected, as indeed it may well, they answer, That in Scripture such passage from person to person is not unusual, which is true indeed: for we find the like in the place a little before cited, Gen. 28 21, 22. where there is a manifeſt change of the person from he to thee, from the third, back to the second: but to make such changes needleſſly there is little ground, or reason, where the text, as it is read simply, runs on smoothly without, as here it doth. In him, therefore is no other here, than that God, by whom they were to swear, and unto whom, being invited by him so to do, they were to return; in him the Nations coming after their example in to him, and being his as well as themselves, and finding gracious acceptance and entertainment with him, chap. 3. 17. shall bleſs him, Psal. 103 1. Eph. 1. 3. and be blessed in him, and bleſs themselves for him, that ever they came to know him, and have interest in him. See Psal. 72. 17. & 117. 1. Rom. 15. 10. 11.

and in him shall they glory] Not in Israel, but in God. The verb here, as the former, is in a reciprocal form: whence it is sometime not unfitly rendred, as in such a notion; he that boasteth himself of a false gift, Prov. 25. 14. and, boast not thy self of to morrow, Prov. 27. 1. But oft-times it doth not fitly admit that reciprocal sense; and in this case sometime it signifies, as in its first form, to praise: but in a more than ordinary, or an emphatical manner; for these forms imply an intention of the thing designed, and add weight to it. So Psal. 56 4, 10. that which is rendred, In God will I praise his word; would rather be, I will greatly praise God, for, or because of (supplyed, as Psal. 2. 5.) his word: that is, his promise: or, I will glory in God; as it is rendred, Isa. 45. 25. In God shall all the seed of Israel glory; and, let him that glorieth, glory in the Lord, chap. 9. 24. 1 Cor. 1. 31. 2 Cor. 10. 17. So it may well also be rendred, Psal. 34. 2. & 44. 8. They shall exceedingly praise his name, having had pregnant proof of his goodneſs, 1 Chr. 16. 10. Psal. 105. 3. and they shall glory now, having a part among his people in him, Psa. 106. 5. as before they did in their idols, Psal. 97. 7. for he is the praiſe, and the glory of his people, Psa. 89. 16, 17. & 106. 47. & 148. 14.

V. 3. For thus saith the Lord unto the men of Judah and Jerusalem;] From this place, the Prophet leaving Israel, turneth to Judah, and directeth his speech unto them, calling upon them for repentance, and reformation of heart and life, and exhorting them to solemn and serious humiliation, for the averting of Gods judgements, verſ. 3, 8, 14. discovering the neer approach of them, verſ. 6, 7, 9. blaming the falſe Prophets for promiſing them peace, verſ. 10. convincing the people to be guilty by their wicked courſes of their own ruine, verſ. 18. bewailing their folly, that would take no warning, verſ. 19, 22. and the calamities that for the same would shortly befal them, by the fierce and furious accels of a potent and enraged adverſary, verſ. 11, 13, 15, 17. and by the horrible waſte and havock made of the whole land by him, verſ. 23, 11.

For] So is the particle rendred, Ch. 3. 25. & 6. 13. But I suppoſe it would rather be rendred, Moreover; as it is by Interpreters of good note, Isa. 15. 8. & 16. 9. because it beginneth a new diſcourſe, directed to another person; but entred upon with the same admonition in effect, that before had been given unto the other, Chap. 3. 12, 14, 22.

thus saith the Lord to the men of Judah, and of Jerusalem] What before he called upon Israel for, he calleth upon you of Judah now for the like. Heb. to man of Judah, Cman, for, men, as Isa. 5. 3. or, man, for, each one; as Ezek. 20. 7, 8. and to Jerusalem; or, as some, with a supply from the former, to the men of Jerusalem; and may as well be, to the Inhabitants of Jerusalem; as it is, Isa. 5. 3. and v. 4. Of Judah and Jerusalem, see on Isa. 1. 1.

Break up your fallow ground, and sow not among thorns.] Heb. Fallow your fallow, or fallow ye a fallow: if these terms at leaſt do well suit with, and fitly expreſs, the notion of the Hebrew term; for the noun nir, seems to signifie a plough-land, rather than a fallow: (as where it is said, much food is in the plough-land of the poor, Prov. 13. 23.) and the verb by ploughing, to break up such grounds, which therefore to the sense our Version well yieldeth; and might not amiss also be rendred, plough up your plough-land: and the Jewish Commenters so expound it; and so Hosea 10. 11. where the same advice is given to Israel, that is here unto Judah. Rid your heart and lives by sincere repentance; and serious reformation of your inordinate lusts, distempered affections, impious carriages, and abominable practices, which as so many weeds, or as briers and brambles, so long as your hearts are peſtered, and your lives overgrown with them, will effect no seed of wholesome admonition or instruction to prevail with you, nor ought to thrive or come to any good issue, that is either by your selves undertaken, or by any other for you; for the speech is of far larger extent, than of preparation of the heart for the receiving of the word, though in particular applyable thereunto: who reaſons Matt. 13. 7, 25. Luk. 8. 14, 15. Jam. 1. 21. but it is not, left the Prophets of God sow their seed among thorns with you; but that you your selves sow not among thorns, leſt by continuance in your wicked courſes, ye cause that all your endeavours should yield you no more benefit, than your grain cast on the ground overspread with thorns would do, Prov. 14. 31. A metaphor taken from grounds that are to be broken up for tillage, which had never been to that purpoſe employed before, or that having been formerly so employed, having lien long fallow, and being over-grown therefore with weeds and thorns, are not fit to receive seed, which would but be caſt away, being caſt upon them, untill they be broken up with the plough-share, and rid of that trash; which wicked courſes, are compared unto, Heb. 6. 8.

Sow not among thorns.] Or, upon thorns. Heb. unto, for, upon; as 1 Sam. 17. 49. Chap. 3. 5. 17. It seems to have been a proverbial form among them; to sow upon thorns, as, to sow upon stones, Amos 6. 12. Matth. 13. 5. Luk. 8. 6. both used of fruitleſs labour. As all things thrive with the godly. Psal. 1. 3. Rom. 8. 28. so nothing prospereth with the wicked, Chap. 3. 37. and 16. 21.

V. 4. Circumcise your selves to the Lord, and take away the fore-skin of your heart,] Circumcise not your fleſh alone, but your hearts also; get you the spiritual circumcision, Deut. 10. 16. & 30. 6. Col. 2. 11. And cement not your selves with the carnal alone, wherein you so much glory, Act. 15. 1, 2. Gal. 6. 14. Eph. 2. 11. Phil. 3. 3. for the one will noth ing avail you without the other, chap. 9. 25, 26. Rom. 2. 25. Th same thing in effect with the former, but delivered in another notion, to meet with their vain confidence in the fleſh, Phil. 3. 4.

Circumcise your selves] Heb. Be circumcised; as Gen. 34. 24. but these paſſives are oft reciprocal. So, be hidden, for, hide your selves, Ch. 36. 19. See the like, Isa. 1. 6. & 5. 8. to the Lord] With that circumcision that he requireth, regardeth, like notice of, and approveth, Deut. 10. 16. Rom. 2. 29. Phil. 3. 3. to the Lord, or, for to me: the noun, for the pronoun; as ver. 1. Gen. 19. 24. 2 Tim. 1. 18.

the foreskin of your heart] The sinful body of the ſleſh, Col. 2. 11. the obstinacy that ger weth like a thick skin over your hearts, Ch. 6. 10. Ezek. 44. 9. Act. 7. 51.

ye men of Judah, and inhabitants of Jerusalem:] Heb. man; as v. 3. Isa. 5. 3.

leſt my fury come forth like fire, and burn that none can quench it, because of the evil of your doings.] That the wrath of God, by your evil courſes incenſed against you, do not in so fierce a manner break in upon you, that there will be no pacifying, or appeaſing of it again, until ye be consumed by it.

my fury] Or, wrath: see Isa. 51. 22. & 63. 5.

come forth] As Judg. 9. 20. or, go forth; as Isa. 55. 11. Hos. 6. 5. as fire out of a cloud, Psal. 18. 12. or, as that from the Lord that smote Nadab and Abihu, Lev. 10. 2.

like fire] Zeph. 2. 2. So Deut. 32. 22. Psal. 79. 5.

that none can quench it] Heb. and there be no quencher: So Chap. 21. 12. Amos 5. 6. but these enunciatives have oft a potential notion. So Chap. 2. 23, 32. and the like denunciation, Chap. 17. 20, 27. and. for, that; as chap. 14. 19. a defect of the pronoun it; as Isa 9. 9. & 21. 3.

because of the evil of your doings.] Or, for; Heb. from the face of. So chap. 7. 12. It is sin alone that incenseth Gods wrath, Isaiah 64. 5.

V. 5. Declare ye in Judah, and publish in Jerusalem, and say, Blow ye the trumpet:] Give warning thorowout the whole country, and at Jerusalem especially, of the enemies approach, verſ. 16. And this the Prophet subjoyneth to his former admonitions, to shew, that it is high time for them to go about that, which therein he required of them; and withal, to intimate, in what kind and manner it was, that the wrath of God was ready to break in upon them; not by a peſtilence, as Psal. 106. 29. or famine, as Psa. 105. 16. but by a forreign invaſion, the laſt and worſt of evils; and that which usually draws those other two at its heels, Levit. 26. 25, 26.

Declare and publiſh] Or, Declare it, and publiſh it: the like defect with that, v. 4. publiſh, Heb. make to hear; as Isa. 48. 20.

blow the trumpet] To give warning of the enemies approach, Chap. 6. 1. Ezek. 33. 3. and to call men either to assemble and arm, 2 Sam. 20. 1, 2. 1 Cor. 14. 8. or to retire out of the fields, and repair to the Towns and places of strength, chap. 8. 14. & 10. 17.

cry, gather together; and say, Assemble your selves, and let us go into the defenced cities.] The speeches and counſes of people at their wits end, unable to stand before, much leſs to make head against the forces of Israel, and resolving therefore by flight, and recès breaking in upon them, and resolving therefore by flight, and repair to places of strength, to make what shift they can to save themselves.

cry, gather together] Heb. cry, or call, fill, that is, cry with full mouth; see ch. 12. 6. or, call a full assembly: so, a fulneſs, for a full assembly; or, a company, a multitude, Isa. 31. 4. & to fill, for, to follow fully, Num. 32. 11, 12. and, to gather all together, or, to make all ready, chap. 51. 11. call all together, or, call all to come together; call fill, for, call to fill; as, roſe early corrupted, for, roſe early to corrupt, Zeph. 3. 7.

Assemble your selves] So ch. 8. 14. Heb. be assembled, or gathered together; as Gen. 49. 1. Ezek. 39. 17. as, be circumcised, v. 4. or, as some; Retire, betake your selves; as the word is used, Lev. 6. 21. Num. 30. 11, 30. 2 Sam. 17. 13. But in those places is still subjoyned, an expreſſion of some place to be retired unto; whereas here the word is put absolutely: and that 2d is intimated in the next clause, to which the caſt away, being caſt upon them, untill they be broken up with the plough-share, and rid of that trash; which wicked courſes, are compared unto, Heb. 6. 8.

sow not among thorns.] Or, upon thorns. Heb. unto, for, upon; as 1 Sam. 17. 49. Chap. 3. 5. 17. V. 6. Set up the standards towards Zion:] Heb. standard; as ver. 21. nor need it be altered; though the Authors of this Version seem to have conceived it, as spoken of the Chaldeans coming in, & marching with their banners and ensigns displayed against Jerusalem: but they seem rather the words of the Prophet in the person of the Jewish people, shewing what they will then do, or require to be done; and to be a continuation of their advice, in part, delivered, verſ. 5. And this way Interpreters, as well Jewiſh, as others, do most generally take it: towards Zion; that is, as some, in Zion; in Jerusalem, and in Sion the highest place of it, whence it may be farthest seen: so, to the ground, for, on the ground, Gen. 28. 12. toward Babel, for, in Babel, chap. 29. 15. toward the North, for, in the North, Chap. 46. 6. Or, as others rather, set up a standard towards Zion; that is, whereby men may be admonished to repair unto Sion, or to make towards Sion; to Jerusalem, their chief city of strength; as Sion the strongest place in it, 2 Sam. 5. 6, 7. & ch. 50. 5. a defective or compleximve form of speech, like those, Psa. 31. 17. let them be cut off into the grave, for, cut off, and thrown into the grave; Isa. 14. 12. thou art cast down to the ground, for, cut off, and thrown down to the ground; Isa. 38. 17. thou hast loved my soul from the pit, for, out of love to my soul, kept it from the pit.

retire] Some render it, strengthen your selves; as if it came from that verb, that hath a notion of hardening, or strengthening, Prov. 7. 13. & 21. 29. but it seems rather to come from another root, that signifies, to retire, or get away; as Exod. 9. 19. Isaiah 10. 31. Chap. 6. 1.

stay not] Heb. stand not; as Deu. 5. 31. Chap. 51. 50. Hasten each one, without delay, to flee for his life from the danger approaching, Luk. 17. 31. Hitherto was the speech of the people, such as they should use amidst that fear and confusion, that the Chaldean forces, breaking into their land, should bring upon them. Now follow Gods Words, by the Prophet, relating the occasion and ground that should be of this retreat.

For I will bring evil from the north, and a great destruction:] Heb. I (the Lord) am bringing (so Chap. 5. 15. & 6. 19. as of a thing in doing; and so it is well rendred, 2 King. 21. 12.) evil (a devaſtation of your land, Chap. 1. 14.) from the north (from Chaldea, Chap. 1. 13, 15. & 6. 22.) and a great breaking, or even (as Isa. 56. 5, 7.) a grievous destruction; as Isa. 30. 23, 24. v. 20. Chap. 6. 1.

V. 7. The lion is come up from his thicket,] The lion (Nebuchadnezzar, the King of Babylon, 2 King. 24. 1. so termed for his force and fierceneſs, Prov. 30. 30, 31. the like whereunto, see Chap. 2. 15. & 5. 6. Ezek. 19. 2. Dan. 7. 4. 2 Tim. 4. 17.) is come up (or, come forth, or come on; as Isa. 7. 1. 5. 6.) from his thicket; his covert; as Chap. 35. 28. because such is commonly in the forreſt among the thickets, Isa. 9. 18. that is, from Babylon, his strongeſt hold, and ſtately seat; his principal place of constant residence and retire, Dan. 4. 30.

and the destroyer of the Gentiles is on his way:] Or, a destroyer of nations; for here is no special distinction between Jew and Gentile intended: one, by whom God hath already destroyed many Nations, 2 King. 24. 7. Isa. 14. 17. Chap. 50. 23. & 51. 20. and intendeth to destroy thee, Chap. 25. 7. is on his way; or, is set forward; as Num. 10. 18, 22. is on his march for Jerusalem, Ezek. 21. 21, 22.

to make thy land desolate] Heb. to put thy land into desolation; or, to make it a desolation; that is, very desolate; as Isa. 13. 9. Chap. 2. 15.

and thy cities shall be laid waste without an inhabitant.] Or, as some, that thy cities may be over-grown with grass: for the Jewish Criticks are divided about the notion of the word here used. Some deriving it from a word, that signifies dryneſs, and consequently waſteneſs, Ch. 2. 6. Others, from a verb signifying, as they conceive, to sprout out with grass, or the like, as the bodies of fowls do with feathers; because the letters of it come neer to those words that have either of these notions: and hence the two-fold rendring of the verb here; as the like of the participle, 2 Kin. 19. 25. & Isa. 37. 26. for the word is no where else found in either notion, which maketh it the more ambiguous; but whether way it be taken, the senſe is the same; for places lying waſte, are so usually over-grown, Isaiah 5. 6. & 32. 13, 14.

without inhabitant] As chap. 2. 15. & 9. 11. or, because there is no inhabitant in them: for in theſe, and the like places, the cities here used, hath the nature of a causal; as Num. 14. 16. chap. 10. 6. & 19. 11.

V. 8. For this gird you with sackcloth, lament and howl:] Or, Because of this; or, Therefore; as Psal. 32. 6. Lam. 5. 17, 18.

gird you with sackcloth] Heb. gird sacks: the wonted garb in great and grievous mournings, publike especially, in those times among that people, 2 King. 6. 30. Isa. 3. 24. & 22. 12. chap. 6. 26.

Lament and howl] Some suppoſe that the former word importeth properly the expreſſions of grief, by outward gestures of the body, as wringing the hands, beating on the breaſt, and the like, chap. 8. 17. Nah. 2. 7. Luk. 18. 13. the latter, by weeping, complaining, crying out, and the like, Psal. 32. 3. Isa. 38. 14. & 59. 11. Hos. 7. 14. See on Isa. 32. 12.

for the fierce wrath of the Lord is not turned back from us] Or, because (as ch. 3. 21, 25.) the fierce wrath of the Lord will not turn from us; until it have done that which God intendeth by it, ch. 30. 24. see Isa. 9. 12, 17. & 13. 13.

V. 9. And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord,] As ch. 3. 16, 17.

that the heart of the King shall periſh, and the heart of the Princes, and the Prieſts shall be aſtonished, and the Prophets shall wonder.] The effect of the report of the enemies irruption, arriving at Jerusalem, and the peoples flocking thither for shelter and safety; so wit, that the great ones, who should have encouraged the meaner sort, and those who had promiſed them peace and security, should then themselves be utterly dismayed, and at their wits end.

the heart of the Kings, and the Princes shall periſh,] They shall be clean out of heart: so Psa. 73. 26. my heart faileth; and it is withered like grass, Psa. 102. 4. and melted as wax, Psa. 22. 14. but here more than all that, it is periſhed; clean destroyed, utterly gone; as Psal. 12. 1. Isa. 57. 1. Mic. 7. 1. as it is said of the Canaanites, that upon the report of the Israelites passing Jordan, there was no ſpirit any more in them, Josh. 5. 1. so with these it would be upon this occasion, as if there had been no heart at all in them.

the Prieſts, and the Prophets] The falſe Prophets; that propheſied nothing but peace, ch. 6. 14. & 8. 11. See verſ. 10.

shall wonder.] Or rather, be amazed; as the word is rendred, Isa. 13. 8. or, astonished; as Job 26. 11. but that this was before used, to expreſs another term of the same notion: for wonder here, is too sleight, and slender; since that the meaning is not, that they should wonder to see their prophecies prove falſe, which they knew well enough to be no other, than vain devices of their own coining, ch. 23. 26, 27. but they should be dismayed, as well as the reſt, for all their confidence that they had before made shew of, and endeavoured to work into others; and that the rather, because, then to their shame, they would be discovered, and generally in disgrace; yea, even abhorred by those, whom formerly by their lying prophecies, they had deluded, see chap. 37. 19.

V. 10. Then said I;] Heb. And I said; as ch. 2. 21.

Ah Lord God, Surely thou hast greatly deceived this people, and Jerusalem, saying, Ye shall have peace when as the sword reacheth unto the soul.] The Prophet having made mention of those falſe Prophets, verſ. 9. doth here thereby take occasion to complain of their deluding the people, by promiſing them, as from God, peace and safety.

Ah Lord God,] As Chap. 1. 6. and see the Prophets grief, for the peoples being thus deluded by theſe falſe Prophets, chap. 23. 9.

Surely, thou hast greatly deceived this people,] Or. much deceived. Heb. deceiving deceived: not that God indeed had so done, or that he had promiſed peace and safety; but that the falſe Prophets had in his name, and as from him, so propheſied to them, chap. 23. 17, 25, 31. & 27. 9, 14, 15. & 28. 2, 11. and the people believed them; chap. 23 32. and that God should indeed have deceived them exceedingly, if he had sent them upon any such errand unto his people, as they pretended; but which indeed he had not done, Chap. 23. 16, 21, 26, 27, 32. Howbeit, some expound it, thou hast deceived this people, that is, suffered them to be deceived; as Isa. 63. 17. & Ezek. 14. 9 by giving them up, and leaving them unto those their false Prophets delusions; because they loved not, nor listed to listen unto his truth, but desired, and delighted, to be flattered, and soothed up wi h such lies, as those their Prophets preached to them, 1 King. 22. 8, 23. Isa. 30. 10, 11. chap. 5. 31. Mic. 2. 6. 11. & 3. 5. 2 Thess. 2. 11. 12. Others, and so some of the Jewish Doctors, Thou hast [b]rowed this people to be greatly deceived: to deceive, for, to shew to be deceived: as, to know, say some of ours, for, to make to know, Gen. 22. 12. Deut. 13. 3. God by his judgements upon them, made it to appear, that their false Prophets had deluded them. But the words may well be read by way of interrogation; Hast thou indeed thus deceived this people? as if he had said; Is it possible thou shouldst promise them peace, and hold them in an expectation of it, as these Prophets in thy name do, when thou intendest nothing less? implying it to be a thing altogether impossible that God should so do, Numb. 23. 19. Tit. 1. 2. The more of interrogation, in the Hebrew, oft wanting, makes divers places, the more ambiguous: as Job 13. 15. Hos. 4. 14. Mal. 1. 8.

ye [shall have peace] All shall be well; or all shall go well with you; for that is the usual signification of the term in such forms of speech; Is it peace? or, is all well? 2 King. 9. 11, 17, 19, 31. and, enquire of their peace; that is, whether all be well with them, Gen. 37. 14. 1 Sam. 17. 18. Chap. 15. 5. and this was the false Prophets usual note to the people, chap. 11. 18. & 23. 17. Ezek. 13. 10, 16.

when as the sword reacheth unto the soul.] Striketh to the heart, verse. 18. woundeth deadly, even to the taking away of life: soul, for, life; as verse. 30. 1 Sam. 26. 24. Matt. 16. 25, 26. Luk. 14. 26. So David, the waters came in even unto the soul, Psal. 69. 1.

V. 11. At that time it shall be said unto this people, and to Jerusalem, A dry wind of the high places in the wilderness toward the daughter of my people, not to fan, nor to cleanse.] Tidings shall in those times come to the men of Judah, and those especially of Jerusalem, of a stormy wind coming toward them, that shall sweep all away before it.

At that time] When the King of Babylon shall be on his march, verse. 7.

it shall be said to this people] News shall be brought them, v. 5. as Zeph. 3. 16.

and to Jerusalem] As verse. 3.

A dry wind] Or, as some, A clear wind: and so the Chaldee, because the wind is sometime used for clearness, Isa. 32. 4. or, A fair wind; without wet: the word being used for serenity, Isa. 18. 4. and these two come much to one: and such usually the North wind is, Job 37. 22. Prov. 25. 23. and they suppose the word hath in it some glance to that coast, from whence the enemy was to come, verse. 6. wh ch yet is more probable, than that which some of the Rabbines have, who because the word sometimes applyed to men in persons, signifies, fair, and white, Cant. 5. 10. Lam. 4. 7. languages, as well learned, as vulgar. So Sect. 12. 1. Go three out of thy country: Num. 22. 6, 11. Come me this people, Exod. 30. 24. Take thee Spices: Gen. 27. 13. Take me a kid: Cant. 4. 6. & chap. 5. 5. I will go me, and the like; which if we admit, it will then be no more than such a wind as hath been described, cometh me: for in the present tense, I suppose, it ought to be rendred; because it is not a speech of prophecie, fore-telling what shall be, or what will come; but a speech, reporting at that time, when the enemy is on his way, what there is coming towards them.

now also will I give sentence against them.] Heb. will I speak, or, utter judgements with them. Of which phrase, see chap. 1. 16. when this storm comes, which they shall then be told of, verse. 11. The very report whereof shall amaze, and amate, the mightiest, and most confident among them: verse. 9. then (for he speaketh of it, as of a thing present) will I put in execution that doom, that I formerly past upon them: it would therefore be rendred, now, to wit, at this time, by this stormy wind) will I also, or, even (as Isa. 57. 6, 7.) I will do execution upon them. See chap. 39. 5.

V. 13. Behold, He shall come up as clouds] Another resemblance, setting forth the manner of the enemies coming in upon them, ushered in with a note of admiration in the front of it. So Isa. 10. 33. & 66. 12.

he] Nebuchadnezzar, and his forces.

shall come up] Or, come marching. See Isa. 7. 1. v. 7.

as clouds] As clouds driven with the wind, for swiftness; as Isa. 19. 1. or, with forces, for multitude, as thick as clouds, Isa. 60. 8. Heb. 12. 1.

and his chariots shall be as a whirlwind] See Isa. 66. 15.

his horses are swifter than eagles.] An hyperbolical form of speech, used to express eminent, or extraordinary swiftness, chap. 48. 40. Lam. 4. 19. Dan. 7. 4. Heb. lighter; as Isa. 19. 1. chap. 2. 23. verse. 24.

woe unto us, for we are spoiled.] The peoples voice, in their distress; or the Prophets, before-hand lamenting the spoyl that would be made of them. See the like, Lam. 5. 16.

V. 14. O Jerusalem, wash thine heart from thy wickedness, that thou mayst and the words would be rendred, as here; toward the red sea, and toward Tarsus.

the daughter of my people] As, the daughter of Sion, Isa. 1. 8. See there; my people, for beauty and delicacy, like a young damsel; and as dear to me as a darling daughter. So Chap. 9. 1.

not to fan, nor to cleanse] Not such a wind as they use to fan with, and by fanning, to cleanse the grain, by severing the chaff, and such like lighter trash, from the good corn, and weighty grain, and carrying away the one, but leaving the other, Matt. 3. 12. for such wind, must not be any stiff, or boysterous wind: but this wind is such an one, so fierce, so furious, as scattereth, and carryeth all together away with it. See Isa. 27. 8. chap. 15. 7. & 18. 17. & 51. 1. Ezek. 5. 2, & 21. 3.

V. 12. Even a full wind from those places shall come to me.] Even a full wind: the particle supplyed; as Job 42. 16. or, A full wind, I say; as Isa. 35. 4. & 51. 22. for the sentence from the foregoing verse is continued in this, a full wind, that is, a wind full of a curse and calamities; a pestilent wind, saith one of the Jewish Commentors: but rather, as another of them, a flight, a strong wind; as 2 Kin. 9. 24. Jehu filled his hand with a bow, that is, as our Version not amiss readeth it, drew a bow with full strength: and so here, a full wind: a wind blowing in its full strength, having nothing to oppose it. See on verse. 11. But there seems somewhat more in it, than the Jewish Critick here takes notice of: for the particle subjoyned, is commonly a note of comparison: great from, in Hebrew, is greater, Gen. 48. 19. good from; better, Prov. 22. 1. Eccl. 7. 1. strong from; stronger, 2 Sam. 1. 23. Psal. 18. 17. in which places also it should be so rendred: that therefore which is here rendred from those places, as having reference to the high places in the plain, or waste, before mentioned, verse. 11. some other Interpreters conceive rather, to imply some matter of collation, than of lation, or motion, from place to place: and they render the words a fuller, that is, a stronger than they: which they refer to the persons before-mentioned, verse. 9, 11, that should be carried away with it: as if it were said, a wind stronger than they are able to endure or withstand: but that seems to look too far backward. I rather conceive it to have reference to such winds, as they used to fan, and cleanse their corn with, in the latter end of verse. 11. in the words next before going; and suppose it would be rendred therefore, fuller and stronger, in fuller strength, than those, to wit, winds wherewith ye use to winnow and cleanse your corn, Isaiah 30. 14.

Shall come to me] Or, cometh to me; that is, as some, against me; as chap. 3. 25. Psal. 51. 4. & 56. 3. So the Jewish Doctors: the Prophet, say they, speaking in the person of the people; or rather, relating the words of the people, what in those times they should say, ver. 11. But ours mott understand it, as spoken in the person of God, shall come for me; that is, by commission from me, at my command, to do my work, to fulfil my will; as of wind and storm it is said, Psal. 148. 8. So Isa. 6. 8. who shall go for us? and this they suppose confirmed, by what followeth: but thereof there is no necessity; and the course of the context seems to carry it rather the former way: unless we will take it for an elegant redundancy, very common, not in Hebrew only, but in other languages, as well learned, as vulgar. So Sect. 12. 1. Go three out of thy country: Num. 22. 6, 11. Come me this people, Exod. 30. 24. Take thee Spices: Gen. 27. 13. Take me a kid: Cant. 4. 6. & chap. 5. 5. I will go me, and the like; which if we admit, it will then be no more than such a wind as hath been described, cometh me: for in the present tense, I suppose, it ought to be rendred; because it is not a speech of prophecie, fore-telling what shall be, or what will come; but a speech, reporting at that time, when the enemy is on his way, what there is coming towards them.

now also will I give sentence against them.] Heb. will I speak, or, utter judgements with them. Of which phrase, see chap. 1. 16. when this storm comes, which they shall then be told of, verse. 11. The very report whereof shall amaze, and amate, the mightiest, and most confident among them: verse. 9. then (for he speaketh of it, as of a thing present) will I put in execution that doom, that I formerly past upon them: it would therefore be rendred, now, to wit, at this time, by this stormy wind) will I also, or, even (as Isa. 57. 6, 7.) I will do execution upon them. See chap. 39. 5.

V. 13. Behold, He shall come up as clouds] Another resemblance, setting forth the manner of the enemies coming in upon them, ushered in with a note of admiration in the front of it. So Isa. 10. 33. & 66. 12.

he] Nebuchadnezzar, and his forces.

shall come up] Or, come marching. See Isa. 7. 1. v. 7.

as clouds] As clouds driven with the wind, for swiftness; as Isa. 19. 1. or, with forces, for multitude, as thick as clouds, Isa. 60. 8. Heb. 12. 1.

and his chariots shall be as a whirlwind] See Isa. 66. 15.

his horses are swifter than eagles.] An hyperbolical form of speech, used to express eminent, or extraordinary swiftness, chap. 48. 40. Lam. 4. 19. Dan. 7. 4. Heb. lighter; as Isa. 19. 1. chap. 2. 23. verse. 24.

woe unto us, for we are spoiled.] The peoples voice, in their distress; or the Prophets, before-hand lamenting the spoyl that would be made of them. See the like, Lam. 5. 16.

V. 14. O Jerusalem, wash thine heart from thy wickedness, that thou mayst mayst be saved.] A serious admonition and exhortation, to sincere repentance and reformation, as well of heart, as of life, for the preventing and averting of this threatned destruction: the same, in effect, with those former, v. 3, 4. but delivered in a new notion, and expressed by a divers similitude.

O Jerusalem] Ye Inhabitants of Jerusalem, and people of Judah, in general, v. 3, 11. so ch. 6. 8.

wash thine heart.] As circumcise thy heart, verse. 4. that your repentance being hearty, it may be sound and sincere, not feigned and counterfeit, as formerly, chap. 3. 10. cleanse not your hands alone, (as by external rites ye oft do, Mark 7. 3, 4. Heb. 9. 10. alluded to, Psal. 26. 6.) but your hearts also, Jam. 4. 8. Act. 15. 9. Heb. 10. 22. 1 Pet. 1. 22. otherwise all your ceremonial washings will stand you in no stead, chap. 2. 22. Matt. 23. 25, 26. no more than Pilat's ceremonial washing of his hands, freed him from the guilt of Christs bloud, Matth. 27. 24. It may seem an allusion to such physical lotions, and potions, wherewith the inward parts of the body are wont to be purged and cleansed; which so long as they remain foul, all washings, and scouring of the skin, or topical medicines, applyed to the outward parts, are in vain used: it requires, question-less, the true inward washing, whereof the outward washings were all but types, and meer shadows, without substance, where the inward was wanting, 1 Cor. 6. 11. So Isa. 1. 16. See chap. 13. 27.

from thy wickedness] Not from thy bodily soyl, but from thy spiritual filth, that makes thee loathsome in Gods sight, Prov. 30. 12. 2 Cor. 7. 1. Heb. 9. 13, 14. Jam. 1. 21. 1 Peter 3. 21.

that thou mayst be saved.] Not as the Apostle saith, baptism saveth, 1 Pet. 3. 21. though such spiritual washing and cleansing, as the Prophet here speaketh of be the way and means to attain that salvation which the evils and miseries, that will otherwise to thine utter destruction befall thee. See v. 4.

how long shall thy vain thoughts lodge within thee?] Heb. thoughts of vanity; as Zach. 10. 2. how long will thou feed thy self with vain thoughts, and hopes of succour and safety, from forrein forces, or other means, that are not able to relieve thee, chap. 2. 5, 37. or, thoughts of iniquity, or mischief; wicked and mischievous thoughts: as Prov. 6. 18. Isa. 59. 7. and so one of the Rabbines here expresseth it; thoughts of violence and oppression. See Isa. 55. 7. But I rather conceive the word here to signifie, (as natively and usually it doth, and as in the very next verse it seems to do) affliction; thy thoughts of affliction; such thoughts of thine, as will bring nothing but affliction, misery, and mischief upon thee, prophecies of expulsions, Lam. 2. 14. so called, not from the subject matter of them, but from the effect of them; not because they threatned them with expulsion, but because by promising them peace, (which the people relying on, repented not) they were the means of bringing expulsion upon them. Howbeit, there are two other readings: for because the verb is singular; and again may be as well of the second person masculine, as the third feminine: from the former consideration, some of our Interpreters, of prime note, render it; How long shall it (to wit, thy wickedness) even thy thoughts of vanity lodge in thy mind? but it is common to have a noun plural, in way of distribution, joyned with a verb singular: and the sense is, any one of those thy fresh thoughts: the like, see Isa. 26. 19. Psal. 119. 103. Prov. 14. 1. & 28. 1. From the latter, one of the Rabbines would have them thus read; How long wilt thou lodge in thy thoughts of affliction? that is, faith he, perfist and continue in them? as, mine eye lodgeth, that is, continueth in bitterness, Job 17. 2. So, the world lieth in evil, 1 John 5. 19. all the difficulty, in this reading, is, that the form is here masculine, in the rest feminine; which he thus salveth, that in here masculine, the gender is respected, in the other terms the people. See chap. 3. 5.

within thee] Heb. in the midst of thee: as Nah. 3. 13. Deut. 18. 2. & 19. 10.

V. 15. For a voice declareth from Dan, and publisheth affliction from mount Ephraim.] As if he had said; It is high time for you thus to do, for reports are coming to you thick and three-fold, of the enemies coming on apace toward you. Heb. there is a voice reporting, and making to hear: the verbs are the same that were before, v. 5. and that is related as done here, that was either enjoyned, or advised there: a voice, for, a rumour, or a report: as Gen. 45. 16. Chap. 50. 46. and this report is said to come from Dan; because that was the utmost bound of the land of Israel Northward, towards the land from whence this evil was to come, verf. 6. and from mount Ephraim, because that neereft to Judea, whither the enemy was bound: and the subject matter is affliction; as the word is well rendred, Job 5. 6. and so it is used, Job 4. 8. & 15. 35. compared with Prov. 22. 8. Psal. 7. 14. Isa. 59. 4. See Isa. 1. 13. Chap. 20. 18. and this is the first and native sense of it; for it comes from a term, that hath a notion of grief, and mourning, Isa. 3. 26. & 19. 8. Hos. 9. 4. though in the second place, also, wrong; because by it, men are afflicted, grieved, and made to mourn. And thus the Jewish Rabbine, whom most of ours follow, expoundeth this place, which is confirmed, also, by that which is said, Chap. 8. 16. the neighing of his horses is heard from Dan. Howbeit, the Chaldee Paraphrast, understands it of the voice of Gods Prophets, acquainting them, with what affliction was to befal them, for the worshipping of the golden calves; the one, at Dan; and the other, at Bethel; and the idol that Micah of mount Ephraim made, Judg. 17. 1, 4, 5. & 18. 29, 31. 1 King. 12. 28, 29. But we read not the worshipping of those calves objected to Judah, but to Israel onely, Hos. 8. 5, 6. & 13. 2. Some other therefore late Interpreters, of special note, render it; For a voice declareth, or there is a voice that declareth greater iniquity, or, the iniquity to be greater, than that of Dan; and that publisheth more grievous, or, that publisheth it to be more grievous, than that in mount Ephraim: as if he had said; It is as notorious, as if it were proclaimed, that the wickedness of Judah, in idolatry, especially, is greater, and more grievous, than that of Israel, committed at Dan and Bethel, with the golden calves there. I am not ignorant, that the particle here used, is, commonly, employed in comparisons, as was before obseived, on verse. 12. as also, that the noun here used, is usually, in many places, rendred iniquity, (for wh ch, there is another word, in Hebrew, more proper, though in found never to this, yet of a diverse notion, and notation) where I suppose it might better be rendred wrong; as Job 34. 5, 22. Psal. 5. 5. & 6. 8. & 14. 4. as also, that the word in the former branch may well, and is oft supplyed from the latter: as Isa. 13. 13. & 18. 7. & 30. 17. and that in such collations, the subject matter, wherein the collar on consisteth, is not seldom in the one member concealed: of which, see on Isa. 5. 29. verf. 31. and with all these favourable helps admitted; that stesne may be made up from the words, that these worthy Writers give unto it: Nor can it be denyed, but that Judah was, in some fort, far worse, and more condemnable, than Israel. See Ch. 3. 11. But it seems needless to me, thus to wring a text for a new sense; where it doth, of it self, freely afford one so suitable to the course of the context, and the main drift of the place. Nor doth that sense, which another learned Annotator gives, seem to flow so naturally from the place, though one of the Rabbines, from whom he seems to have received it, have somewhat to that purpose, to wit, that the report of that affliction which he bemoaned before them for their idolatry, at Dan and Bethel, should have admonished Judah, and been a warning to her: and so indeed should it have been, Ch. 3. 8, 10. but every truth is not in every place taught: not seems this here to be implyed.

V. 16. Make ye mention to the Nations, behold, publish against Jerusalem, that watchers are come from a far Country, and give out their voice against the cities of Judah.] This likewise tendeth to give warning, or notice at least, to those of Judah and Jerusalem, of the enemies march towards them; though some understand it of the summoning of the Chaldeans and other nations with them, to come on against them.

Make ye mention to the nations,] The subject matter, saith one of the Rabbines, of the voice, or rumour, before-mentioned, verf. 15.

Make ye mention,] Or, Put them in mind; as Isaiah 43. 26.

to the nations] Those of Judah, say some; concerning the nations, say others: the Chaldeans, and their complices, 2 King. 24. 3. so the particle is oft used, Gen. 20. 13. and 26. 7.

publish] Heb. make to hear; give them to understand; as v. 5. against Jerusalem] Or, to Jerusalem; as Exod. 20. 3. to my face: 1 Sam. 2. 11. to Ramah. See v. 5. or, concerning Jerusalem, as Isa. 1. 1. & 2. 1. Some of those that remain that which our Version exhibiteth, do thus render the words: Mind them of the Nations, tell them, Behold, against Jerusalem watchers are coming.

watchers] So the word is used, 2 Kin. 17. 9. hostile forces; which why so termed, see v. 17.

come] Heb. coming; behold them coming: as if they might see them on their way, and did point with the finger to them; as Isaiah 65. 17.

and give out their voice against the cities of Judah] Or, that give out; and the copulative for the relative, as Isa. 44. 7. & 49. 7. that threaten ruine to them: or, that will give out; that will with loud shouts assault them. See Ch. 2. 15. & 12. 8.

V. 17. As Keepers of a field are they against her round about.] Are they; or, will they be, against her; to wit, Jerusalem, mentioned, verf. 16. An intimation of a streit siege to ensue, they will lye round about Jerusalem, Isa. 29. 3. Zach. 12. 2. As those that are set to watch a field, or a vineyard, and the fruit in it, to streit, that none can be suffered, either man or beast to get in, that may annoy it, or commit waste in it, Isa. 27. 3. and there is deemed by some to be a bitter taunt in the term: for both watch indeed; but the one to keep from going in, the other from coming out: the one watch that nothing can get in that may hurt or annoy; the other, that nothing come in thing go in that may hurt or annoy; the one, that no thing come in that may help or relieve, 2 Chron. 16. 1. 2 Kin. 6. 24, 25. & 25. 3. Yet some suppose the sim l tude to be taken, from such as are set to watch wild beasts, or deer, enclosed in a wood, to keep them from breaking away, and making escape. But the former is the more probable; for field, and wood, are in Scripture commonly opposed. See Chap. 5. 6.

because she hath been rebellious against me, saith the Lord] The ground of all their misery, as themselves acknowledge, Lam. 1. 18, 20. So Hos. 13. 16.

V. 18. Thy ways and thy doings have procured these things unto thee,] Heb.

Heb. Thy way and thy doings (or, Thine own ways, and thine own doings; to make it the more vigorous, as Ch. 6. 19.) have doing done theſe things to thee: of which manner of ſpeech, both defective and redundant, ſee on Iſa.59.13. The ſame matter, ſee before, Ch.2.17,19. ſo Iſa.50.1. Pſa.107.17. Ch.5.25.

this is thy wickedneſs;] Or, this hath thy wickedneſs done, or procured; ſupplying it from the former branch: as the like, Geneſis 1. 16.

becauſe it is bitter] Or rather, that, as the particle is alſo frequently uſed, Neh.4.1. Job 11.6.& 22.3. Iſa.52.5,6. that it is bitter. See Ruth 1.20. Amos 8.10. So Ch. 2.19. for their wickedneſs was the cauſe of the bitterneſs; not this of that.

becauſe it reacheth unto thine heart.] Or, that it reacheth unto thine heart; that it goeth to the very heart with thee. See verſ. 10, 19.

V. 19. My bowels, my bowels;] Theſe words ſome would have to be the peoples, crying out in their diſtreſs; thereby to maintain the common reading of the foregoing words, which they rent from the former verſe, and thus knit unto this; Becauſe it is bitter, and reacheth to thine heart; therefore ſhalt thou ſay, My bowels, my bowels. Such defects and ſupplies, it is true, are not unuſual: ſee on Chap.3.22. but needleſs here: the right reading of the foregoing words, was before ſhewed. The moſt rather conceive theſe words to be the Prophets own, very pathetically bewailing the calamities of his people, and expreſſing his extream ſorrow and inward grief for them. So Ch.9.1. Iſa.22.4.

My bowels, my bowels] He cryeth out, as a woman in ſore and hard travel; or as one torn and tortured with wind in the bowels, that can find no vent. See Iſa. 26. 17, 18. and the ingemination of it addeth no ſmall emphaſis to it; for thoſe that are in pain are wont to double their words: ſo, My head, my head, 2 King. 4. 19. and, My leanneſs, my leanneſs, Iſaiah 24.16. See the like affectionate and paſſionate repetitions; 2 Sam. 18. 33. 2 King. 4. 13, 14. Prov. 31. 2.

I am pained at the very heart;] Heb. at, or, in, (a defect of the particle, as 2 Chr.21.16.) the walls of my heart; the walls of the heart; that is, the ſides of it, ſay ſome: Other rathers, the bowels that lye round about the heart; as encloſing and fencing it, ſituate in the midſt of them, Pſal.22.13. as if his very heart were beſet and ſtreitned, as the city in the ſiege, v. 17. or were ſurpriſed as its walls were, Ch.5.10. Lam.2.8,18. which he may well allude to: a defect of the pronoun; as Ch.3.19.

my heart maketh a noiſe in me;] Or, with me. Heb. to me. Of which form of ſpeech, ſee on verſ. 12. the like redundancy, ſee Pſal.144. 2. Cant.1.6.& 8. 12. my heart ſoundeth with me; as Iſa.16.11. though ſome render it, my heart worketh, or, is troubled: as it is rendred, Ch. 31. 20. (as the Sea is ſaid to work, and to be troubled, Ch.5.22.& 51. 55. Iſa.57.20. Jon.1.13.) and is unquiet within me; it cannot reſt. So the word ſeems to be taken, Pſal.46.6. Cant. 5.4. where the word moved, is too ſlender; ſtirred, at leaſt, had been better. My bowels round about my heart are ſo full of pain, that my heart fluttreth to and fro, and cannot reſt. See the like, Job 30.27. Lam. 1. 20.& 2. 11.

I cannot hold my peace;] Heb. I will not; or, ſhall not, be ſilent: but ſuch potential notions are frequent. See Ch. 2.23,32. It is as if one being in pain, and willed to be quiet and ſtill, ſhould anſwer thoſe that ſo ſpeak to him, My pain is ſuch, that I cannot be quiet, I cannot forbear ſpeaking. See Job 7.11.& 10.1.& 13.19.& 16.6. Iſa. 22.4.

becauſe thou haſt heard, O my ſoul, the ſound of the trumpet, the alarm of war.] There is a two-fold reading, the one in the margent, the other in the text, I have heard, O my ſoul, ſaith the one; thou haſt heard, or, doſt hear, O my ſoul, ſaith the other. This latter is the more received, and is the more emphatical of the twain: as the like, Judg. 5.21. Pſal. 103.1.& 104.1. The reaſon why his heart cannot reſt; becauſe he is ſo affected, as if he had the noiſe of the enemies warlike trumpeting, and ſhouting, continually in his ear, Job 15. 20, 21. he ſaith not, as the Rabbine well obſerveth, O mine ear, but, O my ſoul: for the matter was not in being, but his ſoul, by the Spirit of prophecy, hearing and ſeeing it, as preſent, did as much affect him, as if he had with his bodily eye ſeen the enemies approaches, and aſſaults; and with his bodily ear, heard their hideous ſhouts. See verſ. 21. So John 8.56. Abraham ſaw my day, and rejoyced.

the alarm of war.] Or rather, the ſhout of battel: as the word is better rendred, Chap.20.16. for the allarm is properly that ſound, or noiſe, by which men are rouzed up, and called upon, to betake themſelves all to their arms; whereas that here intended, is the ſhout that is made in joyning battel, or in aſſault. So Chap. 49.2.

V. 20. Deſtruction upon deſtruction is cryed.] Heb. Breach upon breach (as v. 6.) is cryed, or proclaimed. A farther reaſon of this his extream grief: there is yet a further noiſe in the ear of his ſoul, a grievous cry of one miſchief and calamity, coming upon the neck of another: as Deut. 32.23. Pſal. 42.7. Ezek. 7.26. That is, ſay ſome of the Jewiſh Writers, the captivity of Judah, after the deportation of Iſrael. But other, and ſo ours, moſt of them, rather, (becauſe the Prophet ſpeaks of things to come, and concerning his own people) the death of Joſiah, 2 Chr. 35. 24, 25. the depoſition and deportation of Jehoachaz, of Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin and Zedekiah, ſucceſſively, and the utter ſpoyl and ruine of their land and ſtate in this laſt, 2 Chro. 36. 2, 20.

for the whole land is ſpoiled] Or, as ſome, becauſe; or, as I conceive it, that, or, ſo that, (as v.18.) the whole land is plundered: ſo v.27. See hereafter this general devaſtation moſt rhetorically deſcribed, verſ. 23, 26.

ſuddenly are my tents ſpoiled, and my curtains in a moment.] The tents of my people, and their curtains, whereof thoſe tents conſiſt, Cant. 1. 5. Chap. 49. 29. that is, their ſtrong cities lofty palaces, and ſtately houſes; or their habitations in general, Iſa. 54.2. Ch.10.20. are as eaſily, and ſuddenly overturned and ruined, as ſome ſhepherds, or other like ſorry tent, Iſa.38.12. Lam.2.6. an alluſion either to the ancient manner of that peoples dwelling, while they abode in the wilderneſs, Num.24.2,5. and in other parts before, Gen.33.18. Heb. 11.9. and the ordinary habitation of divers people at that day, Hab. 3.7. or to the overthrow of a camp conſiſting of tents, Judg.7.13,14. Chap. 6. 3.

V. 21. How long ſhall I ſee the Standard, and hear the ſound of the trumpet?] Or, How long ſhall I ſee the Standard? how long ſhall I hear the ſound of the trumpet? The interrogative ſupplyed from the former branch: as Pſal. 94. 3. The Prophet ſeemeth to have been ſo affected, as if he had the ſight of the one continually in his eye, and the ſound of the other in his ear. See verſ. 19. and withal, by this manner of ſpeech, implyeth the long continuance of this evil; that albeit the whole land were ſuddenly plundered and ſpoyled, yet the war was drawn out at length, as well in the ſurpriſal of city after city, as in the ſeveral ſurpriſals and ſackings of Jeruſalem, under her three laſt Kings. See on verſ. 20. and the like forms of ſpeech, verſ. 14. Chap. 13.27. & 47.6.

ſhall I ſee? ſhall I hear?] Or, as ſome render it; am I compelled to ſee? am I compelled to hear? as Hab.1.3.

the ſtandard, the trumpet.] By ſtandard, and trumpet, ſome underſtand their own, either giving warning of the enemies approach; or calling people together, to repair to places of ſtrength, or to joyn together in a body, and arm, to make head againſt the enemy, verſ. 5,6. Others rather, whom I concur with, the enemies ſtandard, marching on, and coming to make aſſault; and his trumpet, inciting his forces, either to joyn battel, or to make aſſault, and to proceed eagerly in either, Iſa.31.9, & 33.23. & 59.19. Joſh. 6.5,16. 2 Chr. 13. 12.

V. 22. For my people is fooliſh, they have not known me; they are ſottiſh children, and they have no underſtanding:] Or, as ſome render it; All this is, Becauſe my people is fooliſh: as Pſal. 38. 3, 5. My people, by their own folly, and ſtupidity, have brought all this evil and miſchief upon themſelves, Chap. 2. 17, 19. verſ. 18.

my people] God ſpeaketh it, yet owning them, that had caſt off him. So Ch.2.11,31,32.

is fooliſh] Or, are (becauſe the word is collective, and plurals follow; as Iſaiah 5. 26.) fooliſh. So Deut. 32. 4. Iſaiah 44. 18, 19.

they have not known me] Or, they know me not, Iſaiah 1. 3. Ch. 9. 3.

they are ſottiſh children] So Ch. 5.21. a ſottiſh people: children; as Iſa. 1. 4.& 30. 1. the verb deduced from the noun here uſed, ſee 1 Sam. 13. 13. 2 Sam. 24. 10. the pronoun demonſtrative, is here put for the verb ſubſtantive; and ſo in the next branches: as Iſa.60. 21. Ch.9.3.

they have no underſtanding] Heb. they are not underſtanding. So Deu. 32.28. Iſa.27.11.

they are wiſe to do evil; but to do good they have no knowledge.] They have no wit to any thing, but what is evil; that to plot and practice, they are cunning enough; Luke 16. 8. See Chap. 9. 3. the contrary hereunto, the Apoſtle requireth, 1 Cor. 14. 20.

they are wiſe] Heb. wiſe they are: the pronoun, for the verb, as before.

to do evil] Either to others, or to themſelves: for all their projects and policies were ſuch, as tended to their own ruine, by carrying them from God, and driving him from them, Iſaiah 30. 11, 14. and ſuch, indeed, is all humane wiſdom naturally, Rom.8. 6, 7.

but to do good, they have no knowledge.] Heb. and (as Chap. 3. 7.) to do well, they know not: for well-doing, they have no ſkill. See Chap.13.23. the contrary leſſon God would have them to learn. Iſa. 1. 17.

V. 23. I beheld the earth; and loe it was without form, and void: and the heavens, and they had no light.] The Prophet proceedeth, here, to deſcribe the lamentable effects, that ſhould enſue this hoſtile invaſion, which as they were in a ſpiritual rapture repreſented to the eye of his mind; ſo he endeavoureth, by a very rhetorical delineation, to ſet forth at large, and to ſet a moſt ruful ſpectacle, as in a lively map of extream devaſtation, and deſolation, before their eyes, if the foreſight of theſe their miſeries, which otherwiſe would enſue, might might ſo affect them, as to move them unto the timely entertainment of thoſe counſels and courſes, whereby the ſame might be prevented.

I beheld] Or, I ſaw, or, I ſee, (as ſpeaking of a thing preſent, and in view) in ſpirit; as Col. 2. 15. but here more than ſo, in a viſion, or apparition: as Dan. 7. 2, 13. Act. 10. 11.& 11. 5. Revel. 1. 10, 12. Or, when I look upon the ground, it is ſhapeleſs, or, unſightly, and empty; and ſo in the reſt: the like ſyntax, ſee Ch. 2. 7, 20.& 5. 7.

the earth] The land of Judea: but aright rendred, the earth; becauſe it hath a glance unto Moſes his words, Gen.1.2.

it was without form, and void.] Or, it is without form, and void: not onely without habitation, or inhabitants; but deſpoyled alſo, of all its former goodly furniture, and laid utterly waſte and deſolate: inſomuch, that the earth might ſeem reduced unto that original Chaos, or confuſed maſs, that at firſt it was, Gen. 1. 2.

and the heavens] Or, I ſaw, or, I ſee the heavens: by a ſupply from the former branch; as Gen. 1. 16. 2 Chron. 10. 11. verſ. 21. Heb. to the heavens. But a Jewiſh Critick deemeth the particle here redundant; as Pſalm 2. 7. elſe it ſhould be rendred, I look to the heavens.

and they had no light] Or, how they are without light; (as Exod.19. 4. Pſal. 119. 159.) as if that primordial darkneſs were returned, that poſſeſſed the heavens, and over-ſpread the ſurface of this lower world at firſt, Gen. 1. 2. A ſad and ſolemn expreſſion in Scripture, very frequent of utter deſolation, or extream diſtreſs. See Iſa. 8.21.& 13.10, 13.& 24.23. Ezek. 32. 7. Joel 2. 10.& 3. 15. Amos 8.9. Some expound it here of the ſmoke of the houſes; yea, whole towns and cities, fired and burnt down by the enemy, obſcuring the ayr, and darkning the ſky: as Gen. 19. 28. Joſh. 8. 20. Judg. 20.40. Iſa. 9. 18.& 35.9,10. See 2 King. 25. 9. Ch.37.10.& 38.23.& 39.8. & 52.13.

V. 24. I beheld the mountains, and lo they trembled; and all the hills moved lightly.] I ſaw, or I ſee; as before, verſ. 23. the mountains (to wit, of Judea, Chap. 3. 23.& 9. 10.) how, lo, they tremble, (Heb. are trembling) and the hils move lightly, or, ſwiftly: lightly, ſaith a Rabbine, as being lightned of their burthen; the trees growing on them, or edifices built upon them, being burnt up and deſtroyed: but ſwiftly, rather; yea, exceeding ſwiftly: for the verb is in a redoubled, and withal, a reciprocal form: as if he had ſaid, the hills all apace beſtirred themſelves: light, for, ſwift; as Iſa. 5. 26. verſ. 13. He ſpeaks, as if the calamity were ſo hideous, and Gods wrath revealed therein ſo fierce, verſ.26. that the very ſenſleſs creatures might ſeem to tremble and quake exceedingly at the apprehenſion of it. So Pſal. 18.7.& 114.4,6,7. Iſa.5.25. Hab.3.10. For that ſeems too ſlender, that a learned late Writer hath, of their ſhaking, with the multitudes of people paſſing over them. This hideous ſpectacle, concerning rather the ſpoyl of the Enemy made of, and in the land after the ſurpriſal of it, than their march either unto it, or in it. Some render it, they are deſtroyed, from a term uſual in the Talmudiſts Writings. But the received notion of concuſſion, or ſhaking, another backeth from the Ethiopick uſe of the word, Matth.24.29.

V. 25. I beheld, and lo there was no man;] Or, I look, and behold the men are gone. Heb. the man is not. So Iſa.6.12. Ch. 6.8.& 7.20. the people are either killed, or captived, or fled, and the land left without Inhabitants, v.7.

and all the birds of the heavens were fled] Or, the birds of heaven, (ſee Iſa. 1. 2. for it is but one heaven, at moſt, the birds abide in, Gen. 1.20.) or, of the air (as Matth.8.20.& 3.32.) are fled; as Pſa.11.1. or, wandred away; as Prov. 27. 8. either falling down, or ſcared away, ſaith one, with the cryes of the Souldiery: or rather, having forſaken the land, for the extream deſolation of the country, become like a wilderneſs, v. 26. See the like, Ch.9.10. Zeph.1.3. for of ſuch birds, or fowl, it is meant, as either being tame, are kept, or fed, in or about the houſe; or that uſe to haunt places inhabited, and peopled, and to build, and feed, about, or neer thereunto: not of ſuch as haunt, and abide, in deſarts, and places, by men abandoned, Iſa.13.21.& 34. 14, 15.

V. 26. I beheld, and lo the fruitful place was a wilderneſs;] Or, I look, and behold the tilled land (Heb. Carmel. See Iſaiah 29.17. & 33.9.) is become a wilderneſs. See Chap. 9. 12.& 12. 10.& 22. 6.

and all the cities thereof were broken down,] Or, all his cities, (the cities of my people, verſ. 22.) or, its cities (the cities ſituate in ſuch places) are broken down, or demoliſhed, Iſaiah 1. 7. Chap. 33. 4. & 39. 8.

at the preſence of the Lord, and by his fierce anger.] Heb. from the face of the Lord (that is, his wrath; as Chap. 23. 12.) from the heat, or fervour, of his noſe, or anger. See verſ. 8. Hereby intimating, that it was not ſo much through the enemies rage, as from the wrath of God, juſtly incenſed againſt them for their ſins, that ſo heavy a judgement was to befall them, 2 Kings 24.3. 2 Chr.36.17,20. Ch.9. 12, 13.

V. 27. For thus hath the Lord ſaid] Or, Thus ſaith the Lord; as Cha. 2. 5.

The whole land ſhall be deſolate] Or, This land ſhall be very waſte, or very much waſted. Heb. ſhall be waſteneſs: as Iſaiah 1. 7. See verſ. 20.

yet will I not make a full end,] Or, yet (Heb. and; as Cha. 3.7,9.) will I not make an utter conſumption, Chap.5.10.& 31.11. For God would yet reſerve himſelf a remnant, Iſa. 1. 9.& 24. 13. according to that which he promiſed in the Law, Levit. 26. 44. Howbeit, ſome expound it, and yet I have not made a full end with them: all this ſhall not ſerve, to ſatisfie my wrath; but I will inflict further penalty upon them, and afflict them yet more grievouſly before I have done; as having an eye to their enſuing captivity, and thoſe grievous and tedious afflictions, that for ſo long a time, during it, they ſhould endure, Lev.26.36,39. and to this purpoſe, this form may ſeem to ſound, Ch.5.18. where it is ſaid, Notwithſtanding, in thoſe days, I will not make a full end with you: but neither is the ſyntax the ſame here, and there: and that place alſo may well be deemed to look rather the former way.

V. 28. For this ſhall the earth mourn, and the heavens above be black:] They ſhall wear blacks as mourners uſe to do, Iſaiah 30. 28. Pſal. 38. 6.& 42. 9. Chap. 8. 21.& 14.2. See v.23. Ezek. 31. 15.

becauſe I have ſpoken it, I have purpoſed it; and I will not repent, neither will I turn back from it.] What I have reſolved upon and ſaid, I will do, Num.23.19. Iſa.14.24,27. The particle it, is ſupplyed; as Chap.3.7.

I will not repent] Ch.15.6. Zach.8.14.

neither will I turn back] See v.8. Ch.30.24.

V. 29. The whole city ſhall flee for the noiſe of the horſemen and bowmen:] The whole city; the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, all ſorts of them ſhall flee for fear (Chap.39.4.) of the horſemen (Heb. horſeman; as Ezek.26.10.) and bowmen. Heb. him that throweth, or, ſhooteth out arrows with a bow; as Pſal.78.9.

they ſhall go into thickets,] There to hide themſelves for fear; as Gen. 3. 8. 2 Chr. 33. 11. So the Chaldee, whom ſome of the Rabbines follow, and the ancient Greek. Yet ſome of the Rabbines render it, they ſhall go up to the thick clouds; as the word is oft uſed, Job 20. 6. Iſa. 44. 22. an hyperbolical ſpeech, ſaith the Jewiſh Doctor, that is, into the higheſt hills, that ſeem to reach the clouds; into the high places, ſaith the old Latine: or as if they would climb up to the clouds, Chap. 49. 16. Amos 9. 2, 3. but the word ſignifies, thickneſs in general; and the former is more probable.

and climb up upon the rocks] Or, to the cliffs, Job 30. 6. that are as the branches of the rocks; for ſo the word primarily importeth, Job 15.32. See the like, Iſa.2.21.

every city ſhall be forſaken, and not a man dwell therein.] Or, as ſome, the whole city; as before: but the pronoun in the clauſe requireth the received reading; the meaning is, that their cities generally ſhould be ruined, and left without Inhabitants, verſ. 25, 26.

V. 30. And when thou art ſpoiled, what wilt thou do?] Heb. And thou ſpoiled; which ſome render, thou that art to be ſpoiled; as Pſalm 137. 8. deſtroyed, for, to be deſtroyed: as ſure to be ſpoiled, as if thou were ſpoiled already; or, ſpoiled, that is, ready to be ſpoiled: as, periſhed, for, ready to periſh, Iſa.27.13. But we need not depart from the received verſion; what wilt thou being ſpoiled do? or to make it the more emphatical; And thou being ſpoiled, what wilt thou do? that is, And as for thee, (for the pronoun ſeems to be put here abſolutely; as Iſa. 65. 11.) when thou art ſpoiled, what wilt thou do? But there is an irregularity in the ſyntax, not unlike that Chap. 2. 24. for the pronoun and verb are feminine; the Prophet here again turning his ſpeech unto Jeruſalem, or Sion, verſ. 31. and ſpeaking unto her as to a woman, and that an harlot, as before. Chap. 2. 20. & 3.10. whereas the participle paſſive is maſculine. This to ſalve, the Jewiſh Criticks, ſome of them would have it to be a defective form of ſpeech, and the note of ſimilitude to be ſupplyed; And thou that art, or, when thou art as one ſpoiled, what wilt thou do? So it ſhould be like that, Thou haſt broken to pieces Rahab, as one ſlain, or thruſt thorow, Pſal. 89. 10. But another of them hath recourſe to his wonted refuge, that the one hath reference to the congregation, the other to the people. See Chap. 3. 5.& 4. 14. but the genders are very oft in this Prophet found promiſcuouſly uſed, as in the places pointed to, hath been ſhewed.

though thou deckeſt thee with ornaments of gold, though thou renteſt thy face with painting, though thou clotheſt thy ſelf with crimſon, in vain ſhalt thou make thy ſelf fair; thy lovers will deſpiſe thee, they will ſeek thy life.] Theſe words ſome annex to the former, thus rendring the context; And thou, who art to be deſtroyed, (or art neer unto deſtruction) what doſt thou, (or meaneſt, or intendeſt thou) that (as verſ. 18.) thou thus deckeſt thy ſelf? &c. as if he ſhould ſay; Is this a time for thee, when thou art threatned with deſtruction, thus to adorn thy ſelf, when it were more ſeaſonable for thee, to lay thy rich attire aſide, Exod. 33. 4, 5. and to put on ſackcloth rather, and to humble thy ſelf in the ſight of God for thy ſins. Thus ſome of the Rabbins, paralling this place with that, Iſay 22. 12, 13. But the cloſe of the verſe ſheweth, that the words run rather another way. And a learned Writer of ours hath well obſerved, that the particle here uſed, includeth oft a two-fold notion; whereof, ſee on Iſa. 29. 16.& 54. 9.& 62. 5. Chap. 10. 21.& 12. 5. and ſo in this place: where it may therefore well be rendred; For though thou clotheſt thy ſelf, &c. All thine whoriſh attires and deſigns, tricks of enticement, and arts of allurement, will ſtand thee in no ſtead, will not avail to ſave thy life; bite; to retain thy lovers with thee, or to keep them from loathing and growing weary of thee, yea, and helping to work thy ruine.

clothed thy self with crimson] A wear of much account in those days, as well as in these times, 2 Sam. 1. 24. where it is rendered, scarlet: by some learned, there and here, a double-dy; but of the word, see at large, on Isa. 1. 18. See also, Revel. 17. 4.

decked thy self with ornaments of gold] Arayest thy self in the richest and most gorgeous manner that may be, 2 Sam. 1. 24. where the same word is used, that is here rendered ornament: whereof, see also Isa. 49. 18. Chap. 2. 32. See Psal. 45. 13. Ezek. 16. 13, 17. 1 Tim. 2. 9. Rev. 17. 4. & 18. 16.

and rentest thy face with painting] Noted as an whorish practice; in Jezabel, 2 King. 9. 30. in Aholah, and Aholibah, Ezekiel 23. 40.

rentest] With excessive use of such counterfeit stuff; paint and purge (so much and so oft, till at length thou crack the skin of thy face with it.

thy face] Or, thy cheeks. Heb. thine eyes; and so also, 2 Kin. 9. 30. Ezek. 23. 40. but the eyes are sometime put for the face; as 1 Sam. 16. 12. Isa. 1. 15. as the face also for the cheeks, or the eyes, Isa. 25. 8. compared with Rev. 7. 17. See Isa. 3. 16. though some would have the eyes here taken for the eye-lids, or eye-browes, as if that kind of counterfeit here mentioned, had been used, either to dilate the one, as some; or as others, to make black the other: neither of both very probable. See the next note.

with painting] Or, paint. Heb. pucc. or phuc; whence both the Greeks and Latines have their στιμὶς and fucus: which though some would make a mineral, yet most agree to have been a sea-plant, wherewith a kind of red colour was ordinarily died; whence also wanton women made use of it therewith to counterfeit red, as with cerusse white. See more hereof on Isa. 54. 11.

in vain shalt thou make thy self fair] Strive to improve thy beauty, by adorning and setting out thy self; as thou dost thine idols, Ch. 10. 4. and as harlots use to do, 2 Kin. 9. 30. Ezek. 23. 40. to gain love, and draw lovers to them, Chap. 2. 33.

thy lovers will disdain thee, they will seek thy life.] Those that formerly affected thee, will grow out of love with thee; and not so only, but now loathing thee, and waxing weary of thee; after they have satisfied their filthy lust with thee, will not stick to work thy ruine. See Ammons affection, 2 Sam. 13. 14, 15. and Jehues practice, 2 Kin. 9. 30, 33. and of the Romish Babylon, Rev. 17. 13, 16. & 18. 3, 9. that is, Those whom leaving God and his protection, thou hast formerly relied upon, and that professed to be in a league of amity with thee, Chap. 22. 20. Hos. 2. 5. will then not leave thee onely, but joyn with the enemy against thee, Lam. 1. 2. See 2 King. 24. 3. Chap. 27. 2.

thy lovers] Or, paramours: for the word is never used but of wanton and lascivious lust, rather than love; found here only, and Ezek. 23. where it and its off-spring are nine several times used; it is not unfitly expressed, by a Greek term used of the Romish Babylon and her paramours, Rev. 18. 9. the pronoun is wanting in the original; as Isaiah 60. 4. but it may stand without it, and be taken more generally; no paramours will now look after thee, one or other; thou wilt be as an harlot out of date. See of Tyre, Isaiah 23. 15, 17.

despise thee] Set light by thee; or, reject thee; or abhor thee. See on Chap. 2. 37.

seek thy life] Heb. thy soul; as vers. 10. Chap. 11. 21. and 19. 7.

V. 31. For I have heard a voice as of a woman in travel, and the anguish as of her that bringeth forth her first child; the voice of the daughter of Zion, that bewaileth her self, that spreadeth her hands, [saying] The Prophet as before he seemed to hear in his spirit the hideous flouts of the enemies forces assaulting and surprising Jerusalem; so now to hear in like manner the doleful lamentation that Jerusalem her self maketh, proceeding from that extream anguish of soul, wherewith she is surprised, to see her people, her children so savagely butchered, and no end made of the massacring and murthering of them. See 2 Chr. 36. 17. Isa. 29. 7, 8. & 46. 6.

For] As confirming what was said in the close of vers. 30. of their seeking her life.

I have heard] Or, I hear; as before, I see, ver. 23. methinks I now hear.

a voice as of a woman in travel] Heb. a voice as a travailing woman; for, a voice as the voice of one that is in travel. See the like, Isa. 5. 29.

a woman in travel] A similitude in Scripture very frequent, to express extremity of anguish and grief, Psa. 48. 6. Isa. 13. 8. & 21. 3. & 26. 17, 18. Ch. 6. 24. & 30. 6. & 49. 22, 24.

the anguish as of her that bringeth forth her first child] Or, a voice of anguish like the anguish of one being in travel with her first birth: a voice must be supplyed; because it hath reference to somewhat heard; and anguish repeated; as voice before: one being in travel with her first birth. Heb. making her first birth's straining to be delivered of it: and this addeth to the force of the resemblance, and the extremity of the grief and anguith thereby resembled. Women in such case having usually hardest labour; and (having not been enured unto, or acquainted with pains of that nature before) the less patience, for the most part, in that regard to endure it.

that bewaileth her self] Or, how fetching deep sighs, she bewaileth her self; for that is the proper notion of the word. See Psal. 27. 12. a defect either of the relative, as Chap. 2. 32. or of the particle how, as Psal. 55. 2.

that spreadeth her hands, saying,] Or, how spreading her hands, the saith: either stretching them out, as for relief and succour, to those from whom she expecteth it; as Esay 1. 15. or wringing her hands, and displaying them, out of grief and anguith; as the manner of women in extremity of pain or sorrow, joyned with impatience and impetuosity of spirit, is wont to be. See Chap. 2. 37. Lam. 1. 17.

saying] Or, saith; a necessary supply, as Esay 58. 3. and 62. 11.

Woe is me now] Heb. Woe now to me. So Lam. 5. 16.

for my soul is wearied because of murtherers.] I am weary of my life; as Rebecca speaketh, Gen. 27. 46. but this word is not there: or, my soul fainteth, or, is faint: as the word is well rendred, 1 Sam. 14. 28, 31. and so it would be, Chap. 31. 25. See Lam. 5. 17.

because of murtherers.] Or, for (so the particle is used, as noting the cause or ground of ought, Exod. 10. 14. Mal. 2. 3.) murtherers; the Chaldeans, mine enemies, that murther my people without mercy, 2 Chr. 36. 17. and that much enhanceth her anguish, that her lovers, her paramours, are now become murtherers, and have their hands in her blood as deep as any, vers. 30.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 1. RUN ye to and fro in the streets of Jerusalem, and see now and know, and seek in the broad places thereof, if ye can find a man, if there be any that executeth judgement, that seeketh the truth, and I will pardon it.] Whether this Chapter cohere, as some think, with the former, is somewhat uncertain. However, God in it by the Prophet proceedeth to complain of the general corruption of all estates and degrees among them, their grosse abuse of his mercy, their strange obstinacy under his judgments, their extream folly and stupidity manifested to their damage and destruction in either, which by the Chaldeans he threatneth them with.

Run ye to and fro] In this verse he implies the great paucity and rarity of righteous ones in Jerusalem, when he maketh offer to spare it, if by going to and fro, and making enquiry in the streets and places of most concourse and confluence of people, they could meet with, and light upon, but any one such.

Run to and fro] Or, Go to and fro; or, up and down, as Num. 11. 8. 2 Sam. 24. 2. Job 1. 7. for there is no notion of running in it, either in the notation, or the common use of the term; but in this form it is constantly used of go ng to and fro for enquiry and search, 2 Chr. 16. 9. Dan. 12. 4. Amos 8. 12. Zach. 10. the word is in the plural number, as spoken not to the Prophet alone, but to any other, that would undertake the employment; as if he had said, make the search who will, it shall be all one who doth it: for they narrow it overmuch, that would restrain it to Jeremy, and Baruch.

in the streets of Jerusalem] As Chap. 7. 17. the word is general, and comprehendeth as well lanes, as streets, as well the narrower, as the broader passages in a town or city, 1 Kin. 20. 24. See Cha. 6. 11. yea, sometime more generally, all places, either without doors, in Town, or city; or without town or city, the country, as we term it, rendred therefore the fields, Prov. 8. 26. and so it would be rendred, Psa. 144. 13. that our sheep may bring forth thousands — in our fields, or villages: in the country, where the cattel are kept; distinguished from the streets, that is, the Towns, or cities, where men abide, in the next verse; no out-ery (so would it be rendred) in our streets: thus if it be here understood, the meaning will be, go up and down, both in city and country alſo, about Jerusalem. But I take it rather in the former sense; as ch. 14. 16.

see and know] As, know and see, Chap. 2. 19. So 1 Sam. 23. 22, 23.

seek] Make diligent inquiry; as Deut 13. 14.

in the broad places thereof] Heb. in the streets; as Lam. 2. 11, 12. Zach. 8. 4. so called in Hebrew, from the breadth, or broadness of them. See Gen. 26. 16. as also streets have thence their name both in Latine and Greek, in which language also, they have another term, for narrower lanes, to distinguish them from the broader: these he mentioneth the rather, because the greatest numbers of people are usually in the broader streets; that which maketh them, saith one, sometime to lose their name: places of meeting and convention, either for market, or merchandise, being commonly in such: and there therefore one being most likely not to lose his labour, what sort of people soever he were to look after.

if ye can find a man] Some deseant here upon the word man, that is, say they, one that deserveth the name of a man; as the Cynick sometime went up and down at noon-day with a lanthorn and candle in his hand, amidst a press of people in the market-stead, searching, as he said, for a man: and as one of the Ancients, who delighted too much in dallying with Scripture, would pick mysteries out of that form, as it is in the original, Exod. 36. 4. Levit. 15. 2. a man, a man; that is, saith he, a man both ways, in regard both of the outward and inward man: for there are some men men, and some men beasts, Psal. 49. 12, 20. Eccl. 3. 18. chap. 10. 8, 14. the notion is good: but the Scriptures are wronged: for a man, or, a man man, is no more than any one, or, any simply, in the one place; and every one, or each one, in the other. So is the word commonly used. See Isa. 8. 11. & 57. 1. & 56. 6. & 40. 26. & 66. 13. ch. 4. 29.

if there be any] The word any, is not here in the text, but is not amiss inserted, as supplyed from the former branch; and because the next term is singular, some render it, any one: that admitted, here is a very large offer made concerning Jerusalem, larger far than that which God made unto Abraham concerning Sodome. God came to low there, as to promise to save Sodome, if ten righteous at least, might be found in it, Gen. 18. 32. whereas here he promiseth, as is deemed commonly, to spare Jerusalem, if but any one righteous one could be met with in the streets of it, being in all likelyhood a city larger and more populous, I say not than Sodome; but than that, and the other three cities joyned to it, that perished with it; yea, than all those four cities added to it, that should have been destroyed together with it: But of this more hereafter.

that executeth judgement, that seeketh the truth] Heb. doing judgement, seeking truth; (as Prov. 12. 17.) or, fidelity; 2 Chron. 31. 20. to do judgement, is, to deal justly, uprightly, Isa. 56. 1. as to do truth, or, fidelity; is, to deal truly, faithfully, Prov. 12. 22. 1 Joh. 1. 6. to seek truth, or, fidelity, is seriously to apply ones self unto true and faithful dealing; as, to seek righteousness, is, to apply ones self in like manner, unto just and upright dealing, unto the practice of righteousness, Zeph. 2. 3. So that the meaning seems to be, if there can be any one found, that is careful to deal uprightly, and faithfully. Whence ariseth a very great and difficult question, whereunto Interpreters are much troubled; for was not Jeremy himself in Jerusalem? was not Baruch his Scribe there? there is more than one, there is two at least then; nor were then wanting such in likelyhood among those Princes, Elders, and People, that refused Jeremy out of the hands of the cruel Priests, and false Prophets, and the scum of the people, chap. 26. 8, 16, 17, 24. or, among those that diſſuaded the King from burning the book, chap. 36. 16, 25. not to add Ebedmelec one of King Zedekiahs Courtiers, chap. 38. 7, 9. Now to this there are divers answers; For first, some of the Rabbines answer, that the command is to search in the streets; but that such godly ones as were then in the city, were not there to be found, because they did keep within doors, and durst not come abroad for fear, chap. 36. 19, 26. but this is not probable; and the places before related diſprove it: Others, that there was none to intercede, or deal with God in the behalf of the city, because the wicked ones slew them, and deale so cruelly with them; as an enemy, should he surprise the city, could not do worse: to add force to strength to this, the last clause might be read, and I may spare it: if any such may be found, that will intercede with me not to destroy it: the copulative for the finitive, as Esay 61. 3, 4. but it is not likely, that the godly party were so hard-hearted any of them; but of Samuels minde rather, Far be it from me, that I should sin against the Lord, in ceasing to pray for you, 1 Sam. 12. 23. And of Jeremies, that prayed unto God constantly for them, even after that by God he was forbidden so to do: See on chap. 7. 16. Some other salve it, by reading the last branch; and I will spare him, will deliver him out of the common destruction, as I did Lot sometime out of Sodome, Gen. 19. 29. 2 Pet. 2. 6, 7. such an one shall have his life for a prey, chap. 21. 9. & 39. 18. & 45. 5. And this would do well, if the text would bear it; but the affixed particle here is not masculine, but feminine, which diſeweth it to have reference not to the poll one, but to Jerusalem. Others for an other answer, that the words are spoken to Jeremy, and Baruch, and therefore they are included: and besides, that Jeremy was not of Jerusalem, but of Anathoth, chap. 1. 1. and Ebedmelec a Chuſhite, chap. 38. 7. But these neither seem of weight: Of ours some of chief note thus salve it. God by the Prophet, say they, dealeth with the main body of the people apart, setting aside those faithful ones, whose number was not great, and were not comprehended in that body of the people, whereof he speaks. But neither doth this seem to satisfie: for to say, see if ye can finde any righteous or religious ones, except it be of, or amongst those that are such, (and so in effect it must be) seemeth to be but a trifling manner of speech; they come nearer home, who expound it, one, that is, very few; one, for a few; as one days, (so the Hebrew is) for, some few days; or, a few days, Gen. 47. 44. & 29. 20. So Isaiah 30. 17. A thousand shall flee at the rebuke of one, and one of a city, chap. 3. 14. But the truth is, one is not in the text, much lesse but one; as one, for, one only, Eccles. 4. 8. Nor go they far from this, who conceive the meaning to be, any: that is, any considerable number, in regard whereof God should spare the city, as he would have done Sodome for the ten. And this sense the words may very well bear; any that doth, for, any that do; any, as we say, worth the speaking of: or, if we will restrain it to an individual notion, and understand it strictly of one single person; the meaning may be, and that I conceive to be the right, That the people of the city were generally so corrupt, that a man might go to and fro, from street to street in it; for a long time together, and yet not light on any man, one or other, that were sincerely righteous, that were truly religious; See ch. 6. 28. & 9. 2, 4. and the like generality of corruption complained of, Gen. 6. 1. Psa. 12. 1. & 14. 2, 3. Isa. 6. 4, 6, 7. Mic. 7. 2.

and I will pardon it,] Or, spare it. As Lam. 3. 42. For that one, or, those few righteous ones, I will spare the whole city and not destroy it, as Gen. 18. 24, 26, 29, 31, 32.

V. 2. And though they say the Lord liveth, surely they swear falsly] Whereas it might be objected that they might meet not a few, that would seem very devout, had Gods name oft in their mouthes, and used so to swear not by idols, as others, but by the only true God; vers. 7. ch. 12. 6. Isa. 48. 1. this objection to meet with, God relleth the Prophet, and them by him, that though they so did, yet that they do it not sincerely, ch. 12. 2. & 44. 26. Psa. 50. 16. Mat. 23. 14, 23. 2 Tim. 3. 5. For even then when they swear calling God solemnly to witness, they have no regard of truth, they swear falsly, and do it but to deceive, ch. 42. 5, 20.

And though] Or, For, (as ch. 3. 14.) though; Heb. if, as Job 14. 7, 8. or, when; as Psa. 63. 6. Amos 7. 2.

surely] Heb. unto so, or, even so, as ch. 29. 28. Even when they do so swear; but that which our version hath, may well be retained: for the word is sometimes used as a note of asseveration. See chap. 49. 26.

they swear falsly] Heb. unto falsehood; or, a lye; as Isa. 42. 4. unto truth; or, in falsehood; as in vanity, or, in vain, ch. 2. 30. So Lev. 6. 3. ch. 7. 9. See Isa. 48. 1. Mat. 23. 23.

V. 3. O Lord, are not thine eyes upon the truth? thou hast stricken them, but they have not grieved.] The Prophet turneth his speech to God, complaining of their hypocrisie, which he could not but descry, and their extream obstinacy under his hand.

are not thine eyes upon the truth?] Or, as some, doſt not thou respect truth, or, fidelity? that is, true, upright, and faithful dealing (which in these men is wholly wanting) doſt not thou respect it, expect it, require it, delight in it? as chap. 22. 17. thine eyes are not, but upon thy lucre only; that is, thou regardeſt and lookeſt after nothing but that. But thou affecteſt, or, delighteſt, in truth in the inward parts, saith David to God, Psal. 51. 6. Howbeit, by truth, or, fidelity, some understand here men of truth, or, fidelity; that is, men true and faithful; as strength, for, men of strength, strong men, Isa. 3. 25. and wiſdom, for, a man of wiſdom; a wiſe man, Mic. 6. 9. and it is true, that such alone God respecteth, and regardeth, Psal. 11. 5, 7. & 35. 15. So David of himself, Mine eyes are upon the faithful in the land, Psal. 101. 6. that is, those they are that respect and regard: yet the former, seems to be the proper sense of the word and place. And others again, Thou deſcryeſt truth; thine eyes see and diſcern, whatsoever shews men may make, where sincerity is, and where it is not, and thou knowest therefore well enough, how hollow-hearted these men are; that which also is true as well as the former: for his eyes behold, and his eye-lids try, or, diſcern the children of men, Psa. 11. 4. and, he pondereth their spirits, Prov. 16. 2. And both of them, I deny not to be here intimated, and to flow neceſſarily from the text, and the drift of the place; but the first I conceive to be the preciſe sense of the terms.

thou hast stricken them, but they have not grieved.] But (Heb. and, as ch. 4. 22.) they are not grieved, they are not affected with ought, that hitherto hath been inflicted upon them; either by the hand of Sennacherib, Isa. 10. 5, 6. & 36. 1. or, by Pharao Necho, 2 Kin. 23. 37. or, by the forces of the Chaldeans and their complices, under Jehoiakim, and Jehoiachin, 2 King. 24. 2, 13. they take nothing to heart, they are like Solomons drunkard, Prov. 23. 35. Isa. 42. 25. Amos 6. 6.

thou hast consumed them, but they have refuſed to receive correction] Or, thou hast waſted them; but (as Prov. 11. 23.) they refuſe to receive instruction. See ch. 2. 30. Zeph. 3. 2. corrected they have been with a witnesse, but instructed they will not be; they have been grievously wasted, and yet will they not be warned; they are never the better, or more reformed, for ought that hath befallen them, Isa. 1. 5, 6. & 9. 13. Amos 4. 6, 11.

they have made their faces harder than a rock] To harden the face; in Scripture, is to grow obstinate and impudent, Prov. 21. 29. So, they made their hearts as adamant, as it is rendred, Zach. 7. 12. Heb. hard from a stint; that is, harder than a flint, as Ezek. 3. 9. but there used of firmness and unmoveable constancy.

they have refuſed to return] Or, they refuſe to return; they go on still in their wicked courses, chap. 8. 5. & 9. 3. and refuse by sincere repentance and serious reformation, to turn from them, and return unto God; notwithstanding that his hand hath been so heavy upon them, to reclaim them, and bring them home unto him. See ch. 3. 1, 12. & 4. 1.

V. 4. Therefore I said] And I said: but the copulative is sometimes used for the illative; as ch. 3. & 7. 16. Howbeit, I suppose here it need not be altered, unleſs it be for a diſcretive; but, or, yet I said; that is, I thought with my self, as Psa. 39. 1. Isa. 63. 8. chap. 3. 19.

surely, these are poor, they are fooliſh; for they know not the way of the Lord, Lord, nor, the judgment of their God.] Or, these; (to wit, that swear by the name of God falsly, v.2. and persist in their wicked courses, v. 3.) are poor ones onely; as the particle is used, Gen.18. 32. or, peradventure (as Psa.139.11.) they are poor ones; the pronoun demonstrative, for the verb substantive, as ch. 4. 22. It may be they are of the meaner, and poorer sort only, that are thus faulty; poverty putting them upon evil courses, Prov.30.9. which they make the less conscience of, in regard of their ignorance, because they are not so well acquainted with Gods word, and ways, Judg. 1. 10. John 7. 49. they are foolish, (as Esay 19. 13. chap. 50.36.) or, they do foolishly, (as Num.12.11.) because (as Chap.3.21, 25.) they know not the way of the Lord, nor the judgment of their God: the same thing in divers terms, See chap.8.7. judgment, for course, custome, or manner of dealing, in general, 1 Sam.2. 13. & 8.11.

V. 5. I will get me unto the great men, and will speak unto them; for they have known the way of the Lord, and the judgment of their God] I will try whether it be any better with the great ones, peradventure I may find it otherwise with them, being better acquainted with Gods will, and his ways; because they have had better breeding, and more abundant means of instruction, than those of the meaner sort, Prov. 4. 3, 4.

I will get me] Heb. I will go me; as Cant. 4. 6. See chap. 4. 12.

they have known] Or, know; as vers.4.

but these have altogether broken the yoke, and burst the bonds] But these also generally, as well one as another (Psal. 14. 3.) have cast off the yoke of Gods Law, and the bonds of loyalty and obedience to him, Psal. 2. 3. Lam. 3. 27. Matt. 11. 29,30. Luke 19.14,27. they that should have ruled and directed others, and have taught them better things, are as bad, if not worse, than any other, themselves, ch.6.13.

V. 6. Therefore a lion out of the forest shall slay them] Nebuchadnezzar and his forces, resembled here by divers similitudes; compared to a lion for his strength, a wolf for his ravenousness, a leopard for his swiftness, as some, or for his slyness, and watchfulness, rather.

a lion out of the forest] As, a boar out of the forest, Psal. 80.13. See chap. 4. 7.

shall slay them] See 2 King. 25. 7, 18, 21. chap. 52. 10, 24, 27. Heb. smite them: as chap. 40. 14, 15. & 41. 2, 3. See Isaiah 66. 3.

and a wolf of the evenings shall spoyl them.] So the Chaldee, the old Latine, and the most, both Jewish, and other, the Greek only excepted, who are clean out of the way here: yet the plural, from the word that signifies Evening, is, in this form, no where else found: the singular is, being there also applyed unto wolves, whereby these Chaldeans are also resembled for their fierceness, Hab. 1.8. as are the Judges, among this people, for their rapacity, Zeph.3.3. Wolves of the evening, or, evening Wolves: so termed from the time, wherein beasts usually look out, range abroad, and lay about them for prey, Psalm 104.20. being then especially the more eager upon it, when they have been all day before without it. See Gen. 49. 27. yet some in those two places render it, Wolves of Arabia, as they suppose the word to be used, chap. 25. 24. and would have it also to be so understood here; but that other place in this Prophet is questionable; and the form being plural, will not here admit it. That is more probable, which some other of the Jewish have, who render it, the wolves of the desarts: for so the word is oft used, chap.50.12. & 51. 43. because there commonly they keep: or, of the plains; for so also is the word used, Deu. 34. 1. ch. 39. 5. because, for prey, they there usually haunt.

a leopard shall watch over their cities, every one that goeth out thence shall be torn in pieces.] To a leopard, is the Babylonian King and his forces compared, as for swiftness, Hab. 1. 8. so here for slyness, watchfulness, and lying in wait: as Hos. 13.7. and it is here said of them, that they shall so strictly beset & begirt their cities, & have so watchful an eye upon them, that not any one shall be able to peep out of them, but shall fall into their clutches. See chap. 4. 16, 17. The words may be read with supply of the note of similitude oft wanting: as Gen. 49. 9, 14, 21, 27. As a lion——shall he slay them; as a wolf——shall he spoil them; as a leopard——shall he watch over their cities: he shall, that is, God will; or indefinitely, one shall. See Hos. 13.7.

because their transgressions are many, and their back-slidings are increased.] Or, are multiplyed: as Psa.40.5,12. & 60.4. the same thing twice in several terms, with a defect of the copulative: as v.4,5. yet the Chaldee, ancient Greek, and old Latine, render it, are strengthened, or grown strong. But the constant use of the word well observed, carryeth it rather the other way. See on Esay 16.14. & 31. 1. & cha. 30.15.

V. 7. How shall I pardon thee for this?] Or, how can I, or, how should I (as chap. 2. 23. & 3. 19.) spare thee (as v. 1.) for this? as Gen.2.23. Mal.2.3. How can I without some aspersion and disparagement to mine honour and justice, pass by and pardon such foul abuses? So v. 9.

thy children have forsaken me] Thy citizens, or inhabitants: thy children; as ch. 2. 30. have forsaken me, deserted my service, ch. 1.16. & 2. 13.

and sworn by them that are no gods.] By idols, false and counterfeit gods, chap. 16. 20. Gal. 4. 8. such they swear by, chap. 12. 16. Zeph. 1. 5. contrary to that inhibition, Josh. 23. 7. but here to swear by them, is put more largely for the service of them, and performance of religious worship unto them: one kind of it used to imply all the rest. See chap. 4. 2. Heb. by not gods: a defect of the pronoun demonstrative, the relative, and verb substantive: the like is, 2 Chro. 13. 9.

when I fed them to the full, they then committed adultery, and assembled themselves by troops in the harlots houses.] Thus idolatry and adultery, spiritual filthiness, and corporal uncleanness, go usually hand in hand the one with the other, Num. 25. 1, 2. Hos.4. 12, 14. Amos 2. 8. Rev. 2. 20. & 9. 20, 21. & 17. 5. Fulness of bread, through mans abuse, breedeth filthiness and looseness of life, Ezek. 16. 49. And the more love and kindness God sheweth to corrupt man, the more liberty he thereby taketh to live loosly and lewdly, and the more freely to offend, Deut.32.15. Esay 26.10. Hos. 4.7. Rom.2. 4,5. Jude 4.

When I fed them to the full, they then committed adultery] When I fed them plentifully, and gave them their fill. Heb. and I satiated them, (as Psal.81.16. ch. 31. 25.) and they committed adultery. See the like forme, ch.2.7,20. the then in the latter branch may well be spared: as Esay 66.14.

in the harlots houses.] Heb. in the house of an harlot: in the brothel-houses: a defect of the preposition; as Job 1.13. house, for houses; as Prov.14.11. and harlot, for harlots; as Prov.6.26.

V. 8. They were as fed horses in the morning; every one neighed after his neighbours wife.] Their excess of uncleanness, and the generality of it, is further taxed, and amplified with a similitude taken from the unruliness in that kind of stallions, or stone-horses full fed. See Ezek. 23. 23.

as fed horses] About the Epithite here used, there is great variety of opinions: The Chaldee rendreth it wild horses; as ch. 2. 24. a wild ass: The Greek, and Latine, mad upon mares; as deriving it from the word that hath a notion of fornication, or unclean couplings: but this the analogy will not admit. The Jewish Critick-Masters would have it so read, as if it signified armed, or barbed horses; such as this people for their wilful running head-long into sin, are compared unto, ch.8.6. which some of their Commenters follow, as drawing it from a term that signifieth armour, or arms, Deu.23.13.& 1 Kin.22.38. as some think. But the most, both Jews, and ours, render it fed, or well fed: from a word that signifieth to feed, found in the Syriack, of Daniel, chap. 4. 12. in the Chaldee Paraphrase very frequent: whence also the word for food, or vitails, in Hebrew, Gen. 45.23. 2 Chro.11.23. Dan.4.12. as also, if our Criticks may be credited, a word that signifieth a victualler, or hostess; as, say they, Rachab was, Josh.2.1. and our English by-word, of provender-prickt, besides common experience, enformeth us, that horses well fed, are wont to grow the more wanton and unruly; alluded unto, Deut. 32.15. and the Masters of husbandry, advise to keep stallions high fed, when they intend them for that use.

in the morning] About this word, there is no less diversity of exposition, than concerning the former. Some of the Jewish Doctors would have it to be a Gentilish term from the country called Meshec, of note, say they, for horses, stallions especially; and for horses, indeed, it seems that the land of Togarma, one of the same lineage with Mesech, was famous, Gen.10.2,3. Ezek.27.13,14. as were also the Mazaces; of whom Oppian, in his hunting poem, l.1. v.170. Nor doth the exception against this seem valid; to wit, that then it should be not Mashcim, but Maschijim: for the one jod, is in such Gentilish terms oftentimes omitted; as in Jehudim and Sidonim, Deu. 3. 9. Esther 8. 9. But of any such note of that country for horses, some better proof would be had: for that Oppians Mazaces, and the Meshecites, or Majacites, were the same people, is not easie to prove. Some of the Greek Interpreters render it drawing; as if it were horses of draught, or draughts: and the verb from whence they seem to have drawn it, is used of sowing, Amos 9. 13. and the noun from it of seed, Psal. 126. 6. and so it might be deemed, to import beasts used for tillage: but if it be takan for a participle, the analogy rejecteth it; if for a noun, the syntax refuseth it: and the notion suiteth not with the subject matter. Howbeit, to help this, a learned late Annotator, would have it to be a participle, in a Chaldee, or Syriack form: the like whereunto he findeth, Dan. 3. 16. & 5. 25. Mark 14. 37. 1 Cor. 4. 11. 1 Thess. 2. 9. 1 John 2. 20. conceiving that they understood it, of drawing out at length that part, or member, not named, because not so fit or needful to be expressed; and supposing withal, that they read the word in a passive form, otherwise vowelled than we now have it. But this sense of the word here, he himself approves not. A learned late Writer would have it rendred, a stallion, that is, an horse kept and maintained on purpose for breed. So he saith the Syriack Translator hath expressed it: and the same he supposeth, that the old Latine intended. Nor seemeth the Chaldee otherwise to have taken it, rendring it in a word by the Talmudists used to signifie the gendring of camels, and taken from their peculiar manner of coupling, as dogs do; which yet may peradventure be of larger extent; for that a term neer it, differing but in an he, for an het, or a chet, seems to have a notion of somewhat about horses: whence they have a term for a quiry, or a Master of horse. But some of the Rabbines here expound it, as our Version hath it, in the morning: as also some suppose the Chaldee did; but that the text is now corrupted, which had Shachrin, that is, seeking in the morning at first: and this Interpretation is most generally received; as, say some, the morning dew, is by the same word expressed, Hos.6.4. whereunto they add that in the morning, horses having been full fed over-night, and rested well in the night, are more frolick and lusty. Against which it is objected, that the word is singular in Amos, but here it is plural; whereof more hereafter. And whereas it is by some in defence of the former interpretation alleaged, that the singular and plural contracted are sometime the same, as in tannim, and tannin, for tanninim, and tannimin, Job 30.29. Psal.44.19. Esay 34. 13. & 35. 7. & 43. 20. ch. 9. 11. & 14. 6. & 10. 22. & 49, 33. & 51. 37. Lam. 4.3. Mic. 1. 5. To this the learned Annotator beforementioned excepteth, That in all those places, the word is singular: as Ezek.29.3. though collectively understood; which yet to affirm of so many places, seemeth somewhat hard. The ground of the mistake, in these mis-expositions, he conceiveth to be, that the Interpreters refer, that to the horses, which is meant of the men, wherein I concur with him; though I go not otherwise his way. He understanding it of the men, would have it rendred, going forth: for so, saith he, to draw out, to wit, the feet, or ones self, is used for to go forth, Gen.37. 29. Exod. 12. 2. Deut. 21. 3. Judg. 4. 6. & 20. 37. Job 31.33. and for the form, he hath recourse, as before, to the Chaldee: Howbeit not seeming herein satisfied himself, he addeth another conjecture, that it may be rendred, not going out, but looking out, as loose and lascivious persons are wont after those whom they affect and are taken with; from a word, that in the Chaldee and Syriack doth so signifie, and is so used in either, Gen. 19. 28. Num. 23. 9. Act. 28. 4. and because the middle letter is not alike pointed in that, and this here; he addeth, that the like variations are found in some other words, Esay 3. 16. vers. 30. chap. 23. 14. & 29. 17. But these conjectures, to me, seem somewhat over-strained, and far fetcht: let other Learned deem of them, as to them shall appear. Mean while, amidst this diversity of opinion, I shall make bold to propound my thoughts, and so leave them to the Learned. I take the word in the received, common, and well known sense, of rising early: or, as it is also not unusually taken, of setting sedulously, and eagerly, upon ought. So God saith, that he called upon his people rising early, and speaking, and sending, and protesting, and teaching, ch.7.13, 25. & 11.7. & 25.4. & 26.5. & 29.19. & 32.35. & 35.14,15. that is, doing sedulously and earnestly all this: and the Prophet of himself protesseth to have in like manner done his duty, ch.25.3. and yet neerer to the present, it is said of this wicked people, Zeph. 3.7. they rose up early, corrupted all their actions: that is, rising early, they corrupted, or, they rose up early to corrupt all their actions: they were early, eager, and earnest upon it: and I conceive the word of rising early, is here attributed, not to the horses, but to the men here compared to them, thus rendred precisely, according to the words and pauses in the text, Fed horses rising early they are: for the note of similitude is not in the text, and it is oft omitted. See on vers. 6. here the rather, to make the speech the more emphatical; as ch.2.23,24. So that as it is said of drunkards, and riotous persons, Esay 5. 11. they rise early to follow strong drink: so here of those unclean and adulterous persons, they are in the morning so soon as they are up like fed stallions, or stoned horses, as eager and earnest to look after their whores, as those other to look after their liquor. All that can be objected against this is, that the participle is singular, which I acknowledge, the verb plural, which in distributive notions is a thing most frequent. See on Esay 2. 20. & 3. 12. & 26. 19. and hereafter, v. 26. and that to express more fully, rendred it may be, As full fed horses they were rising early each one of them: as in that former place it is put into the text. The very next words confirm it; where the noun is singular, a man, for each one; as Ezek. 20. 7,8. as also, the pronoun, his neighbour; and the noun, wife: yet the verb plural, they neigh.

every one neighed after his neighbours wife.] This one of the Jewish Doctors fondly expoundeth, of their coming abroad with jollity, when they come out in a morning from their adulteresses bed; as shamelesly glorying in their sin and shame; like horses, saith he, that having fed well in the night, use to neigh in the morning: but the Prophets purpose here, is not to express the disposition or carriage of these loose and lewd persons, when their filthy lust is satisfied; but rather their earnestness and eagerness in seeking after those, with whom they may satisfie their unbridled lust; nor is the neighing here alluded to the neighing of an horse, out of alacrity or courage, whereof, see Job 39. 19, 25. but his neighing upon the sight or sent of the mare, proceeding from unquietness, until he can come at her. Of the generality of this corruption among them, see chap. 9. 2. neighed after] That is, neighing sought after: as, lamented after, for, lamenting sought after, 1 Sam.7.2.

V. 9. Shall I not visit for these things, saith the Lord?] Or, Should I not? Should I suffer such things to go unpunished? I might well then be deemed a favourer of them, as such wicked ones conceive of me, because I forbear them a while, Psalm 50. 21. Mal. 2. 17. to visit, for, to punish; as Psalm 89. 31. Esay 26. 14. & 27. 1. See chap. 6. 6. because visitation and due cognisance ought to go before execution of justice, Deut. 13. 14. and to shew, that God never proceedeth to execution of judgement, but upon sure and certain knowledge, Gen. 18. 20, 21. Zach. 1. 12. for these things; as Chap.1.18.

and shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation as this?] Or, should I not avenge my self? as Esa.1.24. my soul, for, my self; as Psa.3.2. and, his soul, for himself, Amos 6.8. but my soul, maketh the speech here more emphatical; as Psal.11.5.

V. 10. Get ye up upon her walls and destroy,] Gods words, as signing or giving out a commission to the Chaldeans, to surprise and sack Jerusalem, and to make havock of her people. See on Esay 10.6. See also, chap.34.22.

but make not a full end] That is, as some, but stay not there; go on to waste the whole country, to destroy the whole nation, chap. 4. 23, 27. but the meaning rather is, that God would not have them utterly destroyed. See chap. 4. 27. & 30. 11. and the ground of this restriction, in the like case, Matth. 24. 22. Heb. and (or, yet; as chap. 3. 7, 19.) a full end ye shall not make; as implying a providential passage, fixing a limit how far they shall proceed, and no further: as with Job 1. 12. & 2. 6. and of the Sea, Job 38. 10, 11. vers. 22. but, though no less be implyed, yet the future indicative seems put for the imperative: as chap. 3. 7, 19.

take away her battlements] Break down her walls from the top to the bottom; the battlements whereof were appointed for safeguard, Deut.22. 8. yet of the word here used, there is some question made; for though some of the Rabbines expound it, as our version rendreth it, calling them the teeth of the wall. Yet, because it is not found elsewhere used, but of the branches of a vine, Esay 18. 5. where the same verb is joyned with it that is here, and Jer. 48.32. one of them would have it also to be so here: as if Jerusalem were compared to a vine, whose branches were to be cut off and spoiled; as of Moab, Esay 16. 8. and this further to put on, he would have the former word also rendred walls, to signifie the rows, alleys, or passages between the vines in the vineyard; of which also, or the like, some expound that, Job 24.11. but the term of scaling, suiteth ill with such. The Chaldee rendreth the former, her cities; this, her palaces, Esay 32. 14. But these neither of them carry any great probability; the battlements seem to have had that name given them; because they shot up like branches above the main body of the wall.

for they are not the Lords.] The pronoun for the verb substantive; as vers. 4. God owneth them not, either them or their city; they are out of his protection, their shield is gone from them; they have lost their best bulwark, Numb. 14. 7. See chap. 12. 7.

V. 11. For the house of Israel, and the house of Judah, have dealt very treacherously against me; saith the Lord.] Both houses, as well the ten tribes, as the other two, chap.2.4. have dealt very disloyally and perfidiously with me, chap. 3. 1, 6, 10. Heb. in dealing disloyally have dealt disloyally; as Esay 24. 10. Howbeit, the words may be meant here of the two tribes only, and be read, as by way of explication with some emphasis, thus; the house of Israel, even the house of Judah; as Ezra 1. 8. chap. 4. 6. and to this I encline. See vers. 15. & Esay 31. 6.

V. 12. They have belied the Lord] Or, as some, denyed him, as Josh. 24. 27. Job 8. 18. & 31. 28. Prov. 30. 9. or, They give the Lord the lie; they make him a lyar: as he speaketh, 1 John 5. 10. See Esay 59. 13.

and said] Or, in saying; or, saying: as Gen. 24. 60. So Gen. 18. 15.

It is not he:] The Prophets speak not from him, but fright us with tales of their own devising, 1 King. 22. 24. chap. 29. 26, 27. & 43. 2. For as for that which a learned late Writer hath from one of the Jewish Commenters, that they deny God to be the Ruler of the world; that which God should afterward refute by two instances, the one in his ruling of the Sea, vers.22. the other, in disposing of the seasons of the year, v. 24. seems clean besides the drift and purpose of the Prophet in this place.

neither shall evil come upon us,] See Esay 28.14,15.

neither shall we see sword nor famine.] Heb. and sword and famine (or, or famine; as chap.2.18.) shall we not see; that is, feel, or suffer; as chap.43.14. & 44.17.

V. 13. And the Prophets shall become wind;] Their words are but wind; their prophecies shall pass into the wind; shall prove windy, vain, and of none effect: a proverbial form of speech, very common, not with the Greeks and Latines onely, but in Scripture also very frequent, Job 6.26. & 15.2. Prov.11.29. Eccl.5.16. Esay 57.13. Hos. 8.7. & 12.1. 1 Cor.14.9.

and the word is not in them] Or, neither (as v. 12.) is the word (to wit, of God) in them. They speak not from God, as they pretend to do; nor doth God or his Spirit speak by them, or in them, chap. 43. 2. 2 Cor.13.3. See v. 12.

thus shall it be done unto them.] The evils wherewith they threaten us, shall befal themselves, 1 Kin.22.24,27.

V. 14. Wherefore thus saith the Lord God of hosts;] Esay 22. 15. & 28. 16.

Because ye speak this word] Because ye speak on this wise; word, for, words: as 1 Sam.30.31. or, for, thing; as ch.7.23.

Behold, I will make my words in thy mouth fire, and this people wood; and it shall devour them.] I will out of hand make it to appear, that the word that I have spoken by thee my Prophet, (for to him absurdly, as man-like in passion, he turneth his speech. See the like, Jer. 1.19.) to be no vain word, Deut. 32.17. but such as shall speedily be out in execution, and take hold on them, as fire on feat-wood, utterly to consume them, Psal. 83.14. Ifay 9.18,19. ch. 6.11. See chap. 4.4.

Behold I will make] Heb. Behold (as chap. 1.9.) I am giving; as chap. 32.3,26. giving, for, making; as Ezekiel 3.8,17.

my words in thy mouth] Which I have put into thy mouth, cha.1.9, 15,16.

fire] By the effect of it, ch.23.29. See Ezek.5.2,4.

this people wood] Fewel for it. See the like, Zach. 12.6. Obad.18.

and it shall devour them.] Heb. eat them; as Esay 26.11.

V. 15. Lo, I will bring a nation upon you from far, O house of Israel, saith the Lord] Heb. Behold I am bringing: as chap. 4.6. & 11.11.

from far] From Chaldea; as Chap. 4.16. Deut.28.49. Esa.39. 3,6,7.

O house of Israel] Ye people of the Jews, who are of the lineage of Israel; and the chief part thereof: for they alone are the people here threatned; the other ten tribes were in captivity already. See on ch. 4.1. So v.20. ch.6.9.

it is a mighty nation, it is an ancient nation;] Heb. a mighty nation it is, a nation from of old, or, from antiquity, (as Esay 63.16. chap. 2.28.) it is; the pronoun for the verb substantive: verf. 4, 10. Eccl. 1.10. that hath been a potent people ever since Nimrods days, the first founder of Babylon, Gen.10.10. Esay 23.13.

a nation whose language thou knowest not, nor understandest what they say.] For the Babylonians spake the Syrian tongue, Dan. 2.4. as did also the Assyrians: which the Jewish people generally understood not, having not been accustomed thereunto, Esay 36.11. that which was long since threatned, Deut.28.36,49. who will be the more stern and savage to thee, because thou shalt not understand what they say to thee, nor thou know how to entreat them. See Esay 28.11. and 33.19.

knowest not] That is, understandest not: as Psal.81.5.

nor understandest] Heb. hearest; as Esay 26.11. & 33.19.

what they say] Heb. what he shall say; but the word nation is collective. So v.16.

V. 16. Their quiver is an open sepulchre] Heb. his quiver; or, whose quiver (the demonstrative for the relative; as Esay 47.4. verf. 11.) is an open sepulchre: a proverbial form of speech. See Psal.5.7. Prov. 1.12. the quiver said to be in regard of the arrows, sons of the quiver, as they are termed, Lam. 3.13. that shall be deadly to destroy and devour, or consume many. See Esay 13.18. such shall their arrows be, as shall not misse what they aym at, like the Benjamites sling, Judg. 20.16. and Jonathans bow, 2 Sam.1.22. and where they light, they shall wound mortally, they shall pierce to the heart; as Psal.45.5.

they are all mighty men.] The pronoun for the verb substantive; as Esay 60.21. So verf.17.

V. 17. And they shall eat up thine harvest, and thy bread, which thy sons and daughters should eat; they shall eat up thy flocks and thine herds: they shall eat up thy vines and thy fig-trees.] They shall consume and devour all thy provisions, as well the fruits of the earth, as thy cattel. See Deut.28.30,31,33,51.

thine harvest] Thy crop, Lev.26.16.

which thy sons and thy daughters should eat] The childrens bread, Matt.15.26. and he saith, thy bread, that they should eat; rather than the bread that thou shouldest eat: because unto tender-hearted parents, it is a greater misery to want food for their children, than to want it for themselves, Lam. 2.11,12. Heb. which thy sons and thy daughters shall eat: a defect of the relative; as chap. 4.31. and, shall eat, for, should eat: as, shall reign, for, should reign, 2 Kin. 3.27.

thy flocks and thine herds] See chap. 3.24.

thy vines and thy fig-trees] That is, the fruit of them; as Esay 36.16.

they shall impoverish thy fenced cities, wherein thou trustedst, with the sword.] By cutting off, and destroying the people in them. See Deut. 28.52.

fenced cities] Heb. cities of fences: as, cities of fence, ch. 34.7. thy strongeſt and beſt defenced cities: for theſe plurals exaggerate. See on Esay 58.11. & 64.6.

V. 18. Nevertheless in those days, saith the Lord, I will not make a full end with thee.] Heb. And also; or, Yet even. And, for, Yet, as verf.10. also, for, even: as Esay 57.6,7. Of the meaning of the words, see on chap.4.27 and before here, verf.10.

V. 19. And it shall come to pass, when ye shall say, Wherefore doth the Lord our God all these things unto us? Then shalt thou answer them,] Heb. And it shall be; as chap. 4.9. and thou shalt say to them, for, when ye shall say, ——— then thou shalt say to them; or, that when they shall say, ——— thou shalt say to them: as Deut. 30.1,3. a paſſage from perſon to perſon; as verf.14. See chap. 15.2.

Wherefore doth the Lord our God all these things unto us?] Or, hath he done. Thus wretched and ſottiſh creatures, as if they were to be taught and told that, as a thing that they had never heard of before, which by the Prophets of God had ſo often been foretold them; or as if they had cauſe to queſtion, why God ſhould deal ſo with them, when as they had dealt ſo diſloyally and perfidiouſly with him, v.11. See the like expoſtulations of wicked ones with God, Eſay 58.3. Ch.13.22.& 16.10.

Like as you have forsaken me, and served strange gods in your land; ſo ſhall ye ſerve ſtrangers in a land that is not yours.] See Deu.28. 47,48.

forsaken me] Ch.1.16. verf.7.

strange gods] Heb. gods of a ſtranger; or, ſtrange people. So Joſh.24. 23. See the like, ch.8.19.

in your land] Or, in your own land: to make it to anſwer the other branch more fully; to, to your own land, ch.7.6.

in a land that is not yours.] Heb. in a land not yours: as, for not bread, Eſay 55.2. by not Gods, verf.7.

V. 20. Declare this in the house of Jacob, and publish it in Judah, saying,] Declare and publiſh; as ch.4.5. the houſe of Jacob, and Judah; one and the ſame: as Jeruſalem and Sion, Eſay 1.27. & 2.3. See verf.11.

V. 21. Hear now this, O foolish people, and without understanding, which have eyes and see not, which have ears and hear not.] Hear now; as Eſay 7.13.

O foolish people] Or, fooliſh; as it is rendred, ch.4.22.

without understanding] Heb. to whom heart is not; as Hoſ. 7.11. a defect of the relative: as verf.17.

which have eyes and see not, which have ears and hear not.] See Eſay 6.9. & 42.20. Ezek. 12.2. Heb. eyes are to them, and they see not; ears are to them, and they hear not: or, but they ſee not; but they hear not: the copulative for the diſcretive, or advertative; as Eſay 29.13. Chap. 13.2. and the demonſtrative for the relative, as verf. 16. and a paſſage from perſon to perſon; as chap. 2.6,7. verf. 19.

V. 22. Fear ye not me? ſaith the Lord; will ye not tremble at my preſence? who have placed the ſand for a bound of the ſea, by a perpetual decree, that it cannot paſs it; and though the waves thereof toſs themſelves, yet can they not prevail: though they roar, yet can they not paſs over.] The folly and ſottiſhneſs of this people is hereby evinced, in that neither the apprehenſion of Gods powerful greatneſs manifeſted, in bounding that vaſt and violent body of the ſea, which no might or ſlight of man is able to maſter, when it riſeth and rageth, with a bank of ſand, and ſo keeping it within compaſs, that it cannot ſtir an inch further than he hath ſet and affigned it; will enforce them to fear him, and ſtand in awe of him: nor the conſideration of his gracious goodneſs, Act. 14.17. manifeſted, in crowning the year with his bleſſing, Pſal. 69.9,11. and giving ſeaſonable times for the ripening and receiving the fruits of the earth, induce them to ſerve and obſerve him for their own benefit and behoof, verf. 24.

Fear ye not me?] Heb. will ye not fear me? and ſo it would be rendred to ſuit with the next branch; unleſs we render that alſo in the preſent; willye not be ruled by me, who am able to rule and over-rule the moſt unruly creature of all others, Job 7.12. the ſea, Pſa. 65.7. & 93.4.

tremble at my preſence] As Pſa.114.7.

who have placed the ſand for a bound of the ſea] Heb. ſet the ſand a bound to the ſea. See Pſal.104.9. Job 26.10.

by a perpetual decree] Or, an ancient decree. Heb. an ordinance of perpetuity; as Exod. 29.9. or, of antiquity, as verſ. 15. Hab. 3.6. If we take it the latter way, it hath reference unto the antiquity, either of Gods diſpoſition, at the creation, Gen. 1.9. Job 28.10,11. or of his determination after the flood, Gen. 8.21. & 9.11. if the former way; which the words following ſeem to lead unto, it muſt be underſtood of the continuance of it. Whereof, ſee Gen. 9.11. Job 26.10.

that it cannot paſs it] Or, which it cannot paſs. Heb. will not, or, ſhall not, paſs; as Pſa.104.9. the copulative and demonſtrative for the relative; as Eſay 46.11. & 48.8. and the indicative in a potential notion; as ch.2.23,32.

and though the waves thereof toſs themſelves, yet can they not prevail;] Heb. and (or, ſo that, as chap.14.19. or, though; as Eſay 10.5.) the waves thereof toſs themſelves, (as ch.46.7,8.) and (or, yet; as ch.3. 7.) they cannot, (to win, get over; ſupplyed from the next branch) or, they ſhall not prevail; as Gen.32.28. 1 Sam.26.25. that is, they cannot; as before: two copulatives diverſly uſed, in a two-fold notion; connexive, and conceſſive; the former the like whereunto, ſee Exod. 19.4. v.26. in a ſingle diſcretive notion; the latter; as v.10. So in the next branch; though they roar, yet can they not paſs over.] Heb. and they roar, or, rage; (as it is rendred, Pſa.46.6.) and they ſhall not paſs over: and, and for, though, and, for, yet; as Job 8.7.

V. 23. But this people have a revolting and rebellious heart; they are revolted and gone.] But. Heb. And; as verſ. 3.

a revolting] Or, refractary. See v.3,6. they are of a refractary ſpirit, wholly bent unto, pitch'd and fixed upon rebellious courſes, Pſal. 78.8.

revolted and gone] From my Law, which the ſea it ſelf obſerveth, verſ.

verſ. 22. as ſome: the wretched and rebellious condition of mankind, who alone of all the creatures tranſgreſs the Law which God hath preſcribed them; go beyond the bounds that he hath aſſigned them, Pſa.14.19.90.91. & 148.8. are vexed and go on; periſh in their revolt and rebellious courſes, and will not be reclaimed, v.3. ch.8.4,5. are, which this hath no affinity with, nor hath that any place here: Heb. they are gone aſide; (Pſal.14.3.) and go, or, will go, ch.2.25. Hoſ. 2.10.

V. 24. Neither ſay they in their hearts] They think not once with themſelves; as Pſal.14.1. ch.13.22. Zeph.1.12.

Let us now fear the Lord our God] Let us ſerve and worſhip him; let us obſerve and obey him; to fear, for, to ſerve; as 2 King. 17.25,41. because all our ſervice of God ought to proceed from fear, Deu.10.20. 1 Sam. 12.24. and to be mixed with fear, Pſa.2.11. Heb.12.28. Let us ſerve him for his goodneſs, Deu.8.4. Hoſ.3.5. and for our good. Deu. 5.29. & 6.24. & 10.13. ch.32.39.

that giveth rain] Deut.28.12. Amos 4.7. Matt.5.45. which neither the idols, nor the clouds of themſelves can give, Joh 38.25,28. chap. 14.22. Zach.10.1. and which if it be withheld, the ſky will be as braſs over our heads, and the earth as iron under our feet, Deut.28. 23. rain, ſaith the Rabbine, to water their gardens, and for other uſes, both for man and beaſts; the other two for a ſubjoyned principally for their corn: but this ſeems but a nicety; the other two ſeem to particularize rather this general, as being the rains chiefly deſired.

both] Heb. and; on which the Jewiſh Critick would ground his former nicety; but it is rather a particular explication of what rain he intended: and, for, both, as chap. 17.26. or, even: as chap. 52.13.

the former and the latter] Heb. yoreh and malkoſh; So Deut.11.14. for the word geſhem, for rain, before uſed, compichended both, Hoſ. 6.3. Joel 2.23. the former called here yoreh, and elſe-where alſo moreh, Joel 2.23. is termed the former; not becauſe it came firſt, according to the more general account of the year, and the ordinary ranking of the months whereof it conſiſted; for that which is here rendred the latter, came in the firſt month, Joel 2.23. this in the eighth: but in reference to their husbandry, and the order thereof; the former falling ſhortly after their ſeed-time, the latter, ſome time before their harveſt, in regard whereof, alſo the year for civil contracts began at the month Tiſri, in account otherwiſe the ſeventh, See Lev.23.24. & 25.9. and it had its name yoreh, or, moreh, from a word that ſignifies to paint downe, Prov.11.25. Hoſ. 10.12. See Eſay 30.20. ch.3.3. In which latter place alſo, ſee of the latter rain, called malkoſh both here and there.

in his ſeaſon] In the months above mentioned, Lev.26.4. So Deu. 11.14.

he reſerveth unto us the appointed weeks of the harveſt] Or, and he keepeth; or, that keepeth for us the weeks appointed for harveſt: a defect either of the copulative, as verſ.5.6. or, of the relative, as chap. 4.31. verſ. 17, 26. That continueth unto us the ſeaſons of the year, each in his turn and due time, Gen.8.22. or that keepeth the times of harveſt and fair dry for us, ſo that we have weather of either fort ſeaſonably; for rain in harveſt is unſeaſonable and hurtful, Prov.26.1. See 1 Sam.12.17,18. Eſay 18.4. Heb. weeks of ordinances, or, appointments of harveſt: whence one of the Jewiſh Doctors would have ſome reſpect had to the two ordinances, made for their harveſt oblations; the one for the firſt, Lev. 23.10. the other for the loaves, Lev. 23.17. another to two requiſites in harveſt times; fair weather to reap, and a good wind to winnow. But the former is wholly here impertinent, the latter over-curious. Their harveſt time for corn, was within the compaſs commonly of two months, half Niſan, all Sivan, and half Iyar: but he ſaith rather weeks, than months, or days; in reference to thoſe ſeven weeks, between thoſe two ſolemn feaſts of Paſch, and Pentecoſt, Lev. 23.15. Num. 28.20. Deut.16.9. (whence the latter of them is called the feaſt of weeks, Exo.34.22. Deut. 16.10,16.) within which was the moſt part uſually got in; in this regard they were enjoyned at the Paſch, at which time they began to put ſickle to their corn, Deut. 16.9. to bring for an oblation to the Lord, a certain quantity of corn; that is, as it is generally deemed, of barley: becauſe that was ſooner ripe with them, as in Egypt alſo, Exod. 9.31,32. than wheat, Ruth 2.23. whether in the ear, or beaten out, is queſtioned; becauſe the term uſed in the Law is ambiguous, ſignifying as well a ſheaf of corn, as a certain meaſure of grain, or meal: nor was it lawful for them to eat any bread, ſure of grain, or meal: nor was it lawful for them to eat any bread, parched corn, or green ear of that years grain, until this offering had been tendred, Lev. 23.14,15. and at Pentecoſt, (from the number of days, making up thoſe weeks, Lev. 23.16. ſo termed, Act. 2.1. 1 Cor. 16.8.) they were to bring two loaves made of fine flower; of wheat, as it is generally deemed, being their wheat harveſt was then begun, and in his height, or heat, if not well neer done; for a tribute, as it is termed, Deut. 16.10. or, in nature of their firſt fruits, as it is ſtyled, Lev. 23.17 in regard whereof, is the firſt day of that feaſtival, called the day of the firſt fruits, Num. 28.20. Some of our Interpreters of chief note here, ſtep out of the common rode: ſome reading the words here; that keepeth with us the oathes of the ſtatutes of his veſt; as having reference to the oath, that God took for the continuance of harveſt in its due ſeaſon, Gen.8.22. but of any oath (oathes much leſs, as here) there is no mention there. Others rendering them, the ſewings, and the ſtatutes of harveſt: and by the former, underſtanding the ſeventh year, wherein they were forbidden to till, Lev. 25.4,7. by the latter, the bleſſing that God promiſed to give in thoſe years, Lev. 25.20,21. but I find not the word of ſewings, or, weeks, any where ſo uſed; and it ſeems to diſtract the text too much: as for the ancient Greek and old Latine, who in ſtead of weeks, here read and render fulneſs, they are too too apparently out of the way, ſuppoſing it to come from a root that ſignifies to ſatiate, which this hath no affinity with, nor hath that any place here: which groſs miſtake yet our Popiſh writers endeavour to take from, inſtead of diſcovering, as they might better have done, the ground of their errour.

V. 25. Your iniquities have turned away these things, and your ſins have withholden good things from you] Heb. good from you; as Iſa.55.2. This is the true cauſe why your rains have been reſtrained, ch.3.3. If there be any reſtraint of Gods bleſſings, it is by reaſon of mans ſin; Pſal.107.17.34. Iſa.59.1,2.

V. 26. For among my people are found wicked men; they lye in wait as he that ſetteth ſnares, they ſet a trap, they catch men] Or, that lye in wait, or, watch, or, prie each of them; (a defect of the relative, as verſ.17. and a change of the number, as Joel 1.20.) as when fowlers couch themſelves; (the particle including a two-fold notion; as Iſa.54.9. & 64.2. verſ.25.) they ſet a ſnare, or, a gin, to take men: as, roſe and warred, for, roſe to war, Joſh.24.9. roſe early corrupted, for, roſe early to corrupt, Zeph.3.7. know not give not, for, know, not how to give, Job 32.22. So alſo Eccl.8.11.

are found] Or, are to be found; for, to be, as Eſther 1.5. Luke 17.18.

lay wait] Or, watch, or, pry; for ſo the word properly ſignifies, Hoſ. 11.7. whence warmers are called priers or, watchers; becauſe they eye men to deal them ſome miſchief, Pſa.5.8. & 27.11. & 54.7. & 56.2. & 59.10. & 92.11. See of Saul the like, 1 Sam.18.11.

as he that ſetteth ſnares] Or, as fowlers; or, as when fowlers (ſo the word is ever taken, Pſa.91.3. Prov. 6.5. Hoſ. 9.8. never ſo ſnare) couch, or, lye ſtill and quiet; as thoſe do that lye in wait: Heb. as, or, according to fowlers in couching; for the verb in the form here uſed, is never found in a tranſitive notion, ever in an immanent. So it is uſed of the waters of the deluge; the waters were abated, or, aſſwaged; fell, and began to be low, Gen. 8.1. and the Kings anger was laid, or, appeaſed, Eſther 2.1. & 7.10. and in the tranſitive form, that thou mayſt ſtill their murmuring, Num. 17.10. they lye in wait to catch men, as fowlers do to take fowl, Prov. 1.11,17, 18. See alſo Pſal. 10.8,10. in which place, a word ſomewhat like that here; as well in ſound, as in ſenſe, is of the like uſed, as alſo, Job 38.40.

they ſet a trap] Or, gin, or, ſnare: the word properly ſignifies perdition, or, deſtruction, Exod. 12.13. 2 Chr.20.23. Ezek.21.31. in dition, or, deſtruction, as, or, ſnare, ſet on purpoſe to work deſtruction; the next places, a gin, or, ſnare, ſet on purpoſe to work deſtruction; in which notion it is here alone found: a learned late writer rendreth it, a pit; and true it is that a word ſomewhat neer it, and as ſome ſay, of the ſame family with it; is uſed ſometime for corruption, think, of the ſame family with it; is uſed ſometime for corruption, ſomtime for a pit, Pſal. 16.10. & 94.13. & 103.4. Prov. 26.27. ſometime for a pit, Pſal. 16.10. & 94.13. & 103.4. Prov. 26.27. as alſo that pit falls are made to take birds; and both pits digged, and ſnares laid in pits to catch other creatures, Pſa.7.15. & 9.15. & 35. 7. but that will not fit well here; for, to ſet a pit, carrieth no good ſenſe; rather, as moſt render it, they ſet traps, or gins, or, ſnares; (for the word is here collectively uſed) to catch men; either to poſſeſs, or to ſhed them, or both, Prov. 1.11,13,16,19. So ſet Jezabel a ſnare for Naboth, 1 King. 21. and Saul divers for David, though none of them took; See 1 Sam 18.17,21,25. & 19.1,11,17,20. & 23.7, 9,14,22,23.

V. 27. As a cage is full of birds, ſo are their houſes full of deceit] A cage, or, a coup; for it is (as the Jewiſh Maſters tell us) a receptacle made of boards, wherein fowlers and poulterers uſed to keep and fat their fowl: the fowlers cage or coup, of whom he ſpeaks, v. 26. and it may ſignifie as well one made of twigs, as of boards; for it is uſed alſo for a mannd, or, a basket, Amos 8.1,2.

their houſes full of deceit] Of goods gotten by deceit; by ſuch wiles and practiſes as they ſee ſome men withal: as, fatſhood, for goods got by fatſhood, Eſay 28.15. labour; for goods gotten by pains-taking, ch.3. 24. See Mic.6.10. Zeph.1.9.

therefore are they become great, and waxen rich] Or, thereby; or, by ſuch means. Heb. for ſo.

V. 28. They are waxen fat] Fat; that is, wealthy, Pſal.22.29. Hab. 1.10. or, corpulent, being full fed, Pſa.73.7. & 119.70. See v.7. Deu. 32.15.

they ſhine] Or, they are ſleek, or, ſmooth; without wrinkles, as full and fat bodies uſe to be: ſo the noun hence deduced, (for the verb is no where elſe found) as paſſ ſh d, or, ſmooth ivory, Cant. 5.14. and, poliſhed, or, ſmooth iron, Ezek. 27.19. for that is all the ſtock of it.

yea, they over-paſs the deeds of the wicked] According to this verſion the meaning ſhould be; they go beyond the very heathen themſelves in wickedneſs, See Chap. 2.33. Ezek. 5.6,7. and ſo the Jewiſh Commenters alſo underſtand the text. The ancient Greek retcheth it, they paſſe by judgement; which would ſute well with what followeth if the word would bear it, but either maugleth the text, or forceth it over much. The Chaldee, They tranſgreſs the words of the Law, they do evill: and much to the ſame effect, the old Latine; the Law, they do evill: and much to the ſame effect, the old Latine; they do wickedly paſs by, in words: but they both alſo put in, what is not in the text. The Hebrew is word for word, they paſs by words, or, or, matters of evil; words, or, matters, of evil, is no other than evil things, Psal. 65. 3. as, words, or, matters, of fastings, and cry; for, the fasts and cries themselves. So Chap. 7.4, 8,22. this some of the Rabbines expound, when any evil either is menaced, or befalleth them for the evil they do; they pass it, or, put it by, and do the evil for all that; as vers. 3. Some of ours, whom I concur with, they pass by evils; they escape those evil occurrents of penalty and judgment, wherewith others are surprised, as Psal. 73. 5. Howbeit, a learned late writer, understandeth it of persons, in bad case, sad, or afflicted; as the word evil, is oft used, Gen. 41. 4. Lev. 27. 10, 33. Prov. 15. 15. as if the meaning were; they pass by the matters, or, the causes of such, refusing to meddle with them: which though it would sute well with what followeth, yet seemeth here somewhat forced.

they judge not the cause, the cause of the fatherless] Cause: Heb. judgement, as Deut. 17. 8. chap. 22. 16. & 30. 13. the cause, I say, of the fatherless; or, orphan; either they refuse to hear it, Esay 1. 23. or, if they do, they right them not, but wrong them rather, Zach. 7. 10. Hereby it appeareth, that what was before said, was against those principally intended, that were in place of judicature; yet not excluding others also, whom for bribes, those great ones backed and bore out, See Esay 1. 23. Mic. 7. 2,3. Zeph. 3. 3, 4.

yet they prosper.] Heb. and, as vers. 10, 22. They thrive with, or notwithstanding, their wickedness: as Job 21. 7. 15. Psal. 73. 3, 12. chap. 12. 1, 2. Hab. 1. 3, 4. Zach. 11. 5. or, as the words may well be read, that they might prosper: for so also is the copulative frequently used, Josh. 24. 9. Esay 10. 19. & 11. 3. & 13. 2. & 41. 22. & 53. 2. See v. 22. they do not execute judgment and justice, that they might prosper through Gods blessing upon them for the same, ch. 22. 15,16.

and the right of the needy they do not judge.] The right, or the cause, as before. Heb. the judgment: another word of the same notion with the former. So Exo. 23. 6. Job 31. 13.

V. 29. Shall I not visit for these things? saith the Lord; shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation as this?] Or, Should I not? see vers. 9. I might, otherwise, seem to be neither just nor merciful. See Exod. 22. 22, 24, 27. Luke 18. 2, 8. James 2. 23.

V. 30. A wonderful and horrible thing is committed in the land.] Heb. a stupendious; such a thing as a man would be astonished at: as, Be astonished, O heavens, chap. 2. 12. for from thence the word cometh: and an abominable thing, not an horrid, as some; such as may make a mans hair stand an end: for it cometh not from that root, though they be very neer: the roots differ, as Shibboleth, and Sibboleth, Judg. 12. 6. though some would have that diversity oft-times disregarded, see on v. 8. but a vile, filthy, abominable thing, such an one as a man would loath and abhor: it is used of those figs, said to be so bad, that there was no eating of them. ch. 29. 17. So ch. 18. 13. & 23. 14. Hos. 6. 10.

V. 31. The Prophets prophesie falsly;] Heb. in, or by, or with a falshood, or a lye: as ch. 14. 14. & 20. 6. & 23. 25,26. Ezek. 13. 6. Either they prophesie in Baals name, ch. 2. 8. or they prophesie lyes in my name, ch. 4. 10.

and the Priests bear rule by their means;] Heb. the Priests, or Princes, (for the word will bear either: See on Esay 61. 10.) rule upon, or at, or by, their hands: as Esay 62. 3. This some render of the Princes, whom, say they, the false Prophets confirmed in their rapines, and robberies, being by them bribed so to do, Ezek. 13. 22. So some of the Jewish Doctors. Other of them expound it, of the corrupt carriage of the Princes in taking of bribes, Hos. 4. 18. Mic. 7. 3. and because the word here used, is found, Judg. 14. 9. where it is said of Samson, that he took in his hands of the honey that he found in the carcass of the lion; they would therefore have it here so to signifie, the Princes, or Priests, take bribes, that are as sweet as honey to them, into their hands, to pervert the right, and to give wrong judgement. The ancient Greek, and the old Latine, following it, The Priests with their hands applaud them: or, as a late Writer would have the Greek to mean. They applaud their, that is, the false Prophets, hands; as if they had read with other vowels, they descend upon their hands. But this the words, without some variation, will not admit. Most of ours, There is a combination between the Priests, and the false Prophets, and these, by their false prophecies, support and confirm the Priests in their ambitious courses and corrupt carriages, whereby as Eli's sons sometime, 1 Sam. 2. 12, 17, 22. they domineered and tyrannized over Gods people, and which the true Prophets of God reproved in them. Nor doth that swerve from this in effect and substance, which that learned late Writer suggesteth, that the phrase at the hand here used, doth usually signifie after, or according to, the leading, guidance, or direction of some other: as Exod. 2. 5. Num. 13. 29. Josh. 15. 15. 2 Sam. 15. 18. (which place one of the Jewish Commenters here pointeth us to) 1 Chr. 25. 2,3, 6. 2 Chr. 17. 14. & 31. 15. Neh. 3 2,4,5. so it should be implyed, that the Priests ruled and swayed all, not so much by the ministery, as by the authority of the false Prophets, who pretended an extraordinary call. Howsoever we take the term, certain it is, that they both banded together against Gods Prophets, ch. 26. 8, & 29. 25, 27.

and my people love to have it so:] They like and love the lies and flatteries of the false Prophets, better than Gods truth, Esay 30. 10. Mic. 2. 6, 11. 2 Thess. 2. 9, 11.

and what will ye do in the end thereof?] Some understand it, as spoken in the person of God, as rendring a reason of what he had said, v. 29. What will this wickedness grow unto, unless I do by some special penal course repress it? Others, rather, what will be the issue of this? what will become of you at last? when all sorts among you, Prophets, Priests, and People, are so extreamly corrupt and faulty, what can be expected, but an utter riddance of you all? See ch. 6. 13. Mic. 3. 11.

CHAP. VI.

Vers. 1. O Ye children of Benjamin gather your selves] The Prophet proceedeth to give warning of the Chaldeans approach, vers. 1, 6. sheweth what misery and mischief should thereby befall them, vers. 21, 26. withal laying before them the causes of all this, to wit, the general corruption among all sorts with them, vers. 6,7, 13, 28. and their wilful obstinacy, in refusing to hearken to Gods Word, v. 8, 10, 17, 18. and to break off their wicked courses, vers. 29, 30.

O ye children of Benjamin,] To the Benjamites, the Prophet directeth his speech, as to forewarn them of the Babylonian expedition against Judah, and the siege of Jerusalem shortly after to ensue, because that Tribe had adhered to Judah, when the other ten had revolted from it, 2 Chr. 11. 12. chap. 17. 26. and divers of that Tribe did inhabit Jerusalem, part of the city lying within their lot, Joshua 18. 28.

gather your selves to flee out of the midst of Jerusalem;] Or, retire: as it was before rendred, chap. 4. 6. or withdraw your selves. See on ch. 4. 6. out of the midst of Jerusalem, for, out of Jerusalem: as Num. 14. 44. As before they were advised to flee unto Jerusalem for succour and safeguard, as to a place of the greatest strength with them, ch. 4. 5,6. thereby intimating the approach of the enemy unto their parts: so here on the other side, they are admonished to quit Jerusalem, and get speedily out of her, lest they be surprized in her, and perish together with her: and as afterward to leave the land of Judah, ch. 10. 17. thereby intimating her approaching siege, and what would become of her, whom they had repaired unto for shelter and safety. See the like Esay 23. 12. as that before rather foretelling what they would do, than seriously advising them so to do: so this telling them what indeed their best and wisest course would be: see of Babylon, Esay 52. 11. ch. 51. 6.

and blow the trumpet in Tekoa, and set up a sign of fire in Beth-baccerem] The blowing of the Trumpet, and setting up of a sign, are to give people in those parts warning of the enemies approach, and either thereby to incite them to make preparation for opposition, or to admonish them to betake themselves to places of strength; as ch. 4. 5, 6. Hos. 5. 8. & 8. 1. not that they should indeed be able to make head against so potent an enemy, or that in any place of strength they should finde safety; but as foretelling what then would be done, and representing to them, what they would in those times be calling upon to have done, though it were to no purpose. See chap. 8. 14.

in Tekoa] A city of Judah, 1 Chro. 2. 24. 2 Chro. 11. 6. Amos 1. 1. it was situate on an hill, and lay toward the North of Judah, which way the enemy was to come; and there is in the Hebrew an elegancy of like sound, in the name of Tekoa, and the term of trumpetting: the like whereunto is also found, Mic. 1. 10, 14. Zeph. 2. 4. so that it is as if he had said, do that which thy name importeth.

set up a sign of fire] That is, fire a beacon. So some of the Rabbines here expound it, whom also not a few follow; supposing the verb whence it cometh to have sometime a notion of burning in it, and so to be used, 2 Sam. 5. 21. Job 7. 13. & 32. 23. Nah. 1. 5. and this word to be in that sense derived from it, and so to signifie, both here and elsewhere, Judg. 20. 38, 40. & Ezek. 17. 9. but there is not one of those places, but is very questionable, and may well therefore otherwise be rendred: and though it be true, that the firing of a beacon may well be comprehended among many other signs or significations, of the use intended in the term here used; yet is the word a term of a far larger extent, and it importeth any thing whatsoever thus set up for a sign, whether banner displayed, or beacon fired, or ought else of the like use: and the text is no more word for word, than lift up a lift-up; or some signal, so called, because erected or lift up: let somewhat be set up that may give notice to the parts adjacent of the enemies approach: that which was called an ensign, or a standard, chap. 4. 6. but the term here used, is more general: and so Judg. 20. 28. that they should cause to ascend a great lift-up (if we may so speak) of smoke: and v. 40. when the lift-up of smoke began to ascend: not unlike to that Esa. 9. 18. though another term there be used, to lift up a lift-up: as, to vow a vow, Gen. 28. 20. to fast a fast, 2 Sam. 12. 16. to serve a service, Exo. 13. 5. to judge a judgment, ch. 5. 28. See also, v. 13.

in Beth-haccerem] Heb. on Beth-haccerem: that is, on the house of the vineyard. So one of the Jewish Commenters, expounding it of a tower, or turret; erected in a vineyard to oversee it, and other neighbouring ones, and for a Watch-man to watch in, for the preservation of them them, Esa. 5. 2. and the manner of writing, in Hebrew, the two terms standing apart, with no such line intervenient, as our Version exhibiteth, might seem to add some strength hereunto: but the like is found in some other proper names, as Esay 8. 3. where though in our Version the like lines are inserted, yet in the Hebrew text, none such appear. The Chaldee Paraphrast rendreth it, on the house of the valley of the vineyards: Nor can I but wonder, why a Writer of great note should say the word there used should signifie cities situate on hils. But another of the Jewish Doctors saith, that it is the proper name of a place, and so the ancient Greek, and old Latine, take it; and, as some say, also, the Syrian: And Jerome reporteth, that Beth-haccerem was a Town situate on an hill between Tekoa and Jerusalem, from whence Tekoa was not above twelve miles distant: It seemeth to be the same with Beth-haccerem, mentioned Nehemiah 3. 14. and of this stamp were the names of many Cities in those parts: as Bethaven, Josh. 18. 1. Bethana, Josh. 19. 38. Bethania, John 11. 1. Betharabah, Josh. 15. 6. Bethbarah, Judg. 7. 24. or Bethabarah, Joh. 1. 28. Bethleem, Josh. 19. 15. Matt. 2. 1. Bethsaida, Matth. 11. 21. Bethesda, Joh. 5. 2.

for evil appeareth out of the North,] From the Northern parts, by the Babylonians marching towards them from Chaldea, that lay North from them, ch. 1. 14. & 3. 18. & 4. 6. and great destruction.] Heb. and (or, even, as Esay 65. 6.) a great (or, grievous) breach, or, breaking: as chap. 4. 20. & 48. 3. So cha. 4. 6.

V. 2. I have likened the daughter of Zion to a comely and delicate woman.] These words are diversly taken, and diversly rendred. The word woman, is not in the text: but there is a defect of the subject; as, standing, for, standing corn: and, fruitful, for, fruitful vine, Esay 17. 5, 6. And some supply woman, as our version doth: but about the former attribute, the Jewish Doctors are divided; for some of them say, that it signifieth a woman that inhabiteth; one that dwelleth, or keepeth at home, not out of an houswifely care, as Titus 2. 5. but out of delicacy and nicety, a lothness to look out, or set her foot on the ground, as Deu. 28. 56. as coming from a word that signifies to inhabit, or to keep at home: as it is rendred, Hab. 2. 5. Others of them expound it, a comely, or beautiful woman; as the Rabbines frequently use the word whence it comes: and as another, whereof anon, very neer it, is used, and rendred, Cant. 1. 10. Prov. 17. 7. & 19. 10. & 26. 1. and some of ours, which admitting this supply, will the better suit with what ensueth, would have some fair shepherdess intended, whose love many shepherds seeking to obtain, come and pitch their tents, and feed their flocks neer to her. But there want not those, who supply not woman, but land; and read the words; I have likened the daughter of Sion to a goodly pasture ground, and, a delicate land: such as Ashers is said to be, affording royal dainties, Gen. 49. 20. and indeed the former word differeth in gender only from the term that doth usually signifie a pasture; as it is well rendred, Ezek. 34. 14. though in some other places elsewhere, amiss: as also the same word is rendred a pleasant place, Hosea 9. 13. whence also some of the Jewish Criticks expound it, both here, and elsewhere, as by intercision of a letter not unusual, derived from a root that signifies to desire, and as the same with desired, or desireable, such as good and beautiful things usually are, (whence also the words in the places before pointed to) and such pasture grounds to shepherds; in regard whereof also, is Naioth deemed to have its name, 1 Sam. 19. 19. And to this the rather I encline; because both the word may well bear it, and it suiteth exceeding well with the ensuing expressions, vers. 3. So that it is as if the Prophet had said, Methinks Jerusalem (for that is the daughter of Sion, Esay 1. 8.) seems very like (as the former) to some beautiful and delicate dame, living plentifully and daintily in her own land, as at home; or, according to the latter, to some goodly pleasant pasture land, that may well entice shepherds to repair to it with their flocks. One difference more there is among the Jewish Criticks, about the verb here used, which some of them understand as we have it here rendred; and so it is taken, Cant. 1. 9. Howbeit, because the word is there in another form: and in the form here used, it signifieth generally, this one place excepted, wheresoever it is found in a notion of similitude, not to liken, but to be like, as Psal. 144. 4. Cant. 7. 7. Ezek. 31. 8. Some of them therefore would have it here expounded, not, I have likened, but, I have cut off, or, I will cut off: as the very same word is in this form used, Hos. 4. 5. where it is rendred, I will destroy thy mother. According to this interpretation it should be read without any supply, The fair and delicate daughter of Sion have I destroyed, or, will I destroy; for so the words lye in the text: but the attributes are not wont in Hebrew thus in construction to lead their subject: and for the verb, both in this, and some other; the forms are sometime confounded.

V. 3. The Shepherds with their flocks shall come unto her;] That is, the Babylonian Princes and Chieftains with their forces, as shepherds invited by her pleasant pastures fit for their flocks: So ch. 12. 10. and there seemeth a secret taunt in the term of shepherds; as the like in watchers, and keepers, ch. 4. 16, 17.

with their flocks] Heb. and their flocks; as ch. 1. 13.

they shall pitch their tents against her round about,] Pitch tents; as shepherds do, Esa. 13. 20. the warlike tents here intended, as ch. 37. 10. a defect of the pronoun; as Esa. 13. 22.

against her round about] As ch. 4. 16, 17. or, besides her; as the particle is used, Esa. 32. 20. they shall lye in siege about her, ch. 1. 15. & 4. 17. Ezek. 4. 2, 3.

they shall feed every one in his place] Heb. a man (for, each one, as ch. 5. 8.) his hand; which the Greek renders, with his hand: they shall by might and force, as we use to say, with strong hand, destroy and spoil. So, with the hand, Esay 28. 2. The old Latine, those that be under his hand: his companies; So the Chaldee; as, the sheep of his hand, Psal. 95. 7. Others, at his side: besides him; what is next to him: as, the asses were feeding at the hand of them; that is, beside them, Job 1. 14. Others, they shall feed each one in his place, or, they shall depasture, or, eat down, (destroy and devour, as beasts are wont to depasture a ground: See Esa. 3. 14.) his place, or, his quarter, assigned him. So is the word hand, used, 2. 17. Deut. 23. 12. Esay 56. 5, 11. & 57. 8. they shall take up their quarters, and according to their imployments in such and such places assigned them, they shall spoyl and make havock of all that they can. And this last I conceive to be the genuine notion and use of the word in this place.

V. 4. Prepare ye war against her] Heb. Sanctifie: as chap. 12. 3. & 22. 7. Joel 3. 9. So Esay 13. 3. I have commanded my sanctified ones. The words of God himself; and, as I take it, of no other here: though most Interpreters understand them, as the words of the Babylonian King, or the Chaldean Princes, giving order for preparation; and suppose it to have reference to some solemn rites that the Heathen used, in denouncing war; and some also to the fire, that the Chaldeans, say they, made an idol of, and had born before them in their camp. See on chap. 1. 13. But neither of these conceits seem to be very probable, as to the word here used; the use of it in this kind being so large, and so indefinite. But for the party, in whose person this is spoken, whosoever he or they be, the Prophet here gives over his former resemblance; and that they may understand more clearly, what manner of Shepherds they were, that were coming against them, he telleth them here, that they were Warriors, military men, unto whom God had given a charge and commission against them. See Esa. 10. 5, 6. v. 6.

Arise, and let us go up at noon.] These words, without question, hold out the speeches of those, whom God in his secret counsel had designed unto that service, and by an efficacious instinct stirred up thereunto; encouraging and enciting one another, with all speed, to set upon it, and with all eagerness to pursue it: the Prophet thereby intimating, as I conceive, how ready they should be to put in execution, what God would have done by them, so soon as ever the time was come, wherein God would have it effected. See Esay 5. 26, 27.

Arise] As chap. 1. 17. So Deut. 2. 13. Esay 21. 5. chap. 49. 14.

at noon.] Which some expound, as an argument of courage, as who should say; we shall not need to steal in upon them by night, we will set upon them at noon-day, 1 King. 20. 16. chap. 15. 8. Zeph. 2. 4. Others, as an intimation of their present strength and flourishing estate, in regard whereof, they needed not to misdoubt ought, but were sure to carry all before them with success at pleasure; day light, for, prosperity: as Esther 8. 16. Esay 59. 9. But these seem to be both wide of the Prophets intendment. Nor cometh the Jewish Doctor any thing neerer, who telleth us, that noon, and night, here mentioned the one, and in the next verse the other, are times of unlucky occurrents; according to that, Psal. 91. 6. But they seem rather the words of men, manifesting an impatiency of delay, and calling one upon another, either to march on, and set forward, so soon as they are got together, though it be at noon-day; or to assault the city instantly, though it be noon-day, ere they can come to sit down before it; albeit that the heat of the day at noon-tide, in those hot countries especially, be nothing commodious or seasonable, either for march, or assault: and complaining, that by delay and stay, they do but burn day-light. And to this purpose, one of the Jewish Commenters understanding this whole passage, not of their march towards Jerusalem, but of the city, accordingly expounds and applyes the several terms here used; Prepare war; make ready to give an assault: arise, out of your several quarters, v. 3. go up; scale the walls: as v. 5. 10. that we may surprise the city, ere night approach: and as vexed that they cannot take it and sack it the same day. But I conceive it rather to be meant of their march; and their forward desire to be making on towards it.

Wo unto us; for the day goeth away, and the shadows of the evening are stretched out.] This the Jewish Commenters, and many other treading in their steps, understand as the voice of Gods people, or the Prophet speaking in their person, lamenting their woful condition, and complaining, that all their prosperity was drawing to a period, and the night of affliction was ready to surprise them; according to that, Amos 8. 9, 10. But others rather conceive it to be a continuation of the voices of the Chaldees, and their complices, eagerly desirous to be setting on forward, and complaining that the day spent, and they lost so much time, while by needless delays, they retarded their expedition, and let slip their opportunities; as chap. 46. 17.

for the day goeth away] Or, that (as chap. 4. 18. Lam. 5. 16.) the day passeth away; or, spendeth: as Psal. 90. 9. a metaphor from one one that at parting, turneth his face from us. See on Isay 53.6. chap. 2.27.

the shadows of the evening are stretched out] Or, are lengthened; as towards evening they use to be: or, decline, as Psal. 102.11. & 109.23.

V. 5. arise, and let us go up by night] Let us march night and day, that we may lose no time. See vers. 4.

and let us destroy her palaces.] Or, that we may destroy her palaces; as chap. 5.28. that which made them so eager upon this expeditiō, to have the spoyl of the city, the Kings house, and the stately houses of his Princes, and great men, stored with much wealth, and rich furniture. See Esay 13.22. and 32.14. & 39.6. chap. 9.21.

V. 6. For thus hath the Lord of hosts said;] Or, Thus saith the Lord of hosts: as chap. 5.14. That ye may not think that these men come led on only by their own ambitious, or covetous affections and dispositions; be it known unto you, that God hath an hand in the business; it is he that setteth them on work, to execute his wrath upon you for your sins and excesses, chap. 1.15, 16. See vers. 4.

Hew ye down trees] To raise works for the siege, and make engines for a battery, such as were then in use, Deut. 20. 19, 20.

cast a mount] Or, discharge engines of shot. See on Isa. 37.33. So Ezek.26.8.

this is the city to be visited] Or, punished; as chap. 5.9, 29. the time of her visitation by judgement is come, chap. 11.23. & 23.12. Ezek. 9.1. Hos 9.7. the time of Gods wrathful visitation of them, because of his gracious visitation neglected by them, Luk.19.44. their sins being risen (as the next words imply) to the heighth, Ezek. 7.10,12. 1 Thess. 2.16.

she is wholly oppression in the midst of her.] There is nothing but oppression in her. She is so full of it from the one end to the other, as if she were all made of it, 2 Kin.21.16. & 24.4. Ezek.7.23. See of Nineveh, Nah. 3.1.

in the midst of her.] As Psal.55.11.

V. 7. As a fountain casteth out her waters, so she casteth out her wickedness.] These abuses flow incessantly from her, as water from a spring: they are renewed daily with her; they never depart from her: she is in regard of them, as a spring that is never drawn dry, Psal.55.9,11.

calleth out] Or, causeth to spring up, or, issue out; whence a word signifying a well, or, Spring, ch.2.13. properly one discovered and procured by digging; for the verb in its first notion signifies to dig, 2 Kin. 19.24. Isa. 37.25.

her wickedness] As the working sea doth mire and dirt. Isaiah 57.20.

violence and spoyl is heard in her;] That is the common cry with her; it is that all the city ringeth of. See ch.20.8.

before me continually is grief and wounds] Heb. disease and stroke, or, stripe: as Deut. 28.61. their cruell courses in vexing and oppressing one another, and the city thereby caused, are continually in mine ear the one, in mine eye the other; provoking and urging me to proceed in all severity and rigor against her. See Exod.22.22-27. Psa.109.15. Isa.3.8,14,15. & 59.13,18. & 65.3. Luke 12.2,8. Jam. 5.4. Howbeit, some expound all this, not of evils committed by them, but of evils to be inflicted upon them; which the Prophet should have continually in his ear, and his eye; as the flandavel, and trumpet leading on, and exciting to them, ch. 4.21. but the former more easily floweth from the text.

V. 8. Be thou instructed, O Jerusalem] A summons of them to repentance. Heb. Be corrected: Take warning, and be amended by the judgments, that already have befallen thee; for the word signifies in the first place, to chastise, ch.31.18. Hos.10.10. and in the next place, by chastising, to reform and amend, Prov.29.15. See ch.2.30. & 5.3.

lest my soul depart from thee,] Heb. be loosed, or, disjointed from me: a metaphor taken from the dislocation of a limb, the forcing of it from its natural place and posture, and putting it, as we say, out of joynt, Gen.32.25. intimating what a pain and grief it is to God to leave, or cast off a people, whom he is once in league with, and with how much difficulty he is drawn thereunto. So Ezek.23.17,18. soul, for, the person himself: as ch. 5.9, 29. but here somewhat more specially for love and affection, whereof the soul is the seat: as Gen.34. 8. Psa.42.1,2. Lev.26.11,15,30.

lest I make thee desolate, a land not inhabited.] Heb. lest I make thee a desolation, or, a waste, as chap. 4.27, 29. Left I both cast thee off, and cut thee off, two grand evils, dereliction, and destruction: and the one of them usually following on the other. Hence that, woe to them, when I depart from them, Hos.10.12.

V. 9. Thus saith the Lord of hosts] As before, v. 6.

They shall thoroughly glean the remnant of Israel as a vine:] They (the enemy, the Chaldeans, compared to grape-gatherers: as chap.49.9.) Heb. shall gleaning glean; that is, thoroughly glean; an allusion to the Law, that inhibited the going over the vine again, after the general cutting, or the leaving of it wholly bare, Lev. 19.10. Deut. 24.21. the meaning is, that the enemy in cutting them off, or captiving them, should go over them again and again: as it is said of the Israelites, when they had dissomfited the main body of the Benjamites, they afterward gleaned them, as they lighted on them straggling in the high-ways, Judg. 20.45. and thus did the Chaldeans glean the remnant of Israel, the people of Judah; not so called in regard of the ten tribes, before by the Assyrian destroyed, 2 Kin.17.6. but in regard of those of their own people, and their city, whom, and which, the Chaldeans had before plundered, captived, or cut off, not in the time of Jehoiakim and Jehoiachin, 2 Kin.24.2,13,16. but in Zedekiahs reign, when at several times, they spoyled, killed, and carried away of them, 2 Kin.25.4. See Esa.6.13. ch.10.16. & 52.28,30. Of the name Israel, see ch.5.15,20.

as a vine] For the word here used, is peculiar to the vine, Judg. 8. 2. Esa. 24.14. of gleanings of corn, another word is used, Lev.19.9. Ruth 2.2,3.

turn back thine hand as a grape-gatherer into the baskets] Heb. upon the baskets. Gods speech, say some, to Jeremy, bidding him pull off the clusters of grapes, from a vine in vision represented unto him, one after another, until he had plucke all, and bestowed them in a basket. Others, to the Chaldeans enjoyning them to spoyl, and kill, and carry away again and again, until they had made a clean riddance of them. The Jewish Doctors conceive them to be the words of the Chaldeans, inciting one another to spoyl and plunder, and massacre, or captive again and again, while any portions of regard, or matter worth the carrying away remained; to which purpose also, some here inferre the word saying; as chap. 4.31. See vers. 4. I concur with the middle, and conceive a great spoyl, and that redoubled, both of persons and prey to be intimated; though not an utter extirpation of either. See Esa. 6.13. cha. 5.10. & 52.16. 2 Kin.15. 12, 22.

V. 10. To whom shall I speak and give warning, that they may hear?] The Prophets complaint of an unteachable, and untractable disposition, that did generally possess this people. See the like, Isa.28.9.

To whom] As Esa.53.1.

give warning] Heb. protest; as ch.11.7.

that they may hear] To take warning and obey: as ch.7.23,24. Heb. and they will hear: as v.5. Josh.24.9. Mal.1.9.

behold their ear is uncircumcised, and they cannot hearken.] Or, that they cannot hearken; as before: That is, say some, they have a meer carnal and fleshly ear, that apprehendeth not, nor admitteth ought that is spiritual, 1 Cor. 2.14. Col. 2.13. Others, their minds and hearts are so possessed with sensuality, security, and wilful obstinacy, that they regard not ought that is delivered to them from God, though it never so nearly concern them, and their own welfare and good. See Luke 8.14. & 21.34. It hath reference, say some, to such as have ears stopped with ear-wax, and such like foily stuff that hinders their hearing; but rather to the foreskin, that in circumcision was taken away, (see chap.4.4.) and to such persons, as having a thick skin or film, growing over the organ of hearing, are thereby deprived of the use of that sense, implying, that they no more regarded any of Gods messages, than as if it were so with them, as with such it is. So Act.7.51. See Psal.58.4, 5. vers.16. ch.7.26. Zach.7.11. Act. 7.57.

the word of the Lord is unto them a reproach] They account it as matter, not of reproof, but of reproach; such as men cannot endure to hear. So rather, than as some, they make it matter of reproach to those that deliver it, chap.20.8.

they have no delight in it] They cannot brook it, they have no love nor liking at all to it. See chap.5.31. 2 Thess.2.10,11. 2 Tim. 4.3.

V. 11. Therefore I am full of the fury of the Lord, I am weary with holding in: I will pour it forth upon the children abroad, and upon the assembly of young men together: for even the husband with the wife shall be taken, the aged with him that is full of days.] The Prophet, in these words, professeth that, though he be much unwilling to denounce so dreadful and hideous a doom as God hath passed upon his people, such as all sorts, without respect of age, or sex, were to suffer in, yet the spirit of prophecy is so full in him, and powerful upon him, that he is no longer able to keep it in, but he must of necessity denounce it. See the like profession, though upon another occasion, ch. 20. 9.

Therefore] As ch.1.17. & 3.3. Heb. and; which I see not why it should not here be retained: for it is not so much, as I conceive, the confideration of ought with them, as the spirit of prophecy within him, that enforceth him to this work.

full of the fury] Or, wrath. Heb. fervour, or heat: that fire of Gods wrath, whereof ch.4.4.& 5.14. See ch.15.17.

I am weary with holding in:] Holding it in: as ch.4.4. forbearing to denounce it, like Elihu, Job 32.18,20. See ch.20.9.

I will pour it forth] The Prophets are said to do what they denounce to be done. So ch.1.10. & 15.1.

pour] A borrowed speech taken from shours of rain, that the heavens pour down, Psa.11.6. Isa.24.18. ch.7.20. & 10.25. Ezek.14.18. & 22.22. Rev.16.1.

pour it forth] A defect of the pronoun, as before. Heb. in pouring out, I will powr out; that is, I will surely, or without more ado, without further delay, powr it out: a defective form of speech: the like whereunto, see Isa.59.13. ch.14.5.

upon the children abroad] Or, in the streets; as the Chaldee renders it: and the word is used, 1 King. 20.35. whither children use to run out, and where they use to play together, Zach. 8.5. chap. 9.21. intimating that the Chaldeans should shew no mercy to any, not so much upon the assembly of young men together] The word here used signifies first a secret, Psa.25.14. Prov.11.13, then a secret place, Psa.31.20. then a secret meeting, a conventicle, ch.15.17. and lastly, any assembly, as well publike, as private, Psa.89.7. so here, upon the place where the young men meet to make merry together, ch.31.13. though it may probably be deemed to have a privy glance at their common meetings in bad houses for evil purposes, ch.5.7.

for even the husband with the wife shall be taken] Or, that the husband also with the wife may be taken: as the particle is used, Job 6.11. chap. 4.18. or, surely the husband also with the wife shall be taken: so is the particle rendred, Esay 49.18. & 60.9. or, as the Hebrew hath it, man with woman, that is, man and woman; as v.12. the one fex with the other: no regard being had more to the one than to the other. See Esa.3.16,24. & 32.9,10. shall be taken, that is, surprised, and so fall into the cruel enemies hands; as ch.8.9. Lam.4.20. and so is the word to be taken, Luk.17.34,36. though Interpreters go most there a contrary way.

the aged with him that is full of days] Heb. the old with the full of days, with the decrepit; with him that hath the one foot already in the grave. Of the phrase, see Esa.65.20. such as were, in the courle of nature, at the pits brink; such as, though they should have spared them, yet could not have lived long; as he of Jeremy, in regard of the famine in the city, ch.38.9. of the Chaldeans cruelty towards the aged, see 2 Chr.36.17. Esa.47.6. Lam.5.12,13.

V. 12. And their houses shall be turned unto others, with their fields, and wives, together.] A defect of the pronoun in the latter branch, but supplyed from the former; as Esa.49.22,23. Heb. and women; which may be of larger extent than wives onely, and may comprehend both concubines, and maid-servants also, as well as wives. The meaning is, that all should fall into the enemies hands. See this threatned long before, Deut.28.30. and again, chap.8.10.

to others] That is, to aliens, or strangers, as Prov.5.9.

wives] Heb. women; as ch.7.18. & 8.10.

for I will stretch out my hand upon the inhabitants of the land, saith the Lord.] See Esa.5.25.

upon] Or, against; as ch.15.6.

the land] Or, this land; as ch.5.50.

V. 13. For] Or, Because; as ch.3.25. A reason rendred of this severe denunciation: the generality of corruption among them, and among those especially who should have reproved and restrained it in others, and given example of better things. See v.6.

from the least of them, even unto the greatest of them, every one is given to covetousness:] Heb. from the little of them, and unto the great of them: a proverbial form of speech used frequently in Scripture, to express the generality of any practice, good or bad, among persons of all sorts and ranks, 2 Chr.34.30. Est.1.5,20. ch.31.34. & 42.8. little, for, least; and great, for, greatest; as Est.1.5,20. Jon.3.5. so good, for, best; and upright, for, uprightheft, Mic.7.4. for nouns, in Hebrew, have no forms of comparison; and in such collations therefore, they make use of the positive, Psal.138.8,9. Prov.22.1. Eccl.7.1.

every one is given to covetousness:] Heb. is coveting covetise; as Prov. 1.19. & 15.7. Hab.2.9. See the same charge, chap.8.10. and the like phrase, v.1.

and from the Prophet, even to the Priest, every one dealeth falsly.] Heb. from Prophet, and to Priest (as before; that is, both the Priests and the Prophets; as, from man, and unto beast, for, both man and beast, Exod.9. 25. ch.50.3.) each one is doing falsehood, as if that were their common trade: so Prov.10.4. & 11.18. See also the same manner of expression, Mat.24.38,39. to do falsehood, for, to deal falsly; as, not to do truth, for, not to deal truly, 1 Joh.1.6. See also, ch.8.10. As covetousness is charged upon the Princes and People; so falsehood, or false dealing upon the Priests and Prophets: not that these were free from the former vice, (see Esa.56.11. ch.5.31.) or those from the latter (for all distributive forms of speech, see on Esa.5.13.) But this was the more special corruption reigning among the false Prophets and the Priests; that by their false prophecies and flatteries, they deceived the people, and soothed them up in their sins. See ch.4.10. vers. 14.

V. 14. They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace, when there is no peace?] They do by their glosings and flatteries lull people asleep in security, bearing them in hand, that there is no such dangerous matter towards them, as Gods Prophets tell them, but that all shall be well, whatsoever they say. See the same, ch.8.11. See also, Ezek.13.4. Ezek.13.2.10.

They have healed also] Or, they heal also. Heb. And they heal, which may well be retained; for it is an instance, and a pregnant one, of the deceitful dealing charged upon them, v.13.

the hurt] Heb. bruise, or breach; as ch.4.20. & 10.19.

of the daughter of my people] See chap. 4.11. So Chap. 9.1.

slightly] Heb. upon a slight, or slighted thing: which some interpret slighting, or making nothing of it: So the Greek. Others, with some slight medicine: so is the particle used, Psal. 92.4. with words of falsehood, saith the Chaldee; with saying, peace, peace, which was a very light matter for them to say, so the Jewish Commenters: and it was indeed an easie thing to say so, as they said it; though not as our Saviour said the like, Matth.9.4, 5. Others, according to some slight thing, or according to the cure of some slight hurt; supplying cure from the word heal; hurt from the word bruise, or breach, in the foregoing branch. Whether way we take it, the sense is plain, that the Prophets and Priests, dealt with the people and the state, as unfaithfull Phyſicians, or Surgeons, with a fond and foolish patient, unwilling to apprehend how it is indeed with him; who, albeit his disease and wound be dangerous and deadly, yet make light of it, as if it were some slight matter, that might easily be help'd; apply onely some lenitive, or stupifying plaisters unto it, that may for a time give ease, or take away the sense of pain for the present, and bear him in hand, that he shall do well enough with it, he need not fear or misdoubt ought; or that ufe lenitives only, where the disease requires cauſticks and corrosives, and draw a skin over places full of corrupt matter, that may cause them to fester the more inwardly, unto the patients greater and further evil. See chap.2.14. Lam.2.14. Ezek.13.10. Howbeit, because the word here used, hath sometime a notion of wilfulness and contempt, 1 Sam.2.30. Hence the old Latine rendreth it, one while, with continuels, and unto continuity, another while: that which some expound; the former, unto the contempt and reproach of the true Prophets, whom thereby they brought into disgrace with the people, 1 Kin.22.24. ch.28.3,4,10,11. the latter, unto such contempt and reproach, as by their means should befal the people, while being deluded by them, and giving credit to them, they neglect those courses, whereby their peace with God might have been procured, and those evils prevented that Gods Prophets gave them warning of. See to this purpose also, Lam.2.14. But the words will not so eaſily admit this sense.

saying, peace, peace.] A proverbial form of speech, implying as much as that which we use to say, all shall be well: So, is it peace? for, is all well? 2 King.4.26. & 9.17,18. and, it shall be peace; for, all shall be well, 2 King.4.23.

and there is no peace] Or, when there is no peace; when as mean while there is no such matter, there is nothing well, but all full of deadly danger, ch.4.10. Heb. and, (for, when; as Esa.33. & 37.9,36.) peace is not, as 2 Chr.15.5. Esa.57.21. So Ezek.13.10.

V. 15. Were they at all ashamed, when they had committed abominations? nay, they were not ashamed, neither could they blush.] Their sin is further aggravated by their shamelesnes in it, as ch. 3.3. some read the words, Did they make them ashamed? as if the meaning were, did they labour to bring the people to a sight of their abominable courses, and to work them to shame and sorrow for them? and so the word indeed, in this form and notion is used, 2 Sam. 19.6. but not, that I find elſe-where; in this Prophet conſtantly the former way, ch.10.14. & 46.24. & 48.1,20. & 50.2. & 51.17. So here, the Chaldee, Greek, and Latine take it, and the words following confirm it. See the same paſſage again, ch 8.12.

when they had committed abomination] That is, idolatry, say some, referring it to the people; but as I conceive rather such abominable things, as God saw, and complains of in the Prophets, ch.5.30,31. & 23.14.

not at all ashamed] Heb. in being ashamed, ashamed: or, in being ashamed-shame, ab. fr. d, which commeth nearer to our English; of which manner of gemination, See Esa.24.16. ch.31.

neither could they blush] Heb. they knew not to blush; as Esa.29.12. I neither could they blush] Heb. they knew not to blush; as Esa.29.12. I know not to read, for, I cannot read: they know not satiety; for, they cannot be satisfied, Esa.56.11. and Zeph. 3.5. the wicked have not shame: for though the latter word here uſed, be scarce found elſewhere, save in the transitive sense; that which seemeth to have given occaſion of that diverſie verſion; yet the former word, in this latter branch, is never so uſed, and that this latter is not to be so here taken, appeareth by the place parallel to this, ch.8.12. where it is exhibited in a paſſive form, that admitteth no such ambiguity; and indeed, none were more shameleſs than their falſe Prophets.

therefore shall they fall, among them that fall.] That is, be slain, among those that be slain; and to whom they now promiſe safety; to fall, for, to be slain, as Psa.63.10. Luk.21.24.

at the time that I visit them, they shall be cast down, saith the Lord.] Heb. in the time, wherein I visit them, (See v.6. a defect of the relative, as ch.5.17,24.) they shall by stumbling be made to fall, or, be elevated, as ch.5.17,24.) they shall by stumbling be made to fall, or, be thrown down; as if they had stumbled, and fallen flat to the ground: for that is the words native and proper notion, Psal.27.2. Esa.31.3. ch.50.32. Dan.11.19.

V. 16. Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways and see and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein; and ye shall find rest for your ſouls.] God proceedeth here by the Prophet, to convince this people of their obſtinacy; and turneth his ſpeech now from the falſe Prophets that seduced them, unto those that were seduced by them: relating both what advice he had from time to time given them, and how they had ſtill refuſed to hearken thereunto. And in this verſe, he seemeth to meet with an objection that the people might make; alleaging for themſelves, that they went that way, that their Prieſts and Prophets directed them unto, and led them in: To which the Lord answereth, that he had from time to time admonish: To which the Lord answereth, that he had from time to time admonished them to do as travellers are wont to do, when they are at a loſs, or in some doubt of their way; seeing divers ways or paths before them, and know not which of them leadeth unto the place that they are bound for, they are careful to make inquiry of ſuch as are able aright to enform them, which is the way that leadeth to ſuch a place: and ſo ſhould they do, if they made doubt of the way they were in, or of thoſe divers ways, that they were invited unto by thoſe Prophets, that ſpake unto them in the name of the Lord; as both the true Prophets of God, and the falſe Prophets alſo did; they ſhould make a ſtand, and enter into a due conſideration concerning either, whether of them were the way, that might conduce to their good, and welfare; and to help and further themſelves in this inquiry, ſhould have recourſe to Gods oracles, and the ſacred records of the former ages, and times therein regiſtred; and conſider what way it was, that is therein commended to them, and hath ever proved ſucceſsful and advantageous to thoſe that walked in it; and that betaking themſelves unto that, and walking in it, whatſoever any might ſuggeſt, or enform them to the contrary, they ſhould be ſure to do well, as thoſe before them had done, ſo Deut. 32. 7. Eſay 8. 20. Mal. 4. 4. Luke 16. 29. 1 Theſſ. 5. 21. 1 John 4. 1. And this I take to be the genuine, both drift and ſenſe of this place.

ſtand in the ways] Or, on the ways: as travellers, when at a ſtand, uncertain which way to take, Ezek.21.19,22.

and ſee] Or, conſider: As Chap.2.19.

ask for the old paths] Enquire after them: after thoſe that God by Moſes preſcribed you, ſay ſome; after thoſe that your anceſtours, Abraham, Iſaak, and Jacob, and other godly after them walked in, ſay others; or, enquire concerning them: as the particle is uſed, Eſa.56.4. ch.14.10. Heb. concerning the pathes of antiquity; as, the days of antiquity, Deu.32.7. that is, the times that men of former ages lived in, and the courſes that men of former ages took and walked in.

where is the good way] Or, which of them is the good way, or, the beſt way: good, for, beſt; as, great, for, greateſt; little, for, leaſt, v.13. for other degrees of compariſon, the Hebrew have not. Heb. where the good way is: the pronoun demonſtrative, for the verb ſubſtantive; as Pſa.25.12. Eſay 66.1. They much miſtake the text who hence would prove, that the old way is the beſt way; to which purpoſe, many both Papiſts and Proteſtants abuſe it: for the Prophet doth not ſay, nor God by the Prophet, that the oldeſt way is the beſt, but willeth them to enquire, which of thoſe of former ages proved the beſt unto thoſe that walked in it: So Moſes, Deut.4.3,4. and Deborah, Jude 5. 6, 8. and Azariah, 2 Chr. 15, 2, 6. and this our Prophet, chap.22. 15, 17.

and yee ſhall find reſt to your ſouls] That is, ſay ſome, your minds ſhall then be ſetled, ye ſhall not hang in ſuſpence, wavering between two ways; as thoſe in Eliahs time, 1 King. 18. 21. or, rather, ye ſhall find freedom from that reſtleſs condition, ye now remain in, Eſa.57. 20. from thoſe fears and diſtractions, and ſuch evils and troubles, as by the courſes ye now take, ye procure to your ſelves, having aſſurance of protection and ſafety from God. See Deut. 33.12,29. Pſal. 95. 11. Eſay 28.12. Matt.11.29. your ſouls, for, your ſelves, as Eſay 55. 2, 3.

but they ſaid, we will not walk therein] Albeit, they had it by my Prophets ſo evidently ſhewed them, that the way which they directed them unto, and called upon them to take, was the only good, and ſafe, and advantagious way, and had from time to time ſo proved unto thoſe that walked conſtantly in it, that they could not but be cleerly in conſcience convinced of it; yet out of a ſelf-willed obſtinacy, they refuſe to turn to it, and walk in it. See chap.2.25. & 18.11,12. Heb. And they ſaid; and, for, but; as chap. 5.3. or, as ſome read the place, inſerting the words, when I ſay (as Pſa.27.8.) ſtand on the ways, and ſee & enquire which way of former times was the beſt, & walk therin; they ſay, We will not walk in it. See the like ſyntax, ch.2.25. Eſay 30. 20. & 35.4.

walk therein] Or, in it: ſupplyed, as Deu.8.12. Eſay 35.9.

V. 17. Alſo I ſet Watch-men over you, ſaying, Hearken to the ſound of the trumpet; but they ſaid; We will not hearken.] Or, as ſome render it, Again, he ſaith, I have ſet Watch-men over you, hearken ye therefore to the ſound of the trumpet; but they ſaid, We will not hearken. Or, And when I ſet Watch-men over you, ſaying, Hearken to the ſound of the trumpet; they ſay, We will not hearken; as before, v.16. So Eſa.37.9,36.& 44.4. & 53.2.

watch-men] Gods Miniſters and Meſſengers, ſet over them, to watch for their welfare, and to warn them of approaching evils, that they may be prevented. See ch.1.10. v.27. Eſa.56.10. Ezek.3.17. & 33. 7. Heb.13.17.

over you] Or, over them, becauſe they followeth: as Job 18.4. ch.2. 6,7. & 7.26.

ſaying] Inſerted; as Pſal.105.15. Job 8.18. Act.7.32.

hearken to the ſound of the trumpet] The voice of Gods Miniſters, Iſa.58.1. giving warning of approaching evils, Ezek.33.2,6. an alluſion to the blowing of the trumpet, mentioned ch.4.5. v.1.

they ſaid] Or, they ſay; as v.16. a paſſage from perſon to perſon: as Iſa.1.29. ch.5.19.

we will not hearken] To it; as, walk in it, v. 16. See the like peremptory anſwers, ch.22. 21. & 44.16.

V. 18. Therefore hear ye, O nations; and know, O congregation, what is among them.] In theſe words, and the next enſuing, God being about further to lay forth this peoples perverſe, and pertinacious carriages, together with the penalties that for the ſame ſhould deſervedly befal them, taketh all the world to witneſs, even the ſenſeleſs creatures themſelves among the reſt, of the obſtinacy of his people, and the equity of his dealing with them; turning his ſpeech unto others, becauſe they would not hear him. See the like, Eſay 1.2.

hear ye nations] That ye may not wonder, that I ſhould proceed in this manner with that people, whom I had formerly taken into my protection, and by ſolemn covenant and promiſes ſo engaged my ſelf unto. See Lam.4.12.

know] Or, take notice: as ch.2.19. & 3.13. Iſa.33.13.

O congregation] Of Iſrael, ſay ſome: of any forrein people, as others rather: as Pſal.7.7.

what is among them] Or, how it is with them; what an heighth of diſobedience and rebellion they are grown to, that ye may underſtand how juſt cauſe I have to proceed thus againſt them; though ſome render it, as of the evils to be inflicted upon them, what ſhall befal them: but the words better admit the former.

V. 19. Hear, O earth] That which this people will not hear. So Iſa. 1.2. ch.22.19. for I ſuppoſe they are wide, who by the earth, here, underſtand mankind: as Pſal.98.9.

behold, I will bring evil upon this people, even the fruit of their thoughts] Or, Behold, (be ye as certainly aſſured of it, as if you ſaw it already done: as Iſa.7.14. & 65.27.) I am bringing evil upon this people, (as ch.11.11. & 19.3. See ch.4.6.) even (Heb. and; as v.1.) the fruit of their thoughts, or, counſels, or, contrivements. See Iſa. 55.7. & 59. 7. chap.4.14. the fruit of them, that, ſay ſome, that ſhall be proportionable to them, Pſal.28.4. or that rather, which by thoſe courſes and contrivances, they have procured to themſelves, Prov.1.31. for that ſeems too nice, which one of the Jewiſh Doctors ſuggeſteth; that he ſaith not their works, but, their thoughts: thoſe, to wit, by which they thought, that God ſaw not their works, Pſal. 94. 7. Eſay 29. 15.

becauſe they have not hearkened unto my words,] Heb. upon, for, unto; as verſ. 10. unto my meſſages brought to them by my Prophets, and advices by them from me given them, ver.16,17. Prov.1. 24, 25.

nor my law, but have rejected it.] Or, and as for my law, they have even, (as before) or, alſo, (as ch.1.3.) rejected it. So Eſay 5.24. chap.8.9.

V. 20. To what purpoſe cometh there to me incenſe from Sheba, and the ſweet cane from a far country? your burnt-offerings are not acceptable, nor your ſacrifices ſweet unto me.] Becauſe this people might object, that they had not left God; for they ſerved him ſtill; they frequented his Sanctuary with odors and offerings: God telleth them, that their ſervices were none of them pleaſing to him; ſo long as their lives and courſes otherwiſe were ſuch as he had before ſhewed. See the like, Iſa.1.11,15. & 66.3. ch.7.21, 26. Ezek.20.39. Amos 5.21. Mic.6.6,10.

To what purpoſe cometh there to me incenſe from Sheba, and the ſweet cane from a far country?] The words thus rendred, ſound, as if ſome ſuch preſents were from remote parts brought to Gods Temple; as Pſal. 68. 29, 31. Eſay 60. 6, 7. Zeph. 3. 10. whereas no ſuch thing is intended; and the words therefore would rather thus be rendred, To what purpoſe unto me (that is, ſo far as concerneth me) is incenſe, that cometh from Sheba, or ſweet cane that cometh from far. See Eſay 1. 11.

incenſe] Such as you bring to burn before me. See Eſa.1.13.

cometh there] Or, that cometh; a defect of the relative: as v.15.

and the ſweet cane] Or, or (as ch.2.18. & 5.12.) ſweet cane. Heb. cane the good, or, that is good; or, cane of the beſt. See verſ.13,16. and that I take to be, as the native notion of the word; ſo the genuine ſenſe of it in this place: of ſuch cane, ſee Eſa.43.24. & Ezek. 27.19. where it is rendred, calamus.

from a far country] Far fetcht, becauſe their own land afforded it not: the word fetched, or, that cometh, ſupplyed from the former branch; as Gen.1.16,30. yet we need not with Jerome, and ſome others, travel ſo far as India to fetch it. Strabo telleth us, that the Sabeans had ſtore of ſuch ſpices, lib. 16. and that might very well be termed a far country, Mat.12.42.

your burnt-offerings are not acceptable] Heb. to well-liking, or, acceptance: as Iſa.56.7. & 60.7. See Iſa.1.11. ch.7.21.

nor your ſacrifices ſweet unto me] Heb. and your ſacrifices are not ſweet, or, delightful, to me: as Prov.13.19. So Hoſ.9.4.

V. 21. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord, Behold, I will lay ſtumbling blocks before this people] Heb. Behold, I am giving, or, laying, (as ch.21.5. Lev. 19.14.) ſtumblements (if we might ſo ſpeak; any thing a man may ſtumble at. See Iſa.57.14.) unto this people: as, come unto them, for, come before them, Iſa.1.23. I will bring thoſe things upon them, that ſhall be means of ruine and miſchief to them. So Ezek. 3. 20. & 7. 19. Some ſuppoſe an alluſion in the term to caltrops, and other like warlike engines, that are wont to be caſt in the way to maim foot or horſe, and cauſe them to fall: what is by them here intimated, ſee verſ. 22.

and the fathers and the ſons together ſhall fall upon them] Or, ſhall ſtumble and fall by them. See on v.15. Iſa.3.8. they ſhall miſcarry promiſcuouſly one with another, v.11. ch.13.14. Howbeit, the Rabbine ſeems to ſtretch it too far, who ſo underſtandeth it, as if it were meant, that they ſhould tell or give warning of it, ſuch as did ſee that which they ſhould or might ſtumble at, one to another.

the neighbour and his friend ſhall periſh.] They ſhall ſo fall, that they ſhall ſhall not be able to recover, or get up again; but ſhall periſh and miſcarry, Eſa.8.14,15.

V. 22. Thus ſaith the Lord, Behold, a people cometh from the North-country; and a great Nation ſhall be raiſed from the ſides of the earth.] Or, Behold a people coming: as if he ſaw them on their march. So ch. 4. 16. The Chaldeans forces by which they ſhould fall and miſcarry, verſ. 21.

from the North] As ch.1.15. & 10.22. & 25.9.

ſhall be raiſed up] As a ſtorm is raiſed, ch.25.32. and it is God himſelf that raiſeth it: as the like, Eſa.13.17. ch. 50.9. & 51. 1. Ezek. 23.22. See ch.1.15.

from the ſides of the earth] As far as the King of Babylons dominions reach, ch.1.15. See the like terms, ch.50.41. and this threatned, Deut.28.49.

V. 23. They ſhall lay hold on bow and ſpear:] They ſhall be abundantly furniſhed with weapons to annoy and deſtroy with, both afar off, and at hand. See the like, ch.50.42. So Pſa.35.2,3. Yet by ſpear, ſome underſtand here the ſtaff of the enſign, or ſtandard: as Joſh. 8. 18, 26. But the joyning of bow and it together, carryeth it rather the former and more frequent way.

they are cruel, and have no mercy] Heb. cruel is he; (the pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive, as ch.5.15,16.) cruel are they each of them: as afterward, and they will not pity, ch.21.7. See the like, Eſay 13.17, 18. ch.50.42. and the thing fulfilled, 2 Chr.36.17. as had been before threatned, Deut.28.50.

their voice roareth like the ſea] See Eſa.5.30.

and they ride on horſes,] Heb. on horſes ſhall they ride; not as thoſe, to eſcape by flight, Eſa.30.16. but as ready to take the field, and well fitted for fight. So ch.50.42.

ſet in array as a man for war,] That is, as ſome, a people, or nation, (from v.22.) ſet in array as a man: the whole nation as one man, as Judg. 20. 8. or, ſet every one in array, as a man for war, or, for battel. So chap. 50. 42. as if he ſaw them now not on their march, but in the field, and place of fight, ready to joyn battel, or make ſome aſſault.

againſt thee, O Daughter of Zion] As, O daughter of Babylon, cha. 50. 42. See Eſa.1.8.

V. 24. We have heard the fame thereof, our hands wax feeble; anguiſh hath taken hold of us, and pain as of a woman in travel.] At the very firſt report of their approach, all will be diſmayed, and quite out of heart. See chap.4.9,31. & 13.21.

V. 25. Go not out into the field, nor walk by the way; for the ſword of the enemy, and fear is on every ſide.] The ſpeeches of them that in thoſe times ſhould be one to another.

Go not out into the field] Keep within the fenced cities and places of faſtneſs, ch.4.5,6. & 8. 14.

nor walk by the way] Either ſtir not out at all; or, ſhun the common roads, and betake you to by-ways, as people are wont to do, when the paſſages are dangerous, Judg.5.6. Iſa.33.17.

for the ſword of the enemy, and fear is on every ſide.] Or, as ſome, the ſword of the enemy is there; and fear on every ſide: or, for through, (or, by reaſon of, the particle wanting; as Pſal. 17. 13,14. & 44.2.) the ſword of the enemy, (Lam.5.9.) there is fear on every ſide: that which ſeems to have been a proverbial form of ſpeech in frequent uſe among them, Pſal.31.13. ch.20.3,10. & 47.5. & 49.29.

V. 26. O daughter of my people] As ch.4.11. v. 14.

gird thee with ſackcloth,] The common garb of mourners, ch.4.8. & 25. 34.

and wallow thy ſelf in aſhes:] As on the moſt doleful occaſions they were wont to do, Mic.1.10.

make thee mourning, as for an onely ſon] Heb. mourning of an onely one make thee: a defect of the ſubſtantive; as Prov.4.3. See the like expreſſions, Amos 8.10. Zach.12.10.

moſt bitter lamentation.] Heb. lamentation of bitterneſſes; as, weeping of bitterneſſes, ch.31.15. Of the former word, ſee ch. 4.8. The Prophet ſo ſpeaks, as if he could find no terms ſufficient to deſcribe ſuch a lamentation, as the grievouſneſs of their calamities might be deemed to deſerve. See chap. 9. 17, 18. for theſe plurals are wont much to exaggerate. See Iſa.58.9. ch.5.17. & 14.1.

for the ſpoiler ſhall ſuddenly come upon us.] Or, is ſuddenly come upon us; Nebuchadnezzar with his forces, chap. 48. 8. See chap. 4. 20.

V. 27. I have ſet thee for a tower, and a fortreſs among my people, that thou maiſt know, and try their way.] Or, To try have I ſet thee among my people as a fortreſs. Or, which I take to be the genuine interpretation, A fortified watch-tower have I made thee among my people. Gods ſpeech to the Prophet; I the Lord have appointed thee my Prophet, (ſufficiently ſupported and fenced, that thou mayſt not fear ought, ch.1.18. & 15.20.) to be as a ſentinel ſtanding on a watch-tower, Iſa.21.5,8. Hab.2.1. to eſpy, and deſcry, the diſpoſitions, courſes, and carriages of this people.

I have ſet thee] Heb. given thee; as ch.1.5. Ezek.3.17.

for a tower] Or, as ſome, to try; taking it for a verb; as Zach. 13. 9. but the moſt otherwiſe: the word properly ſignifies a watch-tower, whereupon ſentinel is kept, to deſcry and diſcover the approach of ought that may prove prejudicial. See Iſa. 23. 13. and 32. 14.

and a fortreſs] Heb. a fence, or fortification; that is, as ſome Interpreters not amiſs ſupply from the former words, a tower of fence or fortification, that is, a fenced, or fortified tower: as, a city of fence or fortification, for, a fenced, or fortified city; as Pſa. 108.11. ch.1.18. & 5.17.

that thou mayſt know, and try their way.] To ſearch and ſift them, and to try them as a Founder doth metal, (for thereof alſo is the word uſed, Job 23.10. Pſa.66.10.) that thou mayſt by diligent obſervation of them, and their courſes, deſcry and take notice of (as v.18.) their affections and diſpoſitions, be able to diſtinguiſh between the good and bad, and to work, if it may be, the wickedneſs of the wicked out of them, ch. 15. 19. Heb. and thou ſhalt know, and try, or ſearch out, their way, for, that thou mayſt ſo do; as Joſh.24.9. Mal.1.9. Know and try, for, by trying know: as, ſearch and try, for, by ſearching try, Lam.3. 40. make bald and poll, for, by polling make bald, Mic.1.16. live and remain, for, remain alive, 1 Theſſ.4.17.

V. 28. They are all grievous revolters] The Prophets anſwer returned unto God, as rendring an account of the charge impoſed on him, containing an exact cenſure of them, upon his ſearch and ſurvey. There is a grievous defection, and obſtinacy therein, in the generality of them. Heb. They are all (as Iſa.60.21.) revolters of revolters, or refractary ones, that is, grievous revolters, or extreamly refractary: as, a ſervant of ſervants, for, a moſt baſe ſlave, Gen.9.25. and wickedneſs of wickedneſs, for, extream wickedneſs, Hoſ.10.15. See chap.5. 3,23. Some of the Jewiſh Doctors following the Chaldee, as alſo the old Latine, render it, Princes of revolters; and expound it, of great ones giving evil examples to the people, and making uſe of them, as inſtruments for the practice of wickedneſs, applying the next words to wrongful informations: but the initial letter is diverſe (though in ſound much the ſame, and in ſome words promiſcuouſly uſed) nor will the text, without needleſs ſtraining, bear it.

walking with ſlanders] Heb. walkers of detraction. So ch. 9.5. ſuch as make a trade of it, forbidden, Lev.19.16.

they are braſs and iron:] Baſe metal, droſſie matter; not any metal of price, gold or ſilver, to be found in them, which yet with the oar of thoſe baſer metals, is ſometime, in ſome quantity, found mixed. See Iſa.1.21. Ezek.22.18.

they are all corrupters] Or, corrupt: both corrupt themſelves and corrupting one another, ſee Iſa.1.4.

V. 29. The bellows are burnt, the lead is conſumed off the fire, the founder melteth in vain, for the wicked are not plucked away.] All the labour and pains that hath been taken by God and his Prophets, for the refining and reforming of them, is loſt; it is but labour in vain, they are no whit the better for it, Iſa.49.4. ch.2 30.

The bellows are burnt] The Prophet proſecuteth the ſimilitude taken from the practice of metaliſts, in trying and melting of their oar. By the bellows, ſome underſtand Gods chaſtiſements; ſome, his Spirit; neither well fitting here. Others, the Prophets tongue and throat, according to that, Pſal. 22. 15. & 69. 3. I ſhould rather ſay their lungs, not unlike bellows, and with much ſpeech and clamour waſted. But unto ſuch particularities, in allegories, we need not deſcend.

the lead is conſumed off the fire] Or, as ſome, the tin (ſo termed, becauſe uſed for ſeparation of metals, as quickſilver in theſe times, Iſa.1. 25.) is ſpent, as Gen. 47. 18. but lead and tin are diſtinguiſhed, Ezek. 22. 20. and the Jewiſh Commenters tell us, that lead was alſo in their times made uſe of, in fining of ſilver, to melt it the more eaſily, and with leaſt loſs, or waſte. Howbeit, an Interpreter of prime note, readeth the text thus, The bellows are burnt with the fire: the whole is lead: there is nothing but droſſie matter that, upon melting, appeareth: and this ſhould I encline to, were there any inſtance of the like.

the founder melteth in vain;] Heb. in vain melting melteth he; or, trying trieth he: take he never ſo much pains in melting and trying, though he do it never ſo diligently and exquiſitely, all is to no purpoſe. See the like, Pſa. 58. 5. the word founder is not in the text, but is included in the verb, and from it ſupplyed; as Gen.50.26. they embalmed him; that is, the embalmers embalmed him; as it is more fully there, v. 2.

for the wicked are not plucked away.] Or, for their wickedneſſes Heb. and (as chap.3.24. & 5.2.) evil, or evils, (evil things, as Pſal.78.49.) will not, or cannot, (as chap.2.23.) be removed, or withdrawn, (as the word is rendred, Joſh.8.16. Judg.20.32.) from them; a double defect of the pronoun, both poſitive, and poſſeſsive, as v.3,12. Gen.43. 24. Iſa.13.8,15.

V. 30. Reprobate ſilver ſhall men call them:] Or, Refuſe, or Rejected ſilver (ſuch as is nothing but refuſe, or droſs; or ſuch as is refuſed, and will not paſs in payment; oppoſed to currant coyn, ſuch as will paſs without refuſal, Gen.23.16. and it agreeth well with the Greek word, that ſignifieth counterfeit, or diſallowed, 2 Cor.13. 5,6. where the miſ-tranſlating of it hath ſtumbled many) ſhall they be called. Heb. ſhall they call them; as Mal.1.4. for men, is not in the text. See Iſa.1.22. Prov.20.23. Lam.3.45. So Pſa.15.4. a vile man is in his ſight as refuſe.

for the Lord hath rejected them.] Lam.5.22. Hoſ.9.17. becauſe they have rejected him, and his word, Iſa. 5. 24. verſ. 19. chap. 8. 9. See chap. 2. 37.

CHAP. VII.

Vers. 1. THE word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying.] At this Chapter beginneth a new Sermon or Prophecy, carryed on to the end of Chapter 9. In this the Prophet laboureth to beat them off from their vain confidence in the Temple and services therein performed, vers. 2, 12. by setting before them the example of Shiloh, where the Tabernacle sometime was, vers. 13, 15. by shewing what account God made of their sacrifices, being joyned with wilfull disobedience, vers. 21, 28. and for their continued idolatries, threatneth them with utter destruction unavoidable, vers. 16, 20. and that so great, that they would want room to bury their corpses, vers. 29, 34. Of the words of this verse, see on chap. 1.2.

V. 2. Stand in the gate of the Lords house, and proclaim there this word, and say, Hear the word of the Lord, all ye of Judah, that enter in at these gates, to worship the Lord.] in the gate] Or, in the porch, or at the entry: that which opened into the great court, where the people used to meet. See ch. 26. 2,10. & 36.10.

Stand] Not sit; for they sate there to hear causes, cha.26.10. they stood to preach, or deliver prophecies, ch.26.2.

the Lords house] The Temple, ch.26.5. v.4,10.

proclaim there] There was he the rather to deliver this message, because to refel the fond conceit, that they had of that place, as a sufficient shelter and safeguard for them, though they were never so loose and licentious in their lives, v. 8,9.

this word] Or, this matter: as 1 Sam.3.17. ch.5.14.

Hear the word of the Lord] As ch.2.4.

all ye of Judah] Heb. all Judah: for out of all parts they used to resort thither, so long as the Temple stood, Psal.84.7. & 122.4. and it may be, that this prophecy was delivered at one of those solemn feasts, wherein all the males of the land in general were to meet there, Exod.23.14,17.

at these gates] To go into the great court, the peoples court, distinguished from the Priests court, 2 Chr.4.9. See ch.36.10.

V. 3. Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel,] As Isa.1.24. So v.21. ch.9.15.

Amend your ways, and your doings, and I will make you to dwell in this place] Heb. Make good your ways. So vers.5. chap. 18.11. & 26.13.

make you to dwel] Continue your dwelling; as, make to live, for, continue in life, Exod.1.17.

in this place.] Not in the Temple, but in the land that ye now possess, Psal.37.3. v.7. so Isa.36.10.

V. 4. Trust ye not in lying words, saying, The Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord are these.] Heb. Trust not to you (an elegant redundancy, very frequent in Scripture, see chap.4. 12. & 5.5.) in words, or matters, (as vers. 2.22.) of falshood; as chap. 14.14. & 23.26. in such thoughts and conceits, as will fail you, and frustrate your expectations, ver. 8. chap. 4.14. & 29.31. Trust not to the Temple, and the services there performed, as if these things could secure you. See the like, chap.18.18. Mic.3.11. 1 Cor. 10.1,5.

the Temple of the Lord are these.] Or, These are the Lords palaces; as Psal. 11.4. and so the word properly signifieth, Psal. 45.15. Isa. 39. 7. Not this people, (as some fondly would have it) are Gods Temple, 1 Cor. 3.16, 17. & 6.19. but these buildings, which with the finger he seemed to point to; as they, Matt. 24.1, 2. see chap.10.11. as if he had said, These thoughts you have in your hearts, and these, or the like words oft in your mouthes. These buildings, the two Courts, the House, and the Oracle, were by Solomon built, at Gods appointment, for his place of constant and continual residence, which he will therefore hold and uphold for ever, Psal. 132.14. 2 Chr.33.7,8. the pronoun positive, for the verb substantive; as chap. 6.23, 28. This three-fold repetition, though it have an emphasis in it, as well as that, Isaiah 6.3. & chap. 22.29. yet I suppose not so much to import the excellency of the Temple, or estimation of it with God, as the frequency of these terms in the mouthes of the people: and much less to aym at any curious distribution of it into the house, the courts, and the outer edifices about either, as some would have it: or that the people themselves should by this three-fold repetition have some reference to the three times of their solemn appearance yearly in that place, Exod. 23.14, 17. as the Chaldee expresseth it.

V. 5. For if ye thorowly amend your ways, and your doings; if ye thorowly execute judgment between a man and his neighbour;] A promise of continuance, upon condition of reformation, in matter as well of justice and equity, as of piety and godliness.

thorowly amend] Or, surely, or seriously amend. Heb. making good make good; as vers. 3.

thorowly execute] Or, sedulously exercise. Heb. doing do judgment, or right, See ch.5.1. & 22.4. between a man and his neighbour] That is, between man and man; as ch. 22.8. Heb. between a man and between his neighbor; as, between the light, and between the darkness, Gen.1.4,18. a redundancy frequent in Hebrew. So Joh.10.18. I have power to lay down my life, and I have power to take it up again; that is, I have power, having laid down my life, to take it up again.

V. 6. If ye oppress not the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow] Or, Oppress not any stranger, orphan, or widow; carrying it on with the former, v.5. and, for, or; as Exod.21.15. persons that God hath taken more specially into his protection, and given a special charge of, Exo. 22.21,24. Deu.10.18. & 27.19.

and shed not innocent bloud in this place] Or, not shed innocent bloud; the guilt whereof, how grievous, see 2 Kin. 24.4. in this place; in Jerusalem, or the land ye live in; as v.3. see Num.35.31,33.

neither walk after other gods to your hurt] Other gods; as ch.1.17. to your hurt, or, to your own hurt; as chap.5.19. and so, their own faces, v.19. Heb. to evil to you; that is, to your own evil: not to any evil, or hurt, that shall accrue to me by it, but all to your selves. See v.19. God is neither the better for mans obedience, nor the worse for mans wickedness: neither doth his goodness, or badness, reach unto God, Psa.16.2. Job 22.2,3. & 35.5,8.

V. 7. Then will I cause you to dwell in this place] As v.3. Heb. And; as ch.4.1,2.

in the land that I gave unto your fathers for ever and ever.] Heb. to from of old, and for ever; which some, so rendring, refer it unto gave, and expound it of the time past from Joshuah's days, by whom God put them at first in possession of it, wherein they had continued unto that time: Or, as others rather, from age unto age; referring it, as our Version doth, unto the word dwell, and understanding it of continuance for time to come, from age to age, in the land, upon performance of the condition here propounded. So ch.25.5. The Jewish Criticks observe well a redundancy of the former to here, as elsewhere, Deut.9.7. Judg.19.30. ch.31.34. and so vers.25.

V. 8. Behold] Consider and think seriously of it; as vers. 6,19.

ye trust in lying words that cannot profit.] Heb. ye are trusting to you (such a redundancy, as Chap. 4.12. & 11.17. Ezek.37.11.) in words of falshood (as vers. 4.) to not profit, or no profit; as Esay 44.10. This some understand of the false Prophets lies and flatteries, which they were too much taken with, and trusted unto, chap. 5.31. & 6.13, 14. & 23.26. & 28.15. & 29.31. but it seemeth rather to have reference to what went before, vers. 4. ye trust in vain, to no purpose, on that which will not avail you, nor stand you in any stead.

V. 9. Will ye steal, murther, and commit adultery, and swear falsly, and burn incense unto Baal, and walk after other gods whom ye know not?] Will ye live in continual practice of iniquity, immanity, impurity, and impiety? Or, when as ye steal, &c. Heb. stealing ye steal: and so constantly in all the rest; for they are all infinitives: Of the phrase of speech, see on Esay 59.13. and it is very emphatical; when as ye make a common practice of these things. The like syntax, see chap. 2.20. & 5.7.

swear falsly] Heb. swear to falshood; as ch.5.2.

walk after other gods] Vers.6. ch.11.10. & 13.10.

which ye know not] Or, which ye have not known; which ye have not formerly had any notice of, nor have been acquainted with in former times, Deut.28.61. called therefore new gods, Judg.5.8. Others, of whom ye have had no such proof or experience, as of me ye have had: and that followeth well from the former; but the former seems the first, proper, and genuine sense. See Isaiah 43.10.

V. 10. And come and stand before me in this house which is called by my name] Or, according to the syntax before hinted; When as ye steal, &c. --- Will ye come and stand before me in this house, &c. See the like construction, Isa.30.20. and 35.4. and 37.9.

come] Repair to my Sanctuary. See Ezek.23.38,39.

stand before me] After the manner of servants, attending upon me, as your Lord. See 1 Kin.10.8. and 17.1. Prov.22.29.

in this house] The Temple, vers.2,4.

which is called by my name] That beareth my name, is called and accounted my house. Heb. which my name is called upon it; or, Whereupon my name is called. So vers.11, 14, 30. ch.32.34.

and say, We are delivered to do all these abominations?] We are delivered: or, as some render it, We shall be delivered to do all these abominable things; that is, say they, That we may return again, having by sacrifices, and other external rites, expiated the guilt of our former excesses, to commit and practise them afresh as freely as ever; as the common sort of people, in many Popish places, are reported to use it as a by-word; We must sin to be shriven, and shriven to sin. Or, as others, Notwithstanding that we have committed such things, yet shall we be safe, and do well enough for all that. See Mal. 3.15. But neither will the words bear the latter; nor doth the former seem to express the right sense of the place: which the pauses, in the original, being well observed, will lead us to: the middle pause is at, We are delivered: and there endeth their speech: the words following are the Prophets, uttered in the person of God; not theirs. So the meaning is, Will ye when ye have robbed, and killed; and committed adultery, and perjury, and idolatry, come and present your selves before me in mine house, and say, We are delivered; that is, discharged of the guilt of these our sins (so is the word used, Psal. 39.8. & 51.14.) that ye may return to the practice of these vile courses afresh? For

I can not assent to that learned late Writer, who would remove here the interrogative out of his wonted and constant office, and make it a note, either of asseveration, or of demonstration, both here, and elsewhere, Gen.27.36. 1 Sam.2.27. 2 Sam. 23.19. 1 King.16.31. Prov.24.28. in most of which places, the interrogative is generally admitted, and doth right well.

V. 11. Is this house, which is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes?] Do ye account my house, my palace, to be an hole, or an hold, for thieves and robbers, to shroud and shelter themselves in? Matt.21.13. Mark 11.17. Luke 19.46. and that by performance of some formalities there, ye are not onely discharged of the guilt of your former sins, but have liberty to sin afresh? and so make me both a patron of your base and abominable courses, and a pander also thereunto? whereas I abhor and abominate both your wicked ways, and these your thoughts; and all your sacrifices and services the rather for them. See Prov.15.8,9,26. & 21.27. Isaiah 61.8.

a den] An allusion to such dens and caves, where either wild beasts, or men mischievously minded, are wont to lye in wait to seize upon passengers; and whereunto they repair with their prey, and their spoyl, Psal.10.8,9. Nah.2.12.

robbers] The word signifieth properly a burglar, one that breaketh open houses, Ezek.7.22. but it is more generally used for persons that spoyl and plunder, Dan.11.14. and for beasts that live by spoyl and prey, Isa.35.9.

in your eyes] Heb. is it in your eyes; that is, do ye so account it? or think ye that I can endure to have my house so esteemed. See the same phrase, Num.13.33. 1 Sam.18.23.

Behold, even I have seen it, saith the Lord.] I see these your abominable courses, as closely, and covertly, as ye carry them, Psalm 10.11,14. Ezek. 8.12. and these your impious thoughts too, of me and my sacrifice, Psalm 94.7,11. So chap. 13.27. and 23.14.

V. 12. But go ye now unto my place, which was in Shiloh, where I set my name at the first; and see what I did to it, for the wickedness of my people Israel.] God refuteth this their vain confidence in the fabrick of the Temple, by an instance from another place that sometime had the like privilege, that had the Tabernacle, and the Ark with it, as they now had the Temple: but that did not secure them when they grew wicked.

go ye now] His meaning is not that they should travel thither, but go thither onely in their thoughts. See the like, ch. 2.10. Amos 6.2.

to my place] That which was once my place, as this is now, called therefore, his house, Judg.18.31. Psal.42.4.

in Shiloh] Or, at Shiloh; a city belonging to the tribe of Ephraim, Psal.78.60,67. situate, as may seem, between Bethel, and Shechem, Judg.21.19.

where I set my name at the first] Heb. where I made, or caused, my name to dwell: as Deut.12.11. where I at first in Joshua's time placed those visible pledges of my special presence and residence among you, Josh.18.1. 1 Sam.1.3,7. & 4.3,4. and see] Take notice of, and consider; as chap. 2.19. and 6.16.

what I did to it] How I forsook that place, and fixed mine abode in another; having first suffered my people to be discomfited by the enemy, my Priests to be slain, mine Ark to be carried away captive, which albeit it were after some time sent home again, yet never returned any more unto Shiloh, 1 Sam.2.10,11. & 7.1,2. Psalm 78.59,67.

for the wickedness of my people] Proceeding principally from the Priests, 1 Sam.2.12,17,22,34. See the like advertisements, ch. 3.7, 8. & 44.2,3.

V. 13. And now because ye have done all these works, saith the Lord; and I spake unto you, rising early and speaking, but ye heard not; and I called you, but ye answered not.] Since that you do wickedly as they did, and will take no warning, I will deal with you, as I dealt with them.

rising early] From time to time diligently addressing my self unto you by my Prophets: a form of speech taken from the wonted manner of sedulous and industrious either trades-men, or workmen, that get up betimes before day-light, to follow their employments. See on chap. 5.8. So vers. 25. chap. 11.7. & 25.3. & 35.15. See Isaiah 65.2.

I called you, but ye answered not] Ye regarded not my call, inviting you to repentance, that you might prevent and escape ruine. So Prov. 1.24. Isa.50.2. & 65.12. & 66.4.

V. 14. Therefore will I do unto this house which is called by my name, wherein ye trust, and unto the place, which I gave to you and to your fathers, as I have done to Shiloh:] Heb. And I will do, as chap. 6.11.

to this house] Which yet is but an house; and an house that cannot hold me, 1 Kin.8.27. Isa.66.1.

which is called by my name] Which I am pleased yet to own, so long as I please, and no longer. See v.10.

wherein ye trust] But in vain, v.4,8.

unto the place] Not to my Sanctuary alone, where at present I dwell, Psa.132.13. but to the whole land also wherein ye dwell, vers. 3,7.

which I gave you] And therefore can take again from you, when I please, Job 1.21. for it is mine still, and ye do but sojourn in it with me, Levit. 25.23. and it was given both to you, and your ancestors, upon condition, that ye should keep my statutes, and observe my Laws, Psal. 104.44, 45. which ye do not, but the contrary, vers.9,13.

as I have done to Shiloh] Which I forsook, Psalm 78.60. chap. 26.6.

V. 15. And I will cast you out of my sight, as I have cast out all your brethren, even the whole seed of Ephraim.] I will carry you away captive out of that land, wherein I have formerly in a gracious manner resided among you, Psa.76.1,2. Heb. from against, or, over against, my face: as those things are, that are before a man, and whereon he fixeth his eye. So Exod.20.3. 1 Kin.9.7.

as I have cast out]. Sent into captivity by Salmaneser, 2 King. 17.6.

your brethren] That were the seed of Israel, as well as your selves; and ye have no reason therfore to look to fare better than they, when ye do as they did, 2 Kin.21.13,14.

the whole seed of Ephraim] The ten tribes bearing the name of Ephraim, as the principal among them. See Isa.7.2.

V. 16. Therefore pray not thou for this people, neither lift up cry, nor prayer for them, neither make intercession to me: for I will not hear] The Lord here turneth his speech from them to the Prophet; and to intimate, that he was resolved to put in execution the doom, fore-mentioned upon them, notwithstanding their vain hopes and confidence of the contrary; forbiddeth the Prophet to strike in between him and them, by any intercession in their behalf, to stay his hand from proceeding against them, as Moses did, Exo.32.32. Num.14.13,19. and Aaron, Num.16.47,48. Psa.106.23. See the like, Exo.32.10. ch.11. 14. & 14.11.

Therefore] Or, Wherefore. Heb. And; as v.14.

for I will not hear thee] Shewing how little hope there is, that the prayers of the godly should prevail with God, for those that persist obstinately in sinful courses, rejecting the means of mercy tendred unto them, and pressed upon them, 1 Sam. 14.35. chap. 15.1.

V. 17. Seest thou not what they do in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem?] Art not thou thy self an eye-witness of those abominable idolatries, that all sorts of them, men, women and children, in all places among them commit? See chap. 2.28. & 11.13. Heb. Art thou not seeing? Is it not a continual eye-sore to thee; as the Sodomites manner of life was to Lot? 2 Pet. 2.7,8.

V. 18. The children gather the wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead their dough, to make cakes to the Queen of heaven] Fathers and children, husbands and wives, find all some employment or other, about their idolatrous services. See chap. 44. 17,19.

children] Thus idolatrous parents train up their children in idolatry: let christian parents learn from them to train up theirs in piety, Gen. 18.19. Deut.6.7. Prov.4.3,4. & 22.6. Eph. 6.4. 1 Tim. 4.6. 2 Tim.3.15.

gather] Heb. gathering; and so, kindling, and kneading: and so it may be retained; as having reference to vers.17. Seest thou not---the children gathering sticks, and the fathers kindling the fire, and the women kneading dough? or, how (supplyed, cha.3.6.) the children are gathering sticks, and the fathers are kindling the fire, and the women are kneading dough? as noting how busily they were employed about it. So Matt.24.38. See chap.6.28.

wood] The word is plural; rendred sticks, Num. 15.32,33. and so would be rather here, than there.

kindle the fire] To bake with it; as he to roast, Isa.44.16.

knead their dough] Heb. no more then, Kneading dough; nor needs any more. So Hos.7.4.

to make cakes] The word is no where else found save here, and ch. 44.18. they are said by some of the Jewish Criticks, to have been so termed, from the figure of a star that was imprinted upon them; to the honour of which they were made, to offer and present thereunto, Amos 5.26. Howbeit, some other would have them so termed from the curious preparation of them; and others, from the use of fire about the dressing of them, deducing it from a word that signifies to burn. It is hard to give any certain sentence, where so little light to guide.

to the Queen of heaven] There is a two-fold reading here; for some read the word without an Aleph, and then it should signifie a Queen; though in this form, that word be no where found: but yet thus divers of the Jewish Doctors, and the old Latine, whom many others follow, here take it, conceiving thereby to be understood, some the Sun; the words that signifie it, being one of them less frequent, of a feminine form, Esay 24.23. the other more usual, though of a masculine form, yet a feminine oft in use; as Nahum 3.17. Others, the Moon: one name whereof is feminine; though another be masculine: and which the Phenicians, say some, from the Hebrew call Baaltis, and Baltis. Others, some great star; but what, or which, they tell us not: and this way the Chaldee taketh; and that the idolatrous Jews did worship both the Sun and the Moon, is not to be doubted. See chap. 8.2. Howbeit, because this word is never found used in that notion, (and yet the form is not irregular; and they might well well of purpose so frame it,to make a sacred term of it) the Jewish Criticks most of them, and others of ours following them read the word with an Aleph; in which form it is very commonly found used for work, or workmanship, as Exod.36.4. 2 Chr.13.10. chap.48.11. and so render it, the frame, or workmanship of heaven; and the ancient Greek,the hoast of heaven: which seemeth to receive some strength from the collation of this place with that, chap. 19.13. the name of hoast being used there, instead of that here. The words then may be read, both here, and chap. 44. 17. for the Queen, or, the frame, of heaven: as, a foothoot for thy feet, Psal.110.1. and, a place for the Lord, Psal.132.5.

and to pour out drink-offerings unto other gods] Both this and the former helping, in likelyhood, to furnish that Table, which for such feigned deities they used to spread, Esay 65.11. whereof also some expound this place. In those cakes, they imitated Gods meat, or, meal, offerings; in these, his drink-offerings: of both which, see Lev. 2. 4, 5, 7. Num. 28. 7, 8. Esay 1. 13. & 57. 6. Or other gods, see chap.1.16.

that they may provoke me to anger] Heb. to anger me. So 2 Kin.22. 17. 2 Chr.34.25. chap.11.17. & 25.7. & 32.29. Not that they did these things purposely for that end; but that this could not but necessarily thence ensue. See on Esay 3.8. and see the like, ch. 27. 10. Hos. 8. 4.

V. 19. Do they provoke me to anger, saith the Lord? do they not provoke themselves to the confusion of their own faces?] Some render the words; Is it against me that they provoke me to wrath? it is not rather against themselves, to the confusion of their own faces? as if he had said, Am I any whit the worse for it? doth it not rather tend to their own ruines? the sense is good: see on verf. 6. and the matter such as is implyed; but the words will not admit it: The Text is word for word thus; Do they anger me? saith the Lord: not themselves to the confusion of their own faces? and there is an elegant antanaclasis, or variation of notion, in one and the same term: as if it were said; they do not so much provoke me to anger, as procure anger to themselves; by angring me, they do but anger themselves, or, as we use to say, they do but spite themselves, and bring shame and confusion upon themselves. See 1 Cor.10.22. Of confusion of face, see ch.3.25. Psa.44.15. Dan.9.8. their own faces: as, their own ways, Isa. 53.6. So ch.4.18.v.6.

V. 20. Therefore thus saith the Lord God; Mine anger and my fury shall be poured forth upon this place, upon man, and upon beast, and upon the trees of the field, and upon the fruit of the ground; and it shall burn, and shall not be quenched.] Since that they will needs be thus angring me, I will anger them to the purpose; and they shall find by feeling to their cost, who it is that smarteth for it, that suffereth by it: and since that they will needs be incensing my wrath, it shall be so fiered, that it shall not be all with them, and none shall be able to quench it again. See the like, Deut.32.21,22.

Mine anger] Which they have provoked and raised, v.18.

my fury] Or, wrath; or, fervour: my fierce or fiery indignation. See chap.4.4.

shall be poured forth] As ch.10.25.as the clouds or heavens are said to pour down water,when they shoot down showrs of rain in great abundance, Psa.77.17. an allusion to those showres of fire and brimstone, that burnt up Sodom and Gomorrah,Gen.19.24.Psa.11.6. See Psa.78.49.

upon this place] Not this city alone,but the whole land, v.7.

upon man, and upon beast, and upon the trees of the field, and upon the fruit of the ground.] A judgment parallel to those of Egypt, Exod.9. 3,6,18,19,25. & 10.5,15. Psa.78.45,48. & 105.33,36. such an utter desolation and destruction of all, as is described, ch. 4. 25. & 12. 4. Zeph.1.3.

it shall burn and shall not be quenched] When Gods wrath is once thoroughly kindled, it is not so easie quenching of it again. Psa.2.12. See chap.4.4.

V. 21. Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel,] As verf.2.The Lord turneth his speech now to the people again. And because their vain confidence was partly in the Temple, and partly in the sacrifices that thither they brought and there offered; God therefore to beat them off all,from this; as before he shewed what he would do with that house, verf. 14, so now he giveth them to understand what account he made of all their sacrifices, what sorry acceptance they had at his hands.

Put your burnt-offerings to your sacrifices, and eat flesh] Keep your sacrifices to your selves,dispose of them as you please: eat your selves the flesh as well of one sort of them, as of the other: I neither require any from you,nor delight in any of them, nor desire them, nor regard them. See Esay 1.11. chap.6.20. Amos 5.21.

Put your burnt-offerings to your sacrifices] Your holocaustic that were to be all burnt, Levit.1.9. to your other sacrifices, whether pacificatory, or, gratulatory, voluntary, or, votary, whereof some part the offerers themselves might eat, Levit.7.11,12,21,15,16. take them, and put them all together; I desire no part or share in any at all of them.

and eat flesh] Eat their flesh; or the flesh of them: a defect of the possessive; as ch.6.3,12.

V. 22. For I spake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burnt-offerings, or sacrifices.] Not that God did not then take order for, and give in charge, the due performance of these sacred rites, Levit.1.7. but that these were not the things that he principally regarded, or chiefly required: it was not so much these ceremonial performances, as their cordial affection and constant obedience thence proceeding that he required of them, and looked for from them, 1 Sam.15.22. Psal. 50. 5, 16. Mark 12.33, 50. Hos. 6. 6. Matt. 12. 7. I desire mercy, and not sacrifice; that is, not so much sacrifice as mercy: and, rent your hearts, and not your garments; that is,not so much your garments as your hearts, Joel 2.13. For I can in no wise assent unto those, (though I find among the Ancients divers of the same mind with them) who suppose, that the use of sacrificing was at first but an humane invention, and that God onely gave way to it, to prevent a worse matter; because otherwise men would be doing it to idols and devils, Lev.17.7. The antiquity of it, even from Adam, Gen. 4. 3, 4. the constant practice of it among Gods people in all ages, Gen. 8.20. & 12.7. & 35.7. Exod.5.3. & 8.27.the strict and solemn enacting of it,with an exact injunction and determination of so many observations and circumstances about it; and the prefiguration of future accomplishments represented in it, Heb. 9. & 10. do evidently evince the practice of this rite, to have been from the beginning a divine institution; which the Devil, Gods Ape,as well in this, as in other sacred ordinances of God imitating, did after arrogate to himself.

concerning] Heb. concerning the word, or, matter,of them: as Est.9. 26,31. ch.5.2.34. So also, ch.5.28.v.2,48.

in the day that] Or, what time, when: as Gen. 3. 17. Ruth 4.5. 1 King.3.37. Heb. in the day of my making them to go forth; and so ch. 11. 4.

V. 23. But this thing commanded I them, saying,Obey my voice; and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people.] The main matter, that God first and principally required then of them, was obedience, Exod. 19.5,6. and the sacrifices afterward,as a testification of their obedience and allegiance to him, and an obsignation of the Covenant, concerning the same, plighted between him and them,in the blood of the Messias, Exod.24.3, 8. Matt. 26.28. Luk.22.20. Heb.9. 19,20.

this thing] Heb. word: as Est.1.21. & 2.4.

Obey] Heb. Hear. So Exod.15.26. Deut.6.3. v.24.

and walk ye in all the ways that I have commanded you, that it may be well with you] So Deut.5.29,33. See v.6.

in all the ways] Heb. in every way; as Deut.5.33.

V. 24. But they hearkened not, nor inclined their ear; but walked in the counsels, and in the imagination of their evil heart, and went backward,and not forward.]By solemn covenant this they engaged themselves unto,Exo.19.8. & 24.3. Deu.5.28. but they were not careful to make it good, Exod.22.8. Deu.9.24. & 31.27.

But] Heb. And: as ch.6.16. and so after again.

inclined their ear] As the manner is of those that listen to ought, which they are desirous to hear. So ch.11.8. and 17.23.

in the counsels] Or, contrivements, or, devices. So Psa.81.12.

imagination of their evil heart] See ch.3,17.

they went backward, and not forward.] Heb. they were to backward and not to face: that which he said before, ch. 2. 27. they turned their back unto me, and not their face.

V. 25. Since the day that your fathers came forth out of the land of Egypt unto this day, I have even sent unto you all my servants the Prophets, daily rising up early, and sending them.] A defect of the pronoun: as ch.6.29. I have not from time to time failed to advise and admonish both you and your ancestors by my ministers and messengers of those things that concern your duty and your welfare,Deu. 18.18. Amos 2.11. See on v. 13.

Since] Or, From. Heb. To from: as v. 7.

I have even sent] Or, I have sent; for the copulative here is as oft elsewhere redundant: as Jon.1.1.

V. 26. Yet they hearkened not unto me, nor inclined their ear; but hardened their neck, they did worse than their fathers.] A change of the person,very frequent in this Prophet; as ch. 2. 7. & 5. 19, 21. & 6. 17. As if God unwilling to speak further to them, or loth to talk any longer with them, should turn his speech to the Prophet, telling him how crosly and perversly they had carried themselves towards him.So chap.44.10.

Yet] Heb. And; as ch.5.10,22.

hearkened not] Or, have not hearkened, Dan.9.6,10.

but] Heb. and: as v. 24.

hardened their neck] Or, have stiffned; whence the term of stiffnecked, Deut. 9. 6. See Esay 48,4. so chap. 16. 12. & 17. 23. & 19. 15.

did worse than their fathers] Or, have done worse. Heb. have done evil from their fathers; that is, worse than they. So Judg.2.19. chap. 16.13. thus have they proceeded from evil to worse,ch.9.3. so far are they from amendment.

V. 27. Therefore thou shalt speak all these words unto them, but they will not hearken to thee: thou shalt also call unto them, but they will not answer thee.] Or, And though thou speak all these things (as ver.23.) to them, they will not hearken to thee: yea, though thou cry unto them, they will not answer thee. So verf.13. Of this syntax, and such use of the copulatives, see ch.2.5,20. & 5.7. & 6.9,10. Howbeit, true it is,that God will have his Messengers and Ministers, to speak, admonish, warn, and do their duty, whether that people will hear and take warning, or no, to render them the more inexcusable, Ezek.2.5,7.& 3. 7, 11.

V. 28. But thou shalt say unto them, This is a nation that obeyeth not the voice of the Lord their God, nor receiveth correction: truth is perished, and is cut off from their mouth.] Or, Therefore the voice of the Lord their God, nor receiveth correction: truth is perished, and is cut off from their mouth. And therefore: for the illative doth better here, than before, v. 27. Heb. And: as verf.14.16.

obey not] Or, will not hear. Heb. hear not; as v. 23. and the verb is plural, because the noun nation is collective.

nor receiveth correction] Or, nor receive, or, will receive instruction. See ch.2.30. & 5.3.

truth is perished, and is cut off from their mouth.] There is no truth,or true dealings, to be expected from them, Psal.5.9. & 12.1,2. Isa.59. 14,15. ch.9.3. Hos.4.1. See Psal.119.43.

V. 29. Cut off thine hair, O Jerusalem, and cast it away,] This is spoken to Jerusalem,as to a woman, (for the verbs are feminine) inviting her to lamentation, and to external expressions of it,in regard of the calamities that were to befal her. It was the manner with them, in those times, for men in occasions of mourning, to cut off their hair, or thave their heads. So Job 1. 20. Isa. 15.2. but it is a sign of greater grief, and deeper mourning, when women tear off, or cut off, and cast away, their hair, being deemed a principal ornament with them, Isa.3.24. 1 Cor.11.15. 1 Tim.2.9. and this it is that is here alluded unto; as also, Mic.1.16. and there is an emphasis in the word; for it signifieth a crown: nor is it sited of hair, or applyed thereunto, save in the narrative of the Nazarites, Num.6. and when she is bid therefore to cut off her hair, under the name of a crown; and not to cut it off only, and reserve it, as many are wont to do with their combings,and the like; but to throw it away,to cast it upon the ground; it seemeth to intimate that which our Prophet bewaileth in the person of his people, The crown is fallen from our head, Lam.5.16. and which the Psalmist hath more full, Thou hast profaned his crown by casting it to the ground,Psa.89.39. So I should rather apply it, than with a learned late Writer, to imply the dispersion of them into foreign parts; as that, Ezek.5.2.

and take up a lamentation on high places] A lamentation,see ch.9.10. on the high places, see ch.3.21.for I can not accord to that learned man, who in this place also would have it to be, in the valleys, or on the plains: see the like, ch.12.12.

for the Lord hath rejected, and forsaken the generation of his wrath.] He hath cast off, as they have cast off him, (ch.6.30. verf. 15.) this whole race,against whom his wrath hath been incensed by their sins, v.18,20. See Mal.1.4.

V. 30. For the children of Judah have done evil in my sight, saith the Lord.] A passage again, from person to person, as before, verf. 26.

For] Or, Because; as ch.6.13.

the children of Judah] Either the posterity of Judah; as Joshua 14.6. or, the people of Judea; as, the children of Noph, chap. 2.16.

have done evil in my sight] Or, have done that which is evil in my sight.Heb. in mine eyes; as 2 Sam.11.27. either,done evil to my face, where I see it,v.11. or, done those things that are displeasing to me. Where Isa.65.12. & 66.4.

they have set their abominations in the house, which is called by my name, to pollute it.] They have set their idols in my palace: whereof, see verf. 10, 11. not content to have them in their houses, or elsewhere abroad, Esay 57. 6, 7. chap. 19.13. they have brought them into mine house also, to set them cheek by joll beside me, Ezek.43.7,8. See 2 King.16.10,11,15. & 21.4,7. 2 Chron. 36.14. chap.32.34.

V. 31. And they have built the high places of Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to burn their sons and daughters in the fire, which I commanded them not, neither came it into mine heart.] See the same,ch.19.5.

built the high places] Erected altars, and other structures, for the practice of that barbarous and most abominable idolatry, 2 Kin.21. 3. & 23.10.

of Topheth] Hereof, see on Isa.30.33.

in the valley of the Son of Hinnom] A vale neer to Jerusalem,whereof one Hinnom was sometime,and his sons after him,possessed; whose name therefore it bare in succeeding ages, and doth still,in the sacred records,unto this day. See Josh.15.8.

to burn their sons and their daughters] See this savage and unnatural practice,2 Kin.16.3.& 21.6. 2 Chr.28.3.& 33.6. the children of both sexes are mentioned, as here, so Psal.106.38. the more to aggravate the immanity of these unnatural miscreants, whom neither the dearnefs of the one, nor the tenderness of the other, their own bowels both, (as Paul of Onesimus,Philē.12.)could move unto mercy, or with-hold from exercising such cruelty on them. This inhumane practice they learned from those heathen, whom God had cast out before them, Deut.12.31. and from those that succeeded the Israelites in Samaria, 2 Kin.17.31,41. Concerning the manner of acting this hideous rite the Jewish Writers relate many things; but their relations seem much of them rather fable than story: artil I therefore let them pass.

which I commanded them not] Or, which I never commanded: but expresly forbad, and professed to abhor, Lev.18,21. & 20.3. Deut. 12.31. & 18.10.

neither came it into mine heart.] Heb. neither came it upon mine heart; neither had I ever any the least thought so to do. See chap. 3.16.

V. 32. Therefore behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that it shall no more be called Topheth, or the valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the valley of slaughter; for they shall bury in Topheth, till there be no place.] See the same, chap. 19.6. That place,which is now so horribly abused,shall be so filled with the carcasses of slaughtered persons, that there shall not be room enough to afford them all burial, but they shall, many of them, lye rotting there above ground; and the valley shall have a new name given it from the multitude of those slaughtered bodies, that shall, partly, be entered therein, and partly, lye there unburied.

behold, the days come] Heb. behold, the days coming; as Isa. 39.6. ch. 9. 24.

it shall no more be called Topheth, or the valley of the Son of Hinnom] Not that it should not at all be so named any more, or known by either of those names (for unto this day the name continueth) but that another name should be given it, that might as well, or much better, be used of it, than either of those two. See the like, Gen.32. 28. ch. 20.3.

the valley of slaughter] Or, Ge-haharegah; as Judas his field was called Aceldama, Act.1.19. Howbeit, some by slaughter here, understand slaughtered ones; which the article prefixed, seemeth to back: and they render it, therefore the valley of the slaughtered; for the meaning is not, that the slaughter of them should be made there; but that either their slaughtered bodies, for burial, should be brought, there being no place readier, or fitter,at hand,to receive them.

for they shall bury in Tophet] Heb. and; but, for, here; as cha.5.2. because a reason is rendred, why the name before mentioned should be given unto it.

till there be no place] Or, because there is no place, or no room; to wit, to bury elsewhere. Heb. for no place being; that is, for want of room; all wonted places of burial, being so glutted with corpses,that they are able to receive no more: for the particle is oft used in a casual notion; as ch.4.6. & 10.6. & 19.11.

V. 33. And the carcasses of this people, shall be meat for the fowles of the heaven, and for the beasts of the earth; and none shall fray them away.] They shall lye unburied, and be devoured by birds and beasts, way. They shall lye unburied, and be devoured by birds and beasts, either for want of persons to bury them, or for want of places to bury them in: so Psal.79.2,3. chap.24.20. See the same, chap. 19.7.

carcasses] Heb. carcass: but taken collectively; as Isa. 5.25. & 26.19. and so foul, and beast.

heaven] Or, air; as it is rendred, Psa.8.8. Deut.28.26.

and none shall fray them away.] Either for fear of the enemy, or by reason of the great devastation that shall be, and want of persons to look after them, & enterre them. So Deu.28.26.a defect of the pronoun, in this form of speech perpetual; as Isa.17.3. ch.30.10. & 46. 27. Ezek.34.28. Mic.4.4. Nah.2.11. as if it were said, there shall be no frighter.

V. 34. Then will I cause to cease from the cities of Judah, and from the streets of Jerusalem, the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride:] I will bereave them of all matter that people are wont to rejoyce in, or to make themselves merry with. So Isa.24.7,8. ch.16.9. & 25.10. & 33.11. Ezek. 26.13. Hos.2.11. Rev.18.23.

Then] Or, thus. Heb. And; as Isa.19.22.

the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride] Such merry songs, and melodious musick, as at weddings is wont to be, Psalm 78.63.

for the land shall be desolate] Heb. unto desolation; as Isa.64.11. so chap. 25.11.

CHAP. VIII.

Verf. 1. A*T that time, saith the Lord, they shall bring out the bones of the Kings of Judah, and the bones of the Princes, and the bones of the Priests, and the bones of the Prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem out of their graves,*] That this Chapter hath coherence with the former, is apparent by the very words of it. In it the Prophet proceedeth to shew the grievous calamities that should befal this people, with whom the enemy should spare neither living nor dead, but wreck their rage upon either, v. 1, 3. complaineth of their extream stupidity and obstinacy in evil, v. 4, 12. threateneth them with utter and unavoidable destruction. verf. 10, 13, 16, 17. and bewaileth their forlorn and incurable condition, v. 14,16, 18, 22.

At that time] When those days are come,whereof ch.7.32.

they shall bring out the bones] The enemy, either for greedinefs of gain, or in extremity of despite, shall even rifle their graves, and not suffer their bodies, or their bones to rest in them. A further addition to what was before denounced, that they should not onely want room to bury their slain, ch.7.32. but chose also that were already buried, should be plucked out of their graves again. See Baruch 2. 24.

of the Kings of Judah, and of his Princes] In whose sepulchres, it is not unlikely, that they looked for rich ornaments and jewels, or treasure: see Joseph the Jew in his antiquities,l.13.c.15.

of the Priests, and of the Prophets,] Those especially are here named as, that had been corrupt Priests, and false Prophets. See the like in some kind, through the just judgement of God, both denounced and executed upon the like, 1 Kin. 13. 2. 2 Kin. 23. 14, 20.

of the inhabitants] See this judgment in the like manner promiscuously threatned, Lev. 26. 30.

V. 2. And they shall spread them before the Sun, and the Moon, and all the host of heaven, whom they have loved, and whom they have served, and after whom they have walked, and whom they have sought, and whom they have worshipped.] And so made idols of them, committing idolatry, that is, spiritual adultery with them, preferring the creature before the Creator, Deu. 4. 19. 2 Kin. 23. 5. 2 Chr. 33. 5. ch. 7. 18. Ezek. 8. 16. their bones should be laid before these creatures of Gods making, whom they had abused to idolatry, as their carcasses were laid and burnt upon the altars of their own making, Lev. 26. 30. 2 King. 23. 14, 20. as in way of detestation on the one, so in way of demonstration also to the other; thereby shewing how little good either the one, or the other, could do them, being unable to safeguard them, either alive, or dead.

before the Sun, and the Moon, and all the host of heaven] That is, the stars, 2 King. 23. 5. implying, that they should lye night and day unburied; as of Jehoiakims carcass, ch. 36. 30.

they shall not be gathered, nor buried, they shall be for dung upon the face of the earth] They shall not be gathered to be laid up in the monuments of their ancestors; nor obtain so much as common sepulture: so some. But the words seem to be intended rather, in a larger, and more indefinite sense either of them: for bones thus scattered, must of necessity be gathered, ere they can be entered any where: the meaning is, they shall lye above ground till they rot. So Psal. 83. 10. ch. 9. 22. & 16. 4.

V. 3. And death shall be chosen rather than life, of all the residue of them that remain of all this evil family; which remain in all the places whither I have driven them, saith the Lord.] Or, in all the places of the remaining ones (so the words run) whither I shall have driven them. Though th: cruelty of the barbarous enemy be such, as that they spared neither living nor dead, but mastacred the one, and digged up the other; yet so great shall be the calamities, and so miserable the condition of those that survive, and are carried away captive, that being weary of their lives, they shall with that they had dyed with the rest of their people, that had perished either during the siege, or in the surprisal of the city; and counted them happy that so did. See Lev. 26. 36, 39. Job 3. 20, 21. & 7. 15. 1 King. 19. 4. Rev. 9. 6. & 14. 13.

V. 4. Moreover, thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the Lord;] Heb. And: as ch. 1. 15. To manifest the equity of Gods proceeding thus in severity with them, the doth in the words following, describe their extream folly, and wilful obstinacy, running on head-long with an utter refusal to be stopped or staid on the way, unto those courses that tend to their utter ruine and destruction.

Shall they fall, and not arise?] Or, when men fall, will they not rise? See the like syntax, ch. 6. 9, 10. & 7. 27. Is there any man so absurd and witless, who when he hath by accident got a fall, will lye still, and not assay to get up again? or that will refuse to be holpen up again, by such as offer him their help? Eccles. 4. 10. Hereby intimating the folly of this people, that having fallen by, and for their sin, Hos. 14. 1. yet refused to rise, or to be raised again by those, that took pains with them to that purpose. Some render the words, are they to fallen, that they cannot rise again? do they deem their case desperate? See chap. 2. 25. But the former seems the proper sense of the place.

Shall he turn away, and not return? Or, will not one that hath turned aside, or, gone aside, return? Will not any man that hath gone unwillingly out of the way, desire to come into it again; and be willing to receive direction from those, that would set him again in it? See the application of it to this people, v. 5. For those, either of the Jewish, or ours, that render it; if he did return, would not God return? as if he should say, undoubtedly he would, chap. 3. 1. Zach. 1. 3. make a needless insertion, and seem to go beside the scope of the place.

V. 5. Why then is this people of Jerusalem sliden back, by a perpetual backsliding.] Heb. why is this people, (not, of Jerusalem; for the word people here, is intire and absolute, but either) in Jerusalem, (as the old Latine) or, Jerusalem, (by way of appostion) revolted, or, gone aside (for the verb is feminine, as answering not to people, but to Jerusalem, as the like, Judg. 18. 7. and is the same word, with that in the former branch, though in another form) by a perpetual, or, a pervicacious revolt, or, aversion: and to little purpole doth a learned man trouble himself, and torture the text, because he findeth the participle used actively, Esa. 47. 10. to have the words rendred, Jerusalem (that is, the rulers of it) misleadeth this people; or, a pertinacious aversion leadeth this people away: when as he may find the participle, or participial at least, so oft else-where in a passive or neuter notion; for, refractary, or, rebellious, Esa. 57. 17. ch. 3. 14, 22. & 31. 22. & 49. 4. and the meaning is plain enough. What is the reason then, that this people contrary to the usual manner of men in such case; having gone out of the right way, and being in a wrong way, prejudicial to themselves, yet will pertinaciously thus perssit, and go on in the same, and refuse to be reduced? ch. 2, 26. & 5. 3. and 9. 16.

they hold fast deceit, they refuse to return] Or, carrying on the sentence in one tenor with the former; do they hold fast deceit? do they refuse to return? more fully thus: Why is it, that this people do thus pertinaciously pursue in their going aside, or, revolt, that they hold fast deceit? that they refuse to return? where by deceit, some understand their unjust and fraudulent courses, which were exceeding rife among them, ch. 9. 6. Mic. 6. 10. & 7. 5. See Psa. 36. 3. & 55. 11. Others rather, those frauds and falshoods, wherewith their false Prophets deceived and deluded them, ch. 5. 31. & 14. 14. & 23. 26. Is. 30. 10. See 2 Thess. 2. 10, 12.

V. 6. I hearkened and heard, but they spake not aright.] The most Interpreters, both Jewish & others, conceive these words to be the Prophets, relating how he had observed it to be with the people; as ch. 6. 27, 29. I suppose them rather to be the speech of God himself, implying as his long expectation and forbearance, so his earnest and longing desire of their repentance, expressed by a phrase borrowed from the practice of men, who are wont diligently and constantly to listen after that, which they much desire to hear. See Psal. 85. 8. Esay 50. 4. See of God the like, Mal. 3. 16. See also 1 King. 20. 33.

I hearkened and heard] Or, I have listned to hear; as, arose and warned, for, arose to warn, Josh. 24. 9. for he could hear nothing of that which he desired to hear.

they spake not aright] Or, none spake aright; as the word is used, 2 Kin. 7. 9. Eccles. 8. 10. ch. 23. 10. 01, as the Greek rendreth it, none so spake: So the word is most commonly taken, Exo. 10. 11. Deut. 18. 14. Psa. 1. 4. in such manner, as men would do in the cases before mentioned, verf. 4.

no man repented of his wickedness, saying, what have I done?] Heb. there is not a man (as ch. 8. 6.) repenting of his wickedness, so, to say, what have I done? that hath any remorse, or touch at all in his conscience, for any of his sins so far forth, as but to think once seriously with himself, what it was that he had therein done: that which they were exhorted to do, ch. 23.

What have I done?] The manner of a mans speech or thought, recollecting himself after some suddain and inconsiderate act: So Samuel to Saul, 1 Sam. 13. 11. and Joab to David; what hast thou done? 2 Sam. 3. 24.

every one turned to his course] Or, each one of them turneth to their course, or, race; to his evil course, or, race: as it is, ch. 23. 10. it implyeth their eagerness in the pursuit of evil; so Esay 59. 7. Prov. 6. 18.

as an horse rusheth into the battel] Heb. like an horse rushing into the war: the word rendred, rushing, is very emphatical; for it signifies properly an inundation of waters, with much violence breaking in, and over-whelming all before it, Esa. 8. 9. & 28. 15, 18. ch. 47. 2. war, for, battel, as 2 Sam. 18. 6, 8. They run head-long after their own lusts and fancies, and will not be curbed or restrained of them: like an head-strong horse, that hearing the noise of the trumpet, and smelling the battel a far off, doth with much violence in a full carier, make towards it; his rider having now no command of him, nor being able to keep him in; See Job 39. 21, 25. and of this peoples unbridled, untamable, and untractable disposition, chap. 2. 23, 24.

V. 7. Yea, the stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed time, and the turtle, and the crane, and the swallow, observe the time of their coming, but my people know not the judgment of the Lord.] In these words is reproved, not their obstinacy only and willfulness, but their stupidity and blockishness, wherein they came short even of the unreasonable creatures; whereof divers sorts here mentioned, do duly observe the times of their coming, and going from place to place, from one region to another, according to the season of the year, Job 39. 26. whereas this sottish people, had not so much wit as to take notice of, and observe Gods courses and dealings with them; of the seasons of grace, when in mercy he offereth himself unto them; or of the times of wrath, wherein he sheweth himself displeased with them; to lay hold on and embrace the one, and to seek to prevent and stay the proceeding of the other, Esa. 5. 12. ch. 5. 4. Luk. 12. 56. & 19. 42, 44. See the like exprobration of stupidity, and sottishness in Gods people, Esay 1. 3.

yea] Heb. also; So chap. 5. 28.

the stork] The foul here mentioned is ranked among the unclean ones, Lev. 11. 19. Deut. 14. 18. where some render it a kite; and the Jewish Doctors some of them tell us, that it is a kind of white kite, or, puttok: Some, an heron; because it is said to build in the firrs, Psal. 107. 14. Some would have it to be the ostrich, grounded on that place, Job 39. 13, 14. where she is said as they suppose, to leave her egges in the sand, where by the heat of the Sun, they are hatched; but if the text be duly weighed, it will be found, that this foul, what ever it be, and the ostrich, are there distinguished: See the note on the place. That it is a foul of large wings, it is apparent from Zach. 5. 9. and that it is one of those, that change their quarters at time of year, is no less apparent from this place. The most therefore, among whom divers of the Jewish writers, take it for a stork, which breedeth also, saith one of the Jewish Masters, as well in high trees, as in lofty turrets, that which those must do of necessity, that live in the woody wasts where no housing is. That the stork, as well as the crane, changeth his quarters, autors generally agree. See Aristotle in his story of living wights, l. 8. c. 16. and Pliny in his natural history.

history, l. 10. c. 23. save that Pliny saith, that the one cometh against Summer, and goeth away against winter; the other cometh against winter, and goeth away against Summer; and feeneth of the gainst winter, and goeth away against Summer; and feeneth of the stork to affirm this latter, which is certainly untrue: and Aelian, they go and come together: It is deemed in Hebrew, to have its name from a term that signifieth piety, or kindness; and this fowl, so say the Jewish Criticks, is so called, because he parteth his prey among his companions: but others, because they are reported to feed their parents, when through age they grow imporent. Hereof Aristotle l. 9. c. 13. Pliny also where before. Aelian l. 3. c. 23. Aristophanes the Comick in his birds: and others, not a few; and among the Greeks a proverbial term, denoting this duty in children towards parents, is in very frequent use. Howbeit, I suppose rather, that this name was at first given unto this fowl, in regard of her tender affection to her young; whereof divers examples have been in the Netherlands, (where I have also seen of them, on their nests on the house top) and among others of some, that have either burnt themselves, to save their young; or together with them, when burnt themselves, the houses being fired on which their nests were. See Adrian Yong in his Batavia, for how either they should come, to know their fires or flames again, when they are grown old; or it should come to be observed of them, how they then tend them; as of their young it may well be, is neither of them easie to conceive.

in the heaven] What the Rabbine hence gatherech concerning this fowl, that it should be a great fowl, and of high flight; as the like therefore is faid of the eagle, Prov. 23. 5. & 30. 19. is frivolous, since all birds in general, are called birds of the heaven, Psal. 8. 8. and heaven both here and elsewhere, is no other than the air, See chap. 7. 33.

knoweth] Observeth as duly as if he knew. So Psal. 104. 19. Job 38. 12.

his appointed time] His set season of coming and going.

and the turtle] Whose access sheweth the springs approach, Cant. 2. 11, 12. See Aristotle, l. 8. c. 3, 12, 16. Varro of husbandry, l. 3. c. 5.

the crane and the swallow] Or, the swallow and the crane; of the terms, See on Esa. 38. 14. of the cranes coming and going: See before with the stork; of the swallows the Greek proverb is well known, being grown as familiar with us, as with them, that One swallow maketh not a summer.

but] Heb. and: as ch. 7. 24.

my people know not the judgment of the Lord.] See chap. 5. 4, 5. judgment, for, course, or, manner of dealing; as 1 Sam. 2. 13. & 8. 11. thus man who should be wiser than the fowls of the air, Job 35. 11. seemeth to come short herein of them, in things so nearly concerning him.

V. 8. How do ye say, we are wise, and the Law of the Lord is with us?] Or, How can ye say (as chap. 2. 23.) We are wise: the pronoun demonstrative, includeth the verb substantive; so Esay 19. 11. How have you the face to arrogare wisdome to your selves, when ye are more foolish and senseless, than the very brute creatures themselves, vers. 7.

the Law of the Lord is with us] We have the Law of God with us, have been trained up in it, and are well acquainted with it, and are not therefore such silly sots, as you would make us to be: As they presumed much of the Temple, ch. 7. 4. so they vaunted much of the Law, ch. 18. 18. Rom. 2. 17, 18. as if the having of the Law among them, were enough to make them a wise people, though they neither regarded it, nor walked according to the rules of it, Rom. 2. 21, 23. This some suppose spoken to the Priests, whose office it was to instruct the people out of the Law, Deut. 33. 10. Mal. 2. 7. and it may well in special have an eye unto them: but it seems to be more large, as the charge is more general, both here, v. 7. and before, ch. 5. 4, 5. as also Esa. 1. 3.

lo certainly in vain made he it; the pen of the Scribe is in vain.] In vain hath he (that is, God; the pronoun for the noun, as Exod. 34. 28. 1 Sam. 6. 19.) made it; a defect of the pronoun, as chap. 4. 4. or the verb being taken indefinitely, in vain was it; (to wit, the Law) made, in vain; as the word is used, 1 Sam. 25. 21. chap. 5. 23. for they that render it, in vain hath he (that is, the writer) prepared his pen, regard not the pauses in the Hebrew text. Now according to this version the meaning is, that the law was in vain enacted by God, or by his appointment put in writing by Scribes thereunto designed for the use and benefit of his people, Deut. 17. 18. and 31. 9. in regard of any use that they made of it, or benefit that thence redounded to them by it, because it was by them no whit regarded, Hos. 8. 12. and thus do the Jewish Commenters some of them expound it, whom divers of ours therein concur with. Howbeit, the old Latine after the Greek, and the Chaldee, which some other of the Rabbines agree with; and not a few of ours follow, underftand this passage as spoken of the wicked Scribes, that mis-expounded the Law, perverting and wresting it, to please the humors of the people, and sided with the false Prophets, whom they adhered to, and approved; and to this effect they render the words: Lo, surely the deceitful, or, lying pen, or, quil, of the Scribes, worketh for falshood, or, dealeth deceitfully: Heb. the quil, or, pen; for it is properly a pen made of the quil of some fowl, of the bigger sort especially, such as are used to prey, Gen. 15. 11. 1 Sam. 14. 33. Esay 46. 11. chap. 12. 9. though used more generally for any kind of pen, Psal. 45. 2. or, stile, though of metal, Job 19. 24. chap. 17. 1. and, the quil, or, pen of falshood, for, a false quil, or, pen: as, a tongue of falshood, for, a false tongue, Prov. 26. 28. that telleth lies the one, that wresteth lies the other: of the Scribes; such as were to interpret the Law, Ezr. 7. 6. but dealt corruptly and falsly with it, Matt. 23. 15. Luk. 11. 51. Heb. doth to falshood; as, to swear to falshood, Lev. 6. 3. chap. 5. 22. or, doth falshood; as, to do truth, for, to deal truly, 1 John 1. 6. so, to do falshood, for, to deal falsly; for the particle is oft redundant; as Gen. 2. 24. compared with Matt. 19. 5, 6. Exek. 37. 27. with 2 Cor. 6. 16. 1 Kings 19. 18, 20. See Psal. 94. 20. Esay 10. 1. either version may well be admitted, in regard of the terms; but the former seems the genuine.

V. 9. The wise men are ashamed, they are dismaied and taken] That is, as some, the wiseft among them, may well be ashamed of their grosse ignorance, and folly, v. 7, 8. Rom. 1. 22. or, as others rather, The wise men shall be confounded; and all their wisdom shall not avail, to keep them from being dismaied, confounded, and captived when the judgement now denounced shall be put in execution; See chap. 4. 9. and 6. 11. verf. 12. So of Babel, Isaiah 47. 10, 14. Howbeit, some of note read the words, by way of interrogation, and thus render; Have these wise men, made the people to be ashamed, (to wit, of their sins) dismaied, (with fear of Gods wrath) and taken, with remorse, and repentance, and so brought home to God? But this reading straineth the words of the text over-much; nor is the first word, though the form be such, found but once only in an active notion, and the other two not at all: of the first, See on ch. 6. 15. of the last, on ch. 6. 1.

loe they have rejected the word of the Lord,] Which yet they so much vaunt of, v. 8. See ch. 6. 10, 19.

and what wisdom is in them?] Or, what wisdom then have they? Heb. and the wisdom of what is to them: and, for, then; as chap. 4. 1. what wisdom can they have, who reject that wherein all true wisdom consisteth? Deut. 4. 6. Psal. 19. 7. & 119. 130. Prov. 2. 6. 2 Tim. 3. 15.

V. 10. Therefore will I give their wives unto others, and their fields to them that shall inherit them] See on ch. 6. 11.

therefore] This term may have reference, either to their rejection of Gods Law, mentioned v. 9, or, to those vices afterwards charged on them in this verse.

will I give their wives unto others] Put them into the power of strangers, as 2 Sam. 12. 11, 12.

to them that shall inherit them] Heb. to possessors, to strangers that shall possess them; or, possess themselves of them: the word strangers supplyed from the former branch, as Esa. 10. 5. & 58. 13. and a defect of the pronoun, as Ezek. 7. 25.

for every one, from the least even to the greatest, is given to covetousness; from the Prophet, even to the Priest, every one dealeth falsly] Or, because, &c. See the same passage. Ch. 6. 13.

V. 11. For they have healed the hurt of my people slightly, saying, peace, peace, when there is no peace] Heb. and they heal, or, cure, &c. See the same before, ch. 6. 14.

V. 12. were they ashamed when they committed abomination? nay, they were not at all ashamed, neither could they blush; therefore shall they fall among them that fall, in the time of their visitation, they shall be cast down, saith the Lord.] See the same, ch. 6. 15.

V. 13. I will surely consume them, saith the Lord] Or, utterly consume them: Heb. Gathering, I will gather them, or, consuming, I will consume them: for those two roots, come very neer the one to the other, and roots fo neer in their several forms, are oft confounded: for it is against the usual manner of the tongue in such forms as this, to have the words in two several notions; the verb infinitive in one, and the finite in another; See the like denunciation, Zeph. 1. 2, 3.

there shall be no grapes on the vine, nor figs on the figtree, and the leaf shall fade, and the things that I have given them, shall pass away from them.] All means of relief and sustenance, shall be taken away from them, in the time of the siege of the city. So Joel 1. 7, 12. Hab. 3. 17. the enemy having destroyed, and devoured all before them, v. 16. and he mentioneth these two, the grape, and the fig, saith the Rabbine, because these two among their fruits were of greatest reckoning, and most general use in those parts, See Isa. 36. 16. chap. 5. 17.

and the leaf shall fade] Or, fall, rather; See Esa. 1. 30. being together with the fruit beaten down, before the usual time of shedding. Howbeit, some read the words, by way of similitude, (as some of our versions do the like; Psal. 48. 7.) thus rendering the text; I will utterly consume them, as when no grapes are on the vine, nor figs on the fig-tree, and the leaf is shed: as when, with some fore tempest, both vine and figtree are so smiten, that there is neither fruit, nor leaf left on them, Psalm 78. 47. And this should I prefer before that which some other of prime note exhibit; rendring the words, there is no grapes on the vine, nor figs on the fig-tree, yea, the leaves are fallen; that is, there is no fruit of good works to be found among them, as Isaiah 5. 2. nor so much as any shew of such, neither fruit, nor leaf; it is worse with them, than with that fig-tree, Matth. 21. 19. Luke 13. 6. But I adhere, to that which our version hath, though the second be not improbable.

and the things that I have given them, shall pass away from them.] They shall be deprived of those fruits of the earth, and other the like commodities, which I had formerly in great abundance bestowed upon them, Hos. 2. 8, 9. according to this reading, there is a defect in the text, both of the antecedent and the relative; as chap. 2. 8. and the preposition is included in the verb; as Job 29. 3. chap. 10. 25. Howbeit, the Chaldee, which some of the Jewish Commenters, the old Latine, and divers others of ours also follow, understand it of the peoples transgressions of Gods Law; and render the words: some of them, and the precepts that I have given them they have transgressed them: as an addition to what was said concerning their want of fruit and leaf. Others, because (the conjunctive for the causal, as ch. 6. 29, 30.) they have transgressed them, or, those things, (that is, the Laws; the pronoun for the noun, as Esay 33. 2.) that I gave to them: a defect of the relative; as chap. 6. 15, 20. So it should render a reason of the foregoing denunciation. See the like, Esay 24. 4, 5. And this seemeth very probable: more probable at least, than that of some other, whatsoever I use about them passeth away; there cometh nothing of all the care, pains, and cost taken about them; it is all but lost labour, chap. 2. 30. for how the words of the text will admit this, I see not: or, (as I suppose) than that of another, I gave them these things, (to wit, the fruits before mentioned; not that they should enjoy them, but) that they should pass away from them; and leave them destitute: and no marvel therefore, if they be all gone.

V. 14. Why do we sit still? assemble your selves; and let us enter into the defenced cities; and let us be silent there.] A speech conceived, as in the person of the people, inciting one another, upon notice of the enemies approach, with all speed, to betake themselves for shelter and safeguard unto the places of greatest strength and surety. See the like before, chap. 4. 5, 6.

Why do we sit still?] Heb. for what; or, upon what are we sitting? as reproving one another, that they made no more haste: and demanding, what they staid consulting upon; or what succour other ways they could expect. See Mat. 24. 16, 18.

assemble your selves] Or, retire ye. See on ch. 4. 6.

defenced cities] Heb. cities of defence, or, fortification; as Esa. 36. 1. ch. 5. 17.

let us be silent] Heb. quiet; as Esa. 62. 7. Lam. 3. 28. as if they should say; it is in vain for us to stir, or conceive hope to be able to do ought against so potent an enemy; and our wisest course therefore, is to betake our selves to some such place, and to keep our selves quiet there.

for the Lord our God hath put us to silence;] These words some make the speech of the Prophet, in way of answer to the former speech of the people: and they read the words; Surely, (as Exod. 3. 12. Esay 63. 16.) the Lord our God hath put us to silence; that is, say they, hath stopped our mouthes, that we should not complain of the wrongs done us by the Chaldean forces. See Lam. 3. 26, 29, 39. Psalm 39. 9. But the most rather conceive them as the words of the people, beginning at length to see an hand of God in those things that befel them, and concluding therefore that it was in vain for them to allay to make head against the Chaldeans; as the Egyptians, Exod. 14. 25. for, or, since that, (as chap. 10. 7.) say they, the Lord our God (he who had wont to be our protector, and encourager) hath put us to silence; that is, hath now withdrawn himself, and so taken our courage away from us, that we dare not so much as open our mouthes against the enemy, much less to lift up hand against him. See Exod. 11. 7. Josh. 10. 21. Psalm 38. 13, 14. And this seems to be the genuine sense of the place. However we take it, there is an elegant antanaclasis, or variety of notion, in the term; as if he had said, It is best for to get us into some strong city, and be quiet there; for God hath struck us with astonishment, and made us as mute, or as still, as a stone. See Exod. 15, 15, 16.

and hath given us waters of gall to drink;] So is the word rendred, Psalm 69. 21. Deut. 29. 18. where yet it may seem not so proper, to say, a root bearing gall: grapes of gall, for, grapes as bitter as gall; may seem more tolerable, Deut. 32. 32. but that also cometh short of what is there intended; to wit, not bitter barely, but venomous, or, poisonous grapes: for in the next words, verse. 33. it is said of the wine that cometh of them, it is as the venome, or poison, of aspes: from which place some of the Jewish Criticks gather, that it is a kind of poison that lyeth in the head of the aspe, and thence hath its name; but other of them, that it is the gall of the asp: and to reconcile these two, some further affirm, that there are certain veins reaching from the gall of the asp, unto her mouth, by which the poison, when she is angred, is conveyed to the one from the other: but these are things uncertain. One of the Jewish Commenters well renders it here, a cup of death, or deadly poison; and withal telleth us, that it is the name of a poisonful herb, or plant, wherewith they use to poison and kill people: and that it is indeed some such herb or plant, appeareth plainly by Hos. 10. 4. where it is said to grow in the furrows, or, ridges, of the field: such was the cicuta, or, hemlock, at Athens, with the juice whereof, they used to put condemned persons there to death. Whence that saying by some used of Socrates, who so suffered death, dying with much confidence and courage, that hemlock made him a great man; as being made more famous by his death, than his life: and aconitum, or, wolfs-bane, in much use and note for wicked practices in that kind: in regard whereof, as the name aconitum, is more at large both in Greek and Latine Writers, used for rank poison in general: so the name of this herb (for so it is termed in Hebrew) is used in Scripture more generally for any kind of venome or poison whatsoever. By water therefore, or juice, of herb, that is, of hemlock, wolfs-bane, or the like, wherewith God is said here to have drenched this people, is imported those grievous afflictions and calamities, tending even to death and destruction, that God had brought upon them for their sins. So ch. 9. 15. & 23. 15. Lam. 3. 19.

because we have sinned against the Lord.] The cursed root from whence all these poisonful fruits spring, Lam. 3. 39, 42. and 5. 16.

V. 15. We looked for peace, but no good came; and for a time of health, and behold trouble!] Heb. Looking we looked (of which kind of speech, see on Esay 59. 13. we looked long till our eyes failed us, Lam. 4. 17.) and (as verf. 7.) good was not; for a time of healing, and behold trouble, or terrour; as Job 6. 4. Psal. 88. 16. our Prophets ceased not to put us in expectation of peace and safety, and have us still in hand that all should be well, and that all the evils we feared, would be easily helpt and healed, v. 11. but we see nothing less, no good, but all evil, matter of consternation, trouble and terrour. See the same, ch. 14. 19. yet some would have them the words of the Prophet to the people, reading the text thus, Look for peace, but there will be no good; for a time of remedy, but behold it will prove trouble. But the former followeth more smoothly from the context, and the terms of it; as also, the parallel place confirmeth it.

V. 16. The snorting of his horses was heard from Dan, the whole land trembled at the sound of the neighing of the strong ones; for they are come, and have devoured the land, and all that is in it, the city and those that dwell therein.] The noise of the Chaldean forces, entred upon the land, of their cavalry especially, is heard far and neer, and maketh all to tremble; for they spoyl and destroy all before them, as well in city as country.

snorting] The former Versions had it neighing: but that followeth after; and this, and that, in propriety of speech, are two distinct and diverse things: for that which is rendred neighing in the words following, is that noise, properly, which horses make, when they are frolick, or when they look after the mare, or miss some of their company, that they use to keep with: Of which, see ch. 5. 8. and this proceedeth by the mouth: whereas that here rendred snorting, and the Rabbine expresseth by a word that signifieth neesing, (from which yet it much differeth) is the noise that they make, when they are held in, or are chased; so called, because it passeth thorow the nostrils, Job 39. 20. the glory of his nostrils is terrible; or, of his snorting, as some there render it; and of the Leviathan, Job 40. 20. out of his nostrils goeth smoke: both words are here used to comprehend whatsoever dreadful noises horses are wont to make, either in their march, or in the field, and withal, such hideous noises, as so numerous an army would fill the ayr with. Esa. 13. 4.

was heard] Or, is heard: Either the noise it self, or the report of it, ch. 6. 24.

from Dan] Thorow which Nebuchadnezzar, having subdued Phenicia, marched toward Judah and Jerusalem. See chap. 4. 15.

the whole land trembled] Or, trembleth, ch. 6. 24.

the neighing] See snorting before.

of his strong ones] So the Chaldee understanding it of his mighty and valiant men; and the old Latine, of his warriers: but the word of neighing, though metaphorically attributed to lustful wantons, ch. 5. 8. will not well agree to men here: it doth evidently answer to the word horses beforegoing, and may well be rendred steeds; or more fully, flout, or sturdy steeds: for that is the commendation of such, and the word doth properly signifie, the prime, chief, choice, or excellent in each kind; used of men, whom valour and courage commendeth, Job 24. 22. & 34. 20. (see Esay 46. 12.) of angels, whom might and excellency, Psal. 78. 25. of bulls, whom fatness and bulk of body; Psa. 22. 12. & 50. 13. & 68. 30. Esa. 34. 7. ch. 50. 11. of horses and steeds, whom stoutness of stomack, Judg. 5. 22. ch. 47. 3. and so here: it is in the singular number used very frequently of God. See Esa. 1. 24.

for they are come] They are entred the country. Heb. and they are come; see ch. 6. 29, 32.

and have devoured the land all that is in it] Or, do devour; or eat up and destroy. Heb. the land and the fulness of it; as Psa. 24. 1. See ch. 4. 20. & 5. 17.

the city and those that dwell therein] That is, as some, Jerusalem with her inhabitants, chap. 4. 29. but I suppose rather, that the word city is here taken collectively; city, for, cities; as Esa. 27. 10. as if he had said, city and country are alike before them, they spoyl, plunder, and destroy all alike: or if we understand it of Jerusalem, it must be rendred, as some also do, for they are come to destroy the land, and all that is in it, the city, and those that dwell therein. See the like syntax, verf. 6.

V. 17. For behold, I will send serpents, cockatrices among you, which will not be charmed; and they shall bite you, saith the Lord.] Heb. behold, I am sending (as ch. 29. 17.) among you serpents, cockatrices, (by way of opposition: Of which kind of serpent, see on Esay 11. 8. & 14. 29.) whom there is [ill] no charm for them; an elegant redundancy in that language very frequent, as Psal. 1. 4. & 14. 4. that is, for whom there shall be no charm: Of the use of charms, to prevent stinging by serpents, see Psal. 58. 4, 5. Eccl. 10. 11. for absolutly doth a Writer of ours allege this place, to prove that there is no such thing: and as well might he alleage Exod. 22. 18. to prove that there are no witches, the main scope of his work: for as God there forbidding to suffer a witch to live, doth presume that such there were; so when he threatneth to send serpents that shall not be charmed, he doth imply, that such sometime were charmed, though not indeed by any intrinseal virtue, or natural power in the spell or charm, or the terms used in it, but by the act of Satan subtilly co-operating with it: the serpents here menaced to be sent in among them, are the Chaldeans, whose cruelty they should by no means be able to mitigate. See ch. 4. 25. 2 Chr. 36. 17.

and they shall bite you] There is an elegant consonancy in the original, between the word that signifies a serpent, and this of biting, different but in a letter, and that also of a neer found, the one from the other; which our English cannot express; but hereby it appeareth, that the kind of serpents here alluded to, is not of those that have their sting in the tail; as the scorpion, Rev. 9. 10. but that have their venome in or about their teeth; as asps and vipers, and our adders and snakes.

V. 18. When I would comfort my self against sorrow, my heart is faint in me.] After Gods menacing speech, verf. 17. the Prophets words professing his exceeding great and continual sorrow for the wofful condition of his people, or which he was by no means able to ease himself, though he had assayed sometime so to do. See the like, Esay 22. 4. Heb. as some, O thou that refreshest me, or should refreshest me against grief, or amidst grief; that is, say they, my soul. Others, (as some) my heart fainteth within me; a defect of the particle of time; as Esa. 17. 6 & 26. 10. and the word soul supplyed, because the term is feminine; as the word, preacher, Eccl. 1. 1. See ch. 4. 19. yet some make the word to be, not a participle, but a noun, rendring it, my sorrow: recreation is joyned with grief: But the verb I find divers times used in Scripture, Job 9. 27. & 10. 20. Psa. 39. 13. and the participle with the same syntax that here it hath, Amos 5. 9. but no such noun any where. And some would have it the speech of the people befieged in Jerusalem, and after long expectation of helps in vain fainting. Lam. 4. 17. but this seemes not so well to suit with the course of the context.

my heart is faint in me.] Heb. upon me; as Psalm 143. 4. See Lam. 1. 22.

V. 19. Behold, the voice of the cry of the daughter of my people because of them that dwell in a far country:] The reason of this his sore grief, that he can have no ease of; because he seems to hear continually sounding in his ears, the lamentable shrieks and cryes of his people, in their difficulties and distresses: see chap. 4. 19. & 22. 20.

the voice of the cry] As, the voice of my cry, Psalm 5. 2. voice of cry, for, a loud cry: as, voice of report, for, a loud report, chap. 10. 22.

of the daughter of my people] As chap. 4. 11. & 6. 26. So ver. 21.

because of them that dwell in a far country] By reason of the Chaldeans coming from a remote country, that grievously afflict and distress them. See ch. 5. 15. & 6. 22. Heb. from the land of remote ones; which some therefore with the old Latine, would have to be understood, of the peoples bewailing their captivity in Babylon: but the particle here used, is very frequently a causal. So Psal. 12. 5. Esa 31. 4. & 53. 5. and so the Rabbine here well rendreth it; for fear of the enemy coming from a remote land.

Is not the Lord in Zion? is not her King in her?] These words, some would have to be the speech of God returned to the people, bewailing themselves in the time of their captivity; and demanding of them, as of Ahaziah, 2 Kin. 1. 3. whether there were no God in Israel, that he must needs send for an oracle to Beelzebub at Ekron; so whether they had not at Jerusalem God as a King to protect them, that they must needs send for King Moloch (so that idols name signifies, whence the ambiguity, Zeph. 1. 5.) to set him up in Tophet, and make him in the room of God their King, chap. 7. 31. But the most, both Jewish, and others, expound them rather as the words of the people themselves, in their fretts, demanding in wofful wise, how it should come to pass, that the enemy should be able thus to prevail against Jerusalem: and some understand both branches of God; Hath not God his feat at Jerusalem? and will he not, as their King, protect them and his own Palace with them? See Psalm 44. 4. & 48. 2, 3. & 74. 12. & 76. 1, 2. Others, understand the former, of God; the latter, of their King; as if it were said, Have they neither God to save them, nor King to help them, that they are brought to such distress? See Hos. 10. 3. & 13. 10, 11.

why have they provoked me to anger with their graven images and their strange vanities?] These are, questionless, the words of God, returned to their expostulatory complaint, and rendring a reason why he had left them, and with-drawn the wing of his protection from them, and their city: to wit, for their leaving him, and betaking themselves to vain idols, ch. 2. 11, 13. See chap. 5. 19.

provoked me to anger] Heb. angred me; as ch. 7. 18, 19.

graven images] Put here for all manner of idols; as Psal. 78. 58. Esa. 42. 8.

strange vanities] Heb. vanities (so are idols termed, ch. 14. 22.) of a strange, that is, of a strange god; as Deu. 32. 12. put collectively for strange gods; or, of a strange people; as Josh. 24. 20. the vanities of the heathen, ch. 14. 22.

V. 20. The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved.] The speech of the people, again complaining that they had a long time looked for relief; but the year was gone, the time spent, within which they made full account to have had it, but none appeared. So verf. 15. see chap. 37. 7, 10. & 46. 7, 8, 17. Lam. 4. 17.

V. 21. For the hurt of the daughter of my people am I hurt, I am black; astonishment hath taken hold on me.] The Prophets words, again, lamenting the remediless afflictions of his people, and professing his sad and mournful affection for the same. Heb. for the breach (as v. 11.) of the daughter of my people (as v. 19.) I am broken: so, my heart is broken, ch. 23. 9.

I am black] Or, I go in black; as mourners are wont to do: I mourn, and am in heavinels, Psa. 38. 6. ch. 14. 2. astonishment hath taken hold on me.] While I consider the incurable condition of my people. See verf. 22.

V. 22. Is there no balm in Gilead? is there no Physitian there? Why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?] The words contain an implication of evils and calamities, so grievous, so desperate, that no power, or skill of man, was able to overcome, and ease them of.

no balm in Gilead] A place famous for the most soveraign balsame, Latine, following it, renders the word, both here, and Gen. 37. 25. & 43. 11. resin; and from the word here used, the name of rosin, both in Greek and Latine, seems to have descended; ours in English, also, coming neerer to it, than either; which some retaining, affirm it to be meant of such a kind of liquid resin, or turpentine, as we term it, as issued from the Terebinth-tree, which yeeldeth the best balsame, and is highly commended for the cloling up of wounds. See of it, Pliny in his natural history, l. 14. c. 20. & lib. 24. c. 6.

is there no Physician there?] Or, is there no chirurgion there?] For the word includeth both: The place being so famous for such a soveraign confection, it is not unlikely but there would be many ar-cists there, of either profession to direct the use of it; as with us artists there, of either profession to direct the use of it; as with us at the Bath: The Prophet therefore demandeth, as one that should wonder at it, that there should be no balm at all to be had at Gilead, no on: chirurgion at all to be found there: but withal implying, that though there were there never so much store of the one, or great number of the other; yet all would not serve to cure a mortal wound, to recover a patient altogether incurable; and that the state and condition of the people was such: for what some speak here of a Physitian, (spiritual Physicians, Priests, or Prophets, at Gilead; as Elias, 1 Kin. 17. 1. See Hos. 6. 8, 9. seems to swerve from the genuine sense of the place:

why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?] Heb. why is no cure, or healing of the daughter of my people gone up, or come? of which form of speech, see on chap. 30. 17.

CHAP. IX.

Verf. 1. OH that mine head were waters; and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people.] The Prophet in this Chapter proceedeth to lament the grievous calamities that were to befal his people; together with their wickednels and general corruption, the procuring cause thereof, v. 1, 16. enciteth others to the like solemn lamentation, ver. 17, 22. and laboureth to bring them off from their vain confidence, either in natural and worldly parts and abilities, as strength, wisdom, and wealth, verf. 23, 24. or external rites, as circumcision, verf. 25, 26.

Oh, that mine head were waters! Or, water; for the notion is singular, though the form plural: so Gen. 24. 13. 1 Sam. 7. 6. Psalm 119. 136. Heb. who will give, or, make, (as Hos. 11. 8.) my head waters? an usual form of wishing, in Hebrew: so Deut. 5. 26. Psal. 55. 6. or an usual form of lamenting, in that place also would be rendred. So also Mal. 1. 10. for so I suppose that place also would be rendred. So also verf. 2.

and mine eyes a fountain of tears] Heb. tear; as Psa 80. 5. & 116. 8. Esa. 25. 8. the very same word in Hebrew signifieth both an eye, and a spring. Gen. 16. 7. Neh. 2. 13.

that I might weep day and night] Heb. and I will weep: the copulative for the finitive: as Josh. 24. 9. Mal. 1. 9. day and night without infinitive: as Lam. 2. 18, 19. as if he could not cease from lamentation and mourn enough. See the like, Esa. 22. 4. ch. 48. 19. & 8. 18. & 14. 17.

for the slain] Heb. the slain: weep the slain, for, by weeping bewail the slain. So Deu. 21. 13. she shall weep for her father and mother; that is, bewail them: slain; that is, ready to be slain: as, destroyed, for, ready to be destroyed, Psa. 137. 8. perished, for, ready to perish, Esa. 27. 13. as to be destroyed, Psa. 137. 8. perished, for, ready to perish, Esa. 27. 13. as fure to be slain, as if slain already. So Gen. 20. 3. Job 3. 11. ch. 32. 24. Ezek. 21. 24. So also, ch. 33. 5. of the daughter of my people] My dear country-men; as cha. 8. 19, 21, 22.

V. 2. Oh that I had in the wilderneſs a lodging place of way-faring-men, that I might leave my people and go from them.] A ſecond wiſh, that he might withdraw himſelf from his people and live in any ſolitary deſart, and in any forry lodge or ſhed there, rather than among them, whoſe wicked lives were ſuch a continual eye-ſore, and heart-ſore to him: as were the Sodomites to Lot, 2 Pet. 2. 7, 8.

Oh that I had] Heb. who will give me? as verſ. 1.

in the wilderneſs] In the moſt ſolitary waſte, Pſal. 55. 7. and among the wild beaſts, not ſo much to eſcape danger from them; as Eliah, 1 Kin. 19. 3, 4. or to avoid moleſtations by them: as Prov. 21. 19. Pſal. 120. 5, 6. Ezek. 2. 6. 18, 22. as hoping to find better entertainment with the wild beaſts, than with them; as thoſe faithful ones, Heb. 11. 38. or, that his ſoul might not be continually vexed with the ſight of their ſinful courſes, as the words enſuing ſhew. See Davids affection in the like kind, Pſalm 119. 136, 139. 158.

a lodging place of way-faring-men] Or, a travellers lodge; any ſuch forry thed, as is wont to be erected in ſolitary places where no houſing is, for travellers to reſt, and repoſe themſelves in, by the way: ſee Iſa. 24. 19.

that I might leave my people] Heb. and I will leave: ſee on ver. 1. ſo Pſa. 55. 6. that I might flee away, and be at reſt.

for they are all adulterers] The reaſon why he would rather retire himſelf to any place, were he at his own choice, than live among them, ſuch as they were.

all adulterers] For the generality of them, ſee chap. 5. 8. So Hoſ. 7. 4.

an aſſembly of treacherous men.] Or, a company of perfidious dealers; not an holy congregation, for which the word is commonly uſed, Lev. 23. 36. Num. 29. 35. Deut. 16. 8. but a whole rout, or, pack, of perfidious wretches, Iſa. 1. 4. See chap. 3. 10. Howbeit, becauſe the word is uſed commonly for an holy meeting, or a day of reſtraint from civil employments, Lev. 23. 36. Some reade the text here, dealing perfidiouſly in the day of reſtraint; as if they dealt never more wickedly, than on thoſe days, wherein they ought to have been moſt ſtrict, and to have demeaned themſelves moſt devoutly: ſee Iſa. 58. 3, 4. Ezek. 23. 38, 39. And another, becauſe the word it ſelf ſignifieth ſometime to rule, 1 Sam. 9. 17. 2 Chr. 14. 11. and another derivative very neer to this, regiment, or dominion, Judg. 18. 7. would therefore have this here to ſignifie, a Kingdom of perfidious ones. But the firſt is as the moſt received, ſo the moſt familiar, and moſt free.

V. 3. And they bend their tongue like their bow for lies;] Heb. And they tread their tongue their bow to falſhood: to tread; the uſual term, in Hebrew, for to bend; becauſe by treading on it, the bow bendeth: ſo chap. 46. 9. & 50. 14. & 51. 3. one of the Rabbines tells us, that it came ſo to be uſed, at firſt, from an engine, not unlike to our croſs-bow, that uſed to be bent with the foot: their tongue their bow, that is, their tongue which is as their bow, or which they uſe as a bow to ſhoot out lies, to the impeaching of others, in their name, ſtate and life: the tongue is, in Scripture, compared oft to a bow, and words to ſhafts: ſo Pſa. 64. 3. & 120. 1, 2. verſ. 8. and this bending of the tongue like a bow, may ſeem to be that which the Pſalmiſt calleth, deviſing of miſchief with the tongue; that is, of miſchievous matter to be uttered by the tongue, Pſa. 52. 2. See Pſal. 64. 3, 4. For that conſtruction of a great man ſeemeth ſomewhat over-harſh; they bend their tongue; their bow is a lye: the lye ſhould be the ſhaft rather: ſee verſ. 8.

but they are not valiant for the truth upon the earth:] The text is here by divers diverſly both diſtinguiſhed and interpreted. The Greek reareth ſomewhat from the former clauſe, and faſtening it unto this, rendreth the words, falſhood and not faithfulneſs prevaileth upon earth. But this the text will not bear. The old Latine on the other ſide pulleth ſomewhat from this, and affixeth it to the former, reading them thus; they bend their tongue as a bow of falſhood, and not of truth: but neither doth this ſuit well, either with the pauſes in the Hebrew, or ſome terms in the text. The Chaldee, whom the Jewiſh Commenter concurreth with, hath the ſame in effect that our verſion exhibiteth, ſave that thoſe laſt words, upon the earth; which might ſeem to anſwer our Engliſh phraſe, in the world: as if it were ſaid, for the truth they have no courage in the world: as the like, Iſa. 26. 18. no deliverance upon earth; (of which, ſee there) they ſeem rather to underſtand of the land that they lived in; that they did not put out themſelves, or make uſe of their ſtrength for the maintenance of truth and equity in the land; but for the wronging of the weak. So Iſa. 59. 4. and this I take to be the native ſenſe of the place: and, for, but; as chap. 8. 15. though the copulative may well here be retained. Howbeit, ſome late Writers of note render it, and not according to faithfulneſs, or by neglect of faithfulneſs, (that is, by falſhood and unfaithful dealing) they grow ſtrong upon earth, Pſal. 73. 12. ch. 5. 27, 28. & 12. 1, 2. But this to me ſeemeth ſomewhat to force the text.

for they proceed from evill to evill] Or, but they proceed (as Pſal. 118. 17.) from evil to evil; from one evil to another; or from one degree of it to another: they grow daily worſe and worſe, ch. 7. 26. So 2 Tim. 3. 13.

and they know not me, ſaith the Lord.] This cometh laſt, as the main cauſe of all the former, the principal ground of all evil is in Scripture aſſigned, as ſometime to the want of the ſincere fear of God: as Gen. 20. 11. Pſa. 36. 1. Mal. 3. 5. Rom. 3. 18. ſo otherwhile to the want of the found knowledge of God, as here, ſo Judg. 2. 10, 11. 1 Sam. 2. 12. ch. 4. 22. Hoſ. 4. 1, 2. and indeed the former followeth upon this latter; for where no knowledge of God is, no fear of God can be: what a man knoweth not, he cannot fear.

V. 4. Take ye heed every one of his neighbour; and truſt ye not in any brother: for every brother will utterly ſupplant; and every neighbour will walk with ſlanders.

V. 5. And they will deceive every one his neighbour, and will not ſpeak the truth.] They are generally ſo corrupt, that a man can hardly find, or light on any one honeſt and faithful, whom he may truſt, though he be never ſo neer to him in nature, or pretend never ſo much friendſhip or fidelity to him, Pſal. 12. 1, 2. Prov. 20. 6. ch. 5. 1. & 12. 6. Mic. 7. 5, 6.

his neighbour] Or, friend; as it is well rendred, 2 Sam. 15. 37. and 16. 17. 1 King. 4. 5. and ſo would be here, and verſ. 9. for there is here an emphaſis in it: nor is it barely as in that common phraſe, ch. 22. 8.

will utterly ſupplant] Or, will ſurely ſupplant. Heb. ſupplanting ſupplant; over-reach, go beyond, and cheat his own brother: the word ſignifieth properly to trip up ones heeles; a ſignative ſpeech taken from the practice of runners, or wreſtlers, an alluſion to the name of Jacob thence ſo termed, Gen. 25. 26. & 27. 36. Hoſ. 12. 2. See the contrary enjoyned, 1 Theſſ. 4. 4.

every neighbour] Or, friend; as before.

will walk with ſlanders] Carrying tales to and fro, and ſpreading abroad falſe reports. So ch. 6. 28. a wicked practice, inhibited, Levit. 19. 16. ſuch friends as ſpeak a man fair to his face, will be detracting from him, and traducing him behind his back. So ch. 12. 6. & 18. 18. See Prov. 26. 20, 22.

they will deceive] Or, mock, and delude; as Job 13. 9. or, beguile: as Gen. 31. 7.

every one his neighbour] Heb. a man his neighbour, or, his friend; not ſimply, one another; as v. 20. Zach. 8. 10. but each one his neereſt and deareſt friend, as v. 4. and will not ſpeak truth] See the contrary enjoyned, Zach. 8. 16. Eph. 4. 25.

they have taught their tongues to ſpeak lies;] Or, they have enured, or, accuſtomed, them; as the word is, ch. 2. 24. Hoſ. 10. 11. where it would alſo be ſo rendred; they have got ſuch an habit and cuſtome of lying, that they cannot leave it. See ch. 13. 23.

and weary themſelves to commit iniquity] They take pains to do wickedly, and tire out themſelves in it, Pſalm 17. 14. Iſaiah 57. 18.

6. Thine habitation is in the midſt of deceit] Gods ſpeech to the Prophet. Thou my Prophet liveſt among a company of deceitful and falſe-hearted people, and haſt need therefore to walk warily, chap. 12. 6. or, as others, there is little hope therefore that thou ſhouldeſt do any good upon them, they are ſo wedded to their deceitful ways: and this the words following ſeem to confirm. See chap. 8. 5.

Thine habitation] Heb. Thy ſitting; that is, Thine abode: as Exo. 16. 3. Deu. 6. 7. & 11. 19.

in the midſt of] Or, among; as ch. 39. 14. & 40. 5.

deceit] That is, deceitful perſons: deceit, for, men of deceit; as Pſal. 109. 2.

through deceit they refuſe to know me, ſaith the Lord.] They are ſo addicted to their deceitful courſes, that they will rather ſtick to them, though to their own ruine, than return to me for their good, chap. 8. 5. or, that their ſtrong affection to them, makes them altogether unwilling and averſe unto the knowledge of me and my Will, becauſe contrary thereunto, Pſal. 36. 3, 4. or, as others, they ſo truſt to their ſtrauds and falſhoods, to their wiles and guiles, whereby they make account to ſecure themſelves, that they regard not me, or ought that cometh from me, Job 21. 14. Pſa. 52. 7. Iſa. 28. 15. & 30. 15. But I adhere rather to the former.

they refuſe to know me] A further degree than the former, of not knowing, verſ. 3. a refuſal to know; implying a wilful, affected, obſtinate ignorance; a rejecting of means offered them, whereby they might come to knowledge. See Pſal. 82. 5. 2 Peter 3. 3, 5.

V. 7. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts; Behold, I will melt them, and try them.] I will melt them, as the finer doth his oar, or metal, in the furnace and fire of affliction, to conſume the wicked as droſs out of them, and to refine the reſidue, Iſa. 1. 25. & 4. 4. & 48. 10. Dan. 11. 33. Mal. 3. 3. or, as ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, I will try them by ſome leſſer and lighter afflictions, whether they will be brought home to me, or no, before I proceed to an utter deſtruction. That which a late learned Writer exhibiteth in the time paſt, rendring the words; I have melting them tryed them. I have by milder caſtigations aſſayed to amend them; but to little purpoſe, ch. 6. 29. But the ſequel of the context, and the illative in the front of the verſe, carrieth it rather the firſt way.

I will melt them, and try them] Heb. I am melting them, and I will try them; that is, I am about by melting to try them. See the like, chap. 6. 27.

for how ſhould I do for the daughter of my people?] Or, what elſe ſhould the mountains] For Judea, about Jeruſalem eſpecially, was much of it hilly, Pſa. 87. 1. & 125. 2. Iſa. 14. 25. ch. 17. 3. & 33. 13. Ezek. 36. 1, 8.

the habitations of the wilderneſs] Or, paſtures (as the word is uſed, Joel 2. 22.) of the plain, or, vale. See Iſa. 63. 13. thus the whole country is divided into hill and vale, chap. 17. 26. & 33. 13. Ezek. 36. 4, 6.

a lamentation] As ch. 7. 29. Ezek. 19. 14. So hereafter, v. 20. and, to take up a lamentation; as Ezek. 19. 1. & 26. 17. & 27. 2. & 28. 12. & 32. 2. Amos 5. 1.

burnt up] Or, deſolate: ſo waſted and ſpoiled, as if they had been burnt up with fire. So verſ. 12. chap. 46. 19. See Joel 2. 3.

ſo that none can paſs thorow them] Heb. from no man paſſing; as is either becauſe none paſſeth to and fro by them; for through want of paſſengers, ways become waſte, Lam. 1. 4. or ſo that none paſſeth thorow them, they are ſo waſte and uncouth: ſo extreamly are they waſted, that not onely there is no dwelling in them, but no paſſing by them. So ch. 2. 6. v. 12. man, for, any one; as ch. 5. 1. and a defect of the pronoun; as ch. 8. 10.

neither can men hear the voice of the cattel,] Heb. nor do they hear the voice of the cattel; that is, nor is the voice of cattel heard there. See Iſa. 62. 10. the lowing of oxen, or bleating of ſheep, Judg. 5. 16. 1 Sam. 15. 14. that had wont to feed and graze there. See chap. 33. 10, 12, 13. a defect of the particle there, or, therein: as ch. 6. 16.

both the fowl of the heavens and the beaſt are fled] Heb. from the fowl of heaven and unto the beaſt they are fled: as Gen. 7. 3. chap. 50. 3. See ch. 4. 25.

they are gone] Becauſe nothing is left that may ſuſtain either, ch. 12. 4.

V. 11. And I will make Jeruſalem heaps, and a den of dragons;] Heb. I will give (as verſ. 1.) Jeruſalem unto heaps: as Job 15. 28. The city ſhall be ruinated. So Pſal. 79. 1. See Eſa. 25. 2. & 37. 26.

a den of dragons] As they made Gods houſe a den of robbers, ch. 7. 11. Heb. an habitation, or, dwelling place: as Pſal. 90. 1. and ſo it is rendred, ch. 51. 37. where the ſame things are ſaid of Babylon. See Iſa. 34. 13. ch. 10. 22.

and I will make the cities of Judah deſolate, without an inhabitant] Heb. the cities of Judah I will give, (or, make, as before) deſolation; that is, utterly deſolate. So ch. 4. 27. & 10. 22.

without inhabitant] Or, as ſome, becauſe there is no inhabitant. So ch. 4. 7. See v. 10.

V. 12. Who is the wiſe man that may underſtand this; and whoſe he to whom the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken, that he may declare it?] The Prophet having related the dreadful devaſtation that the whole land ſhould undergo, doth now incite men to conſider ſeriouſly with themſelves, what might be the procuring cauſes of ſo great and grievous evils.

who is the wiſe man that may underſtand this] Heb. Who the man the wiſe, and he will underſtand this: but the copulative is oft uſed in a finitive notion, as before, v. 1, 10. as if he had ſaid, Is there never a wiſe man among you, who vaunt ſo much of your wiſdom, ch. 8. 8. to underſtand and take notice of the procuring cauſes of theſe evils? See the like, Pſa. 107. 43. Hoſ. 14. 9.

and who is he to whom the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken, that he may declare it?] Or, or; (as ch. 5. 12.) to whom the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken. Heb. whom the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken to him (as Pſa. 1. 4.) and he will tell it; as before: Or, if there be none ſo wiſe among you, that is able of himſelf to conceive it, is there never a Prophet among all thoſe with you, that profeſs themſelves to be ſuch, chap. 27. 16, 18. whom God hath acquainted with his mind herein, that he may, from him, at leaſt make it known to you?

for what the land periſheth, and is burnt up like a wilderneſs that none paſſeth thorow?] Or, wherefore is the land periſhed? See verſ. 10. chap. 2. 6.

V. 13. And the Lord ſaith;] Or, Therefore ſaith the Lord: the copulative, for the cauſal; as ch. 6. 11. & 7. 16, 28. if there be none among you, that can tell wherefore all this cometh upon you, God himſelf, by me, will inform you of the cauſe of it: ſo ch. 5. 19. & 16. 10, 11. & 22. 8, 9.

Becauſe they have forſaken my Law, which I ſet before them, and have not obeyed my voice, neither walked therein;] Or, Becauſe they have left my Law, which I ſet (Heb. gave; as Dan. 9. 10.) before them, (ſee chap. 26. 4.) and have not hearkned to my voice (as chap. 3. 25.) nor walked therein; to wit, in, or according to my Law; for to that it hath reference: ſee Dan. 9. 10, 11, 14.

V. 14. But have walked after the imagination of their own heart,] Heb. And (as verſ. 3.) ſee chap. 7. 24. & 15. 8. ſo 2 Peter 3. 3.

which their fathers taught them.] Or, as (Lev. 7. 26. ch. 48. 8.) their fathers taught them, or accuſtomed them; as v. 5. training them up in ſuch idolatrous practices, as themſelves exerciſed: ſee ch. 7. 18. 1 Per. 1. 18.

V. 15. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael,] God purſueth purſueth ſtill his anſwer to the former demand. The ſame ſtyle, ſee ch.7.21.

Behold, I will feed them, even this people, with wormwood, and give them the water of gall to drink.] Heb. Behold, I am feeding, (that is, about to feed; as chap. 8. 17.) them, this people; as Exod. 2. 6. and ſee how him, the child, chap. 27. 7. that ſhall not ſerve him, Nebuchodonoſor; pronoun and noun both together, a more emphatic; and our verſion therefore well inſereth, even. with wormwood] That the word here uſed, is the name of ſome herb or plant, is not doubted: and it ſeems to appear by Deut. 29. 18. but what herb it ſhould be, the Jewiſh Doctors themſelves ſeem as uncertain as we: it is a kind of herb, ſaith one; a bitter herb, ſaith another: and that not unlikely, by the alluſion in likely hood to that place of Moſes, Act. 8. 23. & Heb. 12. 15. and more evidently by Prov. 5. 4. and therefore wormwood, ſay ſome, becauſe bitter, Rev. 8. 11. but a third addeth, that it is a plant, or ſimple (ſo I render the word ſam; becauſe larger than our ſpice) not of life, but of death; that is, not vital, or wholſome, but mortal, hurtful even to death, a deadly poiſon, as well as the other here joyned with it: which epithet the Chaldee alſo in that place of Moſes giveth it; and then ſurely not wormwood: for that is no unwholſome, or hurtful, though nothing toothſome or pleaſant, much leſs a venemous or poiſonful plant; as this is acknowledged to be: and may well be deemed to have its name, as an accuſed herb, or plant, from the Arabick word, that ſignifieth to cauſe. Said to be uſed in that verſion, Gen. 3. 17. & 12. 3. Mark 11. 21. and I ſuppoſe therefore the text might better be rendred; I will feed them with wolfs-bane, and drench them with water, or, juice of hemlock: or uſing the names of ſome other like poiſonful plants; for water of gall, ſeems no fit phraſe: but of this latter, ſee before on chap. 8. 14. they are both joyned together, as here, ſo Deut. 29. 18. chap. 23. 15. Lam. 3. 19. Amos 6. 12. but this apart without that, Amos 5. 7. & Lam. 3. 19. where this people complain, that God had given them to drink ſuch a quantity of it, that they were even drunk withal; ſo that the ſame thing is mentioned as their meat here; as their drink there: and the meaning is, that God would bring ſuch grievous afflictions upon them, that ſhould put them to ſuch torture and torment, as rank poiſons would do, had they no other thing either to eat or drink but ſuch.

V. 16. I will ſcatter them alſo among the heathen, whom neither they nor their fathers have known;] That which God by Moſes had long before threatned them. Deut. 28. 64. See chap. 15. 4, 7.

and I will ſend a ſword after them, till I have conſumed them.] So Levit. 26. 33, 38, 39. See chap. 42. 16. and 43. 11. and 44. 12, 27.

V. 17. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts;] Becauſe this people were ſo ſtrongly poſſeſſed with a ſpirit of ſecurity, which their falſe Prophets confirmed them in, pronouncing them aſſured peace and ſafety, that they little regarded the Prophets doleful lamentations, as of one, whom they conceived to be but either a mad or a melancholike man. ch. 5. 12, 13. The Prophet now telleth them, that God himſelf did invite them unto ſolemn lamentation, to try whether that would work upon them or no. So Eſa. 22. 12.

conſider ye] As ch. 2. 10. or, underſtand, as Iſa. 1. 3. either conceive aright what your condition is, and ſuffer not your ſelves any longer to be therein deluded; or conſider with your ſelves ſeriouſly of it: I eneline to that rather.

and call for the mourning women, that they may come; and ſend for cunning women that they may come;] Heb. call for mourning ones, (but in the feminine form, as the next alſo,) and they will, or, ſhall come; and ſend for wiſe ones, and they ſhall, or, will come, the copulative in a finitive notion, as Eſa. 53. 2. v. 1, 2. and wiſe, for cunning, or, skilful, as Exod. 31. 3, 6. Such there were among the Greeks, and Latines, and were for the moſt part women, by a peculiar term in Latine, called præfiæ, that profeſſed an art and skill of mourning, and making exquiſite lamentation; to which purpoſe alſo they were wont to be hired at ſolemn funerals, where going along with the corps, they made much more ſemblance uſually of lamentation and wailing, than thoſe did that mourned indeed, and ſuch it ſeemeth there were alſo among this people ſuch at leaſt as were skilful in compoſing of doleful poems and ditties, that might raiſe up and enhance affections of that kind in others. See 2 Chr. 35. 25. Job 3. 8. Eccl. 12. 5. Amos 5. 16.

V. 18. And let them make haſte and take up a wailing for us, that our eyes may run down with tears, and our eye-lids guſh out with waters.] Theſe words would thus rather be knit to the former, that they may come, and take up ſpeedily a wailing for us; the ſyntax, as before, v. 17. to haſt and take up; for to take up haſtily, or, ſpeedily; as, to haſte and come, for, to come haſtily, 1 Sam. 4. 14. to haſte and take; for, to take ſpeedily, without delay, Eſt. 6. 10. to haſte and forget, for, eſtſoon to forget, Pſal. 106. 13.

that our eyes may run down with tears] Heb. and (as before) our eyes ſhall deſcend with tears. So v. 1. ch. 14. 17.

guſh out] Or, flow down; as ſhowers from the ſky, Job 36. 28. Eſa. 45. 8. or, as ſtreams from a ſpring, Pſal. 78. 16. Eſa. 48. 21. See verſ. 1.

with waters] Or, with water, as v. 1. a defect of the particle, with, both here and before, as Eſa. 61. 8.

V. 19. For a voice of wailing is heard out of Zion; How are we ſpoiled;] Or, as ſome render it, will be heard out of Zion: that is, out of Jeruſalem. Yet the preſent tenſe may be retained, it being as ſure to be heard, as if heard at preſent, and as ſounding in the Prophets ears already, as ch. 4. 19, 20. & 6. 24. & 8. 16, 19.

we are greatly confounded, becauſe we have forſaken the land, becauſe our dwellings have caſt us out.] We are at our wits end; becauſe we are compelled to leave our land, (ſee Iſa. 2. 11, 12. & 6. 11.) and are violently caſt out of our dwellings. See Job 15. 33, 34. Deut. 29. 28. but the form of ſpeech is very pregnant: our dwellings themſelves caſt us out; as being weary of us for our impurities, and even ſpewing us out, Lev. 18. 28. & 20. 22. the ſpeech of the people, either enforced to retire to Jeruſalem, abandoning the places of their former abode, or of thoſe of Jeruſalem, expecting ere long, to undergo the like. A defect of the pronoun; as Iſa. 37. 4. Howbeit, ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, whom ſome of ours alſo follow, read the words, they (that is, the enemy) have caſt down our dwellings, to the ground: as Ezek. 29. 12. and then no ſupply needeth.

V. 20. Yet hear the word of the Lord, O ye women; and let your ear receive the word of his mouth;] Or, For hear, &c. becauſe it is a further confirmation of what was before ſaid, v. 17. that God himſelf inviteth them to it, and enjoyneth it. See the like exhortation, Iſa. 32. 9, 11. and the phraſe, Job 4. 12. if ye regard not what I ſay, yet weigh well, and take to heart what God ſaith.

ye women] Becauſe affections of this kind more riſe and free uſually with that ſex; in ſuch calamities and diſtreſſes eſpecially; as being leſs able to ſhift for themſelves. See on Iſa. 32. 9.

and teach your daughters wailing,] Learn them before-hand ſome doleful ditties, that may expreſs your grief, and affect others alſo with it.

and every one her neighbour lamentation.] Heb. and a woman her friend, or, familiar; that is, one teach another: as Gen. 11. 2. Iſa. 34. 15, 16. a ſupply of the verb from the former branch; as Gen. 1. 16. Implying, that ſo great ſhould be the calamity, and ſuch cauſe of mourning on all hands, that no lamentation might ſeem ſufficient. See Amos 5. 16. Lam. 1. 12. & 2. 13.

a lamentation] As ch. 7. 29. v. 10. from this is Cain deemed, by ſome, to have had his name; but his mothers words ſeem to carry it another way, Gen. 4. 1.

V. 21. For death is come up into our windows, and is entred into our palaces; to cut off the children from without, and the young men from the ſtreets.] Deſtruction cometh in ſo on every ſide of us, that there is no poſſibility to avoid it; as Ezek. 21. 14. it entreth into our priſty chambers, or, cloſets: nor can our ſtrongeſt places keep it out; ch. 6. 5. & 17. 25. Lam. 1. 5. an alluſion, as ſome, to an enemy ſcaling and ſurpriſing a city, 2 Sam. 5. 8. chap. 5. 10. as others, to the ſtones and fireworks, that by engines were thrown into the city. See chap. 6. 6. as others again, to the heaps and piles of dead bodies reaching up to the very windows, and the enemy by them climbing up to them. See ch. 33. 5. others, to theeves, that break in, or ſteal in, at windows, Joel 2. 9. John 10. 1. and theſe would have it to imply, not ſo much the unavoidableneſs, as the ſuddenneſs, and unexpectedneſs of it; for in great and high buildings, ſay they, the dores commonly in the night time are ſhut, but the windows are left open, there being no fear of danger by them, in regard of their height. But the former is more probable, and ſeems to allude to a city taken by aſſault.

to cut off the children from without, and the young men from the ſtreets] Or, it proceedeth to cut off the children without, and the young men out of the ſtreets: ſo that there is no ſafety for any, either without dores, or within. See 2 Chr. 15. 5. Lam. 4. 18, 19. nor regard of any age, ſee ch. 6. 11. Some ſuch word muſt of neceſsity be ſupplyed to make the ſenſe full: for to ſay, that it entreth in by the windows into the great houſes, to cut off them in the ſtreets, ſeems not to ſound ſo well; children from without: whither they are wont to run and ſteal out, and where wont to play together, Zach. 8. 10. and young men from the ſtreets: where they are wont to meet together, not deſirous, or enduring commonly to be couped up much in the houſe, chap. 6. 11. & 49. 26. both words here uſed are of the ſame notion, and ſignifie ſtreets; though the former ſeem the more general. See chap. 5. 1.

V. 22. Speak, Thus ſaith the Lord;] I conceive with ſome learned Interpreters, that theſe words are to be read by way of parenthеſis; and thoſe that follow, to be thus knit unto the foregoing ſentence: it proceedeth to cut off the children from without doves and the young men out of the ſtreets; (ſpeak it, the Lord ſo ſaith, or, it is the Lords ſaying) and mens caſcaſſes ſhall lye as dung upon the open field.

even the caſcaſſes of men] Heb. and (which need not be altered) mans corpſe, or, the carcaſs of man: but both taken collectively; as ch. 7. 33.

ſhall fall as dung] Or, ſhall fall (that is, be ſlain; as ch. 6. 15. & 44. 12.) and lye (a double notion in the ſame term: as Iſa. 14. 12.) as dung, See chap. 8. 2. there is an elegant conſonancy in the original, between the noun carcaſs, and the word fall: as the like is alſo in Greek.

upon the open field] Heb. on the face, or, ſurface, of the field, as 2 Kin. 9. 37.

and as the handful after the harveſt-man] Or, as the ſheaf (as Amos 2. 13.) from after, or, behind the reaper: which the hired reaper, either forgetting, or not regarding, letteth lye, and leaveth behind him. See Ruth 2. 7.

and none ſhall gather them.] Or, where there is none to gather, or, take it up, (ſo, and they ſhall ſerve, for, where they ſhall ſerve, Gen. 15. 13.) as having relation to the dead let fall, or left behind. Heb. and gatherer; the meaning is, none to afford them ſepulture, Pſa. 79. 5.

V. 23. Thus ſaith the Lord, Let not the wiſe man glory in his wiſdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, nor the rich man glory in his riches.] God by the Prophet here laboureth, to beat them off from thoſe vain confidences, either in publike, or private ſtays and ſhelters, whereby they made account ſufficiently, to ſecure themſelves againſt thoſe evils, that the Prophets of God threatned them with. For the publike, they made account they had many wiſe counſellors, and politick men, to manage as well military, as civil affairs, chap. 8. 8. and ſtore of warriers, and men of valor, to execute great matters; and they wanted not treaſure if need were, to hire forces with from abroad, and ſo be well enough able to withſtand the Chaldeans, if they ſhould come in upon them, Iſa. 30. 6. ch. 37. 5. Again, many among them made account if it came to the worſt, yet they ſhould ſhift well enough, either by their ſhifts and ſlights, or by their might, or by their money, wherewith they might ranſome themſelves, Pſalm 49. 6. & 52. 7. Prov. 10. 15. & 13. 8. & 18. 11. Iſa. 28. 15. & 30. 2. & 31. 1. But God here aſſureth them, that it is in vain to glory in, or rely upon any of theſe, power, policy, or wealth, for not any of theſe ſhould avail, to deliver them from death or captivity, when God ſhould bring the judgment now denounced upon them, Pſa. 33. 16, 17. Prov. 11. 4. Eccl. 9. 11. Iſa. 28. 17. & 30. 3. & 31. 2, 3. Ezek. 7. 19. Amos 2. 14, 16.

V. 24. But let him that glorieth, glory in this, that he underſtandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord that executeth kindneſs, judgment, and righteouſneſs in the earth] If they will glory in ought, or relye on ought, let it be in, and on me, who alone am able to ſave and ſecure them, Pſa. 20. 7, 8. Iſa. 43. 11. & 45. 25. & 63. 1. 1 Cor. 1. 31. 2 Cor. 1. 9, 10. & 10. 17. and in the ſound and ſaving knowledge of me, (whom this people refuſe to know, to their own ruine, v. 3, 6. Hoſ. 4. 6.) and of my goodneſs and faithfulneſs, to thoſe that do ſincerely relye on me, which will be the only means to ſecure them, Pſa. 9. 10. & 32. 10. & 34. 22. & 37. 40.

underſtandeth and knoweth me] The Jewiſh Doctor thus diſtinguiſheth theſe two, that the former ſignifieth an intellectual or contemplative knowledge, by which we conceive aright of the nature of God, his attributes, and his works; the latter an active or practical knowledge, whereby men do ſo know him, that they imitate him in heart and life, and live according to his law; whether the words are ſo to be diſtinguiſhed, I much doubt, yet make no queſtion but that the conjunction of theſe two words together, as if it were ſaid, in knowing me ſkilfully or underſtandingly, (for that I conceive to be the true ſenſe of the phraſe, in underſtanding and knowing me) doth intimate ſuch a found and ſolid knowledge of God, as doth not float in the brain, but ſinketh down into the heart, & ſo worketh upon the affections, that it worketh them unto God and his will, the efficacy whereof appeareth, and is expreſſed in the life; all other knowledge of God being but knowledge fallſy ſo termed, and no true or found knowledge at all, 1 Tim. 6. 20. 1 John 1. 6. & 2. 4.

that execute kindneſs, judgement and righteouſneſs] Heb. that do, or, doing, (as Exod. 20. 6. chap. 32. 18.) kindneſs, (and goodneſs, in favours and bleſſings exhibited to the godly, Pſal. 5. 12. & 25. 10. & 103. 17, 18.) judgement, (which he executeth upon the obſtinate wicked; and righteouſneſs, (whereby he maintaineth and defendeth the faithful, Eſay 1. 27. & 51. 4, 5.) or, goodneſs in general, whereby he dealeth kindely with all that reject not him, and his kindneſs; uprightly and equally with all in general, Pſal. 92. 15. & 97. 2. & 99. 4. & 105. 8, 9. for ſo judgment and juſtice are uſually taken where they are thus coupled together. See Eſay 56. 1. chap. 5. 1. and in this ſenſe rather do I take the words here for that which follow-eth.

for in theſe things I delight; ſaith the Lord,] Both in doing them my ſelf, and in ſeeing them done by others, Pſal. 5. 4. and 11. 5, 7. & 15. 1, 2. & 24. 3, 5. & 99. 4. Eſay 33. 15, 16. & 61. 8. Mic. 6. 8. & 7. 18.

V. 25. Behold the days come ſaith the Lord, that I will puniſh all them that are circumciſed with the uncircumciſed,] The Lord here endeavoureth to take this people off from another privilege, which they relied much upon; as formerly from the Temple, chap. 7. 4. and their Temple-ſervice, chap. 7. 21. ſo here, from their circumciſion, whereby as the genuine ſeed of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, (with whom, and their poſterity in that line, the Covenant, whereof circumciſion the ſign and ſeal, Rom. 4. 11. was continued) they were diſtinguiſhed from other nations that were without it; & this prerogative they ſtood not a little upon, and preſumed much on it, Gen. 34. 14. Act. 11. 2, 3. Rom. 3. 1. Eph. 2. 11. Phil. 3. 3, 5. Now this the Lord, to take them off, as a forry ſtay for them to truſt to, telleth them here, that he intendeth very ſhortly and ſuddenly, to hold a viſitation, wherein he will proceed againſt wicked perſons and people, as well circumciſed as uncircumciſed, without any regard had to that external rite, promiſcuouſly and impartially one with another. See Rom. 2. 25, 27. Phil. 3. 3. Heb. the days are coming, (as chap. 7. 32.) and (as chap. 3. 9.) I will viſit upon (as chap. 5. 9. & 21. 14.) circumciſion with uncircumciſion: as Rom. 2. 26, 27. Gal. 2. 7, 9. For the Jewiſh Talmudiſts are here moſt abſurd, expounding it of ſuch as having been formerly circumciſed, to renounce their circumciſion, drew on again their foreſkin: (of which practice, ſee 1 Cor. 7. 18.) as, ſay they did Iſmael, and hence thoſe corner ones here; Eſau, and thence here the Edomites; the iſſue of Lot, whence the Moabites and Ammonites here; the Egyptians, that had in Joſephs days received circumciſion, but after his deceaſe, abandoned it again; and Jehoiakim King of Judah, to pleaſe the King of Babel. But theſe are no other than their own groundleſs fictions and fables; the meaning of the text is plain enough, God himſelf by the Prophet, explaining it in the words next enſuing.

V. 26. Egypt, and Judah, and Edom, and the children of Ammon, and Moab, and all that are in the utmoſt corners, that dwell in the wilderneſs.] He ſeemeth to begin with the Egyptians, becauſe this people relied much upon them, Jer. 37. 5. 2 Kin. 23. 29. and to them in the next place he ſubjoyneth the Jews, reckoning them up without diſtinction, among the nations uncircumciſed, the reaſon whereof is afterwards given. And concerning thoſe here mentioned, there is no great doubt or difficulty, ſave only about the laſt, deſcribed not by any peculiar name, but by ſome remarkable circumſtance, and the place of their abode; that they are of the Kedarens, and the kingdom of Hazor, ſeems to appear from chap. 49. 28, 32. but why ſo ſtyled, as both here and there, that is the queſtion; the Hebrew is, word for word; cut off to the corner, or, polled by the corner; which the Jewiſh Commenters expound, of the country they lived in, as if the meaning were, that they lived as cut off from other people, in the utmoſt nooks, and remoteſt parts of the wilderneſs. But the Chaldee, Ancient Greek, and old Latine expound it of the manner of their cutting of their hair off, by the corners, or ſides of the temples, which was the manner of ſome people, but forbidden Gods people; and which Herodote, lib. 3. affirmeth to have been the Arabian faſhion; and this ſeemeth the more likely; the place of their habitation in the wilderneſs; to wit, in part of Arabia the deſert, is noted apart here: now that theſe ſeveral people were by Nebuchadnezzar to ſuffer, together with the Jews, appeareth plainly by that other prophecy, where they are related with others added unto them, ch. 25. 18, 19, 21, 23, 24.

for all theſe nations are uncircumciſed, and all the houſe of Iſrael are uncircumciſed in the heart.] Or, in heart; as Ezek. 44. 7. for the article is ſuperfluous here, nor is in the text. In theſe words God renders a reaſon, why he ranked the Jews among the uncircumciſed ones; to wit, becauſe they were ſuch in heart, as the other were in their fleſh; whence it appeareth, that the Edomites, though deſcended from Iſaak by Eſau, who was doubtleſs circumciſed as well as Jacob, had abandoned the uſe of this rite, which yet Hyrcanus in the times of the Maccabees, enforced them to reſume. See Joſephs antiquities, l. 13. c. 17. for theſe nations, ſaith he, are all uncircumciſed; though that no way either backeth that Talmudick fancy concerning the ſenſe of this place, or addeth force to their figments, which they fabuloufly adjoyn concerning ſome others. "But hence it appeareth that the generality of Iſaac's poſterity were at that preſent uncircumciſed, either in the one kind, or in the other: his whole iſſue by Eſau having caſt off the outward circumciſion; and the main body of Jacobs poſterity, then in being, (the whole houſe of Iſrael, as well Judah, as the other ten tribes) wanting the inward circumciſion of the heart; without which, the outward rite in the fleſh is of no force or worth in Gods account. See ch. 4. 4. Amos 9. 7. Rom. 2. 28, 26. Gal. 5. 6. & 6. 15.

CHAP. X.

Verſ. 1. HEar ye the word which the Lord ſpeaketh to you, O houſe of Iſrael.] The Lord by the Prophet in the former part of this chapter, (for the latter is of a far diverſe ſubject) diſſwadeth and deterreth his people from attending to, or at all regarding thoſe heatheniſh practices of Aſtrology and idolatry: for he coupleth them both together, v. 1. 16. and this former part, as to me ſeems, principally concerns thoſe of the former captivity, under Jeconiah, who already were in Babylon; the latter, thoſe that remained yet in the land under Zedekiah. See ch. 24.

Hear ye the word] The like entrance, ſee chap. 7. 2. Amos 3. 1.

which the Lord ſpeaketh] Not I, but the Lord, Eſay 1. 2. 1 Cor. 7. 10.

O houſe of Iſrael] As ch. 2. 26.

V. 2. Thus ſaith the Lord, learn not the way of the heathen] Becauſe the Jewiſh people were a great party of them to go in captivity into Babylon, and other the regions adjacent, yea, many of them in likelihood were there in captivity already, (ſee verſ. 11. ch. 24. 1. & 29. 1, 2.) God by the Prophet endeavoureth to confirm and ſtrengthen them, the pious eſpecially among them, (for ſuch alſo there were there of them, ch. 24. 5. Ezek. 11. 16.) againſt thoſe ſuperſtitions and vanities that were riſe in thoſe parts; and they might be in danger, being exiles and captives in a ſtrange land, to be ſtrongly tempted unto: Heb. Learn not to the way: where either the particle is ſuperfluous, omitted therefore, Pſal. 106. 35. chap. 12. 16. or elſe it may be rendred, Accuſtome not your feet to the way of the heathen; and ſo ſome render it; do not imitate them, See and be not dismaied at the signs of heaven] The first head of superstitions, which he beginneth with, is Astrology, a study and practice so rite among them in those parts, Esay 47. 13. that the professors and practisers of it, not with them alone, Dan. 2. 2. & 5. 7. but among other nations also, are generally designed by the name of caldeans. See Strabo l. 17. Cicero of divination l. 2. Pliny l. 6. c. 2 6. Astrology, I say, not that which we commonly term Astronomy, whereby the true nature and motion of the celestial bodies are by grounds of reason, and rules of art thence taking their rise, enquired into, and discovered; but that judiciary Astrology, as it is usually styled, whereby men take upon them, from the postures and aspects of them, to foretel the issue of humane affairs, either publike, or private, and what casual events, shall befal either persons or people: a practice grown of late with us into great esteem, being either countenanced or connived at, by those in authority with us, though having entred themselves, and caused others with them, to enter into a religious bond of a solemn oath and covenant, to endeavour the extirpation of all those things among us, that are contrary to sound doctrine, and the power of godliness, whereof this is none of the least. For the original whereof, (since it hath not, nor can be thewed to have any ground from the light of nature, or natural reason) we shall not need to go far to find it out. We have a blind, but insolent, buzzard (I may well so term him) among us, one that professeth himself no small Doctor in these impostures, and dorages (wherewith he hath bewitched not a few with us, esteeming his predictions, as no other than divine oracles) and raketh upon him by the stars, to fleer the affairs of our state, pretending to read in the book of heaven, all that he writes, who will sufficiently inform us herein. Now this man to justifie the warrantableness of this his practice, telleth us, that the good Angels of God in former ages, at first by personal conference, acquainted the sons of men with this learning of the stars; and those holy men, (saith he) so instructed, living many years, and in purer airs, where they curiously observed the Planets and their motion, brought this art to some maturity, without the least hint of superstition. But as the sons of men fell from God in divine worship, so in stitting and shifting their habitations, they forgat the purer pars of this art; and in some countries added superstitious conceptions. The holy Angels then belike by this mans relation, did at first inform those holy men, which they could not otherwise have known, of the nature of the Planets; to wit, that Saturn was a melancholick malignant planet, Mars, a cholerick and litigious one, Mercury, a thiewish, Venus, a lascivious and wanton one: and that they do accordingly affect and dispose such people, or persons, as are either bred under them, or whom they have speciall relation unto. For these, and the like ridiculous fopperies, and impious calumniations of those glorious creatures, are with them, as the Popish Purgatory with the Papists, the main grounds and principles of their whole Art, which being taken away, the whole fabrick and frame of their superstitious superstructures, will presently fail and fall flat to the ground; as with those other, all their masses, dirges, obits, pardons, and indulgences, if you deny them their Purgatory; which because they can produce no clear Scripture for, they run with these men to their forged revelations. But whence these frivolous conceits, and irreligious furmises concerning those celestial bodies, (which if you question, you shake the ground of all their conjectural skill,) had their original, may well be conjectured from the very names, the heathen imposed upon them, being borrowed from their counterfeit deities, whom they deemed so qualified: assure our selves we may, that Gods holy Angels never raised any such foul aspersions and groundless defamations, upon those pure and spotless creatures, far from, and wholly uncapable of any tincture of such vicious dispositions. But all that this man relateth, we may if we please, and be so filly as so to do, take upon his credit; for he telleth us not what times those were, wherein it was thus, or who those holy men were, unto whom the holy Angels at first revealed those things, or how it recorded he hath these revelations, concerning such pretended revelations. And as little reason have we, to engage our faith to his Antagonist, another fowl of the same feather, that fleeth yet somwhat higher than he, & pretending his predictions to be grounded on Art and Nature, telleth us (that we may not misdoubt or question his Art) that this art was deduced from God to Adam, to Seth, to Abraham; for proof whereof, he referreth us to a Knight of note, for his studies in this kind; who in favour indeed of this Art, which he was overmuch addicted to, and besotted with, affirmeth in part what he saith, but bringing no better proof of it, than a tale out of Joseph the Jew, who in his Antiquities l. 1. c. 3. telleth us, that those of Seths illue living long and without disturbance, gave themselves to the study of heavenly things, and the constitution or administration of them; and because Adam had foretold a two-fold destruction of the world that should come, the one by water, the other by fire; they left the sum of what they had, of that kind of learning observed, engraven on two pillars of brick the one, of stone the other: but neither is any word in the Jew of this their judicial Astrology, nor of any skill in this kind, or any other by God imparted unto Adam, which they yet father upon him: and the whole relation of the two pillars seems as true, as that which he addeth of the continuance of the latter of them in Syria unto his time. And indeed, if any sons of Adam ever had any such immediate communion, either with God himself, or his holy Angels, it must be those Ancient Patriarks, Abraham, Isaak, and Jacob, and those Prophets of God among his people; unto whom God used sometime immediately, sometime by the Ministery of Angels, to impart his minde, concerning future events, as well publike, as private: but no where in Scripture read we, that God did this, either by the natural course of the celestial signs, or, as from thence to be observed; nor undoubtedly had any such art and skill, been taught the godly ones among Gods people, whether by God himself, or his Angels, would they either have concealed it from them, or much less committed it unto Paynims, and Pagans, and by such, have transmitted it unto posterity, for from such in corrupt times, it crept in among Christians, being yet ever among them liable to censure; nor was any in the Ancient Church, that had professed such arts, admitted into the profession of Christianity, unless that first they renounced those damnable practices, and recanted such their superstitious conceits. But men may easily guess what Angels they were, that acquainted men at first with these things, and set them on work to busie their brains about such matters, as neither light of nature, nor grounds of reason, were able to inform them of, but must have some revelation; either Divine, or Angelical, or Diabolical rather, for the finding of them out. So far are God himself and his Prophets from taking notice hereof, as some fitch heavenly discovery, or giving any approbation thereunto, that God by them sometime derideth it, Esay 44. 25, and 47. 13. and sometime disswadeth and condemneth it, as an heathenish practice, not befitting his people to heed; as here, so else where, Deut. 18. 10, 14. From the Prince of the air therefore, it may justly by this mans own grounds and grants, be deemed to have proceeded; at first by him taught the heathen that were ruled and swayed by him; and from them, together with the worship of them in their idols, conveyed unto Gods own people. For what of further observation he subjoyneth; to omit, that those ridiculous principles must first be made good, ere any observation can be grounded upon them: the like did the Heathen Magicians report of their charms, and other superstitious divinations by the flight of fowls, and from the bowels of beasts; to wit, that observations had been made of them, for many hundreds of years. See Pliny l. 28. c. 2. and this and those may well go together, one with the other, unto him, that was the first founder of them, the father of lies, John 8. 44.

and be not dismaied at the signs of heaven] As if the event of things, or the issue of your affairs depended upon them; which those fond star-gazers bare people in hand, and took upon them thereby to determine and foretel, what good or bad success mens designs should have, Esay 47. 12, 13. Howbeit, signs there are of two sorts; first, natural, and ordinary, the stars themselves being set in the skie, to distinguish the times and seasons of the year; to which may be added, the conjunctions of them one with another, or oppositions of them one to another, whence the eclipses of some of them, as sometime do proceed; and these are those signs, which comming in a constant course, and continued tenor, (in regard whereof men skilful therein, are able either going backward, to tell how it hath been with them for thousands of years past, or looking forward how it will be for as many, if the world it felf should so long continue:) God would not have his people to be affected or affrighted with, as if in regard of them, or from them, any evil in the success of their affairs could betide them: other signs there are extraordinary, in dreadful apparitions, besides the ordinary course of the creature, by which the Lord doth sometime give notice unto his people, of his displeasure, and warning of ensuing wrath; and these God doth not inhibit his people to be affected with, and taking of them unto heart. See Joel 2. 30, 31. Luke 21. 11, 25.

for the heathen are dismayed at them] Or, rather, though the heathen be dismayed at them. Though they be so filly or superstitious, as to be therewith thus affected, yet ought ye not to be so. So is the particle very frequently used, in our versions also not seldom expressed, Gen. 8. 21. Josh. 17. 18. Psal. 23. 4. Esay 12. 1. Dan. 9. 9. Mic. 7. 8. Hab. 3. 17.

V. 3. For the customs of the people are vain] Heb. The statutes, or, ordinances of the people (that is, those courses of this nature, which people of several countries herein concurring do, as if it were some sacred or divine ordinance, very precisely and superstitiously observe) vanity it self; i.e. are each of them exceeding vain, as vain as vanity it self; and a matter therefore very ill-beseeming such as profess themselves to be Gods people, as did the Jews then, and as Christians at this day do, to be taken and carried away, with such frivolous and ridiculous fancies and fopperies: the pronoun, for the verb substantive, as chap. 6. 16, 28. the abstract, for the concrete, as verf. 15. Eccl. 11. 8, 10. and the singular distributively joyned with the plural, as chap. 5. 8.

For one cutteth a tree out of the forrest (the work of the hands of the workman) with the axe.] From their Astrology, he passeth to their idolatry; and these two, say some, he joyneth together, because those Eastern people had a conceit, that the images of those celestial bodies which they worshipped, had a secret efficacy conveyed unto them from those celestial bodies, whom by and in them they adored. But the connexion to me, seemeth to be apparent from the context it self: ye must not be affraid of the signs of the heavens, though heathen so be, for their courses are full of folly and vanity; and that they are so, doth further appear by their idols, which though they either made themselves, or caused to be made by some other, yet they wor-worship and stand in awe of. The words would rather be read without any parenthesis, A tree is cut down out of the forrest, for the work of the hands of the carpenter, or, carver, with the axe; that is, for the carpenter to exercise his handy-work on it with the axe; for the axe here seemeth not to be mentioned, as the instrument of felling the tree, but of framing the image out of the wood, or timber of it. So that here, the fore-ness and hasen-ess of their images is intimated, by the carpenter, the maker of it, a poor man that hath wrought upon it for his penny, and the instrument wherewith he framed it, his axe. See the like, Esa. 40. 20. & 44. 12, 17. Heb. a tree cut-teth he out of the forest; the verb used indefinitely, and most fitly therefore expressed by the passive: as, he planteth an ash; for, an ash is planted, Esa. 44. 14. the pronoun redundant, as Esa. 8. 13. & 45. 9. the particle for supplied, as v. 9. Mal. 2. 5. of the word rendred workman, See on Isa. 40. 20. of axe, Isa. 44. 12.

V. 4. They deck it with silver and with gold] Or, It is decked: the verb being taken indefinitely, as verf. 3. Heb. make it fair, or beautiful: to add some grace to it, having no beauty otherwise of it self, but what by such means they give it, See Isaiah 40. 19. and 46. 6.

they fasten it with nails and with hammers, that it move not] Or, it is fastned with nails and with hammers, as before; that is, as some, the joynts of it, one to another, that they may not fall asunder; but the image he speaketh of, seems carved out of the main trunk or timber of the tree, verf. 5. as others, the silver and gold plates to the woodden stock, that they may fit close to it: but he seemeth here to speak onely of such woodden gods, as were onely made beautiful, with some leaf-silver and gilt; of others afterward, verf. 9. and others therefore rather, to the wall, pillar or post, that it is nailed to, that it may stand fast and not stagger, (so the word properly signifieth, Isaiah 28. 7. Neh. 2. 10.) and fall. See Isaiah 40. 19. and 41. 7. and 46. 7. Heb. and it shall not (as chap. 9. 1, 2.) flir, or, flagger; as before: Goodly Gods, about whom so much cost must be used to make them handsome, so much care must be taken, as with children to keep them from a fall.

V. 5. They are upright as the palm-tree, but speak not] They stand bolt upright like a palm, or a pillar, and cannot move or bend; or they stand upright, as one that standeth up to speak, but are not able to utter ought, Psa. 115. 5. & 135. 16.

They are upright] Heb. They are firm work, or, massy matter, carved out without joynts, as works of massy metal heaten out of a main piece. So the word is commonly taken, Exo. 25. 18, 31. 36. the pronoun for the verb substantive, as verf. 3.

as a palm-tree] That groweth straight and even up to the top, without knots or boughs, skaled only, and the flagey leaves, which are the only branches of it; at the top of the trunk, or, as a pillar; for so the word also is used, Cant. 3. 6.

they muft needs be born, because they cannot go] Heb. bearing born they shall be; or, carrying they are carried; which some understand, of their carrying them about in their solemn processions, either in chariots, or on mens shoulders: but it may be understood more generally, of bearing them from place to place; either at the first generating of them, or upon any occasional removal. See Isa. 45. 20. & 46. 1, 7.

because they cannot go] Psa. 115. 7. much lefs help, or hurt.

be not afraid of them] No more than of the signs of heaven; though these fottish people fear as well these, as those, v. 1.

for they cannot do evil, neither also is it in them to do good.] Heb. they will not, or, shall not, do evil; but the verb is taken potentially, as ch. 2. 23, 32. See Isa. 1. 23.

V. 6. Forasmuch as there is none like unto thee, O Lord, thou art great, and thy name is great in might] Unto these vain and base idols, the Prophet opposeth the true God, (whom he turneth his speech unto) as indeed in regard of his incomparable might and majesty, alone worthy of all fear and dread, Psalm 86. 8, 10. & 89. 7, 8. & 145. 3. Heb. from none being like thee; the particle in a causal notion, as ch. 4. 6. That which some suppose to have reference unto what went before, v. 5. concerning the inability of idols, to do good or evil; because not like to the true God: but others rather to what followeth, verf. 7. concerning reverence and due regard to be given unto the true God, as shewing the cause, why he ought to be so reverenced and regarded.

V. 7. Who would not fear thee, O King of Nations?] These words make up an entire sentence with those of the former verse: and might therefore not unfitly be annexed unto them. Of the title therein given unto God, together with the ground of it. See Mal. 1. 14. Rev. 15. 4. Psa. 47. 7. and 103. 19.

for to thee doth it appertain] Or, since that (as ch. 8. 14.) it appeareth to thee; as Gen. 34. 15, 22. fear and reverence forteth and fuiteth well with thee, not with them; the noun supplied from the verb foregoing, Psal. 76. 7, 11. & 89. 7. or, as some; the kingdom, implied in the word, King, 1 Chr. 29. 11, 12. Matt. 6. 13. but the former rather, this being the cause of that.

forasmuch as among all the wise men of the nations, and among all their kingdoms, there is none like unto thee] Heb. for in all the wife of the nations, and in all their kingdoms, because none being like unto thee: the particle in a causal notion, as before, verf. 6. and there is a two-fold partiele; either the one being redundant, but added for the more emphasis, or some supply to be made, as some conceive; rendring it; for among all the wise of the nations, and in all their Kingdoms, thou art great, or the greatest; because there is none like unto thee: and he mentioneth the wise ones and the Kings, saith the Rabbine, because the wiser fort among the heathen knew well enough, that there was but one supream power, and if they worshiped any other, it was but as mediators between him and them; and that no Kingdom was perpetual, but Gods alone: and Kings that conversed with, or made use of such, knew as much also, Dan. 4. 3, 32, 37. But I concur rather with those, who conceive these two to be mentioned, the rank of wife, and of royal, (for it is Kingdom, not Kingdows) because of these two sorts the heathen used to deifie after their death; some for their wisdom, some for their royalty. See Isaiah 46. 1. chap. 50. 2. among either of which, either for wisdom or prowess, there is none comparable to God, 1 Sam. 2. 2. Psalm 18. 31. 1 Cor. 1. 25. 1 Tim. 1. 17. & 6. 15. And to cut off these difficulties for matter of syntax, I suppose the words may well thus be rendred, even among all the wise of the nations, and all their royalty, because there is none like unto thee: the particle being taken not as a causal, but as a note of affeveration, or amplification, as the same is apparently found so used, Esay 32. 13. Kingdom, or, royalty, for, Kings: as, government, for, governours, Esay 60. 17.

V. 8. But they are altogether brutish and foolish:] Heb. And (as chap. 9. 13, 14.) in one they are brutish and foolish. Which the Jewish Commenters expound with reference to the wise men mentioned verf. 7. that though in other things they were wise, as in acknowledging one supream power; yet herein they dealt foolishly, in teaching the people to worship stocks and stones, Rom. 1. 21, 23. But this exposition narroweth the text too much: our version rendreth it, altogether; and a form somewhat like it, is used for, together, Ezr. 2. 64. & 3. 9. and would so be rendred Psa. 82. 7. but the word one, is there masculine; here, feminine: nor is the particle the same. I suppose it may well be rendred, at once: and so it is rendred, though, as I conceive, not aright, Prov. 28. 18. but so the very same form is used in the Greek, Luke 14. 18. which will come well home to what our Version exhibiteth: for it is as if he had said, not of some special ones, but of all idolaters in general; as ver. 14. (unto whom with their folly, and brutish stupidity, he now returneth again) Take them all at once, or altogether, they are even as brutish and senseless, as those very stocks & stones they worship, Psa. 115. 8. & 135. 18. See Esa. 41. 29. & 44. 18, 20.

the stock is a doctrine of vanities.] Either that which the idols teach, is nothing but meer vanity and fallhood; as they are faid to be teachers of lies, Hab. 2. 18. Zach. 10. 2. (and images then furely all Laymens books) or those things, that are taught and received, or believed concerning them, are most vain things, as the idols themselves are, verf. 3, 14. See Esa. 44. 10, 20. Heb. word for word; an institution of vanities, wood it is: where the pronoun positive for the verb substantive, as verf. 3. for all the cost beftowed upon it, and pains taken about it, it is but a piece of wood, or a stock ftill. See Esa. 10. 15. & 44. 15, 17.

V. 9. Silver spread into plates is brought from Tarshish, and gold from Uphaz, the work of the workman, and of the hands of the founder.] He cometh in this passage, to the better and richer sort of their idols, and such as were most sumptuously and gorgeously fet forth: because with such fottish people are wont to be more taken, than with those forry ones of wood or stone; and sheweth, that these also, for all their rich materials and their bravery, were as far from any divine power or efficacy as the former.

Silver spread] Heb. drawn out, or, dilated: beaten out into plates, Exo. 39. 3. Num. 16. 13. to cover their images with, that were not all of malsy metal. See Esa. 40. 19.

from Tarshish] From beyond sea; from the Ocean; either Eastern, or Western, or, as some, from Tarteffus, Ezek. 27. 12. See on Esa. 2. 16. & 23. 1.

gold from Phaz] Where the finest gold seemeth in those times to have been, Dan. 10. 5. this some suppose to be the same with Paz, or Phaz, Job 28. 17. Psa. 21. 3. See on Isa. 13. 12.

the work of the workman] Or, for the work of the workman; as v. 3. the work of the workman] Or, for the work of the workman; as v. 3. the work of the carver, or carpenter there; so, for the founder, or goldsmith for the carver, or carpenter there; so, for the founder, or goldsmith here, to exercise his art and skill upon: for the word hath here reference not to the work done about it formerly, in beating it out into plates, but unto the work further to be done, for the framing of an image out of it. See Esa. 40. 19.

and of the hands of the founder] The former word was more general, comprehending any skilful workman, working in wood, stone, or mtal; this thother that work in the laft only, and such properly as exercise their skill thereupon, by casting, melting, and refining with fire, alluded to, Psal. 66. 10. Mal. 3. 2, 3.

blue and purple is their clothing] With garments of such costly stuff, and gorgeous colours, they were wont to adorn, and set out their idols. See Isa. 30. 22. Ezek. 16. 17, 18. Hof. 2. 3.

blew] Stuff, either silk, linnen, or woollen, died of that colour; which the Jewish Doctors of greatest repute say was a dye-colour: yet some of them say it was died with a worm. Others, with the bloud of a fish; & those suppose it to have bin yellow, these blew. The Greek rendreth it an hyacinth, or violet colour: whatsoever colour it were, it appeareth that it was much worn by Kings, and great Personages, Est. 8. 15. Ezek. 23. 6. and used for hangings in Kings Courts, Est. 1. 6. it was used also about the furniture of the Tabernacle, and the Priestly robes, Exo. 25. 4. & 26. 21. & 28. 5, 6. and about the Temple, 2 Chr. 2, 7, 14.

purple] For the term here rendred purple, the Rabbines tell us it was a red colour; and some of them, that it was that which the Arabians call hermes, we crimson, whence some gather that this was the fourein name of that which the Hebrews called tola, and tolaat: whereof, see on Isaiah 1. 18. but of this latter conceit, there is no probability; for these two are distinctly mentioned in the work of the Tabernacle, where the one is rendred purple, and the other scarlet, Exod. 25. 4. and howsoever it be true, that these two come so neer the one to the other, that they seem to be used sometime promiscuously; whence the garment that the soulders in mockage arrayed our Saviour with, is termed a scarlet robe, Matt. 27. 28. and a purple robe, John 19. 2. yet there is no doubt, but that they were two distinct colours, the scarlet, or crimson died of a grain, or a worm, or both, which in these times we call cochinoele, (see on Isaiah where before) the purple of the blood, or mature of a shell-fish, at this day out of use and unknown. See Pliny in his natural history, l. 9. c. 36. Howsoever, that this purple was anciently the wear of Kings and great persons, appeareth not by the sacred records alone, Judg. 8. 26. Esth. 8. 15. Luke 16. 19. Rev. 17. 4. but by the forrein histories of several nations of all ages, ancient and modern. The former and this, are oft joyned together in divers of the places above-recited, and very frequently in relating the work of the Tabernacle, and the Priests vestments.

they are all the work of cunning-men.] Heb. the work of wise ones all they, or they all; wise, for, cunning, or skilful; as chap. 9. 17. a defect of the subject, as before, vet. 7. and the pronoun for the verb substantive; as v. 3, 8. Both the idols themselves, and all their furniture, are the workmanship of forry people, unable to give any deity, or divine power and efficacy unto them, which they have not themselves. See Isa. 37. 19.

V. 10. But the Lord is the true God] To this base trash he again opposeth Jehovah, the true God, a God of another manner of might and majesty, power and efficacy, than these sorry counterfeits. Heb. And (as v. 8.) Jehovah God truth; rendred generally, as our Version in the margent exhibiteth it, a God of truth; as he is also expressly termed, Psalm 31. 5. But it may seem that it should rather be rendred, Jehovah God, or God Jehovah is truth: for the word Elohim here is in an entire, not in a contracted form, the usual form of regiment; and albeit, the entire form be sometime found used in stead of the contract, as Psalm 80. 7, 19. yet the commanding accent here making a stay at Elohim, seems to require the other reading. Howsoever the attribute of truth, in the abstract here ascribed unto God, as to the Word of God, Psalm 119. 142. John 17. 17. doth intimate God to be, not true onely, but even truth it self. Nor do I conceive that this term is here given unto God, as in that place of the Psalm, in regard of his veracity and fidelity, because he speaketh nothing but truth; he cannot lye, Num. 23. 19. 1 Sam. 15. 29. Tit. 1. 2. and he keepeth his truth for ever, Psalm 146. 6. but in regard of the verity and truth of his essence; as of our Saviour it is said, that he is true God, or very God, 1 Joh. 5. 20. and so is the phrase used, 2 Chr. 15. 3. the God of truth, for, the true God; that is, no counterfeit one, Phil. 2. 6. whereas those idols were all of them but meer counterfeits, having nothing of the nature or essence of God, chap. 16. 20. Gal. 4. 8. Nor do I misake therefore the judgment of that learned man, who readeth it with supply of the preposition, in truth; Jehovah is God in truth, or truly; as Deu. 13. 14. and 17. 4. where the word so taken, the copulative shall not need to be inserted.

he is the living God] As Psal. 42. 2. both endued with life himself, and being the fountain of life, Psal. 36. 9. from whence all life is in any kind or degree derived unto any: whereas these idols are but dead things, vers. 14. and in that regard inferiour unto the worst and meanest living creature, wholly destitute of all life themselves, and altogether unable either to impart it in the least and lowest degree unto others, or to maintain and preserve it in others, Isaiah 46. 7. as the name of God is here in a plural form, so is the attribute also plural; as the like, Josh. 24. 19. and the same, chap. 23. 36.

and an everlasting King:] Heb. a King of eternity; as, Father of eternity, Isa. 9. 6. another manner of King than either these idols, whom they call their Kings: see on chap. 8. 19. or their Kings, that set them up to be worshipped, Dan. 3. 1. for these are both of them corruptible creatures, vers. 11, 15. Psalm 146. 3, 4. they and their Kingdoms lye down in the dust together, Isaiah 14. 9, 19. Ezek. 32. 18, 32. whereas the true God is an eternal King, and his Kingdom endureth for ever, Psal. 93. 2. & 103. 19. & 146. 10. Dan. 4. 34. 1 Tim. 6. 15, 16.

at his wrath the earth shall tremble,] Or, trembleth. His angry look, his frown alone, is able to shake the main body of the earth, Psalm 18. 7. & 68. 8. & 77. 18. & 104. 32. & 114. 4, 6, 7. Hab. 3. 6, 10. Other manner of works, and effects, than their poor puppets were able to produce.

and the nations shall not be able to abide his indignation.] Heb. shall not sustain: the verb is so used, ch. 6. 11. Amos 7. 10. but it is here in a potential notion, as the like, v. 5. All the people of the world being put together, are not able to sustain his wrath, that is, either to withstand his wrath, or to stand before him when he is wroth, Psal. 76. 7, 8. Isa. 40. 15, 17. Dan. 4. 35.

V. 11. Thus shall ye say unto them] Or, on this wise. This verse is conceived not in pure Hebrew, but in the Syrian dialect; in which also some other passages and portions, either in, or of the Scriptures of the Old Testament were penned (see Dan. 2. 4. Ezr. 4. 7.) because that was most generally spoken among the Chaldeans, with those especially at Babylon: whence it is observed, that when Cyrus had taken Babylon, he caused it by his Heraulds to be proclaimed thorow the whole city in the Syrian tongue, that every man, upon pain of death, should keep within doors, Xenophon, l. 7. In this Dialect, therefore, is this passage conceived, that they might have it at hand to stop the Chaldeans mouthes in their own language, when they should be enticing of them unto idolatry; for neither did the Chaldeans well understand the pure Hebrew, nor the Jews the Syrian, which both the Assyrians, and the Chaldeans also used. See Isa. 36. 11. ch. 5. 15. The Chaldee Paraphrast seems to intimate, that this should be the sum of a letter, that Jeremy should write and send unto the Jews, that abode in captivity at Babylon; whereas some other control him, and say, That it was written rather before-hand to confirm them against they came thither. And true, indeed, it is, that this is not that Epistle that Jeremy is reported to have sent unto Babylon, unto those that with Jehojachin or Jeconiah, had been carryed thither before the reign of Zedekiah, 2 Kin. 24. 14, 16. See ch. 29. But it may well be, nor is it unlikely, that this prophecy was penned as well for the behoof and use of such as were there already, as for those afterward that were, with Zedekiah, to be brought thither, ch. 52. 11, 15. See v. 1.

The Gods that made not the heavens, and the earth, even they shall perish from the earth, and from under these heavens.] The peculiar character of the true God, to be creator of heaven and earth, Gen. 1. 1. Psa. 146. 6. Isa. 37. 16. & 42. 24. & 48. 13. Rev. 10. 6. and it is observed, that it was an usual speech among some Greeks that held one supream deity, Let him that saith he is God, make another world; and some of the ancient Fathers advise Christians living among Paynims, to say, when they would press any strange God upon them, Let him make me a world, and he shall be my God.

the gods] In the heathen language, as the gods, Dan. 2. 11. and, a son of the gods, Dan. 3. 25. ill rendred there, the son of God, whom the heathen King never dreamed of: termed Gods, because by the heathen so called and accounted, Psa. 96. 5. 1 Cor. 8. 5, 6.

that made not the heavens and the earth] Or, the heaven and the earth; as it is rendred, Gen. 1. 1. See Isa. 1. 2. the word used for the earth in this former branch is no where else found in Scripture: and it seemeth to have been a term of some peculiar dialect in the Syrian language, that used to turn Ayin into Koph, as the other Syrians did the Hebrew Tsade into Ayin; from whence the Hebrew word for earth in the next clause. Howbeit the Jewish Doctors, as one of them here telleth us, make it an Hebrew term, to make up four names in Hebrew for the earth, very fondly applyed by them to the four Seasons of the year, the Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter; and that here respecting this last.

even they shall perish] These words, even they, are neither of them in the text, nor are needful here, unless the pronoun in the close of the verse be fetched in hither, which then must be omitted there. See v. 15. Isa. 2. 18.

from off the earth] A diverse word here from that before, deduced from the Hebrew, and of more frequent use in the Syriack, Dan. 2. 35, 39. Ezr. 5. 11. from off the earth; as Psal. 21. 10.

from under these heavens.] Or, this heaven; or, as some, heaven, simply: if we read it, this heaven, it must be understood, as if they should speak it, pointing up to heaven; as some suppose that our Saviour did to his own body, when he said, this Temple, Joh. 2. 19. this heaven, which the true God made, see the like, ch. 7. 4. but some of note refer the word, these, not to the heavens, but to the counterfeit gods, These shall perish from off the earth, and from out of the regions under heaven; for so they, with some others, supply the text here; as Deut. 9. 14.

V. 12. He hath made the earth by his power;] After this admonition, by way of advice, given them, which some Interpreters inclose as a parentheſis, he returneth again to relate some of those works of the true God, wherein his incomparable might, wisdom, and majesty, most appeareth. The whole passage contained in this verse, and the next, is found the same, chap. 51. 15, 16. The first, is the creation of the earth ascribed to his power. The next, his setling the habitable part of it, ascribed to his wisdom. The third, his constitution of the heavens in a way of wondrous skill. The last, his disposition of wind and rain, with the appurtenances attending either. He hath made, Heb. making; or, It is he (to wit, the true God, v. 10.) that made; as Psa. 146. 6. and so in the ensuing branches.

the earth] The main body and bulk of it, Gen. 1. 1.

by his power] A work requiring an infinite power to produce a frame of that vast and immense bigness, chap. 32. 37. Job 38. 4, 6.

he hath established the world by his wisdom] Or, that hath prepared, (as the word is rendred, Psalm 147. 8.) or, setled (as Psalm 65. 6.) the world (that is, the habitable part of the earth, Psalm 24. 1. & 93. 1. See Esa. 13. 11. & 14. 16.) by his wisdom. So disposing in most wise manner of it, that there might be a conveniency, and sufficiency of room, for the sons of men, and other land creatures, to dwell upon; That which at first he did by causing the waters to quit a great part of the surface thereof, and retire unto such places as he had affinged them within the bounds before affigned them, to by framing in-lets and disposing of springs and streams, for the several parts thereof, whereby it might become the more useful, both for man and beast, Gen. 1. 9. Job 38. 8, 11. Psalm 104. 6, 11, 34. chap. 5. 22.

and stretcheth out the heavens by his discretion] Or, and that stretched, or, stretcheth out the heavens by his understanding, or skill: for so the word is rendred, Psalm 136. 5. Prov. 3. 19. Jer. 10. 12. & 51. 15. and properly signifieth, Exod. 36. 1. Job 12. 13. Prov. 21. 30. an unconceivable measure of art and skill hath the Lord shewed, in framing and drawing out that goodly canopy of the sky, so gloriously adorned, and embellished, with unexpressible variety of resplendent lights, over the whole circumference of the earth, Esa. 42. 5. & 44. 24.

V. 13. When he uttereth his voice, there is a multitude of waters in the heavens;] Heb. at his giving a voice, (of which phrase, see on the margent of chap. 2. 15.) Or at the voice of his giving; or, at whose giving out a chap. 2. 15.) Or at the voice of his giving; or, at whose giving out a voice (the poſſective, for the relative, as Esay 48. 2.) That is, say some, at his will, at his pleasure; for his Word is his Will, and his Will his Work, Psalm 105. 31. & 115. 3. & 135. 6. Dan. 4. 35. But others rather, when he causeth it to thunder, (for that is commonly called Gods voice in Scripture, Psal. 18. 13. & 77. 18. Exod. 20. 18. and is, indeed, a most majestical voice, Psal. 29. 3, 10. & 66. 33. which some wretched tyrants have endeavoured to imitate, some of the most impious of them have been exceedingly afraid of) abundance of rain usually followeth, Job 37. 2, 5. or, as some render the words, there is a noise of waters (and the word may signifie either, see Esay 63. 15.) in the heaven, that is, in the air; as Psal. 8. 8. & 18. 11. See 1 Kin. 18. 41.

and he causeth the vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth] Or, and that, or, who causeth, &c. a defect of the relative; as ch. 8. 13. See the same, Psa. 135. 7. ch. 51. 19.

vapours] Heb. elevations; it is rendred clouds, Prov. 25. 14. but the Jewish Criticks tell us, it is more general, comprehending as well the Jewish Critieks tell us, it is more general, comprehending as well dry exhalations, the matter of wind; as moist vapours, the matter of rain.

to ascend] Or, go up; because unless they go up, no rain can come down, Gen. 2. 5, 6.

from the ends of the earth] Not, as the Jewish Doctor, from those remote Northern, and Southern parts, which he conceiveth not to be inhabited; but from all parts of the earth, especially from the Sea at the Lands-end, Psal. 72. 8. to water the Earth, and to feed and maintain the Springs, from which the rivers stream, Psal. 104. 10, 13. & 147. 8. Eccl. 1. 7. Howbeit, we need not to render the words there before with the Jewish Critick; after that he hath made the vapours to go up: though the copulative seemeth to so stand, Levit. 9. 22. or with another learned late Writer, to read the text, At (that is, so soon as he giveth out his voice, whereby to set a multitude of waters in the heavens, he causeth the vapours to go up from the ends of the earth, The same reason they give both, because the ascent of vapours goeth before rain: but the copulative in its proper sense may well stand here, for the Prophet doth not tye himself to any such strict method here, as that one member of his discourse must be so rivetted into another, but relateth the several works of God apart one from another, and this, together with those that follow, in that order, as to his hand he found them recorded by the Psalmist, Psalm 135. 7.

he maketh lightnings with rain] So is the particle used, Ezra 1. 6. & 2. 63. yet in this very passage, Psalm 135. 7. it is rendred, lightnings for rain: and so it is used, Ezra 10. 14. chap. 7. 18. either may well stand; for lightning, by rending the clouds, maketh way for rain, which goeth commonly along with it, Job 38. 25, 26. neither of which any idol is able to do, Chap. 14. 22. Zach. 10. 1, 2. nor are the heavens themselves of themselves, Job 38. 18, 34, 35. Chap. 14. 22.

and bringeth forth the wind out of his treasures] Heb. treasuries, or store-houses, as 2 Chron. 11. 11. Neh. 13. 12. Joel 1. 17. God hath his store-houses, as well for wind, as for water. Psalm 33. 7.

V. 14. Every man is brutish in his knowledge;] Or, as some other, by his knowledge; that is, as some, man dealeth then most brutishly, when he thinketh to do most wisely, Job 11. 12. Rom. 1. 22. Or, as others, restraining it to those idol-god-makers, they deal most brutishly in abusing their knowledge, that is, their art and skill, to the making of idols, and in giving such honour to that that is of no worth or use, Esay 44. 9, 20. But others render the words, Every man is become more brutish than to know; that is, than to understand and take notice of the palpable folly and vanity of such silly courses as these are; they are so bewitched and besotted therewith, Isaiah 44. 18. Others again, from knowing, for, more than to know; as, from speaking, for, more than to speak; 1 Sam. 25. 17 from reckoning for, more than to reckon, Psa. 40. 5. Or, Every man becometh brutish, falling from knowledge, or having loſt his understanding, and his wits, as we say; as Hos. 9. 1. Thou hast played the harlot from thy God; that is, falling or decparting from thy God. But I conceive the genuine notion and construction of the words to be this; Every man is become brutish for want of knowledge: for this particle oft-times implyeth a defect of the thing spoken of. So Psal. 109. 24. My flesh faileth from fatness; that is, for want of fatness; and Lam. 4. 9. these pine away from the fruits of the earth; that is, for want of the fruits of the earth. So the meaning is plain, it is for want of knowledge and understanding, that people, all sort of them, even these among the rest that would seem wiser than the rest, are become so brutish, and so stupid, Esay 44. 18. vers. 8. for what difference is there between a man and a brute beast, when he wanteth that that should distinguish him from a beast? Job 35. 11. Of the Heathen-idol-makers and worshippers he speaketh, whose follies he doth here again return unto. See the same again, chap. 51. 17.

every founder is confounded by the graven images:] Or, shall be confounded, or may be confounded for, or ashamed of the graven image; which he casteth to have it afterward graved, and polished, to make an handsome god of it: or, as others, for which he casteth silver plates to cover it with, that it may be more gorgeously set out: ashamed of them, at present, they may be, and one day shall be; Psal. 97. 7. For as for those learned late Interpreters, that would have the word rendred actively, not is, or may be, or shall be confounded, or ashamed, but maketh confounded, or ashamed: it is beside the ordinary use of the word; and as I conceive hath no more place here, than in chap. 6. 15. & 8. 12. where they also so render it. Nor do I conceive that the word will well bear that sense, which some other give it here, who render it, is graven idolatrous; the graven image, for, or any large; as Esa. 42. 17. as the molten followeth after.

for his molten image is falsehood.] Heb. his melting; as Esa. 41. 29. falsehood, or a lye; as Isa. 44. 20. having nothing of that which they conceive it to have, or attribute unto it. and there is no breath in them] Heb. and wind, or, spirit is not in them: there is no breath of life in them. Psal. 135. 17. sorry dead things they are, altogether unlike the living God, v. 10.

V. 15. They are vanity] Heb. Vanity they, for, are they. See vers. 3. and the works of errors] Or, a most deceitful work; either proceeding from an unsound and erroneous judgment, Rom. 1. 28. or, tending to nothing but deceit, and leading into gross errours, v. 8. Habb. 2. 18. Howbeit, because the verb is used sometime for to mock, or delude; as Gen. 19. 14. some render it, works of illusions, or, meer mockeries: such as people are strangely deluded with, 2 Thess. 2. 11. and deserve rather derision and mockery than fear, or reverent regard, vers. 5.

in the time of their visitation they shall perish.] As v. 11. that is, saith the Rabbine, when the day of Babylons visitation cometh, (see the phrase, ch. 11. 23.) then will God destroy her idols together with her, Isa. 46. 1. See Jer. 51. 18.

V. 16. The portion of Jacob is not like them:] The true God, who is said to be the portion of his people, Deut. 32. 9. Psal. 16. 5. & 73. 26. & 119. 57. is not like unto these vanities; but one that is able to protect and save his, Gen. 15. 1. Psa. 18. 31. & 84. 11. Isa. 41. 11. & 63. 1.

and Israel is the rod of his inheritance] They are his possession, as he is theirs, Deut. 26. 17, 18. chap. 12. 7. Zach. 2. 12. a metaphor taken from the manner of the division of land, as by lot and line, or cords, Psal. 16. 5, 6. so by rod, or reed, also, Psalm 74. 2. Ezek. 48. 21.

the Lord of hosts is his name.] So Isa. 47. 4. It is he that hath all the creatures in heaven and earth at his command, Gen. 2. 1. Psal. 119. 91. Dan. 4. 35. See this passage the same, Jer. 51. 19.

V. 17. Gather up thy wares out of the land, O thou Inhabitant of the fortress.] The latter part of this Chapter, as it consisteth of a far different subject from the former; so it seemeth to me to be the sum of another Sermon. See on vers. 1. and the like hereunto, ch. 22. 20. In it the Prophet from God threateneth this people with extream distress and disperſion, for the brutish stupidity of them and their Rulers, vers. 17, 22. himself bitterly bewaileth that heavy doom, and maketh suit for mitigation of so sore a sentence, vers. 19, 23, 25. In the entrance into it, the Prophet calleth upon those his Country-men that abode in any place of strength, to get in whatsoever they had in any place abroad, as the usual course of people is in times of invasion, Judg. 9. 51. chap. 4. 5, 6. and 8. 14. So rather, than as those, who suppose it spoken to such as had got into Jerusalem, as advising them to pack away from thence, and get them out of the land of Judea; as ch. 6. 1. Ezek. 12. 3. Mat. 24. 16, 18. Luke 17. 31.

gather up] Or, withdraw; as 1 Sam. 14. 20. otherwise, gather up out of the land, should be a complexive form, for gather and get out of out of the land; thou hast loved my soul from the pit; that is, loved and kept from the pit, Esa. 38. 17.

thy wares] Or, merchandise; for it cometh from a word that signifieth a merchant, Job 41. 6. Esa. 23. 8. in times of publike invasion, the manner of such being to betake themselves, and the commodities they trade in, unto places of most security: put here generally for all goods, cattel, or chattels whatsoever.

out of the land] That is, from the country abroad, where they lye open and exposed to pillage and plunder by the enemy.

O thou Inhabitant of the fortresse] Heb. Inhabitresse: as chap. 21.13. for in a feminine form the Prophets use to speak both of, and unto, companies of people that live as in a body together, in some city, or whole country, whence the names of virgin, or damsel, and daughter so frequent with them. See Esay 1.8. & 37.22. & 47.1. chap. 9.1. This one of the Rabbines restraineth unto Jerusalem the strongest fort in Judea: and it may well be, that the Jews there abiding, should hereby among the rest (for the words seem more general) be admonished to get in what provision they could from abroad, as expecting a streit and tedious siege. But another of them transferreth it to Babylon, as advising her to gather together all those spoyls, which from other nations she had pillaged, and to betake her to flight with them out of her own country; which all her idols and Magicians could not be able to secure against the Medes and Persians her enemies. But this is many miles from the Prophets meaning.

V. 18. For thus saith the Lord; Behold I will sling out the inhabitants of the land at this once; and will distresse them that they may find it to.] Heb. Behold I am slinging; I am out of hand about, by the Chaldeans, to cast this people out of their land into Babylon, as easily and readily as a stone is cast out of a sling, 1 Sam.17.49. & 25.29. See ch.16.14.

at this once;] Or, as at one cast: not making any long work of it; but slinging or flinging them all out at once, 2 Chr.36.17.

and will distresse them that they may find it to.] The text here hath no more then, that they shall, or, may find. The old Latine here inserteth a negative, rendring the words, that they may not be found: and so it should have reference to the term of slinging. I will so cast them out, and in that manner disperse them, that they shall not be found; as stones thrown far with a sling, are not easily found. But there is no negative in the text, nor reason to inferr it: neither is the verb in a passive form. Others understand it of the streit siege of them in Jerusalem; I will streiten them that they (that is, their enemies) may find them. Others, I will put them to such streits, or, afflictions, that they may find, and receive the reward of their wickednesse. So the Chaldee, and some other, that they may find, by discovery, the folly and vanity of their former courses, as also of their idols, and other lying helps, that they formerly relyed upon: or, as others lastly, which to me seems most likely, that they may find, by woful experience, that Word of God to be true, which they will not now beleeve, cha.5.13, 14. Ezek.6.10. & 33.33.

V. 19. Wo is me for my hurt; my wound is grievous] One of the Jewish Doctors knitteth this verse by a supply thus to the former, I will afflict, or, shreiten them, until they shall find, and say, Wo is me for my hurt, &c. wherein also some late Interpreters of special note follow him. But such forced connexions seem not to do so well. I conceive them rather with others, to be the words of the Prophet, either himself bewailing, or in the person of the people bemoaning that grievous condition, that by their security and stupidity, they had brought upon themselves, v. 18.

it is me] An ordinary form of lamentation: as ch.4.31.

for my hurt] Heb. my breach; as ch.6.14. & 14.17.

my wound is grievous] Heb. my stroke. So chap.14.17. and 30.12. Nah.3.19.

but I said, Truly, this is a grief; and I must bear it.] Some conceive these to be the Prophets words so delivered in the person of the people, as teaching them to take notice of, and acknowledge Gods hand in their sufferings, and humbly submit to the patient enduring of it: not unlike that, 1 Sam.3.18. Lam.3.17, 18. Mic.7.9. and they render the words, But I said, Surely this is my infirmity, (that which God hath allotted me) and I must, or, will bear it. Others take it, as spoken by the Prophet of himself, as making account sometime that he should overcome his grief; but finding himself now unable to master it, ch.8.18,21. or in the person of the people with himself, as having sometime made account that it was an infirmity, that might well enough be born, a fit of sickness that would easily away again; but that they found it now to be far otherwise, ch.6.14. & 8.16. and these read the words, Yet I said, It is but such an infirmity, and I shall bear it; or, that I may bear.

But] Heb. And: as ch.10.10. or, Yet: as ch.7.26.

I said] Or, I thought with my self; I made account; as Psal.39.1. & 77.10.

Truly] Or, Surely: as Psa.73.1. as if it were a note of certainty: or, Yet, or, But; for it seems here rather to be a note of diminution: as verf. 24.

this is an infirmity] The pronoun demonstrative for the verb substantive; as Psal.25.12. some render it, my infirmity; as Psal.77.10. but the pronoun possessive is not here.

and I will bear it] Or, which I may bear: as ch.5.22. or, that I may bear it, as ch.14.19.

V. 20. My Tabernacle is spoyled, and all my cords are broken] By Tabernacle, or, Pavilion, is here meant the city of Jerusalem; or the state of Judah: as Esay 33.20. & 54.2. See chap. 4.20.

cords] Wherewith the curtains of their tents, or pavilions were fastned to the pins, or stakes: all the stays of city and State. See Esa. 3.7,2. & 33.20.

my children are gone forth of me, and they are not] They are gone into captivity, and are as if they were not, being past hope of all recovery: as ch.31.15.

there is none to streetch forth my tent any more, and to set up my curtains] He perstiteth in the similitude of a tent or tabernacle, consisting of curtains erected, or stretched out, by help of poles, cords and pins, or stakes. See Esay 54.2. chap. 4.20. & 49.25. There is none that may help to raise and set up my state again. See Esay 51.18.

and to set up] Or, or to set up: as ch.9.12.

V. 21. For the Pastors are become brutish, and have not sought the Lord:] The main cause and ground of all these evils, the brutishnesse and stupidity that was generally among them, (for if the Rulers were such, the people much more. See ch.5.4,5.) and their total neglect and disregard of God.

For] Or, Because; as chap.6.13. or, For, because: for the particle hath sometime a two-fold notion included in it; as Deut.31.20. ch. 4.30. & 12.9.

Pastors] Rulers, as well Civil, as Ecclesiasticall, both Magistrates and Ministers, Esa.56.10,11. So is the word taken, ch.3.15. Num. 27.17.

brutish] As v.8. Psa.73.22. & 92.6.

have not sought the Lord] Or, seek not the Lord; do not look after him, Psa.14.2. Esa.9.13. Zeph.1.6. neither consult at all with him, or take advice from him, Esa.31.1.

therefore they shall not prosper;] Because they neglect him, without whom nothing can prosper, Esay 30.1,6. & 54.15. & 17. chap. 2.37.

and all their flocks shall be scattered] Heb. their pasture, (so the word constantly signifieth, Psal.95.7. Esay 49.9. Hosh.13.6.) for, their sheep: or, the sheep of their pasture; or, their pasture sheep, as it is more fully expressed, Psal.74.1. & 79.13. & 100.3. chap.23.1. Ezek.34.31. See chap.25.36. The people committed to their charge, shall all be dispersed. See chap.13.26. chap.50.6,17. Zach. 13.7.

V. 22. Behold the noise of the bruit is come, and a great commotion out of the North country, to make the cities of Judah desolate, and a den of dragons.] The Prophets words, as if he saw the Chaldean army marching forward to invade and over-run Judea, and heard not the report of their approach alone, but the noise that they raised before them. See chap.4.7,19,20. Heb. a voice of hearing: as, a word, or, speech, of hearing; that is, a word, or, speech, heard, Heb.4.2. or, of report, or, rumour, (as 1 Sam.2.24. ch.49.14,23. that is, a loud rumor, or, a loud report: as, a voice of cry, for, a loud cry, ch.8.19.) behold it cometh; as Ezek.21.7. See ch.4.16. & 8.24.

and a great commotion] Or, concussion; or, shaking: as Esay 14.16. Hag.2.7,21. or, noise; rattling of chariots, and clattering of arms; for thereunto it is usually applyed, Esa.9.5. & 29.6. ch.47.3. Ezek.3.12. Nah.3.2. See ch.8.16.

out of the North-country] Or, of those that come from the North-country; that is, from Babylon, ch.1.15. & 5.15. & 6.22. and some such supply must be to make the sentence entire.

to make the cities of Judah desolate, and a den of dragons.] See chap. 9.11.

V. 23. O Lord, I know that the way of man is not in himself; it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps.] The Prophet turneth his speech unto God; acknowledging that warlike affairs do not depend upon the power or policy of man; but upon his providence and disposal: and that therefore, though the Chaldeans were never so powerful and ireful; yet it is not in their power to do what they list, but what he is pleased to give way unto; who is able for all their power and policy, wrath and rage, to restrain them at his pleasure, and to turn them which way he will, Psal.78.10.12. Prov.21.1. Esa.37.29. Some conceive it to have reference to a secret hand of God, in directing Nebuchadnezzar to shape his course toward Jerusalem, when he was at a stand, and in debate about another way, Ezek.21.21. They that expound it as concerning free-will, are beside the meaning of the text, that the way of man is not in himself] Heb. that to man his way is not; or, mans way is not his own; he is not master of his own way: his way; that is, his own way; as Esa.53.6.

it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps] Heb. it is not to man walking, (or, the man that walketh; it is not a thing in his power,) and to direct, or, settle his goings: that he should (as Isaiah 53.2. Mal.1.9.) directing direct, or setling settle, that is, with any certainty direct, or, order (as Esay 9.7.) that is, settle and establish (as 2 Sam.7.12.) his goings: to carry them on, and give such success to them, as himself pleaseth, Psal.37.23. Prov.16.9. & 20.24. & 21.30,31. of such defective, yet emphatical, forms of speech, see Esay 59.13. ch.6.11. for the verb is an infinitive, in a gerundial notion.

V. 24. O Lord, correct me, but with judgment; not in thine anger, lest thou bring me to nothing.] The Prophets supplication in behalf, and in the person of his people, as if seeing the approach of Nebuchadnezzars forces he should say, Lord we know well, that this army could not come in upon, nor prevail against us, but by thy permission and thy provision; but since that thou art resolved thereby to chastise us, we beseech thee in wrath remember mercy, Habb.3.2. and with such moderation correct us, that we may be able to bear it, 1 Cor.

10.13. not with such extream anger, as utterly to consume us, Esay 57.16.

but] Or, Yet. See verf.19.

with judgment] Heb. in judgment; that is, with moderation, in measure, Esa.27.8. ch.30.11.

not in thine anger] Psal.6.1. not according to that which our sins, whereby we have provoked thee unto wrath, Esa.64.5. cha.7.18,19.

lest thou bring me to nothing.] Heb. diminish me, Ezek.29.15. so diminish me, that I should no more be a nation. See cha.30.11. and 46.26.

V. 25. Pour out thy fury upon the heathen that know thee not, and upon the families that call not on thy name:] Let the fiercenesse of thy wrath be set against the Heathen, that do not acknowledge or worship thee, and not against thine own people, Psal.74.1,2. See the same, Psal.79.6.

pour out] See Esay 42.25. So cha.6.11. & 7.20. Lam.2.4. and 4.11.

thy fury] Or, wrath, as it is rendred, Psalm 79.6. See chap. 4.4.

know thee not] As Exo.5.2. or, acknowledge thee not, as their God; as Esa.1.0.11. & 37.10.

families] That is, countries, or, Kingdoms: as ch.1.15.

that call not upon thy name] That do not acknowledge thy Soveraignty in seeking to thee by prayer, Psal.14.4. & 53.4. invocation a special note of such acknowledgment, Psa.50.15. & 116.13. 1 Cor.1.2. 2 Tim.2.9.

for they have eaten up Jacob, and devoured him, and consumed him, and have made his habitation desolate.] Turn the rigor of thy wrath against them to take vengeance upon them for the mischiefs that they have done to thy people, Psa.79.7,10,12.

for] Or, because; as verf.21.

eaten up Jacob, and devoured him, and consumed him] Heb. eaten Jacob, and eaten him, and consumed him. Which would rather be rendred, eaten up Jacob, even (as chap.6.5,19.) eaten him, and consumed him; that is, to eaten him up, that they have clean consumed him. See ch.50.7,17.

have made his habitation desolate.] This some of the Jewish Interpreters understand of the Temple; and would have it read in the future: They will lay the Temple waste. But this forced expofition is needless, when the words are of themselves plain enough: as Jacob, for, his posterity Gods people: so, his habitation, taken collectively, for the land and cities of their abode. See chap.8.16. & 9.11. verf.22.

CHAP. XI.

Verf.1. THE word that came to Jeremiah, from the Lord, saying,] See chap.1.1. The time when this message was delivered by God to the Prophet, as well as of those foregoing, ch.10.1,17. is uncertain; they might very well be much about the same time. See verf.9.

V.2. Hear ye the words of this Covenant] He is willed to mind them of the covenant which in Moses his time, they had with God entred into, and to call upon them for the due observation of it; with a taxing them and their ancestors for the wilful breach of it, and obstinate perstitance therein, v.8,10. for which they are threatned with destruction, v.11,17.

Hear] That is, consider, regard, obey, observe: as v.3,7.

the words] Or, matter therein contained: as chap.7.27. and 36.32.

of this covenant] Long fince plighted between God and them, Exod.24.3,8. Deut.29.10,22. and it is not unlikely, that the Prophet held out the book, or volume of the Law, wherein the covenant was engrolled, and recorded, then in his hand.

and speak unto the men of Judah, and unto the Inhabitants of Jerusalem] Heb. and ye shall speak, or, speak ye; as 2 Kin.1.6. whence some suppose that this message should be delivered unto Jeremy, to impart unto the Priests, withal charging them, according to their duty, Deut.31.12,13. & 33.10. to acquaint the people with it. And they therefore render the whole verse thus; Hear ye, to wit, O Priests, the words of the covenant, that ye may (as chap.10.18.) speak them to the men of Judah, &c. But the words following, And say thou, or, thou shalt say, verf.3. seem to controul this. Others rather, and so some of the Jewish Doctors conceive, that some other Prophets of those times were to joyn with Jeremy, in the delivery of this message, either Zephany, if it were in the days of Josiah, Zeph.1.1. or Uriah, if it were in the days of Jehoiakim, chap.26.20. But I suppose we need not have recourse unto either of these helps. The Scripture doth oft pass from number to number; as it doth apparently in this place: for in the next verse the Charge is in the singular given to the Prophet, unto whom alone doubtless this message was delivered, v.1. but the plural number is here used, as I conceive, to intimate, what God would have his Ministers and Messengers press especially upon his people, to wit, the keeping of covenants with him; and to let the Prophet know, that this part of his message was no other; than others in his place, were from time to time, as occasion was, to be dealing in with his people. See v.4.

V. 3. And say thou unto them;] Heb. And thou shalt say (as v. 2. Thou shalt speak) unto them; to wit, to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, v. 2. See Esa.1.1.

Thus saith the Lord God of Israel] The Lord God that made his covenant with Israel, Deut.5.2.

Cursed be the man that obeyeth not the words of this covenant] Heb. Cursed be the man; evil betide him, Deut.27.26. that heareth not, as Psal.81.11,13. So verf.2. the words of this covenant. See verf.2.

V. 4. Which I made with your fathers, in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt from the iron furnace,] Egypt is called an iron furnace, or, furnace of iron: as here, so Deut.4.20.1 Kin.8. 51. in allusion unto such furnaces, wherein oar or metal is melted and tried, Esa.48.10. and it is called an iron furnace, not in regard of the matter, whereof such are wont to be made; for furnaces and melting pots are not made of metal, but of earth, Psal.12.6. but in regard of the oar or metal therein to be melted; a stronger matter being required for the making of such a furnace, wherein not gold or silver, tin or lead, but iron, either oar or metal, is to be melted and cast, and a far fiercer fire to be used about it, than with any of those other. God hereby intimating the grievousnesse and extremity of that affliction, which this people sustained in Egypt, and out of which he delivered them, by bringing of them from thence, Exod.1. 13,14. Of the rest of the verse, see ch.7.22.

Saying, Obey my voice, and do them, according to all that I command you; so shall ye be my people, and I will be your God;] Exod.19.5,6. Lev.26. 3,12. See ch.7.23.

do them] To wit, my commandments, or the things contained and contracted on your parts in the Covenant, v.2,3. See v.6. the pronoun for the noun; as ch.4.9. and a passage from number to number; as verf.2.

V. 5. That I may perform the oath which I sware unto your Fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day.] Heb. That I may confirm, or establish, the oath, which I sware unto your Fathers, by making it good unto them, Deut.7.12. & 8.18. & 9.5. as it is this day] Or, as this day appeareth. So Deut.8.18. chap. 44.6.

Then answered I, and said, So be it, O Lord.] Heb. And (as ch.4.10.) I answered (as Esay 21.9.) and said, Amen, O Lord: which some expound with reference to Gods command, as if he had said, Lord, what thou hast enjoyned me, I will do, and encite others of my rank, Priests and Prophets, likewise, unto the doing of the same. Others conceive it, as spoken in the person of the body of the people, as obliging themselves under a penalty unto the due observation of Gods commands; as Deu.27.15,26. Psa.106.48. I conceive it rather to be the speech of the Prophet, speaking in his own person, taking hold of the speech of the People, and having respect unto, those gracious words in the close of his speech, and putting his Amen thereunto, as if he had said, So Lord let it be, that this people being careful to keep covenant with thee, may enjoy still that land, which thou didst by oath bind thy self to settle them in. See ch.8.6.

V. 6. Then the Lord said unto me;] Heb. And; as v.5. which need not here be altered. Or, Again; as cha.1.11. For it is a repetition of the former injunction.

proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem;] Proclaim] As chap.7.1.

all these words] As chap.7.27.

Hear ye the words of this Covenant, and do them.] Action and practice

V. 7. For I earnestly protested unto your Fathers, in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, even unto this day, rising early and protesting, saying, Obey my voice.] See chap.7. 23,25.

earnestly protested] Heb. protesting protested, 1 Sam.8.9. as, charging charged, Gen.43.3.

I brought them up] As chap.2.6.

rising early] See ch.5.8. & 7.13.

Yet they obeyed not, nor enclined their ear; but walked every one in the imagination of their evill heart.] See ch.7.24.

therefore will I bring upon them all the words of this covenant, which they have commanded them to do; but they did them not.] Heb. and (as chap. 7.28.) I brought upon them: and so it would be rendred as chap.27.7. I brought upon them all those menaces or judgements threatned in the Law against the wilful transgressors and violaters of the covenant plighted between me and them, Deut.28.16. & 29.19,20. a two-fold defect of the pronoun after the verb; as Gen.43.14. cha. 9,10.

V. 9. And the Lord said unto me,] Or, again; or, Moreover; as verſ. 6.

A conſpiracy is found among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jeruſalem.] Becauſe it might be ſaid, what is all this to thoſe that now live, if their fore-fathers in former ages brake covenant with God, and ſmarted then for the ſame? God therefore reſteth the Prophet, that the main body of the Jewiſh people, and thoſe of Jeruſalem, among the reſt, had made a general revolt from him, and breaken themſelves unto thoſe idolatrous courſes, that their fore-fathers took before them. And hence the Jewiſh Commenters, not without ſome good probability, gather, that this Prophecy was delivered in the reign of Jehoiakim; what time they fell back from Gods ſervice and worſhip, reſtored with them, and ſetled among them, in the days of good Joſias. See chap.1.4.1.

A conſpiracy] Or, combination, or, league, 2 Kin.15.30. & 17.4. a defection from God, as by a general conſent of all ſorts of people thorowout the Land and State. So Ezek.22.25. a conſpiracy among the Prophets.

is found] That is, ſay ſome, is detected: as, the King of Aſſyria found conſpiracy in Hoſhea, 2 King.17.4. and, as a thief is found, when he is taken in the manner, Jer.2.26. but it may alſo be the uſual phraſe of Scripture, be underſtood ſimply, A conſpiracy is found, that is, there is a conſpiracy. See the like, Eſt.1.5. Eſa.13.15. Luke 17.18.

among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jeruſalem] Heb. in the man of Judah: but man, for, men; as Eſa.5.3. among the main body of the Jewiſh State: for whereas one of great note underſtandeth it of a conſpiracy, between the men of Judah, and thoſe of Iſrael the ten tribes: as if, though being at enmity otherwiſe, they had now conſpired together in a revolt from God, he ſeemeth not to have obſerved the preciſe terms of the text: in, for, among; as Eſay 66.19.

V.10. They are turned away to the iniquities of their fore-fathers, which refuſed to hear my words:] Being not warned, nor amended, by thoſe judgments, which for their diſobedience befel them, ch.7.26. v.8. See ch.13.10. Heb. they have returned upon, or, unto; as Prov.26.11. with 2.22. ch.6.9.

Fore-fathers] Heb. firſt fathers: firſt, for, former; as Eccl.7.10. Eſa. 61.4. 1 Tim.5.13. Rev.1.4.

and they went after other gods to ſerve them:] This thus rendred, may ſeem to be meant of their anceſtors. But it ſeems rather by the emphatical expreſſion of the pronoun in the text, to have reference unto thoſe that then lived, the preſent conſpirators and late revolters; and would therefore, to take away all ambiguity, be rendred, and they, or they alſo (as ch.3.6.) are gone after other gods. See ch.7.9. & 13.10.

the houſe of Iſrael and the houſe of Judah, have broken my covenant which I made with their Fathers.] As well Judah, as Iſrael; the other ten tribes, have broken covenant with me. See ch.3.6,8.& 5.11. Howbeit, it followeth not hence, that the conſpiracy mentioned, v.9. was there intended between the two houſes, as that Learned Writer ſuppoſeth to be from this clauſe made good. Of the two houſes, See on ch.3.18.

V. 11. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord] The ſin in breach of Covenant was before, v.9, 10. the denunciation of judgment for it, now followeth.

Behold, I will bring evil upon them, which they ſhall not be able to eſcape.] I will deal with them, as I did with their Fathers before them, v.8. Heb. I am bringing, (as ch.4.6.& 6.19.) evil to them, (for, upon them, as Ezek.7.16.) which they ſhall not be able to get out off, as Pſal. 88.8. and ſuch a redundancy, as verſ.12. that ſhall entangle them in ſuch difficulties and perplexities, as they ſhall not be able by all their might or ſlight, to wind themſelves out off. See the like, Mic.2.3.

and though they ſhall cry unto me, I will not hearken unto them.] I will deal then with them, as they deal now with me; I will then refuſe to hear them, as they now refuſe to hearken to me, verſ.10. Zach.7.11,13. Heb. and they ſhall cry unto me, and I will not hearken unto them; the like Syntax, See Eſay 58.9. chap.7.27. and 8.4.

V. 12. Then ſhall the cities of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jeruſalem go and cry unto the Gods unto whom they offer incenſe.] Let them ſeek then for ſuccour to them, whom now they ſerve, Deut.32.37,38. Judg.10.14. See ch.2.28.

Then] Heb. And, as verſ.5.

ſhall go and cry] Or, let them go and cry; as, let them ariſe, chap. 2.28.

the cities of Judah] The Inhabitants of them, as Eſa.40.9. to which they offer incenſe.] Which they worſhip; one part of religious worſhip put for the whole, as ch.7.9. Heb. which they are burning incenſe to them; an uſual redundancy, as Pſal.1.4. Prov.2.15. and before, v.11.

but they ſhall not ſave them at all in the time of their trouble.] Heb. and (as chap.10.10.) they ſhall not ſaving ſave them, (that is, be able at all to ſave them, as Eſay 45.20.) in the time of their evil, of that evil, which I am bringing upon them, verſ.11.

V. 13. For according to the number of thy cities were thy Gods, O Judah, and according to the number of thy ſtreets, O Jeruſalem, have ye ſet up altars to that ſhameful thing, even altars to burn incenſe unto Baal.] See ch.2.28.

that ſhameful thing] Heb. ſhame, as ch.3.24. Hoſ.9.10.

burn incenſe to Baal] See ch.7.9.

V. 14. Therefore pray not thou for this people, neither lift up a cry or prayer for them.] See ch.7.16. So ch.7.11.

for I will not hear them in the time that they cry unto me for their trouble] As v.11. nor thee for them, as ch.7.16.

V. 15. What hath my beloved to do in my houſe?] Theſe words are by divers diverſly expounded. One of the Jewiſh Commenters maketh them the Prophets ſpeech, ſpeaking of God, What ſhould my beloved (that is, God, whom I love, as Eſa.5.1.) do any longer in my houſe? to wit, his Temple, which I as conſtantly frequent as mine own houſe: So Anna, Luke 2.37. One of ours, (who ſeemeth to have taken his riſe from the Rabbine) maketh them Gods ſpeech ſpeaking of the Prophet; What ſhould my beloved (thou my dear Prophet) do any more in my houſe? frequent my Temple any longer, there to preach to this people, or to pray for them, when as there is no good to be done, either upon them by the one, or for them by the other, verſ. 14. Another of ours expounds them thus, as a ſpeech of God the Father, ſpeaking of Chriſt his beloved ſon, Matt.3.17.& 17.5. Eph. 1.6. who had wont to manifeſt himſelf, in his word and power in the Temple, Exod.23.20.& 33.14. Ezek.1.26. and 10.2. Mal. 3.1. But the Chaldee, whom another of the Jewiſh Commenters concurreth with, underſtandeth it as ſpoken by God of his people. What hath my people, whom I heretofore ſo entirely affected, and ſo dearly loved, Eſay 5.1. ch.12.7. Hoſ.3.1.& 11.1. Mal.1.2. any more to do in mine houſe, when the hath ſo grievouſly played the harlot? Eſa.1.12,21. ch.7.9,11. And the entendment of it ſeemeth to be, to cut them off from hoping to prevail with God by prayer, and repairing for that end to his Temple, where he had promiſed to hear them, while they continued loyal with him; or when they returned ſincerely to him, 2 Chr.7.14,15. Heb. What to my beloved in my houſe? as Eſa.22.16.

ſeeing ſhe hath wrought lewdneſs with many] Heb. in her committing villeneſs with many; a defect of the prepoſition, as well before the verb, as the noun; when the taketh ſuch vile and lewd courſes with ſo many, either wicked ones, Heathen, whom ſhe joyneth with, as ſonne; or idols rather, after whom ſhe goeth an whoring, ſo others: as if the were ſome common ſtrumpet; what ſhould ſhe do any more in my houſe, to make my houſe no better than a brothel-houſe? Chap.7.30. See Chap.2.20.& 3.1,2. verſ.13. There is in the Hebrew a paſſage from gender to gender, whereof ſee ch.2.1.A Learned late Writer would have it rendred, her doing; (that is, her doings, or deeds; the verb for the noun) is extreame lewdneſs, O ye great ones: the article in a vocative notion; as Deut. 32.1. Joel 1.2. let others conſider of it. I concur with the former.

and the holy fleſh is paſſed from thee] Theſe words have almoſt as many interpretations, as Interpreters. Some by holy fleſh, underſtand the faithful people among them clean waſhed and gone, Pſal.12.1. Eſay 64.6,7. Chap.5.1. Mic.7.1. fleſh; for, people, as Pſal.65.2. Eſa.40.5. to paſs away; for, to periſh, and be gone, Job 6.15.& 9.26. Some the circumciſion, which they bare in their fleſh, as a ſeal of Gods Covenane, and the ſign of an holy ſeed, Gen.17.11,13. Ezra 9.2. which by reaſon of their profaneneſs and ungodlineſs otherwiſe, was become as uncircumciſion unto them, chap.9.26. Rom.2. 25,29. The moſt of the fleſh of ſuch beaſts, as were ſlain for ſacrifice, to be offered either unto idols, or unto God. And among thoſe that thus take the word fleſh; ſome read the words, as uttered by way of interrogation; ſome as by way of enunciation: of thoſe that follow the former manner of reading, one expoundeth them of their idolatrous ſacrifices, the fleſh whereof, ſaith he, is called holy, by a contrariety of ſpeech, as unholy and impure; as the Greek ἀγιὰ, and the Latine ſacers, is ſometimes uſed; and the Hebrew Kaddeſh, Lev.6.29. Deut.22.9. but herein I ſuppoſe this Author goeth alone, and ſo I leave him. Others of them, and ſo the Ancient Greek, and Old Latine, and thoſe many that follow either, underſtand it of the Sacrifices offered to God in the Temple, called fleſh of holineſs, as Hag.2.12. as ſanctified by the altar on which it was offered, Mat.23.19. and they render the words ſhall, or, can, the holy fleſh cauſe thy wickedneſs to paſs away from thee, wherein thou doeſt glory? do ye imagine, that your ſacrifices are able to expiate your ſins, when ye are ſo far from being humbled for them, that ye glory in them. See chap.7.9,21. But this expoſition the words will not bear, for the verb is not here in an active or tranſitive, but in a ſtanding or immanent form or notion; it ſignifieth not to put away, but to paſs away; and ſo the beſt Interpreters reading the words enunciatively, render them; the holy fleſh hath paſſed, or, is paſſed away, from thee. Which ſome expound of their utter neglect of Gods altar, and the ſacrifices to it belonging, which they dif-regarded and no more looked after, than as if they were matters that had never been injoyned them, as 2 Chr.28. 24. Eſay 57.5,6. but this ſeems not ſo probable. Others rather, that their devotions and holy performances, were all paſt away, in regard of any acceptance they found with God, or benefit that redounded thence to themſelves; See Eſay 1.11,15, and 66.3. Or, that they were ſo profaned, that the holineſs of them was utterly gone; though holy in themſelves, yet not holy to them, Hoſ.2.13, 14. Tit.1.15. or, laſtly, that they had no more right now to the holy word, or, ſpeech, and ſo our Engliſh rendreth it, Ezek.1.24. a voice of ſpeech; and according to this notion they expound this place: God with a word will kindle a fire. But neither doth that verſion in Ezekiel, ſute well with the other refreſhfulneſs there adjoyned, of the riuſhing of many, or, mighty waters, and, the noiſe of a camp: nor doth the epither great, here annexed to it, ſo well ſort with it in this place; with, as chap.2.18. or, at, as Numb. 16.38.

hath he kindled a fire] Or, hath kindled a fire, or, will kindle a fire: the Lord, who called thee, &c. as before; will now kindle a fire, is now reſolved to ſet thee on fire, to waſte and conſume thee with fire and ſword, ch.17.27. & 21.14.

upon it] Or, as one of the Jewiſh Criticks rendreth it, in the branches thereof, ſo the word is uſed, Nehe.8.15. and it may ſtand not amiſs here.

and the branches of it are broken down.] Heb. and they ſhall break the boughs of it: but the verb is put indefinitely, and is therefore by the paſſive not amiſs rendred, as Mal.1.4. Luke 12.20. the word rendred branches; uſed alſo, Ezek.31.12. is deemed properly to ſignifie, high and lofty boughs, and by it therefore the Rabbines here would have underſtood, the Kings Palace, and Gods Temple, and ſome others, their Princes, as by the former the people.

V. 17. For the Lord of hoſts that planted thee, hath pronounced evil againſt thee, for the evil of the houſe of Iſrael, and of the houſe of Judah, which they have done againſt themſelves to provoke me to anger, in offering incenſe unto Baal.] In theſe words the Prophet doth more plainly unfold, what in the former verſe he had ſpoken concerning this people, and the evil that was to befal them, in the great change of their eſtate; withal, pointing them to the principal procuring cauſe of it, their idolatrous practices, whereby they had provoked God to wrath, and jealouſie againſt them.

For] Heb. And; as ch.5.2.

that planted thee] As Iſa.5.2. ch.2.21.

hath pronounced evil againſt thee] Heb. ſpoken evil againſt thee, or concerning thee; paſſed a doom of penalty upon thee. So chap.26. 13,19.

for the evil of the houſe of Iſrael, and of the houſe of Judah] Which they have learned the one from the other, and wherein the one hath imitated the other; for the houſe of Iſrael is here mentioned only, as the former in defection to idolatry, whom the other afterward did perfidiouſly follow. See ch.3.6,10,11. & 5.11. verſ. 10.

againſt themſelves] See ch.7.19. or, as others, between them, ſee on v.9,10. But I conceive it to be no other than an elegant redundancy in the Hebrew language very frequent: the evil that they have done them. So Gen.12.1. Go thee out of thy country, Exod.20.23. Ye ſhall make ye no gods: Make thee a ſerpent. Num.21.9. & Ezek.37.11. we are cut off us. See ch.7.8.

to provoke me to anger] See ch.7.18.

in offering incenſe unto Baal.] As verſ.13.

V. 18. And the Lord hath given me knowledge of it, and I knew it: then thou ſheweſt me their doings.] In the latter part of this chapter, is a diſcovery made by God to the Prophet, of a ſecret conſpiracy, that his own country men the inhabitants of Anathoth, verſ. 21. had entred into againſt him, verſ. 18,19. the Prophets reference of his cauſe unto God, who had revealed it to him, with a demand of juſtice againſt them for it, v. 20. and Gods juſt doom paſt upon them, for ſuch their deſign againſt his faithful ſervant the Prophet, verſ. 21,23.

And] Or, Moreover; as ch.1.11. & 8.4.

the Lord hath given me knowledge of it] Or, the Lord informed me, or, gave me notice. Heb. made me to know; as Exod. 33.12.

and I knew it] Or, ſo I knew it; as Iſa.59.19. by that means I came to the knowledg of it, which otherwiſe I could not have done; Gods care of his Prophets ſafety. So Act.23.12,24.& 26.21,22. A defect of the pronoun it; as Gen.28.16.

thou ſheweſt me] Heb. madeſt me to ſee; as 2 Kin.8.20. a paſſage from perſon to perſon; as before, v.15,16.

V. 19. But I was like a lamb, or an ox, that is brought to the ſlaughter:] I was as ignorant of their evil intentions, as a ſheep or an ox, that is leading to be ſacrificed in the Temple, or ſlain in the ſhambles, that is leading to be ſacrificed in the Temple, or ſlain in the ſhambles, when he thinketh he is going to the field; or to the fold, the one; to the ſtall, the other, Prov.7.22. Iſa.53.7. neither aware, nor ſuſpicious, of any ſuch evil from them, as not being conſcious to my ſelf of any wrong that I had done them; but having ever fought their good, ch. 15.10.& 18.19.

But] Heb. And; as verſ.12.

I was] The pronoun for the verb ſubſtantive; as Pſalm 92.10.

a lamb, or an ox] Heb. a ſheep (as Hoſ.4.16. where a lamb doth not ſo well) an ox; the diſjunctive is wanting, as Eſa.38.14. chap.2.31, ſo well) an ox; the diſjunctive is wanting, as Eſa.38.14. chap.2.31, former, rendring it, ſome, a tame, or gentle; ſome, a taught lamb, or a lamb taught and brought to hand; becauſe the root ſignifieth, ſometime, to teach, Job 15.1.& 33.33. and another, a friendly, or ſome-familiar lamb; because the word seems so taken, Psal. 106.13. Mic. 7.1. and is in Arabick for a friend frequently used. But hereof, let others judge.

that is brought to the slaughter] Heb. led to sacrifice, or to slay; as Lev. 9.4. a defect of the relative; as Isaiah 53.7. chap. 8.13.

and I knew not that they had devised devices against me, saying;] A necessary supply, as Psalm 105.15. Chap. 4.31. See Chap. 18.18.

Let us destroy the tree, with the fruit thereof;] The Chaldee, ancient Greek, and old Latine, whom Interpreters, Latine and Greek, not a few, follow, render these words, as it the text said, Let us cast wood into his bread; which they expound, Let us kill him, by mingling the juyce or powder of some poisonful plant or wood with his meat; because the word, bread, includeth all kind of food, 1 King. 4.22. Neh. 5.18. or, as some, Let us give him wood to eat in stead of bread; as the Prophet complaineth in the person of Gods people, That God had fed them with such grassy bread, that had rather worn out their teeth, than nourished their bodies, Lam. 3.16. Prov. 20.17. Let us kill him with hunger, starve him to death, that him up where he shall have nothing to feed on; unless he can eat timber and stones. But because the word, in the Hebrew, signifieth, to destroy; as chap. 6.5. Some of them would have the text read, Let us spoil his meat with wood: And others, Let us spoil wood; that is, make powder of it, to put into, or mingle with his meat. But these seem all forced readings; and a tree or wood, for poyson, is no where found: for whereas some of them point us to, Exod. 15.25. the tales they tell of the tree there mentioned, are of equal weight with this their exposition of the word in this place. A learned late Writer, rejecting as over-harsh and hard all the former; thus rendreth the text, Let us break wood upon his body. This to fetch about, he refleth us, that the word rendred bread, is used both in Arabick, and in Hebrew, also, sometime, for flesh, (or for meat rather in general) Lev. 3.10,11. & 21.8. Job 6.8. And another neer to it, for the flesh of mans body, Job 20.23. Zeph. 1.17. and the word rendred wood, for a staff; as 2 Sam. 21.17. Esay 10.15. and so the meaning should be, Let us beat him, or hang him, with staves, or cudgels, till we break them again. That which to me seemeth not unlike that of the Talmudists, who expound that speech of Adam, Gen. 3.12. The woman gave me of the wood; that is, banged me with a bough of the tree, and so enforced me to eat; and to sound no less harshly, than any of those other. The words run plainly enough in the text, Let us destroy the tree with its bread; where by destroying, some understand hewing down, as Deut. 20.19. by tree, the Stock of a tree, as chap. 2.27. and by bread, the fruit, that it affordeth for mans sustenance, Gen. 1.29. Some other, by tree the Stalk of a plant, as of corn; and by bread, the grain: whereof bread is made, as Esay 28.28. and it seemeth to have been a proverbial form of speech, Let us destroy stock and fruit, or Stalk and grain together; that is, Let us make an utter riddance of him, that nothing of him, or his doctrine, name, mention, or memory, may remain. So the words following expound this branch; for that which some of the Ancients dream of Christ and his cross; and Popish Expositors prate of Christ in the hoast, are but frivolous fancies, not at all touching the text.

and let us cut him off from the Land of the living] Let us make away this Jeremy, that we may hear no more of him, nor he trouble us any more. So Psal. 52.5. Esa. 38.10, 11.

that his name may be no more remembred.] Heb. and his name shall be no more remembred; as chap. 6.5, 10. So Psalm 9.5, 6. & 83.4. Some suppose that it hath some reference to the abolition of the name and memory of such as were condemned for false Prophets; as they fought, and thought, to have Jeremy dealt with. See the like, John 16.2.

V. 20. But, O Lord of hosts] The Prophets words, committing and commending his cause unto God, and craving justice at his hands. So ch. 15.15. & 18.19. & 20.12.

that judgest righteously] Heb. judgest justice; as Psa. 9.4. that is, with justice; as Psa. 9.8. & 96.13. & 98.9.

that triest the reins, and the heart;] Or, searchest, ch. 6.27. Psal. 7.9. 1 Sam. 16.7. 1 Chr. 28.9. chap. 17.10. & 20.12. Rev. 2.23. a two-fold metaphor; the one, taken from the trying of oar or metals, Psa. 26.2. & 66.10. the other, from the bodies of beasts slain for sacrifice, which being broken up, their entrails lye all open to the eye, Heb. 4.12. and they seem over-nicely to distinguish, who by the reins, would have understood mens desires; by the heart, their designs.

Let me see thy vengeance upon them;] So Psalm 79.10. A speech proceeding, as most deem, from a prophetical spirit; which some therefore would have delivered rather by way of prediction, than of imprecation; as Psalm 59.10. & 92.11. rendring the words, I shall see thy vengeance upon them; as if he had said, I shall surely behold them, and I shall survive to see it: but it seemeth rather a direct prayer, or bill of complaint, wrung from him, by the contemplation of their extream malice against him, and commenced at Gods Tribunal, craving justice against them, as against persons grown incorrigible: and that not without some mixture of humane frailty, as those other, chap. 15.15. and 17.18, and 18.21, 24.

for unto thee have I revealed my cause.] Or, do I reveal my cause; that is, commit it; as 1 Pet. 2.23. because those that desire to commit their cause unto any, are wont, before they so do, to open it to them, and acquaint them with it.

V. 21. Therefore thus saith the Lord of the men of Anathoth, that seek thy life,] Gods answer followeth to the Prophets bill of complaint.

the men of Anathoth] The place of the Prophets ordinary abode. See chap. 1.1. and these seem to have been the forwardest men in enforming and inceasing the Priests as Jerusalem against him, chap. 20.10.

seek thy life] Heb. soul; as ch. 4.30. & 19.7.

saying, Prophesie not in the name of the Lord, that thou dye not by our hand:] Prophesie not unto us, in that manner as thou dost, menacing us with plagues and judgments. So Esa. 30.10. Amos 2.12. & 7.16. Mic. 2.6, 11.

that thou dye not by our hand] Heb. and thou shalt not dye. So verf. 19. and his name shall be no more remembred; by our hands; by our means, some one way or other; as 2 Sam. 21.22. If thou dost, we will dispatch thee our selves, and never trouble them of Jerusalem with thee: a desperate speech, expressing a great height of rancor and malice, that they were grown unto against Gods Prophet, which in likelyhood they began more openly to discover, when they perceived that he had some notice of their clandestine plots and projects, though they knew not how he should come by it.

V. 22. Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, Behold I will punish them:] Heb. visit upon them; as ch. 9.25. & 13.21. the complaints and imprecations of Gods Prophets, though proceeding sometime from heat of passion, are oft seconded with very dreadful and dismal effects. See 2 Kin. 2.24.

the young men shall dy by the sword,] To wit, of the enemy, either in fight, or in suprital of the city, 2 Chr. 36.17.

their sons and their daughters shall dye by famine.] A death more grievous than the former, Lam. 4.9.

V. 23. And there shall be no remnant of them] That which they intended against them, v. 19. shall be inflicted upon them; a just retaliation, Deu. 19.19. Yet see on ch. 16.3.

for I will bring evil upon the men of Anathoth; even the yeer of their visitation] Or, when (as Joel 2.20.) I shall bring evil (as v. 11.) upon the men of Anathoth (v. 21.) in the year (as Neh. 5.1. & 2.1.) of their visitation; what time I shall come to take vengeance upon them, v. 22. So ch. 10.15. and 23.12.

CHAP. XII.

Verf. 1. Righteous art thou, O Lord, when I plead with thee:] This Chapter which seemeth to have some connexion with the former, consisteth of three parts; 1. A disceptation between God and the Prophet, concerning some passages of his providence, verf. 1, 6. 2. A renewed lamentation of the sad condition of Gods people, justly deserted by him, and given up to be destroyed for their sins, verf. 7, 14. 3. A denunciation of wrath against their bad neighbours, that had joyned with the enemy against them; yet with a promise of restitution, upon their reformation, verf. 15, 17.

Righteous art thou, O Lord, when I plead with thee:] Or, Righteous art thou (the pronoun suppliying also the place of the verb substantive: as ch. 11.19.) though (as ch. 2.22. & 10.2.) I should contend with thee: as Esa. 40.8. chap. 2.22. thou wouldst appear to be, if either I, or any other mortal creature should presume to enter into debate with thee, concerning the justice and equity of any of thy proceedings. A learned late Writer would have it read by way of interrogation, Should I dispute with thee? and so the particle seemeth to be used Esa. 29.16. & 36.19. which may here also be well admitted. Howsoever, the Prophet sixeth this in the first place, as a ground not to be once questioned, much less doubted of, or denied, that God is just and upright in all his dealings, though weak man be not able to conceive himself, or render to others, a reason of whatsoever he doth. So Psa. 51.4. & 73.1. & 92.15. & 119.75, 137. & 145.17. Rom. 9.14.

yet let me talk with thee of thy judgments.] Give me leave yet to argue a little with thee, concerning some of thy proceedings, that I may be the better informed, and more fully satisfied, concerning the ground and reason of them. Heb. Let me speak judgments with thee: yet is not speaking of judgments here taken in that sense, wherein this form of speech is used, for to pass, or execute, a judiciary doom, or sentence, ch. 1.16. & chap. 39.5. nor yet, as some other would have it expounded, for speaking moderately; because the word judgment hath sometime a notion of moderation in it, chap. 10.24. Psalm 112.5. but for arguing and debating a case or cause, for the better clearing of truth and right, as in judiciary courses is wont to be done.

Wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper?] This consideration of the prosperity of wicked men, and their thriving by wicked courses, hath at sundry times much molested the minds of many godly ones. See Job 21.7,13. Psalm 37.1. & 73.3,12. & 94.3,4. Hab. 1.4, 5. and the wicked thereby take encouragement unto evil, and of nourishing nourishing impious conceits in their hearts, concerning God and his providence, Job 21.14,15. Psal. 10.3,6,11,13. & 14.1. & 94.7,8. Mal. 2.17. & 3.15.

wherefore are they all happy, that deal very treacherously? Heb. are all the perfidious practisers of perfidiousness (that is, such as use the most perfidious practices, or that most of all practise perfidiousness. See Esay 24.16.) at ease? (So Lam. 1.5.) they live at ease, and free from troubles, Job 12.6. & 21.9. Psal. 73.5. Zach. 1.11. chap. 48.11. (for that is the proper notion of the word here used, Job 3.25. & 16.12. & 20.20. & 21.23. chap. 49.31.) the interrogative is supplyed from the former branch; as Job 3.11,23.

V. 2. Thou hast planted them; yea, they have taken root, they grow; yea, they bring forth fruit.] They thrive and prosper as much as may be: a tree may be planted, and yet not take root; and then it cannot stand firm, or long continue: it may take root, and yet not thrive or grow, by reason of some inward defect, or outward accident, as the leanness of the soyl, or the sharpness of the ayr: it may thrive and shoot up, and yet not fructifie; make a goodly flourish with leaves, and blossoms, yet all be blasted, and yield no fruit: but the state and condition of the wicked here mentioned, is described by the resemblance of a tree, that being set in a rich soyl, and having taken firm root, thriveth exceedingly and shooteth up in heighth, and spreadeth in breadth; and is not onely clad with a garnith of green leaves, and goodly blossomes; but is loaden also with great abundance of fair fruit; than all which, what can more be desired? See ch. 11.16. Ezek. 31.3,9. Dan. 4.11, 12,20,22.

Thou hast planted them] The same God that planteth his people, Psal. 44.2. & 80.8. doth plant the wicked also: that is, assign them unto, and feat them in the places of their abode; he casteth out others before them, and planteth them in their room, Deut. 2.5,9,12. Act. 17.26.

they have taken root] Heb. rooted. So Esa. 40.24.

they grow] In wealth and power, ch. 5.27,28. Heb. go on; as Gen. 26.13.

bring forth fruit] See the like, Esay 37.31. Heb. make fruit; as Gen. 1.11,12. Hos. 9.16.

thou art neer in their mouth, and far from their reins.] They profess thee in word, but deny thee in heart and deed, Psalm 14.1. & 53.1. Tit. 1.16. They make shew of drawing neer to thee, as a people in league and covenant with thee, and have thee and thy name oft in their mouths, but they have no heart, love or affection at all to thee, their hearts are wholly estranged from thee, Esa. 29.13. & 48.1. & 58.1. Psal. 50.16. & 78.34,37.

and far] Or, but far; as Ela. 29.13.

V. 3. But thou, O Lord, knowest me, thou hast seen me, and tried mine heart towards thee.] That this disceptation of the Prophet, with God, had some reference to the carriage of his malicious Townsmen before-mentioned, chap. 11.21. and other his spiteful enemies towards him, appeareth by this passage; wherein, as other Gods faithful Servants in the like case, he appealeth unto God himself for the sincerity of his heart and carriage, in the discharge of his duty. So Job 13.1,15,16. & 23.10. & 27.2,6. Psalm 7.3,10. & 17.3. & 26.1. chap. 15.15. & 17.16. 2 Cor. 1.12. See Chap. 11.20.

knowest me] Having taken tryal of me: not that God did not before tryal taken, know how he stood affected, Prov. 15.11. but that in that regard he may the more boldly appeal unto God, who had taken such tryal of him, Gen. 22.1,2. Psal. 17.3.

toward thee] Heb. with thee; as 2 Kin. 10.15.

put them out as sheep for the slaughter, and prepare them for the day of slaughter.] A petition of the same nature with that before, cha. 11.20. whereof see there. Howsoever this intimateth, what the issue and upshot will be of all the prosperity and tranquility of the wicked, which for a time they here enjoy, Jam. 5.5. by consideration whereof, the faithful godly yet recover and gather strength against the temptation before related, Psa. 37.2,20,36,38. & 73.17,22. Job 21.17,21. Mal. 3.18. & 4.1.

prepare them] Heb. Sanctifie them, as Esa. 13.3. ch. 6.4. a borrowed speech taken from such rites as were used about the preparing either of beasts for sacrifice, or of persons to partake in a sacrifice, Exod. 12.3,6. 1 Sam. 16.5. 2 Chr. 30.17,19. Job 1.5.

V. 4. How long shall the land mourn, and the herbs of every field wither, for the wickedness of them that dwell therein?] Concerning the sense of these words, there is no great doubt or difficulty: the question is onely concerning the connexion and coherence of them with the reft of the context: that which most Interpreters either take no notice at all of, or fetch it so far about, that first to unravel their resolutions, and then to discuss them, would prove a work over-tedious. I concur with those, who conceive, that in these words, the Prophet rendreth a reason, why he defireth to have the prosperity and tranquility of these wicked wretches to be cut off, and themselves removed and taken away; to wit, that the whole land might not fare the worse for them, and the godly party, among the reft, suffer in those general calamities, that at present lay heavy upon the main body of the land, being procured by their impieties.

How long shall the land mourn] A land is said to mourn, when it lyeth waste, ftript, & defpoiled of its wonted verdure and bravery, in grass, corn, plants, and fruits, wherewith it was formerly clad and adorned, whether through extremity of drought, 1 King. 17.1. & 18.5. or spoyl and havock made of all, by storm and tempest, Prov. 28.3. or by vermine, Joel 1.4. & 2.3. or by the irruption of an enemy, Esay 1.7. as being now in a mourning weed. So Esay 24.4. & 33.9. chap. 23.10. Lam. 1.4. Joel 1.10. Now this some would put off to the waste that was to be made by the Chaldean Invasion, chap. 4.20. verf. 10, 11. but they shew not how that may consist here with the current of the context. It seems rather to be meant of the present dearth, by means of a long continued drought lying heavy upon the land at present. Whereof, see at large, ch. 14.1,2.

herbs] Heb. herb, or herbage: as it might well be rendred: and so rather than grass; as it is, Psal. 72.16. & 92.7. for the word is more general.

for the wickedness of them that dwell therein.] So Psalm 107.34.

the beasts are consumed, and the birds:] Or, the cattel (as Psa. 50.10.) and the fowl. Such cattel and fowl as are wont to be kept about mens houses, which in times of extream drought and dearth for want of food, either perish, or stray the one, and fly away the other. See cha. 4.25,26. & 9.10. & 14.5,6.

because they said, He shall not see our last end] This impious speech of those wicked ones, some understand as a denial of Gods providence and preseience, like that, Psa. 73.11. and they render the words, He seeth not our latter end. God himself doth not know, what our end shall be. Others, as spoken in way of presumption, that whatsoever the Prophets might say, God would not bring those evils that they threatned upon them; and these render the words, He will not see our latter end: he will not suffer such an end to be made of us, as they say. But I conceive rather, that these words were spoken by them of Jeremy; though redounding and reaching to God himself, whose messenger he was, and whose messages he delivered to them; as if they had said, This Jeremy telleth us what at length will befal us, and that all our present prosperity shall end in extream misery: but his words are but wind, he will never live to see any such matter befal us; we shall sooner see an end of him, than he any such end of us. See ch. 5.13. So Gen. 19.14.

V. 5. If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with horses?] Hitherto was the Prophets speech to God. Now followeth Gods speech, whether in way of answer to the Prophet, or leaving him, directed to the people, is much controverted. Some, both Jewish Commenters and ours, conceive it as an answer returned to the Prophets expostulatory complaint; and either checking him for it, or meeting with the root and ground of it. Some suppose, that in it God checketh and controlleth the Prophets curiosity and presumption, in taking upon him to enquire into those things that were far beyond the reach of his shallow capacity: and they thus expound the similitude of horse and foot. If thou are not able to discover the privy plots and projects of men, that stand on ewen ground with thee, and are silly creatures like thy self, as that conspiracy of thine own Townsmen against thee, chap. 11.18,19. how is it, that thou takest upon thee to search into, or supposest that thou mayst be able to comprehend the reasons and grounds of Gods secret counsels, concerning the administration of the affairs of the world? Others, (which is more probable) are of the mind, that the Lord considering from what ground this disceptation of the Prophet proceeded, to wit, from some inward disquiet of mind, that the wrongful and spiteful carriage of his Townimen had poslessed him with; and animating him unto a quiet and patient undergoing these brunes of their malicious demeanure, by intimating unto him, that there were other manner of conflicts and oppositions to be dealt with in the further proceeds of his prophetical function; against which he was to arm himself. As if he had said, if these meaner men of Anathoth, that are but as foot, do so moleft thee, that drive art almoft tired out with them; how wilt thou be able to bicker with those great and mighty ones at Jerusalem, that are in regard of them, as horse to foot? Thus they that understand it as Gods speech to the Prophet. But divers, whereof the Chaldee also giveth some hint, would have it to be the speech of God to the people; demanding of them, to controll and quell their vain confidence and security, how they will be able to make their part good with the Chaldean, so potent an adversary, when as far meaner than they have at divers times put them to so much trouble. It seems to have been a proverbial form of speech among them; as one not unlike it, is found in Greek Authors, A footman running with a Lydian-chariot: and, foot fighting with horse in a plain.

if thou hast run with the footmen and they have wearied thee,] Or, if (as Deut. 12.21. Esay 36.7.) when thou runnest with footmen they (as Deut. 12.21. Esay 36.7.) when thou runnest with footmen they wearyed, or, tire thee. See the like construction, chap. 7.27. & 8.4. & 11.11.

then how canst thou contend with horses?] Heb. and (as chap. 8.9.) wilt thou wearie, or, close, (as chap. 22.15.) with horses? that is, with horsemen; as Deut. 20.1. for whom we also use the word horse: the verb is in a potential notion: as ch. 2.23,32.

and if in a land of peace, wherein thou trustedst, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?] The Inferrions in this our version; are there from the former part, all save that of the relative, which is not unfrequent; as chap. 8.13. & 11.19. Yet some insert a divers clause, thus rendring the words, and if when thou trustedst in a land of peace, thou wast deceived, how wilt thou then do in the rising of Jordan? For ſenſe they come much to one; I ſuppoſe our verſion the better. Theſe apply it to the Prophet; who, if in his own native habitation among his kindred and acquaintance, he did not deem himſelf ſafe, or free from oppoſition and moleſtation, he had leſs reaſon to look for a quiet life among thoſe haughty and lofty ones at Jeruſalem. Others apply it to the Jewiſh State, which if it were ſo much annoyed with her bad neighbours the Moabites, Ammonites, and Edomites that were allied to her; the would much leſs be able to ſecure her ſelf, when the Chaldean forces, like a ſtrong ſtream of ſome great river, ſurrounding its banks, ſhould break in upon her. See the like, Eſay 8.7,8. & 59.19. chap. 46.7. & 49.19. and ſome of theſe omitting thoſe former inſertions, thus read the words; and though (as Eſa.30.20.) in a peaceable land thou muſt confide, or, be ſecure; yet (Heb. and; as chap. 7. 26.) what wilt thou do in the ſwelling of Jordan? though thou ſeem now ſafe while all is as yet quiet with thee; yet thou wilt find it to be otherwiſe, when a potent adverſary ſhall over-run thy country.

in the land of peace] Or, a land of peace; that is, ſay ſome, a land of friends, or, a friendly land: as, a man of peace, for, a confederate, or, a friend, Pſalm 41.9. others, a land of peace; that is, a quiet, and peaceable land: as, an habitation of peace, for, a peaceable habitation, Eſay 32.18. for that which a great man hath; a land of peace, for, a land of no defence, or, ſtrength, to withſtand or keep out an enemy: as, a land of war, for, a land well fortified and fitted for war; a land of defence, ſeems to carry here no probability at all with it.

in the ſwelling of Jordan] Which in harveſt time uſeth to riſe up above his banks, and overflow all the lower grounds bordering upon it, Joſh. 3.15. 1 Chron. 12.15. and there want not, who ſuppoſe ſome alluſion here to Nebuchadnezzars forces that were to paſs over Jordan in his expedition againſt Judea; and others again to the lions and leopards that had their dens thereabouts; or in mount Lebanon, where the head of it was, Cant. 4.8. chap. 49.19. and 50.44. Zach. 11.3. But theſe things ſeem over-far fetched.

V. 6. For even thy brethren, and the houſe of thy father, even they have dealt treacherouſly with thee; yea, they have called a multitude after thee:] The men of Anathoth, thy Country-men, allies and neer-eſt kindred, though they make fair ſhews of love and good liking to thee outwardly, yet are covertly plotting thy death, enforming and exclaiming to the State againſt thee, and inciting them to work thy ruine, chap. 11.21. & 20.10. or if it be referred not to the Prophet, but to the people, thy conſederates, O Judah, and in regard of deſcent, thy brethren, the iſſue of Lot, Pſal. 83.8. the Moabites and Ammonites, Gen. 19.37,38. and the iſſue of Iſaac, the Edomites, ch. 35.29. & 36.1. Mal. 1.2. though they may ſeem at preſent to comply with thee, chap. 27.3. yet are inwardly falſhearted, and will joyn with the enemy againſt thee, ch. 4.30. v. 14. 2 Kin. 24.3. See ch. 4.30.

have called a multitude] Or, a full aſſembly. Heb. full. So, a fulneſs, Eſay 31.4. or, they cry, or, will cry, full, or, with a full throat, after thee: a defect of the ſubject here, as of the adjunct in the like ſenſe, Eſay 58.1. ſo, a full, for, a full cup, Pſalm 73.10. Of the Edomites cry againſt Jeruſalem, ſee Pſalm 137.7. to cry after thee, ſeems here to be no other than, to cry unto, or upon others, to proſecute thee with hue and cry, as ſome notorious malefactor.

beleeve them not, though they ſpeak fair words to thee] Truſt them not, though they ſpeak thee never ſo fair; for they mind nothing leſs than what they ſpeak, ch. 9.4,6. Prov. 26.25. fair words. Heb. good words, or, things. So ch. 52.32.

V. 7. I have forſaken mine houſe;] God having done with the Prophet, and hinted unto him what he muſt further expect and prepare himſelf for, as before, chap. 1.17,18. doth now return to tell, what he intendeth to do, nor with the men of Anathoth only; as chap. 11.22,23. but with Jeruſalem, and the whole State of Judah.

I have forſaken my houſe] I am reſolved to leave, and abandon my Temple, that hath been hitherto as my Palace, my Court, the place of my ſpecial reſidence, Pſal. 78.68, 69. and 132.13,14. ch. 7.14. & 11.15.

I have left mine heritage] Or, poſſeſſion. My people, that were ſometime my peculiar poſſeſſion, and as dear unto me, as any mans inheritance is to him, ch. 10.16. & 50.11.

I have given the dearly beloved of my ſoul into the hands of her enemies] My people, that were ſometime ſo dear to me, ſo deep in mine affection. See ch. 11.15.

the dearly beloved of my ſoul] Or, my dearly beloved: my ſoul, for my ſelf; as Pſal. 3.2. ſo, his ſoul, for himſelf, Amos 6.8. but the word ſoul, maketh the ſpeech the more emphatical: as Pſal. 42.2. Cant. 1.2. & 3.1. Heb. the love of my ſoul. See 1 Sam. 20.17.

into the hand] Or, power: as Judg. 6.13. ch. 20.5.

V. 8. Mine heritage is unto me, as a lion in the foreſt; it cryeth out againſt me, therefore have I hated it.] Becauſe that this might ſeem ſtrange, that thoſe whom God had ſo entirely affected before, he ſhould now deal ſo harſhly with; as to deliver them up unto the power and pleaſure of their utter enemies; the Lord therefore here, that the cauſe and ground of this ſo great an alteration in his affection toward them, and dealings with them, proceeded not from himſelf, but from them: they who were ſometime his ſheep, Pſalm 77.20. and 100.3. were now become fierce lions roaring againſt him, and renting his meſſengers, chap. 2.30. Matth. 23. 37. Acts 7.51,53. and that it is that hath turned his love into hatred, Iſaiah 63.10. for what the Jewiſh Doctors here have of mens leaving their way upon the hearing of lions roar; and of the cry of oppreſſion, Iſaiah 5.7. and of idolaters in the ſervice of their idols, 1 Kings 18.26,28. is all beſide the intent of the place.

Mine heritage is] Or, is become, as Iſaiah 1.21. to intimate a change.

a lion in the foreſt] That is, a lion of the foreſt: as, mountains in Gilboa, for, mountains of Gilboa. 2 Sam. 1.21.

it cryeth out againſt me] Or, yelleth aloud; as ch. 4.15. Heb. hath given out her voice: as ch. 4.16. Joel 2.11.

have I hated] Or, I hate; as Mal. 1.2.

V. 9. Mine heritage is unto me as a ſpeckled bird; the birds round about are againſt her;] By another ſimilitude, God ſeemeth here to ſet out the cauſe of his diſaffection towards his people: becauſe they were become, as like ramping lions, ſo like ravenous fowls; for which cauſe alſo the Lord was reſolved to beſet them with enemies, that as birds of prey, ſhould in like manner prey upon them, as they had done upon others; and call thoſe in upon them, who as wild beaſts ſhould devour them. Some read the words as by way of interrogation, joyned with admiration, Is mine heritage become thus unto me? are the birds round about againſt her? Others, by way of enunciation, as our verſion exhibiteth it: the Jewiſh Criticks, and the uſe of the particle, carry it the former way; which I therefore alſo encline unto: yet ſo, as that I conceive a defect of the negative in the text; which in ſuch interrogations is not unuſual. So 1 Sam. 2.27,28. Job 20.4. See chap. 31.20. and I ſuppoſe the words may well be rendred, Is not mine heritage ſuch a bird to me? are not the birds, or, ſhall not the birds, be round about againſt her? and thus our ancienter Engliſh exhibited it: which in effect alſo, comes home to the preſent verſion. I ſhall ſubjoyn a learned Writers verſion, with his expoſition, and ſo leave it; O ye colowred birds, (ye birds of what colour ſoever ye be,) mine heritage is mine; (and I may diſpoſe of it, as I pleaſe, as ch. 27.5.) O ye birds be round about againſt her: come and beſet her on every ſide; and bring the beaſts along with you. I adhere ſtill to the former, as better ſuiting with what went before, verſ. 8. for the former branch at leaſt, though not wholly rejecting what is here exhibited, for the latter.

as a ſpeckled bird] The word here uſed, and not elſe-where in this form found; cometh from a root, which though no where uſed in the Hebrew text of Scripture, yet is found in the Syriack of Daniel, Dan. 4.15,23,33. and 5.21. as alſo in the Syriack and Arabick verſions of the New Teſtament, Matt. 20.23. Luk. 7.38. and it is of the ſame notion with another very neer it in Hebrew, both ſignifying to dip, to bedew; and by conſequence, to dy, or colour; the word that is uſed for a ring, iſſuing from the one; and the finger that weareth it, from the other: now becauſe a term ſpringing from this root, ſeemeth to ſignifie a tincture of ſome remarkable colour, or variety of colour, Judg. 5.30. hence it cometh to paſs, that the old Latine rendreth it, a bird died: and our Engliſh, a ſpeckled bird: and hereby, ſay ſome of the Jewiſh Writers, is meant a kind of owl red with black ſpots, which other birds cannot abide, and are wont therefore to flock about her, and beat her. Others would have it a peacock, Job 39.13. or ſome other bird as curiouſly feathered, as if ſhe were painted, or dyed, Pſalm. 68.13. which other birds therefore for her beauty, uſe to gaze upon and admire; nor want there thoſe that further drive on this conceit, ſuppoſing an alluſion to birds kept in a cage, partly, for their goodly ſhape, and ſightlineſs; and partly for their pleaſant note, which men are wont to take much delight in; that ſuch had this people been unto God, till they changed their note; and did not now ſing as a bird, but roar as a lion, verſ. 8. ſo one: or, till they became, of tame ones wild, like thoſe that live abroad in the woods, verſ. 8. ſaith another. So expounding the word ſpeckled, as if it ſignified wild, or none but wild ones were ſuch: or is become wild, that is, fierce, as ſome render it. See verſ. 8. which hither alſo they draw: but theſe things ſeem either fabulous, or forced. Some of ours conceive no ſpecial kind of bird to be intended, but any ſpeckled, or pied fowl to be deſigned: and that this people are here ſo ſtyled, becauſe not contenting themſelves with Gods livery, and the ſimplicity of his ſervice, they had put themſelves into a garb parched up as a party-coloured-coat, of divers ſorts of ſuperſtitious rites and practices, taken up as ſtrange faſhions from foraign nations, Ezek. 8.5,10,11, 16. And this ſeemeth more probable than any of the former. Howbeit, ſome of the Jewiſh Writers, by a bird died, or ſtained, underſtand here a fowl beſprinkled with bloud; as garments therewith beſprinkled, are ſaid to be died, or ſtained, Eſay 63.1, 2. that which frequently befalleth birds of prey: and ſome of them conceive it to be ſpoken of Gods people; as if it were ſaid, Are the bloody birds birds of prey with mine heritage? are the birds of prey, I ſay, gotten round about her? This, it is true, offereth too much violence to the text: but yet I ſuppoſe it hitherto as the true notion of the term. I conceive therefore the meaning neer the ſame in effect, that was before intimated, ver. 8. Is not mine heritage become to me as a ſtrained, or bedewed bird of prey? for ſuch fowl doth the word here uſed, properly ſignifie, as both the general uſe of it theweth, Gen. 15. 11. Job 28.7. Eſay 18.6. Ezek. 39.4. as alſo the notation of it confirmeth; for the word it comes of, ſignifieth, haſtily, or fiercely, to fall, or fall upon ought, 1 Sam. 14.33. & 25.14. and it is not amiſs fly, or fall upon ought, 1 Sam. 14.33. & 25.14. and it is not amiſs therefore rendred, a ravenous bird, Eſay 46.11. Gods people then are ſaid to have been a ravenous bird, or, a fowl of prey, in regard of that rapine and oppreſſion, that was grown to riſe among them. See chap. 6.6. and not ſo alone, but ſuch an one all ſtained, or bedewed with gore bloud, that by their cruel courſes had been ſhed among them, wherewith their garments are ſaid to be all over beſmeared, chap. 2.34. and this I take to be the genuine ſenſe of the place. To which alſo will in effect come home, what ſome late Interpreters of prime note have; who, becauſe from the ſame root with this ariſeth a word ſignifying a finger, would have the word here uſed to ſignifie a fingered bird, or, a tall,aimed fowl; that is, a fowl with great talons like fingers: and it is true, that Pliny, lib. 11. cap. 47. forteth birds or fowls into two ranks; ſome fingered, ſome palm-footed ones: but this term is much more general, comprising as well ſparrows and wrens, as eagles or falcons: and the derivation hereof in the original, is nothing ſo familiar and free as the former, unto which therefore I adhere. In the text there is a defect of the note of ſimilitude, but ſuch as rendreth the ſentence more emphatical, as ch. 5.8. and as I conceive an elegant redundancy in that form; unto me, as if it were ſaid, is become me; as, I will go me; Cant. 4.6. See on chap. 11.17. What this people were become to him and his Prophets, or to him in his Prophets, he had ſhowed before, verſ. 8. here what they were among themſelves one towards another.

the birds round about are againſt her?] Or, Are not the ravenous fowl round about againſt her? the word fowl in the Hebrew is, as before, ſingular, but there in a notion collective, as all agree, and we alſo commonly ſo uſe the word, fowl; and it may well be rendred in the time preſent, according to the prophetical ſtrain, as foretelling what in Gods purpoſe, already reſolved on, ſhould be; So verſ. 10,12. or, as ſome render the words, not in way of interrogation, or of enunciation, but in way of invitation; O ye ravenous birds flie in on every ſide againſt her. Howſoever we read it, it is as if he had ſaid, as ſhe is become like a ravenous bird, ſo with a company of ravenous fowl, therein like her ſelf, ſhall ſhe be on every ſide beſet, that ſhall prey upon her, deſtroy her, and help to devour her; and by theſe ravenous fowls are queſtionleſs deſigned Nebuchadnezzar and his forces, that ſhould begirt and take Jeruſalem; as Cyrus and his army are reſembled by the like, Eſay 46.11.

come ye, aſſemble all the beaſts of the field, come to devour.] An invitation of wild beaſts to come in upon them, either as wolves; and the like into a flock of ſheep to worry them, and prey upon them, as Eſay 56.9. or, as wild bores into a vineyard, to root up and ſpoyl all, as Pſal. 80.13. or as ravenous beaſts into a field, where many carcaſſes of men ſlain lye, to feed upon them, as chap. 7.33. and 15.3. Rev. 19.17,18. and this laſt the Jewiſh Commenters pitch upon; withal rendring a reaſon why the fowl are firſt mentioned, becauſe they firſt commonly, from a far off, diſcover their prey, Job 39.29,30. Matt. 24.28. Luk. 17.37. and the beaſts uſually come after them. But this ſeems over-curious: certain it is, that by ravenous birds and beaſts, ſuch are wont to prey upon the leſs, and more feeble of either kind, and to deſtroy and devour them, are here reſembled the forces conſiſting of many ſeveral nations, as the Chaldeans, Aſſyrians, Syrians, Ammonites, Moabites, Edomites, and others, that under the conduct of the King of Babylon, ſhould make ſoul ſpoyl and havoke of Gods people, 2 King. 24.2,3. chap. 1.15.

Come ye] Or, Go to: Go your ways, and get you about it; for it is a term commonly uſed, to expreſs a ſetting or inting of any to go about ſome employment, as Joſh. 2.16. 2 Kings 1. 2,6. chap. 7.12. and ſome conceive it, as ſpoken to the fowls both to come in themſelves, and to bring along with them the beaſts alſo. Howſoever, it is as if God were ſetting ſome on work, to go and ſummon people, as wild beaſts, to come in upon his people.

all the beaſts] Heb. every beaſt; as Pſalm 50.10. wild beaſts of all ſorts, that uſe to prey upon man or beaſt. See the like, Eſay 56.9.

come] Heb. make, or, cauſe to come; for the injunction is not directed to the beaſts themſelves, but to thoſe that ſhould bring them together.

to devour] Heb. to eat; as ch. 10.25. Rev. 19.18.

V. 10. Many Paſtors have deſtroyed my vineyard,] The Kings and Princes that ſerve under Nebuchadnezzar, ſo termed before, Chap. 6.3. have deſtroyed, that is, ſhall deſtroy (as ſure to be done as if done already) Gods people, his vineyard, Eſay 5.7. a ſimilitude borrowed from ſhepherds, or neat-herds, that turn their cattell into vineyards. For they ſeem to turn it a wrong way, that expound it of the governours of Gods people, either civil, or eccleſiaſtical, who by their miſ government had ruinated the ſtate, Eſay 59.9,11. chap. 10.21.

they have trode my portion under foot] The word ſignifieth any portion of land, or the like, 2 Sam. 14.30. 2 King. 3.19. taken from the manner of dividing poſſeſſions, and aſſigning each one his peculiar ſhare, or portion; Joſh. 13.7. and 18.10. Prov. 17.2. So Gods people are ſaid to be Gods portion, or, poſſeſſion, Deut. 32.9. as before his heritage, verſ. 8,9. and his vineyard, ver. 10. as alſo the land wherein they lived, Lev. 25.23,24. this the enemy is ſaid to tread down, as beaſts do a paſture ground, or a garden, where they ſpoil as much with their feet, as with their feed, Eſay 5.5. & 63.18.

they have made my pleaſant portion a deſolate wilderneſs.] This aggravateth the miſchief and miſery done by them, that they have made ſuch ſpoyl, not of ſome common field, or an ordinary paſture, but of a curious and choice paradiſe, which they have ſo ſpoyled, that they have left it like a wild waſte, Joel 2.3.

made] Heb. given; as ch. 9.10.

my pleaſant portion] Heb. my portion of deſire, or, delight, as ch. 3.19. See Pſa. 16.6.

a deſolate wilderneſs] Not ſuch a wilderneſs wherein cattel uſe to graze, and people, ſome at leaſt, inhabite; as 1 Sam. 17.28. & 25.21. Luk. 1.80. but ſuch as are wholly abandoned, in regard of the barrenneſs of them, to wild beaſts, Deut. 32.10. Eſay 30.6. ch. 2.2. Mark 1.13. Heb. a wilderneſs of deſolation; that is, a moſt deſolate wilderneſs, as Joel 2.3. & 3.19.

V. 11. They have made it deſolate] Heb. He hath put it into deſolation, as Zeph. 2.13. He, that is, God, ſay ſome, v. 12. but it is God that ſpeaketh it: Nebuchadnezzar, or the people that come with him, ſay others not amiſs. Howbeit, it may well be rendred ſimply, the verb being indefinite, It is made utterly deſolate; as afterwards. See the like, ch. 10.4.

and being deſolate it mourneth unto me.] It affordeth me a very ſad and ruful ſpectacle; See v.4. for they ſeem to ſtray from the intent of the place, who expound it of the peoples mourning to God, and his not regarding them, ch. 11.14.

becauſe no man layeth it to heart.] Becauſe no man layeth to heart becauſe no man layeth it to heart.] Becauſe no man layeth to heart Gods menaces, that they may take ſome courſe, by repentance and reformation to prevent them, chap. 5.3,12,13. and 11.15. and 18.18. or, yet; (as the particle is taken, Job 5.7. Eſay 9.1.) no man layeth it to heart; few, or none amidſt theſe grievous calamities, do ſeriouſly conſider and apprehend aright, the grounds of this dreadful judgement, and the procuring cauſes of it, See Eſay 42.25, chap. 9.12. Hoſea 7.9. Heb. there is not a man putting it upon heart, as Deut. 11.18. a defect of the particle, is, as chap. 6.11.

V. 12. The ſpoilers are come upon all high places through the wilderneſs.] Or, In the plain; as Eſay 63.13,14. Lam. 4.19. either that lay in the way, between Chaldea and Judea, chap. 4.11,12. or thoſe within the land of Judah, chap. 3.23. 21. & 7.29. No place of fortification or defence, ſuch as high places naturally are, in regard of their ſituation and the difficulty of acceſs unto them, is able to ſtay or to with-ſtand them; See Habb. 1.10. See alſo chap. 7.29. ſtay or to with-ſtand them; See Habb. 1.10. See alſo chap. 7.29. where, as here alſo, a Learned man would have the word rendred; not high, but low places, or, plains, in a wilderneſs. Whereof ſee there.

for the ſword of the Lord ſhall devour, from the one end of the land, even to the other end of the land] The ſword of the enemy, called the ſword of the Lord, becauſe drawn, and comming by his appointment and ſecret deſign (as Eſa. 34.5,6. chap. 47.6.) runneth throw the whole land, from end to end (Heb. from the end of the land, and unto the end of the land, as Deut. 28.64. cha. 25.33.) and deſtroyeth all before it. Heb. eateth, as verſ. 9. Joſh. 24.11. chap. 2.30. and 46.10. and it is ſpoken as a thing preſent.

no fleſh ſhall have peace] Heb. there is not peace (that is, ſafety; as 1 Kings 8.37,38. chap. 4.10.) to all (that is, any; as Gen. 3.1. Job 1.11. & 8.12.) fleſh, all fleſh; for, any fleſh, as Pſal. 143.2. Rom. 3.20. and, any fleſh here, for, any of that people, as chap. 45.5. Mat. 24.22. and, any fleſh here, for, any of that people, as chap. 45.5. Mat. 24.22. and, any fleſh here, for, any of that people, as chap. 45.5. Mat. 24.22. theſe that promiſed to themſelves and others, ſecurity and immunity, ſhall then find it to fare far otherwiſe with them, than they expected or hoped for, Eſa. 28.15,17,18. chap. 4.9,10. and 6.14,15. and 8.11,12.

V. 13. They have ſown wheat, but ſhall reap thorns:] According to that curſe, Gen. 3.18. Deut. 28.38. no good fruit ſhall come of all their labour, Gen. 4.12. Job 31.4. Mic. 6.15. Hag. 1.6. no good iſſue of all their vain endeavours whereby they hope to help themſelves, ch. 2.37. & 3.23.

but ſhall reap thorns] Or, but (Heb. and, as verſ. 2.) reap thorns: There is an elegant conſonancy in the words of reaping and thorns, in the original; as if it were ſaid, reap riſ-raf; nothing that is good for ought.

they put themſelves to pain, but ſhall not prevail:] They may tire themſelves out with plots and projects, and this courſe and that themſelves out with plots and projects, and this courſe and that courſe, to wind themſelves out of the difficulties and ſtreits, that they have caſt themſelves into, but all will be to no purpoſe, ch. 2.36,37. & 11.11. For the Rabbine that underſtandeth it of their crying unto God, until their hearts ake again, and not prevailing with him, as Psa. 18. 41. is as much out of the way, as the same of some other, on verſ. 11.

and they ſhall be aſhamed of their reuenews] Heb. of your reuenews: a paſſage from perſon to perſon, as ch. 11. 15, 16, 19. They ſhall be aſhamed to ſee how little good cometh of all their labours, Eccl. 5. 16. See Eſa. 17. 10, 11.

becauſe of the fierce anger of the Lord.] Which ſhall blaſt all their proceedings, as chap. 51. 45. Of the attribute, ſee Iſa. 13. 9. ch. 4. 8, 26.

V. 14. Thus ſaith the Lord againſt all mine evil neighbours, that touch the inheritance that I have cauſed my people Iſrael to inherit;] This Prophecy is ſhut up for the ſtay and ſupport of the ſmall remnant of faithful ones, mixed here and there among the main corrupt body of the Jewiſh people with a comfortable cloſe, promiſing reſtitution to them, vindication of the wrongs by their bad neighbours done unto them; together with a gracious offer of mercy alſo to them, if they turned unto God, and joyned with his people in the true and ſincere ſervice of him.

againſt all mine evil neighbours] Againſt, or, concerning, rather; as ch. 18. 8, 10. & 49. 17, mine; not the Prophets, as may ſeem, but Gods, in whoſe perſon he ſpeaketh it, as by the words following appeareth: and his neighbours he termeth them, becauſe they bordered upon his portion, verſ. 10. thereby underſtanding, not the Chaldeans, as ſome, (for they are ſtill ſpoken of as a remote people, Eſa. 39. 3. ch. 5. 15. & 6. 22.) nor the Egyptians neither, as ſome other, (for Paleſtine lay between Egypt and them) but the Philiſthines, Syrians, Phenicians, Moabites, Ammonites, and Edomites, who bordering upon Gods people, had invaded and annoyed them, by their preſent diſtracted and diſtreſſed condition taking occaſion ſo to do, 2 Kin. 24. 2. Pſa. 173. 7. ch. 41. 9. Obad. 11, 14.

that touch the inheritance] That is, as ſome, that border upon it, are contiguous unto it: but as others rather, that wrong, hurt, and annoy them, in the leaſt degree; for there is an emphaſis, in the term of touching. So Job 1. 11. Pſa. 105. 15. Zach. 2. 8.

which I have cauſed my people Iſrael to inherit] Pſa. 135. 12. and they therefore have no right, nor can make any juſt claim unto, Judg. 11. 23, 24. ch. 49. 1.

Behold, I will pluck them out of their land;] I will deal with them, as they have dealt with my people: as they have diſpoſſeſſed my people of their land; ſo will I cauſe them to be diſpoſſeſſed of theirs. See ch. 30. 16. that which was alſo done by Nebuchadnezzar into whoſe hands they were likewiſe given, ch. 25. 20, 22. and 27. and 48. and 49. 1, 27.

and pluck out the houſe of Judah from among them.] I will deliver my people, as by main might, ſnatching them out of their hands, that have poſſeſſed themſelves of them, and bringing them back from thoſe places where in captivity they ſhall abide, Deut. 30. 3. Eſa. 1. 11, 12. & 27. 12, 13, cha. 31. 37. Ezek. 20, 37, 38. and there is an elegant diverſity and diſparity of notion in the ſame word of plucking out here uſed in this branch, and the former: the like whereunto, ſee ch. 34. 17.

V. 15. And it ſhall come to paſs after that I have plucked them out] Heb. it ſhall be; as ch. 3. 16. Sov. 16. after that I have plucked them out; not my people onely from among them, but them out of their own countryes alſo, verſ. 14.

I will return and have compaſſion on them,] Or, I will again have compaſſion on them; as Pſa. 71. 20. & 85. 6. and bring again every man to his heritage, and every man to his land.] Reduce them to their own country, and reſtore them to their ſeveral poſſeſſions again. See the like promiſes, Eſa. 18. 7. & 19. 22, 24. and 23. 17, 18. & 14. 22. ch. 49. 6, 39.

every man] Heb. a man; as ch. 5. 8.

V. 16. And it ſhall come to paſs, if they will diligently learn the ways of my people, to ſwear by my name, The Lord liveth: as they taught my people to ſwear by Baal; then ſhall they be built in the midſt of my people] The gracious promiſe of reſtitution is not made to theſe people, but upon condition of relinquiſhing their former idol-ſervices, and embracing the ſervices of the true God, having learned it from his people abiding among them, as Gods people had formerly learned the ſervice of their idols, by intermingling of themſelves with them, Num. 25. 1, 2. Pſa. 106. 35, 36.

the ways of my people] That is, the manners, faſhions, cuſtoms, and practice of my people: as, the way of the nations, ch. 10. 2.

to ſwear by my name] Not, to my name; as giving up their names, and by a ſolemn oath of allegiance engaging themſelves to me, as Iſa. 19. 18. but ſwear by my name; that is, by me, as Iſa. 48. 1. ſwearing by him, being here put, as a principal part of religious worſhip, for the whole ſervice of God, as Deu. 10. 20. ch. 4. 2. as the ſwearing by Baal, and idols in general, for the ſuperſtitious and idolatrous ſervice of them, ch. 5. 7. Zeph. 1. 5.

the Lord liveth] Or, by the life of God: the moſt uſual form of an oath in thoſe times, ch. 4. 2. & 5. 2.

then] Heb. and; as ch. 4. 1, 2.

built in the midſt of my people] Or, among my people; as Deut. 13. 1. & 18. 15. ch. 9. 6. that is, as ſome, they ſhall dwel quietly, as before in vicinity or neighbourhood with my people: or rather, they ſhall be firmly ſetled in the places of their former abode, (as the term of building is uſed, 2 Sam. 7. 27. Job 22. 23. chap. 33. 7. Mal. 3. 15.) and ſhall, withal, have a ſhare among my people in ſuch ſpiritual privileges as they enjoy. See Iſaiah 19. 23, 25. and 56. 5, 7.

V. 17. But if they will not obey, I will utterly pluck up and deſtroy that nation, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. And (as verſ. 12.) if they will not hear (that is, obey, as Pſal. 81. 11. chap. 7. 23. if any of them ſhall refuſe to yield hereunto) and (or, then, as verſ. 16.) I will plucking up pluck up, and will deſtroy that nation; that ſhall refuſe ſo to do. See Iſa. 60. 12.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſ. 1. THus ſaith the Lord unto me,] In this Prophecy, or Sermon, (which ſeemeth to have been delivered in the reign of Jehoiacin: ſee v. 18.) partly by the type of a girdle rotted and become fit for no uſe; and partly by the type of bottles, full of liquour, daſhed one againſt another; God ſeteth before the eyes of his people, how he purpoſed to deal with them; and that principally for the contempt of his admonitions and menaces, and their wilful obſtinacy and perſiſtance in their evil courſes, which by continued cuſtom they were become ſo enured unto, that nothing could withdraw them from them.

Thus ſaith] Or, ſaid the Lord unto me; for he telleth them of an errand, not that God now was ſending him, but had ſometime before ſent him on.

Go, and get thee a linnen girdle, and put it upon thy loins, and put it not in water.] Go] Heb. Going; as ch. 2. 2. & 3. 12.

get thee] Or, buy thee, as ch. 19. 1. & 32. 6. get thee, or, buy thee: as go thee, Gen. 12. 1. See ch. 11. 9.

a linnen girdle] Heb. a girdle of flaxes, or, linnens: as, a garment of linnens, Lev. 13. 47. and it ſeems to intend, not an ordinary girdle, either leathern, or woollen, ſuch as were commonly worn, 2 Kin. 1. 8. Mark 3. 4. but ſuch an one as the better ſort of perſons ware, Iſa. 22. 21. Ezek. 44. 17.

put it upon thy loyns] The wonted place of wearing girdles; 2 King. 1. 8. Iſa. 11. 5. why he was to do this, is afterward ſhewed, verſ. 11.

and put it not in water.] Or, but; as chap. 12. 2. do not wet it: do nothing thy ſelf to it, that may cauſe it to rot: thereby implying, that neither God, nor ought from him, had been any cauſe of the general corruption, and conſequently of the deſtruction of this people, by that girdle reſembled, verſ. 9, 11. Hoſea 13. 9. & 14. 1. Nor can I aſſent unto that learned late Writer, who conceiveth, that the Prophet was forbidden to lay it in water for the ſoftening of it, that it might remain ſtiff; reſembling that peoples ſtiffneſs of heart and neck, Iſaiah 48. 4. and much leſs with thoſe Jewiſh Doctors, who would have the meaning to be, that though with long wearing it in the place of ſweat Ezek. 44. 18. it would grow ſweatty and naſty, yet he ſhould not waſh it, that it might rot the ſooner.

V. 2. So I got a girdle according to the word of the Lord, and put it on my loins] I did as God bad me, I got me ſuch a girdle and wore it, as men uſe to do. Heb. And: (as Ezek. 3. 14.) I got, or, bought; as chap. 32. 9. word, for, command: as Jonah 3. 3.

V. 3. And the word of the Lord came to me the ſecond time ſaying;] Heb. was to me; as ch. 1. 13.

V. 4. Take the girdle that thou haſt got, which is upon thy loins,] Or, Take the girdle that thou boughteſt; and which thou wearеſt.

and ariſe, go to Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock.] Whether this were actually done, or in viſion only, is being ſo long a journey for the Prophet to take, is very doubtful: and both the Jewiſh Writers and ours ſeem divided about it. I incline with the moſt, to the judgment of thoſe, who ſuppoſe it to have been done in viſion, only ſo far forth as concerneth his journey, as well for the carrying of it thither, as for the fetching of it back again, v. 7. not unlike that journey of Ezekiel, from out of Chaldea to Jeruſalem, and from thence back again to the captivity in Chaldea, Ezek. 8. 3. and 11. 24.

ariſe,] As ch. 1. 17. See there.

go to Euphrates] Heb. Prat, or, Phrat, Gen. 2. 14. and it is made one of the limits, or boundaries of the promiſed land, Deu. 1. 7. & 11. 24. Joſh. 1. 4. The journey thither with this girdle thus enjoyned, ſome would have to ſignifie, that deſtruction which ſhould befall them for their travelling into Aſſyria, ſecking unto, and relying on, the King of Aſſyria, whoſe country bordered upon that river, as ſafe under his protection, 2 Kin. 16. 7. ch. 2. 18, 36. Others, with whom I rather concur, that they ſhould be removed out of their country, and carried captive unto Babylon, ſituate upon that river, Pſa. 137. 1. See on Eſay 21. 1. Ezek. 1. 1. & 3. 15.

hide it there in the hole of the rock] Thus the Jewiſh Commenters expound the word here uſed, as our verſion rendreth it, an hole, both in this place, and elſewhere; where people are ſaid to be hid in the like, chap. 16. 16. Iſa. 7. 19. and ſo both the ancient Greek and old Latine exhibit it. Howbeit, the Chaldee rendreth it, on the ſmoothneſs of the rock; uſing the ſame term, both Ezek. 26. 14. & Iſa. 57. 6. in in which latter place, the Hebrew hath, the ſmooth pebles of the brook: Whence it may be deemed, that the Paraphraſt conceived, that it ſhould lye hid among the beach; to which purpoſe, a learned Writer of ours ſuppoſeth, that it ſhould be laid in ſome place, where by the waſhing of the river it might be corrupted: but that were rather to lay it where it were to be waſted away with the current of the ſtream; and not to be found at his return again. Some other late Commenters of note, render it, in the proprtture, or, overhanging of the rock; to gain thereby ſome ſtrength to their former conceit of this people's for ſafeguard, putting themſelves under the Aſſyrian Kings protection, which ſhould be hereby deſigned: but neither is the ſignification of the word probable; nor needed that ſtraining of the term here for their purpoſe; holes of rocks, as well as brows and prominences, being for ſecurity commonly repaired unto. See Iſaiah 2. 19. and indeed where ſhould a girdle be hid out of ſight, but in ſome hole? and why in the hole of a dry rock, rather than in the moiſt ground, but that nothing from without might help to rot it, if it did rot, but its continuance there of it ſelf?

V. 5. So I went and hid it by Euphrates, as the Lord commanded me.] How this is ſuppoſed to have been done, ſee on verſ. 4.

So] Heb. And; as verſ. 2.

by Euphrates] The Greek and Latine render it, in Euphrates; but the words of the injunction confirm our verſion: and the particle is ſo uſed, Joſh. 1. 15, 26, 32. where in Shechem, is, by it, beſide it, or neer to uſed, Joſh. 1. 15, 26, 32. where in Shechem, is, by it, beſide it, or neer to it: and ſo, in Beer, Judg. 1. 4. and 1 Sam. 11. 8. and, in Anathoth, ch. 32. 7. See ch. 20. 2.

V. 6. And it came to paſs after many days, that the Lord ſaid unto me, Ariſe, go to Euphrates, and take the girdle from thence, which I commanded thee to hide there.] Heb. And it was from the end of many days, and the Lord ſaid unto me: as Gen. 4. 3. & 8. 5. that is, a long time after: as Lev. 15. 25. Num. 9. 19.

take from thence] Or, fetch from thence: take, for, take and bring; as Geneſis 27. 9. So, take, for, take and heap, Prov. 25. 22. receive, for receive and give, Pſalm 68. 18. So chap. 36. 14, 21.

V. 7. Then I went to Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle from the place, where I had bid it:] Of this ſecond journey, ſee as before on verſ. 4.

Then] Heb. And; as ch. 11. 5, or, So: as v. 5. becauſe the next verſe beginneth with, Then.

digged] Either having before ſtopped up the mouth of the hole, where he hid it, that it might be there the ſafer, or, finding it by ſome other means obſtructed. So Ezekiel digged in a viſion, Ezek. 8. 8.

where I hid it] Heb. which, or, in which, I hid it there: that which, though it may ſeem a redundancy, as the like is found, Gen. 2. 11. and 3. 23. yet the relative may have reference to the hole, or the cave, and the adverb of place, to the rock, wherein that hole, or the region neer the river, where that rock was ſituate.

and behold the girdle was rotted, it was profitable for nothing.] An emblem both of that unprofitable condition, that this people by corrupting themſelves and their ways, had brought themſelves unto, Pſal. 14. 1, 3. Iſa. 1. 4. Matt. 5. 13. Rom. 3. 12. Tit. 1. 16. and of that vile and ſorry condition, that by their captivity in foreaign remote parts, and their long continuance therein, they ſhould for their wickednes be juſtly reduced and brought unto, Lam. 3. 45. Ezek. 33. 10, & 37. 11.

it was profitable for nothing] Or, as we ſay, it was good for nothing; and ſo is it well rendred, v. 10. Heb. it would not thrive, or, be uſeful, (ſo is the word uſed, Ezek. 15. 4.) for all; that is, for ought. See on chap. 12. 12. So Gen. 4. 23.

V. 8. Then the word of the Lord came unto me, ſaying,] Heb. And, &c. as ch. 1. 12. v. 3.

V. 9. Thus ſaith the Lord, After this manner will I marre the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jeruſalem.] I will by the Chaldeans, who ſhall over-run the land of Judah, ſurprize and ſack Jeruſalem, overthrow the whole State, carry the people away captive, and detain them a long time in captivity far from their own country, utterly ſpoil all that pomp and power, wherein at preſent they ſo much pride themſelves. See Lev. 26. 19. Iſaiah 2. 11, 17. and 23. 9.

V. 10. This evil people, which refuſe to hear my words, which walk in the imagination of their hearts, and walk after other gods to ſerve them, and to worſhip them, ſhall be even as this girdle, which is good for nothing.] The cauſe why God would thus deal with them; becauſe by their refuſal to be led and guided by him, and abandoning themſelves to the ſervice of their own hearts deſires and devices, and the worſhip of baſe idols, they had already made themſelves nought-worth and good for nothing, chap. 2. 5. Iſaiah 57. 6.

refuſe to hear my words] That is, to obey them. See chap. 11. 10.

walk in the imagination of their hearts] See ch. 9. 13. & 11. 8. and the ſame again, ch. 16. 12. & 18. 12.

and walk after other gods to ſerve them, and to worſhip them] Heb. and that will walk after other gods, to ſerve them, and to bow down to them: the geſture uſed in adoration, put for adoration, or worſhip in general. So Exod. 20. 5. Numb. 25. 2. 1 King. 19. 18. See chap. 11. 10.

ſhall be even as this girdle] Heb. and it, to wit, this people or, they, (becauſe the word people, is collective) ſhall be as this girdle: nor is there any need at all to alter the native ſyntax; reading the foregoing part of the verſe, as by way of appoſition joyned to the words, next before, I will marre the pride of Judah and Jeruſalem; this evil people that refuſe to hear my words, and they ſhall be, or, ſo that they ſhall become, as this girdle; for ſo alſo is the copulative frequently uſed. See ch. 5. 28. 6. 5, 10. & 11. 19, 21.

V. 11. For as a girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man; ſo have I cauſed to cleave unto me, the whole houſe of Iſrael, and the whole houſe of Judah, ſaith the Lord; that they might be for a people, and for a name, and for a praiſe, and for a glory: but they would not hear.] The reaſon why he compared this people to a girdle; becauſe he had taken them unto him, to be as neer about him, and to fit as cloſe unto him, as a mans girdle doth to his loins, Deut. 30. 20. Pſal. 109. 19. & 148. 14. and that for this very purpoſe, that as ſome rich and goodly girdle, not lying out of ſight, or laid up in a cheſt, but being put on and worn abroad in open view, becometh thereby conſpicuous, hath notice taken of it, of the coſtly materials of it, and curious workmanſhip about it; and is conſequently a matter of grace and ornament to him alſo that weareth it, (ſee Exod. 28. 8. & 39. 5.) So this people, by this their vicinity, neerneſs, and inwardneſs of conjunction to him, and communion with him, might become famous and glorious in the eyes of all nations, Deut. 4. 6, 8, 32, 38. & 26. 19. chap. 33. 9. Eſay 62. 7. and that he himſelf alſo might be magnified and glorified in them, Eſay 43. 21. and 60. 19, 21. and 61. 9, 11. and 63. 12. and withall, the reaſon why he would now ſo deal with them, that they ſhould be like ſome rich girdle, looſed from a mans loins, caſt aſide ſhould be like ſome rich girdle, looſed from a mans loins, caſt aſide into a corner, or ſome remote and obſcure place, to lye therein out of ſight, unregarded and not looked after, till it rot there, (ſee Lev. 26. 39.) ſo wil, their wilful diſobedience, whereby they inconſiderately oppoſed and croſſed God in his deſignment intended for their good. See Pſalm 81. 8, 16. a pregnant comment upon this place.

For] Or, Becauſe; as chap. 13. 10. & 10. 21. becauſe it carrieth on the reaſon rendred of the foregoing paſſages, unto the very laſt words of the verſe.

the whole houſe of Iſrael, and the whole houſe of Judah] The whole poſterity of Jacob. See ch. 2. 3, 4. & 3. 18. & 5. 11.

a people] A peculiar people, Exo. 19. 5, 6. 1 Pet. 2. 9, 10.

a name] Name, for, renown; as Gen. 6. 4. & 11. 4.

but] Heb. and; as ch. 11. 2. v. 2.

they would not hear.] That is, obey; as v. 10. Heb. they heard not: as Eſa. 66. 4.

V. 12. Therefore thou ſhalt ſpeak unto them this word; Thus ſaith the Lord God of Iſrael;] Or, Moreover, (Heb. And: as ch. 11.) do thou ſpeak this word to them; or, tell them this from me: this word, for, this thing: as Dan. 1. 14. See chap. 7. 8. & 26. 2. & 36. 2. For at theſe words, the Lord, having done with the former type, paſſeth on unto another, whereby he would have the Prophet make known unto them, and ſet further before their eyes, what he intended to do with them.

Every bottle ſhall be filled with wine] Another type the Prophet is now enjoyned to tell them of: a type taken from that they much loved, liked and looked after: for they loved and looked after the flagons of wine, Hoſ. 3. 1. and thoſe Prophets beſt pleaſed them, that propheſied of wine and ſtrong drink to them, Mic. 2. 11. God therefore ſendeth his Prophet to them with a prophecy of wine, but other wine than they expected. See v. 13.

and they ſhall ſay unto thee, Do not we certainly know, that every bottle ſhall be filled with wine?] Or, and when they ſhall ſay unto thee, Do not we know well enough (Heb. knowing know; as ch. 26. 15. & 40. 14.) without thy telling, that every bottle ſhall be filled with wine: (little deeming what manner of wine the Prophet meant, and dreaming of nothing but mirth and jollity; like thoſe, Eſa. 22. 13. their ſecurity and ſenſuality being herein glanced at) Thou ſhalt ſay unto them, or, Say thou then to them, &c. v. 13. The like ſyntax is very frequent, Gen. 14. 14. Pro. 3. 24. Iſa. 30. 20. chap. 8. 4. & 11. 11. & 12. 5. and hereafter, verſ. 16.

V. 13. Then ſhalt thou ſay unto them; Thus ſaith the Lord, Behold I will fill all the Inhabitants of this land, even the Kings that ſit upon Davids throne, and the Prieſts, and the Prophets, and all the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, with drunkenneſs.] Since that ye are ſo addicted to wine and exceſs, Iſa. 5. 11, 12, 22. & 22. 13. Ye ſhall have wine to your full. I will fill all ſorts among you from the highеſt to the loweſt, with another ſort of wine than that ye ſo much affect and delight in, until ye be ſtark drunk with it. I will pour ye out ſo large-ly from the cup of my wrath, the wine of terrour, of anguiſh, of perplexity and aſtoniſhment, that ye ſhall be at your wits end, and ſhall no more know what to do, or which way to turn your ſelves, than men that are deep in drink. Of which wine, ſee Pſalm 60. 3. & 75. 8. & 107. 27. Eſay 51. 17, 21. chap. 25. 27. & 48. 26. & 51. 7, 39.

Behold, I will fill] Heb. Lo I am filling: as, Lo I am bringing, Chap. 11. 11.

even the Kings] Heb. and (as chap. 10. 25.) the Kings; either the Kings Kings themselves successively; or, Kings, for, King and Princes: as ch.17.20. & 19.3.

that sit on the throne of David] Heb. that sit unto David (that is, as some render it, in stead of David, as his Successors: others, of the stock of David, being his issue. So also chap.22.4.) upon his throne; as cha. 17.25. & 22.2. which should not seeme them; notwithstanding that promise of perpetuity made to it, Psal.89.29.

the Priests] That scorned to be ranked among the promiscuous multitude; but were to fare alike with the rest, Ela.24.1.

the Prophets] The false Prophets, that preached peace and safety to them; and hate the people in hand that all should be well. See ch.4.9,10. and 8.10,11.

V. 14. And I will dash them one against another, even the Fathers and the Sons together, saith the Lord:] I will set them together by the ears amongst themselves by intestine dissentions, and cause them to fall fowl one upon another, as men in drink are wont to do, as Esay 9.19. & 19.2. or, I will break them all together to pieces as earthen bottels full of wine dashed one against another; or like a confused company of people in drink, by the violence of the enemy breaking in upon them, ch.6.11,21.

dash them one against another] Some render it, I will scatter them one from another. So the old Latine: and the word here used doth oft signifie to scatter; as 1 Sam. 13.11. Esa.11.12. and 33.3. but as oft, to dash, and by dashing to dissolve, dissipate, or, break to pieces, Psa. 137.9. Esa.27.9. chap.22.28. and it is so applyed to potters ware, Psal. 2.9. to earthen pitchers, Judg.7.19. to bottels, as here, so ch.48. 12. and so it must here be taken: for the syntex admitteth not the former.

one against another] Not, one from another, Heb. a man to, or, against (as Judg.2.11.Esa.23.11.) his brother: as ch.25.26.Esa.19.2. or, one with another; as after, all together. So is the particle frequently used, ch.21.26. Lam.3.41.Ezek.16.36.

even] Heb. and; as verf.13.

the fathers and the sons together] No regard being had of natural bonds,relations,or affections,Isa.3.5. Mic.7.6. ch.6.21.

I will not pity, nor spare, nor have mercy, but destroy them.] Heb from destroying them; that is, so as not to destroy them, or, that I should not destroy them: as, from seeing, for, so as not to see; or, that they may not see, Psalm 69.23. and, from refusing, for, so that I cannot refuse, Isaiah 50.2. an expression of the same thing in various terms, to imply the certainty of it, as a matter irrevocably resolved. So Isa. 27.11.

V. 15. Hear ye, and give ear, be not proud, for the Lord hath spoken.] Or, Hear and hearken; (to good advice when it is given you, and while it may be for your good) be not haughty. So the word properly signifieth; and so it is well rendred, Esay 3.16. perfift not in your contumacy, and vain self-confidence, Prov.3.5,7. Rom.11.20. abate of your haughtineſs, the highneſs of your hearts, and the ſtoutneſs of your ſtomacks, before God pull down your pride, ver. 9. for it is he that threatneth to do it. See the like admonition, Isa. 28. 14,22.

V.16. Give glory to the Lord your God] By acknowledgment of your ſins, Josh.7.19. and humbling your ſelves under his hand, Jam.4.7, 10. 1 Pet.5.6. v.18.

before he cause darkneſs] Before he bring a night of affliction and calamity upon you, Esa.8.22.Lam.2.1.

and before your feet stumble upon the dark mountains,] Either upon the mountains, whereunto ye ſhall betake your ſelves for refuge and relief, while ye hope by that means to eſcape, Psal.11.1. Mat. 24.16. or the mountains over which ye ſhall be carryed away captive into Chaldea, and other forrein parts, v. 17. Heb. mountains of twilight, or evening, Prov.7.9. Isaiah 59.10.the time of darkneſs approaching after ſun-ſet; wherein men are prone to ſtumble, in ſuch places eſpecially, not without much prejudice and danger, Psa.35.6. Joh.11. 9,10. 1 Joh.2.11.

and while ye look for light, he turn it into the ſhadow of death, and make it groſs darkneſs.] And while ye promiſe to your ſelves peace and ſafety, chap. 4.10. & 6.14. and expect from forrein parts ſuch aids, as ye imagine will ſufficiently ſecure you, chap. 37.5.6. God turn all another way, and wrap you up in ſuch inextricable difficulties, as ye ſhall not be able by any means to wind your ſelves out of, chap. 8.15. and 14.19. Esay 59.6. Amos 8.9. 1 Theſſ.5.2. Heb. and ye expect light, and he make it the ſhadow of death; as above, verſ. 12,13.

the ſhadow of death] Darkneſs ſo dreadful, that the very horrour of it is enough to damp a mans ſpirits, and ſtrike him even ſtark dead, Psal.23.4.ch.2.6.

make it groſs darkneſs] Heb. put into groſs darkneſs: as, put into deſolation, chap.2.14. See Esay 60.2. So Joel 2.2. Zeph. 1.15.

V. 17. But if ye will not hear it, my ſoul ſhall weep in ſecret places for your pride; and mine eye ſhall weep ſore, and run down with tears, becauſe the Lords flock is carryed away captive.] All the Prophet can do, when he cannot prevail with them, to bring them to any ſerious conſideration of Gods meſſages delivered unto them, inviting them to ſincere humiliation and abatement of their haughty minds, is this, that out of his tender affection, he ſhall, apart by himſelf, much bewail their fooliſh arrogancy, and the miſeries that by captivity and deportation will for the ſame befall Gods people. So 1 Sam. 15.35.

But] Heb. And; as v.2,11.

if ye will not hear it] This hath reference to v. 15. the advice now given you, v.16.

my ſoul ſhall weep] I ſhall weep: as, my ſoul refuſed, for, I refuſed to be comforted, Psal. 77.2. but the phraſe maketh it the more affectionate; as Psa.42.12. & 63.1.

in ſecret places] Or, ſecrecies. So cha. 49.10. for ſorrow commonly ſhunneth company, affecteth retiredneſs and privacy. See ch.15.19. Mat.6.16,18.

for your pride] Verſ. 16. Heb. from before your pride; as chap. 4.4. and 9.7. fore-ſeeing what the iſſue of it will be, and what a fall your haughtineſs is ſure to have, Prov.15.25. and 16.18. and 18.12.

mine eye ſhall weep ſore] Heb. ſhedding tears ſhall tears: the verb is no where found but here, and is doubled to expreſs the grievous lamentation he ſhould make. See ch.9.1.

run down with tears] Heb. deſcend with tears; as ch.9.18. & 14. 17. Lam.1.2,16. & 2.18.

the Lords flock] His peculiar people, Psal. 100.3. See chap. 10.21, verſ. 20.

V. 18. Say to the King, and to the Queen] By the King, the Jewiſh Commenters here generally underſtand Jehojacin, or Jeconiah: and by the Queen, the Queen Nechuſtah his Mother, who ſeemeth to have ſwayed much in regard of her ſons minority; and was,together with him, and a great party of the great ones, and other of the people, taken by Nebuchadnezzar, and carryed captive to Babylon, 2 King. 24.12,16. chap.29.2. Whence alſo they gather, that this Prophecy was publiſhed in the time of his ſhort reign, that did laſt but three months, 2 King.24.12. For what a late Writer hath here of perſons living delicately, as Kings and Queens, Lords and Ladies, are wont to do,Prov.30.4.Mat.11.8.and of Bride-groom and Bride,that ſhould ſometime be ſo termed: of whom, chap.7.34. and 25.9. they are his private, not probable, opinions.

Say] Gods Words to the Prophet, ſay ſome: But ſaith the Jewiſh Commenter, nor ſpoken to any particular perſon, but to any one indefinitely, that might ſay it to them; as Eſay 35.4. Say to the fearful hearted: and it is, indeed, as if it were ſaid, Let this, or Be this, ſaid, or ſpoken to them. So, Say to the righteous, Esay 3.10. and, Say to Archippus, Col.4.17. Let it be as ſpoken to them, for them it concerneth.

the Queen] Or, Madame: the word properly ſignifieth Lady; as 2 Kin.5.3. or, Miſtreſs,Iſa.22.2. Prov.30.23.Esa.24.2. but it is uſed in a peculiar notion for Queen, the Kings wife, 1 Kin.11.19. 2 Kin. 10.13. or, Regent; as 1 Kin.15.13. 2 Chr.15.16. where it is ſaid of Maacah, the Queen-mother, that Aſa her ſon removed her from being Regent; for ſo might the word there well be rendred, that is,from having any power of authority in the State, as the notation of the word importeth.

Humble your ſelves, ſit down:] So there ſhould be a defect of the pronoun; as Esay 57.9. but it may well joyntly be rendred without any ſuch ſupply. Sit below: Come down from your thrones,or chairs of eſtate, and ſit down upon the ground, or the pavement. See the like to Babylon, Esay 47.1. and to Dibon, chap.48.18. Heb. Make low, or, Lay low,ſit down,for,Sit low: as. Make deep to dwell, for, dwell deep, chap. 49.30. and, made deep corrupted, for, deeply corrupted, Hoſ.9.9.

for your principalities ſhall come down, even the crown of your glory.] Heb. your pillows, or, principalities is come down: the word cometh from a root that ſignifieth an head, and is uſed in a plural form always, but in a ſingular notion for a pillow, or bolſter, or ought that ſupplyeth the place of ſuch,Gen.28.11,18. 1 Sam.19.13,16. and 26. 7,11,12,16. and the Jewiſh Doctors here expound it, as our Verſion yieldeth it, Your kingdom, or, Kingly State: but ſome late Writers, Your head attires, which may be not improbable: the head being the place, whereon the enſign of royalty is uſually worn, Psal. 21.3. The Rabbine noteth it to be uſed in the plural, to imply, that their Princely State, every jot of it ſhould be gone, that they ſhould be led captive, as other ordinary perſons: but it may well be, becauſe the word hath no other form than plural, as the word,heaven, water, virginity,childhood, and others. The ancient Greek,and old Latine, render it, in one continued tenour, the crown of your glory is fallen from your head. But the former Verſion ſeems the better.

the crown of your glory] Or, your crown of glory, or goodlineſs. So it would rather be rendred, than crown of your glory; as the like is rendred, Esay 61.3. (for both the latter term, and the ſyntax,is the ſame in either) that is, your glorious, or goodly crown. See Lam.5.16.

V. 19. The cities of the South ſhall be ſhut up, and none ſhall open them:] This the Jewiſh Commenters, and thoſe that tread in their track, underſtand of the cities of Judah, ſo called, ſay they, becauſe Judah lay South from Babylon; whence the enemy is ſaid to come from the North againſt it, verſ. 20. as alſo becauſe it was ſo ſituate, in regard of the moſt part of the Land of Israel, Josh. 15.1,2. and ſaid here to be ſhut up, and none to open them,either becauſe ſo ſtreitly beſieged,that no going in or out for fear of the enemy,Deu.28.52. chap.

chap.5.6. or, becauſe depopulated, and left without Inhabitants to go in or out, ch.9.11. See Esa.24.10. But ſome of ours, whom I rather concur with, underſtand it of the cities of Egypt, which lay South from Judea, Esa.30.6. which by the Chaldean forces lying between the Jews and them, ſhould be reſtrained, either from entertaining of them, or ſending any conſiderable reliefe or ſuccour, to them. See 2 Kin.24.7.

open them] The pronoun wanting, as ch.11.8.

Judah ſhall be carryed away captive, and all of it ſhall be wholly carryed away captive.] Heb. Judah is carryed away captive all of her; ſhe ryed away captive.] Heb. Judah is carryed away captive all of her; ſhe is carryed away captive with a captivity of extirpeſſes: the noun is to be ſupplyed from the verb. So, an entire captivity, Amos 1.6,9. This began in Jeconiahs captivity, 2 Kin. 24.14,16. and was compleated in Zedekiahs, 2 Kin. 25.10. See chap. 52.28,30. A Writer of prime note renders the laſt words, the city of the peaceable ones ſhall be carryed away captive; alluding, ſaith he, to the name of Jeruſalem, and the perpetuity of peace and proſperity, which they promiſed to themſelves: but neither do I find the word ever ſo uſed; and it is apparent, that Judah is in either member intended.

V. 20. Lift up your eyes, and behold them that come from the North.] That is, the Chaldeans by whom this was to be done, chap.1.14.& 6. 22. The Prophet ſpeaketh it, as if he ſaw them coming, and they might alſo, if they would, but look up, or look out, as Eſay 60.4. and it is not unlikely, that even at the very time of the delivery of this Prophecy, they were well on-ward on their way. See on v. 18. The old Latine Verſion here goeth by it ſelf, rendring the words, Ye that come from the North; as if the Chaldeans were called upon to view Jeruſalem: but the courſe of the context runneth directly contrary hereunto.

where is the flock that was given thee, thy beautiful flock?] Heb. thy flock of goodlineſs; as, your crown of goodlineſs, v.18. He ſeemeth to ſpeak this to the king: What is become now of that goodly flock,Gods people, that were committed to thy charge, and in whom thou didſt over-much pride thy ſelf? See Num.27.17. 2 Sam.24.1,2,17. Prov. 14.28. ch.10.21. v.9. Howbeit, becauſe the pronoun is feminine,he ſeemeth rather to direct his ſpeech unto the State, ſpeaking to it, as to a woman entruſted with government: to which purpoſe, the reading in the text exhibiteth both the verbs in the feminine gender in a ſingular feminine form, though the received lection read them in the plural.

V. 21. What wilt thou ſay?] As Joſhua, Josh.7.8. and Ezra, Ezr. 9.10. What ſhall I ſay? nor unlike that of Job, What ſhall I do? Job 31.14. ſpeeches importing ſuch a perplexity, as maketh perſons at their wits end, not knowing what to ſay, or do, verſ. 13.

when he ſhall puniſh thee?] Heb. when he ſhall viſit upon thee? as cha.11.22. he, that is, God, ſay ſome. Nebuchadnezzar, and the Chaldeans,ſay others,coming from the North, v.20. becauſe of them he ſpeaketh in the very next words: or, God by them, ſay others, including both, ch.5.9,10.

(for thou haſt taught them to be captains, and as chief over thee.)] Thou by ſeeking, and in baſe manner ſubmitting thy ſelf unto them, craving aid from them, and inviting them, by rich preſents to them, haſt ſhewed them the way, how to come, not to aſſiſt and releeve thee, but to over-maſter and ſubdue thee, and make a prey and a ſpoil of thee. See 2 King. 16.7,8. For that which a late learned Writer here hath, as if it were ſpoken to the king; charging him to have been the procuring cauſe of all theſe evils, by being a leader of them unto idolatrous practices, 2 King. 24.9. the words,though never ſo much forced, will not admit. Heb. and, (for, for,as ch.8.16.) thou haſt taught them againſt thy ſelf, captains to, or, for head, or, chief: taught them againſt thy ſelf; that is, to thine own damage and detriment: as Gen.42.36. all theſe things are againſt me: taught them captains; a defective form; for, taught them to be captains: as, from a King, for, from being a King; 1 Sam. 15.22. from a Regent, for, from being a Regent, 1 King.15.13. predeſtinated, conformable, for, predeſtinated to be, or, become, or, be made, conformable, Rom.8.20. choſen, rich in faith, for, choſen to be rich in faith, Jam. 2.5. to an head, or, for an head; as Judg.10.18. & 11.8,9,11. or upon the head: as Gen. 49.26. Deut.33.16. the Jewiſh Doctor not amiſs carrieth it thus on with the former, making the ſame ſupply in either; thou haſt taught them againſt thy ſelf to be captains, to become the head; or, thou haſt taught them to be captains, to be head over thee: for either way it may be read; but the former ſeems the better: thou haſt by thine inconſiderate courſes brought that judgement upon thy ſelf, that God long ſince threatned to inflict upon thee, in caſe of wilful and obſtinate diſobedience, Deut. 28.13,44. See Lam. 1.5.

ſhall not ſorrows take thee as a woman in travel?] Or, will not pains ſurpriſe thee, as a travelling woman? Heb. a woman of birth; an emblem of extream anguiſh and diſtreſs, Psal.48.6. Esa.26.17,18. and 37.3. ch.6.24. & 22.23.

V. 22. And if thou ſay in thine heart] If ſuch thoughts as theſe ſhall ariſe within thee; as Deu.7.17.& 8.4. & 18.21.

wherefore come theſe things upon me?] As ch.5.19. & 16.10.

for the greatneſs of thine iniquity] The anſwer to their queſtion, pointing; as with the finger,and directing them to the main cauſe and ground of all their miſery; for the greatneſs, or, for the multitude, (as it is rendred, ch.30.14.) of thine iniquity; the word will well bear either, as Psal.19.13. & 25.11. ſo here.

are thy ſkirts diſcovered, and thine heels made bare] Thou are brought to extreme ſhame and ſervitude; an alluſion to the manner of captives,that are led along without hoſe or ſhooes,bare-footed,and bare-leg'd, having ſcarce rayment wherewith to cover their nakedneſs, which in women captives (and to ſuch an one is Judah compared here) is the more ſhameful and grievous. See Esa.3.17.and 20. 4. and 47.3.

are thy ſkirts diſcovered] Thou are compelled to tuck up thy cloathes about thee, as being to go thorow thick and thin, Esa. 47.2. or, thou art expoſed to publike ſhame, as women captives oft are, Esay 3.17. and ſo the Chaldee rendreth it; See verſ. 26.

thine heeles made bare] Thy ſhooes being forcibly pluck'd off from thy feet; for ſo the word implyeth, as Lam.2.6. and the text may be rendred, and thine heels being violently uſed, diſcovered, or, by violent uſage made bare, See ch.2.25. There is in either branch a figurative ſpeech; for to ſpeak properly, not the ſkirts of the garment themſelves are diſcovered, but the fleſh of the body for want of them; whether truſſed up, turned up, torn away, or cut off; as 2 Sam.10.4. nor are the heels themſelves violently pluck'd away, but the ſhooes being violently pluck'd away, the heels by means thereof, come to be made bare and diſcovered. Howbeit in the latter part as ſome render it, the phraſe may be proper enough: thine heels are ſpoiled; being, ſay they, left bare of that covering, which in modeſt perſons, thoſe of faſhion and ſtate eſpecially, ſuch as ſhe is here compared unto, by means of the skirts or borders of their ſide garments they formerly had; ſo that this branch ſhould be but the ſame in ſubſtance with, or at moſt, but an effect or conſequent of the former. So the Greek,thine hinder parts are diſcovered,and thine heels expoſed to ſhameful view.

V. 23. Can the Ethiopian change his ſkin? or the leopard his ſpots? then may ye alſo do good, that are accuſtomed to do evil.] God being now to paſs a peremptory doom upon this people, of utter diſperſion, and deſtruction, doth in theſe words render a more full reaſon of it, their incorrigible and incurable condition: they were by cuſtome and continuance ſo habituated in evil, that it was become as a ſecond nature in them; no means would prevail with them, to work it out of them, or work them to any good; aſſoon might a black-moor be with waſhing made white,or the leopards ſpots be taken from him, as this people brought to ought that was good, and it is in vain therefore to take any further pains with them: See 2 Chro. 36.16. cha. 2. 30. & 5.3. & 6.29,30.

can the Ethiopian change his ſkin?] Heb. will, or, ſhall the Cuſhite change his ſkin; that is, the hew, or colour of it: but the verb is taken potentially, as the like, Esay 10.19. 2 Sam. 23.6. Lam. 3.7. Amos 6.12. And it is a proverbial form, uſed among the Greeks alſo and Latines, with whom, the waſhing of an Ethiopian, or, a blackmoor, is commonly uſed as an emblem, of labour in vain: Heb. a Cuſhite, as Nuin.12.1. and from hence, as alſo from Amos 9.5. it appeareth that the Cuſhite, the poſterity of Guſh, the ſon of Cham, and brother to Miſraim, the father of the Egyptians, Gen. 10.6. were a people generally noted in thoſe times for their black hew, above any other; as alſo,have the Ethiopians been from time to time ſucceſſively in all ages, whence alſo that name was by the Greeks given them, importing as much, and thereby diſtinguiſhing them from all other people, as of a deeper dy than any other in that kind; which the rather would be obſerved, becauſe it confirmeth the received judgements,from all antiquity tranſmitted unto us, (though by ſome learned men of great note, without ground ſufficient, as to me ſeemeth,of late controlled) that the Cuſhites are no other than the Ethiopians,and the Ethiopians of Africa that now are,the poſterity of Cuſh. Nor doth that with they alleage concerning the Ancient ſeat of the Cuſhites in Aſia, in ſome part of Arabia, bordering upon the red ſea, any way croſs ought herein received, concerning theſe black Cuſhites; the very name and memorial of whom is by theſe mens own confeſſion, now loſt in thoſe parts, ſince that it is well known, how frequent the tranſmigrations of people have been, from the places of their firſt abode: as alſo how ready the paſſage might be over that ſhoaly ſea, into the upper parts of Africa,is very eaſie to apprehend: and whereas ſome to ſhift off the force of this place, tell us that the Kedarens were black people, and therefore had their name, forcing in to that purpoſe that paſſage in the Canticles, Cant. 1.5. and the Chaldee Paraphraſt, who renders Kedar there Cuſh; as alſo that the Arabians may ſeem to have had their name from the like hew, as being the colour either of the night, or of the raven: becauſe the Hebrew term for Arabia, and another for the evening, and a third for a raven, are referred all to one roos, neither maketh much to this purpoſe. Since that it is not denyed, but that theſe Cuſhites had anciently their ſeat in thoſe parts. But exception ſufficient it is, for to enervate the force of any argument, againſt the received opinion from theſe fore-mentioned allegations; that what is ſaid of the former, to wit, the name of Kedar, is groundleſs; it being apparent that from Kedar one of Ishmaels ſons, Gen.25.13. that people had their name: nor are the people themſelves, but their tents, noted for blackneſs, in that place of the Canticles, and there is for the latter concerning Arabia, as little probability; with equal ground they might be deemed,to have been not of a black colour, like a crow, or, raven; but of a ſallow, or, willow willow colour; because a word rising from the same root, signifieth a fallow, or, willow-tree. See Esay 15.9.& 21.13. But the Chaldees and the Rcdarens, seem in Scripture still distinguished, and the Arabes from either: besides, that one of those Learned Writers, who goeth flatly this way, acknowledgeth those Arabes, whom he would have to be these Cushites, to be rather of a brown, or, tawnie, than a black hew.

or the leopard his spots] Heb. and; as ch. 6.20.& 9.12. the word rendered leopard, both here, and ch.5.6. is supposed to signifie, that wild, fierce, and wily creature, the male whereof the Latines call Pardus, the female, Pana, in regard of the great variety of spots all over the body of either. See Pliny l.8.c.17. the Greeks call both by the name of Pardalis. So Aristotle l.9.c.6. for the other name, I find not in any Ancient Greek Author; it is here rendred a leopard; which word, found in Latine Authors of an inferior age, should signifie a mungrel creature bred of a Pardus, and a Lioness; whereof see also Pliny where before. But the Hebrew word here used, as also the Greek Pardalis, and the Latine Pardus, and Panis, seem to design no other, than that which we commonly call an Ounce, and some, a Cat-a-mountain, because it seemeth of a middle nature, between a Lion and a Cat; as our Cains deseribeth him, in an Epistle to Gesner, of the bignesi of a Mastive, for head and face like a Lion, for body, tail, foot, and nails, liker a Cat; the word rendred spots, not else-where found, signifieth properly dark spots, such as arise in the body of one that hath been beaten, as we say, black and blew, Prov.20.30. Esa.53.5. and of a blackish colour are the Ounces spots.

then ye also] Or, then ye: This some would restrain to the King, and, the Queen, mentioned, v.18. but it seems to be more general, and to reach the main body of the state and people.

accustomed] Heb. taught; as ch.9.5.& 31.18.

V.24. Therefore will I scatter them as the stubble, that passeth away by the winde of the wilderness] Heb. And; as chap.11.8. yet may the copulative here be retained, if we read the 23. verse in a parenthesis, interjected between the 22. verse and this. In that was intimated their captivity; in this, their dispersion into divers several regions and countries, far remote and distant one from another; that which should make their captivity much more grievous and uncomfortable, when they should be thus severed one from another, Deu.4.27.& 28.64. ch.9.16.

as stubble] So Psa.83.13. Esa.40.24. Hos.13.3. Zeph.2.2.

by the winde of the wilderness] Heb. unto the winde (that is, to be carried away with the winde, as Ezek.5.2.) of the wilderness, or, the plain; as Esa.63.13. Sec ch.4.11. The Rabbines suppose, that the Prophet herein had some eye to the wilderness, that lyeth between Jerusalem, and Babylon; but of that there is neither any necessitie, nor much probability.

V.25. This is thy lot, the portions of thy measures from me, saith the Lord] This is thy state, the state and condition that God hath assigned thee, the sad doom that he hath passed upon thee. It is a borrowed form of speech, taken from lands measured out by line, into several portions and parcels, according to the number of those that are copartners therein, and then divided by lot, that each one may have that part, that the lot hath assigned him. So Job 20.23. Psal.11.6.& 16.5,6. Mic.2.5. This denunciation a Learned Writer restraineth to the Queen-Mother, mentioned, ver.18. But therein he goeth alone, and seems to narrow the text too much. God speaketh by the Prophet to the Jewish state, as in the person of a woman, So ver.19,21, 26,27.

because thou hast forgotten me] As chap.2.32. Heb. that, or, which hast forgotten me; as, which dwelt in Egypt; Exod.12.40. but the relative is oft used in a causal notion; as 1 King.15.13. chap.1.15.

and trusted in falsehood] Or, in a lye: either in idols, as some; chap.2.17,18.& 10.14. or, in vain courses, that cannot stand thee in stead, but will fail thee in time of need, cha.3.23. and 7.8.& 23.16,17.

V.26. Therefore will I discover thy skirts upon thy face, that thy shame may appear.] Or, I will discover, (Heb. make bare, as Esa.47.2.& 52.10. chap.49.10.) by casting up thy skirts upon thy face, thy shame, that it may be seen; that that which natural shame and modesty seeketh to conceal, may lye open to sight; See on vers.22.& Nah.3.5. where the speech is defective also, as the same here; not unlike that, Psalm 89.39,44. I will expose thee to open shame and ignominy, that as thy sin hath been open and publike, so thy shame also may be such. See Esay 3.17.& 20.4. Ezek.16.37. and 23.29.

V.27. I have seen thine adulteries, and thy neighings, the lewdnesse of thy whoredom, and thine abomination on the hills, in the fields.] Or, as the words ly in the text, Thine adulteries, and thy neighings, and thy lewd whoredome have been, or are upon the hils, and in the fields: I have seen, or, I see thine abominations.

adulteries] Idolatries; as chap.2.20.& 3.1. Ezek.16.31.& 23.44,45.

neighings] That is, saith the Jewish Doctor, thy rejoycing in thy wickednesi, ch.11.15. but that is clean besides the intention of the Prophet in this place: its parallel to that, chap.5.8. save that there this neighing is of the male winding the female, because speaking of men: here of the female, the mare, when she runs a madding after the male; because the speech is of the Jewish State, as in the person of a woman: as in that other passage of a wild ass, therein parallel to this, ch.2.24.

the lewdnesse of thy whoredom,] Or, thy lewd whoredom, chap.13.15.

on the hils in the fields] On the hills (and high places abroad) in the fields, ch.3.2. Esa.65.7. Or, on the hills, and in the fields: no place is free from them, Esa.57.5,7. ch.2.20.& 3.6.

I have seen] Or, I see thine abominations: I see them, and take notice of them, though thou thinkest I do not; as chap.7.11. Hos.5.3.& 7.1,2. Of the term here rendred abomination, see on Esay 66.16.

it is unto thee, O Jerusalem, wilt thou not be made clean? when shall it once be?] In these words, the Prophet closeth up this sad Sermon, with an affectionate compellation of the Jewish State, under the title of Jerusalem, the head city thereof; lamenting her wilful continuance in her spiritual filth; with an obstinate refusal of being reclaimed and cleansed from it, after means for so long a time tendered unto her, and prefled upon her, to that purpose. See cha.4.14. Ezek.24.13.

It's unto thee] Spoken not by way of denunciation: as Esa.5.8,11. but of lamentation: as Lam.5.16.

when shall it once be?] Heb. after how long yet, or still? To wit, wilt thou cleanse thy self? say some: but as I suppose rather, Wilt thou persist and continue in thy filth and folly, refusing to come out of it? for the term, by some rendered, yet here hath a notion of continuance. See the parallel place, chap.4.14.

CHAP. XIV.

Vers.1. THE Word of the Lord that came to Jeremiah concerning the dearth.] The title prefixed before this Sermon, or Prophecy, acquainteth us with the occasion of it, a dearth caused by drought; but not with the time when this dearth or drought was: Whence ariseth some diversity of opinion among Interpreters, concerning the time of it. Some supposing it to have been in the time of the siege of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, in the reign of Zedekiah, chap.52.6. but this famine was not in the city alone, as that was, for want of bread; but over the whole country, for want of rain, vers.4,6. Others would have it to be in the beginning of Zedekiah's reign, some good space of time before that siege. I suppose it to have been rather in the reign of Jehojakim: the ground of my conjecture is, because I find chap.36.9. that in the fifth year of Jehojakim, a solemn fast was proclaimed thorowout all Judah, which might well be, upon this occasion; and the rather may be conceived so to have been, because God, in his speech to the Prophet, intimateth, that they either had already held, or were about to hold a fast, to implore Gods favour and mercy, for the removal of this evil, vers.11,12. also, the Prophet seems to imply as much in his speech to God, vers.2. Add hereunto the opinion of the Jewish Doctors, who supposie the former Prophecy contained in chap.11.& 12. to have been delivered in Jehojakim's reign. See on chap.11.9. and it may well be deemed from chap.12.4. that such a drought then was, as is here described.

The word of the Lord that came to Jeremiah] See ch.1.2.& 7.1. This word seemeth to begin at v.1 o.for the foregoing part of the chapter, seems to have been the Prophets speech unto God, bitterly bewailing the fad condition of the whole State, by reason of this great drought, v.2,6. and earnestly, with much affection, making suit unto God, for the removal, or mitigation, at least, of this evil, v.7,9. See the like inscription ch.32.1.& 40.1. to Jeremiah] That is, to me; as ch.13.1. but the noun is here for the pronoun: as Esa.21.

concerning the dearth] Or, drought. Heb. concerning the words (that is, the matter; as Esth.9.31. Psal.65.3. chap.17.8.) of the restraints: to wit, of rain, as chap.17.8. where the fame is in the singular number. Hence some would pick out two several droughts, at two several times: but droughts rather, for a drought of long continuance: the plural often in Hebrew, implying an eminency, or enhancement, of the thing specified. So wisdoms, Prov.14.1. cawenesses, Esa.26.7. righteousnesses, Esay 45.24. droughts, Esa.58.11. strengths, Esa.63.15. Again some would have it here denounced onely, none at all in present being. But the whole current of the context, seems to run strongly against that conceit. See the close of it, verf.22. Howbeit, a learned Interpreter (therein I suppose going alone by himself) suppoleth no mention of drought or dearth at all, either presene or future, to be here mentioned: for he expoundeth those words of the text, concerning the words of exhibitions; that is, concerning the prayers and supplications commenced by the Prophet, and other godly ones, for the staying of Gods wrath denounced against the State: who also therefore suppoleth both this, and all the foregoing Sermons, to have been delivered in the reign of Josiah, 2 King.23.26, 27. but though it be true, that the Prophets prayer seems to have occasioned the Prophecy; yet the present drought appeareth plainly to have occasioned the Prophets prayer.

V.2. Judah mourneth.] The Prophets complaint of the rusul and distressed condition of the whole State, by reason of the present dearth: Judah (the whole land) mourneth; not Jerusalem alone, as in the siege. See ch.12.11.

and the gates thereof languish] That is, her cities; as Exod.20.10. Deut.

Deut.16.5. ch.15.9. Lam.1.4. and the inhabitants thereof: so called, because the gates were the ordinary places of publike assemblies, and means of keeping in, or letting out, Ruth 4.1,2.2 King.7.1,20. Psal.127.5. when the country faileth through drought, the cities muft needs faint through dearth, Eccl.5.9.

they are black unto the ground] Going in black, as mourners, Psa.38.6.& 42.9. Mal.3.14. or looking black in the face, through grief and famine, Lam.4.6. Rev.6.5. for faintnes they hang the head, or sink and fall down to the ground: for it is a defective, or comprehensive form of speech; not unlike those, Psa.74.7.& 89.39,44. Esa.14.12. Lam.2.19.& 3.53.

and the cry of Jerusalem is gone up.] That is, the cry of the people out of all parts of the country there assembled, to seek God in his Sanctuary by solemn prayer and supplication to have the present re-Sanctuary by solemn prayer and supplication to have the present restraint removed, and the heavens opened again to them, 1 Kin.8.35, 36. See ch.36.9. v.12. So 1 Sam.5.12. the cry of the city went up to heaven.

V.3. And their Nobles have sent their little ones to the waters, they came to the pits, and found no water, they returned with their vessels empty; they were ashamed and confounded, and covered their heads.] Or, when their Nobles had sent their meaner ones to the waters, and they coming to the pits found no water, but returned with their empty vessels; they were abashed, and confounded, and covered their heads. Of this Syntax, see chap.13.12,16.

Nobles] The great men; who if they were driven to such streits, for want of water, the poorer fort much more. See Esa.5.13.

sent their little ones] Or, meaner ones. Some of those of the meaner fort: their menial or domestick servants. See Psal.119.141.

to the waters] To those places where water was wont to be had. So Judg.7.6. or, for water; that is, to seek for water, where it might be found: as 1 King.18.5.

to the pits] Places hewen out, or digged, for the receiving and keeping, either of Spring water derived unto them, or such rain water as fell from above, Esa.7.3.& 22.11. ch.2.13.

found no water] As Esa.41.17. the rain being restrained, and the springs also that were therewith fed, dryed up, 1 Kin.17.7.

they returned with their vessels empty] As they carryed them out; not as Naomi, Ruth 1.21. Heb. they returned their vessels empty, or, in vain, without effect; as 2 Sam.1.22. for the word is an adverb, and so in that of Ruth; either a defect of the instrumental note, with, which our Versions supplyes; or the verb in an active notion, as some Jewish Criticks, they brought back, or returned, their vessels empty. So 1 Sam.23.6. either, he came down with an Ephod in his hands; or, he brought down an Ephod in his hands.

they] This moft expound of the servants feat; I rather, of their Masters that sent them, and expected water by them, but were frustrate of their expectation.

were ashamed and confounded] Or, abashed (which precisely answereth the term in the text) and appalled: for it is not so much shame, as dejection and perplexity of spirit, that is wont to surprise persons in such cases.

covered their heads] As in much grief and sorrow the manner was in those times to muffle up head and face, scarce leaving any space free for sight, much after the manner of close mourners with us. See 2 Sam.15.30. So v.4.

V.4. Because the ground is chapt; for there was no rain in the earth, the plow-men were ashamed, they covered their heads.] Or, Because the ground (that peculiarly which is wont to be tilled, Esa.1.7.) is chapt (Heb. it broken, or is wasted and spoyled, as ch.48.20.) for that no rain hath been (or hath fallen) upon the land; (to wit, of Judah, as 1 Kin.18.1.) the husband-men (as chap.31.24. for the word is larger than that of plow-men, Psal.129.3.) are abashed, (so Joel 1.11.) they covered their heads, as v.3.

V.5. Yea, the hind also calved in the field, and forsook it, because there was no gras.] Yea (as chap.10.7.) the hind also calved (Heb. brought forth; as Job 39.1,2.) in the field (not in the wild waste) and forsook it (to wit, that which she brought forth, her young, Job 39.4. (Heb. forsaking forsooth, as Eccl.4.2.& 8.9.& 9.11. Esa.43.8.& 59.13. forsaking and forsook as the pronoun it, as chap.12.11.) because there was no gras, or tender, or green, herbage, Psal.23.2. Esa.66.14. So great is the drought that the very brute beasts, who by instinct of nature are very affectionate unto, and exceeding chary of their young, (in which kind, concerning the hind, see Pliny, l.8.c.32.) have been enforced, though calving in the fields, where herbage usually is not wanting, to leave their young, their milk being dryed up for want of moysture, and wander to seek for water, or some green thing, where they can find either. Thus the Prophet relateth to the Lord, the poor brute beasts misery suffering for mans sin and iniquity; if in behalf of the guiltelefs creature, at least, God may be moved to shew mercy to wicked man. So Joel 1.20. See Jon.4.11.

V.6. And the wild asses did stand in the high places, they snuffed up the wind like dragons:] Or, The wild asses also (as chap.3.6.) stood in the high places, and snuft up the wind; or, stand in the high places snuffing up the wind: as, stand and feed, for, stand feeding, Esay 61.5. instead of water thereby endeavouring to allay their inward drought and heat thence proceeding: another kind of their snuffing up the wind, from that mentioned, chap.2.24. this for want of moysture, that out of wantonnesi. And to this purpose, therefore, they are here said, to repair and get up to the high places, in which if any where, freth and cool ayr and gales of wind are to be had, that might that way give them some refreshing, which in the lower grounds and valleys, neither breaths so freely, and is more heated with the reflexion of the sun-beams from the higher grounds; and this place alone therefore may sufficiently control that learned mans conceit, who would have the word here used to signifie low places, or plains, especially being compared with what himself hath on, chap.4.11. See there.

like dragons] Whose inward drought, because it is not easily slaked, such of them as live in hot and dry desarts, where usually they moft abound, are therefore continually drawing in the ayr; wherewith also alone some of them can continue long, when they have nothing else to relieve them. See Aristotle, l.8.c.4. and Pliny, l.10.c.72. and of the word here used, see on Esa.27.1.& 34.13.

their eyes did fail] Or, their eyes fail, being sunk in their heads, or with faintnes; for famine causeth faintnes, and maketh the sight fail. See 1 Sam.14.29. Lam.5.17.

because there was no gras.] Or, because there is no herbage: nothing green or moyst, to relieve or refresh them. Of the word, see on chap.12.4.

V.7. O Lord, though our iniquities testifie against us, do it for thy names sake.] The Prophets complaint went before: his prayer now followeth, wherein he entreateth God, that although for their manifold great and grievous sins they justly deserved what they endured, yet that he would for his own names sake shew mercy unto them, in removing of this heavy judgement. The onely remedy for removal of judgments, repentance and prayer: so ver.20,22. Lam.3.40,41.

though] Or, albeit. Heb. if; as ch.5.2.

our iniquities testifie against us] Give in sufficient evidence against us, to convince and evict us, as deservedly sustaining whatsoever we endure. Heb. answer; as Gen.30.33. So Exod.20.16. See Esa.3.9.& 59.12.

do it for thy names sake] Take pity on us, and relieve us, if not for our own sake, yet for the honour of thy mercy, and the glory of thy name: so Psalm 25.11.& 115.1,2. Esay 43.25.& 48.11. do it, a defect of the pronoun, as verf.5. forlook it: so Psal.39.9. or, work for thy names sake, as Ezek.20.14. and then there needs no supply.

for our back-slidings are many, we have sinned against thee.] Or, though our revolts are many, or great, whereby we have sinned against thee. So the particle is used, Gen.8.21. Josh.17.18. Psal.23.4. and so would the particle is used, Gen.8.21. Josh.17.18. Psal.23.4. and so would the article be rendred in those places parallel to this, Psal.25.11. For thy names sake, O Lord, pardon mine iniquity, though it be much, or great; and, heal my soul (that is, heal me) though I have sinned against thee, Psal.41.4. the defect of the relative is not unusual: so cha.8.13.& 11.19.

V.8. O the hope of Israel, the Saviour thereof in time of trouble, why shouldst thou be as a stranger in the land, and as a way faring man that turneth aside to tary for a night.] To the Prophets earnest supplication in the words before-going, in this verse, and the next, he subjoyneth in a passionate, yet submiss expostulation, that he whom alone his people had to rely upon, and who had wont to relieve and deliver them in their distresses, should now fail them, carrying himself towards them, as one that had little or nothing to do with them; no more regarding them, nor seeming to care what became of them, than some meer stranger, of a place, that he hath no relation to nor pofed to constant abode.

the hope of Israel] Chap.17.13.& 50.7. Psal.22.4. For the Talmudick Doctor doth but dally with the text, who because the word here used, doth sometime signifie any place, sea, lake, pond, or pool, wherein waters are gathered together. Gen.1.10. Exod.7.19. Lev.11.36. Esay 22.11. would have it here rendred, the pool of Israel, in which they are purged from their filth; according to that, Zach.13.1. for hope, or expectation, the word is frequently used, 1 Chr.29.15. Ezr.10.2.

as a stranger] Or, sojourner; as Exo.12.48. Lev.19.33.

as a stranger] Or, sojourner; as Exo.12.48. Lev.19.33.

as a way faring man] That is, but for a night, or, for a night onely; as, yesterday, for, but of yesterday, Job 8.9. and, a moment, for, but a moment, Psa. 30.5. and, one, for, one onely, or, one alone, Eccl.4.8,11. but the word is not at all in the text, which yet may well be rendred with night, is not at all in the text, which yet may well be rendred with night, is not at all in the text, which yet may well be rendred with the like supply, to lodge only, or but to lodge: lodging being here opposed to constant abode.

V.9. Why shouldst thou be as a man astonished, as a mighty man that cannot save?] The word used in the former branch, is no where found else in Scripture, and is by divers therefore diversly expounded : the ancient Greek renders it asleep, as if they had read nirdam for nidham: the old Latine, a wanderer; on what ground I cannot guess. Others, as our Version, astonished, or, amazed; struck dumb, saith one, as if this, and the Hebrew dum, whence our dumb, were of an affinity : terrified, or, affrighted, saith another ; as the word daham is used in the Arabick Version, Mat. 24. 39. though another, grounding it seems upon the same place, rendreth it, coming upon, and expounds it, as one that coming in upon one that is in danger, and expecteth help from him, either doth not, or dare not, or cannot rescue, or relieve him. Others lastly, as one that fainteth : and so one of the Jewish Criticks, affirming that in the Kedaren, or Arabian language, the word nidhum, which cometh very neer this, signifieth one, that with some grief, or sicknes, hath his heart quailed : nor doth this swarve much from that which our Version hath, and seems to me most probable.

as a mighty man that cannot save] His power being spent ; as Esay 10.18. & 40.30. that which with God, being of infinite power, is impossible. See Esay 40. 28, 29. & 50.2. & 59. 1. the relative is wanting, as ver.8.

Yet thou, O Lord, art in the midst of us,] Yet (Heb. and ; as Chap. 7.26.) thou art among us : as Chap.17.6 &.39.5. having thy Temple, the place of thy special presence and residence,as thy court or palace, with us, ver.21.Psal.46.5.Zach.2.5.

and we are called by thy Name] We are accounted thy people, Deut. 26. 18. Psal. 135.4. and the evils therefore that befall us, redound to thy dishonour, Ezek.36.20. See Numb. 14. 13-16. Heb. thy name is called upon us: as Deut. 28. 10. Esay 63. 19. Chap. 15. 16.

leave us not.] Withdraw not thine aid from us in this our distress, Psal.27.9. & 38.21.&119.8.or do not utterly cast us off : as God seemed to threaten ; this heavy judgment being by the Prophet apprehended, as a presage and fore-runner of a far greater ensuing evill. See chap.6. 8.

V. 10. Thus saith the Lord unto this people ;] Or rather, concerning this people. So is the particle used, Gen.20.13. Esth. 3.2. Psal.91.11. Esay 8.12.& 27.2. & 56.4.and here beginneth the word mentioned, ver.1.as in way of answer to the Prophets suit and complaint.See the like, chap. 42.7. In it the Lord telleth the Prophet, that since this people are so addicted to defection from him, and going astray after others, either idolaters, or idols ; he will not onely at the present disregard them, and not hear them, or return any gracious answer to them, notwithstanding all their fastings and external humiliations, by removal of the present judgement ; but that he is resolved to proceed further in judgement against them, and by sword, famine and pestilence, two other evils added to this at present upon them, to consume and destroy them : and forbiddeth the Prophet therefore any further to solicite him in their behalf.

Thus they] This people, whom thou movest me for, ver.8.9. and he saith this people; as those, whom God seemed now not to own as his. So ver. 11.

have loved to wander] Or, love to wander : all their delight is in wandring, in running to and fro, this way and that way, after their copesmates and their idols, chap. 2. 23-25. and since they love wandring so well, they shall have their fill of it, cha. 15. 4,7. Hos.9.17.

they have not refrained their feet] Or, they will not refrain, or, with-hold, as (chap. 2.20.) or, with-draw, (as Prov.25. 17. though the word there be not the same) their feet ; to wit, from running after strange gods, and strangers, chap.2.25.

therefore the Lord doth not accept them] Heb.and (as chap. 13. 24.) the Lord (the noun for the pronoun ; as ver. 1.) accepteth them not : as Hos.8.14. or, hath no favour, or, affection, to them, Psal.44.3. & 85. 1. or, taketh no pleasure in them ; as Psal. 147. 11. and 149. 4. for the same word is used in all those places. See Esay 57. 6. and 65.5.

he will now remember their iniquity, and visit their sin.] Or, he doth now remember their iniquity ; he calleth it to minde : which God is said to do, when by some sign he maketh it to appear, that he doth bear it in mind, though he forbear for some space of time to discover his displeasure, 1 King.17.18. Psal. 25.7. and 109. 15. cha.44. 21, 22. and will visit their sin, that is, punish them for it : as Exod. 20. 5. cha. 11.21.

V. 11. Then said the Lord unto me] Or, Moreover, the Lord said unto me. Heb. and ; as chap.1.11.and 8.4.

Pray not for this people for their good.] Heb. make not supplication in behalf of this people, (see on ver.10) for good : as Neh.5.19.& 13.31. See the like inhibition,cha.7.16. and 11.14.

V. 12. When they fast, I will not hear their cry ;] Or, Though (as cha.12.1.) they fast, (see cha.36.9.) I will not hear their cry ; whereof, see ver.2. The like reason of the same inhibition,see rendred, chap. 11. 14. and the peoples expostulation upon Gods refusall in such case to hear them, Esay 58.3.

and when they offer burnt offering and an oblation, I will not accept them :] Or, and though (as before) they offer (Heb. make to ascend, Esay 56.7.) sacrifice, or (as cha. 13. 23.) oblation, (see Esay 1. 11. 13.) I will not shew them any favour ; as Psal.85. 1. for the word them, may have reference as well to themselves, as to their presents and services. So chap. 6.20. & 7.21. Esay 1.11--15. sacrifice,and oblation, collectively, for sacrifices, and oblations : but there is an emphasis in it,as if it were said, not any sacrifice, or oblation, whatsoever it be, never so goodly, never so costly, shall prevail with me to obtain any favour, or removal of evil, in their behalfe. See 1 Sam.3.14.

but I will consume them by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence.] By further judgements added to what at present they endure. Three grievous evils, any one of them alone sufficient to eat out a numerous nation, 2 Sam. 24. 12-14. but usually concurring, and oft joyntly threatned, chap. 29. 17,18. and 32. 24, 36. & and 34. 17. Ezek. 5.17. and 6. 11. and 7. 15.and 14. 13-21.See ver.18.

V.13.Then said I] Heb. And I said. So chap.13.7,8.

Ah Lord God, Behold, the Prophets say unto them ; Ye shall not see the sword, neither shall ye have famine ;] See the like complaint of the Prophet to God, concerning these false Prophets deluding the people ; and pitying the poor people deluded by them, chap.4.10. and 23.9.

see] That is, suffer, or endure ; as chap. 42. 14. Psal. 89.48. Joh. 8.51,52.

neither shall ye have famine] Heb. famine shall not be to you ; no such famine shall befall you, as these Prophets threaten you with, by the enemies wasting of your country, and the siege of your city, chap.27.8. and 38.2.

but I will give you assured peace in this place.] Thus these wicked wretches speak as in Gods name, as if God himselfe spake by them, chap.23.17,31. See chap.4.10.

assured peace] Heb. peace of truth. See Esay 39.8. and of these false Prophets promising the people peace, that is, prosperity and safety, chap.6.14. & 8.11. & 23.17.

V. 14. Then the Lord said unto me :] Heb. And ; as ver.13. which may well be here retained. Gods answer followeth to this complaint of the Prophet concerning those false Prophets, charging them with falshood and abuse of Gods name, ver. 14. and threatning destruction both to them, ver. 15. and to those that are deluded by them, ver.16.

the Prophets prophesie lyes in my name,] Heb. falshood, or, a lye ; as chap.27.10. See chap.23.16.26.and 29.21.

I sent them not, neither have I commanded them, neither spake unto them ;] Or, I neither sent them, nor commanded them, nor spake unto them ; that all may run in one tenour, as in the original it doth. I sent them not on any such errand, nor gave them any such matter in charge to deliver as from me ; as chap. 1.17. See chap. 23.21, 32. and 29.9.

they prophesie unto you a false vision and divination, and, a thing of nought, and the deceit of their heart.] Heb. a vision of falshood, or, a lie, (as in the former branch, and Zach. 10. 2.) and a divination, and a thing of nought, and the deceit of their heart ; or, and a divination nought worth, (as a cloud and smoak, for, a cloud of smoak, or, a smoaky cloud, Esay 4. 5. and, a sign and a witness for, a witnessing signe, Esay 19. 20. and, peace and truth, for, peace of truth, as ver.13. or, assured peace, Esay 39. 8.) even (as chap. 13. 13.) the deceit. or, deceitfull device ; (as Dan. 11.25.) of their own (as Esay 56.11. and 57.17. chap.13.10.) heart. So chap. 23. 26.

V. 15. Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning the Prophets, that prophesie in my name and I sent them not,] Or, When as I sent them not, as cha.6.14.9.8.

Yet they say] Heb.and(as ver.9.) they are saying : this is that which they are still telling the people ; the pronoun demonstrative including the verb substantive ; as cha.17.15.

sword and famine shall not be in the land] Neither war, nor famine procured by it, or accompanying it : as chap.42.14.

by sword and famine shall these Prophets be consumed.] They themselves shall suffer and perish by those evils with the first, from which they promised immunity and security to others. See the like commination, chap.6.15,30. So chap.20.6. 1 king.22.25. See also, chap. 42.16. and 44.12.

V. 16.And the people to whom they prophesie shall be cast out in the streets of Jerusalem, because of the sword and the famine, and they shall have none to bury them, their wives, nor their sons, nor their daughters] The people deluded by them shall perish together with them, and find too late by wofull experience,what wicked imposters they were. So chap.20.6.

V. 17.Therefore shalt thou say this word unto them ;] Heb. And (as ver. 10) thou shalt say this word ; that is, Say thou, or, speak, on this wise to them : as Chap.13.12.

Let mine eyes run down with tears night and day, and let them not cease ;] Or, mine eyes shall run down with tears night and day, and shall not cease. Let them know that howsoever the false Prophets feed and flatter them with vain promises of assured peace and safety ; and bear them in hand that all shall go well with them,ver.13. Yet that thou foreseeing, and being well assured of what evils were preparing for them, and would certainly surprize them, if not speedily prevented, canst do no other than abandon thy selfe unto an incessant mourning for them ; if thou maist thereby provoke them unto the like. See Chap. 9. 1. & 13. 17. Lam. 1. 16. & 2. 18.

with a very grievous blow.] See chap. 10. 19. and 30. 12. So Neh.3.19.

V. 18. If I go forth into the field,then behold the slain with the sword ; and if I enter into the city, then behold them that are sick with famine.] The Prophet to shew them what cause he had thus to lament, speaketh as already present at the siege of the city ; and as if, whithersoever he betook himself, he had nothing but sad spectacles, and objects of much grief in his eye ; without the city, of men slain by the enemies sword ; within the city, of people perishing for want of food ; See ver.12,15,16.Chap.15.2.and 33.5.and 38.2,9. so Deut. 32.25.Lam.4.9.Ezek.7.15.

then behold] Heb. and ; as ver. 13. and so in the next branch.

slain with the sword] Heb. slain of the sword ; as Esay 22. 2. Lam. 4. 9.

them that are sick with famine] Heb. sicknesses,or diseases,of famine : for the word being a substantive properly signifieth, 2 Chron. 21. 19. chap.16.4. the adjunct for the subject ; as Prov. 14. 1. Dan. 9. 23. there is in the original an elegant consonancy between the terms of sick, and slain : the word slain, is used of the famished also, Lam. 4.9.

Yea both the Prophet and the Priest go about into a land that they know not] Heb. yea, (as ver. 5.) also Prophet, also Priest, that is, as well the false Prophets as the Priests, who had both conspired together in deluding the people, and in opposing Gods true Prophets, (chap.5.31.and 26.6.) shall be led captive into a remote land, into a strange country where they had never been before, chap.15. 14. This, say the Jewish Doctors, was fulfilled in the captivity under Jehoiacin ; of whom the like is said, chap. 22. 26, 28. for with him were the most of any note in the State carried captive to Babylon, 2 King. 24. 14,16. and that there were some of these false Prophets among the rest ; (for of the Priests need no doubt be made) they suppose to appear, nor seems it improbable, by what we find chap. 29. 8, 15,21. and then indeed it is not unlikely that this was in part executed ; though more fully under Zedekiah afterward accomplished.See cha.20.6.and 52.24.and it is said,say they,Go about, to note the length of the way, and the remotenesse of the place, whither they were to be carried : for those that take long journeys, cannot alwayes go strait on, but are enforced oft to fetch a compasse, and to go far about : and according to this exposition, (which I conceive to be most probable) the copulative in the last clause should be used for the relative ; as oft-times it is : (see Esay 49. 7. chap. 4. 16.) for the Hebrew is, and they know not, or, knew not, or, shall not know. Whence some expound it, admitting the former interpretation for the residue of the text ; and yet for all this they shall not understand, or take notice of Gods just judgement upon them for their wicked courses, (as Esay 42. 25.) but persist still in the same, chap. 29. 8. Others, they shall wander up and down the country seeking for relief and refuge ; being at their wits end, and not knowing what to do ; as Esay 8. 21. See chap. 4. 9. Howbeit,because the word here found is used frequently for merchants,Gen. 23.16. Esay 23.8. so called, because they go to and fro from place to place with their wares. Some read the words, they shall go up and down trading in a strange land : and some others of prime note, they make merchandise (not unlike the phrase that the Apostle useth, 2 Cor. 2. 17. that is, to eat upon the people, and make a prey of them, pretend to have visions and revelations from God, chap. 23. 25.27,30-32. Mic. 3. 5.) against the land ; as the particle is used, chap.1.19. and 15.20. to the ruine and destruction of it, Lam.2. 14. and they know it not : the people are not aware of it, apprehend it not, take no notice of it : or, because the verb is indefinite, it is not known : their knavery is not discovered. But this seems a more forced interpretation than the former. Thus they that expound this of the wicked Priests, and false Prophets. Yet because it may seem to be no matter of grief, such especially as the Prophet should so much bewail, that Priests and Prophets so qualified, should sustaine what they most justly deserved ; a learned late Writer would have it meant of Gods true Prophets, as Ezekiel and Daniel, that were also carried away captive into Chaldea, Ezek. 1. 1-3. Dan. 1. 3, 6. or of the Priests only, but those of two sorts ; such of them, as were imployed most about sacrifice and prayer, called here Priests ; and such of them, as were taken up with song and matter of praise, termed Prophets both here, and 1 Ch. 25. 1. But I see no reason of relinquishing the foregoing interpretation ; since that the Prophet might very well intermix together with the miseries of his people, which justly also befell them,being the main matter of his grief, the deserved judgment of God, which should be inflicted upon those by whom they had been seduced, as God himselfe in his speech to him had before joyned them together, ver. 15, 16. Howbeit a learned late Writer, understanding this passage of the present famine, rendreth it,even the Prophet,even the Priest,(whom for their place and employment, should of all others be relieved and supplyed with all necessaries) go to and fro in the land, (seeking for relief) and men know them not ; that is, they are not regarded, nor notice taken of them ; the famine is so general, and so great : the verb taken indefinitely ; and rendred therefore passively ; as the like, Job. 7. 3. but the sword joyned with the famine here, confirmeth me in my first judgment.

V. 19. Hast thou utterly rejected Judah] The Prophet after his professed lamentation for the calamities of his people, impendent and imminent, but which he beheld and considered as incumbent and present ; doth now return againe unto God, directing his speech unto him, as before, ver. 7-9. by way of complaint, expostulation, confession of sin, supplication for mercy in the behalfe of his people, and profession of a constant purpose of dependence upon him, as in the person of the better sort among them. Thus the Prophet yet ceaseth not to solicite God for them, notwithstanding that inhibition, ver. 11. as did Moses before him, Exod. 32. 10, 11, 31. Hast thou utterly rejected Judah? or, Wilt thou utterly reject Judah? Art thou resolved to deal with Judah, as thou hast done with Israel, the other ten tribes ? chap. 3. 8. Heb. Hast thou rejecting rejected? or, Wilt thou rejecting reject? Lam. 5. 22. See Psal.89.38.

hath thy Soul loathed Zion?] Or, Doth thy soul (that is, dost thou? as chap.6.8. and 12.7. and 13.17.) loath (as Zach.11. 8. Psal.11.5. Esay 1.14.) Sion ; the place that thou formerly so much delightedst in, Psal. 132. 13, 14. but the people here principally intended. See chap.15. 1.and this threatned, Lev.26.30.

Why hast thou smitten us, and there is no healing for us] Or, so that there is no healing for us? as chap. 11. 19, 21. or, that there can be no curing of us ; as chap.15.1. See chap.8. 22.and 15.18.

we looked for peace, and there is no good ; and for a time of healing, and behold trouble.] See the same, chap. 8.15. see also, chap. 13.16. Lam.4.17.

V. 20. We acknowledge, O Lord our wickednesse, and the iniquity of our Fathers ; for we have sinned against thee.] In these words the Prophet, as some conceive, would teach the people and prescribe them a form of prayer, which they might use, humbling themselves in the time of their distresse ; as Hos. 14.2. But I suppose it rather the Prophets own prayer at present conceived in the person of the godly, which the Lord had among that people, as a small quantity of good grain intermingled with, and buried in an huge heap of chaff and trash. See the like confessions, Chap. 3. 25. Psal.106. 6. Dan. 9. 8.

We acknowledge] Heb. We know ; as Psal. 51. 3. Esay 59. 12. So chap. 3.13.

for we have sinned against thee.] As it is rendred also, Psal. 41. 4. or, We acknowledge, that we have sinned against thee : as the particle is used, chap. 4.18. and 11.19.

V. 21. Do not abhor us for thy Names sake ;] Though for our sins (we confess it) we deserve that thou shouldest. See on ver. 7.

abhor us] Or, it ; to wit, Sion, ver. 19. because speech of the Temple followeth ; howsoever, a defect of the pronoun ; as Esay 37. 1,9. chap.15.14.

do not disgrace the Throne of thy glory] Or, thy throne of glory ; as, thy hill of holiness, Psal.15.1. that is, thy glorious throne, as 1 Sam. 2. 8. Esay 22.23. Either Jerusalem the seat of Davids throne, chap. 3.17. called also the Throne of God, 1 Chr. 29. 23. or rather the Temple and the Ark in it, the place of Gods special presence among his people ; and his chair of state, Psal. 80. 1. ver.7. See chap. 17.12. though we by our sins have deserved to be destroyed, yet suffer not thine own throne to be disgracefully used,and thy self to be disparaged and dishonoured therein. See Esay 63.18. and 64.10,11. Psal. 74.3—8.

remember, break not thy covenant with us.] Remember thy congregation ; as Psal. 74. 2. or, thy covenant, from the next branch ; as Psal.74.20. and 106. 15. break not thy covenant with us : as they complain, Psal. 89. 39. Howbeit, God never breaketh covenant with those that continue loyall, and are carefull to keep covenant with him, 1 King. 8.23. Psal.103.17.18.

V. 22. Are there among the vanities of the Gentiles that can cause rain? or can the heavens give showers?] Neither are any of the heathen idols, Zach.10.2. nor the creature above of it self, able to afford the earth a drop of rain,unless God please thereby to give it. or] Heb. and: as ch.9.12, v.12.

can the heavens give showers?] Without thy provision, or permission? God must hear the heavens, ere the heavens can the earth, Hos. 2. 21. Heb. shall, or, will, they give showers? but the word is in a potential notion; as the like, chap.13.23. Of the word showers, see chap.3.3.

Art not thou he, O Lord our God?] Either, Art not thou, O Lord, our God? the pronoun for the verb substantive; as Psal.44.4. thou alone art our God, who in all our necessities we are to repair unto, and who alone art able to relieve us, Psal.65.2,5. or, Art not thou he that giveth rain, or that maketh to rain? supplyed from one of the former branches; that canst give it, and supply our want of it when thou pleasest, 1 Kin.17.1. & 18.1.

therefore we will wait upon thee] Heb. and; as vers.10, 16. we will seek to no other but to thee for it, in this our present want and distress, Zach.10.1. and wait patiently untill thou be pleased to afford us this mercy, Esa.8.17. & 30.18.

for thou hast made all these things.] Rev. 4. 11. and having at first made them, dost at thy pleasure dispose of them, Psal.135.6,7. they being all at thy command, Psal. 119.91. & 148.5,6,8. or, thou dost, or, workest, (as vers.7.) all these things: thou restrainest rain, and givest it, when and how thou seest good, Psal. 65.9,10. & 147. 8. See Zach. 11.12. And this whole passage evidently evinceth, that this Prophecy was delivered in the time of a great drought.

CHAP. XV.

Vers. 1. Then said the Lord unto me; Though Moses and Samuel stood before me, Yet my mind could not be towards this people:] The dependence of this Chapter upon the former (for they make up both one continued discourse) standeth thus: The Prophet had complained to God of the grievous judgement of drought then present, and moved him in his peoples behalf, for the removal of it, chap.14. 2,9. God hereupon telleth the Prophet, that he was so far from granting what he requested for them, that he was resolved for their leaving him, to leave them, to expel them out of their land, ver.10. and instead of removing the present judgement, to consume them by other additionals to it, v. 12. and forbiddeth the Prophet therefore to move him any further for them, vers. 11. The Prophet neverthelesss returneth to his wonted course of soliciting God earnestly for them; entreating him, that he would not yet utterly cast them off, or loath and abhor them, vers. 19, 21. And to this branch of his suit the Lord here returneth this answer, containing a close, but flat denial of his suit; that his affection is so alienated from them, that though Moses and Samuel, persons so gracious with him, that at their request he had oft spared this people, and granted what in behalf of them they desired, Psal.99.6,8. were now surviving, and should intercede for them, yet they should not prevail to win or turn his heart to them; and it was in vain therefore for the Prophet to solicite him any further in their behalf. See the like, Ezek. 14. 14. Such an heighth of disaffection toward persons and people, may God be wrought and brought unto, by their obstinate persistence in cross and crooked courses, after all means used to reclaim and reduce them from the same, that no intercession of any shall avail; to find favour, or obtain mercy, at the hand of God, for them. Deut.28. 48,65,67.

it shall come to pass] Heb. it shall be; as ch.3.16.

if they say] Or, when they shall say; as ch. 5. 19. where the particle is the same.

whether shall we go forth?] Or, simply go; as Gen.4.16. & 10.11. 2 Kin.5.26. Zach.6.8.

for death to death] Death, for, the pestilence; distinguished from those other kinds of death, by the sword and famine; as also, Revel. 8. 5. so chap. 14. 12. Matth. 24. 7. death by diseases; as chap. 16. 4. diverse from death by slaughter, Ezek. 28. 8. See chap. 18. 21.

for the sword to the sword.] The sword; because a principal and most general weapon of offence, put for all other of that kind; as Gene. 27. 40. and death by the sword, for a violent death from the force of an enemy; by what means soever effected; as Esay 1. 20.

V. 3. And I will appoint over them four kinds, saith the Lord; the sword to slay; and the dogs to tear, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beasts of the earth, to devour and destroy:] I will appoint, or, set over them; as Lev. 26. 16. a borrowed speech from Officers set over people, or persons, and appointed how to handle them, and deal with them, Exod.1.11.

four kinds] Of penalties. Heb. four families.

dogs to tear] Heb. to draw, or, drag, ch.49.20. used of a corpse or carcass, ch.22.19.

fowls of the heaven] Heb. fowl, collectively; and heaven, for, air, as ch.4.25.

beasts to devour, to destroy] Heb. beast; as, fowl, collectively; here for wild beasts, such as are wont both to assayl and worry living persons, even unto death, and to prey also upon the dead. So Deut.28. 26. Esa.18.6. see 1 Kin. 14.11. & 21.23,24. 2 Kin.9.35,36. ch.12. 9. Lev.26.22. Ezek.14.15.

V. 4. And I will cause them to be removed into all Kingdoms of the earth] Heb. I will give them for a removing. So chap. 24. 9. & 29. 18. & 34. 17. Ezek. 23. 46. See Deut. 28. 25. for those that render it, wandring; as from Gen. 4. 14. chap. 14. 10. mistake the root. The former threatning concerned those that were designed to death; this, those that were to go into captivity, vers. 2. that they should be dispersed into several Regions and countries one from another. See chap.9.16. & 13.24. vers. 7. Deut.28.64. Ezek.5.12. & 12.14.

because of Manasseh the son of Hezekiah King of Judah, for that which he did in Jerusalem.] That is, say some, such sins as his were; to wit, idolatry and murther, 2 King.21.2,7,16. See chap. 2. 28, 34. so it should be like that, 2 Pet. 2. 15. Jude 11. or rather, as others, the sins that Manasses did himself commit, and the people partaked with him, and imitated him in, 2 Kin. 21.9, 11. and which albeit he repented of, 2 Chr.33.12,13. yet the people were never truly humbled for, chap. 44. 10. nor sincerely reclaimed from them, ch.3.10. see 2 King.23.26,27. & 24.3,4. See the like of Jeroboam, 1 King. 14.15,16.

the son of Hezekiah] But one altogether unlike his father, and that reversed what had been by him well done, 1 King. 21. 3.

V. 5. For who shall have pity upon thee, O Jerusalem? or, who shall bemoan thee? or who shall go aside to ask how thou dost?] So Esa.51.19. Nah.3.7. intimating, that she should be left in a forlorn condition, friendless, helpless, and comfortless, deserted by all, and failing even of such offices, as men are wont to afford even to meer strangers in misery. See Lam.1.2.

For] Or, But; as some: and so is the particle used, ch.14.18,13. or, yet; as Job 5.7. Esa.49.25.

have pity on thee] Shew any favour or mercy to thee. See 2 Chron. 36.16,17.

bemoan thee] Condole with thee, and seek to comfort thee, though they cannot otherwise help or releeve thee: as Job 2.11. So Nah. 3. 7.

go aside to ask how thou dost.] So much as turn in, as they pass by, to enquire how it fareth with thee. Heb. to ask of thy peace; as 1 Sam. 25.5,14. 2 Sam.8.10. For they mistake the form, who understand it of praying for her peace, Psal. 122.6.

V. 6. Thou hast forsaken me, saith the Lord,] See the same plea against them, ch. 1.16. & 2.13,19,32.

thou art gone backward.] See ch.7.24.

therefore will I stretch out mine hand against thee, and destroy thee] Heb. And; as ch.14.16,22. See ch.9.16. Job 6.9.

I am weary with repenting.] Or, of repenting; as Esa. 1.14. I am weary of reversing or staying the execution of such dooms and denunnunciations, as from time to time have been past upon thee for thy wicked courses; and reprieving thee, from the destruction pronounced against thee, upon thy formal reformation, and feigned repentance. I am now resolved to forbear and spare thee no longer. So Gen.6.3, 6,7. Psal.78.36,38,56,64. ch.4.28.

V. 7. And I will fan them with a fan in the gates of the land;] Or, into (as Esa.30.29.) the gates of the earth; that is, of the wide world: that gates are here put for cities, or, coasts; as ch.14.2. is agreed. But those that follow the former Version, suppose the place designed, from whence they should be driven away and removed, to wit, out of the cities and coast of Judea: and so there may seem an allusion to the place where men use to fan or winnow their grain; to wit, in the dore usually of their garners, or barns. Those that take to the latter, (wherein they have the Chaldee, and the Jewish Doctors, going before them) conceive reference to be had unto the places, into which they were to be driven and dispersed, to wit, into the cities, regions, coasts, and quarters, of the wide world; as vers. 4. see Lev. 26. 33. chap. 9. 16. & 10. 18. howsoever, they seem to be wide here, who would have the fanning here spoken of, to be a cleansing onely, and purging fan; by which God had assayed to sever them and their wickedness, but in vain, the one from the other, chap. 6. 29, 30. that this was no such fanning, but such a fanning as should carry all away before it: see chap. 4.11. such as that, ch. 51. 2.

I will bereave them of children, I will destroy my people:] According to this reading, the pronoun is wanting, to be supplyed from the former branch, as chap. 13. 19. but the text without it may well be read; I will bereave, or, waste, and destroy this people: bereave of their children, as Gen.42.26. Hos.9.12, (though that be not in the text) or, waste and consume: for the word is of a far larger extent. See Lev. 26.22. (where, of your children, is groundlesly put in, as here) Deut.32.25. (where it is extended to old as well as young, and it is rendred, destroy) Lam.1.20. Ezek.5.17. & 14.15. in all which places it is rendred without that addition, either bereave, or spoyl: I will waste and destroy my people; or, waste them until they be destroyed: see ch.14.15,16. vers.3,6.

my people] Not, this people; as before, vers. 1. to let them know, that that privilege of being called and accounted his people, should not secure them, nor save them from destruction. See chap. 12. 7.

still they return not from their ways.] Or, because they return not from their ways, from their wicked courses, but persist obstinately in them, chap. 8. 4,5. the particle is wanting, which some therefore otherwise supply, rendring the text, yet (as chap.15.1.) they return not from their ways, and the words foregoing in the time past; though (as chap.3.1.) I have fanned them, and wasted, and destroyed them, yet (as vers.10.) they return not; they are not reclaimed, they are never the better, for all that hath been done to them already; So Esay 1. 5,6. chap. 5.3. And this those Jewish Doctors that go this way understand of the ten tribes carried away captive by Salmaneser, 2 Kin. 17.6. by whose ruine, the other two should have taken warning, but would not, chap. 3. 10. but this is very improbable. Others, with more probability suppose it to have reference to those calamities, that had befallen them by Pharao-Necho at the death of Josiah, when many of them in likelyhood were destroyed, and the land afterward pillaged, 2 Kings 23. 29, 33. or to the evils that they sustained by Nebuchadnezzar, under Jehojakim and Jehojacin, 2 Kings 24. 2, 16. but neither do we read of any such dispersion, as is here intimated, effected either by the Egyptian, or by the Chaldean under Jehojakim; and for that deportation under Jehojacin, it is supposed to have been later than the date of this prophecie. See chap. 14. 1.

V. 8. Their widows are encreased to me, above the sand of the seas.] Heb. are many, or, more in number (as Psal. 40.5,12. & 69.4. their husbands being either slain, or otherwise destroyed, chap. 18.21.) than the sand of the seas. A proverbial form of speech, in an hyperbolical or excessive expression, intimating a numberless number, or exceeding great multitude of ought, not easie, if at all, to be numbred. So Gen. 22. 17. & 32. 12. & 41. 49. Psal. 139. 18. Esa. 10. 22. The words, as the former, vers. 7. are conceived in the time past; but if so rendred, it must of necessity be understood after the Prophets usual manner, speaking of things future, as past or present; for we read not of any such havock in Jeremies time made of this people, before that under Zedekiah, for they seem to run too high, that would carry it up to Ahaz his time, 2 Chron.28.5,8. as do some of the Jewish Writers: nor see I therefore, why the words may not be rendred here in the future, as well as in the verse foregoing: as, I will fan, I will bereave, or, waste; I will destroy there: so here, their widows shall be more in number, than the sand of the seas; as the red-sea, the midland-sea, and the like, Psal.104.25. & 114.3.

to me] That is, say some, from me; by my just judgment executed upon them: as, blessed of, or, from the Lord, 1 Sam.23.21. and, salvation is of, or, from, the Lord, Psal.3.8. for the particle is in these places the same. Others, before me, or, in my sight. But I conceive it rather, to be only an elegant redundancy and fineness of speech, the like whereunto, See Gen.12.1. compared with Act.7.3. Exod.18.27. Cant.4.6. Esa.22.5. ch.22.6.

I have brought upon them, against the mother of the youngmen, a spoiler at noon-day.] Howsoever these words be read, as they are diversly rendred; that they are meant of Nebuchadnezzar, is in a manner generally agreed, which may be good direction unto us, for the right rendring of the former passages.

I have brought] Or, I will bring; as chap. 49. 8. Ezek. 14. 21.

upon them] Heb. to, or, unto them; as Obad. 5. that is, either upon them, as Esa. 3. 26. & 26. 9. or, against them; as chap. 3.25. Howbeit, it may be no other than a redundant elegancy, as that in the foregoing branch.

against the mother of the young men] Heb. young-man, or, a young-man; and here the Interpreters are divided, and go divers several ways: Some render it, against the mothers of the young-men, taking both mother and young men collectively, and they thus expound it; the women shall be deprived of their husbands, and the young-men of their mothers: others against the assembly of the young-men, chap.6.11. because from the word mother, come some terms that signifie company, family, or, people. So the Chaldee, and some Jewish Commenters treading in his steps; others, against the mother, and, the young men; that is, against both parents and children, 2 Chr.36.17. chap.6.11. & 13.14. & 14.16. Others, against the mother of the young-men, as our version rendreth it, that is, against Jerusalem that hath heretofore bred many choice youngmen, Esay 51.18. Others, a spoyler of youngmen; one that shall spoyl and make havock of them, drawing in hither the word following, but by a trajection over harsh. Others lastly, against the mother, (that is, against Jerusalem, the Metropolis, or, Mother-city; as Esay 50. 1. alluded to Gal. 4.26.) a young-man, or, a choice young-man; as the word originally intimateth, ch.49.19. & 50.44. Where it is used of Cyrus as many conceive. So is Nebuchadnezzar here termed, because he seems to have been in the flower of his youth, and at the heighth of his strength, when he came against Jerusalem. See chap.4.7. and this last I concur with, because the words of the text do most freely yield it, and the points or pauses also go with it.

a spoyler at noon-day] One that shall assault it; not as a thief by night in the dark, ch.49.9. 1 Thess.5.2. Rev. 3. 3. & 16. 15. but as an high-way man that robbeth openly at noon-day, chap.6.4. Zeph. 2. 4.

I have caused him to fall upon it suddainly, and terrours upon the city.] These words are likewise very diversly rendred. I shall omit some versions, because they cannot be fitted to the terms of the text: the main difficulty and difference in the rest, is about the word rendred city, as it most usually signifieth, which signification those that retain, here render the text, either as our version doth, and terrours upon the city; or, because the words lye otherwise in the Hebrew, as other, desolation of city, or, cities, and terrours. But because this latter maketh somewhat an uncouth insertion, as the former seemed to do an over-harsh trajection. Some would have the word city to be absolutely, rendring the words, as for the city, there shall be terrours; that is, the city shall abound with, or be full of terrors; as it is all oppression, that is, it aboundeth with, or is full of oppression, chap.6.6. But because those also seem somewhat forced, others therefore seek some other signification for the word rendred city: and here the Jewish Criticks suggest us, two divers senses of the word; the former from those places, where the word in the plural form at least, hath the notion of an enemy, 1 Sam.28.16. Psal.139.20. Dan.4.19. and these render the text, I will cause to fall upon her suddainly, an enemy and terrours, as, the spoyler is fallen upon thy fruits, chap. 48. 32. and terrour and trembling is fallen upon me, Psal. 55. 5. the latter, because the word cometh of a root that signifieth to raise, or, rouse, Chap.6. 22. & 25. 32. would have it rather to signifie, a tumult; and this some Interpreters of the best note with us follow; instead of enemy, rendring it tumults and terrours. To these two, a Learned late Annotator addeth a third, he conceiveth the word here used to be a Chaldee term, by change of a letter, framed from an Hebrew word that signifieth pain, or, torment, Esa. 21. 3. & 13. 8. and of such enterchange of letters he giveth some instances, in this very word; for an Angel, or, Messenger; Dan. 4. 13. from the Hebrew term, for a messenger, Prov.25.13. chap.49.14. Obad. 1. and in that for the earth, chap. 10. 11. Hence he rendreth the text, I will cause to fall upon her pain, or, torment, and terrors. And these three last seem least of any to force the text; all that can be objected against them is, that the word it self is no where found in either of the two latter notions, nor the singular form at all in the first. I shall therefore take the boldness amidst this variety and diversity, to subjoyn mine own conjecture; the word precisely the same is used for a watcher, Dan.4.13,23. and to the same effect with a very slight alteration, Cant. 5. 2. Mal. 2. 12. I suppose therefore that the text may well thus be rendred, I will cause to fall upon her (that is, upon Jerusalem the mother-city) suddainly a watcher and terrours; that is, such a watcher, or such watchers, (the word being collectively taken) as shall fill them with affrightment; that the Chaldean forces set down before Jerusalem, are compared to watchers. and are so styled, though by another term, See chap.4.16,17. & 5.6. and of the terrours that upon their approach should surprise them; See cha.4.9. & 6. 25.

V. 9. She that hath born seven languisheth, she hath given up the ghost.] Jerusalem, that formerly had bred up so many children, (seven, for many, as Lev.26.18,24,28. 1 Sam.2.5. Job 5.19. Psal.119. 164.) now fainteth and faileth, is clean spent; both bereaved of those those she had, and unable to breed any more, See 1 Sam. 2. 5. Esay 23.4. & 51.18,20.

given up the ghost] Or, gasheth: Heb. pugesh out her soul, as Job 11. 20.

her sun is gone down, while it was yet day] Or, the sun is set with her while it is yet day; before the day is at an end, or the time of evening yet come. Amidst the heighth of her prosperity, and imaginary security she is suddainly fallen. So, the Sun shall go down with them at noon-day, when they least dream of, or look for any Sun-sets, any fall, Amos 8. 9. See also Esay 13. 10. and 59. 10.

she hath been ashamed and confounded] Or, she is abashed and confounded; as ch.2.26,36. & 3.25. & 14.5.

and the residue of them, I will deliver to the sword before their enemies, saith the Lord] That is, Judah and Benjamin, the two tribes that remain of that flock, saith one of the Jewish Commenters, ch.13.11. their children, as the word is used, Esay 14.22. saith another, those that are not carried captive, saith a third; applying it to those put at Riblah to death, in sight of the Chaldean tyrant, ch.52.10,27. as some other, to those that were slain with Gedaliah, 2 King. 25. 25. chap. 41. 2. of ours, those, say some, that fell not in the first encounter; others, such of them, as escaped the famine and pestilence, by which many perished in the siege of the city, shall be exposed to the enemies sword: and this last seems the most likely. See chap.14.12. verf. 2.

V. 10. Wo is me my mother, that thou hast born me, a man of strife, and a man of contention, to the whole earth:] The latter part of this chapter is spent in a communication or conference between God and the Prophet; not unlike to that, chap. 11. 20. 12. 9. It beginneth with the Prophets complaint, (not wholly free from some tang and taint of discontent and distemper thence arising) of the general harsh usage and crosse carriage that he had met with, for no other cause, than for the free and faithful discharge of his duty in the work of his ministery. See the like, chap. 17. 15. 18. and 20. 14, 18.

Wo is me,] An usual form of lamentation. See Chapter 4. 31.

that thou hast born me] Or, that ever thou didst bear me, chap. 20. 17, 18.

a man of strife and a man of contention to the whole earth] Or, land, rather; as chap. 3. 1. verf. 14. not, a man of strife, that is, a contentious person, a man given to strife and contention; one that striveth and contendeth with every one: as Esay 41.11. Job 31.35. but one whom the people do all generally oppose, whom the whole land striveth and contendeth with. So Judg. 12. 2. the lot, as of Christ himself, when he was here upon earth, Psalm 2. 1,2. Luke 2. 34. Act. 4. 27. so of his Ministers and messengers, Luke 21. 17. Acts 28. 22.

I have neither lent on usury; nor have men lent to me on usury, yet every one doth curse me] Or, I have not lent to them, or, to any of them, nor have they lent to me; for the word is more general, extending it self unto any creditor or debtor, on any terms whatsoever. See Deu. 15. 2. & 24.10,11. 2 Sam. 22. 2. 2 King. 4. 1. Esa. 24. 2. But for the Jewish Doctor here expounded it: for usury among themselves was forbidden the Jews, Deut. 23.19. there hath been no such pecuniary contracts or dealings in money-matters between me and any of them, as are wont to breed difference and controversie between man and man.

yet every one of them curseth me.] Heb. is cursing me; a defect of the discretive, as ver. 1. or of the particle foregoing in the same notion, as it was there used, as Esa. 10. 20. and so it may also here be rendred, that every one of them should be cursing me; as daily they do.

V. 11. The Lord said;] Gods answer to the Prophet, comforting and encouraging him against these his troublesome distracting, and disquieting thoughts.

verily it shall be well with thy remnant:] Heb. if it be not well; a defective speech in the nature of an oath; and the like in the next branch: as if he had said, Let me not be deemed a God of my word, or true and faithful in what I say or promise, if it be not so. See the like, 1 King. 20. 23. Psal. 89. 35. & 95. 11. & 131. 2. Esa. 5. 9. & 14. 24.

with thy remnant] Heb. if thy remnant, or, residue, be not to, or, for, good: by his remnant, or, residue, understanding not his issue; for it is not likely that he had any, chap. 16. 2. but the remainder of his life, as some; or the end and close of it, as others. See Psal. 37. 37. Esa. 3. 10. for they may justly be deemed to stray far from the intendment of the text, who would have by his remnant, here meant a remainder of Gods people, which God would have reserved for himself, in that general destruction, Esa. 7. 3. & 10. 20, 21. thy remnant, say they, as, thy wealth, verf. 13. But the truth is, there appeareth not any mention of remnant at all in the text. There was, 'tis seemeth, some variety in Copies here anciently: the Cetib, as they term it, can nothing be well made of, the Keri, which the Critick Masters hath substituted in the room of it, goeth evidently another way: neither of them afford the term that signifieth a remnant; and where neither yeeldeth it, small reason seems to admit it, no necessity enforcing to it. Some therefore of the Jewish Commenters following their Masoreths corrected reading, render it, If I loose thee not; from a word that signifieth to loose, Dan. 5. 16. and, as some also, Job 37. 3. and they apply it to that of Nebuzaradans loosing Jeremy from his bands, chap. 40. 14. as a promise of God to procure liberty for him, from such restraint, and bands, as by his people he might endure. Which exposition, as it is suiteth well with the complement of Gods promise, so it removeth the ground of those former difficulties.

verily I will cause the enemy to entreat thee well, in the time of evil, and in the time of affliction.] Heb. if I do not cause, &c. as before; the word well, is not in the text: yet may not amiss be supplyed from the foregoing branch; but is not necessarily required. In the words God may seem to meet with and prevent a doubt, that might arise in the Prophets mind; to wit, that if this general evil threatned befall the whole State, the Prophet must of necessity bear his share in it with the rest. Now this to remove, God undertaketh to the Prophet, to secure him from that fear, by assuring him, that he will so manage the matter, that he shall find better entreaty, when that time of publike calamity shall come, at the hand of the enemy, than he had formerly found at the hand of his own people: for those draw it too far, that beyond Jeremies own person, extend it to any other, of whom, though in part true, chap. 39. 17, 18. & 45. 5. & 52. 31, 34. (as formerly promised, 1 Kin. 8. 50.) Psal. 106. 46. Dan. 1. 49, 49. yet it is not here intended.

cause the enemy to entreat thee] That is, saith one of the Rabbines, understanding it of the Jews, I will make those of thine own people, who are now thy bitter enemies, to come and seek unto thee in the time of their distress; as also they did, ch. 21. 1, 2. so it should not be much unlike that, Rev. 3. 9. But the most rather understand it of the Chaldeans. To which purpose another of them; I will cause the enemy to propound the question to thee, and put thee to thy choice, whether to go along with him, or to stay in the land with Gedaliah, chap. 40. 4. or, as it may well be rendred, I will intercede for thee with the enemy; as the word is used, Esa. 53. 12. chap. 36. 25. I will so deal in thy behalf with the enemy, that he shall entreat thee kindly, he shall use thee no otherwise than well, chap. 39. 11, 12. I shall adjoyn my conjecture concerning the place, and to leave it: they make all (as to me seemeth) a needless crajection in the text, where the words lye in order thus, I will intercede for thee in the time of evil, and in time of affliction the enemy, or, with the enemy. I conceive that there is a defect of the preposition from, not unusual. See Exod. 15. 19. & 19. 12. Esay 32. 2. & 33. 6. & 40. 21. I read it therefore, of affliction from with the enemy, or, simply, from the enemy: as, from the Lord, Gen. 19. 24. where the particle is the same with that here expressed; referring the enemy not to intercession, as the object of it, but to affliction, as the efficient of it, with which it standeth also joyned in the text: all that can be objected against this is, that the particle here used, is commonly prefixed to the party with whom intercession is made, Gen. 23. 8. ch. 7. 16. & 27. 28. & 36. 25. Job 31. 15. another mostly, to the party in whose behalf; as Gen. 23. 8. Esa. 53. 12. and I shall leave it therefore to the decision of the learned.

V. 12. Shall iron break the Northern iron and the steel?] There are diverse expositions given of these words: to passe by those that mistaking a letter in the text, and so misled by another in shape very like it, do of necessity swarve very far from the genuine sense of it, and scarce give any good or fit sense at all. Some of those that retain the right, suppose the verb here used, to come from a root, that hath a notion of confederacy, or friendship, Prov. 13. 20. & 22. 24. and they, with the old Latine, render the word, Shall iron be confederate, or, joyned, together, with iron from the North, and steel? as if it were said, There is no hope that this obstinate people, and the Chaldeans, should ever be brought to an accord, (that it seemeth they had been sometime tampering about, see chap. 51. 59.) no more than iron can be glewed unto iron, or to steel: Which they suppose to be spoken by God to the Prophet, some, to free him from that fear that Jonas was posseft with, of being accounted a false Prophet, things falling out otherwise than as he had denounced, Jon. 4. 2. Others, (because this conceit is crossed by the Prophets constant course of dealing with God in a contrary way, chap. 9. 1. & 12. 1, 15, 17. & 14. 7, 8, 19, 21. & 28. 6. verf. 18.) to assure him, that there was no hope or possibility of having any accord between them and the enemy; that he might no more be troubled with it, nor trouble himself with soliciting of God, to no purpose, about it, that business being now as past cure and care. But neither doth this sense seem to fit well with the place; nor is any such form, as that here, found any where springing from that root. The most, therefore, both Jewish, and ours, take the word here, as our Version doth, and as it is frequently taken in the form here used, Job 34. 24. Psal. 2. 9. chap. 2. 16. & 11. 16. but they diverse ways apply it: Some, to Gods counsels, and purposes; and they read the words thus, Can one break iron, the Northern iron, and the steel? as if it were said, Can such iron be broken? the verb being taken potentially, as chap. 13. 23. and indefinitely, as chap. 8. 4. that is, say some, shall any power be able to cross my proceedings, or to hinder the execution of my word and purpose, being of greater strength by far than iron, even the strongest and toughest of it, than steel is self? chap. 23. 29. Or, as others, shall any might or malice of the adversary be able to prevail against thee my Prophet, whom I have made to be as such? chap. 1. 18. verf. 20. Others, retaining the received reading, which our Version exhibiteth, expound them, some of the Chaldeans, said to come from the North, chap. 1. 14. & 4. 6. This people, seem they never so strong in their own conceit, chap. 21. 13. shall never be able to match those Northern forces, that I shall send in upon them, verf. 8. Others, of the Prophet himself, as if he had said, Though this people that thus oppose thee, be in regard either of their inward obstinacy, or outward might, as hard and tough as iron, or the like metal, Esay 48. 4. chap. 6. 28. yet shall they be no more able to crush thee, or prevail against thee, than ordinary iron is able to break such tough iron stuff that the Northern parts yeeld, or than the firmest and strongest steel. See chap. 1. 18, 19. verf. 20. See also, Ezek. 2. 7, 8, 9.

Northern iron] Heb. iron from the North, that is, such as is brought from the countries, that lye Northward, out of which regions the strongest and toughest iron came to them: for the Chalybes, who were anciently most famous for iron-works, and their skill in tempering thereof, and from whom both with the Greeks, and Latines, the steel had its name, were a people of Pontus, neighbouring upon the Paphlagones, and their country northward from Judea. See Strabo, l. 12. Mela. l. 1. c. 20. Eudoxus in Steven the Byzantine, and Virgil of husbandry, l. 1.

and steel] That is, saith the Jewish Doctor, iron and steel, mixt together: and some other suppose an allusion to those words, chap. 1. 18. a pillar of iron, and a wall of steel; implying the Prophet to be as both, which though they might seem able to prevail against him, in regard of the one, yet should be sure to fail in, when they come to the other: but the words I conceive would rather be read by way of disjunction: Northern iron, or, steel; as the like, ch. 10. 20. & 14. 22. Of the word, steel, see ch. 1. 18.

V. 13. Thy substance, and thy treasures, will I give to the spoil without price:] God in these words either continueth his speech concerning the Chaldean forces, and their invasion of the land according to those, who of them expound the foregoing words, verf. 12. or as the most, who conceive them to concern the Prophet, turneth his speech from him to his people, fore-telling what should become of all their wealth, wherein they prided themselves, ch. 9. 23. it should all become a prey to the Chaldeans, ch. 17. 3. as in conquest is wont to be, Esay 10. 14. & 45. 3.

without price] Not regarding loss, or gain, but execution of my justice only, Psa. 44. 13. Esa. 52. 3.

and that for all thy sins, even in all thy borders.] That is, as the most, for thy sins that have been committed thorowout the whole land, from the one end of it to the other, Chap. 2. 28. & 3. 2. & 11. 13. Heb. and in (that is, for; as chap. 18. 18.) all thy sins, and (as chap. 14. 14.) in all thy borders: where because the particle is the same in both members, a learned Interpreter would have the latter read, and for all thine ends, that is, evil projects and purposes: but neither is the word so used in Scripture; and the former interpretation is confirmed by chap. 17. 3. where the self-same thing is repeated.

V. 14. And I will make thee to passe with thine enemies into a land which thou knowest not.] Or, I will cause thee to serve thine enemies in a land, that thou knowest not: for there is a double reading here, as also, chap. 2. 20. arising from the neer affinity for shape of two Hebrew letters, daleth and resh: and from the like enterchange of letters, is that variety of Version in the same argument, he was seen, 2 Sam. 22. 11. and, he did fly, Psa. 18. 10. the latter reading (which the Chaldee followeth) seems to receive some strength from chap. 17. 4. Howsoever, there is a defect of the relative in the latter limb (supplyed it self, chap. 17. 4. by a copulative, chap. 14. 18.) of the pronoun in the former, which may as well be supplyed, it, as thee, with reference to the wealth or substance, mentioned, verse. 13. it shall all be carryed away into a strange country, into an unknown land; as Esay 8. 4. & 15. 7. & 39. 6. For as for that learned Scholiast, who to reconcile those two places that seem parallel, would have the words rendred, I will cause thine enemies to passe over thee; that is, saith he, to tyrannize, or rule impetuously over thee; as they complain, Esay 26. 13. Psal. 129. 1, 3. and as the word, saith he, is used, Job 33. 13. let what will pass to me, or, passe over me, that is, betide me, as himself there rendereth it: it seems too much forced, and the place pointed too impertinent: nor seemeth the old Latine to come any thing neerer home to the genuine sense of the place, who rendreth it, I will bring thine enemies from a land that thou knowest not, or, that learned man, who yet more regarding the particle, yeeldeth it, by a land, or, thorow a land that thou knowest not, or, which thou knowest not, which way they should come to thee, being so remote from thee.

for a fire is kindled in mine anger, which shall burn upon you.] A defect of the relative, as in the former branch, and chap. 14. 8. see chap. 17. 4. see also, Deut. 32. 22. Esay 42. 25. chap. 4. 4. and 17. 27.

V. 15. O Lord] The Prophet returneth here to the profession of his former complaint, v. 10.

thou knowest] Thou knowest me and mine integrity, Psal. 139. 1, 23. or, thou knowest how it fareth with me, their malice and mine innocency; and that I complain not without cause, ch. 11. 18. see ch. 12. 3. remember me] Think upon me for good, Neh. 5. 19, & 13. 14, 22, 31. Psal. 106. 4. Esa. 38. 2, 3. see chap. 18. 20.

and visit me] In mercy; as Ruth 1. 6. Psal. 106. 4. and revenge me of my persecuters] See of this chap. 11. 20. See chap. 17. 18. & 18. 21. See also, Psal. 119. 84. 2 Tim. 4. 14.

take me not away in thy long-suffering:] Or, as before, according to thy long-suffering, take me not away: forbear to deal harshly with me; as chap. 17. 17. or suffer me not to be taken away by the malicious practices of my perfidious enemies: So is the particle taken, Psalm 119. 91, 154. As others, after thy long forbearance take me not away; to wit, among the rest in the common calamity that shall befal this and strongest steel. See chap. 1. 18, 19. verf. 20. See also, Ezek. 2. 7, 8, 9. people, whom thy forbearance shall have an end, 2 Chr. 36. 16. chap. 44. 22. so is the particle used, Esay 18. 17. Others, take me not away in, or, by, or, through thy long-suffering. Heb. the length (that is, the dilation, or delay) of thine anger: not unlike that, Exod. 34. 7. Num. 14. 18. save that the word is there in an adjective notion, here, as seldome, if ever else-where, in a substantive. Suffer me not to be taken, and perish by mine enemies malicious and mischievous projects, while out of thy long-suffering, and slowness to wrath, thou forbearest to right me on them. See on Esa. 48. 9. : So is the verb used, Ezek. 33. 4, 6. and so the particle, Neh. 13. 27. ch. 5. 2. Somewhat to this purpose, the Chaldee, and Greek, seem to suggest, as if a speeding of justice, without longer delay, were desired; as Psa. 29. 10, 11.

know] That is, take notice; and make it appear that thou so dost: as ch. 2. 19. & 3. 13.

that for thy sake I have suffered rebuke.] Or, I sustain. Heb. my sustaining of (as Psalm 89. 50.) reproach, Psalm 69. 7. See chap. 20. 8. and it concerneth thee to right those that suffer for thee, Psal. 44. 22, 26.

V. 16. Thy words were found, and I did eat them; and thy word was unto me the joy and rejoycing of my heart:] Or, when thy words were found, I did eat them; as Prov. 15. 16. Hath thou found honey? eat of it what sufficeth thee: and Ezek. 3. 1. eat what thou findest: and there seems here a defect of the pronoun, were found by me; as Esay 29. 6. that is, When as thy messages came at first to me, I received and entertained them, as readily, as willingly, as an affamished man doth his meat. So Job 23. 12. John 4. 34. Of the syntax, see ch. 13. 12, 16. Of the phrase of eating, Ezek. 2. 8. & 3. 1, 3. Rev. 10. 9.

found] Some put an emphasis upon this term, and that two diverse wayes; the one, as if the Prophet should intimate, that he had not sought this employment, but had, unlooked after, been called unto it; as Esay 65. 1. the other, as if he should thereby signifie, that he had been well assured, that the messages he came with, were the undoubted word of God: as Eccl. 7. 29. but these constructions I conceive to be over-nice: the sense seems plain; as before. See Ezek. 3. 1.

thy word was unto me the joy and the rejoycing of my heart, for I am called by thy Name, O Lord God of hosts.] Heb. thy word was unto me, to, or, for, joy, and to, or, for, gladness of my heart; that thy name was called upon me. According to our version, the sense should be, as divers give it, that Gods Word, though otherwise harsh, and like to be so unto others, yet was to him, because it was his word, delightful, graceful and pleasant; not unlike that profession of the Psalmist, Psal. 19. 10. & 119. 103. or, as one of the Jewish Doctors, I was at the first much taken with the messages that I was sent with, hoping that the people would repent thereupon: and so the words following should come in as a reason to induce God to regard him, as being one that had been willing and ready to undertake that office, which he professed to have special care of, Psal. 105. 19. But neither of these seem to reach the intent of the Prophet. Which seems rather to be that which another of them suggesteth, agreeable to the words as they run in the original, to wit, that that word or commission given him by God, (whereof, see chap. 1. 1, 5.) whereby he had been called to bear Gods name, to be called his Prophet, (of which phrase, see chap. 14. 9.) was a great rejoycing unto him, and that which encouraged him chearfully to set upon the work of his ministery, howsoever it proved afterward, v. 9. See Ezek. 3. 3. Rev. 10. 10. to joy, or, for joy and gladness of heart, for, great and hearty joy, simply; as Zach. 8. 19. Esa. 30. 29.

V. 17. I sate not in the assembly of the mockers, nor rejoyced:] Thus the most Interpreters, yea, all that I meet with, as if the Prophet should profess, that he had shunned the company and society of profane persons, such as scoffed and mocked at Gods messages and menaces. Of which sort were not a few among this people; and that especially among the great ones, Esa. 5. 19. & 28. 14, 22. chap. 5. 13. & 20. 7, 8. and so it should be the same with that, Psal. 1. 1. and 26. 4, 5. Heb. secret, or, assembly; as Psal. 111. 1. Ezek. 13. 9. See chap. 6. 11. and according to this sense, the next member would rather be rendred, nor revelled it; as Esa. 22. 2, 13. But this seems not to be so congruent a profession for the Prophet to make, that he had not kept company with loose and debauched persons, and revelled it together with them. I render the words, I have not sate in the assembly, or, meeting, of those that make merry. So is the word frequently used. So Eccl. 3. 4. there is a time to make merry; and, better is grief than mirth, Eccl. 7. 3. and, they prepare bread (that is, victuals) to make merry with, Eccl. 10. 19. and 2 Sam. 6. 5. & 1 Chro. 13. 8. all Israel made merry before the Lord, with all their might, with singing, and with harps: yea the word is in this very prophecy twice precisely so rendred, chap.30.19. & 31.4. The Prophets meaning then is plainly this; that howsoever he did at first chearfully entertain that employment that God had called him unto; and a place of that dignity to be so neer unto God, and be ranked among those that were reckoned his Prophets, seemed much to affect him, yet he had found little joy of it, when he came to the execution of it; for that he met with nothing but matter of grief, and had been therefore far from joyning himself with such that met together to make merry, as friends, acquaintance, and neighbours of do, to partake with them in their mirth; but had rather abandoned himself to a retired and solitary course of life, in private continually bemoaning himself, in regard of those heavy and sad messages, that he was from God sent with to his people, and the evil success that his errands found with them, chap.8.18. & 9.1,2. & 13.17. & 20.7,8. This I doubt not to be the genuine sense of the place, confirmed both by what followeth here, and by Gods words also to the Prophet, chap. 16.8.

nor rejoyced] Heb. and rejoyced, that is, to rejoyce; to partake with them in their mirth; as, Balack arose and warred (that is, to war) against Israel, Judg.24.9. otherwise, the negative must from the former member be supplyed: as Psal.9.18.

I sate alone because of thine hand] Alone, or, solitary; withdrawing my self from company, as persons full of grief and heaviness are wont to do, Psal.102.7. chap.13.17. Lam.3.28. Or rather, then as some, being deserted and forsaken of all: as Psalm 88.8,18. But this seems rather to imply a voluntary and affected privacy; because of thine hand, that is, as some, because I am at hand with thee, and yield constant obedience unto thee, in the faithful discharge of my ministerial employment; in regard whereof, they refuse to have any society with me. So, hand, should be for ministery: as Mal. 1.1. but, because of thine hand, seems here rather to import, in regard of thine injunction, and those messages which thou sendest by me, full of menaces, and dreadful denunciations of calamities and destruction to befal my people. So Ezek. 3.14. I went with bitterness heated in my spirit, but the hand of the Lord was strong upon me.

for thou hast filled me with indignation.] Either with indignation from this people, who for thy messages, are generally incensed against me, vers. 10. or with indignation at this people, for their obstinacy tending to their destruction, chap. 9.1,2. or with indignation, which from thee I denounce against them, being sent daily upon errands of wrath and indignation to them. See Chap. 23.33. the particle is wanting, as chap.9.18. this last seems the best.

V. 18. Why is my pain perpetual, and my wound incurable, which refuseth to be healed?] Why should I continue perpetually in this sad and disconsolate condition, without hope or expectation of any change and alteration thereof for the better: a speech proceeding from humane frailty, as conceiving no great likelyhood of the before-promised amendment of it, v.11.

is my pain perpetual] Or, should my pain continue (as Dan. 1. 21.) for ever; as Amos 1.11. and there is a defect of the particle; as Psal. 13.1. or, should my pain be a pain of perpetuity, or, eternity; that is, a perpetual, an everlasting pain: as, pleasures of perpetuity, or, eternity, for, perpetual, or, everlasting delights, Psalm 16.11.

which refuseth to be cured] A metaphor taken from such wounds, or sores, with which no plaister or medicine can either produce cure, or procure ease, and there is a figurative notion in the word refuseth; like that, Jon. 1.4. the ship thought, or, made account, to be drowned: for to speak properly, the wound, or, sore, can no more refuse ought, than a ship think ought: and according to our Version, there is a defect of the relative; as ver. 14. but some supplying the interrogative from the fore-going brand, read the words, Why refuseth it to be cured? whether way we read it, it is not much material, only the word incurable, would be altered, if it be rendred the former way. See Psal.77.2. ch.8.18.

wilt thou be altogether unto me as a liar, and as waters that fail?] Or, Why (repeated from the former; as Job 3.23.) shouldst thou be altogether (being he; as Gen.18.18.) unto me as a deceitful (Heb. lying) well, or fountain, or spring, (a defect of the subject; as Esay 5.4. & 17.5. Ezek.13.11.) as waters that fail? Heb. that are not faithful, or firm. See Esa.33.16. such as are dryed up, and fail in the heat and drought of summer, when men have most need of them, Job 6.15,20. Why shouldest thou fail me, and not make thy word good unto me, but give me up to undergo such distrefs and difficulties without end or ease? Such fits of diffidence have the best and strongest of Gods Saints and Servants been at some times surprised with. See Psa.13.1,2. & 31.22. & 77.7,9. & 116.10,11. 1 Sam. 27.1.

V. 19. Therefore thus saith the Lord;] Or, Notwithstanding (see chap.30.16.) thus said the Lord. Albeit, that the Prophet had in this his discourse and dispute with God, much want of that courage and confidence that ought to have been in him, and bewrayed a great deal of humane frailty; yet the Lord was pleased to stoop so low, as to return a gracious answer unto him: partly admonishing him in a mild and gentle manner, to shake off and abandon these distrustful and discontented thoughts; and to go on constantly in the faithful discharge of his duty; and partly again further confirming him therein, by renewed promises of assured protection and safeguard, vers.20,21.

If thou return, then will I bring thee again, and thou shalt stand before me;] These words some interpreters expound of the people; unto whom God should promise restitution, and confirmation upon their sincere return to him by unfeigned repentance; as chap.3.1. & 4.1,2. & 26.6,7. & 31.36. & 33.26. & 35.19. Zach.1.3. But the most rather of Jeremy; yet diversly; some, as if God spake in way of approbation to him, thus rending the words; since that thou dost convert thy self, as I do convert thee; that is, since that thou dost apply thy self diligently unto those things that I enjoyn thee, and direct thee unto: or, as others, since that thou dost turn from, that is, withdraw thy self from the society of those profane ones, vers.17. I will reduce thee, that is, free thee from those evils wherein thou complainest, and retain thee in my service. Others, by way of admonition; if thou be careful to convert this people from their wicked wayes; that which is the office of a true Prophet of God to labour in, chap.23.22. taking the word in an active notion; which yet it will hardly here bear. But the most and best understand them in way of admonition indeed, but taking the word in a neuter notion; If thou turn from, and cast off, these distrustful thoughts and discontents, and apply thy self chearfully and constantly to the work of thy ministery, I will continue and confirm thee in thy prophetical function.

then will I bring thee again] Or, then (Heb. and; as v.1.) will I restore thee: as Psal.23.3. and thou shalt stand before me] Or, that thou mayst stand, or, to stand, before me; as my servant and attendant in the room and place of a Prophet: as 1 King.17.1. Zach.3.7. a defect of the finitive particle, as Esa.63.13. and 64.2. Howbeit, the whole passage may well thus be rendred; if thou wilt retract, (as ch.4.1.) and wilt be reclaimed by me, (Heb. and I shall have reclaimed thee) before me shalt thou stand. So run, and so lye, the words in the text: and I suppose this to be the genuine sense of the place.

and if thou take forth the pretious from the vile, thou shalt be as my mouth:] Or, if thou wilt sever (Heb. make to go forth) the pretious from the vile. This some expound of doctrine onely, if thou be careful to teach nothing but the pure truth of God, 1 Pet. 2.2. without mixture of other base and vile stuff; such as the false Prophets are wont to mingle it withal, ch.23.26,28. Others rather, of persons: that which the latter term doth necessarily carry it unto, being used of persons only: If thou shalt draw out the pretious from the vile, by converting those that are vile, that is, wicked ones, from their wickedness, and making pretious ones of them, which Gods Ministers are ministerially said to do, Dan.12.3. ch.3.22. Mal.4.6. Luk.1.16. or, (which seems the genuine sense of the text, and is by the most and best approved) If in thy teaching thou put a difference between the godly and the wicked, by confirming and comforting the one, and by thinly reproving, convincing, and menacing the other. See ch.20.27. contrary to the practise of the false Prophets described, Ezek.13.19, 22. & 22.26.

thou shalt be as my mouth] Or, as some, according to my mouth: thou shalt be such an one as I would have thee, and have commanded thee to be: as, according to his heart, 1 Sam. 13.13. thou shalt do all my pleasure, Isaiah 44.28. or, thou shalt thereby shew thy self to be my mouth, to speak from me, chap. 23.22. or what thou dost speak, shall be as if I my self had spoken it, 2 Cor.5.20. & 13.3. See Exod.4.16. and I will be sure to make it good. See 1 Sam. 3.19,21.

let them return to thee, but return not thou to them] Heb. return shall they to thee; and (or, but; as chap.13.17.) thou shalt not return to them. Which some therefore conceive, as spoken by way of prediction, or promise. They shall come and seek to thee; but thou shalt have no need to seek them; fulfilled, say they, when they repaired to him for advice upon the murther of Godaliah, chap. 42.2. to which might be added that before, chap. 21.2. But the most conceive them spoken rather by way of admonition, or injunction; (for the future is frequently used for the imperative; as chap.3.7. & 5. 10.) Some more narrowly, with reference to those scoffers, mentioned, as they suppose, vers. 17. but of that there. Others, more generally, of the main body of the people, whom he was to deal with; Let them (this people, vers. 20.) conform if they will, to thee; but be not thou over-induced either by their force or flatteries, (for they will be both ways tempting thee) to come over to them, to comply with them, to sooth them up in their sins, with vain hopes of better things, as their false Prophets do, or to conceal ought from them, that I give thee in charge concerning them, cha. 1.17. & 23.30, 31. & 26.2.

V. 20. And I will make thee unto this people as a fenced brasen wall;] Heb. I will give thee (as ch.1.5,18.) for a fenced wall (that is, to be such an one, or, like such an one, as v. 16. Psal.31.2.) of steel. See vers. 12. If thou dost go on constantly and courageously in the faithful discharge of thy duty, not relenting or yeelding at all unto them, (for this seems to depend upon the last clause of the foregoing vers.) I will arm thee with such power, as they shall not be able to prevail against thee. See ch.1.18. & 6.27. v.12.

and they shall fight against thee; but they shall not prevail against thee:] Or, So that though they war with, or, against thee, (as Judg. 20.11.) yet they shall not prevail with thee; to take thy life away from thee. See chap.1.19.& 20.11,12. for that he might well say, as they do, Psal.129.1,2.

for I am with thee to save thee, and to deliver thee, saith the Lord.] I will protect thee sufficiently against all their might and malice. See Chap.1.8,19.& 20.12. & 42.11.

V. 21. And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked; and I will deliver thee out of the Hand of the terrible.] Hand, for, power; as Isa.38.6. to redeem, for, to rescue; as Psal.107.2. of the terrible, or, violent ones, Isa.25.6. such as thou mightest most fear. See Chap.26. 23, 24.

CHAP. XVI.

Vers. 1. THE word of the Lord came also unto me, saying;] Or, Moreover, the word of the Lord came unto me; as some of our former Versions, and as chap.1.11. Heb. And the word of the Lord was unto me: as chap. 1.1,2. Whence it may be questioned, whether this Chapter be one continued discourse with that chap. 15. or this introduction to it be the title of a new revelation at some other time delivered. Whether of the two it be, the Lord in it forbiddeth the Prophet to contract marriage, or breed issue, the times ensuing should be so bad, ver.2,4. or to mourn with any for the dead: for better dye than live, as the times should be, ver. 5, 7. or to make merry with them; for it should be no time for mirth, ver. 8, 9. enformeth him, and willeth him to enform the people of the ground of such evils as were to befall them, ver. 10, 13. yet anneexeth a gracious promise of future restitution after these dreadfull judgements executed upon them, ver.14,18. whereunto the Prophet subjoyneth an humble profession, as in the person of Gods people, of the acknowledgement of Gods gracious and powerfull protection, and their expectation of the Gentiles coming in to them, ver.19. all shut up with an expression of Gods present indignation against his people, for their idolatry; for which, he would make them, by penalties inflicted upon them, to know & acknowledge his might, v.21,22.

V. 2. Thou shalt not take thee a wife, neither shalt thou have sons nor daughters in this place.] Or, Do not take thee a wife, nor have sons, or daughters (Heb. and; as Exod. 21.15 Ezek. 14.10.) daughters. The future for the imperative; as chap.15.19. Exod.20.13,17. So ver.5. intimating, that so great & grievous should the calamities of that place in those times be, that wife and children would be but an heavy burden amidst them, and means of much aggravating his grief that had them. So Hos.9.11.3,4. Mat.24.19. Luk.23.29.1 Cor.7.26.

in this place] That is, in Anathoth, saith the Jewish Doctor: but he seems rather to mean Jerusalem, where this Prophecy was delivered unto him: see ver.3.

V. 3. For thus saith the Lord, concerning the sons, and concerning the daughters that are born in this place, and concerning their mothers that bare them, and concerning their fathers that begat them in this land;] All like to be involved in the same calamities one with another; that which should make the condition of each one of them the more grievous, chap.13.14.& 14.16.

in this place] This again, the Rabbine groundlesly restraineth unto the men of Anathoth, who together with their whole issue were to be rooted out, that there should be no remainder of them, chap.11.23. But here they meet with a difficulty that they find them, chap.11.23. But here they meet with a difficulty that they find Ezra.2.23. of the men of Anathoth, 128. that returned from the captivity: Which to salve, they say, that some of them did afterward repent, though God did not reveal so much to the Prophet: But the truth is, that neither that former denunciation reached unto all the Inhabitants of Anathoth, but to those of them only that maliciously opposed the Prophet, as it is there expreffly mentioned: nor is this place Anathoth a poor Town in comparison, Esay 10. 30. but Jerusalem intended; as also, ver. 9. and as appeareth by the adjection in the next member; the whole land, to wit, of Judah, whereof that the head city, chap. 1.5.8. & chap.7.20.

V. 4. They shall dye of grievous deaths:] Heb. death of diseases, or, grievances; as 2 Chron.21.18. by the plague, or the pestilence, chap.14.12. see chap.15.2.

they shall not be lamented.] No solemn lamentation shall be made for them, Job 27.15. Psal.78.64. chap.22.18. and 25.33. either because they shall be deemed happier that are gone, and taken away from the present evils, than those that survive, chap. 8.3. and 22.10. Rev.14.13. or because every one shall be for taken up with their own particular and personal fears, cares, and calamities, that they shall have no lust, or leisure to look after their deceased, or to use any wonted solemnity about them. See Ezek.24.16,23. Amos 6.10.

neither shall they be buried] See chap.14.16.& 22.19.& 25.33.

but they shall be as dung upon the face of the earth:] Heb. for dung: of which form of speech, see on chap. 15. 20. So Psal. 83. 10. chap.8.2.

and they shall be consumed by the sword, and by famine,] Some by the one, and some by the other, Chap.14.15. and 15.2.

and their carcasses shall be meat for the fowls of the heaven, and for the beasts of the earth.] chap.7.33. and 34.20.

V. 5. For thus saith the Lord;] Or, Therefore; as chap. 9. 20. for the particle seems to be here an illative, (as Psal. 116. 20. I believed therefore I spake, 2 Cor.4.13.) inferring, and making way to a further injunction, grounded upon the former denunciation, ver.3,4.

Enter not into the house of mourning, neither go to lament, nor bemoan them:] Heb. thou shalt not go in, nor go; as ver. 1. into the house of mourning. Concerning the genuine notion of this term, there are divers opinions, and the Jewish Criticks themselves are at some variance. Some of them say it signifieth mourning, and this way most of them seem to go: though some of them would have it signifie, not mourning, but a mourner; withall rendring a ridiculous notation of the word, not worth the relating. But this Interpretation, as well the one, as the other, is crossed by that place of Amos, 6.7. where it is rendred banquets, and most of necessity import matter of mirth: And so would a late learned Annotator have it here to import, understanding it of banquets made for merriment; the rather, because such are mentioned, ver. 8. But the maine current of the context, evidently crosseth this conceit. Howbeit, by collation of those two places together, it plainly appears, that the word of necessity signifieth something at least common as well to mirth, as to mourning. To which purpose, one of the Jewish Doctors telleth us, that it signifieth in the Arabick tongue, a shouting, or lifting up of the voice, whether out of joy, or out of grief; for both out-cryes are common to either: see chap.48.33. but hereof no proof is brought. Another of them, therefore, saith, it signifieth a feast, or, a banquet; for which he alleageth a place out of one of their Talmudists Writings; and it is so found cited in the Chaldee Paraphrast, Num. 25.1. Now feasts, or banquets, we know, are usual as well at burials, as bridals. and this seemeth to be backed by that which followeth, ver. 7. for as for that which some learned late Writers here suggest, that the word should signifie such a person, as by the Latines is termed defunctor, one that did give directions for the marshalling and ordering of matters at burials; it seemes a groundless conjecture, nor could the house of mourning be so fitly termed the house of such an one. I suppose the words may well be rendred, the banquet-house, as the old Latine hath it, or for fuller explication, the funeral banquet, or, banqueting house.

nor go to lament or bemoan them.] To lament for the deceased, or to condole with the survivers; as chap.15.5. By these forbearances, as Ezekiel, chap.24.24. the Prophet was to fore-shew them, how it should be with them amidst those calamities that should shortly surprize them.

for I have taken away my peace from this people, saith the Lord, even loving kindnesses and mercies.] For I am resolved to take from this people whatsoever benefits of plenty, prosperity, or safety, (for all these, peace included, Psal. 85.8. and 119.165. Esay 48. 18. chap. 8.15.) and whatsoever good thing out of my free favour and mercy I had formerly conferred on them; and they had sometime enjoyed.

have taken away] Or, I will take away. Heb. gather up; as Psal. 85.3. chap.10.17.

even loving kindnesses and mercies] Or, my loving kindne's, and my tender mercies. See Esay 63.7. a defect of the pronoun, as chap. 4.19.

V. 6. Both the great, and the small, shall dye in this land; they shall not be buried; neither men lament for them;] Or, when great or small, (and, for, or; as ver.2.) shall dye in this land, they shall not be buried, nor shall any lament for them; as chap. 14.15. Nor need we, as some, to interr, therefore. See of this manner, on ver. 4. where the active here indefinite, is expressed in the passive, they shall not be lamented; no lamentation shall be made for them: only here there is a more large extent of it; shewing that no regard should be, in this kind, be had of the great ones, more than of the meaner sort: see chap.22.18,19.

nor cut themselves, nor make themselves bald for them;] Courses in such cases usually practised among the Heathen, whom the Jewish also did herein oft imitate, though forbidden so to do, Lev.19.28. Deut.14.1.

V. 7. Neither shall men tear themselves for them, in mourning to comfort them for the dead;] According to this Version, the meaning should be the same with that before, of cutting themselves, ver. 6. and so some of the Jewish Doctors, also take it: but the word is there in a reciprocal form, whereas this here is not; nor is there in a reciprocal form, whereas this here is not; nor is the word here ever else-where found so used. Some other of them therefore by change of a letter interpret, though in shape diverse, yet for found in a manner, the same, and not altogether the same) expound it of stretching out the hands, or smiting them one against the other; to which purpose, one Version rendreth it: they shall not stretch out their hands, and our ancienter version, they shall not wring stretch out their hands, and our ancienter version, they shall not wring their hands, as in wailing people oft-times do, chap.4.31. Lam.1.17. But others of them, which seems the true and genuine sense of the place, understand it of such provisions of food, as friends, neighbours, and acquaintance, used to send he me unto those, that were in heaviness for the lofs of parents, children, or other of the family neer of kindred, or otherwise dear unto them, taken from them by decease; way their grieſe; alluded unto, Deut. 26. 14. and this exposition, as the words following confirm; so the use of the word elswhere doth further also help to clear: for so is the word used, Esay 28.7. 1 Lam. 4.4. the young children ask bread bread, and there is none to deal it to them : to which purpoſe the text may well be rendied, Neither ſhall they deal them bread, in mourning, to comfort any for the dead : bread, being put for any proviſion of food in general, as in the places before pointed to, chap. 5. 17. & and Luk. 14.1. as alſo, Ezek. 24.17. a place parallel to this, where the Prophet is inhibited upon the death of his wife, to eat the bread of men, that is, ſuch as men uſed in ſuch occaſions of mourning, to partake in with others that came to viſit them; by which term it is alſo in our ancienteſt Engliſh verſion here rendred. This ſenſe both the ancient Greek, and old Latine, expreſs. Whence alſo ſome gather (nor ſeems it altogether improbable) that the Greek Interpreters, in whoſe ſteps the Latines trode, did in the Hebrew, for lahem, to them, which we now have, read, lechem, or lehem, (whereof Bethleem) that is, bread, and deem this latter the better reading; the rather, for that the pronoun in the latter place is ſingular, not them, but him, that is, ſaith the Rabbine, for any of them, though rendred, as taken collectively in the plrral. Howſoever, if the word bread, be not expreſſed, as in thoſe other places before produced it is, yet is it to be ſupplyed, deal bread, or food; as in the like, Gen.42.33. where it is ſaid only, take for your families; that is, take bread or food, for your families; as our Engliſh well ſupplyes it: and they came out to draw, Gen.24.43. that is, to draw water: as it is aright ſupplyed there from ver. 13.

neither ſhall men give them the cup of conſolation to drink for their father, or for their mother.] Heb. neither ſhall they make them drink (as chap. 8.14.) a cup of conſolations (that is, a conſolatory cup : conſolations; as Eſay 66.11.) for his father, and (for, or; as Exod. 21. 15. ver. 2.) for his mother :to comfort any orphan, for the loſs of his father, or his mother: the word them, put diſtributively for any of them; and ſo might well be expreſſed, both in the former branch (if the received reading be retained) and (howſoever for that) in this: Of ſuch conſolatory cups tendred to perſons in grief and heavineſs, ſee Prov.31.6,7. The meaning is, that all ſuch neighbourly and friendly offices on ſuch occaſions formerly uſed, ſhould in thoſe calamitous times be wholly neglected, as others alſo more requiſite, for the reaſons before recited. See on ver.4.

V. 8. Thou ſhalt not alſo go into the houſe of feaſting, to ſit with them to eat and to drink.] Or, Neither do thou go (as ver. 2. 5.) into (the particle ſupplyed, as chap.14.18.) or, unto (as chap.34.3.) the houſe of feaſting (as Eccl. 7.2, 4.) to ſit there with them to eat and to drink: to make merry with them, Exod.32.6. Heb. And thou ſhalt not go; as ver.13. Before he was forbidden to repair with them, to their mournful and funeral banquetings; now is he charged not to keep company with them, at their merry meetings, or bridal banquetings; for at ſuch times feaſtings were ordinarily uſed, Gen.29.21,27. by his abſtinence, and refuſal to joyn therein with them; intimating what ſhould ſhortly and ſuddenly befall them, to wit, that they ſhould be utterly deprived of all occaſions and matter of ſuch mirth and jollity, ver.9.

V. 9. For thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael;] As chap. 7.3,21.& 9.15.

V. 10. And it ſhall come to paſs, when thou ſhalt ſhew this people all theſe words, and they ſhall ſay unto thee,]Or, it ſhall come to paſs (Heb. it ſhall be, as chap. 4.9.) when thou ſhalt tell this people all theſe things, (as chap.11.6.& 36.32.) if (as Job 10.15. chap. 18.8.) they ſhall ſay unto thee.

Wherefore hath the Lord pronounced all this great evill againſt us? and what is our iniquity? or what is our ſin, that we have committed againſt the Lord our God?] Thus pertinacious and preſumptuous are wicked men, in endeavouring to ſmother, and either deny, or excuſe, their ſins, though never ſo notorious, and conſpicuous, chap. 2. 22, 23, 25. and chooſing rather to charge God with iniquity, as if he puniſhed them without cauſe, than to acknowledge their owne iniquity, and perfidious carriage towards him, whereby they had deſerved much more, than he either threatned them with, or inflicted upon them. See the like demand, chap.5.19. &22.8.

and there ſhall ye ſerve other gods day and night] Or, where ye ſhall ſerve; as Gen.15.13. where ye ſhall have your fill of ſerving ſtrange gods; ſuch as neither ye, nor your fathers had known or ſerved before, Deut. 26.64. but with little eaſe, or reſt from thoſe, under whom ye ſhall ſerve them, Deut.28.47,48,65,66. whence the Chaldee, whom alſo ſome, both Jews, and others, here follow, rendreth it, Ye ſhall ſerve ſuch people, as ſerve other gods: but that is more than is in the text.

Where I will not ſhew you favour.] Heb. in which (to wit, place; as Gen.21.17. Hoſ.1.6.& 2.4. but proceed in rigour of judgement againſt you, cha. 14.16.& 15.14. ver.5. or, I will give you no favour in the eyes of your enemies, but ſuffer them to exerciſe much cruelty upon you, Iſa. 47. 5. contrary to that which at other times he had done with his people, Pſal.106.45. and with ſome of the godly alſo did at the ſame time, chap.15.11. Dan. 1.9. but this is ſpoken of the main body of the obſtinate wicked: Howbeit, there want not Writers of great note, who render the words, So long as I ſhall not ſhew favour unto you, or, have mercy upon you; to releaſe you out of captivity, which after ſeventy yeares I will, by Cyrus, doe for you, chap. 25. 12. But the ſenſe firſt delivered, ſeemes genuine.

V. 14. Therefore behold the dayes come, ſaith the Lord;] To theſe dreadfull comminations, yet for the ſupport and comfort of the faithfull, is a gracious promiſe of a ſtrange and remarkable reſtitution ſubjoyned, to be exhibited to ſuch a remnant as God ſhould pleaſe to reſerve, after the execution of the judgements here denounced upon the reſt.

V. 16. Behold, I will ſend for many fiſhers, and they ſhall fiſh them; and after will I ſend for many hunters, and they ſhall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks.] In theſe words, the Lord ſeems to return to what he had menaced, concerning the deſtroying of them in their land, ver.4. or the carrying of them away out of it, ver. 13. ſhewing further by what meanes he would effect either, to wit, by ſuch forces, as he would ſend in upon them, that ſhould ſo environ them, as fiſhermen do fiſhes, to make havock of them, that they ſhould be wholly at their mer-mercy, either to ſlay or to ſave, and withall ſhould ſo purſue, and ferret out, thoſe of them that ſhould either flee into, or lye hid in, any place of retirement, or refuge, that none ſhould be able to eſcape their hands.

I will ſend for many fiſhers] Or, as ſome render it, to many fiſhers; and ſo there ſhould be a defect of the word meſſage : I will ſend a meſſage to them: as Gen.27.47. So Chap. 23. 38. or, I will ſend many fiſhers, as chap.40.2. and he took Jeremy; where the ſame particle is uſed. Heb. behold I am ſending; as chap.25. 9.& 43.10. And howſoever we read or render it, the meaning is, that God would by a ſecret inſtinct, and enticement, as by a ſolemn meſſenger or meſſage ſent unto them, cauſe them to come in upon this people. See Eſay 5.26. & 7.18,19. chap.1.15.

fiſhers and hunters] Who ſhould hereby be meant, Interpreters differ. Some ſay, the Egyptians and the Chaldeans; the Egyptians termed fiſhers, becauſe they fed much upon fiſh, and lived much by fiſhing, Num. 11.5. Eſay 19.8. and they by Pharao-Necho much infeſted this people, 2 King. 23. 29,33. the Chaldeans termed hunters; for their tyranny and fierceneſſe: as Nimrod, Gen.10.8,9. See Ezek.19.4,8,9. But this Prophecy ſeemeth of a later date, than that action of Necho, nor do we read of any great havock that he made of the people; he fleeced them onely by Jehojakim of ſome part of their wealth, 2 King. 23.25. Others therefore, and ſo the Jewiſh Commenters, underſtand both of the Chaldeans; who having incloſed them as fiſh in a net, by the ſiege of the city, did firſt ſweep them away, at the ſurpriſal of it, by ſlaying multitudes of them; compared in that regard to fiſhers, that take fiſh onely to kill them, it being the nature of fiſh to dye, when they are out of their own element: and did afterward make ſearch after them that either lay hid in the city, or were fled, and had betaken themſelves for ſecurity to ſome ſecret places; and fetched them out of their lurking holes to make captives of them; compared therefore to hunters, that follow fowls and beaſts (for the word here uſed includeth fowling alſo, Lev. 17. 13.) in the woods, and in the mountains, to catch them, not to kill them onely, and make meat of them, but for other uſes alſo. See 1 Sam. 24. 11, 14. & 26. 18, 20. Pſal. 90. 3. and of the Chaldeans dealing in this kind with this people, ſee 2 King. 25. 5. Lam.3.52. & 4.18. and this latter ſeemeth the right; though ſome of thoſe Rabbinical niceties intermingled with it may ſeem needleſs. But there want not of our Writers and others, that underſtand theſe words, not as a menace, but as a promiſe: and theſe again are divided: for ſome conceive theſe fiſhers and fowlers, to be the Medes and Perſians ſerving under Cyrus, who ſhould make ſearch for, and gather the Jewiſh people, after Babylons downfall, out of all thoſe regions into which they had been diſperſed: and they parallel this with that, Eſay 27. 12, 13. Another ſort would have the Miniſters of the Goſpel to be here meant: by fiſhers, the Apoſtles, who being formerly by trade fiſhermen, were made fiſhers of men, Mat. 4. 18, 19. Luk.5.10. by hunters, their ſucceſſors, that were ſent abroad into all parts of the world for to catch ſouls for Chriſt, Rom. 10.15, 18. and ſome of theſe go yet further, the Apoſtles, ſay they, were as fiſhermen, that caſt in the net, and bring up abundance of fiſh at one draught, Luk. 5.6, 7. Joh.21.6,8. So did Peter, who by the net of the Goſpel, caught 3000. at one draught, Acts 2.41. and 2000. it not more, at another, Act.4.4. the modern Miniſters, as hunters, that run up & down all day long with much noiſe and cry, and it may be ſcarce get one poor Hare or Deer ere night; with much toyle and defatigation they weary out themſelves, and ſcarce catch a ſoul or two, gain at leaſt very few, it may be, all their life long, and may therefore juſtly complaine as the Prophet doth, Eſay 49.4.& 53.1. thoſe of the latter age ſhall be as harveſt men, to bring in Gods harveſt, Joh. 4. 35,38. Nor do I concur with thoſe, who render it, from the beginning, from the firſt to the laſt, their anceſtors ſins and their own; as Eſay 65. 7. and ſhall ſay, Surely our Fathers have inherited lyes, vanity and things wherein there is no profit.] Some expound this of the Jewiſh people, returning from thoſe remote regions, into which they had been diſperſed, Deut. 30.4. and whoſe anceſtors in former times had been idolaters, Joſh.24.2,3. but the moſt rather of the Gentiles, acknowledging, that their forefathers had fondly ſerved, and ſet their hearts and hopes on vain idols that were not able to do them any good, or to ſtand them in any ſtead, and by the ſervice of whom they had gained nothing but loſs, ſhame and ſorrow; and it were extream folly therefore for them their children to perſiſt and tread ſtill in their ſteps. See chap.3.24,25. and 14.20,22.

Howbeit, ſome render it, and there is none among them (that is, among their falſe gods) that profiteth; that can do any good, or availeth ought, Chap.10.5. Nor is this verſion improbable.

V. 20. Should a man make gods to himſelfe, and they are no Gods?] Some ſuppoſe theſe words to be ſpoken by God in indignation, that his people who had ſo great, and ſo long experience of his power and deity, ſhould not yet diſcover the vanity of idols made with mens hands, which the Heathen themſelves ſhould ſome of them ſee and acknowledge. See Eſay 42.17---19. and 44.20,21. chap. 10.1. And this ſeemeth very probable, for the inference that ſeems hereupon grounded, ver. 21. Howbeit, the moſt Interpreters goe another way; conceiving them to be meant of the convert Heathens confeſſion, further acknowledging with ſome deteſtation, the extream folly of their forefathers, that could be ſo ſottiſh, as to believe, that ſuch idols made by mans hand ſhould be Gods, Act. 17. 29. Some render the words; can a man (the indicative in a potential notion; as chap. 12. 23.) make him gods? (either, make for himſelf, to worſhip, Eſay 2. 20. or, make him; by an elegant redundancy; as Eſay 31.8.) yet they are no Gods. Others, can, or, ſhould a man make him gods; which are no gods? and they, for, which; as chap.17.6. Mal.3.1. and the pronoun demonſtrative for the verb ſubſtantive: as chap.10.3,8. Can any man endued with reaſon, be ſo ſilly and ſottiſh, as to deem that his God, which either himſelf hath made, or ſome other man for him; whereas thereby he may know it not ſo to be, becauſe it is the work of mans hands: Pſal.115. 14. Eſay 2.8. chap.10.3,9. Hoſ.8.6. or, that he can ſo change the nature of things, as to make that God, which by nature is nothing leſſe than God? or that he ſhould attempt ſo to do? Iſaiah 44.16,17. chap. 2. 11. Gal. 4. 8. But an Interpreter of prime note rejecting all theſe, as but cold notions, thus rendreth and expoundeth the text; Can any man (or, men, the word collectively taken) make them Gods, when as they themſelves are no Gods, but men ? Can he that is no God, make a God ? give that to another which he hath not himſelf: the words may well bear it ; but I leave it to the judgment of others.

V. 21. Therefore behold I will for this once, cauſe them to know] Heb. behold I am making them for this time, or turn, to know.

CHAP. XVII.

V. 1. THE ſin of Judah is written with a pen of iron, and with the point of a diamond, it is graven upon the table of their heart, and upon the horns of their altars :]. Whether the four firſt verſes of this Chapter (which in the Greek Verſion are wanting) depend upon the Chapter foregoing, as I conceive them to do; or the whole chapter ſo do, as ſome ſuppoſe: or whether it be an entire Sermon of it ſelf, as ſome would have it ; or contain the ſum of ſome ſeveral Sermons, as ſome others are of opinion, with whom I concur, are matters neither very certain, nor much material. Certain it is, that in theſe four firſt verſes, the former denunciation of wrath and judgment delivered, chap. 16.13, 16, 21. is again renewed, verſ. 3, 4. and the ground of it, to wit, their idolatry, there pointed to, verſ. 18, 20. here preſſed and aggravated by their extream pertinacy therein, the notoriouſneſs of it, and their inward and entire affection unto it. The firſt whereof is in the former part of the verſe laid down, and illuſtrate by a reſemblance taken from ſome characters, cut or carved with iron or ſteel, or other ſtrong tool, in marble-ſtone, or the like hard matter, ſo deep, that they cannot eaſily, if at all, be done out again : thereby intimating, that in like manner, this evil of idolatry was ſo deeply riveted into their ſouls, and had made ſo deep an impreſſion in their minds and memories, that it was not poſſible to get or raze it out thence, to work it out of their hearts, or to make them leave minding & remembring it. The ſame pertinacy in evil in them, ſee ſet forth by other expreſſions and reſemblances, ch.2.22. & 6.29, 30. & 13. 23. For I cannot concur with thoſe, who would have the words rendred, The ſin of Judah ſhall be written with a pen of iron, and an adamantine claw ; that is, ſay they, the guilt and penalty of it ſhall be ſo ſet on with them, that they ſhall not be able in haſt to forget it.

ſin] Their idolatry, by way of eminency, for the hainouſneſs of it here, ſo termed, (ſee Exo.32.31.) as appears both by the cloſe of this verſe, and by what followeth, verſ.2,3.

written] That is, cut, or engraven : for ſo the Hebrew word is commonly uſed, not onely for to write in a book, Deut. 29. 20. chap. 32. 10. but to engrave alſo in ſtone, or other like material, Exod.24.12. & 34. 1.

with a pen of iron] Such an iron tool as men uſe to carve or engrave with : as Job 19. 24. Of the word rendred pen, ſignifying firſt a pen to write with, Pſal. 45. 2. then a tool to grave with, ſee on chap. 8. 8.

and with the point of a diamond] The former word here uſed, ſignifieth porperly the claw of a fowl ; for from a bird, or fowl, it hath its name : but it is uſed alſo for the nail of man or woman, Deut. 21. 12. Dan. 4. 33. and becauſe the claws of fowls, birds of prey eſpecially, are ſtrong and ſharp : Hence by reſemblance, ſuch iron tools alſo, as Artificers that work in hard matter, ſuch as Maſons or Smiths engrave with, are ſo termed, as by ſome places by the Jewiſh Scholiaſt here, and by others elſe-where, out of the Talmudiſts Writings produced, may appear. So that by the word here, rendred point, there ſeemeth no other to be intended, than what was rendred a pen before ; at leaſt, that they were both names, if not of one and the ſame tool, of two tools not unlike the one to the other ; the one, reſembling the pen of a fowl ; the other, the claw, and both, as may ſeem alſo, among work-men, much of the ſame uſe. And hence, as here, a pen of iron ; ſo out of the Midras, a claw of iron. But of the other word there is not a little difficulty ; for ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks would have it to ſignifie any hard matter in general : and here, to ſignifie hard iron, or ſteel ; ſupplying the word iron from the former member ; as, ſay they, the Chaldee Paraphraſt uſeth it for an hard-ſtone, joyning ſtone and it together, Deut.32.13. and that it ſignifieth not an adamant alone, (the point whereof, I ſuppoſe, was never in common uſe thus to grave with) but any hard rocky, or flinty ſtone, appeareth by the common uſe of it in the Chaldee, Deut.8.15. Job 28. 10. Pſal. 114. 8. and it is ſtrange, if this term ſignifie a diamond, how it came to miſs a place in the ſtones of the Ephod ; for another word is deemed to go for a diamond there, Exod. 28.18. I will not make uſe of that Talmudical tale, (which yet ſome of the Jewiſh Scholiaſts, on Eſa.5.6. follow) to wit, that this Shamir ſhould ſignifie a worm, that Moſes made uſe of, to cut thoſe precious ſtones with ; and Solomon, to cut out the ſtones for the Temple, being taught the uſe of it by Aſmodeus the devil, and fecht out of Paradice by an Eagle : this were to confute, a miſtake at moſt, by a more frivolous fable : but that it ſignifieth a very hard ſtone, ſo called from its own laſting, and the ſure and long keeping of things therein cut and engraved, is evident by thoſe two places, where in this notion it is found uſed, Ezek.3.9. & Zach.7. 12. in the former place, whereof it is ſaid, ſhamir, harder than the rock. But what uſe is there ordinarily, ſave among ſavage people, where iron tools are wanting, of flints or ſtone to carve with in hard matter ? Some therefore of the Jewiſh Writers would have the words read, with a pen of iron, and with a claw in an hard ſtone ; ſuch as marble, or the like : and thereby to be meant, what by further explication followeth, upon the table of their hearts ; for their hearts, ſay they, are elſewhere called hearts of ſtone, Ezek.36.26. and ſaid to be as this hard ſtone, Zach.7.12. But be cauſe this ſeemeth an overhard conſtruction, I adhere rather to that learned Writer, who by the claw, or iron tool of the hard ſtone, or long-laſting ſtone, underſtandeth a tool not made of ſuch a ſtone, but wherewith in ſuch ſtones, not ſoft, but hard marble, or rocky ſtones, things are wont to be cut and engraven : the rather, for that I find a furnace of iron, not for a furnace made of iron, but for a furnace, wherein iron is melted and wrought, Deut.4.20. See on ch. 11. 4.

it is graven upon the table of their heart.] Heb. engraven, or, being engraved. The word here uſed, anſwereth preciſely to the Latine exarata : for it ariſeth as that alſo doth, from a root that ſignifies to plow ; whence the plow-ſhare, that enters and cuts the ground, 1 Sam. 13. 21. and a term for notion parallel to it, and in one radical letter onely differing, is found, Exod. 32. 16. and as that onely there, (where it is uſed of Gods Law engraven on the two Tables of ſtone) ſo this, in that notion alone here : Of the phraſe of the table of the heart, and ought be written and engraven there, ſee 2 Cor.3.3. Their ſin, a tranſgreſſion of Gods Law, 1 John.3.4. is engraven and ſtamped upon their hearts, and that in ſuch manner, as was before ſaid, where the Law of God was ſome time, Rom. 2. 15. and ought ſtill to be written, Ezek. 31. 33. Some think there is an alluſion to thoſe ſuperſtitious tablets, which idolatrous people uſed to wear next their hearts, with the name, mark, or number, of that god, whom they were moſt addicted to, engraven thereon ; or to the common practice of ſuch perſons as uſed to carry about them, the effigies, or names of thoſe, whom they did in ſpecial manner affect, either drawn upon ſuch tablets, or engraved upon ſome Agate, or the like ſtone in their rings, or ſeals. See on Eſay 49. 16. But hereof let the Learned judge. Some other ſuppoſe, that the meaning ſhould be, that the guilt of their ſin ſtuck ſo faſt to their conſcience, that all they could do, would not be able to raze it out, but that it would ſtand for ever firm and freſh, as upon record, there, Deut. 32. 34. Eſa.65.6. But of this before.

and upon the horns of your altars.] In the former words was intimated their pertinacious diſpoſition, in regard of their ſin : in this clauſe, the notoriouſneſs of it ; as if he had ſaid, You will ask me, peradventure, how I can come to know, or tell what is in your hearts. God, from whom I have it, ſeeth and knoweth it well enough, verſ. 10. But I need not have recourſe to any ſuch ſpecial revelations, your outward courſes and practices do openly publiſh and proclaim it : as it is enſtamped upon the tables of your hearts, ſo is it likewiſe portraid upon the horns of your altars. In which term, there is by moſt Writers deemed an alluſion to be unto the bloud of beaſts offered in ſacrifices, which was uſually ſprinkled upon the horns of the altar, a rite enjoyned by God, and imitated by idolaters in the ſervice of their falſe gods : For Gods altar was fourſquare, and at each of the four corners of it, was fixed a riſing of braſs, to ſome heighth, in the faſhion of an horn, to keep from falling over ſuch things as were laid to be burnt upon the altar, Exo. 27. 1, 2. Ezek. 43. 15, 16. Now upon theſe, for expiation, was the bloud of the ſacrifice part of it put, Exod. 29. 12. Levit. 4. 7. & 16. 18. The like rite whereunto being uſed by theſe idolaters, was an open profeſſion of their idolatrous ſervices, and is here produced as a pregnant proof and evidence againſt them. Now this being the meaning of the text, the word of engraving, muſt be taken here in a double notion, as if it were ſaid, engraven upon the tables of your hearts, (for the terms are collective) and painted (for of bloud that is moſt proper) upon the horns of your altars. It is not unlike thoſe ſpeeches of Moſes, The people ſaw the thundrings and lightnings ; ſaw the one, heard the other, Exod. 20.18. & Deut. 4. 12. Ye ſaw no ſimilitude, a voice only heard ye : as alſo to that of the Apoſtle, I made you to drink milk, not to eat meat ; or fed you not with meat, 1 Cor. 3.2. But this double notion, ſome avoid, ſuppoſing this clauſe to have reſpect not to the blood put, or ſprinkled upon the altars ; but to the names of thoſe gods, that at them were worſhipped, inſcribed, or engraved, upon the altars : Of which, ſee Act. 17.23. and that in the term of horns is intimated, that by, and for thoſe, their abominable practices, they ſhould be goared, as with horns, unto their utter deſtruction. See 1 King.22.11. But the former ſeems the more probable, and is admitted by the moſt. Howſoever it be taken, there is in the text, the particle unto, for upon, as Pſa.9.4. cha.15.8. and a paſſage from perſon to perſon, from the third to the ſecond ; as Eſay 1.29. chap.16.12.

V. 2. While their children remember their altars and their groves, by the greene trees upon the high hils.] According to this verſion, which the old Latine holdeth forth, the meaning ſhould be, that the children took after their parents, treading in their idolatrous ſteps, while they kept in, or called to mind their courſes of that kind, and the places wherein they uſually exerciſed the ſame. See chap.7.18. But the Chaldee Paraphraſt, whom both the Jewiſh Commenters, and ſome of ours, follow, render the words ; As they remember their children, (Heb. according to the remembring, or, remembrance of their children) ſo remember they their altars and their groves ; that is, as men are wont to mind their children, the dayly remembrance of whom, being moſt dear and pretious to them, is very pleaſing and delightfull ; ſo are theſe men wont to mind and think upon continually with much pleaſure and delight, the places wherein they do ſervice to their idols, being far dearer to them, than their children themſelves. See chap.7.31,32. & 19.5. See for the form of ſpeech, Pſa.106.4. Eſay 1.7. and for the ſupply of the verb from the former branch, Gen.1.16. 2 Chr.10.11. Eſay 10.5. Chap.8.10. Thus read, (which I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe) it implyeth the great love and affection that they bare unto their Idols. See Eſay 5. 57.8. For that ſeems too much forced, which ſome Jewiſh ones ſuggeſt, of making memorials of their children, by burning them in fire to their idols ; according to that, Lev.2. 9. Eſay 66.3. as alſo that of thoſe who expound it, that they ſhall for a long time remember theſe their practiſes, when the evils that they ſuffer for them, ſhall ſtick cloſe to them.

groves] Set apart for, and abuſed unto idolatrous ſervices, Judg. 3. 7. Eſay 1.29. See Eſay 27.9.

by the green trees] Or, beſide ; as Chap. 32. 20. or, with the green trees ; (Heb. green tree ; but taken collectively) the groves ſet with, or conſiſting of ſuch. So is the particle uſed, Gen.32.11. Exod. 35.22. 1 Sam. 1. 24. for they needleſly wring the text, that by a trajection would refer, beſide the green trees, not to the groves, but to the altars ; or that inſtead of, upon the green trees, as the particle moſt commonly ſignifieth, render it, under the green tree ; becauſe it is ſo, chap.2.20. for this particle is never that I can find, uſed in ſo croſs a ſenſe.

upon the high hils.] the uſuall places of their idol-ſervices ; whence the term of high places, chap.2.20. & 3.2.

V. 13. O my mountain in the field, I will give thy ſubſtance, and all thy treaſures to the ſpoyl ; and thy high places for ſin, in all thy borders.] The fruit and effect of theſe their idolatrous courſes followeth, to wit, the expoſing of their ſubſtance and wealth to direption, and their perſons to deportation and ſervitude, ver. 4.

O my mountain in the field] The City of Jeruſalem, and Sion more eſpecially, Gods holy hill, Pſal. 68. 15. & 133. 3. becauſe the city ſtood, though in the midſt of a plain, Pſal.125.1,2. yet upon a riſing all of it, and that upper part of it, upon an eminent hill ; with many rich and pleaſant fields round about it : for the Rabbine ſeems here to ſit beſides the cuſhion, who would have the name of a mountain to be given here to the Jewiſh people ; becauſe on the mountains they uſually exerciſed their idolatry, Eſay 65.4. Ezek.18.6. nor ſeem they to have hit the nail on the head, who render the words, O thou mountain, thou people of Judah and Jeruſalem, that dwelleſt on and amidſt the mountains, and truſteſt much to the ſtrength of them, as if thou wert therefore impregnable, Cha.21. 13. thou ſhalt be no more ſafe, than as if thou wert ſeated in the open field, expoſed to prey and ſpoyl : or, come down into the field, or thou ſhalt be brought down into the field ; for thine enemies ſhall pul thee down, lay thee low, and make thee level with the plain, Luk. 19. 44. as alſo thoſe no leſſe miſſe the mark, who by a trajection would render the words ; thy wealth in the fields will I give for a prey. None of theſe (ſave the firſt, which the words may well bear) but ſeem to force the text too much. Thoſe I conceive to come neereſt to the genuine ſenſe of the place, who thus read it ; My mountains, with the fields, thy wealth and all thy treaſures, will I expoſe to ſpoil. Heb. My mountain, and field ; but taken collectively ; as heart, for, hearts, ver. 1. tree, for trees, ver. 2. the mountains of Judah, being much of it hilly, Pſal.125.2. Luk.1.39. (which God calleth by a ſpecialty, his mountains, Eſay 14.26. & 65.9.) and the whole territory divided into mountain and field, or plain, as Ezek.6. 3. with the fields. So is the particle rendred, Chap. 11.19. Deut.6.7. Pſal.35.16. 1 Sam. 1. 24. Hoſ.5.6. thy wealth, that lyeth abroad in the field ; and all thy treaſures, (the copulative ſupplyed from Chap.15.13.) whether abroad in the field; as chap.41.8. or laid up in thy ſtore-houſes and treaſuries, chap. 15. 13. Eſay 39. 6. will I expoſe to prey. Heb. give to, or, for, prey ; that is, give up to be preyed upon, or made a prey, Chap. 9. 10.

and thy high places for ſin, in all thy borders.] The former member is diverſly read and expounded. Some underſtand it of their high places to be given up to the ſpoyl with the reſt, for the ſin therein committed. See Ezek. 6.6. Others, the high-places erected for ſin ; for ſinfull and idolatrous practices, Chap. 7. 31. Others, thy high places are ſin ; as the calf is called their ſin, Deut.9.21. the particle redundant ; as Job 18.8. See Eſay 26.4. & 40. 10. ver.4. Others, and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks, by a trajection, thy high places for ſin ; that is, for the ſin of thine high places : as, after and build, for, and build afterward, Prov. 24. 27. and, a place there of ſepulture, for, a place of ſepulture there, Ezek. 39. 11. and, wailing to ſuch as are ſkilfull in lamentation, for, ſuch as are ſkilfull in lamentation to wailing, Amos 5. 16. and this in effect doth come home to the firſt ; ſave that the one maketh the high places the common ſubject matter of direption with the reſt ; the other maketh them the ſubject place of their ſin : the laſt clauſe may have reference, either unto their wealth and treaſure, that they ſhould in all places be ſtript of, chap. 4. 20. or unto their high places, that the whole land was filled with in all parts of it, and the ſins therein committed, chap.3.2. & 16.18. See the ſame with this, Chap. 15.13.

V. 4. And thou, even thy ſelf, ſhalt diſcontinue from thy heritage, that I gave thee] Heb. And thou, and in thee, ſhalt intermit, or diſcontinue. Which ſome expound ; And thou, even (as Chap. 15. 13.) thou ; the other particle being redundant, as ver. 3. Others, And thou thy ſelf, and thoſe that are in thee : all the Inhabitants of the land. Others, Then (as Chap. 16. 11. to wit, when thou haſt been thus ſtript) ſhalt thou, and that (as ver.10. Chap.20.5.) for, or, through, thy ſelf, (that is, for, or, through, thine own default : as chap. 15. 13. Eſay 47.9. & 57.17.) diſcontinue, or, intermit from thine heritage : ceaſe from, and forbear to till the land, that thou now poſſeſſeſt, there is in this term an alluſion to that law, by which they were enjoyned to intermit the tillage of their land in certain years, called therefore Sabbaticall years, becauſe the land in them reſted, as men did on the Sabbath. See Exod.23. 10, 11. (where the word here uſed is found) and to that intermination of ſuch a ceſſation or intermiſſion, while they ſhould abide in captivity abroad, Lev. 26. 34. which the words next following do evidently evince : and a learned Scholiaſt therefore ſuppoſeth, that there ſhould be here a ſupply of the word hand, becauſe he findeth it ſubjoyned there to the very here uſed, rendring the text, thou ſhalt be compelled to omit, or, withhold thine hand from thy poſſeſſion ; but he might have obſerved, that the verb is there in an active form ; here in a neuter : and it may well therefore be rendred, thou ſhalt ceaſe from (as the like; Eſay 2. 22.) thine heritage, or, poſſeſſion (to wit, from tilling, or earing and enjoying of it) which I had given thee, to poſſeſs, Pſal.135.12.

and I will cauſe thee to ſerve thine enemies in the land that thou knoweſt not] Or, while (ſo is the copulative taken, 1 Kin.11.25. and ſo rendred, Eſth. 2. 21. Pſal.146.2.) I cauſe thee to ſerve thine enemies in a land that thou knoweſt not, or, in the land (as particularly pointing at Babylon) which thou haſt not known, formerly, ſave by hear-ſay only ; that is, during the time of thine abſence from thine own land, and of thy ſervitude in a ſtrange country. See Lev. 26.34,35. Of the divers reading here, ſee on Chap. 15. 14. where the other is in the text ; which if we admit, the words muſt be rendred, and I will cauſe, or, when (as Chap. 34. 1. Zach. 12.2. I ſhall cauſe thee to paſs with thine enemies into a land that thou knoweſt not.

for ye have kindled a fire in mine anger, which ſhall burn for ever.] See Chap.15.14. a want of the relative is there in the former branch, as here in the latter.

for ever.] That is, for a long time ; as Exod. 21. 6. Deut. 15. 17. 1 Sam. 1. 22. & 27. 12. Pſal.89.1. Eſay 34.10.

V. 5. Thus ſaith the Lord ;] Here ſeemeth to begin a ſhort ſum of another Sermon ; though moſt conceive it to have dependence upon the former ; as holding out a ſecond ſin after their idolatry, ver. 1, 4. to wit, confidence in an arm of fleſh, and worldly wealth, for which alſo they were to ſuffer. It beginneth with a curſe denounced againſt all that withdraw their hearts from God, ver. 5, 6. and a bleſſing to all that conſtantly depend upon him, ver.7.8.

Curſed be the man, that truſteth in man, and maketh fleſh his arm, and whoſe heart departeth from the Lord] A corruption that this people were ever over-prone to, ſeeking unto, and relying upon, forraign aids from time to time with a neglect of God, and refuſall to reſt upon him. See 2 Chron.16.7. and 28.16,20. Eſay 30.1,2. & 31. 1,2. & 36.6. Chap.35.5,7. Ezek.29.6,7,16.

Curſed be the man,] Or, is the man : as the like, ver.7.

truſteth in man] Relyeth upon him, as his abſolute ſupport and firm ſtay, Pſal.146.3,4.

in man] Heb. in Adam ; a man of earth, or dirt, or clay, or duſt ; ſo the name importeth, Gen. 2. 7. & 3. 19. Pſal. 103. 14. See on Eſay 2.9.

maketh fleſh his arm] fleſh, for, man ; a feeble, frail and corruptible creature, expoſed to caſualty, and ſubject to mortality, Pſal. 103. 15, 16. and 144. 4. and 146. 4. Eſay 2.22. and 51. 3. So Pſal. 78.39. Eſay 40.6,7. arm, for, might and ſtrength ; as 1 Sam. 2. 31. Pſal. 10. 15. and for ſupport, Eſay 33.2. Hence, an arm of fleſh, 2 Chron.32.8. as if one would ſay, of meer fleſh, without bone or sinew, without strength or firmness, (for in the bone and sinew, not in the flesh, doth the strength and firmness of the body consist, Psal.24.7. Job 40.18.) an infirm and feeble thing, unable to bear up it self, and much less able to sustain or bear up ought else; and flesh, for, a man that is nothing but flesh; as Gen.6.3. and in the places before pointed to, Psa.78.19. Esa.40.6. and such and no better is the mightiest man without Gods support, even as a meer flesh arm, without any nerve or bone at all in it; and a meer folly and madness for any man to rely on such a piece of infirm and feeble stuff, Esay 31.1,3.

whose heart departeth from God] Though he make shew full outwardly of continuance with him. See Esa.29.13. & 48.2. & 58.2.ch. 12.2. Ezek.14.4. & 33.30,32.

V. 3. For he shall be like the heath in the desert] Heb. And; as Psal. 1. 3. How uncertain the great Masters in Israel are, and how far to seek in their own language, concerning the names as well of birds, and beasts, as of trees and plants, mentioned in Scripture, hath in part been already shewed, for the former, on Esa. 13. 21, 22. & 34. 14, 15. for the latter, on Isa.41.19. and we shall here make further to appear. The Hebrew Arar here, or Aroar, as it is found written, chap. 48. 6. some of them affirm to be the same with davdar, Gen. 3.18. Hos.10.8. which some render a thistle, some a bramble, some a briar. See the parallel place, Heb.6.8. which seems to carry it to the last. Others say, it is a kind of thistle, that is prickly without, but eatable within. And the like is said of the term that the Chaldee Paraphraft gives it; so it might be our artichoke. Another telleth us, that it is in some barbarous tongues called juncier, so it should be a bulrush, according to the Latine juncus. Another, that it is that which the Arabians call bahul, by which name are the Juniper-berries said to be termed: yea, some tell us, that the juniper bush it self is in the Arabian tongue called by the very name here used. Which it is marvel then how it escaped that Jewish Doctor that gave this Interpretation of it, by the name of the berry, rather than of the bush. Others of them say, it is a plant that in foreign languages is termed myrice; and so the old Latine rendreth it. Now under this appellation, are two sorts of plants comprehended, both with the Greeks, and with the Latines; the one called the tamarisk, that loveth watry places, and groweth usually neer the brinks of brooks and rivers; the other called also erice, and with us heath, a shrub lower than the former, that affecteth dry grounds and waste places; which from it therefore we usually term heaths, whether heath grow on them, or no. Now of this latter fort our English version, (wherein many other Interpreters concur with it) understandeth the word here used to be meant; as also some say, that the word used by the Chaldee, doth signifie the same. But of this plant or shrub, and the several sorts of it, see Dioscorides, l.1.c.117. Basil in his six days work, Sermon 5. Pliny, l. 13. c. 21. & l. 16. c. 26. & l. 24. c. 9. in which two latter places he telleth us, that this sort of plant is reckoned among those that were counted unlucky, or unhappy, and damned ones; such as might not be admitted into any religious rite, and that were therefore so termed, because they bare neither fruit nor seed, nor were wont at all to be planted or set: of which sort this being one, was deemed good for nothing, save to make besomes, or brooms, such as are with us known commonly by the name of heath-brooms; that which fuiteth passing well with the use of the word in this place. Howbeit, Pliny in those places seemeth to confound those two plants: which Basil well distinguisheth, applying that to the former sort, that is peculiar to the latter; because the common sort of people in his time used to give the name of the former to the latter. Which also, it seems, the Italian and some others also following him, are not free from, who render the word here tamorice, or tamarisk; the Italian note adding, that it is a bastard plant (which what it should mean, I wot not well, unless it be, as bastard-saffron, for saffron, falsly so termed: and so bastard-tamarisk, for, tamarisk; for likeness of it to the right tamarisk, so commonly called) of no use but for the fire: for of the former, both Dioscorides and others affirm, that it is planted, and doth bear fruit, and is very useful in Physick: and well the Greek therefore here, to take away all ambiguity, expresseth it by a term that signifies wild-myrice; that kind of it (as the text saith) that groweth in the wilderness. Howbeit, in the last place, another of them directly crossing this opinion, yea, and himself too elsewhere, telleth us, it is a great tree, that groweth in the wilderness; but what tree he saith not, relating onely what some other say of it. Thus theſe; agreeing, as we say, like harp and harrow, yet all taking it for some peculiar kind of plant. But some late Writers are herein of another mind; for they conceive it not to design any special sort or kind of plant; but an attribute onely of some plant, tree, or shrub in general: and with these I concur, for two causes; first, because in the opposite branch, verf. 7. there is no mention of any particular plant, but a tree only, at large: and secondly, because I find it used, as an attribute, not of a plant, but of a perſon, Psal.1 02.17. where some expound the word solitary, as there, verſ. 7. from a word that signifieth, barren, childless, without issue, Gen. 15.2. Lev.20.20, 21. chap. 22. 30. and so it might here signifie a tree that standeth alone by it self on the waſte; or a barren tree, such as the Eunuch is compared unto, Isa.56.3. but theſe both, are afterward expreſſed. Others, low, or, lowly, or dejected; from a root that signifieth to throw, or, pull down, chap. 51.58. and so it might here be, a low shrub: but that seems not to suit so well with the root, whence it should come, used of pulling down walls and buildings onely, as the word to rase, with us. Others lastly, render it destitute; as those, Heb.11.37. or, despoiled, left naked, made bare: as Job 1.21. from a verb that signifieth to strip, to make naked, or, bare, Isa.32.11. Habb.3.9. and accordingly some render it, a bare, or, naked tree; without any furniture of fruit or leaf. See Isaiah 1.30. a defect of the subject; as, vile, for, vile grapes, Isaiah 5.4. a fading, for, a fading plant, Isaiah 28.4. untempered, for, untempered morter, Ezek. 13. 11. and the word being of a doubled form, may well be deemed to signifie most bare: which I conceive to be the genuine sense of the word.

in the desert] As, in the wilderness, Isa.48.6. but there is here an elegant consonancy, between the term intimating the condition of the tree, and that designing the place of its abode: as if it were said, an exceeding bare tree in an extream barren soil.

and shall not see when good cometh,] Or, that seeth not; that is, enjoyeth it not, partaketh not of it, hath not any thanke in it; (as the word is used, Job 9.25. Psa.34.12. chap.29.32.) when any rain from heaven, or other benefit or blessing falleth upon, or befalleth other places, Isa.5.6. Amos 4.7. for that learned late Writer seems here to have strayed, who doth thus paraphrase theſe words; it shall not bring forth any fruit fit for food, when the time of so doing shall with other trees be.

but shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness] Or, but (Heb. and; as chap.15.19.) is situate (as Josh.22.19.) in some parched, or, extream dry place, (Heb. parched places, for some parched place: as, Sepulchres, for, any one sepulchre, Gen.23.6. cities, for, one of the cities, Judg. 12.7. streams, for, some one stream, Psal. 1.3. and a defect of the subject; as in the foregoing branch: or, a place of parchedness, or, dryneſſes, for, a most dry, or, parched place: as, a place of droughts, for, a dry place, Isa.25.5. & 32.2. a land of drought, for, a dry land, Isaiah 35.1. and, a land of droughts, for, an extream dry land, Psalm 105.41.) in the wilderness: where such places are most frequent, chap. 2.6. & 51.43. in such a land or soyl, as can afford it no moisture: and consequently, that cannot thrive, receiving neither rain from above, nor moisture from beneath. See Ezek. 19.13.

in a salt land,] Or, a salt ground. Heb. a land, or, ground, of saltness: as, a land of saltness, Job 39.6. Psal.107.34. such as are altogether barren and unfruitful, Deut. 29.23. to which purpose also were places sometime sowed with salt, on purpose to make them such, Judg.9.45.

and not inhabited] Or, which is not inhabited; the copulative for the relative: as chap. 14. 18. Heb. inhabiteth, for, is inhabited: the neuter in a passive notion; as Isa. 13.20. where it is no inhabitant to manure or dress it, Gen. 2.5,13. Isa.5.6. Luk.13.8. or where for the barrenneſs of the soil, no man dwelleth, chap. 2.6, 15. I am not ignorant, that some Writers of great note, understand both this similitude and the next, as intending, not external prosperity and succeſs, but spiritual graces, and the exerciſe of them: the latter, as that also, Psal.1.3. of regeneration by insition into Christ; production of good works, and perseverance in well-doing: that which the course of the context there doth abundantly refel: and so this former accordingly of the want of all theſe; he shall not partake in the grace of regeneration, nor be manured and dressed by Gods Word in his Church; nor bear any fruit of good works: but theſe things seem wholly beside the intent of the Prophet; which is to shew such as trusted to humane helps, how they should not only miſs of that bleſsedneſs, good, prosperity, and safety, which by those means they made account to attain; but should also bring upon themselves those evils, which thereby they sought and thought to escape and avoid.

V. 7. Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is.] From the curſed condition of all those, that withdraw their truſt from God, to repose it on the creature; he passeth to the bleſsed and happy estate of all those that continue loyal to God, and depend wholly for support and safety upon him, who alone is able to support and to save. See the like bleſsedneſs promiſed and assured unto such, Psal.2.12. & 40.4. & 125.1. & 146.5. Prov.16.20. Isa. 26. 3,4. and 30.18.

and whose hope the Lord is.] Heb. and the Lord is his truſt, or, confidence: for the word is a verbal, derived from the foregoing verb: and his, for, whose; as chap. 5.22. & 15.19. and truſt, or, confidence, for perſon truſted on, or confided in. So Psal. 40.4. and 65.4.

V. 8. For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her roots by the river;] See the like description of the godly mans prosperous thriving and flouriſhing condition, Psalm 1.3. and the like reſemblance, Job 8.16,17. Ezek. 19.10. and 31.4.

For he shall be] As Psal.1.3. ver. 6.

as a tree] See Isa.65.22.

planted by the waters] Or, planted (as Psalm.1.3. and 92.13.) by the water side; as Isa. 32.20. & 55.1. of which care hath been taken, to set it in some rich and well watered soyl, Isa. 5.1,2. Ezek. 19.10.

and that spreadeth out her roots by the river] Where it may freely and constantly drink water; as the Prophet speaketh, Ezek. 31.4. See Job 8.17. and 29.19. Ezek. 31.4,5,7. Heb. sendeth sendeth out (as Psalm 80.11. Ezek.17.7. & 31.5.) his roots; as Job 8.17.

and shal not see when heat cometh] Or, and doth not see; that is, feel, suffer, or sustain any damage or annoyance by any parching or scorching fer, or sustain any damage or annoyance by any parching or scorching fer, or sustain any damage or annoyance by any parching or scorching heat, when such cometh at some time of the year, because it draweth moisture sufficient from the streams of the neighbouring river, that run round about its roots, Ezek.31.4. to see, for, to suffer; as ch.5.12. & 42.14. & 44.17.

but her leaf shall be green] Or, but (Heb. and; as v.6.) its leaf (Heb. his; as, his roots before) is (that is, continueth; as Dan.1.21.) green; neither falling, nor fading, Psal. 1.3. but retaining its verdure, notwithstanding any forching heat of the sun. So Job 8.17. he is green before the sun.

and shall not be careful in the year of drought;] Or, Nor taketh thought, or, needeth to take thought; as Mark 6.25. to think what may become of it (a figurative speech like that, Jonah 1.4. the ship thought to be drown'd, (see ch.15.18.) in the year of drought. Heb. of restraint; as ch. 14.1. when the showers are restrained, ch.3.3. and no rain cometh from above, 1 Kin.17.1.

neither shall cease from yielding fruit.] Or, nor ceaseth from yielding fruit. Heb. making fruit; as Gen.1.12. Esa.37.31. In the fore-going branch was an allusion to those trees that have their leaves continually green, such as are the palm, the olive, the myrtle, the laurel: Whereof see Theophraſt, l. 1. c. 15. Pliny, l.16.c.20,21. So Psal. 1.3. & 37.35. & 52.8. & 92.12. in this latter, to those that have fruit on them all the year long; such as are the orange, the lemon, the pine: Whereof see Theophraſt in his story of plants, l. 4. c.4. and in his causes, l.1.c.11. Pliny, l.12.c.3,l.16.c.24. So Psal.1.3. & 92.14. Ezek.27.12. Rev.22.2.

V. 9. The heart of man is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked; who can know it?] A lively and pregnant description of the great pravity, and deep corruption of mans heart, very hard and difficult to be discovered by others. That which some suppose here to have reference to those that withdraw their hearts from God, put their confidence in man, verſ.6. Others, to those whom such perſons rely upon, and are prone to deceive, sure to fail, those that rely on them, Prov.25.19. the former seems the right: whereof see more on the next verſe.

heart] For soul, or, mind; as most frequently, chap.4.4. & 5.24. verſ. 5.

deceitful] The word here used is a very pregnant term; and is diverſly rendred; by some, wily, fraudulent, prone (properly) to supplant, to circumvent and deceive. So it is said of Jehu, by a term hence deduced, 2 King.10.19. when he made a shew, as if he meant to serve Baal; he did it subtilly, or, in subtilty; to deceive and destroy the servants of that idol; and ch.9.3. every brother will supplant, or, deceive, will undermine, go beyond, circumvent his brother: word for word, trip up his heels; for thence had Jacob his name, Gen.25.26. & 27.36. Hos.12.3. Others, render it perverſe, full of pravity, to the old Latine: or crooked, and uneven; as the word is used of ways, Esay 40.5. Luk.3.5. that have many windings and turnings in them, and are hard therefore to find: and so is it with mans heart; full of windings and turnings, and nooks and corners, and wiles and slights, Esay 29.15,16. intending one thing, when it pretendeth another, and inwardly purposing the clean contrary unto that which by the tongue and outward carriage it pretendeth and promiseth, Psalm 41.6. and 55.13,14,20,21. in regard whereof some render the word here unsearchable; (as the old Latine doth the next word; and some of our ancienter Editions, this) and the ancient Greek, deep, according to that, Psalm 64.5,6. Esay 29.15. See Prov.25.3. 20,26. The Chaldee giveth it, hard; and one of our Editions stubborn: for which I see no ground, save that pravity and perverſneſs hath stubbernneſs commonly joyned with it. The first and second seem the best, because having some ground in the root and stock of the term, and the notion and use of either.

above all things] Heb. From all, that is, above ought. No creature so fly or wily, as is mans heart: No creature in wicked subtilty and dissembling can go beyond him. See Eccl. 7.26,29. from, for, before, or, above; a particle much so used in a comparative notion; as Prov.22.1. Eccl. 7.1. ch.5.3. and all, for, ought; as Job 1.11. chap. 32.23.

and desperately wicked] This word also (for it is but one in the text) is diverſly rendred; some render it, desperate; some, deadly. Others joyning both together, desperately bent unto, and set upon deadly miſchief: wholly given deceitfully to destroy, and to do miſchief, 2 Sam.20.9,10. Psalm 64.5. whereof see a pregnant proof in the demeanure of this people toward this our Prophet, chap.11.18,19. & 12.6. as also in some other towards Gedaliah, chap.40.14, 16. & 41.1,2. Of the word, see on Esa.17.11. ch.15.18. & 30.12,13 and hereafter, v.16. in which place, as also in this, some, instead of anuſh, by a miſtake of the vowel-points read enoſh, and render it a man: whereof more on the next clauſe. But here the words run desperate, or, deadly is it; the pronoun for the verb substantive: as Eccl.1.5.ch. 10.2,8.

who can know it?] Heb. who knoweth it? but the verb is taken potentially: as chap.2.23. So Job 22.13. how doth God know? for, how can God know? and, who seeth them, for, seeth us? Psal.64.5. & 73.9,15. Who sees us? or, who knoweth us? that is, who can see, or know, what we do? So close and unsearchable it is mans heart, so full of shifts and feteches, that no man can know what is in it but himself, 1 Cor.2.11. yea, so full of guile, that a man cannot fully know himself, Psal.19.12. that oft-times it even gulleth and beguileth a mans own self, Gal.6.3. Jam.1.22. The Greek here renders the text, joyning this and the former words together, and he is a man, and who knoweth him? and this divers Expositers apply unto Christ, and his human nature: but the ground of this miſtake we pointed to before, and shall again meet with the like, v.16.

V. 10. I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his ways, and according to his doings.] Because he had spoken before of withdrawing the heart from God, verſ. 5. and they, it may be, would pretend, as Esay 48.2. what the godly do sincerely profeſs, Psal. 44.17,18. that their heart was not turned away from God, and would not stick herein to bear down Gods Prophets to their faces, when they charged them with it, and reproved them for it, chap.2.23,35. God therefore here telleth them, that though they might delude men, and blind or bleer their eyes, by raising many such miſts of goodly pretences before them, that they could hardly, if at all, be able to discover what lay hid in their hearts; having so many flights and shifts to conceal and colour it withal; yet they could not beguile God, who had also a mind able to pierce and pry into every nook and corner of their souls, and thorow all those cloudy miſts, and colourable pretences, descry the inwardest motions, and secreteſt intentions of their hearts, and accordingly deal with them, as they justly deserved, 1 Sam. 16.7. 1 Chron. 28.9. 2 Chron. 6.30. Psalm 7.9. and 94.9,11. Prov.15.11. chap.11. 20. and 20.11. Acts 1.24. and 15.9. Hebr.4.12. Rev.2.23. Searching, and trying, or exploring: and so both the Greek and Latine render it, which may two ways be expreſſed; either, I the Lord am he that doth search and explore. So our Verſion; or, as in way of answer to the former queſtion, verſ.9. who knoweth it? I the Lord, who search and explore. I that can so do, or do so, know it: either of both may well stand; heart and reins; for the inwardeſt motions, intentions, devices, affections, dispositions, and desires of the soul, Psa. 16.7. & 26.2. & 51.6. & 139.23. chap.12.2. and in the places before pointed to.

to give to every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings] Weighing as well the inward dispoſition and affection of the heart, as the outward act and work of the hand, 1 Kin.15.14. 2 Kin. 14.3. 2 Chr.15.17. & 25.2. Psa.7.8,10. & 18.23,28. ch.3.10. Prov. 16.2. & 21.2.

even] Or, and that is verſ.4. to give unto every man according to his ways] So 1 King. 8. 32, 39. Psalm 62.12. Rom. 2.6. Rev.22.12. ways, that is, tenour, or course of life and carriage: as Psalm 1.6. & 119.1. Ezek. 7.3, 4, 27.

according to the fruit of his doings] That is, the reward either of mercy by promiſe, Psal. 62.12. Mat.5.12. or in strict justice due to them, Rom.2.7,10. & 3.23. So is the word fruit used, Prov.1.31. & 31.31. ch.21.14. & 32.19. Mic.7.13.

V. 11. As the partridge sitteth on egges, and hatcheth them not; so he that getteth riches, and not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days; and at his end shall be a fool.] This people, as they relied much upon forrain forces, an arm of flesh; which the Prophet met with, verſ. 5. so they truſted not a little to their wealth and treasure, and that much of it gotten by wicked courses, either fraud or oppreſsion, whereby they made account that they should be able to hire forraign forces enough for their defence, or by means thereof, otherwise, fruſt well enough for themselves. See Esay 28.15. & 30.6. and this the Prophet seems here to meet with, telling them, that this their wealth so gotten, wherein they put so much confidence, Psalm 49.6. and 52.7. Prov.18.11. Eccl. 7.12. shall not avail them, nor be able to protect and secure them, Esay 28.17,18. for they shall be ſtript of it, or have it taken from them sooner than they expect, Prov.23.5. Luk.12.15. and shall at length prove fools, Luk.12.20. as finding themselves to have laboured for the wind, Psal.39.6. Eccl. 1.3,16. and this he illuſtrateth, by the similitude of a fowl, that ſitteth upon ſtrange eggs, which being hatched, leave her; or having laid eggs, hath them broken by one means or other, so that she never cometh to hatch them.

As] Both the notes of ſimilitude, as, and so, are here wanting; as also, Prov. 26.7,9, 14, 21. and 27.17,21. save that there the latter is supplyed by the copulative, but is wholly wanting, Proverbs 26.11.

the partridge,] Heb. kore; and so is this fowl also called, 1 Sam. 26.20. the word importeth a caller, or, a cryer, Esay 40.3. which name might seem to be given her, from her manner, as some write, of calling her young after her, when having deluded the Fowler, by her ſlights, she hath drawn her self away from the place of her neſt. See Ælian, l.3.c.16. But one of the Jewiſh Maſters, in his Annotations on this place, telleth us, that this kore is that which the French (for in those parts he lived) call a cuckow: and that indeed is a more clamorous fowl than any other To commonly and ordinarily is: but the hunting of this kore on the mountains, 1 Sam. 26.20. seems to agree better to the partridge, than to the cuckow, which few, I suppoſe, in that manner follow: the ancient Greek reſpecting the notation of the word, rendreth it, as if they had read it doubled, the partridge cryeth.

ſitteth on eggs, and hatcheth them not] Or, as ſome, gathereth eggs together, but (Heb. and; as verſ. 6.) hatcheth them not: gathereth together; as, ſay they, the word ſignifies, Eſa.34.15. and in the Talmudiſts Writings, ſeemeth ſometime to be taken: and, gathereth them together; to ſit on, and to hatch, but hatcheth them not; her eggs either proving windy and addle, as oft it falleth out, with thoſe eſpecially that have been produced without the company of the male, which with the partridge is ſaid to be frequent. See Ariſtotle, l.5.c. 5. & l.6.c.2. Pliny, l.10. c. 32. & 58. or otherwiſe miſcarrying, either by means of thoſe that take them away, Deut. 22.6. Eſa.10.14. or of beaſts that trample caſually upon them, Job 39. 15. or of her own mate, the male; that which is of the partridge reported, that the female uſeth not to ſit on her eggs where ſhe layeth them, but to remove them from place to place, where the male may not find them, becauſe being a very luſtful bird, he will be diſturbing, and breaking of them, that he may have the company of the dam: Of which, ſee Ariſtotle, l.9.c. 8. & Pliny, l.10. c. 32. but the word here rendred hatcheth, is, in the Hebrew, bringeth forth, uſed commonly of birth, and that not in woman-kind onely, but in the female of other creatures, chap.14.5. Job 39.1,3. and they confeſs it therefore thus taken, as they would have it, to be a catachreſtical, or a far-fetched metaphorical kind of ſpeech. The moſt therefore render it, ſome, gather together; (of which before) others, ſitteth on eggs, which ſhe hath not brought forth: and the former verb, indeed, ſignifies, to ſit upon, or, to brood; either eggs to hatch them, as the Chaldee uſeth it, Job 39. 14. and the Talmudiſts very frequently; or young ones already hatched; as Eſay 34.15. for of the proper ſignification of the latter, there can be no queſtion; and that the copulative coming between them, is frequently put for the relative, appeareth by Eſay 3.6. & 5. 4. & 44.7,14. chap.4.16. & 14.18. compared with, chap.17.4. in all which places, and many more it is found ſo uſed. Now thoſe that go this way, ſome expound it of the male partridges ſitting on the young, which not he, but the female brought forth: and to this purpoſe, Ariſtotle indeed reporteth of them, l.6. c.8. that having divided their eggs into ſeveral neſts, they ſit on them apart. But neither doth this (were it granted to be ſo) any way well ſuit with the drift of the text, or that whereunto it is here applyed: for as for the maſculine form here uſed, ſee on chap. 2. 23, 24. Others therefore rejecting this, ſay, ſome, that the partridge having loſt her own young, getteth ſome other partridges eggs, and ſitteth upon them, which when they are hatched, hearing their own dams note, and by a natural kind of inſtinct diſcerning it, run away from this their nurſe, and go after her. So Ambroſe, in his ſix days work, l.6.c.3. and Jerome, referring us to Ariſtotle, Pliny, and others; in whom yet I find it not. Others, that the kore here mentioned, is a bird that gets together the eggs of Fowls, and is wont to ſit on them as her own, until they be hatched, which then leave her, and keep with thoſe of their own kind. So the Rabbines, ſome of them, and ſome other obſcure Writers, ſay of the partridge; which if it can be made good, will very well ſuit, both with the terms, and drift of the text: And ſome ſuch thing certainly, either as this, or the firſt, to me ſeems undoubtedly here to be intimated: For as for the cuckow, whom ſome Jewiſh Doctors would have to be this Kore, ſhe is ſo far from filching, and ſitting on the eggs of other birds, that ſhe uſually layeth her own in the neſts of others, to be ſitten upon, and hatch'd by them. So Ariſtotle, l.6.c.7. & l.9.c.29. Pliny, lib. 10. cap. 9.

he that getteth riches, and not by right] Heb. making, or, he that maketh (as ſearching, verſ.10.) riches, (as, to make wealth, for, to get it, Deut. 8. 18.) and, or, and that, (as verſ. 4, 10. for there is no certainty even of goods lawfully gotten, Pſal. 62. 10. Prov. 23. 5. 1 Tim.6.17. and much leſs of thoſe that are by unlawful courſes compaſſed, Prov.21.6.) not by judgment, that is, either without diſcretion and due conſideration; as the word is uſed, Pſal.112.5. without any regard of right or wrong, as it is with thoſe that ſet this down with themſelves, that they will be rich, by what means ſoever it be, 1 Tim.6.10. or not by right (for ſo alſo is the word uſed, Ezek.18.5, 19,21.) that is, by unjuſt and injurious courſes, wrongfully, as it is rendred, Ezek.22.29.

ſhall leave them] Either having them taken from him, Eſay 8.4. & 10.13,14. Eccl.5.14. verſ.3. Matt.6.19. or being taken away from them, Pſalm 49. 10, 12, 17. & 52. 5, 7. Eccleſ. 5. 15, 16. Luke 12. 20.

in the midſt of his days] Coming to ſome untimely end, and not lengthening his life above half that time, which in courſe of nature he might have attained unto. See Job 15. 31, 33. & 22.16. Pſal.55. 23. & 102.24.

at his end ſhall be a fool.] Heb. at, or, in (wanting as ch.5.7. & 11. 23.) his laſt (as Num.23.10. ch.12.4.) he ſhall be a nabal, or, a fool, 1 Sam.25.25,26. he ſhall appear ſo to be, Pſal.49.13. Luk.12.20. See the like, Joh.15.8.

V. 12. A glorious high Throne from the beginning is the place of our Sanctuary.] In theſe words themſelves, there is no great difficulty; but about the connexion or coherence of this paſſage with the reſt of the context, there is among Interpreters much diſſention. A learned late Writer deemeth, that this is here noted, as the fourth vain confidence, that this people were wont to truſt unto: the firſt whereof was their ſtrength, verſ. 3. the ſecond, their forrein forces, ver.5. the third, their humane policy, ver.9. the fourth here, the Temple, which they relied upon as a fortreſs impregnable, chap.7.4. Zeph.3.11. So ſhould theſe words be rather a ſpeech of the people, than of the Prophet; that which to me ſeemeth very improbable, finding in the text nothing that ſhould ſo make or hold it out; nor any other that herein accordeth with him. Howſoever, ſome think that the Prophet, whoſe own words they make them, might have ſome privy nip at that their vain preſumption. Among the Jewiſh Doctors, ſome conceive it to have reference to what was before ſaid, concerning truſt in humane helps, verſ. 5. as if it were ſaid, Let them truſt in man, we will truſt in him whoſe throne is aloft in heaven, and his Sanctuary here on earth, as Pſal. 20. 7. but there is too far a diſtance between theſe two, than to be brought thus together, and to be made cohere the one with the other. Others of them would have it referred to Gods ſight and exploration of the heart and reins, verſ. 10. which might appear, as well by his looking down from his palace in heaven, Pſalm 11.4. & 33.14,15. & 113. 5,6. as by his ſitting on his throne, to wit, his Ark, in his Temple ſituate here upon earth, Pſal. 80. 1. and that in the very midſt of all the earth, Pſal.74.12. for the earth, ſay they, ſtands in the middle of the whole world, and the land of Judah in the middle of the earth, and Jeruſalem in the middle of Judea, and the Temple in the middle of Jeruſalem, and the Ark in the middle of the Temple: but not to ſtand upon examination of the exactneſs of theſe vain niceties; this coherence ſeemeth to be no leſs far-fetched than the former. Others of them would have it depend upon the laſt branch of the foregoing verſe, he ſhall in his latter end be, or be found a fool, being caſt out of that glorious high Throne, the place of the Sanctuary: from which, by means of ſuch injurious carriages, he ſhall come to be ſecluded. But this ſeems yet more forced, than either of thoſe before mentioned. Others of them refer it to that which followeth, as if it were ſaid, O thou whoſe glorious high throne, the place of our Sanctuary is, Jehovah, the hope of Iſrael. And this ſeems moſt probable of any that I find by any produced. Onely ſome of our beſt & ſoundeſt Interpreters, reading it without ſuch preciſe connexion, (which ſome alſo of thoſe Jewiſh that go this way, regard not, nor is indeed ſo needful) as an entire ſentence of it ſelf, as our Verſion yields it, do add, That this is by the Prophet prefixed before his enſuing ſpeech directed unto God; partly, to ſhew the ſingular favour of God unto his people, who had ſetled the place of his ſpecial reſidence, as in his palace, among them: and thus pointing to him, whom thus dwelling among them, they ought to have truſted unto, Pſal.68.28,29. and partly; alſo, to tax the ingratitude and folly of them, who notwithſtanding that hereby he had manifeſted to them his forwardneſs to protect and ſecure them, would leave him, and ſeek after others for protection and ſafeguard, which were not able to afford it, that which is intimated in the latter part of verſe 13. See Ezek.7.20. The words ſome read as our Verſion exhibiteth, taking throne, and ſanctuary, for one and the ſame. See chap. 3. 17. & 14. 21. Others diſtinguiſh them, and make heaven the one, Pſalm 11. 4. Eſay 66. 1. the Temple the other, Exod.15.17. 2 Chr. 20. 8. and they render the words, with a note of ſimilitude prefixed; As the glorious and high throne (to wit, in heaven) is the place of our Sanctuary. But the former is the plainer, and ſeemeth the righter.

A glorious and high throne] Heb. A throne of glory (as Eſay 22.23.) high, or, of heighth; which ſome render with repetition, a throne of heighth. Others, of the high one, that is, of God: and the word being as well of an adjective, as of a ſubſtantive notion, will admit either: but the latter is the rather here to be refuſed; nor need the other to be received: but that of our verſion retained inſtead of either, becauſe of that parallel place, Eſa. 6. 1. a throne high and lifted up; where the former term coming from the ſame root with this here, is adjective onely.

from the beginning] Heb. from the firſt; from the firſt foundation of it: and this the pauſes or points in the original, joyn unto the word, high: in regard whereof, the text would thus be rendred, A glorious throne, (for there is a ſtop) high (or lofty) from the beginning; in regard of Gods preſence and reſidence in it, 1 King. 8.12,13,27. & 9. 3. For frivolous and ridiculous is that figment of the Rabbines, who to that purpoſe abuſing that place, Exod.15.17. and this, reckon the place of the Temple among thoſe ſeven things, which God, ſay they, made before the creation of the world. But a late learned Writer conceiveth, that this clauſe may be rendred, an heighth, or celſitude, far above the chief; that is, far in heighth and loftineſs, ſurpaſſing any earthly or worldly heighth and dignity; and ſuch uſe, indeed, of the particle, in compariſons, is frequent: as Gen.3.1. chap.17.9. See verſ. 16. and of the heighth of Gods houſe, ſee on Eſay.2.2. But this I leave to the judgment of others. Only I ſuppoſe it hard to find, where the word, firſt, is, in Hebrew, found for chief; that Eſa.41.27. is queſtionable.

V. 13. O Lord, the hope of Iſrael,] Or, expectation: See ch.14.8.

all that forſake thee ſhall be aſhamed] Or, confounded; as it is rendred, Pſal.97.7. verſ.18. or, abaſhed; as word for word it ſoundeth: ſee on chap.8.9. as in way of prediction, or denunciation, telling what the end of ſuch will be; as v.11. So Pſal.73.27. Iſa.1.28. Howbeit, ſome take it as ſpoken in way of ſupplication and prayer, rendring the words, Let them be confounded, or, abaſhed, as Pſa.35.4,26. & 40.14. and ſo in the latter part of the next branch, Let them be written; as Pſal.69,28. but that which our Verſion yieldeth, ſeems herein the better.

and they that depart from thee] The words, from thee, are not in the original; and there is a four-fold reading of the Hebrew text: for ſome read it weſure, which our Verſion followeth, ſuppoſing the form contracted to be put for the entire; as chap. 22. 14. and the words, from thee, to be ſupplyed from verſ. 5. the term is ſo found, Eſay 49. 21. Some, waſurn, that ſhall depart: a defect of the relative; as chap. 14. 18. Others, weſuray, that depart from me; that is, from the doctrine by me delivered to them: from me; as Joſh.1.7. depart, or, turn not aſide from him; that is, ſay they, from Moſes: Heb. that depart me, for, that depart from me: the prepoſition, ſwallowed up between the verb and the pronoun affixed to it; as, that riſe me, for, that riſe againſt me, Lam.3.62. and, which cometh in form neer to this, that contend me, for, contend with me, Pſal.35.1. chap.18.19. Others laſtly, yeſuray; my caſtigations: whereof more anon; for the former three will in effect come to one; but the firſt of them is moſt received.

ſhall be written in the earth] Such as ſo do, ſhall not be written in heaven; as Luk. 16. 20. where the book of life eternal is under ſafe cuſtody kept, Rev.13.8. & 20.12,15. but here on earth; as Matth. 6. 19. where their hopes and happineſs wholly conſiſteth, Pſal. 17. 14. grounded upon ſuch fickle and uncertain things like themſelves, verſ. 11. Prov. 23. 5. Mat. 6. 19,21. 1 Tim.6.17. or, as ſome of the Rabbines, they ſhall be written in the earth; that is, they ſhall be laid in the duſt. Pſalm 7. 5. die like bruit beaſts, be laid in the grave, and there go to duſt, Pſalm 49.12,14. Eccl. 3. 20. or laſtly, it may well be a proverbial ſpeech, ſhall be written on the earth; they ſhall not be written in braſs, or marble, in ſome durable matter for long continuance: as Job 19.24. on which therefore men uſe to engrave their names, and memorials, to be tranſmitted to poſterity; but as ſuch things, as being of little regard, are written, or drawn upon the ground, or on the earth, or in the duſt; (earth, for, duſt; becauſe duſt is but earth with dryneſs diſſolved, and earth ſo diſſolved falleth into duſt, Gen.2.7. & 3.19. Pſal.22.15. Eccl.12.7.) and things written in the duſt, are with every puff of wind blown away, diſſipated, and done out: to write in duſt, a proverbial form, with the Hebrews; as to write ought in the wind, or, in running water, with the Greeks and Latines: and this laſt ſeemeth moſt likely; they ſhall be of no continuance, ſee verſ.11. Howbeit, a learned late Writer, following the laſt of the readings before-mentioned, and conceiving the word here rendred, depart, to riſe from another root, that ſignifies, to chaſtiſe, or, to inſtruct, whereof ſee on chap. 6. 8. and the word therefore to import caſtigation, and inſtruction; as he deemeth one not unlike it to do, Job 39.35. thus renders the words, Let my caſtigations, or, reproofs, be written in the earth; that is, Let my Sermons, and reproofs, whereby I have laboriouſly, from time to time, endeavoured to reclaim this revolted people, be entred here on earth in thy preſence, to remain, as upon record, in ſome book or monument, for my juſtification, and their conviction. See the like, Deut.31.19,21. Job 19. 23, 24. & 31. 35,36. Eſa.30.8. But herein, for ought I find, he goeth alone, few ſure, if any, following him: nor ſeems this notion of the word to have place here: beſide that the word, in Job, referred unto, is very queſtionable, whether it be a noun, or a verb.

becauſe they have forſaken the Lord, the fountain of living waters] Living water, for, ſpring-water, Gen.26.19. not rain-water that comes by times, either certain, or uncertain, with intervals and intermiſſions, and that ſometime very long ones, 1 King.17.1. chap. 3. 3. and 14.1. verſ. 8. or pond-water, that may ſoon be drained or dryed up, Eſay 19.6,8. or land-flouds, that ſwell up and run ſwiftly in winter, but fall again, and fail, when moſt need is of them, in heat of ſummer; and ſuch are all humane helps and ſtays, creature-comforts and contentments, Job 6.15,21. but ſpring-water, and ſuch a fountain therefore, as runneth inceſſantly, and never faileth, for the ſupport, refreſhing, and affording a competent ſupply of all neceſſary good unto all thoſe that be his, and continue faithful to him, Pſal.36.8,9. & 84.11. See ch.2.13.

V. 14. Heal me, O Lord, and I ſhall be healed; ſave me, and I ſhall be ſaved:] The Prophet here again reneweth his ſuit unto God for himſelf; for conſolation and confirmation, preſervation and protection, amidſt thoſe manifold difficulties, dangers and diſtreſſes, that he was expoſed unto, and aſſaulted with, for the faithful diſcharge of his duty in the work of his miniſtery, verſ. 14, 17, 18. which he had not taken up of himſelf, but had entred upon at his command, v.16. complaining of his peoples contempt of it, and ſcoffing at it, verſ.15. and requiring to be righted on them for their wicked demeanure towards him, verſ. 18.

Heal me, O Lord, and I ſhall be healed; ſave me, and I ſhall be ſaved:] heal me; by freeing me from that affliction and grief of heart and mind, that I continually ſuſtain at the hands of this malitious people. See chap.15.16. which place illuſtrateth this: and ſave me, or preſerve and deliver me, from the pits that they dig, and ſnares that they ſet for me, from thoſe plots and projects, whereby they ſeek to take my life away from me. See chap.11.19,21. Some read the words, If thou Lord heal me, I ſhall be healed; If thou ſave me, I ſhall be ſaved: as they alſo read that, Pſal.51. 7. as if he ſhould ſay, thoſe means of relief and ſafety that others leaving thee rely upon, v.5,11, 13. cannot anſwer their expectation; but thou Lord art able to afford what they cannot: they are ſure to do well, whom thou undertakeſt the cure of; to be ſafe, whom thou undertakeſt the charge of, Matth. 8. 2, 8. Luke 5. 12,28. A good notion, and a ſound conſequence; but an harſh conſtruction. Thoſe that expound it of ſpiritual health and preſervation, from being infected with the corruptions of the times, John 17.15. as ſome alſo do that, chap. 11. 17. and of eternal ſalvation, which he ſhould pray to be preſerved unto, 2 Tim.4.18. ſeem to have ſtrayed from the genuine ſenſe of the text.

for thou art my praiſe.] Praiſe; for the ſubject matter, or the object of praiſe; or the perſon praiſed, Eſay 60.18. & 62. 7. Chap.51. 41. as, truſt, for, the object of truſt, the thing truſted in, and relyed upon. verſ. 5. thou art he, whom I praiſe inceſſantly for the favours that thou art pleaſed to afford unto me, aſcribing them to thee alone, Pſal.40.3. & 65.1. or, praiſe, for the ground and procuring cauſe of praiſe: thou alone art he that doſt miniſter occaſions of praiſe and thankſgiving to me, by thy mercies, for which I depend upon thee alone, and no other, Exo.15.2. Pſa.22.2. & 44.8. & 109.1. Howbeit, it may well be rendred, which ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters alſo ſuggeſt, in the future: thou ſhalt be my praiſe; thou ſhalt give me abundant cauſe and matter of praiſing thee for thy mercy, when thou ſhalt have delivered me out of their hands, Pſa.18. title, v.1.2. & 32.7. & 37.1,2. Eſay 25.1. & 38.19,20.

V. 15. Behold they ſay unto me, Where is the Word of the Lord? let it come now.] Heb. they are ſaying; it is their common ſpeech to me in way of deriſion, chap.20.7. to ask, where is the word of the Lord? as, where is the promiſe of his coming? 2 Pet.3.4. ſo, where is the deſtruction that you have ſo long threatned us with, as from God? why doth it not come? we would fain ſee it once, Eſa.5.19. Amos 5.18. the pronoun demonſtrative for the verb ſubſtantive; as cha.10.15. & 14.15. & 32.36,43.

V. 16. I have not haſtened from being a Paſtor before thee; neither have I deſired the woful day.] Becauſe the people and falſe Prophets would not ſtick to tell the Prophet, that he complained much of evil uſage, of deriſion and vexation, but he might thank himſelf for it; he had pulled it unadviſedly upon himſelf, by thruſting himſelf upon ſuch an employment, and taking upon him to be a Prophet, out of either a mad or ambitious humour, chap. 29. 26, 27. and telling them tales of his own forging, which he never had from God, cha. 5. 13. the Prophet therefore appealeth unto God, who could bear witneſs for him, that as he had not preſſed him to be diſcharged of this ſo troubleſome and thankleſs an employment, ſince that it ſtood not with his duty to God ſo to do; ſo he had not ſought or deſired to be put at firſt thereupon; as well knowing, and then foreſeeing, when God at firſt called him thereunto, how troubleſom an employment it was like in all probability to prove, as alſo that he was able to teſtifie for him, with what faithfulneſs and integrity he had carried himſelf in the diſcharge of his duty therein.

I have not haſtened from being a Paſtor] The word indeed here uſed, ſignifieth commonly to haſten, or run head-long; as Joſh.10.13. Prov.19.2. & 21. 8. & 28.10. & 29. 19. and hence divers Interpreters render it, I haſtned not to be a Paſtor; that is, a Prophet; for he was, as a Prieſt, a Paſtor before, chap.1.1. but this is directly contrary to the terms of the text; which are expreſly, not, to be a Paſtor, but, from being a Paſtor: which is rather as much as not to be a Paſtor: as, from being a King, for to be no more a King, 1 Sam. 15. 22. from being a Prieſt, for, to be no longer a Prieſt, Hoſ.4. 6. from being an harlot, for, to play the harlot no more, or, to ceaſe from playing the harlot, Ezek.16.41. and ſome other therefore render the word; I haſtened not from being a Paſtor; that is, an ordinary Prieſt, as before I was, to become an extraordinary Prophet: from a Paſtor, for, from being a Paſtor: a defect of the verb ſubſtantive; as 1 Sam.15.22. before alledged: and, from a city, for, from being a city, Eſa.17.1. and, from a nation, for, from being a nation, chap.48.2. But this will hardly here hold; for Jeremy ceaſed not then to be a Paſtor, when he was to be a Prophet, any more than when he was a Prieſt before. Others therefore again go another way to work: and becauſe the particle here uſed, is of frequent uſe, not in way of deprivation onely, but in way of compariſon, as Gen.19.9. we will do evil unto thee from them, or, in compariſon of them: the Latines, præ illis; that is, we will do worſe unto thee than to them: and ſo alſo, A name (that is, a good name, a good note, a good repute, a good report) is good (præ) above, or, in compariſon of a good (that is, a ſweet, or pretious) oil, or oyntment; that is, the one is better than the other: and the like, Prov. 22. 1. as alſo Eſa.54.1. the children of the deſolate are many in compariſon of the children of the married; that is, the one are in number more than the other; hence therefore they thus render the text; I preſſed not more than a Paſtor; I preſſed not upon this prophetical office more than was meet for a Paſtor, that is, a teacher, to do, ſuch as I was already, being a Prieſt, chap. 1. 6. But this ſeems ſomewhat forced; and hath found therefore few favourites. Howbeit, from it an hint may be taken of that, which with ſome others, I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe of the place: the word here uſed ſignifies, not to haſten onely, but to preſs, and to urge: as Gen. 19. 15. they preſſed upon the Angels: and, the Task-maſters urged, or, preſſed them, Exo.5.13. the word then may well be rendred; I have not urged, or, preſſed, from being a Paſtor; not to be a Paſtor: that which ſome apply to the time of the Prophets firſt calling; when howſoever at firſt he excuſed himſelf in regard of his want of years, ch.1.6. yet he neither ſought by flight to avoid, as Jonas did, Jon. 1.3. nor refuſed to undertake the employment, when God further preſſed it on him. But I ſuppoſe it rather to be ſpoken by him of his carriage after his entrance upon it; that albeit, he had found it to be a very troubleſome, and difficult work, through the malice and obſtinacy of thoſe, whom he was ſent unto: yet he had not been earneſt with God in ſoliciting and preſſing him, to diſcharge him of that ſervice. For as for that which the ancient Greek exhibiteth, I have not been weary following thee: and the old Latine, I have not been troubled following thee my Shepherd: the one leaveth out ſomewhat that is in the text; the other putteth in that which is not in the text: the words of the text will by no means admit either.

I have not] Or, as ſome render it, As for me, I have not urged, or, preſſed; the nominative put abſolutely; as 1 Chr. 28. 2. I, (that is, As for me) it was in my heart; and, I, (or, as for me) this ſhall be my covenant with them, Eſay 59.21. as oppoſed to their mockery, ver. 15. which yet had not ſo far prevailed with him, as to move God for a diſcharge of his prophetical miniſtery, though it went much to the heart with him.

after thee] That is, as ſome render it, walking after thee; or, following thee, ſimply: either in obedience to thee, or to do thee ſervice: as 1 Sam. 11.17. 1 king. 2.25. yet a defect of ſome verb, as 1 Sam. 7.2.

neither have I deſired the wofull day,] Or, neither did I deſire the dolefull, or, (as ſome) the deadly day. See of the word, chap. 15.18. as I do not now preſs thee to be rid of mine office: howſoever I ſolicite thee for right againſt thoſe that thus wrong me: ſo I did not at firſt deſire, much leſs ſeek or ſue for the employment, offer my ſelf to it, or put my ſelfe upon it; but excuſed my ſelfe rather, as not ſo fit for it, Chap. 1. 6. as forecaſting what oppoſition and affliction I muſt look to ſuſtain from thoſe that I was to be ſent unto, with ſuch diſtaſtful and unpleaſing meſſages, Chap. 1.15,19. Howbeit, ſome underſtand by deadly, or, doleful, day, the denunciation of ſuch ſad and ſore evils, as he was enjoyned by God to denounce: but this ſeems ſomewhat too far fetched. More probable is that of ſome others, who by the doleful day, underſtand the execution of thoſe judgements which from God he had denounced; for they ſuppoſe, that he alludeth unto the carriage of Jonas, who at firſt fled out of the way, that he might not go on Gods errand to denounce deſtruction againſt Nineveh; and yet was afterward vexed, becauſe the judgement denounced was not put in execution, Jon. 1.3. and 4.1. whereas Jeremy had neither withdrawn himſelfe from the one, nor deſired the other. See chap. 15.16. & 18. 10. Some read and render it, the day of man. So the ancient Greek and old Latine. Which ſome expound one way, and ſome another. Some, of ſome ſuch things as worldly men ſeeke after, in undertaking offices, honour or gaine: others, of mens cenſures of him, which he regarded not with the Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 4.3. but of this miſtake, ſee on ver. 9.

thou knoweſt,] Or, thou knoweſt it; a defect of the pronoun, as Pſal. 40.9. this may be referred, as the moſt, to the words before-going, concerning his manner of entrance into his prophetical employment; or, as others, to that which followeth, concerning his carriage in the exerciſe and execution of it; as I conceive, to both. See his like appeal to God, chap. 12.3. & 15.15. and the Apoſtle Pauls in the like caſe, 2 Cor. 1.12.

that which came out of my lips was right before thee] Heb. the outgoing, or, the thing gone out of my lips (as Num. 30. 13. Deut. 23. 24.) hath been before thy face; or, ſimply, before thee; as Ezek. 14. 3, 6. Lam. 2.19. ſuch as hath been well known to thee, and ſuch therefore as thou art able to atteſt: or, as ſome render it, which cometh home to our Engliſh, according to the rightneſs of thy face; that is, ſincere and upright, ſuch as I needed not to fear the laying of it open to thy ſight; but it may as well be rendred to the ſame effect without any ſuch ſupply, or circumlocution, was before thy face, or, before thee: as, to walk before God, is to walk ſincerely and uprightly, Gen. 17.1. Eſay 57.2. I have delivered nothing to them, but thy truth, and that with a ſincere heart; thou who ſearcheſt the heart, and trieſt the reins, ver. 10. knoweſt it. So chap. 15.15. to ſomewhat the like purpoſe, ſome render it, was before thy face; that is, came from thy face, or, from thee; as Pſal. 17.3. let my judgement proceed, or, come forth from thy face, or, from before thee: but there is that there, that is not here; and this ſeems to be of larger extent: Some alſo reſtrain it, to his former profeſſion, as they take it, that he had not deſired, either to be an inſtrument of denouncing the ruine of that State, or to have what he had denounced, to be accordingly accompliſhed, for fear of being deemed a falſe Prophet, Jonas had done, Jon. 4.1. that which God was able to teſtifie for him, whom he had at ſundry times earneſtly ſolicited for the revoking of that heavy doom, chap. 10.24,25. & 4.7,9,19,20. See chap. 18.19. But this ſeems narrower than the Prophets intent; nor to be the genuine ſenſe of the foregoing branch.

V. 17. Be not a terrour unto me; thou art my hope in the day of evil.] Having appealed to God as a witneſs of his integrity and uprightneſs, ver. 16. he now ſueth to him, and ſoliciteth him, to be his patron and protector, whom he had made choice of, to repair unto him in times of diſtreſs.

Be not a terrour unto me;] Heb. for a terror; as chap. 48.39. or, as ſome of the Rabbines render it, unto contrition, or, deſtruction: and ſo the word is uſed, Pſal. 89 40. Prov. 10.14,29. & 13.3. Howſoever wicked men deal rigorouſly with me, yet do not thou in thine indignation handle me roughly, or deſtroy me, as Pſal. 6.1. Chap. 10. 24. or do not cauſe or ſuffer me to live in fear and terrour, expoſed to their might and malice, for want of relief and ſupport. See Chap. 15.15. and for the manner of ſpeech, Eſay 63.17. Yet ſome others, Be not thou a fear to me; and then I fear not ought that they can do to me: as Pſal. 27.1. but this ſeems not ſo freely or fairly to flow from the text.

thou art my hope in the day of evil] Or, be thou my hope, or, refuge, (as the word is well rendred, Pſal. 46.1. & 104. 18.) or, adjoyning it to the former, be not, thou my refuge, (or, who art my refuge) for a terrour, unto me: hope, or, refuge, for the party hoped in, or the place repaired unto, for relief, ſuccour and ſafety, Eſay 4.6. See Pſal. 31.1,3. & 142.5. and 143.9.

in the day of evil] That is, of affliction, Chap. 16.19. So Pſal. 49. 5.

V. 18. Let them be confounded that perſecute me; but let me not be confounded: let them be diſmayed; but let not me be diſmayed:] Or, Let my perſecutors be abaſhed; but (Heb. and; as ver. 6. and ſo in the next) let not me be abaſhed; (ſee ver. 13.) let them be diſmayed, or, deſtroyed, Heb. terrified, or, affrighted;) as Deut. 1.21. Joſh. 1.9. or, broken to pieces, as 2 Sam. 22.35. Pſal. 18.34.) but (Heb. and; as before) let not me be affrighted, or, broken to pieces. So Pſal. 25. 2, 3. & 35.4. & 40.14.

bring upon them the day of evil] As, the time of evil, Eccl. 9.12. of affliction, miſery, or deſtruction. So ver. 17.

and deſtroy them with double deſtruction.] Heb. break them with a double breach; that is, with breach upon breach; or, deſtruction upon deſtruction; as Chap. 4.20. or, with full, abundant, utter, deſtruction. So is double commonly taken in Scripture, chap. 16. 18. Rev. 18. 6. Of theſe and the like prayers or imprecations, ſee chap. 11.20.

V. 19. Thus ſaith the Lord unto me;] This ſeems to be the ſum of a new Sermon diverſe from that foregoing; to which the rather he prefixeth Gods particular charge, for the publiſhing of it, in regard of the place where he was enjoyned to publiſh it, and of the perſons therein principally concerned. So Chap. 7.2.

Go and ſtand in the gate of the children of the people, whereby the Kings of Judah come in, and by which they go out; and in all the gates of Jeruſalem.] Go and ſtand. Heb. Going (that is, going go, be ſure to go; as Judg. 4.9. a defect of the verb finite; or, going, ſimply, for, go; the infinitive for the imperative. See chap. 2.2. & 13.1.) and ſtand. Heb. and thou ſhalt ſtand: as, thou ſhalt publiſh, chap. 2.2. and, thou ſhalt ſay, chap. 34.2.

in the gate of the children of the people, whereby the Kings of Judah come in, and by the which they go out,] That the uſuall manner of Prophets was to publiſh their Prophecies in the gates, either of the Temple, or of the city; becauſe the greateſt concourſe of people was moſt commonly there, is apparent. See chap. 7.2. & 19.2. & 26.10. as alſo that ſome one gate among the reſt is here deſigned, doth as plainly appear; but what gate that was, is not ſo certain. Some would have it to be the ſheep-gate; whereof, Neh. 3.1,32. & 12. 39. called, ſay they, here, the gate of the children of the people; as Cant. 7. 4. the gate daughter of many; or the gate moſt frequented: becauſe the greateſt confluence of people, by reaſon of the great ſheep-market there kept, was thither: but neither doth it appear that the gate in the Canticles mentioned, is the ſheep-gate, nor that it was any gate of more frequency than any other. Many take the word rather for the proper name of a place called Bath-rabbim. Nor againe is the gate here deſigned, called the gate of the children of the people; becauſe either the moſt of them went out and in that way; or becauſe it was uſually more frequented than any other: for, the term is no other than what agreeth unto any other gate of the city, that people ordinarily went in and out by: the children of the people, being no other than the people themſelves; as the Greeks uſe to ſay, the children of the Phyſitians, for, the Phyſitians themſelves: and the children of the Achaians, for, the Achaians themſelves. See Chap. 5.7. So, the children of thy people, for, thy people, ſimply, and generally, whether young or old, parents or children, Ezek. 3. 11. & 33.2, 12,17, 30. & 37.18. the particular deſignation of it is from the words following. Whence ſome other conceive it to be the water-gate; whereof, Neh. 3.26. & 8.3,16. 2 Chron. 29.3,4. & 32.6. by which places it appeareth, that it was ſituate on the Eaſt-ſide of the city, and that the ſtreet it opened upon, was one of the eminenteſt, and of greateſt receit in the city, deemed to be that of Millo, which lay between the Temple and the Palace, by which the king and his Courtiers therefore did uſually paſſe to and fro.

the gate of the children of the people] Not the court-gate, but one of the city-gates, one of thoſe neareſt the Palace, by which the people of the land, as well as the King and his followers, had ordinary paſſage, ver. 2.

the Kings of Judah] Either ſucceſſively in their ſeverall times and reigns; or, as the Rabbine here, the kings children that were to reign after him, 2 king. 3. 27. or the Princes rather and Rulers that frequented the Kings court; as Chap. 19. 3. & 20.5.

and in all the gates of Jeruſalem.] In that firſt, of moſt eminency, or moſt made uſe of, neer the court; becauſe thoſe of the court were therein principally concerned: then in the reſt of the gates round about the city, that all might take notice of it, the gates of the city, being the places whereunto for civil affairs of ſeveral kinds, the people uſed to reſort, Ruth 4.1, 2. 2 Sam. 19. 8. Chap. 38.7.

V. 20.

V. 20. Hear ye the word of the Lord, ye Kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, that enter in by theſe gates.] As chap. 7.2. & 22.2. but here more ſpecially the Kings and Rulers: as ver. 19. in the firſt place; becauſe they ſtood bound, not only to obſerve the Sabbath themſelves, but to cauſe it to be kept by others: ſo the tenour of the commandment runneth, Exod. 20.8, 10. See Neh. 13.16,18. then all Judah; that is, the Inhabitants, who were wont from all parts to repair unto Jeruſalem, as a principall market, and the head city, both for Judicature, and for Gods ſolemn ſervice, Pſal. 122.4,5. See ver. 25,26.

V. 21. Thus ſaith the Lord] As ver. 5.

Take heed to your ſelves,] Heb. to your ſoul's; as, to your ſelves, Deut. 4.15. Joſh. 23.11. implying the importance and weight of the duty required of them: a matter that no leſſe than their lives lay upon, and that concerned the eternal welfare of their ſouls, Deut. 32. 47. See Exod. 31. 14, 15. Num. 15.32,35. for that of the learned Scholiaſt, who renders it, Take heed in your ſouls, or, in your hearts; that is, take diligent heed; ſeemeth over-harſh, and ſuiteth not ſo well with thoſe places pointed to, where himſelf renders it, Take heed to your ſelves.

and bear no burden on the Sabbath day, nor bring it in by the gates of Jeruſalem.] Or, that (as Chap. 4.4. and 14.19.) ye bear not burden, (ſo the Hebrew) or, any burden (ſo rather, than burdens, as ſome; any ſupplyed: Job 16.17. Eſay 53.9.) on the Sabbath day, (Heb. the day of reſt, Exod. 20.8,11.) or (Heb. and; as chap. 16.1,7) bring it, (a defect of the participle: as chap. 12.11.) or, any (ſupplyed as before) in (ſupplyed from the oppoſite, carry out, ver. 22. Heb. make to go, or, come) by the gates of Jeruſalem. See Neh. 13. 15,16,19.

V. 22. Neither carry forth a burden out of your houſes upon the Sabbath day] Or, And that (as ver. 21.) ye carry not out (Heb. make to go out, as Ezek. 12. 7.) from your houſes any (as ver. 24.) burden on the Sabbath day; as ver. 21. not out by the gates of the city only, but out of your houſes within the city. Where it may be demanded why he ſaith, bring out of your houſes, rather than bring into your houſes: to which ſome anſwer, that by carrying out a burden; is meant the caſting out the duſt, or dirt and ſoil of their houſes contracted the week paſt: but that ſeems over-narrow, nor very proper. Others would have it ſo ſaid, becauſe the gates of the city were on the Sabbath day ſhut, Neh. 13.19. and they could not therefore bring in ought to be beſtowed in their houſes: but that ſeems no ſatisfactory anſwer; for neither doth it appear that that proviſion of ſhutting the gates, was conſtantly continued, in ſuch corrupt times eſpecially as theſe were: and notwithſtanding it, they might as well bring wares or other burdens from other places within the city into their houſes, as carry out of them to other places: but the better anſwer is, that the one by analogy, and juſt conſequence, comprehendeth both. See the like, ver. 24. and as for our Saviours act, willing the man healed at the pool of Betheſda, to carry his bed home, Joh. 5.8,11. which the Jews ſo much cavilled at, it no way either infringed the Law of the Sabbath, or croſſed this inhibition; for what ſhould the man do with his bed there then, when as there was no need or uſe either of his bed there, or of his ſtay there to keep it? it was fitter and better for him to get home with it, and to the Temple thence, to praiſe God there with Ezekiah for his recovery, Eſay 38. 22. than ſtay idling at the pool among other cripples with his couch: nor need we with ſome to ſay, that being done by Chriſts command who was God, it was no ſin nor violation of the Sabbath, though the Law were otherwiſe; ranking it with Abrahams ſacrificing of Iſaac in reſolution and purpoſe, Gen. 22. and the Hebrews ſpoiling of the Egyptians, Exod. 11.2. and 12. 35, 36. for to ſay nothing of them; little did the man at that time dream of Chriſts deity; nor was that which the man then did any other, than what any man lying abroad on his couch, being ſuddenly ſo cured, whether by miracle, or by ſome ſpecial providence, might lawfully, without breach of that commandment concerning the Sabbath, have done.

neither do ye any work, but hallow ye the Sabbath;] Or, nor do (to carry it on in one tenour with the former) any work, to wit, any ſuch work, as in the Law is forbidden to be done on that day. Heb. all work: all, for, any; as Lev. 3.17. So Exod. 20.10.

as I commanded your fathers] Exod. 20.8. and 23.12. and 31.14,15. Lev. 19.4. and 23.3. Deut. 5.12,15. Exod. 20. 12,20. and you alſo in them, Exod. 31.13,16,17. the obſervation of the Sabbath, preſſed here, as much neglected; and put for all religious duties and offices, Eſay 56.2.

V. 23. But they obeyed not, neither inclined their ear;] See chap. 7. 24,26. So chap. 19.15. in general: and of this precept in particular, Ezek. 20.21.

but hardned their necks that they might not hear, nor receive inſtruction.] See chap. 7.26. and 16.12. Zach. 7.11,12. and of the laſt clauſe, chap. 2.30. and 5.3. and 7.28.

V. 24. And it ſhall come to paſs,] Or, Yet; the copulative for the diſcretive: as chap. 14. 9, 15. it ſhall come to paſs. Heb. it ſhall be, as chap. 5.19. Their pollution of my day ſhall not be puniſhed in you, if you keep free from it your ſelves, or, reform it in your ſelves, Ezek. 18.14,17.

if ye diligently hearken unto me, ſaith the Lord] Heb. hearkning hearken; as Exod. 15.26. and 19.5.

to bring no burden thorow the gates of the city on the Sabbath day:] Or, to bring in: as before, ver. 21. neither bring in, nor bear out; the one comprehended under the other, as ver. 22.

but hallow the Sabbath day to do no work therein] Or, by doing no work therein; as the particle with the infinitive is uſed, Deut. 9.18. & 17.2. & 22.21. & 28.63. See before, ver. 22.

V. 25. Then ſhall there enter into the gates of this city] Then, as having reference to the condition, if, ver. 14. Heb. And; as chap. 16. 11. but, That, rather here; as chap. 5.19. & 7.32. & 9. 25. for it anſwereth not to the conditional, but to the words, it ſhall be, where the promiſe made upon that condition, beginneth after the condition it ſelfe there interſerted, here proſecuted. See the like promiſe, Chap. 22.4.

Kings and Princes] See ver. 19.

and this city ſhall remain for ever.] Heb. ſhall ſit; as Lev. 14.8. chap. 40.6. or, be inhabited (as ver. 6. Zach. 12.6. & 14.11.) for ever; which hath reference to the eſtabliſhment of Davids Throne in much proſperity, and the continuance of State and City, 2 Sam. 7.16. Pſal. 132. 12,14,17. 2 King. 21.7,8. chap. 7.3,5,7.

V. 26. And they ſhall come from the cities of Judah, and from the places about Jeruſalem, and from the land of Benjamin, and from the plain, and from the mountains, and from the South, bringing burnt offerings, and ſacrifices, and meat-offerings, and incenſe, & bringing ſacrifices of praiſe, unto the houſe of the Lord.] The city and Temple ſhall both ſtand, and be both frequented, from all parts of the Kingdom, as formerly they have been.

from the land of Benjamin,] Which continued firm to Judah, when the other Tribes fell from her, 2 king. 12.21. 2 Chr. 11.12. & 15. 2, 8,9. and ſo ſtill did, chap. 6.1. See Chap. 32.44. & 33.13.

and from the plain, and from the mountains, and from the South] And, or, both; as the copulative is rendred, Gen. 36.24. Pſal. 76.6. cha. 5.24. & 44. 25. for the copulative doth not knit this branch to the former, as if the places enſuing were not within the land of Judah and Benjamin, and the territory about Jeruſalem, but in other Regions elſewhere abroad; but it referreth to the latter, diſtinguiſhing the places in the former branch mentioned, and therein laid out according to their limits, and the tribes or principall parts of them, whereunto they appertained; and here further ranking them according to the divers condition of them, ſome of each ſort being found in each of thoſe parts: nor is therefore this diſtribution (the like whereunto, ſee Chap. 32. 44. and 33. 13.) to be reſtrained (as ſome do it) to Judah onely, as if proper to that Tribe alone, Joſh. 15. and not common to the reſt; but reſpects the land of Benjamin as well as that of Judah. See chap. 33.13.

from the plain] Or, as it is rendred, Chap. 34.44. the valley, and chap. 33.13. the vale, and ſo would be here, for another word the Hebrews have for the plain, Chap. 21.13. where the vale and it are diſtinguiſhed, and the term plain better agreeth to the laſt, Heb. the low land, or, ground, a defect of the ſubject; as dry; for dry land, Eſay 44.3. Jon. 1.9,13. & 2.11. oppoſed there to the ſea; as this here to the mountain, for ſo is the word here ſingular, though uſed collectively.

from the South] Or, the upland; the word indeed here found, is uſed commonly for the South, in bounding of places eſpecially, as Joſh. 15. 1, 2, 4. in regard whereof that learned Writer, who reſtraineth the word here unto Judah, would have it to be here ſo taken, affirming from that place of Joſhuah, the land belonging to that Tribe, to be there divided into Southerly land, mountain, and vale, but there is no ſuch diviſion found there, the South is mentioned onely as in all entire diviſions of lands, and of the other Tribes alſo there, Joſh. 17. 9, 10. & 18. 13,14, & 19. 8. nor was the Southern part of Judah, or of any other Tribe, without mountain, or vale, more than the Eaſtern, Weſtern, or Northern part of the ſame, but the word that doth firſt properly ſignifie South, where oppoſed to, or diſtinguiſhed from, Eaſt, Weſt, or North, hath a diverſe notion, where it is oppoſed to, or diſtinguiſhed from mountain and low-land, or, vale; as here and in that place of Joſhua afterward, and ſignifies a middle ſort of land, between mountain and vale; ſuch as we uſe to term heaths, and plains, and downs; as we when, ſay, New-market-heath, Saliſ-bury-plain, and Baram Downs; which are neither mountainy places, nor valleys, properly ſo called: and ſuch places in the Hebrew have this name given them; becauſe they are dryer commonly than the vale, as the Southern parts are ordinarily, being nearer to the Sun, and more expoſed to its parching heat. See Achſahs requeſt to her father Caleb, Joſh. 15. 19. Judg. 1.15. See alſo Zach. 7.7. where this and the low-ground, are expreſly diſtinguiſhed.

bringing ſacrifices of praiſe.] Heb. bringing praiſe, or, thankſgiving, or, confeſſion. So Pſal. 50. 14,23. as ſin, for, a ſin-ſacrifice, Lev. 4.24. 2 Cor. 5. 21. or, a ſacrifice for ſin, Rom. 8. 3. Heb. 10. 6,8. ſo, praiſe, for a ſacrifice of praiſe, or thankful acknowledgement.

This is mentioned apart, because it should be moſt frequent, while God by his mercies ſhould give frequent occaſions of ſuch. See chap.33.11.

V. 27. But if ye will not hearken unto me, to hallow the Sabbath-day, and not to bear burdens, even entring in at the gates of Jeruſalem on the Sabbath-day] Heb. And, as verſ. 23. See for the next words, verſ.21,24. the latter, ſome read. as you enter, or, while you paſs thorow, the gates of Jeruſalem, as the copulative is uſed, 1 King.11.25. but I ſuppoſe may rather be rendred joyntly with the former, thus, to ſanctifie the Sabbath-day, both by not bearing any burthen, or, (Heb. and, as verſ.21.) going, or, paſſing, in and out, (as Eſay 23.1. & 24. 20.) thorow the gates of Jeruſalem, for by needleſs paſſing to and fro, as well without burden, as with burden, might they violate the Sabbath, Exod. 16.29.

then will I kindle a fire in the gates thereof; and it ſhall devour the palaces of Jeruſalem, and ſhall not be quenched.]Or,Then. (Heb. And as chap.17.27.) I will kindle a fire, (as chap. 21.14.& 43.12. & 50. 2.) in the gates thereof, (in thoſe gates thus abuſed. See Neh. 1.3. & 2.13.) which (as chap.9.22.) ſhall devour, (as Eſay 9.18.) the palaces of Jeruſalem ; (the lofty and ſtately buildings of it, as chap.49. 27. See it fulfilled, 2 King.25.9.chap.52.13.) and ſhall not be quenched, until it have conſumed both the one and the other, as did thoſe Chaldean forces, 2 Chr.36.19. Pſal.74.7,8.

CHAP. XVIII.

Verſ. 1. THE word came to Jeremiah from the Lord, ſaying] Heb. was to Jeremiah from the Lord, as Chap. 7.1. The Sermon in this Chapter contained, conſiſteth of two principall parts, a prophecy, and a complaint. In the prophecy is contained ; 1. A demonſtration by a type, what God is able to do either with the Jewiſh people, or any other, ver. 1,6. 2. A declaration of Gods meaning and intent, as well in his menaces, as in his promiſes, ver. 7,10. 3. An exhortation to repentance and amendment of life, ver. 11. 4. A relation of their obſtinacy, notwithſtanding mercy offered them, ver. 12. 5. A redargution of their extream folly therein, ver.13,14. 6. A denunciation of deſtruction to befall them for the ſame, ver. 15,17. The complaint followeth to the end of the Chapter.

V. 2. Ariſe] See chap.1.17.& 13.4,6. and go down] Or, go ; ſimply : as alſo, Chap.22.1. See Eſay 38. 8. go down from the Temple, ſay ſome, beneath which, the potters work-houſe was, Mat.27.10. but neither doth it appear by the one text, that Jeremy was then in the temple, when God ſpake this to him : nor by the other, that the potters work-houſe ſtood either beneath the Temple, or neer unto it : and of the uſe of the word deſcending, ſee on the place of Eſay pointed at.

to the Potters houſe.] This with the fields belonging to it, ſeem to have been ſituate without the gates, on the South ſide of the city. See chap.19.2.& 31.40.

and there will I cauſe thee to hear my words.] There I will further acquaint thee with my mind, and the meſſage that I mean to ſend by thee, upon that which there thou ſhalt ſee. So, to make, or, cauſe, to hear, for, to tell, chap.4.15.

V. 3. Then I went down to the Potters houſe ;]Or, So, (Heb. And; as 2 King.9.4.Eſay 37.5. according as was commanded) I went. See ver. 2.

and behold he wrought a work on the wheels] Or, he was working (Heb.making) ſome work upon the frames, or, ſeat ; as the Chaldee giveth it : and ours render the ſame word, ſtools, Exod. 1.16. The word is of a duall form ; as that of a mill, wherof ſee on Eſay 47. 2.and by the notation of it may ſeem to have conſiſted of two ſtones : as the duall, though irregular of Eben, which ſignifies a ſtone, and ſo the Greek rendreth it upon the ſtones. Howbeit, moſt Interpreters render it a wheel, or, as ours, wheels : and howſoever one of the Rabbines telleth us it was but one wheel, on which the Potter uſed to worke ; yet another of them informeth us, that in the Eaſtern parts the frame that they wrought on, conſiſted of two wheels ; a bigger and a leſſe ; that uppermoſt, this lower, or within that : and would have it by change of a letter to come of the word Ophan, that ſignifies a wheele. But I ſuppoſe the word to come neither from Eben, a ſtone ; or, Ophan, a wheel ; but either to be, or to have, a peculiar root of it ſelf, or its own ; as the word for heaven, and that for loins, Chap. 13.1. whoſe originals are now unknown.

V. 4. And the veſſel which he made of clay was marred in the hand of the potter] Or, the veſſel which he was making, (as verſ. 3.) miſcarried, as clay in the potters hand. But here cometh in a doubt which none of the Jewiſh Commenters ſeem to take notice of. That which we render of clay, is conſtantly in our Hebrew Bibles,as clay ; that which is alſo exhibited in the margent of our laſt verſion,(howſoever moſt Interpreters take no notice at all of it) with the ſame particle prefixed to it, that is afterward uſed, ver. 6. where neither of the ſenſe or reading any doubt is or can be made. So that according to this reading, the meaning might ſeem to be, while it was yet clay ; (as when it was budding, Gen. 40.10.) that is, moiſt and ſoft, as one of the Jewiſh Doctors interprets the word clay, here ; before it was nealed & hardened,[while he was yet framing and faſhioning it ; as both the word making, not made, and the clauſe in his hand, (or, hands, collectively taken ; for he maketh uſe of both, in giving it the faſhion) is implyed. Howbeit, both he alſo with the reſt, ſaith, that the particle here uſed is put for mem, or, min, deſigning the matter. Whence it may be conjectured ; that they read it not with caph,, the uſual note of ſimilitude ; but with beth : and yet I no where find beth ſo uſed, ſave Exod. 38. 8. where it is ſaid that the Layer of braſs was made of, or, with the womens mirrors, or looking-braſſes, rather than glaſſes. Where yet no good parallel is brought of this uſe of that particle : onely one of them telleth us, that ſuch uſe of it is frequent in the Ithmaelitiſh tongue. So that whether caph, were here, by ſome ſlip, written for beth, the letters being very like the one to the other ; and beth, be the right, it muſt ſeem to have taken it,may juſtly require further conſideration,which I leave therefore to the learned.

in the hand of the potter] That is, in his hand ; (as alſo ſome render it) whom he had before named, ver. 3. the noun for the pronoun : as Eſay 33.2. & 35.8. chap.10. 3,4. and ſo in the cloſe of this verſe : and hand,for, hands,taken collectively ; as alſo afterward, ver. 6.

So he made it again another veſſel, as it ſeemed good to the potter to make it] Or, ſo he made of it again another veſſel, ſuch as he thought good to make.

So] Heb. and ; as ver. 3.

he made it again] Or, of it, as Exod.21.4.Judg.17.4. Heb. he returned and made again : as,returned and digged,for,digged again, Gen.26.18. See Eſay 6.13.

as it ſeemed good to the potter] Heb. as was right in the eyes of the Potter : as Chap. 27. 5. the Potter, for, him, or, himſelfe : as before.

V. 5. Then came the word of the Lord unto me, ſaying,] Heb. And : as Chap.17.27. the reſt, as ver.1.

V. 6. O houſe of Iſrael, cannot I do with you, as this Potter? ſaith the Lord.] The Lord in theſe words ſheweth the reaſon why he had enjoyned Jeremy to meet him at the Potters work-houſe ; to wit, there by a pregnant demonſtration to ſhew him how he was able without further adoe to deal with this people ; he was able to deſtroy them, and might well ſo do without further warning ; and it was his neer mercy, if he gave them any warning, having ſo ill deſerved of him, before he ſo did : and that as he had framed them, and made them a People, a Nation, a Church, a State formerly, Eſay 43.1. & 44.2. & 64.8. ſo he could again mar them, eſpecially ſince that they had firſt ſo corrupted and marred themſelves by their ſins, Deut.32.5,6. Eſay 1. 4. unmake them either people, or Nation, or Church, or State ; and either remake or frame them again ſuch as before they were, Eſay 1.25,26. Chap. 33. 7. Rom.11. 23,24. or make others ſuch in their room. See Num. 14. 12. Mat. 3.9. Rom.11.11,17. and they had no juſt cauſe to complain, if he ſhould ſo do, Eſay 45.9. Rom.9.20.

O houſe of Iſrael,] The people of the Jews ; as chap. 2.26.

as this : ſaith the Lord] To wit, with his clay, ver.4.

as the clay is in the potters hand, ſo are ye in my hand, O houſe of Iſrael.] I have as much power over you, as the potter over the clay, that he works upon ; and as much both might and right alſo to diſpoſe of you at my pleaſure, as he to deal as ſeemeth good to him with his own work,Eſay 29.15,16. and 49.5.

V. 7. At what inſtant I ſhall ſpeak againſt a nation, and concerning a Kingdome, to pluck up, and to pull down, and to deſtroy it ;] Whenſoever I ſhall by my Prophets threaten deſtruction to any people or State ; that which in mercy he uſually doth before he come to deſtroy,Amos 3.7. & 4. 12. and for that very end alſo that he may not deſtroy,Chap.6.8.& 36.3. Ezek.3.18.

at what inſtant I ſhall ſpeak] Or, Let me ſpeak ſuddenly ; as Job.34. 20. Pſal. 6. 10. or there may be a trajection in the text, as there is apparently in the next verſe, and then the words may be thus rendred ; Let me ſpeak concerning a nation——ſuddenly——to deſtroy it ; that it ſhall in an inſtant, without any long delay be deſtroyed ; as with Nineveh he did, Jon. 3.4. and to this I much encline.

againſt a nation, and concerning a Kingdome] Or, concerning any nation, (as Chap.17.21.) or (as Chap. 15.1,7.) concerning any Kingdome ; for the particle is the ſame in either member, and ought to be alike expreſſed in either. So chap. 16. 3. and in the paralleſ, ver. 9.

to pluck up, and pull down, and to deſtroy it] The copulative may here alſo be well rendred,as before by the disjunctive, that I intend, or am about ſo to do. See chap.1.10. a defect of the pronoun, it : as chap.3.7. and 4.28. So ver. 9.

V. 8. If that nation againſt whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, I will repent of the evill, that I thought to do unto them.] Or, If that nation concerning whom I ſo (ſupplyed, as the like, ver.23.) *ſpoke,ſhall return from its evil, I alſo will repent concerning the evil that I thought to do unto it.*Thus repentance in man produceth repentance with God. When people or perſons repent of the evil of ſin, for which God hath denounced a doom of penalty againſt them, God ſtayeth his hand, revoketh the doom, and repriveth ſuch people or perſons. So Judg. 10. 13,16. 1 King. 21. 20. Jon. 3. 10. Nor that God repenteth as man through over-ſight, or want of forecaſt and foreſight, or out of ficklenes & mutability of mind ; for ſuch grounds of repentance are imperfections in man, and cannot cannot befall him who is perfection it ſelf,Num.23.19. 1 Sam.15.29. Mal.3.6. Jam.1.17. but God is ſaid then to repent, when he doth as men uſe to do when they repent ; 1 Sam.15.13,34. when he undoeth what he had done before, revoketh a doom that he had paſt before, ſtayeth the execution of a ſentence that formerly he had denounced, Gen. 6. 6,7. 1 Sam.15.11,28. which as it was denounced becauſe of mans ſin, ſo is it reverſed, when man ceaſeth ſo to do ; the end being accompliſhed for which it was denounced ; to wit, that it might not be inflicted. See on verſ. 7. So that, as the Schoolmen well ſay, Repentance in man is a change of the mind,or will ; repentance with God, is the willing of a change, his mind and purpoſe abiding ſtill the ſame, chap. 20. 16. There is in the text a trajection of the words ; as verſ. 7. for in the text they thus lye ; and let that nation return from its evil, concerning which I ſpake. See the like, chap. 11. 16. and an elegant anantaclaſis between evil and evil ; ſin meant by the one, and penalty by the other. So Jon.3.10.

If] Heb. And ; as ch.16.10. Amos 3.4. Yet may the copulative be retained, reading the text as before, verſ. 7. Let me ſpeak concerning a nation——And let that nation turn——and I will repent.

that nation] Or, kingdom, v.7.

againſt whom] Or,concerning whom ; as v.7. Heb. whom againſt it : an uſual redundancy in Hebrew ; as Pſal.1.4.

I have pronounced] Or, I ſo ſpake ; as v.7.

return] A neceſſary companion of true repentance,Act.3.19.& 26. 20. whereby therefore repentance is frequently deſcribed ; Iſa.55.7. ch.26.3. & 36.7. Jon.3.10.

I will repent] Or, I will alſo repent. Heb. and I will repent : and,for, alſo ; chap.14.5. or the copulative may ſtand, it we read the former branch, as was before hinted ; Let that nation return,——and I will repent.

I purpoſed] Or, thought, or, had deviſed, chap. 11. 19. See verſ. 11.

V. 9. And at what inſtant I ſhall ſpeak concerning a nation, and concerning a Kingdom, to build and to plant it] Or, Let me ſpeak in like manner (the copulative for the redditive note of ſimilitude : as Iſa. 10.26. & 53.7.) concern ing a nation, or concerning a kingdom, ſuddenly to build or to plant it : acquainting them by my Prophets what I intend to do for them, and what good is coming to them. See v.7. & chap.1.10.

V. 10. If it do evil in my ſight, that it obey not my voice, then will I repent of the good wherewith I ſaid I would benefit them.] Or,and let it (that nation or kingdom, whereof verſ.9.) do that which is evil in my ſight, (Heb.in mine eyes ; that is, offenſive and diſpleaſing to me ; as 2 Sam.11.27.) in not hearkening to my voice, (as ch.1.6.12. & 17.23.) I ſhall then (Heb. and ; as chap.4.1,2. & 8.9.) repent concerning the good wherewith I ſaid I would do them good. See before, verſ. 8. As Gods menaces are denounced with a condition ; if not expreſſed, yet ſecretly implyed and intended, of repentance ; ſo are his promiſes of the like nature propounded unto perſons and people, though in abſolute terms oft-times conceived, yet with the like reſervation,not to take place,but upon their continuance and perſeverance in well-doing, unto whom the ſame are made. So Deut.28.1,2,10. 1 Sam.2.30. & 15.1,2.

V. 11. Now therefore, go to, ſpeak to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, ſaying, thus ſaith the Lord ;] From the former declaration of Gods intentions and courſes,concerning both his righteous menaces and gratious promiſes in general : The Lord now proceedeth and deſcendeth to an application thereof in particular unto the Jewiſh people,and the meſſage that his Prophet was now enjoyned to deliver to them from him.

Now therefore] Heb. And now, as ch.15.6.

go to,ſpeak] Heb. ſpeak now ; for the latter particle is commonly alſo ſo rendred,but it hath withal a notion ; ſometime of entreating, as Iſa.36.1.1. ſometime of inciting, as Iſa.36.8. See there, and ſo here ; and again in the cloſe of the verſe.

men] Heb. man, as ch.11.2.

Behold, I frame evil againſt you, and deviſe a device againſt you :] Heb, I am framing (as the potter frameth a veſſel ; ſo the word properly ſignifies : uſed alſo, Gen.2.7. And the very ſame word is uſed commonly for a potter, as v.3,4.) againſt you, and am deviſing a device (to wit, of evil,as before) againſt you. So chap.48.2.& 49.30. it is a borrowed ſpeech from that model that the workman or artiſt conceiveth in his mind, according to which he afterward faſhioneth his work, Exod.35.33. 2 Chr.2.13.

return ye now every one from his evil ways, and make your ways and your doings good.] Take notice of the evil that will otherwiſe befal you, and take the courſe above-mentioned, for the preventing of it, by ſincere repentance, and ſerious reformation and amendment of your lives ; by theſe means alone yet may ye eſcape, v.7,8. 2 King. 17. 13. chap.3.12. & 7.3. & 25.5. & 35.15. Ezek.18.21.& 33. 11.

every one] Heb. a man ; as ch.5.8. & 12.15.

V.12. And they ſaid,There is no hope ; but we will walk after our own devices, and we will do every one the imagination of his evil heart.] And (or, But : as chap.17.23.) they ſaid, or, they have ſaid, or, ſay : this hath been their former ſaying, and ſtill is ; and this anſwer, I know, they will now give thee again. The effect, or ſum of the anſwer, either that the people did return to Gods admonition delivered to them by the Prophet, as ſome ; or that God before-hand knew that they would return, as formerly they oft had done : ſo not improbably one of the Jewiſh Commenters ; or, as ſome other, thus they ſay, or think ſtill with themſelves : And it is as if in a manner they had ſaid ; It is to no purpoſe to ſpeak to us, or to deal and ſtrive further with us ; (whence Gods reſolution , Gen. 6. 3.) there is no poſſibility of reclaiming or reducing us : (ſee the like deſperate return , chap. 2.25. & 13.9.) we are fully and firmly fixed upon it, and reſolved to take thoſe courſes that we are pitched upon , and to live as we liſt our ſelves. See chap. 13. 10. and 16. 20. and 44. 16. and hence it appeareth , that the words rendred device , and imagination , are much at one the ſame : and man here for every one : as verſ. 11.

his evil heart] Or, his own evil heart ; as Iſa. 53. 6. evil is inferred, not as if they themſelves would ſo ſpeak, unleſs it were in way of deriſion,as you account it, or uſe to call it : for they would never themſelves acknowledge their hearts to be ſuch : but thereby intimating what indeed they were ; whatſoever conceit themſelves had of them, Prov.16.2.

V. 13. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord] Upon this their deſperate obſtinacy, and refuſal of Gods gratious offers ; after ſome amplification of their ſtrange carriage and extream folly therein, v.13,14. God proceedeth to the paſſing of a peremptory ſentence upon them, verſ 15,16.

Aſk ye among the Heathen,who hath heard ſuch a thing?] See the like conteſtation, chap.2.10.

the Virgin of Iſrael] Or, the Virgin Iſrael. See Iſaiah 1.7,8. Iſrael termed a Virgin ; as other States. See Eſa. 23. 12. & 47. 1. though ſome ſuppoſe a further emphaſis here ; as if it were ſaid, She that ſhould have kept her ſelf a pure Virgin for God , who had eſpouſed her to himſelf, Ezek.16.8. 2 Cor.11.2.

hath done a very horrible thing.] Or, committed a very vile thing. See ch.5.30. So ch.23.14. See alſo ch. 24. 2. what this vile thing is, ſee verſ. 15.

V. 14. will a man leave the ſnow of Lebanon, which cometh from the rock of the field ?] Or, Shall the ſnow of Lebanon be left coming down from the rock in the fields ? for the verb is indefinite ; and may well therefore be rendred by the paſſive : as chap. 10. 3,4. or , as ſome again render it,Shall water like the ſnow (that is,as cold as the ſnow) of Lebanon iſſuing from a rock in the field be left ? the word water, ſupplyed from the clauſe enſuing, and the note of ſimilitude, as Pſalm 11.1. Eſa.21.8. The meaning of the words either of theſe ways thus read, is, that neither any traveller in the heat of the day, meeting in the field with a ſpring, whoſe water iſſueth from ſome rock , having the head of it fed with the ſnow of mount Lebanon, where it hath its firſt riſe, being at time of year diſſolved, will paſs by it , and go on looking for ſome other elſewhere ; or no wiſe man having ſuch a ſpring at hand in his field, will, when he hath uſe and need thereof, refuſe it, and go to ſeek water in ſome pond or pool , puddle much leſs, elſewhere. For as for the Chaldee, Greek and Latine Verſions, who render it to this effect ; will, or, can, the water fail from the rock in the field ? or, as the Greek miſtake of a point, the teats from the rock, or, the ſtone from Libanus ? But this the text will not well bear, the verb of leaving, or forſaking, being hardly found ſo uſed, as they take it. Howbeit, to remove that difficulty , a learned late Writer thus rendreth the text ; Doth the ſnow of Lebanon from the rock leave, or, forſake, my field ? that is, doth the ſnow that is perpetually on the mountains and rocks of Lebanon, ever leave running down, as it melteth, into my fields ? as God thereby intimating the care that he had of making a conſtant proviſion of water for the land of his people lying below that mount. Which though it ſeem not ſo well to fit here, no more than what concerning the next branch he ſuggeſteth, yet may for ſenſe ſeem to come home to the former ; implying, that God, whom his people leſt to look after idols and ſtrangers, was as a well-ſpring of water that never faileth, but runneth continually, either guſhing out of ſome rock , or deſcending from mount Lebanon, from whence many conſtant ſtreams ran down to the fields and places neer about it ; whom yet this people leſt, to ſeek relief and refreſhment where it was not to be found. So it paralleleth well with chap.2.13. & 17.13. And this way the moſt go, both Jews and others ; but rendring the words the former way. Howbeit , ſome late Writers of ſpecial note render the words far otherwiſe, thus ; will a traveller leave my fields, (as one of them) the fields (as another, ſuppoſing no affix pronoun here ; but ſuch an irregular form as in ſome words and places is found ; as Pſal. 50. 11. & 96. 12. & 104. 11. Eſay 56.9. Lam. 4. 9. Hoſ.10.4.) for a rock, and for the ſnow of Lebanon ; that is, for the ſnowy Lebanon ? whereof,ſee Eſay 2.13. and this is from them exhibited in the margent of our Bibles. So the meaning ſhould be ; Will any traveller be ſo fooliſh or mad , as to leave the plain, where he hath a fair, even, free , and cleer way before him, without let or impediment,and inſtead thereof take his way over craggy and rocky hills thorow buſhes and briers , and thickets covered over with ſnow, no leſs dangerous than difficult ? as implying, that this people foolihly and unadviſedly left Gods ſervice, that was eaſie and free, Matth. 11. 29. to run after idols , who required of them other manner of ſervice, far more hard and hardſh than any that he did, Deut.12.30,31. 1 King. 18. 28. chap. 19. 5. verſ. 15. And this ſhould I encline to, inregard of the next veſſes cloſe, that may seem to hint some such matter, did I find the particle min here found, to be any where used in the notion of for, or, instead of: it often indeed answereth the Latine pro; and they so expresse it. Which turned into English, importeth not for, or, instead of; but before, or, rather than; being much used in comparisons, as the Hebrew particle also is: and being so here Englished, would make the text found clean contrary to what they would have it speak; to wit, Will any traveller leave the plain before the rocky or, rather than the rock; and before, or, rather than the snowy Lebanon? when as they would have the meaning to be, that no wise man, or in his wits, will choose the rocky and snowy way before the plain; or will not leave that, to betake himself to this. So their version and their intention do directly cross the one the other. The Italian Version rendreth it; Should snowy Lebanon be left for a flote of the field? implying as great an inequality between God the rock and strength of all ages, Deut. 32. 4. Esa. 26. 4. and idols; as there is between mount Lebanon and some stone in the field. See Deu. 3. 25. But to pass by the unsuitableness of the word here used to signifie a flote; the same incongruity is here also that was in the former.

or shall the cold flowing waters that come from another place be forsaken?] About this latter branch there is no less difficulty and diversity among Interpreters, than about the former. The text is, word for word, or (supplyed) as they, 11. 19.) Shall strange, cold, flowing, waters be forsaken; or, fail? which the most thus expound; Will men, though they have not such a spring of water as was before said, yet if they have fresh conduit water with them at home, derived and brought to them by pipes, chanels, or other means of conveyance for that purpose contrived, from some place more remote, so long as it is cool, and floweth cleer, refuse to make use of it, and content themselves with it, rather than trouble themselves with running abroad to seek for other elsewhere; and that in some pond or standing pool, which neither runs fresh, nor is so cool, being constantly exposed to the heat of the sun? so finh supply the opposite attributes require: that which in effect for the application comes home to the same with the former. See Prov. 5. 15. And that learned man before alledged, taking the term in a notion of failing; shall such waters fail? expoundeth it of the waters of Euphrates and Nilus, which though rising in forrain parts; yet watered the land of his people; as if God had said, when as hence it appeareth that I forget not my people, in that I furnish them with water both springing up in their own land from mount Lebanon; and such also, as those of Euphrates and Nilus, that have their rise in regions more remote: what reason is it that my people should forget me? But how these two great rivers should water the land of Judah, (to say nothing of Tanon) I see not: and the seeking after these waters is expressed to them, and charged as a crime upon them, chap. 2. 18. nor doth this therefore seem so well to suit with the drift of the place. Those other Worthies above mentioned, do here also go a way out of the common road by themselves; thus rendring the words, Shall the running waters be left for strange cold waters? or, for waters strangely cold? that is, is any man so foolish, as that when he is athirst, having wholsome cunning water by him, he will leave that, and seek elsewhere for water extreamly cold and unwholsome? But sure it is a commendation of water to be cool. See Prov. 25. 25. nor is there any more than so in the text: for that which another hath of waters corrupted with ice, seems not to satisfie: and if I could go this way therefore, I should choose rather to render it; shall the running waters be left for strange ones? But neither is the particle min here at all in the text; as in the former branch it was: though not in that notion or use as they here take it; nor were it put in, would the text afford that sense that they would give it; as in the former branch was evidently shewed.

cold] The same word with that, Prov. 25. 25. though some of the Jewish Criticks would refer it to another root that fignifies digging, for water especially, Esa. 37. 25. as if the meaning were, water by digging procured: but the ready sense is here needlesly rejected, for one without due analogy further feech'd.

that come from another place] Heb. strange. For the meaning whereof, some of the Jewish Writers refer unto 2 King. 19. 24. where the same term is used of waters: but there of waters digged and delved for, where none appeared, nor were ever before known to be. Which they presse to confirm that formerly delivered concerning the meaning of that word from the same place, and Esa. 37. 25. But other of them go the way before mentioned, understanding it of water brought from remote places, as before: for as for their curious application of it unto God, as being in some fort remote from them; because dwelling in heaven, Esay 63. 15. and yet neer unto them in regard of his Temple with them, and in his continual beneficence to them, 1 King. 8. 13, 27. I let pass: nor are those criticisms of some of them worthy debate, that from a term used Esay 1. 6. would have the word fignifie medicinal waters, like those, Ezek. 47. 8, 9. or that would derive it from another term that fignifies an inundation, or a storm, Esay 25. 4. and 32. 2. as noting the abundance of them: which I therefore also so leave: for of that which draweth the term out to Euphrates and Nilus, see before.

be forsaken] So the most of the Jewish Interpreters; yet withal observing, that this is not the ordinary signification of the word; but that by change of a letter of like sound, tsaw for teth, it cometh to signifie as here it is rendred. Howbeit, the old Latine retaining the ordinary use of the word, renders the text, can fresh waters be pulled out, or, plucked up? but the insolency of the phrase is such, as intercesh recourse to the former acception. However our Romanists to maintain the authority of that version, which the Council of Trent hath made authentick, endeavour to strain some convenient sense out of it.

V. 15. Because my people hath forgotten me;] Or, That (as ch. 2. 5.) my people hath forgotten me: as making application of what was before spoken, vers. 14. to the practice of his people: they have so forsaken me, that they have even forgotten me too: for one may forsake a person, whom yet he doth not, nor can forget. See chap. 2. 13, 32. and 17. 13.

they have burnt incense to vanity;] Performed religious worship (as chap. 7. 9. & 11. 17.) to idols, chap. 2. 5, & 10, 15. An interpreter of great note, following the old Latine, thus rendreth this branch, as in coherence with the former, because my people have so forgotten me; they burn incense to vain to me. See Esa. 1. 13. & 66. 3. which I leave to the judgment of others, adhering rather to the former.

and they have caused them to stumble in their ways from the ancient path, to walk in paths in a way not cast up.] Or, while (as the copulative is used, 1 Kin. 11. 25.) they (that is, their false Prophets; fay some; their idols, fay others) cause them to stumble in their ways, (as the corrupt Priests are said to do the like, partly, by their corrupt doctrine, and partly, by their bad lives and evil example, Mal. 2. 8.) by leaving (a defect of the verb, as the Jewish Critick obferves; like that, Psal. 89. 29.) the ancient paths, (as Psal. 77. 19. a word in this notion no where else found. Heb. the paths of eternity; as some, that is tending to life eternal: or, of antiquity, as the most; which God anciently in his Law by Moses prescribed them; and that Moses himself, Joshua, David, and other the faithful walked in before them, cli. 6. 16. Deu. 4. 1. & 6. 1. & 28. 9.) to walk (as Prov. 2. 13.) or, by walking (as Lev. 18. 4.) paths, or, in (as Esa. 43. 16.) paths (the common word for such passages) of a way not cast up; or, where there is no way cast up: where there is no causey; no way fitted and accommodated for passage, the contrary whereunto is the way of God, that the godly and faithful walk in, said to be, Prov. 15. 19. Esay 35. 8. See on vers. 14.

V. 16. To make their land desolate, and a perpetual hissing;] Not that this was the thing they aymed at, but that this must needs, and would undoubtedly prove the issue and effect of it. See Esa. 3. 8. ch. 7. 18. nor could they take a readier way to bring such evils upon their land, if they desired and should study so to do. See the like, Prov. 13. 24. and 24. 1. Heb. To put their land into desolation, (as ch. 4. 7.) or, astonishment, (such a desolation as may make any one astonished to behold it, see the next branch) an hissing of perpetuity: this and desolation are joyned usually together, 2 Chr. 29. 8. chap. 19. 8. and 25. 9.

every one that passeth by it, shall be astonished, and wag his head.] Or, So that (as Esay 58. 6. and 63. 13.) every one that passeth over it shall be astonished, (the verb from which the noun before cometh) and wag his head: in way, either of admiration, wondring to see so strange an alteration; or of indignation and vexation, to see such spoyl and havock made of all things; or of scorn and derision, as enemies and ill-willers are in such case wont to do, Psalm. 22. 7. Esay 37. 22. Matth. 27. 39. See chap. 19. 8. and 50. 13.

V. 17. I will scatter them as with an East-wind before the enemy:] Or, That (as before) I should scatter them; that is, cause them to flee every way, glad to take any way to shift for themselves, and (if it be possible) to make any escape, (as with armies routed by some fierce over-pouring enemy it usually falleth out) Deu. 28. 25, 64. like chaff or dust before the wind, Psalm 18. 43. ch. 4. 11. & 15. 7. the East-wind especially, that is wont to be most violent, and furious in those parts, carrying all away before it, Job 27. 21. Psal. 48. 7. Esay 27. 8.

I will shew them the back and not the face, in the day of their calamity.] Or, that (as before) I should shew them the back (Heb. the neck, or back-part of the neck. See on Esay 66. 3. Exod. 23. 27. Josh. 7. 8, 12. chap. 48. 39.) and not the face in the day, or, time of their calamity; as cha. 46. 21. To make me turn my face away from them, and turn my back toward them, not enduring to hear or behold them, when being in distress, they shall seek unto me for succour, Esay 1. 15. dealing then with them, as they now deal with me, 2 Chron. 29. 6. chap. 2. 27. and 32. 33. Ezek. 8. 16.

V. 18. Then said they, Come let us deuise devices against Jeremiah:] Heb. And they said; as chap. 17. 27. This verse holdeth out to us the ground of the Prophets ensuing complaint; to wit, the peoples malicious and mischievous plotting against him for the faithful delivery of Gods message.

let us deuise devices] Contrive some one device or other to do him a mischief: so the plural is oft used; as Gen. 23. 6. Judg. 12. 7. Psalm 1. 3. See ch. 17. 5.

for the Law shall not perish from the Priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the Prophet.] The Priests cannot but conceive and teach the Law aright; nor can the Sages, being men of understanding, fail of giving good advice; and the word that our Prophets do so so unanimously deliver, can be no other than Gods Word, Mal. 2. 7. Joh. 7. 48, 49. but this Jeremy in his preaching differeth from them all; and must needs therefore be in the wrong; and we have no cause then to regard what he saith: So fared it with Micah, 1 King. 22. 13, 24. See chap. 7. 4. and 5. 12, 31. and 26. 8. This is just like the Papists plea, the Church, or the Pope, and his conclave (for he is virtually the Church) cannot erre. But see the contrary to what they here presume of, by God himself threatned, Esay 29. 14. Ezek. 7. 26. to perish, for, to fail, as Psal. 142. 4. chap. 49. 7. Amos 2. 14.

Come, let us smite him with the tongue;] Let us enform, and by informing, incense the higher powers against him, chap. 20. 10. & 26. 11. or, as others render it, let us smite him in the tongue; let us cause his mouth to be stopped, that he may preach no more on this fashion, Tit. 1. 11. or, as others, for the tongue; for his preaching in this manner, as the particle is used, Gen. 18. 28. See chap. 26. 11. and 38. 4. 6. and let not us give heed unto any of his words.] For they are not Gods, but his own. So ch. 5. 12, 13. & 43. 2. Heb. all his words: all for, any; as Job 1. 11. & 8. 12.

V. 19. Give heed to me, O Lord:] Though they heed not my words, that I deliver to them from thee; yet do thou vouchsafe to heed my words, wherewith I complain to thee of them.

and hearken to the voice of them that contend with me.] Or rather, hear the voice of them that contend with me (Heb. of my contendors; as Psal. 35. 1. Esay 49. 25.) hear their words to take notice of them, and to punish them for them; as Esa. 37. 4, 17. not hearken to them, to grant their desires, Psal. 140. 8. for the particle is here redundant and vacant, as oft else-where, Gen. 29. 13. 1 Sam. 10. 4. Job 8. 8. Esay 37. 22. ch. 40. 2.

V. 20. Shall evil be recompensed for good?] Or, Should; as ch. 16. 20. Should men be so wicked and so maliciously minded, as to plot evil against, and seek to mischief those, that desire and endeavour nothing but, or more than, their good? The common complaint and lot of Gods Prophets and people, 1 Sam. 24. 17. Psalm 35. 12. and 109. 5.

for they have digged a pit for my soul.] Or, that (as before vers. 15.) they should dig a pit for my soul? that they should seek to destroy me, and to take my life away from me, who have by all means that I could endeavoured to do them good: my soul, for, me; or, my life; as Psalm. 35. 7. and 56. 6. and there is in the words a speech borrowed from the practice of those that dig pits, or pit-falls, to take wild beasts, or to catch birds in. So Psalm 9. 15. & 35. 7. & 94. 13. Prov. 16. 27. and 26. 27. Eccl. 10. 8. Ezek. 19. 4, 8. So vers. 22.

remember that I stood before thee to speak good for them, and to turn away thy wrath from them.] He appeals to God himself, as able to testifie, how he had from time to time laboured with him, to pacifie his wrath incensed against them, and to obtain favour and mercy for them. So chap. 15. 15. & 17. 16. Heb. remember my standing before thee. See chap. 15. 1.

to speak good for them] See ch. 14. 11.

to turn away thy wrath] As Psal. 106. 23.

V. 21. Therefore deliver up their children to the famine;] Of these & the like imprecations, see ch. 11. 20. & 15. 15. & 17. 18. Heb. Give (as chap. 34. 18.) their sons (including both sexes, as afterward) to the famine; that which did befal this people, Lam. 1. 11, 12. See Psalm 109. 10.

and pour out their blood by the force of the sword:] Heb. pour them out by the hands of the sword. See the like defect, Ezek. 35. 5. and the like phrase also, Psalm 63. 10. This seemeth spoken of the persons themselves, or the Parents; as the former of the children: let that befal them, that they intend against me, vers. 20, 23. chap. 11, 22.

and let their wives be bereaved of their children, and be widows, and let their men be put to death.] Or, that (as chap. 14. 19.) their wives may be left childless, and widows, their husbands (as chap. 44. 19.) being taken away by death. Heb. slain of death; as, slain of the sword, and, of hunger, chap. 14. 18. Lam. 4. 9. slain by one means or other, enough to make their wives widows. Howbeit, by death here, some of the Rabbines not amis understand some one particular kind of it, the pestilence; as chap. 15. 2. where it is expredly distinguished from the famine, and the sword: the like whereunto, see also Rev. 6. 8. So it may be rendred, their husbands being taken away by the pestilence; as were multitudes of them no doubt in the siege of the city, ch. 14. 12. & 21. 6.

let their young men be slain by the sword in battel.] The usual lot of such in war, because fitteft for service in the field; whence the Greek Proverb, Young men for arms, and old men for advice; and the speech of the Heathen King, that Peace was to be preferred before War, because in times of war parents bury their children; children their parents, in times of peace: the old, the yong in the one; the yong, the old in the other; a thing more agreeable to the course of nature. So 2 King. 8. 12. 2 Chr. 36. 17. ch. 11. 22. Heb. smitten of the sword: to smite, for, to slay; as Num. 25. 14. ch. 21. 6. & 40. 14, 15. the form of speech, as before.

V. 22. Let a cry be heard from their houses, when thou shalt bring a troop suddenly upon them.] Such an out-cry as people are wont to make, when military persons break in upon them, to plunder all with them, and to surprise or destroy them, ch. 20. 16. So should it be with them, when the troops of the Chaldeans, and their complices, should surprise and sack their dwellings, 2 Kin. 24. 2.

for] Or, because; as cha. 10. 21.

they have digged a pit for me] As vers. 20. Psal. 57. 6.

and hid snares for my feet.] A borrowed speech, as the former, from the practice of those that set gins, or snares, to catch beasts or fowl with. So Psalm 35. 7, 8. & 64. 5. & 141. 9. & 142. 3. chap. 5. 6.

V. 23. Yet Lord thou knowest all their counsel against me to slay me.] Yet (Heb. And; but so also, chap. 14. 9, 11. and then it must have reference to vers. 20. though I have sought their good, yet thou knowst they seek my life) or yea (as Esay 44. 15. & 59. 15. for it seems to be here rather in an affirmative, than in a distinctive notion) thou Lord. (so the words lye in the text; as Psal. 55. 23.) knowest all their consultations, or devices, (vers. 18. See Esay 7. 5. & 14. 24, 26.) against me to slay me. Heb. for death: to destroy, and make me away, by one means or other; as if he had said, this is no bare suspition, or groundless surmise of mine own, concerning their mischievous plots and projects against me, but what God himself is privy to, and knoweth to be true. See ch. 11. 18, 19.

forgive not their iniquity, neither blot out their sin from thy sight;] See the like imprecations, Neh. 4. 4, 5. Psal. 59. 5. & 109. 14, 15. a form of speech borrowed from those that keep debt-books, to demand and require their debts by, which they continue undefaced, until they be paid, or they please to discharge the debters of them, and do then either blot them out, or cross the book. See Psal. 51. 1. Esay 43. 25.

but let them be over-thrown before thee;] Heb. and (as Esa. 29. 13.) let them be made to stumble; as vers. 15. See chap. 6. 15. & 8. 12. before thee; when thou pursuest them with thy wrath. See Psal. 35. 6. & 83. 15.

deal thus with them in the time of thine anger.] Heb. in the time of thine anger do to them; as Psal. 83. 9. the particle thus, is wanting, and may well be supplyed; as that, or the like, vers. 8.

CHAP. XIX.

Vers. 1. THus saith the Lord,] As ch. 17. 5, 21. or, Thus said the Lord; to wit, sometime or other, as chap. 17. 19. The present prophecy containeth a threatning of destruction to the Jewish State, and a confounding of all those courses, whereby they should endeavour to avert or avoid it, resembled by the breaking of an earthen vessel in Topher, enjoyned by God, and effected by the Prophet, as for their idolatry in general, so more specially for the same in that place committed.

Go and get a potters earthen bottel] Heb. Going, or, Go, and thou shalt buy, or get (as chap. 13. 1.) a bottel of the framer of earthen stuff; an earthen bottel of the potters framing, such an one as is easily broken, Psal. 2. 9. Esay 30. 14. Howbeit, the Jewish Criticks suggest unto us another fynesse of the place, rendring the text, Go and get, or buy, of, or from, the framer of earthen stuff, a bottel, or from the potter any earthen bottel: a defect, fay they, of the particle of, or from; as the like, 2 Sam. 23. 24. Dodo Bethlehem, for, Dodo of, or from Bethlehem: and this is much more probable, than that which the old Latine Translator exhibiteth, who having jumbled together the two branches of the verse, rendreth the words, Go and take an earthen bottel from the Elders of the people, and of the Priests; and would consequently have this earthen pot, or bottel, not to have been bought or brought by Jeremy from the potter, but to have been demanded of, and received from, those Ancients or Elders of the people, or the Priests.

a bottel] Heb. bakbuk: a word no where found in Scripture, but here, and 1 King. 14. 3. and it is faid by the Jewish Commenter here, to fignifie a vessel with a big belly, but narrow mouth or neck: so called from the bubling found that it maketh, when it is dipped in the water, or liquor, either poured forth, or drunk out of it; and he addeth withal, that the same is both in the Greek, and other Languages, termed bocal; wherein howsoever a learned Writer control him, both affirming, that no such term as that is found in Greek, or that cometh any thing neer it, fave bikos, which the Greek Version here maketh use of, and that the vessel in Spain and Italy, so termed, is not of that making: Yet herein, for the former, he bewrayeth his own ignorance; for Athenæus in his Supper-sophisters, l. 11. out of ancient Greek Authors mentioneth it, adding withal, that it was at Alexandria much used, and made sometime curiously, with images upon it, of glass. And Nicephorus also in his Ecclesiastical Story, l. 8. c. 5. telleth of a Presbyter at Alexandria, who was commonly called Baucalis, in allusion to the vessel so termed, which he saith was such an earthen vessel, as the Jewish Critick here describes; and for the same reason so termed, to wit, in regard of the bubbling, or guggling found that it made, either in taking in of liquor, or in the voiding of it again: whereof Alexander the Greek-questionist, (or, as some will have it, Trallian) rendreth a reason in his problems, lib. 1. quest. 94. and for the latter exception, that the pot, or vessel, in those places now commonly so called, was of another fashion than is there described; described: wherefore might be added, that such a narrow-necked vessel is not so fit to put or carry honey in; of which use of this Bathbook, see 1 Kings. 14. 3. the answer is not difficult, that the same name may comprehend vessels of divers sorts, and differing in fashion, though at first appropriated unto some one kind of them; as also that names borrowed from forrein Languages may, in time, much alter from that notion and use of them, which in their native at first they had: for so we use the term a vial, for some small glass onely of such a fashion as hath here been mentioned; albeit the word phialis, from whence we have it, did both with the Greeks and Latines, from whom we received it, signifie a drinking cup; as by the frequent use of Authors, in either Language, appears. See Rev. 15. 7. with cha. 14 10. And also again the Hebrew sephel, from which their phiala is not amiss deemed to have defended, did with the Jews signifie, neither a vial, as with us, or a drinking cup, as with them; but a dish for butter, Judg. 5. 25. or a bowl to hold water, Judg. 6. 37. But howsoever it were for the shape or fashion of it, that an earthen vessel it was, appeareth by the word following, whereof see Isa. 45. 9. Nor can I concur with that learned Commenter here, who to comply with the various Latine Version, would have it to have been one of those pots, wherein by way of ballatting (as the Ancient both Greeks and Romans, and some States also at this day, so the Jews also, and those Ancients from whom Jeremy had it) in their places of judicature, when they sat on the bench, used to give and gather up their Votes. But of the sandy ground of that conceit, see before.

and take of the ancients of the people, and of the ancients of the Priests.] Some of the Elders of either sort, (for of both these the Jewish Consistory consisted, 2 Chr. 19. 8. Act. 4. 5, 6, 23.) to go along with thee, that they may be eye-witnesses of what thou dost, and take special notice of what thereupon thou sayst. See somewhat the like, Esay 8. 2.

V. 2. And go forth unto the valley of the son of Hinnom] A Valley neer to Jerusalem: whereof see on Esay 30. 33. and chap. 7. 31.

which is by the entry of the East-gate;] What gate this was, or why so called, is not so certain. Some affirm it to have been the dung-gate, mentioned, Neh. 2. 13. & 3. 12. & 12. 31. So the Chaldee, and after him, those of the Rabbines, upon this place, one of whom telleth us, that this Gate had seven several names; and that it is here called the Sun gate, from a word that signifieth the Sun, Judg. 8. 13. & 14. 18. Job 9. 7. because it looked Eastward toward the sun-rising, whence some also would have it to be the East-gate, mentioned, Neh. 3. 29. Others render it, the Pot-sherd gate; as the word is used, Job 2. 8. or, the Earthen-vessel-gate; as vers. 1. so the old Latine rendreth it: and it is so called, say some, in part concurring with the former; because together with the filth of the city, and the Temple, the broken pot-sherds of earthen vessels used in the Temple, or in other places thereabout, used to be there cast out: or, say others, with more probability, because the potters-fields, whence they had the clay that they wrought with, and their work-houses wherein they wrought it, being not far distant from thence, the ways thereabout could not want store of that, in the drying and making of it up much of course necessarily miscarrying. See chap. 18. 1, 2. I suppose therefore, that it is not likely to have been either the dung-gate, which stood farther out of the way; nor yet the East-gate, if from the Sun it be so termed; but the South-gate rather, declining somewhat from the East-side of the city, so called, because the Sun lay most upon it, in regard whereof it was the more useful to the Potters, for the drying and hardning of their ware. And again, by it was the way to the valley of Hinnom, which lay Southward from Jerusalem, Josh. 15. 8. See Esay 16. 7.

and proclaim there the words that I shall tell thee] Heb. and thou shalt proclaim (as vers. 1. thou shalt get, or buy) to wit, in the presence of those ancients, v. 2.

there] In that place, where such horrible abominations are committed, v. 4.

I shall tell thee.] When thou comest thither; as chap. 18. 2. whereby it appeareth that Gods messages many times were not revealed to the Prophets, before the very instant of time, wherein they were to deliver them.

V. 3. And say,] Or, Then say; as chap. 18. 18. Heb. thou shalt say; and so also, vers. 11.

Hear the word of the Lord, O Kings of Judah, and inhabitants of Jerusalem:] He speaketh to them as present, in the hearing of those that might relate them unto them; and yet not unlikely but many of the people would for novelty flock after them, seeing the Prophet with those Ancients going solemnly that way out of the city, and taking from the Potter such a vessel to carry along with him. So chap. 17. 20.

Kings] That is, King and Queen-Mother, fay some, ch. 13. 18. or, as others. King and his Council, or Princes and Rulers. See ch. 17. 20.

Thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel] He that is able to do whatsoever he menaceth, and will do it, just cause being given him, even to those, that call him their God, and profess to be his Israel, Esa. 48. 1. So chap. 7. 21.

Behold I will bring evil upon this place,] Heb. Behold I am bringing evil (as ch. 6. 19. & 11. 11.) upon this place: not that particular place where the Prophet stood, but upon the neighbour-city, upon the state of Judah and Jerusalem.

the which whosoever heareth his ears shall tingle.] So hideous, that whosoever, not seeth it, but heareth of it, heareth onely the bare report of it, shall have his ears stricken with horrour and astonishment of it. So 1 Sam. 3. 11. 2 King. 21. 12. he shall not easily get his ears rid of it again, Job 15. 21.

V. 4. Because they have forsaken me] Chap. 16. 11.

and estranged this place] Or, have strangely abused; as the word seems to be taken, Deut. 32. 27. So abused this city contrary to what should have been practised in it, and so polluted and profaned it, that I can no longer own it. See Esa. 1. 4, 11, 12. Psal. 78. 3. Eph. 4. 18. Col. 1. 21.

and burnt incense to other gods, whom neither they, nor their fathers, have known, nor the Kings of Judah;] Or, while they burn incense, (so the copulative is used, 1 Kin. 11. 25.) or, in that they have burnt incense, (as Esa. 37. 24.) to idols, to strange gods, such as neither they, nor their ancestors, Kings or others, had ever any experimental knowledg or proof of, for their good, as from time to time, they had of him, whom for these vanities they leave. See Deut. 32. 17. Judg. 5. 8. cha. 1. 16. & 44. 3.

and have filled this place with the blood of innocents.] Both the city of Jerusalem by oppression and murther, Kin. 21. 16. & 24. 4. See ch. 7. 6. & 22. 3. and this place in particular where we now are, by sacrificing of poor infants to their abominable idols, Psal. 106. 37, 38. See v. 5. but the former principally here intended, as also chap. 2. 34. for of the latter apart afterward, ver. 5.

V. 5. They have built also the high places of Baal to burn their sons with fire for burnt-offerings unto Baal, which I commanded not, nor spake it, neither came it into my mind.] Heb. And have built, which may well be here retained. See ch. 7. 31. & 32. 35. 2 Kin. 23. 10. What is here said to Baal, is in these two latter places said to Moloch: but Baal and Moloch, were two terms very generally and promiscuously used of their idols; the one signifying a Lord, or Owner; the other a King; whence also Baalim oft, in the plural number. See ch. 2. 23. & 7. 9.

V. 6. Therefore behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that this place shall no more be called Tophet, nor the valley of the son of Hinnom, but the valley of slaughter.] See ch. 7. 32.

V. 7. And I will make void the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place,] In this place, is in Jerusalem especially, as before, vers. 4. though some would have it spoken by the pointing to the Kings Palace, situate not far from thence, on the South-side of the city: but that may be deemed somewhat over-curious. The plain meaning is, I will frustrate all your plots and projects, (as chap. 18. 23.) whereby you think to escape, and to secure your selves, (see Esa. 30. 1, 2. & 31. 1, 3. chap. 3. 7, 8.) and make them as vain and empty as this earthen bottel is: for unto the name thereof in this word he alludeth, which some therefore would have to be so named, not from the sound it makes in filling or emptying, but from the term of emptying only, here used: but that is not necessary; for in Scripture allusion is oft made to the vicinity of sound in some term; from which yet the word never had its original. So Mic. 1. 10, 14.

and I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies,] To fall, for, to be foiled, or, to be slain, or, to fall down, being slain: as 1 Sam. 4. 10. & 31. 1. ch. 20. 4. Exek. 6. 4. and by the hands of them that seek their lives:] Heb. their souls; as ch. 4. 30. & 18. 20. So v. 9.

and their carcasses will I give to be meat for the fowls of heaven, and the beasts of the field.] See ch. 7. 33. & 16. 4.

V. 8. And I will make this city desolate, and an hissing: every one that passeth thereby shall be astonished and hiss, because of all the plagues thereof.] Heb. hisses thereof; as Deut. 28. 59. & 29. 22. See the same before, ch. 18. 16.

V. 9. And I will cause them to eat the flesh of their sons, and the flesh of their daughters, and they shall eat every one the flesh of his friend, in the siege and straitness, wherewith their enemies, and they that seek their lives shall straiten them.] Before threatned, Lev. 26. 29. Deut. 28. 53. and in the siege of the city accomplished, Lam. 4. 10.

every one the flesh of his friend] Or, neighbour; they shall feed one upon another, (as ch. 46. 16.) without regard had to any bonds of vicinity or amity. See Esay 9. 20.

———distresses them.] Or, distress them. See Esay 29. 2.

V. 10. Then shalt thou break the bottel;] Or, Then (Heb. And, as chap. 18. 18.) break (as vers. 1. get, or, buy) the bottle: which he had brought or took along with him; thereby, as by a visible type, representing and obsigning what before he had said, that it might make a deeper impression in the minds of those that behold it.

in the sight of them that go with thee.] See ver. 1. Heb. to the eyes of them: as ch. 28. 1, 5, 11.

V. 11. And shalt say unto them;] Or, And say unto them; as vers. 3.

Thus saith the Lord of Hosts; Even so will I break this people, and this city, as one breaketh a potters vessel, that cannot be made whole again:] Before, he compared this people and State to moist and soft clay, which though it miscarry in the framing, yet may, with no great ado, be made up again, in some other fashion, to the mind of the maker, chap. 18. 4, 6. Now, to an earthen vessel, dryed and hardened, which being broken in pieces, cannot be made up, and set together again. So Esa. 30. 14. and somewhat the like, chap. 48. 12.

as one breaketh a potters vessel] Or, as a potters vessel is broken; as chap. 16. 6.

made whole] Heb. cured. as chap. 15. 18. Deut. 28. 27, 35.

and they shall bury them in Tophet till there be no place else to bury.] Or rather, they shall bury in Tophet (for them is not in the text) for want of room to bury elsewhere. See chap. 7. 32.

V. 12. Thus will I do unto this place, saith the Lord, and to the inhabitants thereof, and this place; this city, ver. 11.

and even make their city as Tophet] Where ye had wont to slaughter and sacrifice your children, ver. 5. I will fill the whole city with dead carcasses of slaughtered ones, as ye filled it before with innocent blood, 2 King. 21. 16. & 24. 4. chap. 32. 29. So that it shall be all like another Tophet, ver. 13. not unlike that Isa. 29. 2. that the whole city should be as another Ariel. See there Heb. and (or even, as chap. 15. 13.) to give (or to make: as chap. 5. 18. Dan. 12. 11. this city, (so is the text) as Tophet.

V. 13. And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the Kings of Judah shall be defiled as the place of Tophet;] The houses and palaces being filled also as well as the streets, with abundance of dead corpses, lying without sepulture in them, for want either of persons or place to bury them. See of Josias his defiling Tophet, 2 King. 23. 10. Howbeit, some read the words, the houses of Jerusalem, and of the Kings of Judah, which are defiled, (to wit, with those abominations exercised in them, and upon them, hereafter mentioned) shall be as Tophet; and the words may very well bear it: Kings, as before, ver. 3.

because of all the houses upon whose roofs they have burnt incense unto all the host of heaven, and have powred out drink-offerings unto other gods] Or rather with all the houses (so is the particle frequently used Ezr. 1. 5. & 2. 63. Neh. 7. 65.) upon whose roofs; for their houses being flat-roofed, Deut. 22. 8. they used on the tops of them to serve their idols, & to sacrifice to them, to the celestial bodies especially, as being in regard of the height of their houses neerer there to them, and having them more conspicuous there to their eye. See 2 King. 23. 12. Isa. 65. 3. Chap. 32. 29. Zeph. 1. 5.

V. 14. Then came Jeremiah from Tophet, whither the Lord had sent him to prophesie, and he stood in the Court of the Lords house, and said to all the people;] Heb. And; as ver. 10. Having dispatched his errand by God enjoyned him at Tophet, he returneth to the Temple, from whence in likelyhood he took those Ancients along with him, ver. 1. and there in the Court, whereunto the people had access as well as the Priests, 2 Chr. 23. he delivered in their hearing the sum of that which at Tophet he had before denounced.

V. 15. Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel;] See the same proem, ver. 3.

Behold, I will bring upon this city, and upon all her Towns, all the evil that I have pronounced against it,] Heb. Behold I am bringing (as ver. 3.) unto (or upon; as Cha. 4. 3. & 11. 11.) this city, and upon her cities, (the inferiour cities, and lesser Towns belonging to Jerusalem as the mother-city. See chap. 15. 8. & 34. 1.) all the evil that I have spoken against it, or concerning it; as chap. 18. 7, 9.

because they have hardened their necks,] Their extreme obstinacy the main cause of their ruine. See chap. 7. 26. and 17. 23.

that they might not hear my words.] That is, yield obedience thereunto, Deut. 6. 3. & 28. 1. Psal. 81. 11. Zach. 7. 12.

CHAP. XX.

Vers. 1. NOw Pashur, &c.] This Chapter hath a manifest dependence upon the former, containing a relation of the evil usage of Jeremy by one of the principall Priests, for his plain and faithfull delivery of Gods message before-mentioned, ver. 1, 6. together with a a grievous complaint made to God by the Prophet; wherein a strange mixture of contrary affections and passions is manifested; not free from some tang and taint of humane frailty, ver. 7, 18.

Now Pashur the son of Immer the Priest, who was also chief Governour in the house of the Lord, heard that Jeremiah prophesyed these things.] Or, Now when Pashur heard Jeremy prophesying these things; Pashur smote Jeremy, &c. This syntax is very common, Chap. 2. 7, 10. & 7. 7. & 6. 9, 10.

Pashur] Heb. Pashhur, or Paschhur: as Abas, or Achaz. See Isaiah 1. 1.

the son of Immer] Not that this Immer was Pashurs immediate parent, but his pregenitor; this Pashur being a Priest of the fixteenth course, whereof Immer at first constitution of them was chief head, 1 Chr. 24. 14. and this seemeth added to distinguish this Pashur from one of the same name, that was of another course, chap. 21. 1.

who was also chief Governour in the house of the Lord.] Heb. and he, for who; as chap. 15. 19. & 17. 7. unlesse we read it by way of parenthesis; (Now he was principal ruler in the house of the Lord) for also is not in the text. As for the style here given him, in the original they are two several substantives, whereof the one signifies a prefect, (rendred an offi cer, chap. 29. 26. and an overseer, Neh. 11. 9, 14, 22.) the other a Prince, or Ruler, used of Temple-officers, 1 Chron. 9. 20. & 26. 24. 2 Chr. 31. 13. the head it may be he was of that course whereunto he belonged, the Priests whereof were then in their course attending the Temple-service: or as some suppose, the second, next under the High-Priest; who upon any occasional disability betiding the High-Priest, was to perform offices in his place, Numb. 3. 32. 2 King. 25. 18. chap. 52. 24. called, say they, the principal; because divers other Rulers were under this second, 2 Chr. 35. 8. chap. 35. 4. Others again suppose him to have been the Captain of the Temple; who had power to apprehend such as committed any disorder in the Temple, Act. 4. 1. See chap. 29. 26. the thing, being uncertain, I shall leave to the consideration of the learned. I concur with the first; for they that would have this Pashur to be High-Priest, are easily answered, since, that besides that he was one of the 24. courses, whereas the High-Priest was of none (that which proveth Zachary also not to have been High Priest, as the ancients most of them imagined, Luk. 1. 5.) in the continued list of the High-Priests, from Aaron to past his time, we find none such mentioned, 1 Chr. 6. 4, 15.

heard that Jeremiah prophesyed these things.] Or rather, heard Jeremiah prophesying these things; for so the words run in the text: he heard not of it by information from some other; but he himself heard him in the Temple delivering this prophesie. Heb. these words, for these things; as chap. 11. 6. and 16. 10.

V. 2. Then Pashur smote Jeremiah the Prophet] Or, when Pashur heard Jeremiah the Prophet thus prophesying, he smote him; (the nouns for pronouns; as Isa. 64. 2. chap. 4. 4. 2 Tim. 1. 18.) to wit, in likelyhood with his hand, or fist, as Zedekiah smote Micaiah, 1 King. 22. 24. and as they our Saviour, Matth. 26. 67. And that, as may seem, interrupting him, while he was yet speaking, so that he could not proceed. Thus this presumptuous Priest, for ought we find, was the first that offered such an affront unto the Prophet, as none either of the greater or more powerful, or the meaner and ruder sort had hitherto done. Nor can I agree to that learned Annotator, who would have it to import no more then that he apprehended him, or laid hands on him; because it is said, Ezek. 33. 21. & 40. 1. the city is smitten, for the city is taken: for even there also is more then so implied; not taken barely, but stormed, or taken by storming: besides, that apprehending, or attaching and smiting, are two distinct things, and diverfly expressed, chap. 37. 14, 15.

and put him in the stocks] Heb. gave him as. Gen. 39. 20. chap 37. 15. but for the word following, there is no smal doubt concerning the right signification of it: nor doth the original of it afford us any fure ground to build on therein: it signifies properly subversion, or turning upside downward, Isa. 17. and 13. 19. chap. 49. 18. and 50. 40. our translators are not constant to themselves about it: they render it here stocks, elsewhere prison, chap. 29. 26. and 2 Chr. 16. 10. where the word house, or place is joyned with it: as with the like, 1 Kin. 22. 27. 2 King. 17. 4. And for the Jewish Doctors, some of them also so take it: but others of them us that it was a wooden engine, that they used to fasten men with in the prison; and some of these, that it was an engine made of two boards, wherein they were held fast by the neck; such as our pillory. Whereunto also some add, that it had three holes in it, one for the neck, and two for the hands. Others, that it was such an one wherein they held men fast by the legs, which in forreign languages, fay they, is called cippus: from whence the Chaldee swerveth very little; (though some give the word used by him another notation) and so should it be the same with our stocks, such as Job speaks of, Job 13. 27. (but there is another word there) and such as Paul and Silas were laid in, Act. 16. 24. Some of the Greek versions render it in general, an engine of torture. Among this variety to deliver mine opinion; I suppose it rather to signifie the prison-house, then any engine for fure custody, or torture therein used; to which purpose, see further on chap. 29. 26.

that were in the high-gate of Benjamin, which was by the house of the Lord.] Or, that was; if the word be taken for a prison: which from hence also it may seem to be; because it is said to have been situate in the high-gate, or upper-gate of Benjamin, where it is more probable that a prison was, then such an engine for any such use without it. But about this upper gate of Benjamin, there is again some question, whether it were one of the gates of the Temple, or one of the gates of the city. The Rabbines, and those that herein follow them, go the former way, and the words of the text seem so to carry it, (for that is the most generall notion of the particle here used) in the house of the Lord: not the Temple it self alone, but the courts also and other buildings about them, coming within the name of God's house. See chap. 7. 2, 10, 11. Math. 21. 12, 13. Joh. 2. 14, 16. and 10. 23, 24. and this gate, fay they, is called the gate of Benjamin, because it stood on that side of the Temple that belonged to the Tribe of Benjamin; the city of Jerusalem, and the ground also whereon the Temple was built, being part of it within the lot of Benjamin, and part within the lines of Judah. That which seemeth true indeed concerning the city, Josh. 15. 63. compared with Judg. 1. 21. but for the other concerning the Temple, though a learned late Writer of ours hath endeavoured by a line drawn from east to west through it, to cut it out to an hair, assigning just the one half of it, to wit, the North-side to Benjamin, and the other precise half of it on the South-side to Judah; yet in the sacred records doth no such thing appear; nor is ought produced for the proof hereof, save fome places out of Jacobs & Moses his blessing of Benjamin, Gen. 49. 27. & Deut. 33. 12. by the Chaldee Paraphrast, & fome Talmudists frivolously forced that way: which Talmudists also curious out the Temple another way then this learned man doth, in original they ad lack the Eastern part unto the Altar of burnt-offerings, and to Benjamin thence the Western part; grounding likewise this their division on the fame places as before abused. But taking for granted, that the Temple stood part of it within Benjamins lot, the forementioned Interpreters further add, that on the Benjamin-side of the Temple there were two gates, an upper and a lower; that this was the upper, so called, not in regard of the lofrier structure of it; but in regard of the situation of it, because it stood neerer to the innermoft part of the Temple, the Holy of Holies: and that in this gate there was a prison, to commit such unto, of the Priests or Levites especially, as did carry themselves ſelves amiſs in the Temple. Thus they. But others, whom our Verſion followeth, ſuppoſe this gate to be one of the gates of the city. Howbeit, amóg theſe alſo I find ſome diverſity. For ſome would have it to be a gate within the city. So a learned Interpreter, affirming it to be a gate in the wall of the city, that divided Judahs part of the city from Benjamins part of it, called therefore the gate of Benjamin; becauſe by it they paſſed out of Judah, into Benjamins quarter. But others, and ſo the moſt of this way, conceive it to have been a gate ſituate in the outer wall; ſo called, becauſe it looked toward the lot and land of that Tribe: (as the Gate of Ephraim, 2 King. 14.13. that opened that way) and it may well be alſo that it was ſituate on that part of the city wherein that Tribe had intereſt, called either the high gate, as ſome, for the ſtatelineſs of it, (as 2 Chr. 23.20.) or, as others, the upper-gate, (as, the utter pool, Eſay 7.3.) to diſtinguiſh it from another that ſtood lower then it on the ſame ſide: and this the rather they are induced to admit, becauſe they find elſewhere the gate of Benjamin, ſo uſed and taken, for one of the gates of the city, as twice in this prophecy, Chap. 37.12. & 31.7. and Zach. 14.10. but no where any of the Temple gates ſo termed: all the difficulty here is in the laſt clauſe, wherein of this gate it is ſaid, that it was in the houſe of the Lord: which to remove, our verſion rendreth it, by the houſe of the Lord: and this verſion is herein well juſtifiable; for the particle here uſed doth oft import, not the comprehenſion of the thing ſpoken of in the place mentioned, but the vicinity of it thereunto. So Num. 33.37. they pitched in (that is, by, or neer to) mount Hor. See there ver. 38. and, Joſhuah ſtood, in (for, by, or neer to,) Jericho. Joſh. 5.13. So alſo Joſh. 24.25,26. Joſhua is ſaid to have made a covenant between God and the people, in Sechem, ſetting up a ſtone for a monument thereof, under an oak, that ſtood in, or by the Sanctuary of the Lord; that is, neer to Sechem, where that oak ſtood, Gen. 35.4. not in the Sanctuary, but neer unto it: as alſo in the ſame Chapter, verſ. 32. Joſephs bones are ſaid to have been buried in Sechem; that is alſo, neer unto it. Yea, ſo Chap. 13.5. I hid the girdle in Euphrates; that is, by it, neer unto it, in the cleft of a rock: and chap. 32.7. my field in Anathoth, for, beſide it, or, neer unto it. And it is probable enough, that this gate of Benjamin was not far from the Temple. See further on Chap. 37.12.

V. 3. And it came to paſs on the morrow, that Paſhur brought forth Jeremiah out of the ſtocks; Then ſaid Jeremiah unto him;] Or, And ſo it was (as chap. 3.9.) on the morrow, when Paſhur brought Jeremiah out of the priſon, that Jeremiah ſaid unto him. Of the ſyntax, ſee on ver. 1. Of the word priſon, on ver. 2.

on the morrow Paſhur brought forth Jeremiah] Not to bring him to ſome publick hearing, as they did the Apoſtles, whom they had over night clapt up in priſon, Act. 4.3, 7. but to let him go again, whether admoniſhed ſo to do by ſome other more conſiderate then himſelf, or imagining this reſtraint and diſgraceful uſage of him in publick would ſtop his mouth for time to come, or for what other reaſon thereunto moving him, uncertain. But howſoever it was in this regard, this his contumelious carriage toward the Prophet, no more danted him, or damped his ſpirits, than Zedekiah's like preſumptuous demeanour did Micaiah; for at his parting with him, the Prophet freely delivereth him the like meſſage here, that Micaiah did to Zedekiah there, 1 King. 22.25. confirming what he tels him concerning himſelf, by a new name, and that ſuch an one, as not man, but God ſhould give him; (ſee ſomewhat of the like kind in Paul to Ananias, Act. 23.3, 4.) and withall reneweth again his former denunciations againſt the whole land and the city, ver. 4, 5.

The Lord hath not called thy name Paſhur, but Magor-miſſabib.] Together with the change of mens conditions are their names oftentimes altered; and names are impoſed oft to intimate as much: So was Abrams name changed to Abraham; Sarai to Sarah, Gen. 17.5, 15. Jacobs to Iſrael, Gen. 32.28. Joſephs by Pharaoh to Zaphnath-Paaneah, Gen. 14.45. and hence Naomi at her return out of Moab, Call me not Naomi, but call me Marah, Ruth 1.20. and ſuch or ſuch a name is God ſaid to impoſe on a perſon, not intending or importing ſimply that in ordinary compellation or communication, he ſhould be commonly ſo called or ſtyled; but thereby intimating & aſſuring, that ſuch ſhould be the condition and ſtate of that party, as that he might well deſerve ſuch a name, and might juſtly ſo be ſtyled. See hereof on Eſay 7. & 14. & 9.6. & 62.4. chap. 23.6. & 33.16. In like manner here the Prophet telleth this proud & godleſs Prieſt, that God, inſtead of Paſhur, had named him Magor-miſſabib; thereby to aſſure him, that ſo dreadfull ſhould his ſtate and condition ere long be, that in regard thereof he ſhould juſtly bear that name, and have it on good ground commonly given him by others. What the notation or ſignification of his native name Paſhur, or Paſhchur, was, is uncertain: nor is it greatly material. Some make it a compound, conſiſting of two terms, whereof the one ſignifies a growing up, Mal. 4.2. the other a noble, Eccl. 10.17. & ſo would have it to import a growing up Prince, or Noble. Others, of a word uſed commonly for the mouth; and another that ſignifieth black whereof Nilus hath its name Shichor, chap. 2.18. And others, of a word that ſignifies to diffuſe, Lev. 13.5, 7. And another that imports paleneſs, Eſay 29.22. as ſignifying one that by his authority and ſtern carriage, makes men look pale; which the rather pleaſeth the Author of it, becauſe it ſorteth well with the name now given him; as if it were ſaid, he that is now Paſhchur, one that by his ſterneſſe makes men pale for fear on every ſide, ſhall hereafter become Magor-miſſabib, one beſet with terrours on every ſide himſelf. But theſe far-fetcht and forced notations are of little weight, and of leſſe need or uſe here. Whatſoever it were that that term did or might import, God here giveth him another name, which to that needs have no relation; for the ſignification thereof is well enough known, and it is word for word, Terrour round about, or Fear on every ſide; and it may well be deemed by the frequent uſe of it, to have been a proverbial form of ſpeech, uſed of perſons in extreme diſtreſs, ſo beſet with difficulties and dangers, that they are at their wits end, not knowing which way to eſcape or to ſhift for themſelves. See Pſal. 31.13. Chap. 6.25. & 49.5. & 46.29. Lam. 2.22.

hath called thy name] Or, calleth thy name; that is, calleth thee; as call his name, that is, call him, Iſa. 8.3.

V. 4. For thus ſaith the Lord,] He that giveth thee this name, (whereof the reaſon here followeth) and will make it good upon thee.

Behold, I will make thee be a terrour to thy ſelf, and to all thy friends] Heb. I am giving thee for a terrour: giving, as bringing, Chap. 19.15. to give for a terrour, for to make one matter of terrour; as to give for an aſtoniſhment, for to make one matter of aſtoniſhment, Chap. 25.18. I will inflict ſuch evils upon thee, as ſhall affright not thee alone, but all thoſe that have any ſpecial relation to thee, or intereſt in thee, Pſal. 31.31. or as ſome render it, I will expoſe thee to terrour, thee and thy friends. I will ſurround and environ both thee and them with frights and fears; according to which verſion, the particle here uſed ſhould be vacant and redundant; as Chap. 18.19. & 40.2. or as others again, I will put a terrour into thee, into thee and thy friends: thee unto a terrour; by a trajection, for a terrour into thee: as they caſt the city into fire, for they ſet on fire the city, Joſh. 1.8. But the former ſeems the more familiar, and the better.

and they ſhall fall by the ſword of their enemies, and thine eye ſhall behold it;] Or, and (as Chap. 17.4.) in thy ſight. Heb. and thine eyes ſeeing; as Deut. 28.32. Thy friends, on whom at preſent thou relieſt, and to whoſe ſupport, it may be, truſting, thou now carrieſt thy ſelf ſo preſumptuouſly, ſhall be ſlain (as chap. 19.7.) and ſo taken from thee by the enemy, that thou ſhalt be deprived of all hope of relief or ſuccour from them; and this, to enhance thy grief, and augment thy terrour, ſhall be done in thy preſence, while thou ſtandeſt by looking on, neither able to afford any help unto them, nor to expect any from them. See the like aggravations, Deut. 28.29, 34. 1 Sam. 2.33. and the like judgement executed on King Zedekiah himſelf, Chap. 39.6, 7.

and I will give all Judah into the hand of the King of Babylon, and he ſhall carry them captive into Babylon, and ſhall ſlay them with the ſword.] I will deliver the whole country and people of it into Nebuchadnezzar's power, to diſpoſe, either for captivity, or for ſlaughter at his pleaſure, who ſhall alſo accordingly ſlay ſome, and inſlave others of them, Chap. 25.9. & 39.6, 9. hand for power, as Chap. 27.6. Pſal. 22.20. & 49.15. So alſo ver. 5.

and ſhall ſlay] And for or; as Chap. 18.7. Heb. ſmite; as Chap. 18.21.

V. 5. Moreover I will deliver all the ſtrength of this city, and all the labour thereof, and all the precious things thereof, and all the treaſures of the Kings of Judah will I give into the hand of their enemies, which ſhall ſpoil them, and take them, and carry them to Babylon.] Or, I will alſo deliver, or give up, Heb. And (as Chap. 1.3.) I will give; and the ſame word is again repeated.

ſtrength] So the word is uſed, Iſa. 33.6. but here rather wealth; ſo called, becauſe by induſtry and exerciſe of ſtrength ordinarily attained. So Prov. 15.6. & 27.24. See Deut. 8.18.

the labours thereof] Heb. labour; put here for the fruit of their labour, their goods thereby gotten: as Pſal. 128.2. Ch. 3.24. & 5.27.

all the precious things] Heb. each precious thing; as intimating, that nothing of price or worth ſhould eſcape their hands. See Iſa. 39.2. Lam. 1.10.

the treaſures of the Kings] Both of the King himſelf, and of his Princes, 2 Chron. 36.18. See chap. 17.20. & 19.3. or gathered together, and ſtored up by many Kings ſucceſſively, 2 king. 20.17. Iſa. 39, 6. where this alſo was all foretold. See chap. 15.13. & 17.3.

will I give into the hand of their enemies] The Chaldeans, chap. 37.10. So 2 Chron. 36.17. God gave all into his hand.

and they ſhall ſpoil them] Not mar them, as we uſe the word ſpoil; though they did make foul ſpoil and havock of many matters of much worth, becauſe they could not tranſport them whole and entire, chap. 52.17. but the word here uſed is of another notion, and may well be rendred, ſhall prey on them, or ſhall make prey of them; as 2 Chron. 14.14. and 25.13.

and carry them to Babylon] 2 King. 25.13, 16. 2 Chron. 36.18.

V. 6. And thou Paſhur, and all that dwell in thine houſe ſhall go into captivity, and thou ſhalt come to Babylon, and there ſhalt thou die, and ſhalt be buried there, thou and all thy friends, to whom thou haſt propheſyed lies.] Thou and thy family ſhall partake in the miſeries and calamities, howſoever thou wilt not now endure to hear of them, that ſhall befall this place and people in either kind, both in the ſiege and ſurpriſal of the city at home, and in captivity alſo, and thraldom abroad: thy life ſhall for no other end be lengthened, but that thou maiſt ſurvive to ſee and ſuffer the more miſery, both in thine own perſon, and in thoſe that have ſpecial relation to thee.

there ſhalt thou be buried] Though not debarred of burial; as againſt ſome other is denounced, Cha. 22.19. & 34.20. yet interred in a forreign land, out of the land of Iſrael, where to have their corpſe laid up, in regard of that peculiar intereſt that Gods people by his aſſignment had in that land, was in thoſe times counted a favour, Gen. 50.5, 25. Joſh. 24.32. and the contrary threatned as a penalty, Iſa. 22.16, 18. chap. 22.10.

thou and thy friends] Thou, together with them that have been ſeduced and deluded by thee, faring both of you alike. See chap. 14.15, 16.

to whom thou haſt propheſyed lies] Heb. whom to them: an uſuall redundancy; as Pſal. 1.4. thou haſt propheſyed by, or with a lie, or a falſhood; as the article in the particle included here carrieth it: ſo Chap. 5.32. & 23.14. and ſo chap. 13.25. as more particularly pointing to the preſent meſſage from God, by his lying Prophecy, and preſumptuous contradiction of it, oppoſed: otherwiſe without the article, with the particle alone, it might well be rendred as ſome here do, in, or with falſhood; that is, falſly, as Chap. 3.10. & 29.9. but that is not ſo full here.

V. 7. O Lord, thou haſt deceived me, and I was deceived:] The enſuing part of this Chapter is wholly ſpent in a diſcourſe of the Prophets own concerning himſelf; ſuppoſed by ſome to have been uſed by him, while he was under reſtraint in the priſon, as the 57. Pſalm, to have been compoſed by David when he was in the cave: and that of Jonas, Chap. 2. while he was in the whales belly. But of this there is no certainty. But whether then, or afterward, which to me ſeems more likely: it is of an abrupt frame, having much of man in it, conſiſting of a medly of paſſions and expreſſions of diverſe nature, ſome pious, couragious, confident and comfortable, ſome ſavouring of diſcontent and diſtemper, whereby it may appear to have proceeded from an eager combate and conflict between two contrary principles within him, and altering therefore erewhiles (as it fared in the fight between Amelek and Iſrael, Exod. 17.11.) as the one or other for the preſent either prevailed, or was foiled: the like ſee before, Chap. 11.20, & 15.15, 18. and 17.14, 18. & 18, 19, 23. He beginneth with a complaint, wherein he complaineth not unto God onely, but even of God himſelf, and his dealing with him. The like fits of infirmity whereunto, ſee in Jonas, Jon. 4.1, 2. yea in Moſes himſelf, Exod. 5.22, 23. Num. 11.11, 15. yet as Jonas his conteſtation with God, Jonas 4.9. might well be ſomewhat mollified by a juſtifiable Verſion, as the margent there ſheweth; ſo may Jeremies complaint have the harſhneſs of it, in part, helpt by a favourable reddition of it in ſome milder terms, which the words may well admit. For inſtead of that which our Verſion exhibiteth, following the old Greek and Latine, O Lord, thou haſt deceived me, and I was deceived: And others, with ſome little allay, Thou haſt enticed me, and I was enticed: the text may well be rendred, O Lord, thou perſwadeſt me, and I was perſwaded; to wit, by thee. Thou didſt perſwade me to undertake this prophetical employment, when I was of my ſelf nothing forward, but averſe rather thereunto, and deſired to be excuſed from being engaged therein, chap. 1.6. Howſoever by thine injunction and encouragement, upon thy preſſing it upon me, chap. 1.7, 8. I was perſwaded and induced willingly to condeſcend thereunto, chap. 17.16. but I find it now far more troubleſome than at firſt I did or could expect. True it is, that the word here found, is ordinarily uſed for by ſmooth and colourable inſinuations to entice and ſeduce ſimple and ſilly creatures, (thence in Hebrew alſo denominated, becauſe prone to give heed to, and be taken with fair ſhews, and flattering language, Prov. 14.15. and 21.11. Hoſ. 7.11. Rom. 16.18.) and conſequently by ſuch cunning carriage to deceive and beguile. So is it taken, Exod. 22.16. 1 King. 22.19, 22. Job 31.9. Prov. 16.29. and 20.19. and ſo hereafter, ver. 10. but the word in his firſt notion ſignifieth more largely, to perſwade in generall and ſimply, and by perſwaſion (as it is oppoſed to a violent impulſion) to induce and allure unto the doing of ought good or evill, without any ſpecial connotation of fraud or guile. So is it uſed, Prov. 25.15. and is attributed to God himſelf by Noah, Gen. 9.27. in alluſion to Japhets name; and by God himſelf uſed of himſelf, Hoſ. 2.14. Thoſe that render it, as our Verſion doth, ſeek divers wayes to ſalve it; ſome ſuppoſing, that Jeremy ſhould complain that God had deceived him, when he told him, that he had ſet him over nations and kingdoms, to pull down and deſtroy, Chap. 1.10. which he conceived to have been meant of forreign nations and kingdomes, the enemies of Gods people, to whom he was willing enough to go with ſuch meſſages; but he found it after to be otherwiſe, being ſent on ſuch errands to his own people. Others, that God had failed in the promiſe made him of protection, chap. 1.8. by expoſing and leaving him to ſuch contumelious uſages, as he had lately endured. See chap. 15.18. and the like, Pſal. 89.39. Others, that he had ſent him to threaten judgements, but had not hitherto inflicted them; by occaſion whereof, he had expoſed him to deriſion, and cauſed him to be deemed a falſe Prophet, chap. 17.15. Jonahs caſe, Jon. 4.1, 2. But of this, ſee on chap. 15.15. Others laſtly, which would do well, if the ſequel would well admit it, Lord, thou haſt deceived me, if I be deceived; for I have delivered nothing but what thou haſt enjoyned me: and the copulative indeed ſometime ſeems put for the conditional; as chap. 18.8. Amos 3.4. and we ſpeak ſometime in the ſame manner, The Prophet is miſtaken, and I be miſtaken; for I ſay nothing but what he ſaith. But the context of the Prophets diſcourſe ſeems to bend another way: and I adhere to the Verſion before delivered, as moſt fitly, in mine opinion, expreſſing the Prophets mind and intent here.

thou art ſtronger then I, and haſt prevailed;] Or, thou waſt too ſtrong for me, and prevailedſt with me: ſupplyed as before. Heb. thou waſt ſtrong from me; as Pſal. 18.17. they were ſtrong from me; well rendred there, they were too ſtrong for me; ſave that there the particle is expreſſed, which here is ſuppreſſed, as included in the verb: the like ſyntax, ſee, Iſa. 65.5. Thou didſt by thy perſwaſions and encouragements prevail with me, and put me upon it, when I had no mind or inclination of my ſelf thereunto, Chap. 1.6, 7, 8.

I am in deriſion dayly, every one mocketh me.] Or, I am had in deriſion all the day-long; (as Pſal. 44.15, 22. Eſay 62.6. & 65.2, 6.) each of them; to wit, of this people; (Heb. all he, as chap. 8.10. mocketh me. I m unceſſantly and univerſally derided. See the like complaints of other Gods ſervants, Job 12.4. Pſal. 22.7. Lam. 3.14. But here the Prophet complaineth to God of his continual and general deriſion; as an effect and fruit of the execution his office by God impoſed on him, ver. 8.

V. 8. For ſince I ſpake, I cried out, I cryed violence and ſpoil; becauſe the word of the Lord was made a reproch unto me and a deriſion daily.] In theſe words the Prophet relateth the cauſe why he was thus derided by his people.

For] Or, Becauſe; as Chap. 3.21, 25. Or, For Becauſe; for the particle is oft uſed in a double notion: as Exod. 18.16. Deut. 31.30.

ſince I ſpake] So moſt render the particle here: as alſo, Ch. 31.20. ſince I ſpake of him, and ſo the meaning ſhould be, ever ſince I began to prophecy. But the Jewiſh Criticks, and others, treading in their ſteps, render it, So oft as I ſpeake; ſo oft as I propheſie, and ſo the term is uſed, 1 Sam. 1.7. & 18.29. 1 King. 14.28. Iſai. 28.19.

I ſpake, I cryed out,] Or, I ſpeak crying out: as God in ſuch caſe would have his Prophets to do, Eſay 58.1. Heb. I ſpake, cryed for ſpake crying: as, cry fill, for, cry with full mouth, Chap. 4.5. though ſome disjoyn them, thus reading the text, ſince I began to ſpake, or, ſo oft as I ſpeak I cry out. I am enforced by the evil uſage of thoſe that heare me, to cry out and complain of them; but this ſeems ſomewhat forced: rather, as before, Becauſe when I ſpeak, (that is, ſo oft as I ſpeak) I cry out. So the text runs moſt freely.

I cryed violence and ſpoil] Or, I cry, or, proclaim violence and ſpoil: this clauſe ſome knit to the former branch, ſome refer to what followeth: and by violence and ſpoil here, ſome underſtand the violence and wrong, which himſelfe was therefore enforced to complain of, becauſe he was ſo reprochfully entertained for it; but of that before. Others underſtand it of the wicked injurious courſes of his people, which in his prophecy he ſtill cryed out of, and inveighed againſt, chap. 6.6, 7. Others again, of the ſpoil and rapine that ſhould from the enemy befall them; which in his Sermons he was frequently foretelling. See on ver. 5. and this unpleaſing matter was that indeed that made the Prophet ſo odious among them: to which ſenſe of the words I the rather incline; becauſe the term of proclaiming (Chap. 3.12. Dan. 3.4.) ſeems to carry it that way.

becauſe the word of the Lord was made a reproch unto me, and a deriſion daily] The words thus rendred ſeem to render a reaſon why he was conſtrained thus to cry out of violence and ſpoil; becauſe ſo oft as he propheſied, he found continually ſuch contumelious and reprochful entertainment. Howbeit, the words may well be read on this manner with good coherence to the former; For when, or, For as oft as I ſpeak crying out, (in way of admonition and reproof) and proclaim violence and ſpoil, ready to fall upon them for their wickedneſs and obſtinacy) ſurely, (ſo is the particle oft uſed. See Eſay 60.9. & 63.16.) the word of the Lord becometh a reproch unto me, (ſee Chap. 6.10.) or, For becauſe, when, or, ſo oft as I ſpeak crying out, I proclaime violence and ſpoil, therefore (for this cauſe, becauſe I preach in this manner; as the particle is uſed Pſal. 116.10. See Chap. 9.20. & 16.5. as alſo, Gen. 22.12. where the particle is alſo repeated in a twofold diſtinct notion, as here) doth the word become a reproch unto me, and a deriſion all day long: inceſſantly; as before v. 7. not as ſome, becauſe what I ſpeak is not preſently executed; as if that were the ground of the Prophets complaint, and the occaſion of his preſent diſtemper and grievance, though that were one maine cauſe, that made many of them ſo preſumptuous and inſolent in oppoſing the Prophet, imagining his words were but wind; and that what he ſaid would never be effected, Chap. 5.12, 13. & 17.15. but ſimply, that this was the continuall iſſue of his teaching, as he had before hinted, ver. 7. nothing but continual reproch and mockage; that which therefore made him weary of his employment, ver. 9.

V. 9 Then I ſaid, I will not make mention of him; nor ſpeak any more in his name.] Heb. And I ſaid; as Chap. 19.14. or, Therefore, (as Chap. 16.13.) I ſaid; I began hereupon to think or reſolve with my ſelf, (as Pſal. 32.5 & 39.1.) to forbear propheſying any more; to ſilence my ſelfe, conſidering what manner of ſucceſs I had with it, and to leave mentioning the Lord, and delivering any meſſage unto them as from him: him, for, the Lord; the pronoun for the noun; as Gen. 15.13. Exod. 34.28. I ſuppoſed it better to hold my peace; ſince that I ſaw nothing to accrew by my ſpeaking, either to God or my ſelf, but diſhonour and diſgrace, Amos 5.13.

But his word was in mine heart, as a burning fire ſhut up in my bones, and I was weary with forbearing, and I could not ſtay.] Or, But (Heb. And; as Chap. 18.27.) there was, or, but that there was in mine heart as a burning fire ſhut up in my bones; which I was weary with holding, and not able to keep in; or, as ſome render the laſt clauſe, and I laboured to ſuſtain it, but could not: the former verb ſignifieth preciſely to be weary, Eſay 1.14. chap. 15.6. the latter either to contain, as 1 King. 8.27. chap. 2.12. or, to ſuſtain, as chap. 10.10. Amos 7.10. but I follow rather here the former: for that parallel place, chap. 6.11. the ſubſtantive is imperſonal; nor is, his word, in the text; which ſhould therefore have had a different letter: though the Rabbines expound it of the word of prophecy; and might better be deemed the word of charge: but neither is in the text; and the copulative for the relative is frequent: as chap. 14.18. & 17.6. The meaning is, I was ſo inwardly pained and tormented, while I did awhile ſtrive to forbear, as if I had had a glowing fire encloſed within me, in my bowels and my bones, ſo that I was not able to contain my ſelf, but muſt of neceſſity fall to my former employment again. See the like, chap. 6.11. Pſal. 39.3. Job 32.18, 19. See alſo, 1 Cor. 9.17.

V. 10. For I heard the defaming of many, fear on every ſide.] Theſe words are taken from Pſal. 31.13. and are applyed by the Prophet here to his own preſent occaſion and condition, if we take them ſimply, (which our Verſion doth) as they are in the Pſalm, and as the latter branch is uſed, in ſome of thoſe other places above produced, on ver. 3. there is no great difficulty in the text: for the meaning is plain enough, having reference to what the Prophet had before said, of thoughts rising within him of relinquishing his employment, and rendring the reason of such his thoughts; to wit, because he had notice given him of slanderous reports and treacherous devices of many, that combined and consulted together, how by false suggestions and malicious informations against him, they might work his ruine; in regard whereof, he perceived that from all sides there was much danger towards him, and matter consequently of affrightment: for so with David it was when he uttered those words; and so with Jeremy at the present. Howbeit, some Interpreters here suppose the latter branch to be spoken of Pashur and his complices; wherof more anon.

For I heard] Or, I had heard, (Gen. 12.1. God had said) or, I had heard of: a report had come to mine ears of it: for it is not likely that these contrivers of mischief would openly in the Prophets own hearing relate, what they intended to charge him with.

the defaming] Or, diffamation, or, detraction, or, slander, as it is not amiss rendred, Num. 14.36. Psal. 31.13. Prov. 10.18. for the word seems properly to signifie, to wit, a false report tending to the discredit of the party or thing, whereof it is reported, Numb. 13.32. & 14.36,37. and the Jewish Criticks observation of it is both frivolous and groundless, to wit, that where it is joyned to the word iotsi, it should signifie a false report; as Prov. 10.18. Num. 13. & 14. where with the word hebi, a true: as Gen. 37.2. for those two verbs signifying, the one to produce, and the other to bring, do alter nothing at all in the nature of the word; a slander may as well be produced, as brought; and brought, as produced: and for that place of Genesis, though Josephs report made to his father concerning his brethren might be true, as in likelyhood it was; yet that which he complained of to his father concerning them, (if it were, as I conceive it to have been, their opprobrious language, and bad terms given him) might as well for the matter thereof be false as true: (emulation and spightfulness seldome speaking otherwise) or if it were not matter of speech, but evil and scandalous carriage, as some would have it, whereby they brought infamy and shame upon themselves, (for so also is the word sometime used; because infamy is a brat of flanders breeding, Prov. 25.10. Ezek. 36.3.) then the place maketh nothing at all to the purpose for the sounding or grounding of the distinction concerning reports, true or false, by this term signified: which questionless is used as by David before concerning those false reports that were suggested to Saul against him, 1 Sam. 24.9. So by Jeremy here, concerning those false aspersions, and unjust charges, wherby his persecutors conspired together, to incense King and State against him. See Chap. 38.4.

Of many, fear on every side] Or, as some, the defamation of many, the terrour on every side, of those that say, such things as follow in the text: or, as others, the defamation of many, from whom terrour is on every side; by reason of the multitude that thus combine against me: a defect of the relative: as Chap. 15.14, 18. and of the particle from; as Chap. 10.20. & 18.1. But some Interpreters of note retain the Hebrew term here, taking the word for a proper name; some of them rendring the text, heard the defamation of many Magor-missabibs; that is, of many such as this Pashur. Others, of many, of Magor-missabib, (that is, of Pashur, and of the false Prophets, such as are after here described) Others again, I have heard a report from many, concerning Magor-Missibib; that is, concerning this Pashur, how he hath set others on work to raise and bring in false reports and charges against me. But I rather incline to take the words here, as I find them in the Psalm, from whence they are taken.

Report, say they, and we will report it:] These some make the words of Pashur, which those many before-mentioned should hear him speak; and they therefore insert, how he should say, Report ye to us, &c. Others, of him and his complices, or, his instruments, those of his house. ver. 6. others, indefinitely, of those many, before spoken of; which seemeth most both safe and probable; and with our version well agreeth: for I cannot accord with that learned Interpreter, who (going herein, I suppose, alone) would have it to be a description of the false Prophets, thus rending the text, of those that say, Tell us what we shall tell: that demand of the people what they will have told or taught them, and accordingly tell them, what they best like to hear. But the words seem rather the speech of those, who desirous to get somewhat whereof to accuse the Prophet unto the King and State, set others on work to watch him, and if they can catch hold of ought that slippeth from him, and that by misrelating and misconstruing, may make any way against him, to bring it to them, that they may accordingly make use of it against him: and this suits well with the words ensuing. See Chap. 18.18. See also the like practices against our Saviour Christ, when he taught here upon earth, Mat. 22.16,17. Mar. 12.13,14. Luk. 11.53,54. & 20.21.

all my familiars watched for my halting;] Heb. every man of my peace: as Chap. 38.22. Even those that pretended kindness, and made shew of good affection to me, carrying themselves outwardly towards me, as if they intended me no evil, but were desirous of my welfare; yet did generally in wait to take me tripping in ought if they could, that might give mine adversaries any advantage against me. See the like perfidiousness complained of, Job 19.19. Psal. 14.9. & 55.13. and warning given of it, Chap. 9.4. & 12.6. and the like lying in wait, with the form of halting here used, Psal. 35.15. & 38.16. See also Chap. 5.26. That learned Interpreter before-mentioned, doth hitherto carry on the whole foregoing passage of this verse in one continued tenour, on this wise; For I heard the infamous speech of many, of Magor-missabib, of those that say, tell us what we shall tell you, of every one that should have been at peace with me, of those that watch for my halting. But it goeth better in parts sunder; as our version exhibiteth it.

saying, I reade unture, he will be enticed; and we shall prevail against him; and we will take our revenge on him.] It may be by closing and glozing with him, we may draw something from him; whereby having over-reached him, we may prevail against him, and work our own ends. See of the term here used on ver. 7. of such snares to catch and entrap persons, Chap. 5.26. & 18.20,22. Esay 29.21. See also the like defects of, say they, and saying, Chap. 2.25. & 3.22. Psal. 27.8. and 115.15. Act. 15.5.

V. 11. But the Lord is with thee, as a mighty terrible one:] After the former storm of discontent and misdoubt, arising from the apprehension and consideration of the general conspiracy, and banding together of persons maliciously and mischievously disposed against him, which seemed shrewdly to have staggered him, ver. 9, 10. the Prophet in the next passage here beginneth to recover himself, and to strengthen his faith against all oppositions, by assurance of Gods constant presence with him, and powerfull protection of him, according to his promise, Chap. 1. 19. & 15.20,21. But, or, Howbeit, or, Notwithstanding; as v. 4. or was as Cha. 35.14. the Lord is with me, as Psal. 46.7. Rom. 8.31. as a mighty terrible one: one of infinite might; and able to terrifie the most terrible among them, that thus plot together, and fet themselves against me, thinking thereby to affright and daunt me, chap. 11.21.

therefore my persecutors shall stumble] They that thus pursue me, shall themselves be overthrown, Chap. 18.23. Psal. 27.2. and they shall not prevail] They must prevail against God, ere they prevail against me. See Chap. 1.19.

they shall be greatly ashamed;] Or, abashed, Chap. 17.18. Psal. 70.2,3.

for they shall not prosper,] Or, they deal not prudently, or, skilfully: for thence our English word skill. See of the use of the word in Esay 52.13. they take a very unwise course by opposing God in his Prophet, Act. 5.39.

their everlasting confusion shall never be forgotten.] Heb. igwominy of perpetuity. So chap. 23.40. a defect of the pronoun: as Chap. 17.21. or, everlasting, referring these words to the first member, they shall be greatly ashamed because they shall not prosper) with an everlasting infamy, that shall never be forgotten: a defect of the relative: as chap. 50.5.

V. 12. But, O Lord of hosts, that triest the righteous, and seest the reins, and the heart: let me see thy vengeance on them; for unto thee have I opened my cause.] See the same in effect before, chap. 11.20. See also chap. 17.10.

triest the just] And by trying of them, knowest them, takest notice of them, and approvest them, Psal. 11.5,7.

V. 13. Sing unto the Lord, praise ye the Lord;] From the before professed assurance of Gods presence with him, and protection of him, the Prophet here riseth higher, raising up his soul from his former dumped and dumpish disposition, to no small degree of lightsomness and alacrity of spirit, expressed in an encitement of himselfe to sing praises to God for his goodness shewed toward him; in delivering him out of the hand of Pashur and his complices, and restoring him to his liberty again. See the like, Psal. 42.5,11. & 43.5. or it may be deemed, as some take it, to respect future deliverances, praising God for them, before he receive them, out of an hopefull and assured expectation of them, as if already he had received them, like that of David, Psal. 13.6.

for he hath delivered the soul of the poor from the hand of evil doers.] Or, because (as chap. 14.5,6.) he hath delivered the soul of the poor (that is, the poor simply; as, to my soul, for, to me, Psal. 3.2. or, the life of the poor: the poor man being in danger of losing his life; as Psal. 30.3. & 116.8. and his meaning is, my poor soul, my poor self, Psal. 34.6. out of the hand (that is, the power; as chap. 15.21. Psal. 89.48.) of evil-doers. So Psal. 30.5. and 109.31.

V. 14. Cursed be the day wherein I was born] A strange alteration and sudden downfall from such a strength of confidence before professed, ver. 12. and height of joy in the very next foregoing words manifested, to such a low dejection of mind, and such an uncouth distemper of spirit, as inconsiderately to curse the day of his nativity, and the persons themselves that brought his father the report of his birth. Wherein is represented unto us a very lively pattern of humane imbecility, remaining even in the best, who in regard thereof therefore have need of an inessant assistance and support from above, to carry them on inoffensively thorow the crosse occurrents of this present wicked world. See the like weakness in Job, Job 3.3.16. a tang hereof we had before, chap. 15.10. Howbeit, some, to take away the strangeness of this sudden change, suppose these execrations not to have fallen from the Prophet at this present, but that in these ensuing verses is contained a relation onely of what had flipt from him, during the time of his restraint and distress: and they render the text with a connexion of these words to the former, in this manner; he hath delivered out of the hand of evil doers the soul of the poor; who said, Cursed be the day wherein I was born, &c. that is, who out of impatiency and impotency of spirit, while he was yet in distress, cursed his birth-day in this manner: and this may seem to carry some shew of probability with it. Let the learned judge of it, let not the day wherein my mother bare me be blessed. The same in other terms with the former.

V. 15. Cursed be the man who brought tidings to my father, saying, A man-child is born unto thee, making him very glad. So our Saviour, for joy that a man (that is, a male) is brought forth, Joh. 16.21. Heb. by gladding gladding him: as the like, Esay 61.10. Thus are parents much gladded ost at the birth of their children, who if they did foresee what misery they are born to, would lament many times as much over them, as they are wont to rejoyce for them.

V. 16,

V. 16. And let that man be as the cities, which the Lord overthrew and repented not.] Let him perish as did Sodom and Gomorrha, (Deut. 29.23. Amos 4.11.) which God destroyed without recovery, or without revocation of the doom passed upon them, Zeph. 2.9. which concerning Zoar was reversed, Gen. 19.21.22.

and let him hear the cry in the morning, and the shouting at noon-tide:] The shouting of enemies breaking in, and the out-cries of people surprised by them, chap. 4.19. & 15.8. & 18.22. & 49.2. Zeph. 1.16. Let him live in continual terrour and trouble, Job 15.21.

V. 17. Because he slew me not from the womb:] Or, why was I not slain from the womb? that is, so soon as I came out of it, so soon as I was born, Job 3.10 & 10.18,19. Hos. 9.11. for in the womb, which a late learned Annotator suggesteth, will not do well here. Heb. he did not cause me to die; that is, God, say some, which the Italian Version putteth in the text: he that brought my father news of my birth; as the most: but the verb seems indefinite, and is best rendred by the passive: as ch. 18.14.

or that my mother might have been my grave, and her womb to be always great with me] Heb. and: but here in a disjunctive notion; as v. 4. or was not (the negative supplyed from the former branch: as Psal. 9.18.) my mother made my grave, and her womb ever great? being never delivered of that she went with. Heb. her womb going great of perpetuity, or, an ever-lasting going great; that she had never been delivered of me; that I had never come to light; like those, Psal. 58.8. Eccl. 6.3.

V. 18. Wherefore came I forth out of the womb to see labour and sorrow,] So Job 3.10. to see, that is, to sustain and suffer: as ch. 5.13. & 14.13. Lam. 3.1. labour and sorrow; or vexation and grief; that which man is born to, Job 5.6,7.

that my days should be consumed with shame?] That my whole life should be thus spent, and my self wasted away, through the ignominious and contumelious usage of mine adversaries, v. 7,8.

CHAP. XXI.

V. 1. The word that came unto Jeremiah from the Lord,] As chap. 18.1. This Chapter containeth an answer returned from God, upon occasion of a motion made by King Zedekiah to the Prophet, to enquire of God, or address himself unto him, in behalf of the King, and the State, in regard of the Chaldean forces that were fet down before the city, v. 1,2. and the answer is directed, 1. To the whole state of the city, v. 4,7,2. To the people, v. 8,10,3. To the King and Rulers, ver. 11,12. all closed up with a denunciation of utter destruction and devastation, notwithstanding their imaginary strength, v. 13,14.

when King Zedekiah sent unto him, Pashur the son of Melchiah, and Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the Priest, saying;] Thus Zedekiah, though an evil King, and one that would not take any wholesome and safe advice from Gods Prophet, 2 Chr. 36.12. ch. 38.15. yet in times of distress, is glad to send here unto him, as at other times also afterward, ch. 37.3. & 38.14. but not as Ezekiah to Esay, out of an heart touched with sincere sorrow and remorse for his sins, 2 Kin. 19.1. Esa. 33.2. but as Pharao to Moses, for the removal of judgments, if it might be, Exod. 9.28.

Pashur the son of Melchiah] One of the same name with the former, that so abused the Prophet, chap. 20.1. but of another house and course; for he, that Pashur, was of the family of Immer, which was the sixteenth rank, 1 Chr. 24.14. whereas this Pashur was of the family of Melchias, which was the fifth rank, 1 Chr. 24.9. and a man, in likelyhood, of a better and milder disposition than that other.

Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah] Of his race, which made up the twentieth course, 1 Chr. 24.18. Of the same party, fee further, chap. 29.25, 29. & 37.3.

V. 2. Enquire, I pray thee, of the Lord for us;] Or, Entreat God for us; seek to him in our behalf: for so the word is commonly used, Deut. 4.29. Esa. 55.6. Ezek. 36.37. where it would much better be rendred, required, or requested, or sought unto, then enquired of; which suiteth not well there.

(for Nebuchadrezzar, King of Babylon, maketh war against us)] Nebuchadrezzar; so is he called oft in this Prophecy; as ch. 25.9. who is elsewhere commonly termed Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. 1.1. and by the Greeks and Latines, Nabuchodonosor; and he was now fet down with his forces before Jerusalem, v. 2. the cause and ground of his invading the land, and besieging the city, fee 2 Kin. 24.17,20. & 25.1,2. 2 Chr. 36.10,13.

if so be that the Lord will deal with us, according to his wondrous works] Or, it may be the Lord will deal with us, &c. for that is the proper and most usual notion of the term here used; as Zeph. 2.3. this they speak as hoping that God might be induced, especially upon Jeremies entreaty, to shew favour unto them, and work some strange deliverance for them, as he had done formerly for Ezekiah, upon the prayer of Esay, 2 Chr. 32. 20,21. (for that deliverance they seem to have a more special eye unto) and for other of his servants at other times, 2 Chron. 14.9,15. and 20.1,25. So Psal. 44.1. but in vain do wicked wretches hope for relief and succour from him, whom they regard not to serve, by whom they refuse to be ruled, ch. 2.17,28.

that he may go up from us] That Nebuchadrezzar who now besiegeth us, may be compelled to break up his siege, and so depart from us; as Sennacherib was sometime inforced to do, Esa. 37.3,6,37. go up, that is, raise; raise his siege: or rather simply, depart, go away; as ch. 37.5. So ch. 4.7,13. 1 Kin. 15.19.

V. 3. Then said Jeremiah unto them] Heb. And Jeremiah said; as ch. 20.9. Thus shall ye say to Zedekiah:] Or, Thus say; as ch. 19.3.

V. 4. Thus saith the Lord God of Israel;] That God, from whom ye expect protection, as being a part, yea, the principal part of his Israel, see chap. 1.9.3.

Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war, that are in your hand, wherewith ye fight against the King of Babylon, and against the Chaldeans; which besiege you without the walls,] I will be so far from relieving and succouring you, that I will turn the weapons that ye fight with, from your enemies, upon, or against your selves, by setting you together by the ears amongst your selves. See chap. 13.14. or, I will turn them back, and cause them to recoil, without doing of any damage at all unto them. See Psal. 89.41. So that all your fighting against them, shall be in vain, and to no purpose. See chap. 32.2. Heb. I am turning back, or turning about; as bringing, ch. 19.15. and wherewith ye are fighting with him, and them, as ch. 37.10. and wall, for, walls, as Ezek. 38.11.

and I will assemble them in the midst of this city.] Or, I will bring them (who are yet without the walls) into this city. So is the word used, Exod. 9.19. that is not brought into the house: and Deut. 22.2. thou shalt bring it into the midst of thine house; that is, simply, home: to thine house; where we have together, both the notion of the verb, and the form also here used.

V. 5. And I my self will fight against you, with an out-stretched, and with a strong arm, in anger, and in fury, and in great wrath.] So far will I be from defending you or this city, as in former times I have done, Esa. 37. 35. & 38.6. Heb. fight with you, for, against you; as before, v. 4. an out-stretched hand; a term borrowed from the manner of stretching out the hand furnished with some offensive weapon to strike the enemy in fight, Josh. 8.18,19.26. So Esa. 9.12,21. of the arm, see the like, Exod. 6.6. Psal. 136.12. and this carriage of God towards them, complained of, Lam. 2.3,4.

V. 6. And I will smite the Inhabitants of this city, both man and beast] Or, I will slay (as chap. 18.21.) those that abide in it: for the word signifieth as well to abide, as to dwell, Judg. 5.16. ch. 39.14. and would be here rendred, as it is ver. 9. Heb. and the man, and the beast; and, for, both; as chap. 17.26.

they shall die of a great pestilence.] See ch. 16.4. & 18.21.

V. 7. And afterward, saith the Lord, I will deliver Zedekiah King of Judah, and his servants, and the people, and such as are left in this city from the pestilence, from the sword, and from the famine, into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of those that seek their life;] See ch. 15.2. & 34.20,21.

and his servants] So Chap. 22.2. & 36.31.

and such as are left] Or, even such; as Chap. 19.12. hand, for, power; and sord, for, life; as ch. 20.13. & 38.16.

and he shall smite them with the edge of the sword:] He, that is, the King of Babylon, shall smite, that is, slay them; as v. 6. yet not Zedekiah himself, chap. 34.4. but his sons, his principal and chief officers, and other of the Priests and people, ch. 39.6. & 52.7,9. with the edge of the sword. Heb. mouth; as Deut. 13.15. Luk. 21.24.

he shall not spare them, nor have pity, nor have mercy.] Of the cruel carriage of the Chaldeans toward this people, see 2 Chr. 36.17. Esa. 47.6. ch. 6.23. Lam. 5.12,13.

V. 8. And unto this people thou shalt say;] Or, And say to this people; or, Say also to this people; as v. 3.

Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will set before you the way of life, and the way of death.] Or, I set before you. Heb. I am giving before you: giving, as, turning, verf. 4. and, to give, for, to set; as Deut. 30.19. where see the like. I shew you how ye may escape; by yeelding your selves unto Nebuchadrezzar, ch. 38.17. and how ye will bring destruction upon your selves, if ye stand it out against him, chap. 27.8.

V. 9. He that abideth in this city shall die by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence:] See v. 6. ch. 38.2. the disjunctive would do better here (as also, ch. 20.4,17. and verse 13. than the copulative; because the participle preceded is singular, though collective: for some were to perish by one of the three, and some by another, not each one by all three. See ch. 15.2.

but he that goeth out, and falleth to the Chaldeans, that besiege you, shall live,] Heb. and; as chap. 20.9. that goeth out; to wit, of the city; to yield himself into their hands (so chap. 38.2. & 2 Kin. 24.12. Jehoiachin went out unto him) and falleth to the Chaldeans, (as ch. 37.13. thou fallest to the Chaldeans) shall live: shall escape.

and his life shall be unto him for a prey.] A proverbial form of speech, importing as much, as he shall save, or gain his life: his life shall be to him, as some booty gotten in fight, in regard of the joy he may have of it, say some, Psal. 119.162. or in regard of the achievement and possession of it, as others rather; his life seeming to be as it were new acquired, and gotten again to him, and himself repossessed of that, which seemed in a manner utterly lost before: as 2 Cor. 1.8,9. Heb. 11.17,18. for lawful prey is deemed good purchase, Esa. 49.24. See the use of this form again, chap. 38.2. & 39.18. & 45.5.

V. 10. For I have set my face against this city for evil, and not for good, saith the Lord;] Or, I have set my face upon this city (and so Psal. 34.16. as the particle is well rendred, Neh. 9.10. & 13.21. Eft. 3.6. that it may fare the better with either member of the distribution ensuing) for evil and not for good. So ch. 39.16. & 44.11,27. Amos 9.4.

it shall be given into the hand of the King of Babylon] hand, for, power; as verf. 7.

and he shall burn it with fire] He shall cause it to be burnt. So chap. 38. 23. & 39.8.

V. 11. And touching the house of the King of Judah, say;] Or, And unto the house of the King. So the text precisely hath it. To those of the Kings Court, that are in place of Judicature, or in offices thereunto belonging, say] Supplyed; as Esa. 8.19.

Hear

Hear the word of the Lord ;] Or, Hear the word of the Lord , O house of David ; annexing the compellation unto this clause, though prefixed to the words ensuing, v. 12. as Phal. 96. 12, 13. & 98. 8, 9.

V. 12. O house of David] Yet of the Court that was Davids sometime, & that come many of you from his flocks, Esa. 7. 2, 13. c. 1 3, 13 & 22. 2.

Thus saith the Lord, execute justice in the morning ;] Imitate him of whose house ye are, who fate constantly doing judgment and justice to all his people, 2 Sam. 8 15. 1 Chr. 18. 14. So chap. 22. 3. Heb. Judge in the morning judgment. Either do it timely, not spending the morning in eating and drinking , when ye should be about matter of judicature, Eccl. 10. 16, 17. for in the morning did the people use to repair for justice to the place of judicature , Exod. 18. 13. or , do it diligently, every morning ; morning after morning, as Amos 4. 4. daily without failing. See David, Psal. 101. 8.

and deliver him that is spoiled out of the hand of the oppressor.] R'ght the oppressed against those that oppress them, and make a spoil of them. See Psal. 72. 4, 12, 13. & 82. 3, 4. hand, for, power ; as before, v. 7, 10.

lest my fury go out like fire, and burn that none can quench it , because of the evil of your doings.] Implying, that their neglect of justice , and default therein, was one of the main sins that would be the cause of their utter and irrecoverable ruine, if it were not speedily reformed, Esa. 1. 23. & 59. 4, 14, 15. ch. 5. 28. & 6. 6, 7. & 22. 17. See the like expressions, chap. 4. 4. & 17. 24.

V. 13. Behold, I am against thee, O Inhabitant of the valley, and rock of the plain, saith the Lord, which say, who shall come down against us ? or who shall enter into our habitation ?] In the close of this answer returned to the messengers of Zedekiah, God, by the Prophet , meeteth with those their presumptuous conceits, whereby they imagined their city to be , in regard of its situation, and fortifications, an impregnable piece, able to withstand any the greatest forces, or force, that could be raised, or made against it ; which to put them from, the Lord telleth them , that he will come himself against them, as in the head of those that invade and assault them, and do that which they fondly and vainly suppose not to be feasible. See v. 5.

Behold, I am against thee] Heb. no more but , I unto thee (for so the word most commonly signifies) or, against thee : a defective speech in this Prophet not infrequent. So ch. 23. 30, 31. & 50. 31. & 51. 25. and it may as well be rendred, I am coming to thee ; as in way of answer, to that their insolent demand : who will, or, can come at us ? as if he had said, I will come my self to you against whom there is no standing out, or withstanding, Psal. 76. 7. See the like, Obad. 3, 4.

O Inhabitant] Heb. Inhabitress ; that is, Jerusalem , whereof as a city he useth oft to speak, in the feminine form. So ch. 10. 17. & 22. 23.

of the valley] For it stood in a vale, environed with mountains, Psalm 125. 2. and they strain it too far, who would have it so termed, in regard of what God intended to do with it ; to wit, to destroy and bring it down into the vale.

and rock of the plain] Or, as Some, of the rock of the plain : for though it were situate in the midst of a lower ground, yet stood it, the upper part of it especially, on a rocky rising, or hill, having much plain ground round about it. See chap. 17. 3. as also, Josh. 15. 8.

which say] Tusting over-much in this their situation : the word is here masculine, and plural, as intending the citizens, or inhabitants of the city, who used insolently thus to speak.

who shall come down against us ?] Who dare come to sit down before our city, or to joyn battel with us ? come down : a military term, as the Jewish Criticks observe ; having in it a notion, as some of them , either of sitting down in siege, or lying in ambush : as 2 King. 6. 9. the Syrians are couched there ; or, as others, of coming down into the plain to joyn battel there : as 1 Sam. 26. 10. he shall descend into battel , and perish, 1 Sam. 26. 10. the verb seems to be here in a notion of daring ; as Esay 10. 14. Zach. 1. 21.

or] Heb. and ; as before, verf. 9.

who shall enter into our habitations ?] Or, who can enter upon our dwellings ? as, who shall head ? for, who can head ? Psal. 76. 7. See the like vaunt, ch. 49. 4. & Obad. 3.

V. 14. But I will punish you according to the fruit of your doings ;] Heb. And ; which some render here, for ; and so the copulative is used , Psalm 60. 11. But I should rather retain the copulative it self, as knowing this to the former branch verf. 13. I will come to thee, and when I come, I will punish thee. I will come on visiting, when I come , to thy smart. Heb. I will visit upon thee ; as ch. 9. 25. that is, in my visitation of thee, inflict penal things upon thee ; such as thy wicked courles do justly deserve, Psal. 28. 4. and 62. 12. Prov. 13. 21. chap. 17. 10.

and I will kindle a fire in the forest thereof ; and it shall devour all things round about it.] Here by the forest thereof ; to wit, of Jerusalem, some understand their woods or groves, and high places thereunto belonging, wherein they had exercised their idolatry, ch. 3. 2. Others, the inferiour Towns and Cities round about it, like to many tufts of trees in a wood or forest, ch. 19. 15. Others, mount Lebanon, being one of the boundaries of the promised Land. See Eze. 17. 24. Others, the goodly and flately buildings of the city, that stood as thick as trees in a forest , and were built with timber fetcht from the forest of Lebanon. See chap. 22. 7, 15, 23. Zach. 11. 1. Of this fire threatned, see ch. 17. 27. kindled, see 2 Chr. 36. 19. ch. 52. 13. there is a change of the perfon ; as ch. 16. 12.

CHAP. XXII.

V. 1. THus saith the Lord ;] It is evident enough, as we shall afterwards also further shew on cha. 27. 1. that the Sermons or Prophecies in this book recorded, were not ranged according to the times , at which they were delivered ; for the relation made in the chapter next before-going, is of somewhat done in Zedekiahs reign, in the time of the siege of the city ; whereas the subject & matter of this chapter seemes to consist of such things as concerned Jehoahaz , v. 10, 12. Jehoiakim, v. 18. and Jeconiah, v. 24. all of them foregoing the reign of Zedekiah. Howbeit, a learned late Writer rending the words, Thus said the Lord , (wherein I also willingly concur with him, and to do for the like, chap. 19. 1.) doth thence inter, that Jeremy should together at the same time, when he delivered the former answer returned to Zedekiah, withal relate, what messages he had been before time sent with al , either unto, or concerning those other Kings his predeceffors ; and that for this end, to shew that God now threatned to do no otherwise with Zedekiah , than as he had done with those other before him. But the whole file and series of the context, and frame of this chapter, seems to carry it another way.

Go down] This, fay some, because he was in the Temple , when God gave him this injunction ; and he was to go down therefore from thence, ere he could repair to the Kings house. But of this there is no necessity. For the words of ascent and descent are oft used of motion from place to place, without any special regard had to the situation of either. So Judg. 5. 14. from Machir came down (for, came forth) the Scribes : and, they went down (for, went) to the top of the rock, Judg. 25. 11, 12. See on Esay 38. 8. It may therefore well rendred here, simply, Go, as ch. 18. 2. and yet, Go down to the potters house, would found better there, then Go down to the Kings house, will do, with us at least, here.

to the house of the King of Judah.] The words may import the house, or palace, in general, that the Kings of Judah did keep court in succeffively : but the question is, who then kept Court there , when Jeremy was with the errand here recorded sent thither. To pass by the conceit of the late Writer above-mentioned, who supposeth it to have been then the Court of Zedekiah ; and that the whole discourse throughout this Chapter, is no other, than a relation of matters already past and gone. The moft deem it to have been all delivered at the same time in the reign of Jehoiakim ; but to contain matter of prediction, partly concerning Jehoiakim himself, verf. 18. and partly concerning Jeconiah his son, v. 24. I conceive the Chapter to contain two fevetal prophecies, or meflages, of two feveral dates : the former, from ver. 3. to v. 19. delivered in Jehoiakims reign : the latter, from v. 20. to 30. delivered in the reign of Jeconiah. The former by the fubject matter of it, appeareth to have been delivered, while Jehoaz, or Jehoachaz, being depofed, yet survived in captivity, v. 10, 11, 12. and while Jehoiakim alfo was yet alive, whether at home, or abroad in captivity, uncertain ; but retaining ftill the royal title: for it foretelleth alfo his death, v. 18. and, consequently, within the compafs of his reign.

and speak there this word] Heb. and thou fhalt fpeak (as ch. 1. 17. & 17. 27.) this word there ; that is, this commandment, or precept : as, ten words, for, ten commandments, or, precepts, Deut. 10. 4. for with an injunction he beginneth, v. 3. or, this word, that is, this thing ; as ch. 7, 23. and, no vain word, for, no vain thing, Deut. 32. 47. fpeak this (to wit, that here followeth) there : fo v. 4.

And fay.] Heb. Thou fhalt fay ; as ch. 19. 3.

V. 2. Hear the word of the Lord ;] As ch. 17. 20. & 19. 3. & 21. 11.

O King of Judah] O Jehoiakim. See on v. 1, 18.

that fittest upon the Throne of David,] Succeeding him in the Kingdom of Judah. See ch. 17. 25. & 21. 12.

thou, and thy Servants,] Thou, as the principal ; and thy fervants , that is, thine officers and attendants : as ch. 21. 7. for they also oft-times are instrumental, and over-forward in wrong-doing , as well as their Masters, Neh. 5. 15. Prov. 29. 12. Zeph. 1. 9.

and thy people] Those that in any kind appertain to thy family, Josh. 24. 15. ch. 21. 12. or such of the people as repair to thee for audience, and for matter of justice : but the former here rather.

that enter in by these gates.] The Court or Palace-gates, v. 1. that go in and out by them : as c. 17. 19. the one here put for both : as c. 17, 23, 27.

V. 3. Thus saith the Lord,] Gods meflage now followeth to the King and his retinue ; consisting of, first an injunction, backed with a double sanction, of promise, v. 4. of menace, v. 5. 2. a denunciation of destruction, with the ground of it, v. 6, 9. 3. a prediction of Jehoachaz his death in captivity, v. 10, 12. 4. A sharp reprehension of Jehoiakim , for his oppressions ; wherein he fteerved from his fathers righteous and religious steps, v. 13, 17. together with a prediction of his ignominious end, v. 18, 19

Execute ye judgement and righteousness, and deliver ye the spoyled out of the hand of the oppressor :] The injunction concerning the due execution of justice. See the same in effect, c. 21. 12. & of the terms here used, Esa. 56. 1.

and do no wrong, do no violence to the stranger, the fatherless, nor the widow ;] Heb. and stranger, orphan, and (for , or ; as ch. 21. 13.) widow, oppress not, wrong not : these God especially giveth a charge of , both because such commonly are most exposed to wrong, and such as he hath therefore taken into his more special protection, Exo. 22. 21, 22. ch. 7. 6.

neither shed innocent blond in this place.] See ch. 7. 6.

V. 4. For if you do this thing indeed,] If carefully, or diligently ye do this. Heb. if doing ye do (as ch. 7. 5.) this word : as v. 1. So ch. 26. 2. & 32. 17.

then shall there enter in by the gates of this house , Kings sitting upon the Throne of David, riding in chariots, and on horses, he and his Servants and his people.] See the same in effect, cha. 17. 25. Heb. Sitting for David upon his Throne.

he and his servants, and his people] Each of them, to wit, those Kings successively, and their retinue. See ver. 2.

V. 5. But if ye will not hear these words,] Heb. And, ch. 11. 3. if ye will not nor hearken obey me : to hear for to obey ; as ch. 7. 23. and words for things. as Deut. 30. 1. and 32. 46.

I swear by my self, saith the Lord] God sweareth by himself, because he hath none greater then himself to swear by, Heb. 6. 13. and what he thus sweareth, is for solemn an oath, that undoubtedly be fulfilled, Psal. 110. 4. & 132. 11. Heb. 6. 17, 18.

that this house shall become a desolation.] Heb. fhall be unto desolation, as that this house shall become a desolation of the Kings Court and Palace here that is ch. 7. 32. that is threatned to the Temple, Gods own house, 1 Kin. 9. 7, 8. cha. 7. 14. though they swerve from the text here, that refer this and that which followeth here ver. 6. unto that.

V. 6. For thus saith the Lord unto the Kings house of Judah] Heb. concerning, as Psa. 122. 4. See ver. 11, 18. the house of the King of Judah ; and consequently concerning the whole kingdom and State , whereof that was the royal Seat.

Thou art Gilead unto me, and the head of Lebanon ; yet surely I will make thee a wilderness, and cities which are not inhabited.] Because the judgment threatned might seem to them very unlikely to be effected, trufting partly to their wealth, and partly to their ftrength, arising as well from the natural ftation of the place, as from their works and fortifications about it ; see ch. 17. 3, & 21. 13. God further here telleth them, that though their land were as wealthy as Gilead, and their ftructures as ftrong and impregnable, as if they were fituate on the highest part of Mount Lebanon ; yet he would reduce their whole land & head-city to a wild wilderness ; and make the other cities about it like a vaft defart.

Thou art Gilead unto me] Or, Though thou beeft as Gilead to me : the particle both of concefsion and fimilitude is wanting ; as Job 13. 15. the one ; and ch. 5. 8. the other : as Gilead ; that is, like to it for wealth : for the land of Gilead was not only a fat and rich foil of it felf, but a region abounding with fuch precious commodities of balm and fpicery, as did, by trade and traffick in thofe kind of merchandifes, much enrich her inhabitants. See Gen. 37. 25. Numb. 32. 1. of the ground of the name see Gen. 31. 47. unto me ; that is, as fome , in mine efteem and account : though I well know and grant thee fo to be. Others, unto me ; that is, before me, or in my fight : whereof more anon. Others, by me, (as fome render the particle, ch. 15. 8. 15.) through my bleffing upon thee ; whereby thou haft been enriched , and art grown up to this height of wealth and ftrength, Deut. 8. 18. Prov. 10. 22. Ezek. 16, 14. but I fuppofe the form here ufed to be onely an elegant redundancy ; not unlike the fame, ch. 5. 7. and 12. 9.

the head of Lebanon] This fome joyn to the former, as fpoken, not of Jerufalem, or the kings Court, but of Gilead ; and of the kings Court onely as by Gilead refembled : and they fay that Gilead is called the head of Lebanon, neer unto which it lay ; becaufe it was eftcemed a principal part of the land thereabout : whereunto the Jewifh Doctors add, that as the city of Gilead was the head-city of thofe parts, fo Jerufalem was the head city of the kingdom of Judah ; and the kings Court , or Son, the head of Jerufalem; fometime termed Lebanon, Zach. 11. 1. head for chief : as Exod. 30. 23. Others again fay, that Gilead is called the head of Lebanon, becaufe at the South end of it doth mount Lebanon begin. So head fhould be ufed here for beginning ; as Efa. 51. 20. Lam. 2. 19. but thefe things are over-forcibly ftretched unto Gilead ; nor is the head of a mountain any where ufed for the firft rife , but for the top of it rather, Ifa. 2. 2. Amos 9. 3. I rather therefore concur with thofe who conceive in thefe words another refemblance to be ufed , diftinct from the former, wherein the kings houfe, or Sion, whereon it ftood, is faid to be for loftineffe and ftatelineffe, as the head, that is, the top of Lebanon ; that goodly high mountain, ftored with abundance of fair and tall cedars, and other the like choice timber-trees, Ifa. 14. 8. & 37. 24. See v. 23. Nor can I affent to thofe who expound both this and the former ; as if it were faid, Thou Jerufalem are in my fight, as Gilead, as fome waſte place ; as refpecting the preſent eſtate of Gilead, by the Aſſyrians laid waſte, 2 King. 15. 29. or at the top of Lebanon : as a parcel of fome wild foreſt, inhabited, not by men, but by wild beaſts : fuppoſing the meaning to be , either that God no more then ſo regarded it for the preſent, Amos 9. 7. or that God would make it like unto thoſe two places, by laying it waſte, and diſpeopling of it : and ſo it ſhould be as that, which they parallel with this, ch. 7. 12, 14.

yet ſurely I will make thee a wilderneſs,] Heb. if I make thee not a wilderneſs : the uſual form of an oath. See Iſa. 5. 9. & 22. 14. and the like menaces, ch. 9. 10, 12. Some infert the note of ſimilitude both here and in the next member ; as a wilderneſs ; and as cities : expreſſed alſo ch. 9. 11. Hoſ. 2. 5.

and cities which are not inhabited] Like ſuch cities : and then there is a defect, both of the note of ſimilitude, as before ; and of the relative alſo ; as ch. 15. 14, 18. Howbeit, ſome render it, and thy cities ſhall not be inhabited ; the cities round about thee ſhall be diſpeopled : but the former ſeemeth the more familiar.

V. 7. And I will prepare deſtroyers againſt thee,] Or, For (as Iſa. 9. 11.) I have prepared (Heb. ſanctified, as Eſa. 13. 3. chap. 6. 4.) deſtroyers (the Chaldeans, ch. 4. 7.) againſt thee : to come againſt thee and deſtroy thee, ch. 4. 18. & 6. 20.

every one with his weapons] Heb. a man (for each one ; as ch. 18. 11.) and his inſtruments, for with his inſtruments : as Iſa. 5. 14. ch. 1. 13. So v. 14. and ſo rather then weapons , to keep to the ſimilitude of fellers or hewers with axes and hatchets, ſuch as trees are wont to be felled and hewen down with, Pſal. 74. 5, 6. See ch. 46. 23.

and they ſhall cut down thy choice cedars , and caſt them into the fire.] Heb. the choice of thy cedars ; as Iſa. 37. 24. Thy fair buildings made of the choiceſt cedars, ch. 21. 14. v. 13. and he ſpeaketh of them, as if they were falling ſome part of Lebanon. So Iſa. 10. 34.

V. 8. And many nations ſhall paſs by this city, and they ſhall ſay every man to his neighbour,] Or, And when many nations (men of divers nations) paſſing by this city, (or the place where it ſtood) ſhall ſay one to another. Heb. a man to his friend, or familiar ; as ch. 9. 4. So Gen. 11. 3, 7. Mal. 3. 16.

wherefore hath the Lord done thus unto this great City ?] So Deu. 29. 24. 1 King. 9. 8. See Lam. 4. 12.

V. 9. Then they ſhall anſwer,] Or, They ſhall anſwer ; or, It ſhall be anſwered : for the verb is indefinite. This anſwer ſhall be returned them that make the demand, v. 8. Heb. And they ſhall ſay, for It ſhall be ſaid : as Ezek. 36. 35. See the like ſyntax, Lev. 9. 24. ch. 13. 13 & 26. 10, 11.

Becauſe they have forſaken the Covenant of the Lord their God ; and worſhipped other gods, and ſerved them.] So Deut. 28. 25. 1 King. 9. 9. cha. 1. 16. & 9. 13, 14. & 16. 11.

V. 10. Weep not for the dead, neither bemoan him ; but weep ſore for him that goeth away ; for he ſhall return no more , nor ſee his native Country.] Theſe words ſome take as ſpoken in general of the perſons of thoſe times; to wit, that there was little cauſe to mourn for thoſe that ſhould then dye, whether by fome natural or violent death ; more cauſe to bewail thoſe that ſurviving them ſhould go into captivity , where they ſhould live in continual ſlavery, and much miſery, without hope of ever ſeeing their own country again, ch. 8. 3. & 16. 6, 7. Ezek. 24. 16, 17, 21, 22. Rev. 9. 6. & 14. 13. not unlike that of our Saviour, Luk. 23. 28. Others, and ſo the moſt underſtand it, as having reference to ſome particular perſon and Prince, or perſons and princes : the former whereof, the words next enſuing, v. 11. do ſufficiently confirm : and of theſe , ſome underſtand the former branch of Joſiah, ſlain in fight by Pharao-Necboh ; for the loſs of whom, grievous lamentation not without good and great ground, was generally made, 2 Chr. 35. 24, 25. Zach. 10. 12. but the Prophet here telleth them, that howſoever in regard of their own intereſt, they had cauſe to bewail the loſs of ſo worthy and godly a governour ; yet in regard of him there was no ſuch cauſe of mourning ; for that he died with honour, was departed to peace, and taken away from the fight of ſuch evils as were to enſue, 2 King. 22. 20. Eſay 57. 1, 2. the latter they conceive to be meant of Jehoachaz, whom the people ſet up upon his fathers deceaſe, but having fare little above three moneths, was by Pharao-Necboh depoſed, and carried captive into Egypt , where he dyed, 2 King. 22. 30. & 23. 34. 2 Chr. 36. 1, 4. v. 11. Ezek. 19. 4. and this way, as the moſt probable, the greater part of theſe go. Some onely ſwerve a little from the reſt ; expounding the whole paſſage of Jehoachaz , as more to be lamented in regard of his captivity, then of his deceaſe : but this ſeemeth not to proviale as the former ; which ſome alſo of the Jewiſh Commenters approve. Howbeit, a learned Chronologer, departing herein from both, ſuppoſeth Jehoiakim in this latter branch intended , who was carried away captive, towards, at leaſt, if not unto , Babylon ; nor was to return unto Jeruſalem again. See further on v. 11, 18. And again, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors would have Jehoiakim deciphered in the former branch, who dyed by the way, being drawn out of Jeruſalem, but never carried to Babylon, 2 Chr. 36. 6. whereof ſee more on v. 18. Jeconiah ; and as ſome, alſo, Zedekiah in the latter branch ; becauſe both carried captive to Babylon, where they both died. 2 King. 24. 15. & 25. 7. But the current of the context , with the conſent of the beſt Interpreters, leadeth rather the way before-mentioned.

weep not] That is, not ſo much : as, I ſpake not, ch. 7. 22.

for the dead] As if his ſtate were worthy lamentation, 1 Theſſ. 4. 13.

neither bewail him] Or, nor condole with others for him. See ch. 16. 7. neither bewail him] Or, nor condole with others for him. See ch. 16. 7. but] A deſect of the adverſative : as ch. 5. 3.

weep ſore] Or, weep ſeriouſly, or ſadly : weep to the purpoſe. Heb. weeping weep, as Eſa. 30. 19.

for him that is gone away] Heb. that goeth for is gone ; to wit , into captivity : as v. 11.

he ſhall return no more, nor ſee] Heb. he ſhall not return any more , and ſhall ſee ; that is, he ſhall no more return to ſee : as Joſh. 24. 9. cha. 10. 4. & 14. 19. or he ſhall never ſee again : as Gen. 26. 18. Zach. 4. 1.

his native country.] Heb. the land of his nativity : as Gen. 11. 28. & 24. 7.

V. 11. For thus ſaith the Lord touching Shallum the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah, which reigned inſtead of Joſiah his father , which went forth out of this place ; He ſhall not return thither any more ;] There is no ſmall diſpute and debate about this Shallum, who he ſhould be. The moſt ſuppoſe him to be Jehoachaz ; one of the Jewiſh Doctors, to confirm this opinion, produceth that place of the Chronicles , 1 Chron. 3. 15. where Joſiah is ſaid to have had four ſons, Johanan, or Jochanan, Joakim, or Jehoiakim, Zedekiah, and this Shallum; ſaith he , muſt needs be Jehoachaz ; for one of Joſiah his ſons was Jehoachaz, and there is no other left to be this Shallum but he. But againſt this is objected , that Shallum here mentioned is ſaid to be Joſiahs fourth ſon ; whereas Jehoachaz was his ſecond ſon at leaſt, the next to Jehoiakim , who appeareth to have been the eldeſt, being born two years before Jehoachaz. See 2 King. 23. 31, 36. Others therefore acknowledging this Shallum to be Jehoachaz, ſuppoſe him to be the ſame with Johanan, Jochanan, or John (for theſe names are all one. See chap. 40. 8.) whom they ſuppoſe to have had two ſeveral names, (as divers others in Scripture , whereof, ſee on Iſa. 1. 1. Uzziah) Jehoachaz and Jochanan ; and as they imagine a third alſo in this place, Shallum. So the ſame perſon is called Shelomoh, David alſo, and Jedidiah, and Lemuel , 2 Sam. 12. 24, 25. Prov. 31. 1. Howbeit, and Jedidiah, and Lemuel , 2 Sam. 12. 24, 25. Prov. 31. 1. Howbeit, they ſuppoſe him to be here called Shallum ; not from his birth, but afterward in regard of the ſhortneſs of his reign, continuing not above ten moneths, 2 King. 23. 31. partly, from another of that name king of Israel, who reigned but a moneth, 2 King. 15. 13. and partly, from his younger son, who bare also the same name, and deceased it may be before him, as more worthy to bear that name then he, and to succeed him in the same. Besides, they hold him to be termed Josiahs first-born, 1 Chron. 3. 15. not in regard of priority of birth, (for Jehoiakim, as hath been said, was the elder of the twain) but in regard of his primacy in the royal Succession, being though the favour of the people preferred to the crown before his elder brother, 2 King. 23. 30. And this way the most and best of ours go. But of the Jewish Interpreters, the most run other ways: and some of them would have this Shallum to be Zedekiah, said to be, both the third of Josiahs sons in regard of his birth, & again the fourth of them in regard of his reign: for of Josiahs iffue Jehoachaz reigned first, then Jehoiakim, then Jehoiachin, or Jeconiah; & in the fourth place Zedekiah: & they add that therfore he was called Shallum, because the kingdom of Judah ended and expired in him, at his downfall seeming to give out its last breath, Lam. 4. 20. But the text in the genealogy expreſly mentioneth them as two several perſons; sons of Josiah, the third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum. Some other of them therefore iuſtly rejecting this, would have this Shallum to be Jehoiacin, or Jeconiah; for both names be beareth in Scripture; called, ſay they, the ſon of Joſiah, here termed his father; and reckoned among his iſſue, becauſe he was his ſons ſon; as Belſhazzar, or Baltaſar, is ſaid to be the ſon of Nebuchadnezzar, and Nebuchadnezzar is called his father, Dan. 5. 18, 22. But this alſo is very improbable; for in the next place there followeth, the ſons of Joſiah, Jeconiah his ſon, Zedekiah his ſon. So that Jeconiah therefore and Shallum are two ſeveral perſons there; the nephew the one, the uncle the other. In the laſt place therefore, that learned Chronologer before mentioned, by Shallum underſtandeth here that fourth ſon of Joſiah; by the party here ſaid to be gone into captivity, Jehoiahim: and he thus rendreth the text; For thus ſaith the Lord (not, touching, or concerning, Shallum; though the particle be ſometime ſo uſed; as Pſal. 2. 7. & 89. 27. v. 18. but as it is moſt commonly taken) unto Shallum, the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah, who reigneth in the room of Joſiah his father; (as ſpeaking to him of ſome other) He that is gone out from this place, (to wit, Jehoiakim thy brother, gone in captivity to Babylon) ſhall return no more hither. This he thus endeavours to clear. Jehoiakim ſet up by Pharao-Necho, 2 King. 23. 34. was afterward by Nebuchadnezzar, Nechoes adverſary invaded, and compelled to hold from him; unto whom he continued loyal ſome three years, but began then to rebel againſt him, 2 King. 24. 1. whereupon Nebuchadnezzar again invaded the land, ſurpriſed the city, took him priſoner, and bound him in fetters to carry him unto Babylon, 2 Chr. 36. 6. yea, in likelyhood did accordingly carry him thither. See Ezek. 19. 9. where during his captivity and reſtraint, his brother Shallum, as viceroy in the minority of his ſon Jeconiah, governed the kingdom; and is therefore here ſaid to reign in the room of Joſiah his father, unto Jehoiakims deceaſe. Now whereas the people were poſſeſſed with a ſtrong perſwaſion, that Jehoiakim ſhould at length return back from his exilement; God ſendeth the Prophet here to Shallum, who ruled in likelyhood as Jehoiakim had done, as to reprove him alſo for his evil government, ſo withal to aſſure him, that Jehoiakim ſhould never ſee Jeruſalem again, but ſhould die in the land of his captivity. Had we any record of this Shallums viceroy-ſhip, I ſhould ſomewhat incline to this learned mans opinion. As it ſtandeth, I leave it to the conſideration of other learned.

V. 12. But he ſhall dye in the place whither they have led him captive, and ſhall ſee this land no more.] Or, For (ſo the particle alone moſt commonly ſignifieth; and ſo v. 11. but uſually with an addition) he ſhall dye in the place unto which he hath been led captive; (for theſe indefinites are beſt rendred paſſively. So v. 6. Iſa. 47. 1. Mal. 1. 4.) and ſhall ſee this land no more; and muchleſs then this Court, or this City, v. 10, 11.

V. 13. Wo unto him that buildeth his houſe by unrighteouſneſs, and his chambers by wrong:] This reprehenſion uſhered in with a wo, like that Iſa. 5. 8. & Habb. 2. 9, 12. is by the moſt deemed to concern Jehoiakim; and the main current of the context carryeth it that way: for they force it too much that would divert it, either unto Shallum, or any other.

his chambers] Properly upper-chambers; and the word is therefore rendred a loft, 1 Kin. 17. 19. and the Greek fitly anſwering it, an upper-room, Mark 14. 15.

——— by unrighteouſneſs, and by wrong] Heb. by not juſtice, or righteouſneſs, and by not judgment, or right; that is, without either, or contrary unto either, unjuſtly, wrongfully: as Prov. 16. 8. Ezek. 22. 29. either that buildeth with money gotten by oppreſſion and wrong-dealing; or by dealing unjuſtly and wrongfully with thoſe whom he employeth about his buildings: the next way, either of them, not to build up an houſe, but to ruine and pull down the building, Habb. 2. 9. 13.

that uſeth his neighbours ſervice without wages, and gives him not for his work.] The detaining, and denial much more of the workmans wages, and labourers hire, being forbidden, and condemned as a ſin that cryeth unto heaven for vengeance, Lev. 19. 13. Deut. 24. 14, 15. Jam. 5. 4. Heb. that ſerveth himſelf of his neighbour (as ch. 25. 14. Exod. 1. 14. compelleth him to ſerve or work for him) freely, (without hire or due conſideration) and giveth him not his work; that is, hire or wages for his work: as Job 34. 11. Eſa. 49. 4.

V. 14. That ſaith] Thinketh with himſelf: as ch. 21. 13.

I will build me a wide houſe, and large chambers;] Or, a ſpacious houſe (Heb. an houſe of ſpaces, or meaſures, or dimenſions: as, men of dimenſions, for ſquare and tall men, Num. 13. 32. 2 Sam. 21. 20. Iſa. 45. 14.) with wide, or windy, (well-aired, or as ſome render it, through-aired) chambers. Heb. wide-aired, or winded; for the participle here uſed cometh from a root, that hath a notion ſometime of dilating or widening: whence a word uſed for ſpace, when applyed unto place, Gen. 32. 16. for reſpit, when applyed unto time, Exod. 8. 15. ſometime of breathing, or, drawing breath for refreſhment, rendred refreſh, 1 Sam. 16. 23. Job 32. 20. and to this the old Greek and Latine refer it; as alſo the Jewiſh Criticks, expounding it of ſummer-rooms or lodgings, fitted for freſh air: oppoſed to winter ones, Amos 3. 15. the copulative for the relative: as chap. 11. 16. verſ. 7.

and cutteth him out windows.] To let in both air and light, to make the rooms not large onely and light ſome, but well aired alſo, as before; though ſome render the words, that teareth my windows; as if the word had a pronoun affixed to it; ſuppoſing that Jehoiakim had mangled and defaced the windows of Gods Temple, to adorn and beautifie his own building therewith; as Ezekiah ſometime pilled off the gold from the doors and pillars thereof, to make up the ſum of money required of him to ſatisfie the king of Aſſyria, 2 Kin. 18. 16. But this carryeth with it no great probability: to cut out windows ſeems no more here then to make open ſpaces, by cutting off the walls, wherein to ſet frames of windows; for the letting in as well of freſh ayr, as of light: and the plural, though irregular, is found in this form, as well with divers other words, as here with this. So 2 Chr. 31, 19. Iſa. 19. 9. & 20. 4. See the like, ch. 18. 14. In the word him, or to him; as alſo in the word, me, or, to me; as the Hebrew hath either, there ſeems an elegant redundancy: the like whereunto ſee ch. 2. 21. 8. 5. 5. & 12. 8. & 16. 20.

and it is ceiled with cedar] Or, and that ceiled with cedar; to wit, the large houſe before-mentioned; as was Gods houſe that Solomon built, and his own, 1 King. 6. 15, 16. & 7. 3. the like uſe of the copulative ſee chap. 17. 4, 10, 11. & 20. 5. and painted with vermilion.] Heb. anointed with Shaſhur; which the Jewiſh Criticks both here, and Ezek. 23. 14. expound one of them minium, or vermilion; and ſo the Chaldee and the Greek: another ſinopis, or ſinopel, which cometh all to one; and ſo the old Latine: yet a late learned Interpreter would have it to be indico; which coloureth and dyeth not red, but ſky-colour, or blew. See Vlmy 1. 35. c. 6. and he ſuppoſeth it to have had its name, as with the Greeks and Latines, from India, out of which country it was brought into thoſe parts: So with the Hebrews from the Sabæi, a people of that country, mentioned by Pliny, l. 6. c. 19. This may be not improbable, though the main current of interpreters go the other way: but that which the ſame Writer addeth concerning the ſenſe of the place, as if the meaning were, that Jehoiakim having mangled and torn, not the windows onely of Gods Temple, but ſome of the cedar-ceiling of it alſo, wherewith to beautifie his palace, ſhould to conceal his facrilege, colour it over with indice; and ſo rendreth the text, that teareth away my windows and cedar-ceiling, and then colloureth them over with Indice; to me ſeems to carry with it no great probability.

V. 15. Shalt thou reign becauſe thou cloſeſt thy ſelf in cedar?] Doſt thou Jehoiakim who are not reformed by Gods judgment upon thy brother Jehoachaz, v. 10, 12. think to eſtabliſh thy throne and prolong thy reign, by ſtately buildings, raiſed from cruel oppreſſion, and by wrongful dealing erected? v. 13, 14. or doſt thou think that a ceiling of cedar can ſecure thee againſt the forcible aſſaults of a potent enemy, coming furniſhed with commiſſion from God to execute vengeance on thee for thy violent and injurious carriages? for he ſeemeth to allude in the verb here uſed, unto a word that ſignifieth a coat of mail, or a brigandine, Exod. 28. 32. & 39. 23. as ſpeaking of one that ſhould think himſelf ſufficiently armed, when inſtead of ſuch an armour, he had got a caſe of ſlit cedar about him. For neither can I here accord with that learned Interpreter, who rendring the text; Shalt thou reign becauſe thou buildeſt thy ſelf with that cedar? to wit, ſaith he, which thou haſt torn from my Temple, mingling thine and mine together, joyning ſacred and profane materials the one with the other, for the making up of thy building? True it is, that the word ſeems to have a notion of intermingling of perſons, or other things one with another, chap. 12. 5. in which place, and this onely, it is found in the form here uſed: but this ſenſe ſeemeth but harſhly to be here wrung from the text. Nor is it likely, that either the Prieſt, or people, would ſuffer the very ceiling of the Temple to be ſo defaced; which in tearing, or taking down, could not but be much mangled, and made very unſerviceable for any exquiſite employment. As far, I ſuppoſe, alſo do they ſwerve from the true ſenſe of the place, who following the old Latine, rendring the words; Shalt thou reign, becauſe thou compareſt thy ſelf to a cedar? Some of them conceive his haughtineſs to be taxed, in deeming himſelf like to ſome tall cedar; a tree as well goodly to ſight, and great of growth, as alſo well rooted, and of long continuance: as of Aſſur, Ezek. 31. 3. Others, his preſumption, in comparing himſelf with his father Joſiah, a cedar of Gods own planting: as Ezek. 17. 21, 22. and making account to do as well as he did. But theſe alſo ſeem as wide as the former. If any need were of ſwerving from the received Interpretation, I ſhould rather chooſe to render the words to this purpoſe; Shalt thou reign, that thou environeſt thy ſelf with cedar? Doſt thou expect and make account to continue thy reign, that thou art ſo buſie in building thee ſuch a goodly, brave, and ſtrong palace; when as God purpoſeth, ere long, to ſend the packing out of this place? v. 18, 19. So it might be not unlike thee check given unto Shebna for his building, Iſa. 22. 16, 19. and the places might well be paralled. But in regard of what next followeth, I adhere rather to that which was firſt propounded, did not thy father eat and drink, and do judgement and juſtice?] He directeth the preſent King to another manner of foundation, for the firm ſtrengrounding, and ſure ſetling of a throne, or ſtate: that which Salomon alſo ſuggeſteth, when he telleth us, That by juſtice and judgement, and truth and mercie, and benebcence, the throne is ſupported, and the ſtate eſtabliſhed, Prov. 16. 12. and 20. 28. and 29. 4, 14. and pointeth him to a pattern and precedent of it in his father Joſiah, one that was ſtudious and carefull, as of the advancement and ſettlement of Gods ſervice, ſo likewiſe of the due adminiſtration and execution of juſtice; and through Gods bleſſing therefore upon him, and his government, enjoyed a long time of peace and proſperity, and paſſed the time of his reign in tranquillity and quietneſſe: the words may well be rendred; Did not thy father eat and drink, when he adminiſted judgement and juſtice? did he not eat and drink, that is, live cheerfully and comfortably, free from carking cares, diſtracting thoughts, and diſtreſtfull fears, Eccleſ. 2. 24. and 3. 13. and 9. 7. Mat. 11. 18, 19. See of Potiphar, Gen. 39. 6. when he adminiſtred judgement and juſtice? So to do judgement and juſtice is uſed of David, 2 Sam. 8. 15. 1 Chr. 18. 14. See verſ 3. Chap. 21. 12. the conjunction copulative, for the adverb of time: as 1 King. 11. 25. he vexed Iſrael, and reigned over Syria; that is, when, or, while, he reigned over Syria. So the words would there be read. Eſt. 2. 21. In thoſe dayes, and Mordecai ſate in the Kings gate, for, when, or, while he ſate there; as it is well there rendred. See alſo Eſai 36. 9. Chap. 17. 4 and then it was well with him?] We need not bring this clauſe within compaſſe of the demand, as our Verſion doth: Nor need we with ſome Interpreters, who cut the demand over-ſhort, concluding it at eat and drink; (Did not thy father eat and drink?) annex it to the former branch, rendring the words, Surely he executed judgement and juſtice; and then was it well with him: it containeth an enunciation entire of it ſelf; importing a ground, or reaſon of what was before ſaid, he well might, as he did alſo, then live cheerfully and comfortably; though he had no ſuch ſtately palace, as thou art now building, which is but a preſage of thy downfall, Prov. 16. 18. and 17. 19. and 18. 12. for it fared well with him, he was ſucceſſefull and proſperous in all his undertakings: as Pſal. 1. 3. Heb. then was good to him. So Deut. 5. 33. and 19. 13. Pſal. 128. 2. Eſai 3. 10. verſ. 16.

Verſ. 16. He judged the cauſe of the poor and the needy] then it was well with him.] Or, When (as verſ. 11.) he judged the cauſe (Heb. judged the judgement; as Chap. 5. 28. and 30. 13.) of the poor and needy (as Pſal. 72. 4, 12, 13.) or, when the cauſe of the poor and needy was judged (for the verb may well be taken indefinitely, when juſtice was indifferently and impartially adminiſtred to all ſorts; even to the meaneſt. Deut. 16. 18. 20.) then was it well: then were all things ſucceſſefull, it went well with the State: for by due adminiſtration of judgement doth a King eſtabliſh a land, Prov. 29. 4. and cauſe a State to flourith, and the clauſe here ſeems to reach further than before, verſ. 15.

was not this to know me? ſaith the Lord] Heb. that; that was indeed to ſhew by his deeds and carriage; by the effects and fruits indeed of it, that his profeſſed knowledge of God was found and ſincere, when he followed thoſe courſes that he knew God delighted in, and were pleaſing in his ſight, chap. 9. 24. Mic. 6. 8. Jam. 1. 27. 1 Joh. 2. 6. that the contrary hereunto, ſee Chap. 9. 3. Hoſ. 4. 1. Tit. 1. 16. 2 Tim. 3. 5. 1 Joh. 2. 4. The old Latine, though in effect for the matter agreeing here with this, yet ſwarveth ſomewhat from the words of the Text, rendring it thus, Was it not therefore becauſe he knew me: and the Greek yet far further, rendring both this, and the foregoing branches, all in the negative; they do not thus, becauſe they know not me. As alſo do they mangle the Text overmuch, that make two members of this concluding clauſe: rendring the words thus, Is not this? the knowledg of it is with me; as if it were ſaid, Is not that true that I charge thee with? verſ. 14. though thou deny it, and others may be ignorant of it, yet I know and take notice of it? as Chap. 7. 11. and 13. 27. But the courſe of the context will not bear this; and it offereth too much force to a familiar expreſſion.

V. 17. But thine eyes and thine heart, are not but for thy covetouſneſſe] Heb. upon thy lucre, or, gain, Prov. 1. 19. Ezek. 33. 31. Thou, contrary to the diſpoſition and practice of thy religious Father, art wholly addicted unto, and ſet upon thy lucre and gain, not regarding by what wrongfull and cruel practices thou compaſſeſt it: to ſet the heart and eyes upon ought, in Scripture, is greedily to affect it, and eagerly to purſue it, Pſalm 62. 10. Prov. 23. 5.

and for to ſhed innocent blood,] Or, and upon ſhedding of innocent blood. Heb. and upon innocent blood to ſhed it: a defect of the pronoun; as Chap. 17. 21. So in the laſt member, ſee verſ. 1.

and for oppreſſion] Heb upon oppreſſion.

and for violence to do it.] Or, upon doing of violence. Heb. upon incurſion, or, contrition, to do it, as before: to act and exerciſe it at thy pleaſure: the word here uſed, the Jewiſh Criticks, ſome of them, expound incurſion; from a root that ſignifieth to run; whence it is uſed for a courſe, or race, 2 Sam. 18. 27. See Chap. 8. 6. and ſo it ſhould ſignifie a violent incurſion, or aſſault, made upon a mans perſon. Others of them expound it a contrition, or breaking to pieces; from a word of that notion; Pſal. 74. 14. ancked to violent courſes exerciſed upon the perſons of the poor, Amos 4. 1 and herein both agree: that the former word rendred oppreſſion, hath reference properly to mens goods, the latter rendred violence here, to their perſons; eſpecially where they are found coupled together: as Deut. 28. 33. 1 Sam. 12. 3, 4. Hoſ. 12. 1. where this latter ſeemeth to be made matter of greater vexation and evil adage than the former.

V. 18. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord concerning Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah] Having given in the charge againſt Jehoiakim, he paſſeth now to his doom. Therefore; becauſe thou art altogether thus wickedly bent, as verſ. 17. carrying thy ſelf clean contrary to thy religious fathers courſes, verſ. 15, 16. thus ſaith the Lord; the Lord hath paſſed this heavy doom and ſad ſentence upon thee: the particle commonly ſignifies unto: but here rather, concerning, as verſ. 11. Gen 20. 2. and it is ſpoken in way of denunciation of a thing to come; not in way of relation of ſomwhat formerly denounced, and already executed, as a learned Writer would have it. See ch verſ 1.

Jehoiakim] The name given him by Pharaoh Necho, whereas before he was called Eliakim, 2 King. 23. 34. he is alſo called before he was called Eliakim, 2 Chronicles 3. 15. as, Oſſea, for, Joſhua, by an abbreviation, 1 Chronicles 3. 15. as, Oſſea, for, Joſhua, Numb. 13. 8. a name for ſignification well agreeing with the former. He was the eldeſt ſon of Joſiah; howſoever the people had preferred his brother, two years younger than him to the Crown before him; whereof ſee before on verſ 11 but Nechohat his return, reverſed their choice, and ſetled it upon the right heir, 2 Kings 23 30:33,34.

they ſhall not lament for him] For all his ſtately ſtructures and buildings, he ſhall not have ſo much as any ſolemn funeral, or honourable ſepulture: there ſhall no lamentation be made for him; for the Verb is indefinite here; as alſo chap. 16. 6. See the contrary promiſed to Zedekiah, chap. 34. 5.

ſaying, Ah my brother, or, Ah Sister] as they were wont to ſay upon the deceaſe, and at the burial of ſome near of kin of either ſex; or whom they eſteemed of as ſuch, 1 Kings 13. 30. Heb. and, Ah Siſter: the copulative in a disjunctive notion, as v. 3 for it is a little too far fetch, which ſome would draw from the word ſiſter; as if it were ſaid, that neither he nor his Queen ſhould be lamented.

they ſhall not lament for him, ſaying,] As before.

Ah Lord, or, Ah his glory.] Or, his magnificence See Eſay 30. 30. he ſhall not be lamented either by kindred, or by ſubjects: who were wont to uſe ſuch expreſſions at the funerals of their Kings. See Chap 34. 5.

V. 19. He ſhall be buried with the burial of an Aſſe; drawn and caſt forth beyond the gates of Jeruſalem.] with the burial of an Aſſe; that is, as an Aſſe is wont to be buried: as, with the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorra, Chap. 49. 18. that is, in ſuch manner as they were overthrown. His corpſe ſhall not come into the Sepulchre of his Anceſtors, 1 Kings 12. 22. nor ſhall have any ſtately enterrement, ſuch as Kings uſually have, Eſay 14. 18 it ſhall not have ſo much as a place of ordinary burial among the graves of the common people, Chap. 26 23. but ſhall be caſt out like ſome carrion, as the carcaſſe of an aſſe: into ſome remote place, where it may not, as it lieth rotting there, infect, or annoy people with its ſtench. So of the King of Babylon, Eſai 14 19. But in what manner, or in what place this doom was executed upon the couple of Jehoiakim is queſtion-ed. For firſt, ſo ſome it ſeemed that he was buried, becauſe it is ſaid of him, he ſlept with his fathers, 2 Kings 24. 6 which to reconcile, ſome ſay, that he was buried by his people: but after taken up again by the Chaldeans, and ſo caſt forth without the citie: but it is very unlikely that the Chaldeans, having ſurpriſed the citie, would ſuffer the preſent Kings corple being ſlain by them, to be buried, when as they deale ſo barbarouſly with the corpſes of their former Kings, as to pull the remains of them out of their monuments, where they had long lien quier, & lay them open to the light, ch. 8. 1, 2. & though the phraſe of ſleeping with their fathers, be commonly uſed of thoſe, whoſe bodies are laid up in ſome monument among their anceſtors, yet the form of it ſelf importeth no more, than to die, as his progenitors before him did, Pſalm 49. 19 and doth not neceſſarily imply any communion either in ſepulture, or in place of ſepulture with them: whence alſo to ſleep with ones fathers, and to be buried with them are mentioned as two diſtinct things, 2 Chr. 15. 18. and 16. 20. That Jehoiakims corps therefore was ever committed to the ground: there is none, either found proof from that phraſe, or probability of the thing it ſelf. But where he died and was thrown, out, is further doubted, and is more doubtfull. Some ſuppoſe that he died at Jeruſalem, being there ſlain and that he was afterward caſt forth without the walls; where his corpſe lay buried; that which the words themſelves may here ſeem to import: and Joſeph the Jew in his Antiquities, lib. 10 cap. 8. accordingly, in likelyhood grounding on this place, relateth. But others rather ſuppoſe, that being carried away captive to Babylon he there died, and was after his deceaſe uſed there in ſuch ignominious manner, as is here foretold for both in the facred ignominious manner, as is here foretold for both in the facred hiſtory it is ſaid of him, that Nebuchadnezzar came againſt him: and having taken him, bound him in fetters to carry him to Babylon, 2 Chr. 36 6 nor have we any more added further of him there: in the prophecies of Ezekiel, it is further said of him, that they put him in ward chained, and brought him to the King of Babylon, and to Jerusalem, that his corps was no more heard on the mountains of Israel, Ezek. 19. 9. as for that which they prelle to prove that he should be slain in Jerusalem; because it is said here that he should be cast forth without the gates of Jerusalem, as the old Latine renders it: the words should rather be read far beyond (Heb. from beyond) the gates of Jerusalem: the rather mentioned in likelihood, because by his curious buildings there, he seemed to make full account, as to live and reign long, so at length when he died, to lay his bones there: whereas the Prophet here from God telleth him, that his corps should be dragged out, (as chap. 49. 20.) and cast forth farre beyond the gates of that city. So is the word usu: without the particle here prefixed, Gen. 19. 9. Stand aloof off; and with it, Amos 5. 27. I will carry you captive farre beyond Damascus. Hereunto may be added, that the word gates, is frequently used for cities, as Deut. 15. 7. & 16. 5. & 17. 2. in any of thy gates, for, in any of thy cities: and so, farre beyond the the gates of Jerusalem, may be, far beyond the cities of Judah; called also the cities of Jerusalem, Chap. 34. 1. and so it would be as much in effect, as farre beyond all the coasts of Judea. See of the casting out of his corps further, Chapter 36. 30.

drawn and cast forth] The two verbs here used, are of an infinitive form: the former sometime signifying simply, to drag out, or, draw away, 2 Sam. 17. 13. Chap. 49. 20. sometime, to drag to and fro, as dogs use to do with a carcasse, when they have seized on it, whence it is rendred to tear, Chap. 15. 3. the old Latine here renders it, rotten: building I suppose on the use of the word, Chap. 38. 11. 12. but there also the word rather denoteth cast clouts, as our version rendreth it, or, torn, or, ragged, than rotten; though such also those there mentioned were: the latter word generally signifieth to cast forth, or, cast out: and if the former word be taken in its latter notion, there should be an inversion in the terms here used; for a carcasse must first be cast out ere it can be so dragged, and torne with dogs: but it seems rather to be used here in the former notion; for dragging of a corps forth of the place, where the party dyed; as they use to do among the Romans, with the bodies of malefactors executed in the prison, or elsewhere made away, into some more remote and disgraceful place, some lay stall, or the like. So the words may be rendred; As an asse is buried: so shall he be buried; being dragged and cast out, far beyond the gates of Jerusalem. Heb. dragging dragged, and casting cast out. Of which form, both defective, and yet emphatical, see on Ehay 59. 13.

V. 20. Go up to Lebanon and cry, and lift up thy voyce in Bashan, and cry from the passages] Whether the rest of this Chapter be one continued prophecy with the former, or another distinct from it, seems somewhat doubtful. See on verse 2. Certain it is, that as the former part of it concerns Jehojakim, and his wicked courses, together with the wretched end and issue thereof; so this latter concerneth Jehojacin, or Jeconiah, his son, who succeeded him in the Kingdom, 2 Kings 24. 6. 2 Chron. 36. 8. and the Jewish State shortly to suffer under him, whole destituted and distressed condition is here prophecied together with the cause of it, their refusal to hearken unto wholesome advice in the time of their prosperity, verse 20.---23. then Jeconiahs disgraceful exilement is denounced, with the cutting off of the royal dignity from any of his issue. verse 24.---30.

V. 21. Go up to Lebanon and cry;] An abrupt entrance into a new discourse not unlike unto that Open thy dores O Lebanon Zach. 11. 1. The speech is directed unto Jerusalem, or the Jewish State, spoken to, as to a woman of some state, but in distresse, verse 23. and called upon therefore to get up into some high and eminent place, whence she may be heard at distance, calling for friends and assistance to come in to her succour and relief: but without implying, that though she turned her self every way, and made out-cries on every side yet all would be in vain; for that those, from whom she expected ayd, should be in as bad case as her selfe.

Lebanon and Bashan] Two high hills Psal. 68. 15. from the latter whereof, the whole fat and rich soil and countrey about it had its name, Psal. 136. 20. These two, say some, because they looked towards Assyria, from whence they expected ayd against the Chaldeans. And it is true that of the Assyrians they had sometime made use against the Syrians. 2 Kings 16. 7. but that they ever sought to them for help against the Chaldeans, I no where find; and suppose therefore that the eminency of those hills, and the vicinity of them, is alone here reflected.

lift up thy voyce] Or, cry aloud. Heb. give, or, give out thy voyce; as Prov. 2. 3. Chap. 2. 15.

from the passages] The old Latine, to those that passe by; not regarding the prefixed particle, the Greek, to the sea-coast, or, to beyond the sea; cutting the word in pieces. Others render it, at, or, beyond the fords; to wit, those of Ichor, or Nilus, towards Egypt, Chap 2. 18, 36. But I find not where the word here found is used for fords, or, passages; though some other words springing from the same root sometime are: for fides indeed it is frequently found used, Exod. 32 15. 1 Kings 4. 24. See on Esay 7. 20. Besides it is not here, at, or, unto, or beyond, but from, the place specified, what ever it be: and will not therefore so well suit with the Egyptian fords. Others therefore render it, on every side; from, or, on all sides; as Chap. 49. 32. Others, from the ends; to wit, of the land as the word is used in the Syriack, Mat. 12. 42. Luke 11. 31. Howbeit, all things well weighed, I concur with those, that take the word here for a proper name; the mount Abarim, a place of special note in the confines of Moab; by which the Israelites passed in their journey to Canaan, from the top whereof Moses saw that land. Numb. 27. 12. & 33. 47, 48. Deut. 32. 49. this the rather because of the other two mountains of note. For all thy lovers are destroyed; According to this version, the meaning of the words before going should be; not that the should get up into those places to call in help, as yet all Interpreters generally take it; but bewaile rather there with lamentable out-cries, the forlorn condition both of her self, and of her friends and allies; as Chap. 3. 21. & 7. 29. I should therefore rather render the words; but thy lovers are all destroyed; So is the particle used, Chap. 2. 27, 34. & 14. 12, 13. thy lovers, thy friends, and wonted assistants, Chap. 4. 30. are all ruined (Heb. broken; as 2 Chron. 14. 13.) before thee, by the Chaldeans already. See 2 Kings 24. 7. and all thy looking about thee therefore and crying for help to any of them, is but in vain, Lam. 1. 16, 17

V. 21. I spake unto thee in thy prosperity; but thou sayedst, I will not hear:] Or, When I spake unto thee in the height of thy prosperity, (Heb. in thy prosperities, or tranquilities: for, these plurals have their emphasis. See on Esay 58. 11. chap 14. 1.) thou saidst, I will not hear, thou refusedst to obey. See chap. 2. 31. & 6. 16, 17. a defect of the adverb of time, as verse 16. and, to hear, for, to obey, as Chap. 7. 23, 24. See of Gods gracious dispensations in this kind, a large and pithy discourse of Elihu, Job 33. 14.---28.

this hath been thy manner from thy youth; that thou obeyedst not my voyce] Heb. this thy way (as Prov. 1. 19. & 30. 20.) from thy youth that thou hast not heard or, wouldst not hearken to, my voyce, Ye have been refractory and rebellious ever since I first moulded you into a State, Deut. 9, 7. & 31. 27. Esay 48. 8. Chap. 2. 24, 25. & 32. 30. Of their youth, see Chap 2. 2.

V. 22. The wind shall eat up all thy pastors;] Thy Rulers shall all vanish or passe away, like wind, Psal. 78. 39. Prov. 10. 25. or, they shall be blown away like chaffe before the wind, Psal. 1. 4. & 83. 13. Chap. 4. 11, 12. Hos. 13. 3. or, be blasted, as grass, grain, or fruit, with such a wind as shrivels or withers it away, Psal. 103. 15, 16. Esay 40. 6, 7. alluded to Hag. 1. 9. or all thy hopes of help from foreign forces shall prove windy and vain, altogether ineffectual and unable to produce ought for thy good, Hos. 7. 8. & 12. 1. and this last way the most so: but then it should rather have been; they feed upon wind; as Hos. 12. 1. (which the old Latine yet seems to have intended, rendring it, wind shall feed them) than the wind feed upon them. I conceive it therefore to be meant the second or third way; though both come much home to one; and the Chaldee taking after the second, giveth it, the wind shall disperse them, and carry them away: that which is elegantly expressed, Hos 4. 19. where it is said, the wind hath bound them up in her wings: though I prefer rather the third; as alluding to some malignant blast, that marreth and spoyleth all that it meeteth with, Gen. 41. 6. Ezek 19. 12. Howsoever, the phrase here denoteth both a sudden and utter destruction, as of things, so whether born away or blasted. There is an elegant antanaclasis, or variety of notions, in the same word here, twice used to a divers sense, as if it were said, All thy feeders, (so are Shepherds in Hebrew termed, as Psal. 23. 1.) or, all that feed thee, (as thy Sheperds should do, Ezek. 34 2.) shall the wind feed on: not, feed them; but feed on them: as, death shall feed upon them, Psal. 49. 14. that is, devour, destroy, and consume them, as our English here well rendreth it. So that the word hath a notion of ruling and governing in the former place: as 2 Sam. 5. 2. 1 Chron. 11. 2. a notion of depasturing and destroying in the latter; as the like is, Ezek. 34. 10. I am coming against the shepherds, the feeders, and, I will make them to cease feeding the flock: nor shall the feeders, or, shepherds, feed any more upon them. So it should be rendred: for it followeth, for I will deliver my flock from their mouthes that they may not be meat for them; that is that they may not be devoured and destroyed by them. See also chap. 23. 2. Howbeit, by Pastors, or Feeders, I conceive rather to be understood their rulers and governours, as chap. 3. 15. & 10. 21. & 23. 1. than with the Jewish Doctor, such foreign nations as were called their lovers, verse 20. though by them they made account that they were fed, maintained and kept in life, Esay 57. 10, Hos. 2. 5. for of them again in the next branch a-part.

and thy lovers shall go into captivity;] Those that thou and thy rulers relyed upon for succour and support, (see verse 20.) shall become captives and exiles as well as thy self; for of them also had the Chaldean King captives in Babylon, chap. 52. 31, 32.

surely then shalt thou be ashamed and confounded for all thy wickedneſſe.] When thou shalt find thy selfe wholly destitute of all help and relief, either from thy princes at home, or thy friends and confederates abroad, amidst all those evils which by thy wicked courses thou hast brought upon thy self, Chap. 2. 17, 19, 37. & 4. 18.

V. 23. O Inhabitant of Lebanon, that makeſt thy neſt in the cedars.] Heb. O Inhabitreſſe as chap. 10 17. & 21. 13. for he speaketh to the people and State of Jerusalem, as to some stately and haughty Lady. See verse 20. said here to dwell in Lebanon, (so is the city it self termed, Za h. 11. 1.) not so much, as some, in regard of the vicinity of that mountain, reckoned not as a boundary onely, but as a part also of the promised land, Deut. 1. 7. & 3. 25. as of their present condition, living and carrying themselves as loftily and haughtily, as if they fate rousting on the top of Lebanon, verse 6. as also in regard of their buildings, consisting much, the great mens palaces especially, of choyce cedar-wood brought from Lebanon, ver. 7. 14, 15.

how gracious shalt thou be when pangs come upon thee, the pain as of a woman in travel?] Heb. as of one bringing forth. So Psal. 48. 6. Esay 13. 8. & 42. 14. what will all thy pomp and state, or all thy goodly buildings with their rich and gorgeous furniture availe thee? what will become of it all? or what comfort shalt thou have of it, when thou shalt be in these distresses? no more than a woman in travel full of pains and throwes, unable to find ease, or to procure delivery, (see Esay 26. 17, 18. & 37. 3.] can have any joy or comfort of any such outward ornaments or bravery, while she continueth in that condition. So Chap. 6. 24. & 13. 21. See also the like demand, Esay 10. 3. or how lovely and amiable, for all thy present gallantry, wilt thou then appear in the eyes of those, that now seem enamoured with thee, and whom thou reputeest as thy paramours? See Chap. 4. 30.

V. 24. As I live, saith the Lord, though Coniah the son of Jehojakim King of Judah, were the signet upon my right hand, yet would I pluck thee thence.] From the State in general, and the distresses thereof denounced, God by the Prophet descendeth more specially to the person of Jehojacin, or Jeconiah, foretelling, and that also for solemnity, confirmed with an oath, the ruine and downfall of him and his, with the utter exsilation of the royal power in regard of him, or any of his posterity.

As I live] Heb. no more but, I live. So chap. 46. 18. Ezek. 5. 11. & 14. 15, and, I live for ever, Deut. 32. 40. As when men sware by the Lord one to another, they used commonly that form, The Lord liveth, Chap. 4. 2. & 5. So God, swearing by himself, ver. 5. useth the like defective form; yet not unfitly supplyed, as our version yieldeth it: as if it were said, As sure as I live.

saith the Lord;] As verse 5. 16. for as for that learned Writer, who would have it rendred, said the Lord; as if it were a relation only of some former denunciation, enough hath been said before, on verse 3. 4. 11.

though Coniah] Heb. Coniahu; as Zidkijahu, Chap. 1. 3. & 21. 1. He is sometime called Jehojacin, 2 King. 24. 8. 2 Chr. 36. 8. and sometime, Jeconiah, 1 Chron. 3. 16, 17. and in the Gospel, according to the Greek usage, Jechonias Mat. 1. 11, 12. whence in this place, the first letter of his name taken off, in a kind of scorne and contempt, to note his vilenesse and basenesse, (see on verse 28.) as nicking his name, or giving him (so we use to speak) a nick-name, Coniah or, Coniahu; as names so terminated were commonly expreſſed. See Esay 1. 1. Howbeit, that conceit of a learned Commenter, that the initial letter of his name should be ten away, because it is one of the letters of Gods name, which he was not worthy to bear any part of, is frivolous and unsound: for neither was that initial letter in his name, or the notation of it, any letter of Gods name, being a formative onely of that verb, whereof that his name in part consisted; and not that one letter of Gods name alone, but the whole name of God, to wit, Jah, remaineth and appeareth still in this his name, notwithstanding, that detraction; the name still importing, one prepared, or established, by God: that which his fathers names, both the one and the other, do in the latter notion also import. And as little ground hath the same Authours surmise, concerning the change both of the fathers name, and the sons; to wit, that as whereas the fathers name was at first Jehojakim, Pharaoh-Nechoh contracted it, and made it Eliakim; so Nebuchadnezzar in like manner when he had surprized Jeconiah, altred his name, and by paring away the first syllable of it, made it Coniah; which the Prophet here uſeth: for neither appeareth it, that his father ever had such a compound name as he supposeth, nor that the King of Babylon ever thus altered the name of Jeconiah: somewhat over-curious and groundleſſe also is that of another late Writer, who would have the initial letter of his name Coniahu, here mentioned, to be taken off, in token of the diminution of his estate; the latter syllable hu, being added to it, in way of contempt, as if it were said, that Coniah: for it is no more that Coniah, than that Jehoiakah, or, that Ezekiah, or, that Urijah, or, that Jeremiah, or the like; which have usually the same adjection. See Esai 1. 1. & Chap. 1. 1.

were the signet on my right hand,] Though he were as near and dear to me, as a Kings sealing-ring, that is most carefully carried about and kept, worn commonly, yea continually, on some finger, not of the hand indifferently and indefinitely, but more specially of his right hand; the better and the more principal hand, (the right hand; as, the right eye also, Matthew 5. 29, 30.) yet such is his vilenesse and basenesse, that I can no longer endure him, but would pluck him off, and cast him from me; so offensive is he to me, Mat. 18. 8, 9. See Cant. 8. 6. Hag. 2. 13.

would I pluck thee thence] A passage from person to person; as Esay 2. 19, & 22, 18, 19. Chap. 16. 12. & 21. 14.

V. 25. And I will give thee into the hand of them that seek thy life,] An elegant antanaclasis again, I will pluck thee off my hand; cast thee out of my protection and custody; and I will deliver thee up into the hand, that is, thy power, as (chap. 19. 7. & 20. 4, 5.) of them that seek thy life. Heb. thy soul. So Chap. 21. 7. & 34. 20. Howbeit, it seemeth that albeit he were delivered up into the power of persons so affected, yet that they did not make use of that power for the taking away of his life, God in his secret providence so disposing it: that the line of David should in his issue, though deprived of royal dignity, be continued unto the times of the Messias our Saviour. See Chap. 52. 31, 32. 2 Kings 25. 27, 28. Mat. 1. 12.

and into the hand of them, whose face thou feareſt.] Or, of whom thou art afraid; as it is rendred, Chap. 39, 17 where is a promiſe to another of the contrary. (Heb. from the face of whom thou feareſt) So Chap. 1. 8, 17.

even into the land of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and of the Chaldeans,] Or, into the hand, I say, Heb. and, as Esay 59. 17. Chap. 19, 12. See 2 King. 24. 12.

V. 26. And I will cast thee out, and thy mother that bare thee, into another countrey where ye were not born, and there shall ye dye] Heb. I will throw thee out, (the same terms that is used of Shebna, Esay 22. 17.) and thy mother that bare thee, (Nechushtah the daughter of Elnathan, 2 Kings 24. 8. (of whom, see Chap. 13. 18.) into another countrey, (a strange land: as, other gods, for, strange gods, verse 9. and, other tongues, for, strange tongues, Esay 28. 11. See verse 28.) which ye were not born there; (to wit, into Chaldea; an elegant redundancy freq ent in that language, See the like, verse 27 Chap. 23. 3.) and there shall ye dye: as before of Jehoachaz, verse 12. See the complement hereof concerning the captivity of Jehojacin and his mother, 2 Kings 24, 15. 2 Chron. 36. 10.

V. 27. But to the land that they desire to return, thither shall they not return.] Heb. And (as verse 5.) unto the land which they lift up their soul (as Exod. 32. 15. Psal. 24. 4.) to return there, (as verse 26.) thither shall they not return. See chap. 44. 14. the same threatning delivered in the same terms: and of Jehoachaz the like, verse 10, 12. a change of the person again here, as before, verse 24, 25.

V. 28. Is this Coniah a despiſed broken idol? is he a veſſel in which is no pleaſure? Wherefore are they cast out he and his seed, and are cast into a land, which they know not?] These words some conceive to be spoken in the person of the Jewish people, complaining of the disgraceful usage of their King, as if he were some forry picture or image falien in pieces, or some old foul and filthy pot or pan past use, and therefore throwne out at dores, and cast into the high-way or street, for every one that passeth by to trample upon: and expostulating concerning it, what the reason might be, that he and his should be so contumeliously used; or, as some of them would have it, objecting it to Jeremy, thereby to disprove the truth of his prophecy concerning Jeconiah, that it could not be, that God should so meanly esteem of him, or see so light by him, as either to deal so reproachfully with him, or so to permit him so to be dealt with. Others would have it to be the speech of the Prophet himself, expressing his grief upon the consideration, and at the contemplation of this Jeconiah his ignominious condition, that no more account than so should be made of him. But I conceive them rather to be the words of God himself, demanding what the reason was, why he should be thus used, as he had before threatned he should be; and implying that it was for no other cause, than for his wicked courses, wherein he followed his father Jehojakim, treading just in his steps, 2 Kings 24. 9. See the very like, Chap. 2. 14. 17.

this man] Spoken in way of contempt and disgrace; as we use to say, this fellow. So Tertullus of Paul Acts 24. 5. that which sheweth this not to be the speech either of the Prophet, who speaking in his own person, would not in likelihood use such language of him; and much lesse of the people.

Coniah] Heb. Coniahu: as before, verse 24.

a despiſed broken idol] An idol which when a man discovereth the vanity of it, and he now perceiveth it to be unable to head him in his necessity, he then breaketh and casteth away, or that by casting away is broken, Esay 2. 20. & 30. 22. & 31. 7. or, some old picture or image, that being either fallen in pieces of it selfe, or broken by casualty, or otherwise dashed to pieces, is now of little worth, and of as little regard.

a veſſel in which is no pleaſure] Heb a veſſel, no desire, or, delight in it. So Chap. 48. 8. Hos. 8. 8 that is, of no use, and therefore not regarded; either because broken or cracked, or so tainted and polluted, that it is become altogether unserviceable. See the like. Psal. 31. 12. Esay 30, 14. Chap. 19 11.

wherefore are they cast out] Or, thrown out: as something, that being past use, and now good for nothing, is thrown away, or thrown out at dores Mat. 5. 13. See verse 26.

he and his seed] Here is a question moved, how it is said, he and his seed, when as it may seem he had no issue; and is therefore entred upon record as one childeleſſe? verse 30 To which some answer, that he had issue, before he was carried away captive; but that they died in captivity, and so he became childlesse. So the Jewish Commentators here. But against this, some of ours object; that it he had had any issue, mention would have been made of them: where relation is of those that were carried away with him, 2 King 24.1.15,14 and they therefore by his seed, understand the children that he might have had, had God been pleased to bleste him with issue. Others, by his seed, understand the whole race of Josiah, which, say they, he surviving Zedekiah, ended in him: but why the race of Josiah should be termed the seed of Jeconiah, is not made to appear. By his seed therefore, I conceive to be meant, the seed, or issue, which God foresaw that in captivity he should beget and accordingly did, Mat. 1.12. Said here to be thrown out, and cast into a strange land in him, because the in his loins; and by means of his deportation, bred and born in the same condition of captivity and exilement with him; as Levi is said to have been tithed in Abraham, Heb. 7.9 10. and as this people that lived in Jeremies dayes, are said, to have gone after God in the wildernesse; and to have been brought by him into the land of Canaan, Chap. 2. 7.

and are cast into a land which they know not.] The word here used is not the same with the former: and howsoever in notion they come very near the one to the other; in regard whereof also the Rabbine makes this member of the sentence no other than in divers terms the same with that before-going; yet there seemeth some difference here in the use of them: the former relating to the place out of which they were thrown, the latter to the place into which they were cast; with an addition of that which contained some aggravation of their misery; that it should be into a strange place, the condition whereof, and their own there, would be the more uncertain, and where no friend, or acquaintance was like to be found. So Chap. 16.13.

V. 29 O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the Lord.] To give the stronger assurance of this dreadfull denunciation, and to cause it to make the deeper impression in the mindes of those that should hear or read this prediction; and the rather because this self-conceited, self-willed, and incredulous people could hardly be induced to believe that God would herein make his word good; God doth by his Prophet call with much intension and eagernesse to have a solemne regard made of it, as intimating that it should be as undoubtedly fulfilled, as if it were already accomplished, and the accomplishment of it entred into some publick record; or that being entred upon record, it might remain there unto posterity whereby the truth of it upon the issue and event of it, might afterward appear: (see Job 19.23,24. Esai 30 8. Chap. 17.13.) and the earth therefore is called upon as to take notice and bear witnesse of what, concerning such an instrument to be made, he here requireth. ver. 30. But what is meant here by the earth, is some doubt made. Where to omit the Jewish Doctors descants upon the repetition of it; some, in regard of a distribution of the land of Israel into three parts; Judah, Galilee and that beyond Jordan: Others, of the land they were to go from, and the land they were to go to, and the land in the way thither. Whereas one of them well observeth, that such three-fold repetitions are not to note any divers matter, but to make the speech concerning the self-same thing more emphatical and vigorous: as the like, Chap. 7.4. Ezek. 21.27. Some by the earth, understand the Inhabitants of the world; the men of the whole earth indefinitely: as, Let all the earth fear the Lord and let all the Inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him, Psal. 33. 8. others, the Inhabitants of the land of Judah onely; because they were the people that made doubt of it, and whom it most nearly did concern: so it should rather be rendred land, than earth: as, all lands, or countries, (that is, people in the habitants of all lands, or out of countries) came into Egypt unto Joseph to buy corn, Gen. 41.59 and so the Rabbine last before-mentioned. Hawbeit, others again, whom I rather go with, understand the earth it self to be spoken to and called upon, as to hear, take notice, and be a witnesse of what hereafter ensueth: as if he said, Let the earth it self do so, if none else will: the like connellations and contestations of heaven and earth hereunto, see Deut. 30. 19 and 32. 1. Esai 1. 2. Chap 2. 12. as also of a stone, Josh. 24.26,27. and our Saviours speech of stones, Luke 19.40.

V. 30 Thus saith the Lord, Write ye this man childlesse.] Here followeth that word which the earth was called upon to hear, verf. 29. not to write, but to hear, what is required to be written: for the word of hearing there, was feminine and singular; the word of writing here, is masculine and plural; and is indeed indefinitely here used: Write ye that is, Let this be written; that it may remain upon record to posterity. See on verf. 29. Revel. 14. 13. So Esai 30. 10. Say ye to the righteous, that is. To the righteous be it said: and, Say to Archippus, for, To Archippus be it said, Colos. 4. 17.

Write ye this man childlesse] So is the word here used, taken, Gen. 15 2. and so is it rendred, Lev. 20 20,21. and elsewhere in Scripture, save here, it is not found, the word in the original is deemed to signifie, a bare and naked, or a solitary and desolate one. See on Chap. 17.6. where a word from the same root, and of the like notion, is found. The ancient Greek here rendreth it a man abdicated, or proscribed. But we need not swerve from the common acception of the word. It soundeth as if it were said; Enter this man in the roll, or records of the royal race, a childlesse man. The question is onely, why he should be so termed. Some say, because he neither then had, nor was ever to have any issue; but remained childlesse to his dying day: as Micai, 2 Sam 6 23. Howbeit, others rather understand it to be said of him, because none of his issue were to succeed him in the Kingdom, and none therefore of his posterity to be entred as upon record in the roll of the royal succession: for that he had issue, seemeth apparent, by the mention made of his seed before, verf. 28 and hereafter again: as also by the genealogical relation, 1 Chr. 3 17,18. where seven of his sons are expressly named, of the first whereof, to wit, Salathiel, the Evangelist also in as clear and pregnant terms as can be faith, after the Babylonian deportation, or after they were brought to Babylon, Jechonias begat Salathiel, Mat. 1. 12. which is the very same with that which is in the genealogical Tables related, the sons of Jeconiah Asir (that is. the prisoner; implying, that the issue he had was begotten by him, and born to him in the time of his captivity.) Salathiel his son, and Malchiram, &c. 1 Chr. 3. 16. Nor is it unlikely, but that Jeconiah might have children in Babylon during the time of his captivity, (the captive Jews there being not restrained from the benefit of marriage. See Chap. 29 6. if not before, yet especially, (though then well in years, about fifty and five old) when being by Evil-merodac enlarged, he lived in a freer condition than formerly; enjoying there the state and portion by the Chaldæan King assigned him in the Court of Babylon, ver. 2 King. 24. 27 —— 30 which he held to his dying day. The Rabbines indeed, to reconcile this Prophecie, and that relation, say, that Jeconiah repented him of his evil courses, when he was in captivity, and that this sentence past against him, was thereupon reverſed. Which, though it be not altogether improbable, but that Jeconiah might do, as Manasses had done before him, and that, so he restored Manasses then again to his Kingdom, 2 Chr. 33. 12-15. so he might give Jeconiah favour in the sight of Evil-Merodac, and so encline his heare to enlarge him; according to that, Psal. 106. 46. But, because of this their supposal, we have no sure ground, we shall not have recourse to any such uncertainty for the clearing of this doubt; neither is there any necessity at all for us so to do: since that God himself expressly here telleth, why he would have such a record as is here mentioned to be entred concerning Jeconiah, to wit, not because he should die without issue; but as a man that should he succesſicleſſe in his reign, and with whom the royal dignity, in a manner, should die and expire.

a man that shall not prosper in his dayes] For he had both a very short, and a very unprosperous reign. See 2 King. 24 8 ——16. in his dayes, for in his reign: as Esai 1. 1. a defect of the relative, as verſ. 6.

for no man of his seed shall prosper, sitting on the Throne of David, and ruling any more in Judah.] None of all his children shall ever so thrive, or prosper, as to rise to the royal state, and attain to the kingly government of Judah; for Zedekiah his Uncle succeeded him in the Kingdom for a few years, 2 King. 24. 17. nor did any of his posteritie attain to the royal estate, which expired in Zedekiah, Lam. 4. 20. See the like of Jehoiakim his father, Chap. 36. 30.

CHAP. XXIII.

Verſ. 1. WO to the Pastors that destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture, saith the Lord.] This whole Sermon or Prophecie is mainly spent in menaces denounced against bad rulers, verſ. 1. 8. false Prophets, verſ. 9. 32. and profane people, verſ. 33. 40. The first part of it concerning bad rulers, consisteth of a threatning of the removal of them, verſ. 1. 2. and a promiſe of the reſtitution of Gods people, principally to be accomplished in Christ, verſ. 3 8. A learned Writer supposeth it to be a continuation of the Prophets relation of what had been before delivered by him in the reign of Jeconiah, concerning the abuſes and corruptions that reigned among all sorts in his time; but of this his conceit, there is no great probability. See on Chap. 22. 1.

Wo] As Esai 5.8. Ezek. 34.2.

Pastors] That is, Rulers; whether Civil, or Eccleſiaſtical; Princes, or Prieſts: for both ruled, Chap. 5. 31. and 20. 1. Heb. feeders. So Chap. 3. 15. and 10. 21. and 22. 22. and 25. 34. Ezek. 34. 2.

that destroy] See Ezek. 22 27. and 34 3. Zach. 11. 4,5.

scatter] By their cruel dealing and oppreſſions, Ezek. 34. 4. 21. Chap. 50. 6.

the sheep of my pasture] Or, my pasture-sheep; as Psalm 100. 3. those whom I take ſpecial care for; and had not turned out to graze on some bare common, in the wild waſte, but had procured good pasture for, Psal. 23, 1, 2. Chap. 3. 7 Ezek 34. 14.

V. 2. Therefore thus saith the Lord God of Israel,] Whose pasture-sheep the people of Israel are, Ezek. 34 30, 31 against the pastors, that feed my people] Or, concerning (as Chap. 12. 14. and 22. 6.) those Shepheards, (Heb. feeders; as verſe 1.) that rule, (Heb. feed as Ezek. 34. 16. Mic. 5. 4.) or, that should feed, (as, learn, for, should learn, Esai 26. 9. but do nothing leſſe.

Ezek.

Ezek. 34.2,3,8.) or that feed upon, my people; that feed upon those whom they should feed, Ezek. 34. 3,8,10. See on Chap. 22. 22.

ye have scattered my flock, and driven them away, and have not visited them: Or, but (as chap 22. 27.) have not visited them; ye expel them, and drive them out of their dwellings; but ye look not after them, nor take any course for their welfare, Ezek. 34. 4, 6, 8, 21. verſ. 1, behold I will visit upon you the evil of your doings, saith the Lord,] Or, I will punish upon you for your evil doings; as Exod. 32. 34. there is an elegant antanaclasis in the various notion of the word, visit; which in Hebrew ſignifies ſometime to take care of, and provide for, Ruth 1.6. Job 7.17 18. ſometime, to punish, Exod. 20.5. & 34. 7. Psal. 89.32. I will visit you, ſaith God, for your not visiting them. I will visit you in wrath and indignation, by taking of vengeance upon you, for your not visiting of them, by taking care of them, making proviſion for them, and procuring their welfare, according to your duty, Ezek. 34.8,10.

V. 3. And I will gather the remnant of my flock out of all Countries, whither I have driven them,] To the foregoing commination denounced against those bad Rulers is subjoyned, for the comfort of the faithfull, a promiſe of recollection, and reſtitution of a remnant, after such diſperſions as had been made of the main body of Gods people, partly through the iniquity of those their Rulers, and partly also in way of caſtigation by God himſelf for their ſins. See the like, Esay 1.9 and 4.3. and 6.13. and 10.20. 22. and 11.11, 12. Ch. 3.14. and 12. 14. & 16.15. & 31.7. Ezek. 20.40,41. & 34. 11,12. Mic. 2, 12. Zac. 10.3. See Deut. 30, 1,5. Of the redundancy here, see Ch. 22, 26.

and will bring them again to their folds;] Or, pasture; for the word is ſingular; and it is uſed for pasture, Ezek. 34, 14, to the places of their former abode in their own, and for a dwelling alſo the word ſignifieth, Esay 32. 18. and 33. 20. Jo. Ch. 24.6.

and they shall be fruitfull and increase,] Or, multiply, as Gen. 8.17 and they shall be fruitfull and increase, Exod. 1.7. Ezek. 36, 11. See the like promiſes, Esay 44.3-4. Chap. 31.27. Zach. 2.4.

V. 4. And I will set up Shepherds over them, which shall feed them] Heb. feeders; as before, ver. 1. and they shall feed them: not feed upon them as the former did, ver. 2. the copulative for the relative: as Chap. 17.6. fulfilled in Nehemy, Zorobabel, and other faithfull governours of the Jewiſh people, after the captivity, that fought not themſelves, but the good and welfare of Gods people, Neh. 2.10, & 5.14. 1.9 Hag. 2.23. Zach. 4.9, & 6.10.14. alſo in Chriſtian Princes and rulers under the Goſpel. See Ch. 3.15. So Ezek. 34 11,12.

and they shall see no more nor be dismayed] They ſhall dwell in ſafety, and good ſecurity; free from fear of any adverſary, So ver. 6. Chap. 28.25, 26.2 6. & 34.30. See the ſame terms, 2 Chr. 20.17, and 32.7.

neither shall they be lacking, saith the Lord.] None of them ſhall be miſſing, whom God will have ſaved and reſerved for a remnant. See Esai 27.12,13. So is the word uſed, Numb. 31.49. 1 Sam. 25. 7,15,21. 2 King. 10.19. Esai 34.16.

V. 5. behold the dayes come, saith the Lord, that I will raise to David a righteous branch, Heb. Behold (ſo are the Prophecies concerning Chriſt uſually uſhered in, to ſtir up unto attention and due conſideration. See Esai 7. 14.) the dayes coming (as verſ. 7. Chap. 16, 14, 18.) and (as chap. 9.25.) I will raiſe, or ſet up, (as verſ. 4, for the term is the ſame) or, ſettle, (and eſtabliſh; for ſo alſo the word may ſignifie, as Gen. 6.17.) to David, or for David, (of his illue to ſucceed him in the government of my people, Psal. 132. 11. Chap. 33. 26.) a righteous branch, or bud, or ſprout; for the Hebrew word ſignifieth no other: and that great learned man therefore, who requireth to have it here rendred with the Septuagint, the Sun-riſing, and with much confidence condemneth them all that render it ſo as we do after ſome of the Greek, the old Latine, and other later verſions in ſeveral languages, of unſkilfulneſſe, and going againſt the word of God, ſhould have had better grounds, than any that he hath produced, for ſo ſevere and peremptory a cenſure: ſure it is that they go beſides Scripture, if not againſt it, that other wiſe ſe expound it; the word it ſelf being no where found therein uſed but of plants, or with reference unto them; the root alſo that it ſpringeth from never applied but to plants, or to haire, that ſprouteth out from the body, as plants and herbage from the ground, and in metaphorical forms, with alluſion to the one, or the other. Now this paſſage another learned late Writer expounded of Zorobabel: and we deny him not to be of the ſhepherds, or rulers before-mentioned, verſ. 4. but the party here deſcribed is diſtinguiſhed from them, nor can be any other than our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. Yea, the Jewiſh Doctors themſelves, both on the place, and elſewhere, acknowledge, that by the bud or branch, or Sprout, here ſpoken of, is meant the Meſſias. Though they add withall ſome vain devices of their own, to confirm the ſame: to wit, becauſe, ſay they, the letters of the word Menachem, that ſignifieth a Comforter, and is the name of the Meſſias, Lam. 1. 16. and the letters of the word ſemach, here uſed, do both make up the very ſame number: to wit, 138. But this is but a frivolous fancy of theirs; nor doth the truth of God need ſuch ſandy ſupports. This is ſo he ſtiled, as here, ſo alſo, Zach. 3. 8. becauſe he was to ſpring up, as a bud, branch, or Sprout, from the root of Jeſſe, and of David, Esai 11, 1, 10. Rev. 5. 5. and 22. 16. though in regard of his meanneſſe and weakneſſe to outward appearance, like ſome young bud, or tender ſhoot, at its firſt ſprouting out, Esai 53. 2. yet that ſhould, in proceſſe of time, bud, ſprout, and branch out, like ſome luſh plant, as retaineth its verdure perpetually, flowring and flouriſhing unto all eternity Psal. 132. 17, 18.

a righteous branch] As Chap. 33. 15. a branch, bud, or ſprout of righteouſneſſe; ſo termed, not onely, becauſe he is perfectly righteous in himſelf, that righteous one, Act. 22. 14. that holy and righteous one, Act. 3. 14. the Holy of Holies, Dan. 9. 24. but alſo, becauſe he maketh multitudes righteous; he makes all his people righteous like himſelf, Psal. 17. 7. Esai 53. 11. and 60 21. Rom. 5 18, 19. 1 John 3. 3, 7. And it is as if the Prophet had ſaid, Be ye not diſmaid, when ye ſee ſo many wicked Rulers of Davids poſterity for their wickedneſſe removed ſo many of them, as degenerate and rotten buds, or branches, cut off & caſt away, without hope of recovery, Chap. 22. 10 11, 18, 19, 24-30. Lam. 4.20. God in the room of them will raiſe up a bud, or branch of the ſame ſtock, that ſhall be herein altogether unlike unto them, ſhall not onely be moſt juſt and righteous himſelf, but ſhall adminiſter juſtice equally unto all, and make others alſo therein like unto himſelf. See the like propheciesand predictions of Chriſt and his Kingdom, Esai 4. 2. and 40. 11. and 42.8. Chap. 33.14,15.

and a King shall reign and prosper,] Jeſus Chriſt, the King of Israel, Joh. 1.49. the true Melchiſedech, King of righteouſneſſe, Heb. 7. 1-3. yea, the King of kings, 1 Tim. 6.15. Rev. 19.16. he ſhall reign and proſper; that is, reign proſperouſly, or proſper in his reign: unlike therein to Jeconiah and his ſeed, Chap. 22. 30. he ſhall be ſucceſſfull in all his undertakings, Psal. 45. 4. Esai 52. 13. and 53. 10. Ver. 6. 2.

and ſhall execute judgement and juſtice in the earth.] Or upon the earth, as Chap. 31. 22. Mat. 6. 20. he ſhall execute judgement throughout the whole world, Psal. 96. 13. and 98. 9. Esai 2. 4. or in the land; as Esai 5.8. Ezek 9.9. verſ. 8. among his people: as is ſaid of David, 2 Sam. 8. 15. 1 Chr. 18. 14. a type of Chriſt; therefore alſo called David, Ezek 34. 23, 25.

V. 6. In his dayes Judah ſhall be ſaved,] For he ſhall ſave his people from their ſins, and reſcue them out of the hands of their enemies, ſpirituall eſpecially, and deliver them from this wicked world, Esai 33. 2. 2. and 63. 1. Mat. 1. 21. Luke 1. 74. Gal. 1. 4.

and Israel ſhall dwell ſafely,] Heb. in, or unto conſidence; that is, ſecurely, confidently; as Judg. 18. 7. Lev. 26. 5. So Deut 33. 12, 28. Ezek 34. 25, 27, 28. Judah and Iſrael here, one and the ſame, Gods people. So Chap. 33. 16. where the ſame thing is repeated.

and this is his name wherewby he ſhall be called, The Lord our righteouſneſſe.] Heb, this is his name whereby he ſhall call him, Jehovah Tſidkenu: he ſhall call him; that is, ſay ſome, God ſhall call him. Others, Iſrael ſhall call him. Others again, each one ſhall call him: and the word is here indefinite; and is therefore, as in our verſion, beſt rendred by the paſſive; he ſhall be called. But ſome queſtion is made, whom this title is here to be given unto: and ſome would have it given to Gods people, to Iſrael. So it ſhould be rendred, Jehovah, or the Lord in our righteouſneſſe: as, the name of the new Jeruſalem, Jehovah-Shammah; the Lord, or Jehovah is there, Ezek. 48 35. and it may not unfitly be given unto Iſrael, whoſe righteouſneſſe Chriſt is, 1 Cor. 1.30. being made one with him, 1 Cor. 6. 17. and 12. 12, 13. and profeſſing to have their righteouſneſſe in and from him, in whom all the ſeed of Iſrael are juſtified, and do glory, Esai 45. 24, 25. that which by this title they ſhould acknowledge. But others rather, and ſo the moſt and beſt conceive it to be the name of Jeſus Chriſt the Meſſias, as Immanuel, God with us, Esai 7. 14. So, Jehovah Tſidkenu; Jehovah, or the Lord, our righteouſneſſe: who, as he came to bring in everlaſting righteouſneſſe, Dan. 4.24. So, he is by God made unto us righteouſneſſe. 1 Cor. 1.30,31. while by his being made by God ſin (that is, a ſin-facrifice, as Heb. 9.28.) for us, who had no ſin himſelf, we become the righteouſneſſe of God in him, 2 Cor. 5.21.

V. 7. Therefore, behold the dayes come, ſaith the Lord, that they ſhall no more ſay, The Lord liveth, which brought up the children of Iſrael out of the land of Egypt:] Or, Furthermore, or, Moreover; for ſo the coherence of this with the former, (and the ſubject matter of either being duely conſidered) requireth the particle here to be rendred, which Chap. 16.14. (where the very ſame thing was before recorded) is upon the like ground, another way rendred: for theſe terms of connexion do frequently alter their notion according to the relations, that the members, or paſſages of the diſcourſe, which they come between, have one to another.

they ſhall no more ſay] Or, it ſhall no more be ſaid; as it is, Chap. 16. 14.

V. 8. But the Lord liveth, that brought up, and which led the ſeed of the houſe of Iſrael, out of the North countrey, and from all countries, whither I had driven them, and they ſhall dwell in their own land.] See the ſame in effect, Chap 16.15.

which led] Or, brought Heb made to come, as Chap. 2.7.

the ſeed of the houſe of Iſrael] A remnant of them, v. 3. that ſhould be as a ſeed, Esai 1.9. and 6.13. and 65.9. Rom. 9.29.

I had driven them] As verſ. 3. and they ſhall dwell in their own land] Or, that they might dwell (as Joſh. 24. 9.) in their own land. Heb. on (as Esai 24.22.) their land. So, their own heart, v. 16.

V. 9.

V. 9. My heart within me is broken because of the Prophets] Here, from the Princes and Rulers before dealt with, ver. 1. 2. the Prophet passeth to the Priests and Prophets, whom he taxeth as the principal Authours of that general corruption that was to rife among the people: and threateneth them therefore with fome dreadfull judgement to be inflicted upon them for the fame.

My heart within me is broken] Heb. As for, or Concerning the Prophets, (as Efay 32. 1. See there) my heart in the midst of me (as Pfal. 22. 14 and 39. 3. and 55. 4.) is broken: as Pfalm 51. 17 Efay 65 14 Thus the Prophet expreſſeth his extream grief of heart, to conſider how the falſe Prophets (for ſuch he here meaneth, as c. 4. 9.) did deceive, delude, and miſlead the people, to the utter ruine of them both See c. 14. 13, 16.

all my bones ſhake] With extremity of fear and trembling, to think what will befall them. See the like, Hab. 3. 16. the word ſignifieth properly to hover or flutter, as a Fowl doth over her young, Gen 1. 2. Deut. 32. 11. in which places, and here, it is onely found, and ſo is the heart wont oft to doe, to flutter as a bird, in fainting qualms, or ſudden vehement fears. See Pſalm 38. 10. Chapter. 4. 19.

I am like a drunken man, and like a man whom wine hath overcome] not able to ſtand on my legs, ſo aſtoniſhed; or as one at his wits end, not knowing what to doe: as Pſalm 107. 27, Efay 24. 20.

and like a man] Or, even as Chapter, 15. 13, and 19. 11.

whom wine hath overcome] Heb. paſſed over him, as we uſe to ſay, one that is in drink, or that is drowned in drink; as overwhelmed with it: in like manner as waves and billowes are ſaid to paſſe over one, that is not on, but in the Sea, Pſalm 42. 8. Jon. 2. 3. and the Pronoun demonſtrative in place of the relative, as Efay 42. 1. and 46 3.

because of the Lord, and because of the words of his holineſs.] Or, his words of holyneſs: his holy, or moſt holy words: as Pſalm 105. 42. what which the Jewiſh Commenter expoundeth of the Words of the falſe Prophets, who had the name of God, and the Word of God, continually in their mouth, as if whatſoever they delivered, were no other than Gods Oracles, verſe 17. 31. So the Prophets meaning ſhould be, that he was affected and tranſported with griet and dread, to hear Gods Name ſo horribly abuſed by them, fathering their lies upon him, and ſtrengthning men thereby in their rebellions againſt him, verſe 17. Ezekiel 13. 19, 22. But the moſt rather underſtand it of God himſelf, his wrath hereby inkenſed, and words of dreadfull menaces thence proceeding, and expreſſing the ſame by denunciation of ſuch hideous effects of it, as were ſhortly to enſue. So Hab. 3. 16. Heb. from the face, or wrath of the Lord, as Pſalm 34 16. or, ſimply, becauſe of the Lord's as in the the next member and ver. 10.

V. 10. For the land is full of adulterers,] So Chap. 5. 8. and 9. 2. either while the falſe Prophets connive at them, and preach nothing but peace to them, verſe 22. 30. or becauſe by promiſing of peace unto them, they encourage them to looſe and licentious living, v. 17. Ezek. 13. 22.

for becauſe of ſwearing the land mourneth] Becauſe of oaths and perjuries that are ſo rife in it. So the Chaldee, whom the Jewiſh Doctors follow; and ſo the ancient Greek ſeemeth to have had it. It is word for word, from the face, or, becauſe, (as verſe 9.) of the curſe, which they therefore ſo render; becauſe oath and curſe, ſwearing and curſing go commonly together, Levit. 5. 1. Judges 17. 2. 1 Kings 19. 2. Neh. 10. 29. Ezek. 17. 18. Howbeit the old Latine, and divers others of the beſt note, retaining the expreſs term render the text: for becauſe of a curſe the land mourneth; that is, by reaſon of the curſe of God upon our land, in ſuch manner as followeth, the land mourneth, as Chapter 12. 4. and 14. 2. So, the curſe hath devoured the land, Efay 24. 6. and I ſuppoſe it to be as well the genuine, as the plainer ſenſe; onely I ſhould render it, though by reaſon of a curſe the land mourn: as it he had ſaid though manifeſt expreſſions of Gods diſpleaſure be already upon us, and the land by means thereof ſeemeth to wear a mourning weed, as is apparent to the eye, yet it is full of abominable filthineſs; and theſe wicked wretches ſtill tell them, that all ſhall go well with them, Chap 6. 14. and 8. 11. and 14. 13. There is an elegancy in the ſound of the words of malediction and mourning; and between it again, and the term of filling in the former member, neither of which our Engliſh can fitly expreſſe: the uſe of the particle in this directive notion, is very frequent, as Gen. 8. 26. Joſh. 19. 18. Pſalm. 23. 4.

the pleaſant places of the wilderneſſes are dried up.] This ſeemeth to be a knitting of things repugnant together, for what pleaſantneſs can be looked for in a wild waſt, or a wilderneſſe? ſome therefore render it the habitations, or, habitable places of the wilderneſſe; that is, of the wilder, and leſs-peopled part of the land, called the wilderneſſe of Judea. Matth. 3. 1. But the words would rather be rendred, the paſtures of the wilderneſs, or, of the plain; for ſo the word rendred wilderneſs oft times ſignifieth. See Efay 63. 13 Lamentations 4. 19 and the former word here joyned with it, is rendred paſtures, Pſalm 65. 12. & Joel 2. 22. and ſo ſhould be rather than habitations, Chapter, 9. 9. And this is that wherein the curſe before mentioned did conſiſt, to wit, in a great drought that had dried up their paſtures; that is, ſaith the Jewiſh Commenters, the places where Beaſts feede. See Chapter, 14. 1, 2. and their courſe is evil] Word for word, their race, See Chapter, 22. 17. from whence ſome alſo render it, violence here: but rather take it as our verſion rendreth it, their courſe (by that very word, one of the Rabbines here expounds it) is naught; onely I ſhould otherwiſe render the prefixed particle in a notion of reddition, as reflecting upon, or having reference unto the words before going; yet (as Chapter 14. 9, 15.) their courſe is naught, or, evil; though Gods curſe be upon the Land, and his hand thus upon them, yet they will not learn to amend their wayes, Efay 26. 9, 11. Chapter 5. 3. but run on ſtill in a wicked courſe, and refuſe to be reclaimed, Efay 59. 7. c. 8 6.

and their force is not right] Heb, their might, or valour, (as Efay 3. 25. and 63. 15 c. 49 35.) is unlike. So the old Latine, following the Greek, that rendreth it fuch, to wit, evil and naught, as their courſe before; or, as they expound the Latine, unlike to Gods preſcript, not ſuch as it ſhould be, becauſe the word ſometimes ſignifieth ſi. or, ſuch, Pſalm 1. 4. Prov. 1. 19. the Chaldee rendreth it, they ſhall not proſper by their might, having an eye, I ſuppoſe, to a ſpeech uſed of Moab to that effect, where this word is uſed, Efay, 16. 6. Chap. 48 30. but I conceive that our verſion is here in the right, and hath approbation from the Jewiſh Commenters, who for the expoſition of it, point us to that in Moſes, Num. 27. 7. the daughters of Zelophead ſpeak right, to which may be added, Prov. 15. 7. the heart of the fooliſh caſteth abroad (ſupplyed from the former branch) that which is not right. But we need not go far, to finde out the Prophets meaning here, two places of his put together will fully explain him; the one, chap. 8 6. no man ſpeake aright, or, what was right; the other, chap. 9. 3. they bend their tongues like their bows for falſhood, but have no courage, or, are not valiant at all for truth, or right; that which is ſaid here; their courſes are ſtark naughty, nor is their courage or valour ſhewed for ought that is right. but rather employed wholly the contrary way; they run on in a violent courſe unto evil, and bend themſelves with all their might thereunto, Pſalme 36. 4. Chapter, 9. 3.

V. 11. For both Prophet and Prieſt are profane] Heb. Prophet alſo, Prieſt alſo, or even Prophet, even Prieſt, are both profane, or, deal prophanely; for though the Nouns are ſingular, (but collectively taken: as from the Prophet to the Prieſt. Chap. 6 13.) yet is the Verb plural, to include both; and is here aright rendred, having in it a notion of profaneneſs; not of hypocriſie, as is too oft given it; and as ſome of prime note render it here, play the hypocrites. See on Efay 9. 17. and 32. 6. It is as if he had ſaid, No marvel, if the corruption be ſo general in the land, when the teachers, as well thoſe that are let over them by God to inſtruct the people, Mal. 2. 7. as thoſe alſo that profeſſe and pretend to be ſent by him on meſſages to them, doe both by their bad lives, and falſe relations, lead them into looſe courſes, and confirm them therein. See ver. 14, 15.

yea, in my houſe have I found their wickedneſs, ſaith the Lord.] Heb. alſo, or, even. (as before) in my houſe. My very Temple it ſelf is not free from, but full of their abominable ſuperſtitions and idolatries, and horribly profaned with their lewd and looſe practices, which they forbear not to perpetrate even there in my preſence 2 Chronicles 36. 14. Chap. 7. 10, 11. Ezek. 7. 20. and 8. 5, 17. See verſe 14.

V. 12. Wherefore their ways ſhall be unto them as ſlippery ways in the darkneſſe, and they ſhall be driven on, and fall therein.] Heb. Therefore their way ſhall be unto them as a way of ſlipperineſſes in the darke, or, in a miſt. It ſhall fare with them, as with one that is conſtrained to travel in the dark, or in a thick miſt, where he cannot diſcern his way, and in ſome ſlippery way, where though he could ſee it, yet he ſhould find no ſure or firm footing; and withall ſo put forward, and driven on by thoſe that either puſh him on; or purſue him cloſe at his heels, that he can neither make any ſtay and ſtand ſtill, nor ſlacken his pace, nor take time with his feet to feel and try his way before him; but muſt of neceſſity, being ſo purſued upon with all theſe diſadvantages, run on head-long, until he fall and miſcarry: an Emblem, to the life, of unavoydable miſcarrying See the very like, Pſalm 35. 6.

their way ſhall be unto them] An elegant redundancy: as, my deliverer unto me, Pſalm 144. 2. and, their pathes they have made crooked to them, Efay, 59. 8.

as ſlippery wayes] Or, as a very ſlippery way. Heb. ſlipperineſſes: the word ſignifies ſometime, ſmoothneſſes, (for in the ſingular it is not read) and ſo it is uſed for flatteries, Dan. 11. 21, 34. And becauſe ſmooth things are commonly ſlippery; hence it is that it cometh alſo to ſignifie ſlipperineſſes; and ſo here otherwiſe a ſmooth or even way is a matter deſireable, Efay 26. 7. and 40. 3, 4. and ſlipperineſſes, for, a way of ſlipperineſſes, (the word way, ſupplied from the former member; as Deut. 32. 4. all his wayes are judgement, that is, wayes of judgement) that is a moſt ſlippery way. So Pſalm. 35 6. as alſo ſlipperineſſes, for moſt ſlippery places, Pſalm 73. 18. for theſe plurals are in Hebrew much uſed to enhance and improve. See Efay 58 11. and 59. 9. c 34. 1.

in the darkneſſe] Or, in the dark; as Deut. 28. 29. Prov. 7. 9 or in a miſt; as Exod. 10. 22. See Efai 8. 22. ſo that they cannot ſee to chuſe their way, nor diſcern ought that may lie to endanger them in their way, nor know which way to turn themſelves, Efai 8. 22. and 59. 9. Prov. 4. 18. Chap. 13. 16. John 11. 10 1 Joh. 2. 11. Some render the words, not, in a miſt; but, as a miſt; and theſe two particles, in Hebrew, are for thape much alike; but the originals exhibit that, not this; and the Jewiſh Commenters ſo read it.

driven on] So Efai 8. 22. Pſal. 35. 6.

and fall] Or, untill they fall; being puſht forward (Pſ. 118. 13.) and ſo though Gods curſe be upon the Land, and his hand thus upon them, yet they will not learn to amend their wayes, Efay 26. 9, 11. Chapter 5. 3. but run on ſtill in a wicked courſe, and refuſe to be reclaimed, Efay 59. 7. c. 8 6.

for I will bring evil upon them] So Chap. 6. 19. and 11. 11. and 19. 3, 15.

even the year of their viſitation, ſaith the Lord.] Or, in the year of their viſitation; as Chap. 46. 21. When in wrath I come on viſiting of them, verſ. 2. So Chap. 11. 13. and 48. 44. and 50. 27.

V. 13. And I have ſeen folly in the Prophets of Samaria ;] Or, as ſome render it, I ſaw indeed (when time was) folly; ſo it is rendred, Job 1. 22. and 24. 12. or, as ſome render it, abſurdity, or, an abſurd thing. Heb. properly, inſipidity, or, unſavorineſſe: a metaphor taken from meats, that for want of ſalt, being unſavoury, are offenſive to the palate, Job 6. 6. See the like metaphor, Ephef 4. 29. compared with Col. 4. 6. it is applied to the falſe Prophets fictions, Lam 2. 14. and to their ill tempered daubings, Ezek. 13. 10, 11, 14, 15. and 22 28. in the prophets of Samaria thoſe of the ten Tribes, whereof Samaria was the head citie, Efai 7. 9.

they prophecied in Baal, and cauſed my people Iſrael to erre.] They delivered their prophecies not in my name, but in the name of Baal; and ſo cauſed my people to go after Baal. See 1 King 18. 18, 21. and 22. 6. 7. Iſrael, thole of the ten Tribes; as Chap. 3. 6.

V. 14. I have ſeen alſo in the Prophets of Jeruſalem an horrible thing;] Or, but (Heb. And) as Chap. 5. 30. 23. 14.) in the Prophets of Jeruſalem a fearfull thing, or, ſtately; filthineſſe or ſtench; moſt vile and abominable practices, far worſe in ſome kinde, than in thoſe of Samaria See Chap. 5. 30. and 29. 17. Hoſ. 6. 18.

they commit adultery] Do as Elies ſons did, 1 Sam. 2. 17, 22. whence adultery became ſo rife in the land, verſ. 10.

and walk in lies] Or, walk up and down with lies. Heb. with falſhood, or a ly; as Efai 28. 15. they utter their lies not in Baals name, but in mine, and ſo father their lies upon me, Chap. 14. 14. See verſ. 26. Heb. committing adultery, and walking with a lie; that is, at once, committing they commit adultery; and walking, they walk about with lies; they make a common trade and practice of either: a form though defective yet very ſignificant. See on Efai 59. 11. 13. See theſe two vile practices joyned together in the falſe Prophets again. Chap. 29. 23. For thoſe that here reſtrain the term of adultery to idolatry ſpiritual adultery, ſeem therein to wrong the Text.

they ſtrengthen alſo the hands of evil doers, that none doth return from his wickedneſſe :] Heb. and they ſtrengthen the hands of evildoers, that they may not return a man (that is, each one; 3 Ch. 22. 7. or any one; as Chap. 5. 1.) from his wickedneſſe. They confirm them in their wicke dneſſe and ſo keep them from repentance by hearing them in hand that they ſhall do well enough whatſoever Gods meſſengers tell them, though they do continue in their ſinnes. See Ezek. 13 22.

they all are become to me as Sodom, and the inhabitants thereof as Gomorrah.] By their means it is come to paſſe, that this citie of Jeruſalem is become as another Sodom, and the inhabitants thereof as the inhabitants of Gomorrah: for ſo it is to be ſupplied; as way, verſ. 12. See Deut. 32. 32 Efai 1. 10. to me: either an elegant redundancy: as Chap. 12. 8. See there, and before verſ. 12. or to me; that is, in mine account; as Amos 9. 7. I make no other reckoning of them, than as of thoſe abominable cities, Gezek. 16. 46.

V. 15. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts concerning the Prophets ;] Or, thoſe Prophets: for the article is here reſtitutive, and demonſtrative; as Chap. 27. 7. the Prophets before deſcribed.

I will feed them with wormwood, and make them drink the wine of gall :] Or rather, I will feed them with poyſon, and drench them with joyce of hemlock, or wolfs-bane. See of the terms here uſed on Chap. 8. 14. and 9. 15.

for from the Prophets of Jeruſalem is profaneneſſe gone forth into all the land.] See before, ver. 11. for hypocriſie, put in the margent, hath no place at all here.

V. 16. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, Hearken not unto the words of the Prophets that prophecie unto you :] So Chap. 27. 9, 14, 16, 17.

they make you vain :] Or, beguile you. Heb. they are making you vain: it is their practice to delude you, while they feed you with vanities, and make you truſt in vain things that will fail you in the end, and ſo make you vain, as all ſuch are, that follow after, and rely upon ought that is vain. So 2 King. 17. 15. Pſal. 62. 10. Chap. 2. 5. Rom. 1. 21.

they ſpeak a viſion of their own heart, and not out of the mouth of the Lord.] They vent the devices of their own heads and hearts, not ought that comes from God, Chap. 14 14.

a viſion] Alluding to the title given to Gods meſſages, Efai 1. 1. So Chap. 14 14.

of their own hearts] As, their own land, verſ 8.

out of the mouth] Or, from the mouth of the Lord; as 2 Chr. 35. 22. and 36. 12.

They ſay ſtill. Or, ſaying ſtill; or In ſaying, ſaying; as, in ſaying ſay, Exod 21. 5. ſee Chap. 3. 1.

that deſpiſe me] Or, provoke, or reproach me. See on Efai 1. 8.

that walketh after the imagination of his own heart.] See Chap. 7. 24. and 16. 12. and 18. 12. his own heart; as his own way, Efai 53. 6.

No evil ſhall come upon you. See Chap. 14. 13. directly contrary to what God had threatned, Deut. 29. 19; 20.

V. 18. For who hath ſtood in the counſel of the Lord, and hath perceived and heard his word? Who hath marked his word, and heard it?] The ſpeech either of the Prophet himſelf, as the moſt, concerning theſe counterfeit Prophets, demanding which of them God had acquainted with any ſuch ſecret purpoſe of his, as they pretended to have received from him, as if they came like Angels dropt down from heaven, and ſent by God to reveal his will and pleaſure to his people. See verſ. 22. or, as ſome other, of the falſe Prophets, moving the queſtion, how Jeremy, or any other beſide themſelves, ſhould come to know any ſuch thing from God, as they delivered in his name; as if they were the onely men that were acquainted with Gods privy counſels, and none could know them, but from them: and ſo heartening the people againſt the menaces of Gods Prophets. See the like, 1 King. 22. 24. And the Text thus taken, it would be read with a ſupply, For who, ſay they hath ſtood, &c. as Efai 22. 13. Act. 15. 5. Some ſuppoſe that the words of the Apoſtle, Rom 11. 34. were taken from hence; but they are much miſtaken; for they are taken from Efai 40. 13, 14. and are of a far other notion than this paſſage is they ſpeak of Gods taking counſel from others, this of underſtanding Gods counſel from himſelf.

who] Who but we, or beſides us; which ſome alſo thruſt into the Text. So Efai 40 16. and 44 7.

hath ſtood: Waiting or attending upon God as ſervants do upon their maſters great perſonages eſpecially, miniſters & officers upon Kings and Princes, 1 King 10. 8. in the counſel of the Lord Heb, ſecret Pſal. 25. 14. Prov. 3. 32. and 11. 13. and 20. 19. and 25. 9. but ſometime it is uſed for counſel, as Prov. 15. 22. Amos 3. 7. becauſe counſel of requireth ſecrecie: and ſometime again for an aſſembly in general. Chap 6. 11. though properly and primarily of ſuch as meet to conſule about ought, Gen. 49 6. and it ſeemeth to allude unto the manner of ſuch miniſters, or officers, who attending on Kings when they ſit in councel, do by means thereof, many times, come to the notice of ſuch things, as are wont to be concealed from others. So Job 15. 8. and hath perceived.] Heb. and ſhall ſee; or, that he might ſee, (as Chap. 10. 4. and 22. 10.) to wit, in ſome viſion; as Efai 2. 1 and 6. 1. and heard ! Or, (as Chap 22 3, 18.) hear; as Pſal. 85 8.

marked] Or, attended, or, hearkned; as 2 Chr. 23. 10. Efai 21. 7 Chap. 8. 6.

V. 19. Behold, a whirl-wind of the Lord is gone forth in fury,] Behold, mark what I ſay, and aſſure your ſelves of it, (as Efai 10. 30.) whatſoever theſe falſe Prophets preach to you, as from God, of peace and ſafety, there is a grievous tempeſt in coming, that will fall heavily on the heads of thoſe whom they promiſe peace to, verſ. 14. and ye will finde to your grief when it will be too late, that what is now told you, was true, verſ. 20. ſee the ſame Chap 30. 23, 24.

a whirl-wind] Or, a ſtorm, or, tempeſt, as it is rendred, Pſ. 83. 15. Amos 1. 14. Jon. 1. 4. for the alluſion is not to wind alone; but to a ſtorm of rain, or hail, that lighteth on mens heads; as in the words enſuing.

of the Lord] That is, from the Lord; a ſtorm, or, tempeſt, coming from him, ſent by him; as Jon. 1. 4. for, an evil ſpirit of God, 1 Sam. 16. 15, 16. for, an evil ſpirit from God: as it is there expounded v. 14. or, a tempeſt of the Lord, for, a mighty tempeſt: as, mountains of God, for, great mountains, Pſal. 36. 6. and, the trees of the Lord, for, great, and tall trees, Pſal. 104. 16. So, a ſleep of God, that may be taken either way 1 Sam. 26. 12. The former way goeth the Chaldee, which the Jewiſh Commentators concur with.

is gone forth in fury] Or, with fury, or, in wrath: a defect of the participle: as Efai 52. 8. and 56. 11. and ſo the Jewiſh Doctors after the Chaldee: or, wrath is gone forth; as Num. 16 46. as an explication of the text.

even a grievous whirl-wind] Or, even (Heb. and; as verſ. 9.) a grievous tempeſt. Heb. grievouſly paining: from a root that ſignifies, to be in pain, Job 15. 20. Efai 53 c. or, as ſome lighting or, falling becauſe the word is after here ſo rendred, Others, continuing; it shall fall grievously upon the head of the wicked.] Or, that shall fall grievously: the relative supplied; as Chap. 22. 6 30. the word here also signified somtimes, to be in pain, Chap. 5. 3. Ezek. 30. 16. sometimes to sight, or fall upon; as some, to slay & abide, 2 Sam. 3. 29. let them fall on, or sit upon the head of Joab: and Hos. 11. 6. the sword shall light, or abide upon their cities (our Version hath joyned both together), and it may well be deemed a complexive form of speech, (of which kinde see on Esai 38. 17, 21.) as if it were said, it shall with pain light and fall (as Damascus shall be its rest, Zach. 9. 1.) upon the head: (whereby it appears that some such kinde of form, or tongue is alluded unto, as is wont to light upon mens heads, as Psalm 11. 6.) of the wicked: either the false Prophets themselves, vers. 15. 32. or those that are confirmed in their wicked courses by them, vers. 14. or both, Ezek. 14. 9, 10. See Chap. 14. 15, 16.

…s the word seemeth to signifie, Lam. 4. 6. Hosea 11. 6. see Chap. 30. 23.

V. 20. The anger of the Lord shall not return, until he have executed, and until he have performed the thoughts of his heart.] So Chap. 30. 24. Heb. done, and established. This form of Gods wrath will not be laid till what he hath purposed be fully accomplished. See Esai 55. 11. 1 Sam. 3. 12.

in the latter dayes ye shall consider it perfectly.] Or, hereafter. Heb. in posterity, or dayes to come (as Num. 24. 14.) consider of it with understanding, or consideration: for the verb in this form is applyable to either signification, Esai 1. 3. and 52. 15. Chap. 2. 10. and 9. 16. a defect of the particle; as vers. 10. When these dayes are once over, after a while, ye will fully understand and seriously consider, what ye will not believe at present. See the like, Ezek. 24. 5. and 6. 10. For there is little reason to offer this with the Jewish Master, to the dayes of Messias, when faith he, the wicked shall at once be destroyed; though at those time as this form be found not used, Esai 2. 2. Chap. 48. 27. and 49. 20. Joel 2. 28. Micah 4. 1. Nor is there any necessity of carrying on this clause, by limiting the words of the next verse to it; as if it were said, That when the evils now denounced over to it them, then they should come to know that these false Prophets were never sent on any such message from God as they pretended: true indeed; but seems not the sense of the Prophet in this place.

V. 21. I have not sent these Prophets, yet they ran: I have not spoken to them, yet they prophecied.] They do on their own heads all they do, vers. 16. they have neither mission nor message from me. So Chap. 14. 14. and 27. 15. and 28. 8, 9. yet, Heb. and; or, and yet: so Chap. 14. 9, 15.

V. 22. But if they had stood in my counsel, and had caused my people to hear my words, then they should have turned them from their evil way, and from the evil of their doings.] Or, For (as tending this as a reason, to prove, that they came with no message from him. Heb. And; as Chap. 14. 15. and 16. 15.) if they had stood in my counsel (as they pretended, and professed to have done, vers. 18. if they had been admitted into so near attendance upon me, as to be made acquainted with my counsels and purposes) they would then (as Gen. 28. 1, 2. but misplaced there, as here, and Chap. 4. 12. and 15. 19.) have declared my words to my people. (Heb. made to hear, as Chap. 4. 5, 15, 16. they would have told them nothing, but what I have spoken, vers. 28. acquainted them with my will.) and would have so rmed them from their evil way, and from the evil of their doing: they would have endeavoured to withdraw and reclaim them from their wicked courses, as other my faithfull Prophets and Messengers do, Chap. 25. 3 —— 5. and not have confirmed & strengthened them, as now they do in them, vers. 17. So rather, then as some others following the old Latine, which our Version concurreth with, if they had faithfully declared Gods Word to his people, the people then had been converted; for that is not always the lot of Gods true Prophets, and faithfull Ministers, Esai 49. 4. and 53. 1. was not of Christ himself, when he was here upon earth. Mat. 11. 20. John 12. 37, 38.

V. 23. Am I a God at hand, saith the Lord, and not a God afar off?] Some of the ancient Greeks read these words, not by way of interrogation, but by way of enunciation, I am a God at hand, and not a God afar off.] I am alike near you every where, Psal. 139. 1 —— 12. Prov. 15. 3. the sense is good, but not proper to this place: for the interrogative, though oft suppressed, as Hos. 4. 14. Mal. 1. 8. is in the Heb. ew here expressed: the meaning is, Am I not a God here upon earth, that seems farther from me, Job 12. 19 —— 14. Psa. 103. 11, and 138. 6. and 139. 15. as well as in heaven, that seemeth nearer to me, as being the place of my special residence, Psal. 33. 13, 14. and 115. 3. do you think, because my palace is in heaven, Psa. 11. 14. that I take no notice of what is done upon earth? Psal. 113. 5, 6 see Deut. 8. 12.

V. 24. Can any man hide himself in secret places, that I shall not see him? saith the Lord.] Heb. Shall a man be hid in hidn-places, or, hiding places? the indicative potentially, as Chap. 13. 23. and 15. 22. and the passive reciprocally; as Chap. 4. 4. and 36. 19. and man, for, any man; as Chap. 5. 1. and hidn-places, or secrecies, for, hidings, or secret places; as Psalm 10. 8 and 64. 4. and secret, or hiding places, for, any secret, or hiding place; as, our sepulchres, for, any of our sepulchres, Gen 23. 6.

that I shall not see him.] H. and I shall not see him: the copulative for the finitive; as Psalm 119. 73. Chap. 14. 19. vers. 18. or where I shall not see him: the copulative for the relative; as Gen. 6. 13. and. they shall serve, for, where they shall serve them, or rather, serve themselves of them. See on Chap. 25. 14. See Psal. 139. 7-12. Amos 9. 2, 3.

Do I not fill heaven and earth? saith the Lord.] Not by my powerfull and efficacious providence onely, 2 Chr. 16. 9. Psal. 33. 13. and 139. 6. Prov. 15. 3. Zach. 4. 10. but with mine essential presence, Psal. 139. 3, 5, 7-10. Am I not every where present? do the heavens so confine, or enclose me, that I am not present on earth, as well as in heaven? 1 King. 8. 27. Is not the earth my foot-stool, as well as heaven my throne? Esai 66. 1. Act 7. 49.

V. 25. I have heard what the Prophets say, that prophesie lies in my name, saying, I have dreamed, I have dreamed.] Or, I hear what these Prophets (as vers. 15.) say &c. whatsoever these wicked and wretched counterfeits and impostors imagine of me, as if I kept aloof, were pent up in heaven and had no place of presence, or residence here upon earth, no: took notice of ought that were spoken and done here; yet I hear their lying, and see their doings. So, I see, Chap. 7. 11. and 13. 27. vers. 14. and, I know, Esai 37. 28. Hosea 5. 3.

lies in my name] Heb. a ly, or falsehood; as vers. 14, so vers. 26, see vers. 17.

I have dreamed] Or I have a prophesie, or message from God, revealed to me by dream, one of the wayes, whereby God, in ancient times, imparted his minde to his messengers the Prophets, Num. 12. 6.

V. 26. How long shall this be in the heart of the Prophets that prophesie lies? yea, they are Prophets of the deceit of their own heart.] Or. How long? an abrupt, but very passionate form: like that, Psal. 6. 3. but thou, O Lord, how long? and, How long, O Lord? wilt thou forget me for ever? Psal. 13. 1. as also that, Chap. 13. 27. after how long yet? as if he had said, How long will it be ere they leave this course? are they resolved to make a perpetual practice of it? So I read the next words; Is it in the heart of these Prophets to be ever prophetying of lies, and prophesying the deceit of their own heart? Is it in the heart (that is, is it their desire and delight? as, the Law of God is in his heart; that is, he desireth and delighteth in it, Psal. 40. 8. and 112. 1. or are they desperately bent upon it? as, the day of vengeance is in my heart; that is, I am fully resolved upon it, Esai 63. 4.) of these rophets (as vers. 15. 25.) to be ever (a defect of the verb substantive: as, give Jerusalem a praise, for, make her to be matter of praise, Esai 62. 7. and Rom. 8, 29. he predestinated conformable, for, to be conformable: and he hath chosen rich in faith, and heirs, for, to be rich in faith, and to be heirs, Jam. 2. 5. that, for ever, is supplied, as implied in the former how long? expressed, Psal. 13. 1.) prophesying. Heb. Prophets, or prophesies of a ly, or falsehood; as vers. 25. Chap. 14. 14.) and prophesying (as before) the deceit of their own heart; as Chap. 14. 14. their own fancies and devices, wherewith they deceive and delude people, vers. 16. Thus rather, in my minde, then as some great ones; Should there be a dream (to wit, a divine one sent from God) in the heart. of these Prophets that Prophesie falsehoods? that prophesie the deceit of their own heart? Or, yea, they prophesie the deceit of their own heart. But I leave this to the judgement of others. Some continue these words with those ensuing; Is it in the heart of these Prophets that prophesie lies, &c. Do they think, I say, to cause my people to forget my name, &c. so, to have in the heart, and, to think, should be all one: as 1 Chr. 28. 2. and this seemeth not unprobable.

V. 27. Which think to cause my people to forget my name, by their dreams, which they tell every one to his neighbour, as their fathers have forgot my name for Baal.] Or, That devise (as the word is very frequently used, Psal. 21. 11. and 140. 2, 4. Chap. 11. 19. Amos 6. 5.) how to make my people forget my name (forget me and their duty to me and all regard to my Prophets that come in my name, and with messages from me) by their dreams (their vain dotages, and lying devices, which they term dreams, vers. 25. as indeed they are no better, vers. 27. 28.) which they tell one to another (so Chap. 22. 8. the false Prophets to the people; as one from another, the false Prophets from the people, vers. 30. as men use to do their dreams, Judg. 7. 13.) as their fathers (either their ancestors, or those false Prophets of Samaria, vers. 13. whom herein they imitate) forgat my name (as before, so Chap. 3. 32.) by Baal; by burning themselves to him, and serving him, instead of me, the true God, and their God, Chap. 2. 5, 13. Judge 2. 11. So that those counterfeit Prophets, though they would not be counted Baals Prophets, as those Samaritans; but would be deemed the Prophets of the true God, yet carried men away from God, as well as those Prophets of Baal did. Thus those that pretend revelations from God, may prove no lesse dangerous in making men forgetfull of God, negligefull of Gods Word, & regardfeese of their duty unto God; from whom yet either being deluded themselves, or on purpose to delude others they would be deemed so to be, than those that professe to deliver oracles from idols.

V. 28. The Prophet that hath a dream let him tell a dream;] A learned Scholiast, by dream, here understands a divine dream: but the word of God in the opposite member, doth evidently shew, that those dreams of theirs are here intended wherewith these impostors cheated and deluded Gods people, vers. 25, 27. The words may very well be rendred, The Prophet that hath a dream (Heb. with whom whom a dream is with: an elegant redundancy, as in the next member also, in that language very rife) let him tell it as a dream; and. they shall serve, for, where they shall serve them, or rather, serve themselves of them. See on Chap. 25. 14. See Psal. 139. 7-12. Amos 9. 2, 3.

and he that hath my word let him speak my word faithfully.] Heb. let him with whom my word is, as Chapter 27. 18. speake my word truth, that is, either in truth, truly, faithfully: as Judges 9. 15, 16, 19. without addition of ought to it, or mixture of ought with it, Chap. 1. 7. 2 Cor. 2. 17. 1 Pet. 2. 2. and 4. 10, 11. 2 Pet. 1. 16. a defect of the particle in, as Esay 33. 7. and 34. 2. or as a truth: such as indeed it is, Psal. 119. 142, 151, 160. John 17. 17. a defect of the note of similitude, as before.

what is the Chaffe to the Wheat? saith the Lord.] According to this Version the meaning should be; what is the Chaffe in comparison of the Wheat? Or, what comparison is there between Chaffe and Wheat? or what use or worth is the one of, in regard of the other? But the Hebrew form (which the Greeks and Latines also very frequently imitate) here used, what to the Chaffe with the wheat? seems to have another notion; and that not so much as a learned late Writer, What similitude is there between the one and the other? but, what should the one doe with the other? or what hath the one to doe with the other? as the like, 2 Samuel 16. 10. what have I to do with you? Hosh. 14. 9 what have I to doe with idols? and what have I to doe with thee? John 2. 4. to what end should lies and fancies that are no better than chaff, light stuff, and usefles for mans food, be mingled with my Word, the Bread of Life, and the onely wholesome food of mens souls, John 6 27. 1 Tim. 6. 3. Tit. 2. 1. the form is not unlike to that of the Apostles, 2 Cor. 6. 14, 15, 16. and it seemeth to have been a Proverbial kind of speech.

V. 29. Is not my Word like as a fire? saith the Lord.] Heb. so as the fire: Gods Word is not like these mens vain and idle dreams, void of life and spirit; but such as hath a powerful and effaecious work upon mens fouls, to confirm and comfort some, and to affright and disturb others, to mollifie mens hearts, and to eat out their corcuptions: in regard thereof like unto fire that warmeth, and heareth, and enflameth, melteth mettall, and burneth out drosse, and burneth up chaffe and stubble, and other like light combustible matter, Chapter 5. 14. and 20. 9. Luke 24. 32. 1 Corinthians, 3. 12, 13. 2 Corinthians 2. 16. Hebrews 4. 12.

and like an hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces?] Or (as ver. 18.) is it not (supplyed from the former branch) as an hammer, (as, Chapter 50. 23.) that (supplied, as Chapter 22. 6, 30.) will breake a rocke to pieces; or, as will it not? the negative supplyed from the like to mer, as Psalm 9. 18.) breake a rocke to pieces as an hammer? Is it not able to breake the stoutest and strongest heart, Chapter 5. 3. Zeph. 3. 12.) and to beat and bear down any opposition that is, or can be made against it? 2 Cronicles 10. 4.

V. 30. Therefore behold, I am against the Prophets, saith the Lord, that steal my word every one from his neighbour.] Or, Behold, I am coming against (Chap. 21. 13.) those Prophets (as verse 15.) that steal, or filch, my words (for the word is here plural) one from another, as Genesis 31. 49. So verse 27. one to another: Many strange Expositions are given of these words: which I forbear to relate, confining my self to those alone, that seem to carry some thew of probability with them: the Jewish Doctours, whom some of ours also follow, understand of such of them, as did make use of those Prophecies, which they heard from Gods messengers, but turned them another way, and applied them to other purposes: they instance in Hananiah, (who say they) hearing Jeremiah say, I will breake the bow of Elam, Chapter 49. 57. made use thereof, and applied to Babylon, what he had faid of Elam; saying, I will breake the yoake of the King of Babel Chapter 28. 2. and the berter to back this abusive application, should add, if God would thus break the might of the Elamites, then of the Chaldees (who under whom they served, Esay 12. 6. Others, going also much the same way, expound it of the terms borrowed from Gods Prophets; which were to rife with them. Thus saith the Lord, and the Lord hath said it, verse 17. 31. Others, that by their wiles and delusions, they withdraw the people from giving any credit to Gods messages, brought to them by his Prophets, and so stole away the authority of Gods Word, and peoples affections thereunto, as Absolom by his fawning flatteries did the hearts of Davids subjects from him and his government, 2 Samuel, 15. 6. Others, of their confpiring together to back one another, in their false Prophesies, which yet they pretended to be Gods words, and such messages as they had received from him: those that propound and affect this sence, reject those former Expositions that have reference to Gods Prophets, whom they should either imitate or undermine: because it is said, each one from his friend, fellow, or familiar; in which manner the Holy Ghost would not speak of the true Prophets, as if any such relation and communion were between them and these counterfeits: but not to insist on that which might be hereunto returned, that a man and his neighbour, brother, friend, fellow, or familiar, is in the Holy language no more than one and another: and one from another, here may well be no other, than the false Prophets from the people; as one to another, the false Prophets to the people their followers, v erse 27 against this Exposition may well be objected, that my words here, answerable to what were before, where they are opposed to the dreams, dotages, devices and deceits of the counterfeit Prophets, v 28 29. cannot so fitly be understood of them, or applyed unto them, as by this interpretation they are. Others therefore understand them of concealing from Gods people such necessary truths, as they ought to have delivered unto them, and have acquainted them withall: to which purpose they are charged not to have endeavoured, as they should have done, to reclaim people from their wicked courses, v. 22. that which the Scribes seem charged with, Luk. 11. 52. and the Apostle purgeth himself of, Acts 20. 27. But I conceive rather the meaing to be, that by their cunning fetches and flatteries, they filched out of peoples hearts those words or messages of God, which by his Prophets had been delivered unto them, and they had sometime seemd to heed and regard, yea to put in execution as our Saviour saith, that the Devil comes and stealeth the seed of the word out of the hearts of some, with whom it hath been sown Mark, 4. 15. Luke 8. 12. that which comes sometimes near to or to that before, of infringing of the credit and authority of Gods Word. An instance whereof we may see in that revolt, in likelyhood by the delusions of these false Prophets procured, from that which by Jeremies Sermons they had been formerly wrought unto, c. 34. 8. —— 11.

V. 31. Behold I am against the Prophets, saith the Lord] See before, ver. 30.

that use their tongues] The word here used is by divers diverfly taken, and that among the Jewish Criticks themselves. Some of them expound it, as the word in its native, proper, and most usual acception foundeth; that take their tongue, that is, as our version giveth it, that use it, or make use of it. But this others of them deeming too slender, would have it rendred, that teach, or learn, or use the tongue as the word of teaching, or learning, is oft so taken. See Chapter 13. 23.) their tongue. See Chapter 9. 4. they have taught, or learned their tongue to tell lies: the word is singular, though collectively taken both here and there) for the word of taking, fay they, is used of teaching or learning: and we use indeed the term of learning sometime promiscuously, of teaching, as well as of being taught: but whether the word of taking (which we use also of learning, strictly and properly so termed) be ever used in Hebrew for teaching, I much doubt: though Doctrine, or that which is taught, hath thence a denomination in use; so received, because taken and received by the Scholar. Some of them keeping to the same roor and notion, but with some restriction, render it, that sweeten their tongue: for, say they, the word of doctrine thence derived, signifies properly, a sweet, pleasant, plausible, or delightfull doctrine, Prov. 4. 2. and 16 21. So it should signifie that which the Greeks call, an acceptable speech, or a speech worthy of acceptance, Luke 4. 19. 1 Tim. 1. 15. and 2. 3. but in a more general sense seemeth Doctrine so termed; because as it is given out, or delivered by the teacher: Prov. 4. 2. and 9. 9. so it is taken and received from him by the learner: and the same exception that was taken to the former interpretation, is of fo ce against this also. Others therefore render it, that filch or steal their tongue: fetching the word from another root thus fo signifies, by transposition of the radical Letters; that speak nothing but smooth, pleasing, and plausible things, such as the people desire and delighted to heare, Esay 30. 10. See Chapter 6. 14. and 8. 11. verse 17. So is that word used. Psalm 5. 9. they smooth their tongue, or make smooth work with their tongue. And Proverbs 28. 23. one that smoother his tongue or, that smoothes, that is, flatters with his tongue: thence David also of the dissembler, the words of his mouth were smoother than butter, Psalm 55. 21. and Solomon of the strumpet, the roof of her mouth is smoother than Oyle, Proverbs 5. 3. and, a smooth tongue, for, a flattering tongue. Proverbs 26. 28 and smoothnesse of tongue, Proverbs 6. 24. and lips of smoothnesse, Psalm 12. 2, 3. for, a flattering tongue, and flattering lips. And to this I encline, both because it fitteth to fitly with the smooth carriage of these counterfeits; and because such transposition of letters is not unfrequent in Scriptures: lakath, for chalak; as Ecclesiastes 9. 4. bachar, which signifieth to choose; for, chabar, which hath a notion of conjunction, or association, as the Massorites there observe. So chedel. Esay 38. 11. for cheled, the word, Psalm 49. 1. taphel, Psalm 18. 26. for patal, 2 Samuel; 22. 27. to be perverse: alwah, Hosea 10 9. for awlah, Psalm 43. 1. iniquity. Zeewaah, Esay 29. 18 and Zeewah, Deuteronomy 28. 25. a commotion, or a removal. fimlah, an Salmah, Exodus 22. 9. 27. a garment: cebes, and ceseb, Levit 4. 32. 35. a sheep, cesel. Chap. 10. 8. and celes, Chap. 4. 22. and 5. 21. filly. Jhaabin, Esay 17. 20. for, Jachiph. 2 Kings 19. 29. self-growth. almugim, 1 Kings 10. 11. and algummim, 2 Chronicles 9. 10. the same kind of trees, or timber; and more of the like stamp: these the rather I recite, that this here may appear the less uncouth, as to some peradventure it may. For as for those that expound it of taking their tongues to themselv's and using them at their pleasure, like those that say, our lips are our own Psal. 12. 4. whereas Gods prophets give up their tongues to be moved and guided wholly by him; and his Spirit, 2 Pet. 1. 20. 21. as alſo thoſe that by their tongues; underſtand not their own tongues, but the tongues of the true Prophets, whoſe words and terms they imitated; ſee on verſe 30. they ſeem to warp too much from the text.

and ſay, He ſaith.] That is the Lord ſaith; as before, Saith the Lord, Heb. Said: and to there, Said ſ the Lord, or, that which the Lord hath ſaid: for that is the proper notion of the term; ſo uſed, Chap. 13. 15. 19. verſe 29. 30. that father their lying flatteries upon me. verſe 17.

V. 32. Behold I am againſt the Prophets] O, I am coming againſt the ſ prophets, ſee on verſe 3. Now becauſe here is a three-fold denunciation, ſome of the Rabbines would have three ſeveral ſorts of falſe Prophets here deſigned; ſome that ſil fed forms from the true Prophets, but miſapplyed them, verſe 29. ſome that were men of ſmooth and eloquent language, ver. 30. and ſome that pretended viſions and dreams, in this verſe. But this ſeems groundleſſe; they may rather be deemed ſeveral attributes of the ſame parties, who counterfeited revelations and viſions, and thoſe of ſuch matter, as was pleaſing to the people; whereby pretending to have received them from God, they withdrew the people from the belief and liking of thoſe truths that from God were brought to them by his Prophets. The denunciation is this twice inculcated, to confirm the truth of it, and cauſe it to make the deeper impreſſion in it ſelf on the People, yea in the hearts and minds of the people. See Chap. 23. 29 and the like threefold Behold, but in a diverſe argument. Hoſ 6. 11.

and by their lightneſſe,] O, looſeneſſe, or, leudneſſe, ſo Ze h. 3. 4. her Prophets are light, or, looſe, or, leud ones: as we uſe the word light, when we ſay, a light woman, the word is uſed by Jacob of Reuben, light as water, Gen. 49. 4. and what his marriage was, in regard where of his father gave him that title, is in the ſame place expreſſed: not unlike that which theſe falſe Prophets are alſo charged with in the firſt place, verſe 14. It is uſed alſo of thoſe leud wretches that Abimeleeh hired to be aſſiſtant to him in the proſecution of his wicked deſignes. Ju. 9. 4 where by the Chaldee according to ſome copies it is rendred by a word that ſignifieth perſons debauched: for that ſeemeth overlight that the Jewiſh Critick here giveth it, either lightneſſe of tongue, that is, quickneſſe, (which ſome of ours alſo follow) or, baſtineſſe, not ſmoothneſſe, (as ſome amille render him) of ſpeech, or, lightneſſe of knowledge; that is, ſhallowneſſe, want of ſolidity or ſound knowledge: for theſe are not ſo much the faults or defects charged upon them, as their lies and looſe lives. The Chaldee renders it here by a word that ſignifieth raſhneſſe or, preſumptuouſneſſe: the Greek, errors: the Latine, miracles: but both much out of the way; the latter eſpecially, yet I ſent them not, nor commanded them:] Or, whereas I had not ſent them, or given them ought in charge. See Chapter 14. 14. So ver. 21.

therefore they ſhall not profit this people at all, ſaith the Lord] Heb. and (as Chap. 16. 13. which yet may well be here retained) they ſhall not profiting profit, or, nor do they profiting profit this people; nor do they profit this people at all: a form of ſpeech expreſſed in termes of extenuation, but elofely importing matter of aggravation: they do this people no good at all, but much hurt, by their falſe prophecies, and their flatteries, Lam. 2. 14. So the treaſures of wickedneſſe, ill gotten goods, profit not, Prov. 10. 2. they will do a man no good, but much hurt, Mat. 16. 26. 1 Tim. 6. 9, 10. and, the father of a fool ſhall have no joy, Prov. 17. 21. but abundance of grief, Prov. 17. 25. and, he that ſhall break the leaſt of theſe precepts, and teach others ſo to do, ſhall be called the leaſt in the Kingdome of heaven; that is, ſhall have no part at all there, Mat. 5. 19.

V. 33. And when this people, or the Prophet, or a Prieſt, ſhall aſk thee, ſaying. What is the burden of the Lord? thou ſhalt then ſay unto them, What burden? I will even forſake you, ſaith the Lord.] God by the Prophet, having before deale, and that ſomewhat roundly, with the bad rulers, verſe 1, 2. and the falſe Prophets, verſe 9, 32, proceedeth now to the profane people alſo, who becauſe the Prophets of God uſed to begin their Sermons with the burden of the Lord, or the like. See Eſay 13. 1. & 15. 1. & 22. 1. & 30. 6. Zech. 9. 1. Mal. 1. 1. would in mockery demand of them, what burden they had form God for them: or as ſome would have it, when they intended in ſerious manner to aſk one of another, or of ſome of Gods Prophets, what word was come, or they had from God, they uſed to ſay, what is the burden of the Lord? as if word of God, and burden, were all one, and nothing but menaces came or could be expected from him. But the former ſeemeth the more probable.

what burden?] As if he had ſaid in way of indignation. Do ye aſk what burden?

I will even forſake you, ſaith the Lord.] A burden heavy enough, as ye are like to feel, when ye ſhall undergo it, ere long. See Chap. 1 7. Howbeit, ſome underſtand it, as if the meaning ſhould be, that God would rid them of thoſe burdens, as they eſteemed them, and it was no ſmall mercy that he hitherto vouchſafed to continue with them; he would withdraw himſelf away from them, and the gift of Prophelie by which he had been preſent among them. See Pſal. 84. 9. Others, that they themſelves were the Lords burden, ſuch a burden to him, as he intended thereby to remove and eaſe himſelf of Eſay 1. 24. Ezek. 6. 9. Amos 2. 13. But theſe things ſeem ſomewhat over-curious. Heb. and I will forſake you, and ſo verſe 34 Chap. 14. 14.

V. 34. And as for the Prophet, and the Prieſt, and the people, that ſhall ſay, The burden of the Lord, I will even puniſh that man and his houſe.] Or, And as for the Prophet, or the Prieſt, or the people: the copulative for the diſjunctive; as verſe 18. See verſe 33. the words put abſolutely, as Eſay 65. 11. that ſhall ſay, the burden of the Lord; in contempt and deriſion; as theſe now do: for otherwiſe the term was afterward uſed by Gods own Prophets, who ſo entituled their prophecies, Zach. 9. 1. Mal 1. 1.

I will even puniſh that man and his houſe.] Heb. and (as ver. 33) I will viſit upon (as ver. 2.) that man; (he be Prieſt, pretended Prophet or private man) and upon his houſe; not he alone, but his whole family, or iſſue (for the word is uſed of either, Chap. 21. 11, 12.) ſhall ſmart for it as Joſh. 7 24, 25. Zach. 5. 4.

V. 35. Thus ſhall ye ſay every one to his neighbour, and every one to his brother,) Heb. a man to his neighbour; or, friend, or, familiar, and a man to his brother; that is, ſay ye thus (as Chap. 21. 8. verſe 33.) one to another, as verſe 27, 28. Chap. 31. 34.

V. 36. And the burden of the Lord ye ſhall mention no more] Or, But (as ver. 14.) mention ye the burden of the Lord no more. This term, being grown into ſuch groſſe abuſe with them, God would have to be forborn; and more reverent and reſpective language uſed to his meſſengers, and of his meſſages. See the like, Hoſ. 2 16.

Heb and the craftſ-men: nor need the particle be alreterred; but the noun is taken collectively, as alſo the next is.

Smiths] About this word more doubt is made, becauſe in the notion wherein it is here uſed, it is not oft found and but in this ſtory: in the reſt of the Scripture not at all: it ſignifieth properly an incluſure; (whence it is uſed for a priſon, Pſalm 142. 7. Eſay 24. 22. & 42. 7.) or an incloſer: and ſo both the ancient Greek and old Latine render it: and from ſome ſuch notion the Chaldee conſtantly rendreth it doore-keepers, or porters, ſuch as ſhut the doors, Mal. 1. 10. yet ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks, noblemen, men of price, or, worth: as from a word that is uſed for gold Job 28. 15. or another, not much differing from that, that ſignifieth purified, or refined, and is never found uſed but of gold, 1 Kings 6 20. 1 & 7. 49 50. & 10. 21. 2 Chronicles 4. 20, 22. & 9. 20 but why noble-men and craftſ-men ſhould be in this ſtory yoked together, I ſuppoſe little reaſon can be rendred; and as little for that which ſome other would have, that there ſhould by theſe be meant wiſe men and counſellours: or, as others, men skilful in the Law: either ſo reamed by the former title, becauſe all others are ſilent, when they ſpeak Job 29. 9, 10. or by the later, becauſe what they ſhut, none can open or aſſoil, Eſay 22. 22. but theſe ſeem trifling niceties, though delivered by ſuch as are deemed to be of the greateſt among the Jewiſh Maſters. And as far from the truth may that well be deemed, which a late Writer hath of military men, men ſkilful in entrenching and rayſing of works either to ſecure beſigers, and to ſtraiten the beſieged, or to ſtrengthen the beſieged againſt the beſegers: to which purpoſe he telleth us, that thoſe who are ſo termed here, are in the Book of the Kings termed, valiant men and warriours; but how herein much miſtaken; for the e are there in the ſame terms mentioned and thoſe other after them. Others therefore would have the word to ſignifie workemen of ſpecial note and reckoning, in regard of their skil and cunning, ſuch as thoſe called the skilful of artifices, the word before uſed Eſay 3. 3. I ſuppoſe with ſome of the Ancients, that this latter word ſignifieth properly gild-ſm ths, or ſuch as enclоſe, that is, ſet ſtones in gold, or other metal. Though that be not improbable, which one of the middle age ſuggeſteth, who by the former word ſeemeth to underſtand ſmiths, by the other maſons; ſo called, becauſe their employment is in rayſing of walls for enclоſing of Cities and other places of habitation, or ſpecial uſe otherwiſe, Cant. 4. 12. The Chaldeans, ſaith he, dealt with them as the Philiſtines formerly, that left not a ſmith in Iſrael, 1 Sam 13. 19. So in like manner the Chaldeans carried away from them, as the Smiths, that they might not furniſh them with weapons, Eſay 54. 16. ſo the Maſons alſo, that they might not repair again thoſe breaches which they had made in the walls of the City: though it may be queſtionable whether they made any at all then. Jehoiacin yielding himſelf to him, as under Zedekiah they did afterward, 2 Kings 25. 1. 9.

V. 2. One basket had very good figs, even like the figs that are firſt ripe: Heb. The one basket of figs very good, as figs of the rath ripe ones; that is, ſaith the Jewiſh Commenter, as the figs of ſuch fig-trees, as bring rath ripe figs; which are uſually for their forwardneſſe, much eſteemed and deſired. See Eſai 28. 4. Hoſ. 9. 10.

and] Or, but; as Chap. 23 14. Mal. 1. 3.

the other basket had very naughty figs, which could not be eaten they were ſo bad.] Heb. the other of figs very bad (as before) which ſhall not be eaten (the indicative potentially; as Job 6. 7. ſo Eſay 5. 8.) for badneſſe; as for fear, Job 22. 4. So verſe 3. 8. See Chapter, 29. 17. where the ſame, in effect, is found.

V. 3. Then ſaid the Lord unto me] Heb. And the Lord ſaid, as Chapter 23 33.

what ſeeſt thou Jeremiah?] See Chapter 1. 11.

and I ſaid, figs. the good figs, very good; and the evil figs very evil, they cannot be eaten they are ſo evil.] Or, the bad figs very bad, that cannot be eaten, they are ſo bad: for of ſuch things we uſe not the word evil: and the word is, firſt and laſt, the ſame, both here, and verſe 2.

V. 4. Again, the word of the Lord came unto me, ſaying,] Hebr And (as Hoſea 11. 6.) the Word of the Lord was to me; as Chapter 1. 1, 11.

V. 5. Thus ſaith the Lord, the God of Iſrael,] That hath not yet ſo caſt of all care of the Seed of Jacob, or regard to them, as that he ſhould ceaſe wholly to be their God, Eſay, 41. 9. and 44. 21. Chapter, 31. 36, 37. and 33. 26.

Like theſe good figgs, ſo will I acknowledge them that are carried away captive of Judah, whom I have ſent out of this place into the Land of the Chaldeans for their good.] Here God beginneth to will I acknowledge] Or, do I own, or take special notice of, Heb. know; and so the word is used, Psalm 1.6. and 37.18. Math. 7. 23. Joh. 10.14.

Rom. 8. 28. 1 Cor. 11. 30, 32. Phil. 1. 12, 19. and so this clause should have reference to Gods sending of them out, in these words, I have sent out; yet it may rather have reference to the foregoing words, of Gods owning, or taking notice of them, in those words, I will own, or take notice of them; whom I have so sent out for good: for the Hebrew hath no more, So Chap. 21. 10. I will set my face against them for evil, and not for good: the former seemeth to have some strength from that which followeth, verf. 9. the latter from what immediately is subjoyned, verf. 6. As for that which some hence gather, that God should approve of Jeconiahs yielding himself to Nebuchadnezzar, as done in obedience to the like command with that Chap. 21. 8, 9. and 38, 17, 18 neither is it very probable, nor hath it place here.

V. 6. For] Heb. And; which need not here be altered.

I will set mine eyes upon them] Heb. eye; as Pfalm 33. 18. for which eye, Pfalm 34. 15.

V. 7. And I will give them an heart to know me, that I am the Lord;] So to know me, as to acknowledge me for their God, and to carry themselves accordingly for matter of obedience towards me. So Deut. 30. 6. Chap. 31. 39. Ezek. 11. 19. and 36. 27. 1 Timothy 5. 20.

and they shall be my people, and I will be their God,] Heb. And they shall be to me for people, and I will be unto them for God. Such a mutual relation, and entire communion, shall be between me and them, that it shall, appear that I regard them as their God, and they carry themselves toward me, as my people. So Chap. 7. 23. and 30. 22. and 31. 33, and 32. 38. the ancient Covenant being between me and them renewed, Gen. 17. 7, 19. Exod. 20. 3, 5, 6. Deut. 26. 17, 18.

for they shall return unto me with their whole heart.] Or, when (as Chap 10. 2. & 11. 23.) they shall return unto me (by repentance and amendment of their wayes, Efay 55. 6.) with their whole heart: not feignedly, as in former times, Chap. 3. 10. Pfal. 78. 36. 37. but sincerely, Pfal. 119. 10. Chap. 29. 13.

V. 8. And as the evil figs which cannot be eaten they are so evil] Or, But as the bad figs which are so bad, that they cannot be eaten, as verfe 2, 3.

(surely thus saith the Lord)] So is the particle ci used Chapter 22. 22.

that dwelt in the land of Egypt] Whither many in likelyhood, had fled for fuccour and protection, upon the Babylonian invasion as before times they had done the like, Efay 30. 2. and 31. 1. and as others also did afterward, again. Gods expreſs charge to the contrary: Chap. 42. 15, 18. 2 Kings 25. 26.

V. 9. And I will deliver them] Or, I will, I say (as Efay 55. 1. and 58. 10. and 59. 17.) give them up, or deliver them; as verfe 8.

Efay 9. 19. Heb. 12. 7. But the word here uſed, and elſewhere in this Prophecy, ſeemeth the ſame in notion with that in Moſes, though the letters be tranſpoſed: whereof, ſee on Ch. 23. 31.

concerning all the people of Judah,] As Eſai 1. 1.

in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, the ſon of Joſiah King of Judah,] By the date of this prophecy, compared together with that next before, Chap. 24. and the next following, Chap. 26. that appeareth, which formerly hath been obſerved, Chap. 22. that the Prophecies, or ſermons, in this book recorded are not diſpoſed, or ranked, according to the preciſe order of time wherein they were delivered, that foregoing, in time coming after this; and that following, ſome time before it.

that was the firſt year of Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon.] Or, whose was the demonſtrative to the relative. But hence ſome doubt ariſeth concerning the compoſure of the firſt year of Nebuchadrezzar with the fourth of Jehojakim: whereas Dan. 1. 1. it is ſaid that in the third year of Jehojakims reign Nebuchadnezzar came to Jeruſalem, beſieged and took it. To which anſwer is given by ſome, that the third year mentioned in Daniel, is not the third year of Iehojakims reign, but the third year of the Sabbatical courſe; the like whereunto they ſuppoſe to be found, Chap. 28. 1. But whatſoever may be ſaid of this latter place, whereof further when we come to it, that of Daniel ſeems to expreſſe for the year of Jehojakims reign, that it cannot be ſo avoided. And others rather anſwer, that the firſt year of Nebuchadnezzars abſolute reign, wherein he reigned after his fathers deceaſe, concurred (as it oft falleth out) partly with the latter part of Jehojakims third year, and partly with the former part of his fourth, and that it may well be therefore, that in the latter part of Jehojakims third year, he might advance toward Jeruſalem, or arrive and ſit down the ſame, and ſurprize it in the beginning of his fourth. So Don Joſeph upon Daniel. For Jehojakim was ſet up by Pharaoh-Necheh in the room of Jehoahaz his brother, 2 King. 23. 34. but Nebuchadnezzar having abandoned the power of Pharaoh in thoſe parts, 2 King. 24. 7. about this third and fourth of Jehojakims reign came to Jeruſalem, took the citie, and took away divers choice youths of the bloud royal to be trained up for attendance on him in his court at Babylon. Dan. 1. 3. yet left Jehojakim enjoying the crown and Kingdom ſtill, onely holding now from him, as from Nebuch. he did formerly; until about three years after, when finding diſloyalty in him, he returned again, took him captive, and carried him to Babylon, 2 King. 24. 1, 2. 2 Chr. 36. 6. Ezek. 19. 9. See the like to this, Chap 52. 28. For Joſeph the Jew, with thoſe that follow him, are far out of the way, who in his Jewiſh antiquities, l. 10, c. 7. writeth, that this firſt invaſion of Judea by Nebuchadnezzar, was in the fourth year of his reign, and the eighth of Jehojakims; which the calculations of the ſacred records do evidently reſel. Nor ſhall we need to have recourſe to that which a learned Writer ſuggeſteth, to wit, that in Daniel the words may be rendred, After the third year of Jehojakims reign; becauſe the particle there uſed doth ſo ſignifie, Exod. 2. 23. and Num. 28. 26. Since that ſuch uſe of it in theſe computations is unuſual; and the other way is familiar.

V. 2. the word which Jeremiah the Prophet ſpake unto all the people of Judah, and unto all the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, ſaying.] Unto all thoſe, that out of all parts of the land, repaired to Jeruſalem, (for it is not to be imagined that he went up and down to publiſh it from town to town, or from citie to citie) as well as unto thoſe that had their places of abode there, becauſe it concerned all of them, as well the one as the other, verſ. 1. and the former part of this prophecy is concerning them in particular; denouncing their deſtruction, verſ. 8. ------ 11. for their obſtinacy in their wicked courſes, notwithſtanding the manifold admonitions and warnings from time to time given them, both by Jeremy, and other Gods meſſengers, verſ. 3. ------ 7. and yet promiſing a reſtitution at ſeventy years end, verſ. 12. ------ 14. for the latter part is more general, containing a denunciation of the like indgement againſt ſundry ſeveral nations at large reckoned, the King of Babylon himſelf, by whom they were to ſuffer, not excepted, verſ. 15. 38.

V. 3.

V. 3. From the thirteenth year of Joſiah the ſon of Amon King of Judah, even unto this day, (that is, the three and twentieth year) the word of the Lord hath come unto me,] To convince them of their obſtinacy, he relateth how affiduous and fedulous God himſelf by his Prophets, and his Prophets from him, for a long time had been, in admonithing them of their wicked courſes, and endeavouring to reclaim them from the ſame; but all to no purpoſe, without any fruit, or good effect.

From the thirteenth year of Joſiah] So is the time of his calling to the Prophetical function preciſely fixed, Chap. 1, 2.

the ſon of Ammon.] So Chap. 1. 2.

this is the three and twentieth year] Heb. this three and twentieth year; which need not be altered, nor put into any parenthesis: for twelve entire years being taken from the thirty and one of Joſiah. 2 Kings 22. 1. there will eighteen (with ſome advantage in likelihood) remain; whereunto if we adde ſix moneths, 2 Kings 23. 31. together with the third, near expiring, or fourth beginning of Jehojakims reign, the ſum of twenty and three will ariſe. So this prophecy ſeemeth to have been delivered much about the time of Nebuchadnezzars firſt invaſion of Judea, and ſurpriſeing of Jeruſalem, or very ſhortly after it; and to be of the ſame date with that recorded, Chap. 36. 1.

and I have ſpoken unto you riſing early and ſpeaking] I have not failed to deliver faithfully to you, what I received from God; and that with all fedulity, aſſiduity and diligence, for ſo much this form of ſpeech importeth. See Chap. 7. 13. 25. withall alluding, as ſome think, to the time of the morning meeting for Gods ſolemn ſervice, Numb. 28. 4. 2 Kings 3. 20. Luke 21. 38. Acts 2. 15. at which time it is not unlikely that the Prophet uſually preached, there being then the greateſt concourſe of people in the Temple: but the alluſion ſeems more general unto all ſorts of diligent and induſtrious perſons, that riſe early to attend and follow their ſeveral employments in their ſeveral places; magiſtrates, to fit in judgement, merchants to attend their trade, women and labouring men to follow their dayes work, Pſal. 101. 8. & 104. 23. & 127. 2. Chap. 21. 12.

but ye have not hearkened.] Heb. and (as chap. 23. 14.) ye heard not: ye would not hear; that is, be admoniſhed and obey, Pſal. 81. 11. Chap. 7. 23, 24.

V. 4. And the Lord hath ſent unto you all his ſervants the Prophets, riſing early and ſending them,] See chap. 7. 25. So alſo, chap. 29. 19.

but ye have not hearkened nor inclined your ear to hear.] See chap. 7. 24. 26.

V. 5. They ſaid] Heb. Saying; as chap. 18. 1. God ſaying by them whom he ſent, verſe 4. for the ſpeech runneth as ſpoken by him, verſe 7.

Turn ye again now every one from his evill way, and from the evill of your doings] I laboured by them to reduce you to repentance, and to amendment of life, 2 Kings 17. 13. chap. 18. 11. & 35. 15. to reclaim you eſpecially from your idolatrous courſes, which ye have alwayes been much addicted unto, verſe 6.

and dwell in the land] Or, ſo ſhall ye dwell in the land, as Pſal. 37. 3. and be fed, and dwell, for, ſo ſhalt thou be fed, and, ſo ſhalt thou dwell.

that the Lord hath given unto you, and to your fathers] As Chapter 23. 9.

for ever and ever] Heb. to from age and unto age: but the firſt particle, as in the like forms, (as Chap. 2. 25.) is redundant: as alſo is the copulative before the latter, as Chap. 7. 7. and this clauſe may have reference both here and there, either to their continuance in the land, as Pſal. 37. 27. or to the extent of Gods gift and grant: as Gen. 17. 8.

V. 6. And go not after other gods to ſerve them, and to worſhip them,] As both you and your fathers have from time to time done, Chapter 16. 11.

and provoke me not to anger with the works of your hands;] Heb. and anger me not. So Chapter 7. 18, 89. with the works of your hands; your idols Pſal. 78. 40, 58. & 106. 29. Chap. 32. 30. & 44. 8. or your wicked courſes in general: as verſe 14. Pſal. 28. 4. Hag. 1. 6.

and I will do you no hurt.] Heb. I will not do evill to you. As 1 Sam. 26. 11. Thoſe evils that I have threatned to bring upon you, ſhall be reverſed and withheld, Chap. 1. 6. & 6. 19. & 11. 11. & 19. 3, 15. See Chap. 18. 8.

V. 7. Yet ye have not hearkened unto me, ſaith the Lord;] Heb. And (as chap. 23. 21.) or, But; as verſe 4. ſee there.

that ye might provoke me to anger.] Heb. anger me, as verſe 6. See Chap. 7. 18, with the works of your hands.] See verſe 6.

to your own hurt.] No to mine; whom no evil of yours can reach unto, nor do the leaſt harm, Job 35. 6, 8. Chap. 7. 19. Heb. for evil to you; that is, to your ſelves: as Prov. 9. 12. chap. 5. 19. & 22. 8.

V. 8. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts; Becauſe ye have not heard my words.] That is not hearkened to him, and yielded obedience to them; but refuſed and rejected them, as Chap. 7. 19. for had they not heard? yes undoubtedly. See verſe 3, 4. heard they had, (which aggravated their guilt) but obeyed they had not. See Rom 10. 16, 18, 19.

V. 9. Behold, I will ſend and take all the families of the North] What is termed ſending and taking here, is expreſſed by calling, Chap. 1. 15. and thoſe here called the families of the North, are called the Kingdomes of the North there: family, for, Kindome: as Chap. 8. 3. thoſe of the ſeveral Kingdoms and Nations ſubject to the Chaldean Monarch (whoſe countrey lay to the North of Judeah, Chap. 1. 14. & 6. 22.) and ſerving under him; whom by a ſecret inſtinct, God would cauſe to come as readily and unanimouſly unto this ſervice, as if he had ſent ſome meſſengers to them to invite them thereto, or ſome leaders to bring them on. See the like Eſay 13. 2, 4. Heb. I am ſending and will take; that is, I am ſending to take, as Joſh. 24. 5. to take them up for this ſervice, and bring them on thereunto.

and Nebuchadnezzar the King of Babylon my ſervant,] Heb. and to Nebuchadnezzar. I will ſend to him as well as to them, to bring them to him, (whom I intend to employ as my Commander in chief for this expedition, to do me ſpecial ſervice therein: as Chap. 27. 6. & 43. 10. Ezek. 29. 18, 20.) and to bring him and them together againſt this land, and the neighbouring countries. Thus doth the Lord ſhew himſelf to be the Lord of hoaſts, verſe 8. and that he hath all the creatures even wicked men, and the devil's themſelves, at command, Pſal. 119. 91. & 148. 8. making uſe of them, even without their privity and beſide their purpoſes, Eſay 10. 5, 7. and 45. 4, 5. for his own glory, the correction and dejection of ſome, and the reſtitution and advancement of others, Prov. 16. 4, 5. and will bring them againſt this land, and againſt the Inhabitants thereof,] He ſpeaketh as if he himſelf were coming in the head of Nebuchadnezzars forces againſt them. See chap 15. 8. & 21. 5, 13.

and againſt all thoſe nations round about,] That ye may not in vain expect or hope for any help againſt him from them. Whence it appeareth that Nebuchadnezzar had not as yet made entire conqueſt of thoſe neighbouring nations, when this prophecy was delivered; whom yet having ſubdued, he made uſe of afterward againſt Judah and Jeruſalem, when Jehojachim proved diſloyal to him, 2 Kings 24. 1, 2. he having at that time taken away from the Egyptian all the power and intereſt that he had in thoſe parts, and the regions thereabout as far as to Euphrates, 2 Kings 24. 7.

and will utterly deſtroy them] Heb. make a therem, or anathema, of them; as Eſay 37. 11. So Chap. 50. 26.

and perpetual deſolations] Heb. deſolations of perpetuity; that is, of long continuance: as Eſay 58. 12. So verſe 18.

V. 10. Moreover, I will take from them] Or, I will alſo take from them. Heb. And (which may well here be retained) I will cauſe to periſh from them; as Obad. 8.

the voyce of mirth, and the voyce of gladneſſe,] All ſuch mirth as they had wont to have, and to make by muſick inſtrumental or vocal, at their feaſts, and in my meetings, Amos 6. 5. See the like threatning, Chap. 7. 34. Ezek. 26. 13. Heſ. 2. 11. Rev. 18 22.

the ſound of the mill-ſtones] Heb. the voyce of the mill: and ſo alſo Rev. 18, 22. that which ſome underſtand, ſimply of the noyſe that the mill-ſtones in grinding are wont to make: alluded to by Eccleſ. 12. 4. implying that bread-corn, and bread it ſelf conſequently, (See Zach. 9. 16.) and together with it, whatſoever ſupply they had of means, wherewith to maintain, not jolity alone, but life and ſubſiſtence, ſhould be taken away: as Eſay. 3. 1. But ſome others underſtand it of ſuch ſongs as women uſe to ſing, to paſſe the time away, while they wrought at the hand-mill, Exod. 11. 5. Mat. 24. 41. Luke 17. 35. of which kind of ditties, we have ſome yet extant in the monuments of the ancient Greeks. And ſome again going alſo this way, reſtrain to the ſongs uſed by ſuch at the grinding of corn for flower to make bride-cakes and ſpiced bread with for weddings; becauſe it is joyned here with ſuch wedding ſolemnities: but that ſeems of little weight, ſince that in that parallel place of John where all theſe particulars are recited it is ſubjoyned not to weddings, but to artificers: nor is it ſubjoyned to the former place. I concur rather with the firſt. Of the word here rendred mill-ſtones ſee on Eſay 57. 2.

Chap. 1. 13. Ezek. 26. 16. whence it may seem to be not amiss to rendred, vers. 9. yet I suppose that but a grammaticle nicety of a learned Writer, who would have the noun here used, and thence deduced, to be not a simple, but a compound term, and to signifie there what? or what is there? as taken up from the usual speech of folk, who seeing a place strangely defaced and wasted, are wont to say, what a there there? or what have we here?

seventy years] The term and stint of the Jewish captivity, together with the servitude of those other neighbouring nations, under the Chaldean Monarchy, is here peciefely set down, as for the further confirmation of the truth of this prophesie. so more especially, for the better support of the faithfull during the time of their captivity, and nourishing in them an hopefull expectation of their undoubted deliverance, when that term of years should be expired, Dan. 9 3. Concerning the determination whereof, the agreement seem to be more general, th Holy Ghost having in the sacred texts as expresly fixed it upon the first year of Cyrus his absolute reign, 2 Chr. 36. 22. Ezr. 1. 1. But that time, or term from which those years commence is doubt made by divers. For some begin them at the date of this present prophesie, from the fourth year of Jehoiakims reign, vers. 1. about which time Nebuchadnezzar having given a great overthrow unto Pharaoh Necho, King of Egypt, Chap 46. 2. did afterward also upon this occasion invade Judea, Pharaoh Necho had gone to recover Carchemish from the King of Assyria, 2 King. 23. 29 and 2 Chr. 35. 20. and having by the way slain Josiah in fight, upon his return from thence entring upon Judea, he put down Jehoachaz, whom the people had made King in his fathers room, and set up Jehoiakim, his brother, in his stead, 2 King. 23. 29, 30, 33, 34. but Nebuchadnezzar having met with the Egyptian, and given him the forementioned overthrow, struck into Judea, came to Jerusalem, took it, as may seem, without any notable resistance, and compelled Jehoiakim to remain his tenant from the crown of Egypt, and to hold it, which Jehoiakim was content to do, from him, 2 King. 24. 1. And from this surprisal of Jerusalem, in Jehoiakims third and fourth year, vers. 1. Dan. 1. 1. do divers writers make these seventy years to commence. But howsoever it be true indeed that at that time the Chaldean gave order to some of his Ministers to bring with him unto Babylon some young striplings of the blood-royal and princely alliance; to be trained up for his service and attendance in his Court there, whereof Daniel was one, Dan. 1. 3, 4. yet neither did he then either carry away captive, or depose Jehoiakim, who continued his reign seven years after that, 2 Kings 23. 36. 24. hr 36. 5. neither is there mention in the forecited records, either of any great devastation at that time made in Judea, or of any considerable summe of that kind that then be carried away captive. Others therefore choose rather to fix it at the eleventh year of Zedekiah; at which time that kingdom and state seemed to draw its last breath, Lam. 4. 20. for then was the citie not onely furnished and sacked, but together with the Temple, and the Kings Palace, a great part of it burnt down, the state royal dissolved, and a more general deportation of the people of the land then had at any time been before, 2 King. 25. 4. 21. 2 Chr. 36. 17. 20 Chap. 52. 3. 30. This further to confirm, they alleadge that saying, 2 Chr. 36. 20, 21. that those which had escaped the sword, were carried away to Babylon. where they were servants to him (to wit, Nebuchadnezzar) and his sons, until the reign of the Kingdom of Persia: to fulfill the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had enjoyed her Sabbaths: for so long as she lay desolate, she kept Sabbath, until the seventy years were fulfilled. But hereunto is answer given, the end, or uttermost term of the lands sabbatising after it began to ly waste is there specified, and it is said onely to have sabbatised so long as it so lay waste: but neither is mention made of the beginning of those seventy years, nor that the land lay in that manner waste that whole seventy years time, from that year commencing: and the like they finde in the same Chapter, where it is said of Jehoiacin, that he reigned three moneths and ten dayes, and when the year came about, or expired, Nebuchadnezzar sent and brought him to Babylon, 2 Chr. 36. 9, 10. yet is not the meaning, that he reigned an entire year; but that when that year went out, the three last moneths whereof onely with a few dayes over he reigned, this his surprisal fell out. Others therefore lastly, with whom I concur, begin them at the captivity of Jeconiah, or Jehoiacin, Chap. 22. 24. — 26. at what time Nebuchadnezzar in the eighth year of his reign took him prisoner, having first little above three moneths in the royal seat, together with his mother, his Princes, and his officers, and carried them away with him to Babylon; and besides them all the Inhabitants of Jerusalem, and all the men of might, or valour in the land, some seven thousand in number, and all the artificers, and smiths, or masons, a thousand, and all that were strong and fit for war, ten thousand in all: leaving none save of the poorest sort of people behinde, 2 King. 24. 8 ——16. And this beginning of the seventy years captivity we have both from Jeremy and Ezekiel: for Jeremy himself, the fittest and best able to fix the head of this account, writing unto those that were in captivity at Babylon, being carried thither with Jeconiah, in the time of Zedekiahs reign, Chap. 29. 1, 2, 3. telleth them expresly, that when as seventy years should be accomplished, God would visit them, and bring them back to their own country again, Chap. 29. 10. as also, Ezek. 4. 1. the captivity is said to have begun eleven years before the sacking of the citie under Zedekiah; for the fourteenth year after the taking of the citie, is said expresly to be the twenty and fifth year of their captivity: And again, the full tidings are said to have been brought unto him abiding among the captives at Babylon, of the surprisal of the citie, by one that had escaped thence, in the twelfth year of their captivity, Chap 33. 21. which cometh up just to Jeconiahs deportation, the eleventh years of Zedekiahs reign coming between, 2 King. 24. 18. and 25. 1 —— 4. whereby it evidently appeareth, that the years of their captivity were reckoned, neither from the fourth of Jehoiakim, nor from the eleventh of Zedekiah, but between them both, from the deportation of the people together with Jehoiacin, or Jeconiah.

V. 12. And it shall come to passe when seventy years are accomplished, that I will punish the King of Babylon, and that nation, saith the Lord, for their iniquity, and the land of the Chaldeans] Thus the desolation of Babylon, and the deliverance of Gods people out of their captivity, Chap 29. 10. do concur in time exactly the one with the other. See Esai 1. 1.

it shall come to passe] Heb. it shall be; as Chap. 17. 24.

when seventy years are accomplished] Of these seventy, six and thirty compleat, are of Nebuchadnezzars reign; for so we finde that the first year of Evil-Merodac his reign concurred with the seven and thirtieth year of Jehoiacins captivity, 2 King. 25. 27. Chap. 52. 31. the other thirty and four are to be divided between Evil Merodac, and Belthazzar, (the latter of which reigned two, at least, compleat) for of his third is mention made, Dan. 8. 1.) unlesse some vacation, or usurnation, as some deem, came between their two reigns. See Chap. 37. 7. and out of Berosus his Chaldean Storie, Joseph the Jew in his first book against Apion. For as for the Jewish Doctors that will give Evil-Merodac onely twenty three, and to make up the sum reckon from the first of Nebuchadnezzar, and the fourth of Jehoiakim, taking in the whole fourty five of Nebuchadnezzars reign; they seem to go but on mere surmise for the former and to crosse the Prophets own computation in the latter, see on vers. 11.

I will punish for their iniquitie] H. b. I will visit upon them their iniquitie; as Exod 34. 7. Chap. 23 2, 34. as he will visit his people there in mercy, Chap 29 10. so he will visit their oppressours then in wrath for the wrong done by them to his people. See Esai 47. 6. and 51. 22, 23. Chap. 17. 18. and 51. 35, 36. So Gen. 15. 13, 14. Esai 10. 12.

the King of Babylon] Not Nebuchadnezzar, but one of his issue and successours in that Empire, Belthazzar. See on Esai 14. 4. 19.

that nation] The Chaldeans, Chap. 6. 22. and 14. 5. together with their land; by destruction the one, by devastation the other.

and will make it perpetual desolations.] Heb. put it unto desolations, or desolations, of perpetuity, or disturnity; as vers. 9. See Esai 13. 19. and 14. 23. Chap. 50. 40. and 51. 6.

V. 13. And I will bring upon that land all my words that I have pronounced against it, even all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah hath prophesied against all the nations.] Hence some gather, that those ensuing prophecies from chap. 46. to 51. the two last whereof do at large foretell and describe the ruine of Babylon, were preached before this: and the ancient Greek therefore doth here, after these words, insert them, in a confused way. But hereof there is no necessity.

And] Or So; as Chap. 11. 18. vers. 14.

against all the nations] See the title prefixed at Chap. 45. 1.

V. 14. For many nations, and great Kings, shall serve themselves of them also:] As many nations with their Kings shall for a time serve them; so after the term of that monarchy run out, they shall serve themselves of them. Whence some observe, that these seventy years are to commence, not so much from the utter desolation of the land of Judea, and those other countreys hereafter mentioned, as from their subvertude, see on v. 11.

many nations] The Medes and Persians with others subject to them, and serving under them, Esai 13. 4. Dan. 5. 28. 31. yet the word in the original is ambiguous to many, or great. So Psal. 25. 11.

great Kings] Darius and Cyrus: under whose conduct those forces consisting of divers nations came against Babylon. See Esai 21. 7. 9. and 43. 14. and 45. 1.

shall serve themselves of them] Heb. have served upon them; which the old Latine following, rendreth the words; because they served them them when they were many nations, and great Kings: and this some expound, as if the reason were here rendred, why the nations before-mentioned, vers. 13. should so suffer, to wit, because they had served against Gods people under the Chaldeans: which though true of some of them hereafter mentioned, 2 King. 24. 2. Psal. 137. 7. yet of some of them, the Egyptians especially, is not true, Chap. 37. 5. and others therefore say, because that Gods people had served them, and they had dealt rigorously and cruelly with them: to which purpose, a learned Writer cleeth one of the Jewish Doctors, who should to expound the place: but the Jewish Commenter, whom he cleeth, saith no such matter: he rather directly controlleth it; for writ he observeth, that the verb of the direstly controlleth it; for writ he observeth, that the verb of the time past is put here for the future, as our Version well rendreth it; then that the word of service (which this Author also in part addmitteth) in the syntax here used signifies; not to serve one, but to exact service of one, or to serve ones self upon one, (of which see on Chap. 30. 8. and 34. 10. as also, see Ezek. 34. 27.) and lastly, that the words are meant of the Kings of Media, and Persia, with their people, who should have the Chaldeans to serve them, as they had done with others before: and this exposition is confirmed by that parallel place, Chap. 37. 7.

of them also] Heb. upon them; upon them also, as they have done upon others; or, even upon them; as Esai 57. 6, 7. howsoever it may seem a matter very unlikely at present.

and I will recompence them according to their deeds, according to the work of their own hands.] Or, so; as vers. 13. or, thus, as Chap. 7. 34. will I repay them. or, render unto them; as the word is rendred, Chap 51. 24.

V. 15. For thus saith the Lord God of Israel unto me;] Or, For thus said the Lord, the God of Israel unto me; to wit, at that time when he delivered me the fore-going meflage, vers. 1.

Take the wine-cup of this fury at mine hands;] Or rather, Take this wine-cup of wrath. Heb. heat, or, fervour: whence some render it, this smoaking wine-cup; an argument of anger, Esai 64. 4. See Rev. 14. 10, 11. Esai 51. 17, 22. from my hand. Those judgements and afflictions that God allotteth, especially out of anger and wrath to any, are in Scripture frequently compared to a cup of some hot, or heady drink that doth exceedingly distemper. See Psalm 11. 6. and 60. 3. and 75. 8. Job 21. 20. Lam. 4. 21. Ezek. 23. 32-34. Such a cup in a vision is reached out to Jeremy, and he enjoyned, taking it out of Gods hand, to go with it unto the nations hereafter mentioned, and to tender it unto them.

and cause all the nations to whom I send thee to drink it.] Heb. make to drink it all the nations whom I am sending thee unto them: an elegant redundancy, very common in this language: so 1 King 21. 11.

V. 16. And they shall drink it, and be moved, and be mad; because of the sword that I will send among them.] The effects of this drink, of the sword that I will send among them.] The effects of this drink, together with an expiteation of it, what it is: see further, vers. 27. 29.

they shall drink it] they shall be enforced to drink of it, whether they will, or no, vers. 28. or, that they may drink it; as Chap 22. 10. and 23. 18 2. Mal. 1. 9.

and be moved] None of them being so strong, as to be able to bear it; but shall be overcome with it: as Chap. 23. 9. the word may well be rendred, They shall be tossed, or, shall tosse themselves to and fro. See Chap. 5. 22. as men unquiet and restlelle, by occasion of drink that disturbeth their brains, or being in a distemper of frenesie, are wont to do, Prov. 23. 34.

and be mad] As men that are mad drunk. So Ezek. 23. 34 chap. 51. 7.

because of the sword: Heb. from before, or, from the face of; that is, by reason of; as Chap. 23. 9.

the sword.] That is, hostile invasion with fire and sword: so is the term sword, commonly taken, Lev. 26. 25. Esai 1. 20. Ezek. 30. 4. and that is the cup, or wine of Gods wrath, the smoking liquor, before-mentioned. So vers. 27. 29.

I shall send] For by his appointment, and with his commission, it cometh, Chap. 47. 6, 7. Ezek. 14. 17.

V. 17. Then took I the cup at the Lords hand] Or, So I as v. 14. Heb. And; So Chap. 13, 20, 51. and made all the nations to drink, to whom the Lord had sent me] the cup from the Lords hand: being by his hand, in vision, reached out to me, vers. 15.

and made all them to drink, unto whom the Lord had sent me] As vers. 15. either in vision, or by denunciation. See Chap. 27. 4. vers. 30. For that conceit of a learned Writer seemeth to me nothing probable, that the Prophet should go up and down with a cup in his hand, and travel to so many several nations, and so far remote one from another with it; enough to have taken up a main part of his life.

V. 18. To wit, Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah] Thus judgement usually beginneth at Gods own house, with Gods own people, Ezek. 9. 6. 1 Pet. 4. 17.

and the Kings thereof, and the Princes thereof;] The Kings thereof successively, Jehoiakim Jehoiacin, and Zedekiah, Ch. 22. 18, 19, 24, 25. and 21. 7. See chap. 17. vers. 19. 20, 25.

to make them a desolation, and astonishment, an hissing, and a curse,] Heb. to give them unto desolation, &c. See on Chap. 24. 9. vers. 9.

(as it is this day)] Or, as appeareth this day. So chap. 44. 20. 38.

and 8. 18. 1 King. 8. 24. whence some gat' er, that this prophesie was delivered after the captivity of Jehoiacin: but the date of it, vers. 1. directly controlleth this. Nor can I accord with those, who would have this prophesie to be or a diverse date from the former: the series of the context, vers. 15 it seeming not well to admit it: and with those much lesse, who would have it spoken in a prophetical strain, in the time to come, as of a thing to come, but as sure to be, as if it were already done, and to be seen, even as present; because I no where meet with this form so used. Others suppose that this clause hath relation not to the time when the prophesie was first uttered; but the time when it was afterward penned and published in writing, being made up in one volume together with the rest of his prophecies; which yet to me seems no more probable than the former. I suppose it was shortly after the Chaldean irruption in the third and fourth of Jehoiakim, ver. 1. Dan. 1. 1. when the land being quettionlesse of necessity much plundered by so great an army as Nebuchadnezzar in all likelyhood brought with him, after it had not long before by Pharaoh Nechoh been so pillaged, the citie furnished, the crown tossed from one head to another, and enforced to hold from the Egyptian one while, and the Chaldean another while; that dismal work began then to break forth and discover it self, that afterward grew to its higher growth in Jehoiacins captivity; and to its full height in the expiring reign of Zedekiah. See 2 King. 23. 32, 37. and 24. 1, 16. and 25. 1, 21.

V. 19. Pharaoh King of Egypt, and his servants, and his Princes, and all his people.] Pharaih-Nechoh, ch. 46. 2. & Pharaoh-Hophra, ch. 44. 30. his successour, Egypt comes in the first place, because the Jewish people relied principally upon them presuming much upon succours and safeguards, which they promised unto themselves from them ch. 37. 5. Ezek. 29. 6, 7, 16. and the Prophet may seem the rather therefore to insist upon particulars concerning them, their Princes, servants, & people; (because though their King might miscarry, yet the State might stand, managed by the Peers and Officers of State and their strength consisting in the multitude of their people, might not be much impaired,) to put them out of all hope of support, or shelter from thence. See Chap. 40. Ezek. 29. and 30. and 31.

V. 20. And all the mingled people;] Concerning the term here used, Interpreters much differ; the word is used sometime for a mixture of persons, or people, a promiscuous multitude, Chap. 50. 37. and with the e onely lengthened in the same notion. Exod. 12. 38. Neh. 13 3. to which purpose some understand it here. So some of the Jewish Doctors, affi ming hereby to be understood a mixture of people, consisting of divers nations, that were embolied together: but who in particular, or where abiding, they tell us not. But some others deem it to have reference to the nations ensuing, as generally comprehending the people, in this verse and the next, by name more particularly there recited; and here so termed, because, say they, their borders and confines were intermixed the one with the other. Others, going the same way for notion of the term, un lerstand it, as having reference to the verse before-going; of such people as were mingled in their places of habitation with the Egyptians, or bordered near upon them, and were in confederacy with them: to which purpose the Chaldee Paraphrast expresseth it by a term, that is deemed to import auxiliaries; which may seem therefore to take in the Cushites, who are oft mentioned as borderers upon Egypt. See Esai 18. 1. confederates with it, and affidants to it, Esai 20. 4. Ezek. 30. 4, 6. where in the 5. verse, also the word here used is found: and this the rather may carry some probability with it, because the Cushites in all this catalogue are not at all mentioned. Howbeit, others take the word here to signifie Arabia, as sometime in this very form it doth (though for the most part, with a very small variation, as ver. 24. but sometime also without any such variation; as appeareth by 1 King. 10. 15, compared with 2 Chr. 9. 14. and whereas it might be objected, that Arabia is expresly mentioned apart, ver. 24, it is answered, that there is mention made of those Arabians that were under some royal government, either in Arabia the fertile; or in Arabia the desart; here such of them are intended, as were under no setled government, but lived wildly, wandring from place to place; and withall, which hath some hint of the former notation, were a mixture of divers nations. To which purpose, also, some draw in hither that of Tidal, called King of nations, Gen. 14. 1. In a matter so ambiguous, I shall forbear to determine ought, leaving it to the decision of the learned.

and all the Kings of the land of Uz] or Uts: of which name there are three several parties mentioned in Scripture; and accordingly three several places deemed to have born that name. The first and ancienteft of them was the son of Aram, Genef. 10. 23. whose posterity are fuppofed to have dwelt in that part of Syria, wherein Damascus is situate, 2 Sam. 8. 5. Esai 7. 8. the large valley bordering upon it, retaining ftill in the Arabick language the name of Gauta, by a change of letters not unusual: as Gaza, for, Azzah, Act. 8. 26. Gomorra, for, Amorah, Esai 1. 9. and Tyre, for, Tsor, Esai 23. 1. Tanes, for, Zoan, Esai 30. 4. The fecond was the son of Nachor, Abrahams brother, whose posterity are deemed to have taken up their abode in some part of Arabia the desart, near to Chaldea, the place of Jobs habitation, Job 1. 1. where he had such bad neigh-neighbours, the Chaldeans on the one side, and the Sabeans on the other, Job 1.15,17 the region by the Greeks termed Asiatis, and the inhabitants thereof, by Ptolomy, Asiæ; or as some rather think Asitis. The third was by Dishan the illue of Seir, Gen. 36. 28. those of his posterity feated themselves, as some think, in some part of Arabia the stony; either within, or very near unto the land of Idumea, Lam 4. 21. and of these I conceive that the Prophet here speaketh.

and all the kings of the land of the Philistines] See Chap. 47. 1. These were of the race of Cham, by Mitsraim his son, the Egyptians progenitor, Gen. 10. 6, 13, 14. 1 Chr. 1. 8, 11, 12. those of his posterity in succeeding ages bordered to the west upon the land of Judea. See Esai 2. 6. and 9 11.

and Ashkelon, and Azzah, and Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod,] Or, even of Ashkelon and Azzah, &c. as Chap 19. 12. and 25 9. for these were all several Princes in the Philistines country, See 1 Sam. 6 17. where these four are reckoned up among the five, which Gath here omitted, maketh up these: the reason whereof may be because that albeit, it had a King in former times 1 Sam. 21. 10 yet in my leem, in progresse of time, before Jeremies dayes, either to have been swallowed up in some one of the other four, or to have been utterly ruined by some forreign force. See Amos 6. 2. of Ashkelon, see chap 47 5. 7.

Azzah] Rendred Gaza, after the Greek pronounciation of it, 1 Sam. 6 17. and chap 47 5. See on the words beforegoing.

the remnant of Ashdod] By the Greeks, and Latines, termed Azotus, Act. 8. 40. And it is here said the remnant of it, as some suppose, because it had been much impaired and wasted by Psammetichus, father to Pharaoh Nechoh, who a long time besieged it. See Herodote. lib. 2. or as it may well be, by Tartan, a Commander under Sargon King of Allyria, who seemeth not to have besieged it onely, as Psammetichus did, but to have surprised also, and sacked it. Esai 20 1.

V. 21. Edom, and Moab, and the children of Ammon.] These, the posterity of Esau, the first of them, Gen 36. 1. of Lot the other two, Gen. 19. 37, 38. did border near upon one another, Deut. 2. 8, 9. and they were as near bordereis, so bad nei. hbours also from time to time unto Gods people. See Psal. 83. 6. 7, 8. Of the ruine of Edom, see further, Chap 49. 7. Moab, Chap. 48. of Ammon, Chap. 49. 1.

V. 22 And all the kings of Tyrus,] Heb. Tsor; see Esai 23. 1 and on v. 10. either Kings of several colonies from thence sent abroad, and countreys thence peopled, of which sort Carthage is generally acknowledged to have been one; or petty Kings, that held from, and were as vaffals unto the hereditary crown of that State; or, Kings, for, Princes, and Rulers, as chap. 17. 20 and 19. 3. and 25. 5. the rather here so termed for their great state and wealth, Esai 23. 8. See chap. 47 4. Ezek. 26. 17. 18.

and all the kings of Sidon] Heb. Tsidon, Greek, Sidon, Mat. 11 21. A neighbouring citie to Tyrus: whereof see on Esai 23. 2, 12. they are found oft joyned together, in regard of their vicinity, Mat. 11. 21. and 15 21 and all the kings of the Iles which are beyond the Sea] Or, of the lands, or countreys, or regions (as Esai 20 6 and 24. 1. and 42. 4. and 49 1.) or, the coast (for the Hebrew term is singular) that are, or that is (and this rather) besides the Sea, or by the Sea-side; as the word is used, Deut. 1. 1. whereby some (taking the words according to our Version) suppose Greece & Italy to be meant, divided from Judah by the mid-land-Sea. Others, Rhodes and Cyprus, and those other Islands toward the bottom of that Sea, which they tell us were surprised and subdued by Nebuchadnezzar, but no record is produced for either of these; nor is there any great probability of either: and leste yet of the former. I conceive therefore rather to be hereby meant those Parts of Syria that coasted all along upon the mid-land-Sea. See chap. 49 23.

V. 23. Dedan] Of this name we finde two persons in Scripture: the one Chams illue by Chush, and Raamah, Gen 10. 7. the other of Abrahams posterity by Jokshan, Gen. 25 3. of whom, see Esai 21 13 This present passage seemeth to concern the place where the posterity of the latter was feated; which is deemed to have been part of Idumea. See chap 49 8.

and Tema] Tema was one of Ishmaels race, Gen. 25 15. the land that his posterity inhabited in some part of Arabia, was from him so termed: whereof see Job 6. 19 Esai 21. 14 where the Dedanites, and the Temaites, are together mentioned.

and Buz] The name of one of Nachors posterity, Gen. 22. 21. of which Family Elihu, one of Jobs friends was, Job 32. 1, 6.

and all that are in the utmost corners] Heb. cutted off of a corner; whereof see on chap. 9. 26. as also, chap. 49. 32. where they seem to be placed either within, or near upon Idumea, and the Kingdom of Hazor.

Verf. 24. And all the kings of Arabia] Reckoned among those that brought gold and silver to Solomon. So 2 Chr. 9. 14. See on Esai 21 13.

and all the kings of the mingled people that dwelt in the desart] Or, of Arabia; as well those that inhabit Arabia the fertile, as those that abide under kingly government in Arabia the waste. See on verf. 20 which some conceive to be the Kedarens, mentioned, Chap. 49. 28. said there to dwell without gates, or bars; that is, without walled towns, or fenced cities, in tents removeable from place to place, Chap. 49. 31. Esai 13 20. the old Latine rendreth it: of the West; and the word indeed commonly signifieth the evening, Gen. 5. 8. and one derived from it, the West, or evening coast; because the sun setting in the West, produceth the evening, Psalm 103. 12. Esai 59. 19. But where the word is self is so used, I fin e not.

V. 25. And all the kings of Zimri] The posterity of Zimram, the son of Abraham by Keturah, Genes. 25 2. in being lost, as in Maria, for, Mariam, or Mariam, Math. 1. 16, 18. with Luke 1. 27. and Gehenna, for Gehinnom, Math 5. 22. 30. they seem to have been those Zamarenes, a people of Arabia, mentioned by Pliny, lib. 6. cap 28.

and all the kings of Elam] The Persians descended of Sem, Gen, 10. 2. See on Esai 22 6. and afterward, chap. 49 34 and all the kings of the Medes] Heb. of Madai: the son of Japhet. Gen. 10 2. from whom the Medes are descended. joyned with the Persians, Dan 5. 28. and 6. 8, 12.

V. 26. And all the kings of the North far and near one with another;] Under the prefent Chaldean Government. chap. 1. 15. v. 9. Heb. a man to his brother: as Gen. 26 31. 2 King. 7. 6. chap. 13. 14. but to here for, with; as Lam. 3, 41 and all the Kingdoms of the world, which are upon the face of the earth.] In those regions and countreys commonly known in those times unto parts, and with whom any ordinary commerce then was; as Esai 34. 2. Act 2. 5.

and the king of Sheshach shall drink after them] That by Sheshach is meant Babylon, appeareth plainly from chap. 51. 41. the King whereof is said to drink last; because the rest were to drink, as before him, & by him, and he afterward by some of them, verf. 9, 12, 14. But why Babylon should be thus termed, or how it should come to have this name given it, is queftioned. Whereunto the Jewish Masters answer, that Sheshac and Babel, the letters of the Alphabet, being traversed and transposed, are all one. For of this trick, or device, they have two sorts; one, that they call Albam; whereof see on Esai 7. 6. another, which they call Athbash, or Athbas, in which two whole set of letters being placed, the one in a direct order above; the other under that backward, beneath on this wife, they enterchange them, as they stand in order, the upper for the lower, and the lower for the upper: and thus Shin being out for beth, and caph for lamed, for Sabel ye have Sheshac; and this trick some suppose, that the Prophet should use on purpole to darken the Prophesie, for fear lest it he should have expresly named Babylon, the King of Babylon, then being set down before the citie, should use more rigour and violence against it. But neither was this Prophet afraid freely to deliver Gods meslage, and that in plain terms also, as afterward he did again and again. chap 27. 6, 7. and 29. 10 and 50. 1. and 51, 1. 41. 64. nor doth this prophesie seem to have been delivered until Jehoiakim had yielded himself unto Nebuchadnezzar, content now to hold the crown from him. See on verf. 18. nor are the pen men of Scripture accustomed with such tricks as these, being but lare (to speak of Talmudical devices. Others therefore suppose, that there might be some other great and famous citie in Chaldea so term d from the first founder of it, because they finde a King of Egypt to have been of the like name, 2 Chr. 12. 2. But this seemeth to be a very groundlesse conjecture Others therefore think rat er, and with more probability, that Babylon is thus termed from an idol, called Sheshac. or Shak, from which Mshael was by the King of Babylons Chamberlain termed Mishac, Dan. 1. 7. which they worshipped, and whose festival they were celebrating what time the citie was by Cyrus surprised. Whereof see more on chap. 51. 41. though what a learned Writer hath here, that Sheshac in the Babylonian language signifies to feast; & Shara, feastivals, I finde not by any author affirmed. True is, that Athenæus in his Supper-sophysters, lib. 14. relateth from Berosus, in his Babylonian, and Cestius in his Persian story, that a feast called the Sacean-festival, was wont to be held at Babylon for eleven dayes together; not unlike to the Greeks and Romans Saturnalia: and it is nor improbable, that in the time of this feastival, Babylon was taken: of which more hereafter. But that the word Sheshac in that language hath any such general signification, is neither by the relater, nor by the Authors whom he relateth, averred.

shall drink] In this phrase is deemed to be some allusion to that fatal banket, at which Belshazzar was slain, Dan. 5. 30. there is in more likelyhood an allusion thereunto, chap. 51. 39, 57. where God saith, that he will make their feast for them and make them to drunk, that they shall sleep an everlasting sleep; but here the same term is used promiscuously of them all, and of him no more than of the rest with him.

V. 27. Therefore shalt thou say unto them] Or, Say thou unto them; as Chap. 19. 3, 11. to wit, in the publick delivery of this prophesie.

Thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel.] As Chapt. 19. 15.

Drink

Drink ye, and be drunken, and spue, and fall, and rise no more,] Heb. and ye shall not rise. Drink till ye be so druk that ye spue again (as Esay 19. 14. & 28. 8. Habb. 2. 16.) and so stagger as (as Psal. 107. 27.) that ye fall, and so fall, that ye be not able to rise and recover your selves again, Esay 26. 19. chap. 51, 61, 23. sleep and not make again, chap 51. 39. 57. the imperative in way of prediction, fave in the laft word, where yet it is to run in the same tenour with the rest. See the like, ver. 34. compared with ver. 36. as the future enunciative in way of injunction in the words before-going.

then shalt thou say unto them;] Or, that thou shalt say unto them; as chap. 1, 9. & 16. 11.

Thus saith the Lord of hosts, ye shall certainly drink.] Heb. Drinking ye shall drink; as chap. 49. 12. So, dying thou shalt die, for, thou shalt surely die, Gen. 2. 17.

Ver. 29. For lo, I begin to bring evill upon the city that is called by my name, and should ye be utterly unpunished? ye shall not be unpunished.] What reason have any of you, whom I own not, to expect, or hope to escape, when as I have in part already begun with mine own people, and intend to go thorow with them, as well as with you, if not before some of you.

I begin to bring evill] Heb. I am beginning to do evill, or inflict evill: either I am inflicting evill; by a circumlocution in Hebrew very frequent: as also in the Greek of the New Testament from thence, (see Gen 6 1. Deut. 3. 24. Jon. 3. 4. Acts 1. 1. & 11. 15. with 10. 44.) or in the terme of beginning, (it any emphasis be in it) having an hint of their precedency in regard of some others, verse 18. or to what God had already begun to do in the surprize of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar: whereof also see there.

upon the city that is called by my name] On Jerusalem, which is called and accounted in a more special and peculiar manner, mine own city. Heb. upon which my name is called: as Chap. 7: 10. & 15, 16. & 32. 34.

and should ye be utterly unpunished?] Heb. being acquitted be acquitted; as Chap 38, 11: Exod. 34. 7. for if God begin so severely, and proceed soo so roughly with his own people, others must look as surely and sorely to suffer at last, Luke 23. 31. 1 Pet. 4. 17, 18.

for I will call for a sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, saith the Lord of Hosts.] Heb. I am calling. I am going prefently about it. So Chap. 1. 19. and it cannot but come and go at his call, who, being Lord of hosts, hath all creatures at command, Psal. 119. 91. & 148. 8 Esay 7. 18, 19. & 13. 3. & 40. 26. Ezek. 14. 17. Amos 5. 8. & 9. 6.

a sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth.] See verse 26. 27.

V. 30. Therefore prophesie thou against them all these words] Or, all these things: the subject matter of the words; as verse 1. Chap. 21. 1. & 26. 2. The manner how he was to render the cup to them, verse 15. to wit, by way of denunciation; as Chap. 1. 10. See ver. 15, 17.

and say unto them] Adde further to the former what now followeth.

The Lord shall roar from on high, and shall utter his voyce from his holy habitation;] God is here said to roar as a lion enraged, when he is about to execute some hideous work of vengeance, or punishment, to inflict some dreadful judgment, Joel 3. 16. Amos 1. 2. & 3. 8.

from on high] From heaven, the place of his glorious residence, Psal. 76. 8. Esay 63. 15. Rom. 1. 18.

utter his voyce] Heb. give, or, give out, his voyce: to call together, say some of the Jewish Doctors, and others from them, those whom he purposeth to employ: as Esay 13. 2. but it seemeth rather to be here a further addition to the former: and it is used to imply the fiercenelle and dreadfulnelle of his wrath, which he cometh with unto judgement, with allusion unto loud and hideous cracks of thunder accompanied with fearful and frightful flashes of fire. See Psal. 18. 13. & 68. 33. So also, Joel 3. 16. & Amos 1. 2.

from his holy habitation] Heb. his habitation of holinesse; as Psal. 68. 5. So his Temple, or, Palace of holinesse: that is, heaven, Psal. 11. 4.

he will mightily roar upon his habitation,] Heb he will roaring roar; that is, roar exceeding loud: for these ingeminations imply, as certainty sometime, verse 8. so otherwhile a vehemency or excels: as Esay 24. 16. upon his habitation. So the word doth commonly signifie, Job 5. 3. & 18 15. Psal. 79. 7. Esay 27. 10. & 33. 20. Chap. 10. 25 For the old Latine here doth misstranslate it, rendring the word beauty, which those that follow defcant much on to small purpoleit is applyed sometime to Gods Sanctuary, Temple or Tabernacles as Exod. 15. 2. 2 Sam. 15. 25. and so here, both Jowith, & ours generally expound it, understanding the text, as intimating the place which God threatneth, in particular, to execute judgement upon: which to me seemeth nothing probable; because all the following discourse is bent in general against the whole fet of those, whom God intended thus to deal with: and I choose therefore to go rather with those Interpreters, though very few, yet of good note, who expound this, as the former, of the place, where, or from whence; God would thus roar: and render the text, not, upon, but, in his habitation, or dwelling. So is the particle oft used, Neh. 9. 33, 36. Psal. 143. 4. Esay 24. 22. in prison, Dan. 11. 20. in his place, Esay 38, 20. in the house of the Lord: and so here, in his habitation: wherunto may be added, that with this particle there is oft a defect of the other particle from: as Psal. 81. 6. when he came from off, or, out of Egypt: and Dan. 2. 1. his sleep was broken, or departed from off him, or from him; as our version rendreth it: and accordingly it may be here from, or, out of his habitation, or dwelling, for variety sake, described this word, and the former, though in notion the same, are in found and originall divers: and though by and from his sanctuary he is said sometime, in the like case, to roar, and utter his voyce, Joel 3. 16. Amos 1. 2. yet I suppose here is heaven rather meant, as before, because the Temple then was demolished, and lay desolate, when God roared thus on some of the people before specified.

he shall give a shout as they that tread the grapes against all the inhabitants of the earth.] Heb. he will answer a shout: whence some suppose it to allude to such songs as the workmen that were employed in the wine presse used to answer one another withall, to make their work go the lighter and more merrily away with them: it is true, that the word here used signifies properly to answer, but sometime also, to answer one another in singing, or to sing by course; as they did, Exod. 15. 21. 1 Sam. 18. 7. & 21, 11. & 29. 5. Ezr. 3. 11. and simply also to sing; as Esay 27. 2. yea as to speak simply; which is very common in both the books of the old and new Testament, where no question at all goeth before; so more especially to make a loud noyse, shout, or outcry. So Exod. 32. 17, 18. when Joshua heard the voyce, or, noyse of the people, as they shouted he said, there is a noyse of war in the camp. But (Moses) said, It is not the voyce, or a noyse of shouting for masters; (valour, or victory) nor is it the voyce of crying out (of outcry) for discomfiture, (by reason of being surprised and vanquished) but a voyce, or noyse, of chanting, (singing by course, or singing aloud simply) do I hear: by which place, where the word is three several times repeated; in the light, or single form, as here, twice; in the weighty form, wherein the middle radicall is doubled, once; it appeareth that it is used to signifie any such loud shout, or outcry, as either affailants in war, or persons suddenly affailed, and over-poured by an affailant enemy, are wont to make. And I conceive the shout here mentioned to be an alarme, or shout rather, of affailants, such as they are wont to make, either at the joyning of battel in the field, or at the affaule of some fort or city, Josh. 6. 16, 20. Chap. 51. 14. withall compare to that shout that country people are wont to make at the bringing in of their vintage and harvest; and more especially when they have their feet in the winepresse, and the new liquor in their heads. See Esay 16. 9, 10. Jer. 48. 32, 33.

those that tread the grapes] Heb. treaders, So the treader, Esay 6. 10. and, he that treadeth (to wit, grapes) in the wine-presse, or, the presse, Esay 63. 2. wherunto some allusion is here; the rather, in regard of that store of blood that should be shed by the executioners of Gods wrath, to such treaders out of wine in this place compared. So Esay 63. 3 Rev. 14. 19, 20. to tread, for, to tread grapes: as, to tread out, for, to tread out corn. Hosh. 10. 11.

against all the inhabitants of the earth.] Heb unto; which if we retain, the meaning may be, that the shout shall be so loud, that it should be heard in all parts and places, though never so remote and distant one from another. See verse 31. the former part whereof the old Latine joyneth to this: but the particle is sometime also used for against; as Chap. 1. 19. & 13. 14. & 15. 20. of the other terms here, see ver. 26. 29. Esay 34. 1, 2.

V. 31. A noyse shall come even to the ends of the earth] Heb. A tumultuous noyse is gone unto the lands end; that is, say some, from the red sea, unto the Caspian sea; they might as well say, from the Persian Gulf, unto the Mid-land sea: but to the lands end is a form used indefinitely, for so far, as the lands intended reach, Psal. 72. 8. See Esay 15. 4.——8. Chap 48. 24. & 49. 21.

for the Lord hath a controversie with the nations] Heb. for a controversie, or a quarrel is to the Lord with the nations. See the same form, Hos. 4. 1. & Mich. 6. 2.

he will plead with all flesh] Heb, he will be judged, or, enter into judgement; as Esay 3. 14. making it to appear, that he doth most justly, what in this kind he doth, with all flesh: all people; as before, verse 26. So Chap. 45. 5.

he will give them which are wicked to the sword; saith the Lord.] Heb, the wicked, or, as for the wicked, he hath given them to the sword: an elegant form of speech the like whereunto, see Gen. 49. 19 Psal. 1. 5. & Esay 65. 11. 12. and a change of the person also here, as there: the hath designed them thereunto, or he hath given them up to it, in the prophetical phrase: for, he will do it, it is as sure to be done, as if it were done already, Chap. 15. 2, 3. the sword: of which before, verse 16.

V. 32. Thus saith the Lord of Hosts: behold evill shall go forth from nation to nation.] From one nation to another: as Psal. 105. 13. to each one, as his turn comes. See Lam. 4. 21.

a great whirl-wind shall be raised from the coasts of the earth] Or, a great storm, or, tempest, (as Chap 23. 19.) shall be raised from the uttermost parts of the earth. Heb, sides: as Chap. 6. 22. from the Chaldeans, first on the one side, and from the Medes, and Persians next on the other side.

V. 33. And the slain of the Lord shall be at that day from the one end of the earth, even to the other end of the earth:] The slain of the Lord: the slain by his purpose, and at his appointment, verse 29. Zeph. 2. 12. at that day: that is, at that time, when he comes to take vengeance, and do justice upon the wicked (verse 31.) shall be and abound in all parts and places, from the one end of the earth to the other. Heb, from the end of the earth, and unto the end of the earth: as Chap. 12. 12. So Mat. 24. 31.

they shall not be lamented, neither gathered, nor buried: they shall be dung upon the earth] So great shall the multitude of the corpses of the slain men be, that they shall lye without exequies or burial, without any manner of enterment, unburied, untill they rot upon the ground: See Chap. 8. 2.

V. 34. Howle ye shepherds and cry] Or, cry out: make an out-cry, chap. 4. 8. & 6. 26. See verse 36. Ye Rulers, and Governours, Kings and Princes: for against them principally are these evills denounced, verse 8. 16. So is the word taken, Chap. 22. 22. & 23. 1.

for the dayes of your slaughter, and of your dispersions, are accomplished,] Heb. your dayes for slaughter, and your dispersions: the time designed for the the slaughtering and dispersing of you is fully come: as Luke 2. 6. Acts 2. 1. nor past and gone: as the word in our Version might seem to import.

and ye shall fall like a pleasant vessel] Or, as a precious dish. Heb. as a vessel, or. dish, of desire, or delight: So Hos. 13. 15. Nah. 2. 9. the opposite See chap. 22. 28. a vessel, or dish, unto which there is no desire, or, in which no delight: Some such curious utensils, as Venice-glasses, and China-dishes, that by reason of their fineness are with the least fall, or casualty, soon dashed to pieces, and being once broken, cannot be cemented, or fet together again, or, that are of much esteem while they are whole, but of no worth when once broken. So Psal. 31. 12. chap. 22. 28.

V. 35. And the shepherds shall have no way to flye, nor the principall of the flock to escape.] Heb. Flight shall perish from the Shepherds, and escape from the principall of the flock; as Amos 2. 14.

V. 36. A voyce of the cry of the shepherds, and an howling of the principal of the flock shall be heard] Or. There shall be an out-cry of the shepherds and an howling of the principal of the flock. Heb. a voyce of cry, for, a loud, or clamorous voyce: as chap. 51. 54. a grievous out-cry; as we term it: See verse 34.

For the Lord hath spoyled their pastures] Because the Lord hath destroyed, and laid waste their pastures, that is, their Kingdomes and States: or, disperfed and destroyed their Flocks, that is, the people that lived under their charge, chap. 13. 20. as the word is used, chap. 10. 21,

V. 37. And the peaceable habitations are cut down,] The ftately ftructures, and goodly buildings, wherein formerly ye lived and dwelt quietly, as in places of reft and repofe, are through the fierce wrath of God ruined and demolished. Heb. The habitations, or folds, (1 Sam 7. 8. the rather, because the allegory runs on, as taken from fhepherds, and their fheep-coats) of peace; as Esay 33. 20. Sion is faid to be a quiet habitation: though I cannot accord to them, who think in the word fhalom here, an allufion to be unto Salem, or Jerufalem, Pfal. 76. 2. becaufe that foundeth much to the fame, Heb. 7. 2. for the fcope and fence of this place is far more general, See on verfe 30.

V. 38. He hath forfaken his covert, as a lion] Or, as fome nor amiffe, Who (the relative fupplyed; as chap, 22. 30. & 23. 29.) hath left. as a young lion, (as chap 2. 16.) his covert; as chap. 4. 7, He is come abroad as a young lion. to range about for prey So chap. 49. 19. & 50. 44. For I cannot affent unto that learned Interpreter, who expoundeth thefe words of Gods leaving his place among his people, whom he had wont to dwell with, and fo expofing them, difmantled of his protection, unto ruine and deftruction, chap. 12. 7. the words feem more generall, then to be reftrained unto Gods peculiar; and the refemblance to look over-full another way.

V. 16. Then ſaid the Princes and all the people, unto the Prieſts and the Prophets; Then; having heard the Prophets apology for himſ lf. Heb. And, (as verſe 6.) the princes, that came from the Kings Court, hearing of the tumult raiſed about the Prophet by the falſe Prophets and the Prieſts, verſe 10. as the Roman Colonell about Paul. Acts 21, 31, 32. & 23, 10. and all the people before incited, and incenſed againſt the Prophet, by the Prieſts and falſe Prophets, but now pacified by his Apology, and the Princes inclination to equity in favour of the Prophet, being in likelyhood by their carriage and countenance diſcovered by them. Thus the promiſcuous multitude are like waves and billows, moving this way and that way, as ſome blaſt of wind bloweth upon them; crying Hoſanna this day, and, Crucifie him, the next: Matth. 21. 9. & 27. 20, 22, 23.

This man is not worthy to dye.] Or, is not guilty of death, doth not deſerve death: ought not to be put to death. Heb. judgement of death, is not for, or, to this man, as verſe 11.

for he hath ſpoken to us in the name of the Lord our God.] He hath delivered nothing but Gods meſſage to us. Thus they pronounce a ſentence of abſolution in behalf of Jeremy, as being no counterfeit, but a true Prophet: the cognizance whereof the Jewiſh Maſters tell us belonged to this ſupreme Court, the great conſiſtory.

V. 17. Then roſe up certain of the Elders of the land, and ſpake to all the aſſembly of the people, ſaying.] Heb And (as verſe 16.) there roſe up, or, ſtood up (as men uſe to do when they are either to plead as advocates, or to adviſe as counſellers, or to give ſentence, as Judges, Eſay 3. 13, 14. Heb ſtaying ſlay, as chap. 38. 15. but here the gemination in a diminishing or extenuating notion: as ſuch ſomes, which few obſerve, ne ſometime uſed: So Gen. 3. 4. ye ſhall not dying die, for, ye ſhall not at all die; and Gen. 43.7. could we knowing know? for, could we at all, or, by any means, know? could we ſo much as ſuſpect? in which places for want of this obſervation, the words are ſlenderly rendred by interpreters of great note, beſides the mind and drift of thoſe that ſpake them.

did he not fear the Lord, and beſought the Lord; and the Lord repented him of the evill, which he had pronounced againſt them?] See 2 Chron. 32. 25, 26. Some interpreters render the words, Did he not fear the Lord; and when he beſought the Lord, the Lord repented, &c. Of which ſyntax, ſee before on verſe 17. and the like again, verſe 21.

thus might we procure great evill againſt our ſoules] Heb. and we doing (for, we ſhould do; the enunciative in a potential notion; as chap. 16. 20.) great evill againſt our ſoules; that is, againſt our ſelves: as chap. 17. 21. & 44. 7. We by taking this courſe, that the Prieſts and Prophets would put us upon, contrary to the practice of that religious Prince, ſhould, inſtead of averting the evill denounced, haſten the execution of it, and bring further evill upon our ſelves.

V. 20. And there was alſo a man that prophe ied in the name of the Lord, Vrijah the ſon of Shemajah of Kiriath-jearim, who prophe ied againſt this city, and againſt this land, according to all the words of Jeremiah.] Some would have theſe words to be part of the Elders ſpeech before mentioned, who ſpake in Jeremies behalf, verſe 17. But that is nothing likely: for by this latter inſtance they ſhould rather croſſe, than back, what before they had delivered: but they ſeem rather to be the words of the Pen-man (whether the Prophet himſelf, or any other, peradventure Baruc his Scribe) of this ſtory concerning the preſent buſineſſe, relating the iſſue of it; and to illuſtrate Gods providence in the due preſervation of Jeremy, reporting another ſtory of the ſame ſubject, much about the ſame time, but diverſly managed, and with divers event. This to clear, the text might well be thus rendred; Now though there were alſo, &c (the copulative uſed; as Eſay 8.7. the other ſupplyed, as chap. 5. 22.) and ſo the context carried on unto, verſe 24.

V. 23. And they fet forth Urijah out of Egypt: Or, Who (as chap. 15. 19. & 17. 7.) fetched, or, brought away Urijah out of Egypt. Heb. made to come out; as Deut. 6. 21.

and caſt his dead body into the graves of the common people.] Heb, ſons of the people; the promiſcuous multitude, men of the meaneſt condition: Not permitting him to have ſo much as an honeſt ſepulture, ſuch as perſons of the better rank had, who had buriall places uſually in their private poſſeſſions; 2 Sam. 19. 37. 1 Kings 13. 22, 30, 31. ſuch an extreme ſpite had he againſt Gods meſſenger, in regard of his meſſage, both living and dead: by this his cruelty exerciſed on him, ſuppoſing that he ſhould affright any from coming again on the like errand: which yet with Jeremy he could not do.

V. 24. Neverthelеſſe the hand of Ahikam, the ſon of Shapan, was with Jeremiah, that they ſhould not give him into the hand of the people to put him to death.] This hath a manifeſt reference to that which this relation began with ver. 20. Though it fared ſo with Urijah, who, out of fear, thus deſerted his employment; yet it fa ted better with Jeremy, that ſtayed by it, and ſtuck cloſe to his tackle: for albeit, the King himſelf were ſo cruelly minded, and had thoſe about him ready enough to put his cruel deſignes in execution, ver. 22, 23. yet God ſtirred up the ſpirit of ſome of his Princes, and one of them more eſpecially, to ſtand by him, and deal ſo effectually for him, that he was not delivered unto the power of thoſe that would have taken his life from him, accordug to promiſe for protection made to him, chap. 15. 20, 21.

the hand of Ahikam was with Jeremiah] Hand, for, authority, power, help, aſſiſtance; as Deut. 7. 8. 2 Sam. 14. 19. and ſo afterward again. This Ahikam was one of Joſiahs Princes and Counſellours, 2 Kings 22. 12. whoſe name God would have to be left here upon record, for an honour to him unto all poſterity, as having been the principall Agent among them that were inſtruments here of the Prophets delivery: and he ſeemeth to have been the Father of that Gedaliah, whom Nebuchadnezzar made Governour of thoſe whom he left in Judea, 2 Kings 25. 22. chap. 39. 14. God, as may well be conjectured, for this pious act of his father, in patronizing and reſcuing his Prophet, cauſing his ſon to find favour in that Heathen Kings eyes: howſoever by his folly, and ſond credulity, he made it afterward unuſefull both to others and himſelf, chap. 40. 13.—— 16. & 41 1, 2.

that they ſhould not give him into the hand of the people to put him to death] Heb. to make him die; to ſlay him; as verſe 19. hand, for, power, as before; and chap. 22. 25. It may be objected, that the people ſpake in the Prophets behalfe, as not deſerving to die, ver. 16. But the tickle and fickle diſpoſition of the multitude hence appeareth, who though partly by the Prophets own ſpeech, and partly by the pleading of the Princes for him, were ſatisfied at preſent concerning his innocency: yet had not this worthy Prince ſtuck cloſe to him, would by the wicked Prieſts, and falſe Prophets, ſoon again have been drawn to ſeek his deſtruction. See ver. 16.

CHAP. XXVII.

Verſe 1. IN the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim, the ſonne of Joſiah King of Judah] This Prophecy, by the date of it, may ſeem to have gone before that recorded, Chap. 25. and to have been near of the ſame time with the ſtory related, chap. 26. for that the ſeverall prophecies, or ſermons are not in this book entred and ranked according to the exact order of time, wherein they were delivered, hath been before ſhewed on chap. 12. 15. And about the date of this there is among Interpreters ſome diſagreement: the ground whereof doth from hence ariſe. There is a chatge here ſaid to come to the Prophet in the beginning of the reign of Jehojakim, for the making of bonds and yokes to be rendred to the Embaſſadours of forrein States in the rign of Zedekiah: there being eleven years between the beginning of the reign of the one, and of the other: for ſo many years did Jehojakim reign, and Jehojacin his ſon ſome few moneths after him before Zedekiah, 2 Kings 23, 36. & 24. 8. 17. This difficulty to aſſoil, ſome, both of the Jewiſh Writers, and other, ſay, that this prophecy was revealed to Jeremy in the firſt year of Jehojakims reign, three year before Nebuchadnezzar came to the Chaldean crown upon his fathers deceaſe, Dan. 1. 1. but that he was to conceal it, and not to publiſh it, nor put in execution the thing it ſelf enjoyned, untill eleven year after in the reign of Zedekiah. Others, that he was preſently to make theſe bonds, and to wear them for eleven years, at leaſt together, and then to ſend them, as hereafter abroad. But neither do the former ſeem to give any good reaſon why a prophecy of this nature ſhould be ſo long concealed and ſmoothered: nor doth that ſeem to carry any ſhew of probability with it, which the latter have, that the Prophet ſhould go up and down voked in that manner for ſo long a time together. Thoſe therefore who take this prophecy to be of a lower date, and to have been delivered delivered in the beginning, not of Jehojakims, but of Zedekiahs reign; do ſome of them conceive, that this verſe doth not belong to this Chapter, but to that before-going; and to be the cloſe of it, ſhut up with the ſame words, wherewith it begun; ſomewhat like that Hagg. 1. 1, 15. where the laſt verſe (formerly in moſt Verſions, for want of this obſervation, was rent from the fore-going Chapter, and prefixed amiſſe to the next: and ſo many of our Hebrew Bibles, indeed, divide the Chapters both here, and there. But neither thew they how this paſſage can be fixed handſomely to the fore-paſſed relation: nor do thoſe inſtances they bring from Exod. 6. 10, 29. help any whit to clear the context from an abrupt tearing of this verſe, concluded with ſaying, from the next verſe, wherein the charge, or in junction is expreſſed, becauſe they are not the expreſſe words of God, but of the Prophet rather, ſpeaking from God; and yet why not of God himſelf, putting words into the Prophets mouth, or ſpeaking of himſelf in the third perſon, as he oft doth? See chap. 25. 31, 33 ſome place would be produced, where the word, ſaying, thutteth up a ſentence, without any ſpeech, or charge at all enſuing. Other therefore of thoſe that go this latter way, ſay that Zedekiah is here called Jehojakim, and that Jehojakim was a name common to the ſons of King Joſiah. But of this there is neither any proof, nor good probability. And others therefore ſuppoſe, that through the Scribes negligence, who having his eye on the Title of the Chapter next before-going, wrote Jehoiakim, for Zedekiah; an errour was by overſight at firſt committed, which afterward being not regarded, bred that general miſtake, that all commonly known copies now have. And this their conjecture, they ſuppoſe, to receive further ſtrength from the repetition of Zedekiahs name again, verſe 12. and the date of the next prophecie, Chap. 28 1. ſaid to have been delivered in the ſame year with this, and that in the beginning, not of the reign of Jehojakim, but of the reign of Zedekiah.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Verse 1. And it came to pass the same years, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah King of Judah,] Heb. And it was (as Chapter 20. 3.) in that year, to wit, before mentioned, Chapter 27. 1. that, for, the same; as Chapter 27. 8. and so hereafter verse 17. So that this prophecy seemeth to bear date with the former, both by the common title, and the subject matter of either. That which much confirmeth the opinion of those, who suppose that Jehojakim there named, was at first, and should be Zedekiah.

in the fourth year,] Here we meet with a new knot, that seemeth near as difficult, and as hard to unlose, as that other, Chap. 27. 1. to wit, how the passage here reported and recorded, should be said to have fallen out in the beginning of Zedekiahs reign, and yet in his fourth year; the one seeming to crosse the other. This seeming breach to make up, some make a rent in the context: for as before, they tore off the first verse of Chapter 27. to annex it to Chapter 26. So here they rent from this Chapter, the foregoing words of this verse, and annexe them to Chapter 27. Expounding the words; And it came to pass (to wit, all that was before related of my speaking on this wise to the King and his Princes, the Priests and his people, chap. 26. 12, 16.) the same year in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah. But this conceit of the Author thereof hath been deemed so uncouth, that I find not any other beside himself therein to concur with him. Howbeit, some of ours, though they tear not this branch off from the context ensuing, yet they suppose it to have reference by way of transition, unto what had been before related, thus rendring the words, Now when that (before mentioned) had been in that year, and in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah; in the fourth year, that which now followeth fell out; to wit, Hananiah spake unto me, &c. Somewhat the like conceit the same Authors have of another place, though not parallell to this, 1 Sam. 13. 1. whereof elsewhere. But besides that, this giveth us a strained syntax, with needlesse inferences, nor suiteth well with the stops in the Text. It seemeth thereby presumed, that four years together the Prophet did wear a yoke on his neck, which Hananiah should now break; a thing nothing probable, that either the one should so long wear it, or the other have the patience to endure the sight of it so long worn. The Jewish Doctors out of their Talmudists tell us, that Nebuchadnezzar, when Zedekiah went to Babylon in the fourth year after the captivity of Jeconiah, chap. 51. 59. gave him a kind of Lieve-tennanr-ship under him over those five Kingdoms mentioned, chap. 27. 3. and that this therefore is here termed the beginning of his Kingdom: but of that place before, and of the other when we come to it: for of the Story it self there is no record produced, nor seems it to carry with it any great probability; though some of ours seem to warp somewhat this way. Others passing by these improbable relations, not admitting such forced breaches as the former fore seem to make in the context, suppose that the words, as they be simply conceived, may well stand together, without any such disagreement as they are supposed to import. The fourth year of Zedekiah, say they, may not unfitly be termed the beginning of his reign: for dividing his reign, being eleven years in all, 2 Kings 24. 18. as we use to doe other things into three parts, the beginning, the middle, and the end; of those eleven years, the four first, or three first with the part of the fourth, may well goe for the beginning; the six following for the middle, and the two last, in which his State was invaded and ruined, may well be reckoned for the end. But this, though carrying better shew of probability with it, than any of the former, yet is not deemed satisfactory by divers: Nor indeed will the like I suppose be easily produced, where somewhat that fell out in the fourth year. of a reign of not above eleven, if so much entire in all, should be said to be done, in the beginning of it. And some other therefore lastly, both of the Jewish Writers and ours, suppose the fourth year here mentioned to be not the fourth year of Zedekiahs reign; neither is it so said, but the fourth year of the Sabbaticall yeare or circle; or the fourth year after the seventh years rest, Leviticus 25. 4. and the first of his reign. This some of ours seek to back with the like, Daniel 1. 1. as they there expounded the third. But the places are not parallel. See before on chapter 25. 1. Howbeit, to this I here encline; because the Jewish Writers, and our best Chronologers do herein agree, that the year wherein the city was taken, the Temple burnt, and Zedekiah captived, being the eleventh and last of his reign, was a Sabbatical year; some hints whereof they suppose to be given, 2 Chronicles 36. 21. and chap. 34. 9, 15. whereof when we come to it: but they ground this their assertion principally upon the Jubilee calculations: and some of those who are deemed most exact in the computation of times, affirm that year to be the fourth Sabbatical year of the eighteenth Jubilee. Now his first year being the fourth of the seventh, the seventh will begin in his third, and the seventh after that in his tenth tenth, and expire with his reign in the eleventh: and this also some confirm from Ezekiel 29. 17. where the twenty and seventh year mentioned, can hardly be deemed any other, than of the Jubilee then current; and that being the tenth year of Jechonias captivity, and Zedekiahs reign; as from the first verse of that Chapter is observed: he next after it being Zedekiahs last, must Chapter is observed: he next after it being Zedekiahs last, must of necessity be the twenty eighth, and consequently the Sabbaticall year.

that Hananiah the sonne of Azur the Prophet, which was of Gibeon spake unto me in the House of the Lord, in the presence of the priests, and of all the people saying,] This Hananiah, a pretended Prophet, so called, because he took upon himself so to be, is by some fondly conceived to have been the High-Priest; but neither did any of that name about those times hold that place; and his parentage also here recited reflecteth it. Yet a Priest he might be: for Gibeon, the place of his abode, was a city assigned to the Priests and Levites in Benjamins lot, Josh 21. 13, 17. See c. 27. 16.

all that is carried away captive] Or, that have been carried away captive. Heb. all the captivity: as Chapter 29. 4. 20, 31. this concerning the Persons, as the former, the Vessels, verse 4.

V. 7. Nevertheless, hear thou now this word that I speak in thine ears, and in the ears of all the people.] Hear and consider well this thing that I speak, (as v. 6. c. 22. 1.) in thy hearing, because it principally concerneth thee; and in the hearing of the people here present, because it also concerneth them: ears for hearing: as chap. 2. 2. and 26. 14. & 29. 29. & 36. 6, 10. So eyes for face or sight, verse 1, 5.

V. 8. The Prophets that have been before me and before thee of old, Prophesied both, against many countries, and against great Kingdomes; of war, and of evil, and of pestilence.] The Prophet admonisheth this counterfeit, and the people together with him, of what other Prophets had before time prophesied in such manner, and of such evils as himself now did, which could not therefore be any good ground to detract ought from the truth of his present prophesie, since that he prophesied no other things than they had formerly done. of evil] Or affliction: as Esay 45. 7. Chapter 18. 11. Howbeit, some conceive, not without some good probability, that some particular evil or affliction, should here be intimated; because it is on either side elasped in with such in regard whereof they suppose that by a Meer mis-written, it is raah, evil, or affliction for raah; that is, famine: the rather, because these three are so frequently found conjoyned in this Prophet: as Chapter 21. 9. & 24. 10. & 27. 13. & 38. 2. & 39. 18. & 44. 12, 13, 18, 27. and elsewhere, Ezekiel 5. 12, 13. & 7. 11, 12. & 7. 15. & 12. 16. & 14. 21. The same surmise some good Authours of note have concerning that place, Heb. 11. 37. where in the middest of many particular executions done upon the faithful, cometh in, they were tried or tempted; supposing that for ἐπειράσθησαν, as we now have it, it was at first, ἐπυρώθησαν: but there is no such word as that found: and I suppose therefore it was rather ἐπρήσθησαν, they were burnt: and there is an elegant consonancy (such as the Apostle oft useth in his Epistles) between that and the word next before going, ἐπρίσθησαν, ἐπράσθησαν, which differ but in a letter: nor is there much difference in writing between this and that which the copies now exhibit.

V. 9. The Prophet which prophesieth of peace] Or, As for the Prophet (for the word is here put absolutely, as the like, Psalm 125 2. Chapter 26. 14) that prophesieth of peace, or prosperity: as ch. 29. 7. as thou Hananiah now dost, verse 3, 4. Heb. that shall prophesie unto, or of peace, as v. 8.

when the word of the Prophet] Or, that Prophet: as Chapter 25. 13.

shall come to pass, then shall the Prophet be known, that the Lord hath truly sent him.] Whether a Prophet prophesie of good or evil, hath the event of that which they foretell was that whereby they were to be tried, Deut. 18. 22. albeit God some time extraordinarily to try his people, suffer such things, as false Prophets also foretell, to fall out, Deut. 13. 1, 3. but then have Gods people another rule given them, whereby they may be discovered, to wit, by their doctrine brought to the touchstone of Gods written Word, and thereby examined, Esay 8. 20. But the Prophet here the rather applyeth the rule, to the Prophets of peace, such as this counterfeit; because people are wont more to give credit to such as prophesie what they desire,

V. 10. Then Hananiah the Prophet] As v. 1. Heb. And: as verse 9 took the yoke from off the Prophet Jeremiahs neck, and brake it.] The Yoke which by Gods appointment he had made, and did then wear. See Chapter 27. 2 whence it appereth that this was done about the time of that command by God there given unto the Prophets. Thus this wicked wretch, led away with ambition and covetise, and desirous to please the people, breaketh forth into this height of impiety and extremity of outrage, to pluck from the Prohhets neck that yoke, which God had enjoyned him to put on, and to breake that allunder, that he had commanded to be made; as one desperately bent to act directly contrary unto God himself in either; thereby as by a visible sign to justifie and confirm such lies, as against knowledge and conscience he had vented and to maintain his own credit and repute with those whose favor he affected. So the like, 1 Kings 22. 11, 24.

V. 11. And Hananiah spake in the presence of all the people,] Heb. to the eyes; as v. 1, 5. saying, Thus saith the Lord, Even so will I breake the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon from the neck of all nations within the space of two full years] Even as I now break this wooden yoke: see v 3, 4.

not enduring longer to hear him vent such gross falshood and lies in Gods name: as those, Esay 36. 20. having no further errand then to deliver to them from God; which yet afterward he had, verse 12.

V. 12. Then] Or, Moreover, Heb. And; as Esay 8. 1. for it it was not at the present.

the Word of the Lord came to Jeremiah the Prophet] Heb. was to him; as chap. 27. 1.

(after that Hananiah had broken the yoke from off the necke of the Prophet Jeremiah) saying,] See v. 10.

V. 13. Go and tell Hananiah, saying,] Heb. Going go, (as chap. 13. 1.) and thou shalt say to Hananiah, that is, say thou to him; as chap. 12. 2.

Thus saith the Lord, Thou hast broken the yoke of wood, but thou shalt make for them yokes of iron.] Heb. and (as chap. 27. 11.) thou shalt make (or do thou make, as before, say, thou Jeremy: for they seem out of the way, that apply it to Hananiah) instead of them (those wooden yokes, one of which he hath broken) yokes of iron; such as shall not so easily be broken: a type of a cruel, hard, and strong bondage; and such as cannot be shaken off, Deuteronomy 28. 48. this was all that he and they that gave credit to him should gain by that presumptuous and impious act of his, an improvement of their bonds. So Esay 28. 22. See also, Chapter, 36. 27, 28 32.

V. 14. For thus saith the Lord of Hosts the God of Israel] As Chap. 28. 4.

I have put a yoke of iron upon the neck of these Nations; that they may serve Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon;] Heb. I have given (as Esay 42. 1. I am resolved to do it) or I will put (as Chapter 31. 33.) a yoke of iron, or an iron-yoke (as verse 13) upon the neck of these Nations (of which v. 11.) to serve Nebuchadnezzar; as Psalm 102. 22.

and they shall serve him] Chap. 27. 7.

and I have given him the beasts of the field also.] Thereby implying, that all shall be his, and at his service: see Chap. 27. 6. Daniel 2. 48.

V. 15. Then said the Prophet Jeremiah unto Hananiah the Prophet] Or, Furthermore, as Chapter 14. 11. or, Also: The Prophet Jeremiah also said; as Chapter 27. 12. Heb. And Hear now Hananiah, The Lord hath not sent thee, but thou makest this people to trust in a lie.] See Chapter 27. 15. and 29. 9.

V. 16. Therefore thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will cast thee from off the face of the Earth,] Heb. Behold, I am casting thee from off the face of the Earth; as Gen. 6. 7. I will without any long delay, take thee away by death: the form of speech is thence taken, because the living keep above ground. Gen. 1. 29 & 61. whereas the dead usually are laid up in the earth, and lie under ground, Gen. 23. 4. Psalm 115 17.

this year shalt thou dy] Thou that telleſt lies of things that shall be within two years compleat, shalt not live so long thy self, v. 10. Heb. the year, for this year; as Esay 37. 30. so the day, for this day, chap. 1. 10, 18.

because thou hast taught rebellion against the Lord;] Heb. thou hast spoken (as Deut. 13 5. Chap. 19. 12.) revolt (as Chap. 5. 23. unto, or against, the Lord; as verse 8. because by thy lying tales thou hast hearkened and encouraged men to stand out against Gods Word, and against his admonitions and menaces by his Prophets. See chap 23. 17.

V. 17. So Hananiah the Prophet died the same year in the seventh moneth.] Heb. And, as Chap. 13. 2, 5. the same year. Heb. that year; as v. 1 in the seventh moneth; containing part of September, and part of October: whereby it appeareth that he survived not this presumptuous act of his, and the Prophets denunciation thereupon, full two moneths to an end. See v. 1. that which might yet have been to this people, both a sufficient conviction of his false and wicked dealing with them: and a strong confirmation of the truth of those things that by Jeremy had been delivered. But no thing could avail, or prevail with them, to bring them to repentance: (Such is the obstinacy of mans hard hearts,) untill by some gracious work upon it, it be altered and renewed: See Numb. 16. 41. Deut. 29. 3, 4. Ezek. 11. 13, 15. John 12. 37. The Jewish Doctors here tie us needless knots, and untie them again with groundless tales. They make question, how Hananiah died that year, when as the seventh moneth began the next year according to the civil account: and this difficulty, indeed none, to take away, they tell us, (the Chaldee Paraphrast hinting to them somewhat to that purpose) that he died indeed on the last day on the sixth moneth at Even, but gave in charge to his people, to conceal his death till the beginning of the seventh moneth, to make Jeremy a liar. But what need these fictions, when as the Prophets words are plain enough, and were true, what month sover he should die in. if he died within a twelvemonth after that denunciation: and much more, if he died ere the year then running were expired, according to either account, civil or sacred: this latter the rather; because the date of Prophecies, and of this, among the rest, were usually reckoned according to it. Besides, that this fabulous relation directly crosseth the Text, which saith, expressly, that he died in the seventh moneth.

CHAP. XXIX.

Verſ. 1. NOw these are the words of the letter, that Jeremiah sent from Jerusalem unto the residue of the Elders, which were carried away captive, and to the Priests, and to the Prophets, and to all the people, which Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon.] In this Chapter, as by the inscription of it, verse 1. —— 3. may appear, is related the sum and substance of a letter sent by Jeremy to the Jews that abode then in captivity in Babylon, wherein he perswadeth them to rest contented with their present estate, there, untill Gods time set for their deliverance should come, v. 4. —7. and not to hearken unto such Prophets, as should tell them of a more speedy enlargement, verse 8. 9. promiseth restitution of them upon their sincere return to God, when seventy years are expired, verſ. 10. —14. and denounceth judgements from God both upon the residue of that nation, who remained yet behind, v. 15 —20. and against two of the false Prophets that abode with them at Babylon, ver. 20. —23. together with a relation of a letter upon the receit of this, written back by one Shemajah, enciting some of the Priests to call Jeremy in question for it, with a denunciation of Gods vengeance upon him for the same, verse 24. —— 32.

Now] Heb. And; The copulative here used, not for connexion of this with any forego-ing relation; but to make introduction onely into the discourse here ensuing; as Ezra 1. 1. Jon. 1. 1.

the words] Matter or tenour; as Heb. 9. 31.

the letter] Heb. book; as 2 Kings 5. 5, 6. So ver. 25.

the residue of the Elders] So he speaketh, because some of them, in likelyhood, died by the way; and other of them, shortly after their access thither.

which were carried away captive] Heb. of the captivity; as Chapter 28. 4.

V. 2. (After that Jeconiah the King and Queen, and the Eunuchs, and the Princes of Judah and Jerusalem, and the Carpenters, and the Smiths were departed from Jerusalem)] See the like parenthesis, chap. 28. 12. and the very same for the most part of it, Chap. 24. 1. to which relation this also hath some reference: See v. 17. whereby it appeareth that this relation is of somewhat a later date than that.

the Queen] His mother, Chapter 13. 18. & 22. 26. 2 Kings 24. 12.

Eunuchs] Or, Officers, or, Chamberlains: See Gen. 39. 1. Esay 39 7.

V. 3. By the hand of Elasah the son of Saphan, and Gemariah the son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah King of Judah sent unto Babylon to Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, saying,] In what year of Zedekiahs reign, or upon what occasion these messengers were sent to Babylon, is not expressed. Some surmise, that judgement of God manifested in the hastned decease of that false Prophet, Hananiah, related chap. 28. 16, 17. Zedekiah being somewhat ditheartned, sent these men shortly after with his yearly tribute unto Babylon, the rather to remove at all suspicion of having any compliance with the Egyptian, or thought tending to the least disloyal carriage towards him, unto whom, having sailed him unto the crown, he had by oath obliged himself, Ezek. 17. 13.

by the hand of Elasah] Or, by Elasah; as Esay 37. 24. Chapter, 27. 3.

Elasah the son of Saphan] Of this name we find divers, 1 Chronicles, 2. 39, 40. & 8. 37. & 9. 43. Ezr. 10. 22. but all divers from this Elasah the son of Saphan: who whether he were brother to Ahikam before-mentioned, chap. 26. 24. is uncertain: there seeming to be sundry Saphans living in some place of note in those dayes.

Gemariah the son of Hilkiah] So described to distinguish him from another Gemariah the son of Saphan the Scribe, Chap. 36. 10. —— 12. not as if it were certain what Hilkiah this was, whose son this Gemariah is said to have been; divers about that time being of the same name: see chap. 1. 1.

saying] This word hath not reference to their message, but to Jeremies letter mentioned, ver. 1.

V. 4. Thus saith the Lord of Hosts the God of Israel,] As Chapter 27. 4.

unto all that are carried away captive] Heb. unto all the captivity; as ver. 1.

whom I have caused to be carried away from Jerusalem unto Babylon.] I the Lord whose work this was, Chap. 24. 5, Ezek. 11. 16. though effected by Nebuchadnezzar, chap. 25. 9. and procured by their sins, chap 1. 15, 16. & 4. 18.

V. 5. Build ye houses and dwell in them;] Or, that ye may dwell in them; as Genesis 35. 1. chap. 27. 11. a defect of the pronoun; as Chapter 6. 16. & 9. 10. or, to dwell in; and so there needs no supply.

and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them] Or, that ye may eat the fruit of them; as 1 Sam. 28. 22, 1 Kings 13. 15. and as before: or, the fruit thereof you may eat: the copulative with the demonstrative, for the relative; as chapter 17. 7. & 26. 23. & 28. 7. See verse 6.

V. 6. Take

V. 6. Take ye wives, and beget sons and daughters;] Or, that ye may beget sons and daughters; or on whom ye may beget such; contrary to the advice given to those that abide at Jerusalem, Chap. 16. 2.

and take wives for your sons, and give your daughters to husbands,] The power of parents intimated in this form of speech: as also, Deut. 7 3.

that they may bear sons and daughters] Heb. and they shall bear as chap. 4. 31. and 26. 3. Mal. 1. 9.

that ye may be increased there, and not diminished.] Heb. and multiply (as before, dwell and eat, verſ. 5.) there (to wit, at Babylon) and be not diminished.

V. 7. And seek the peace of the citie whither I have caused you to be carried captive, and pray unto God for it.] Or, Seek the welfare; as it is rendred, chap. 38. 4. Heb. seek after, or seek to God (for it is the same word that is used, Esai 55. 6. Ezek. 36. 37.) and pray to God for her (to wit, for Babylon; for the affix is feminine; howbeit they are willed and advised thus to do, not out of any special affection to that place, or State, as they are willed and said to seek the welfare of Jerusalem, Psal. 122. 6 —— 9. but in regard of their own interest and share in the common rest and quietnesse, during the time of their abode there, that they might with lesse molestation and distraction patiently expect the time of deliverance. For otherwise they were to pray for the downfall of Babylon, when the time by God thereunto designed should come Psal. 137. 8, 9. ch. 51. 35. as for that, whereat not they alone, but the whole world should rejoyce. See Esai 14. 4.

for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace.] Your own welfare while ye abide there is enwrapped in the rest, quiet, and welfare of that State, as of passengers in the welfare of the vessel, wherein they are embarked.

V. 8. For thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel,] As verse 4.

Let not your Prophets and your diviners that are in the midst of you, deceive you,] in the midst of you, or, among you: as chap. 39. 14. to wit, at Babylon: as verse 15. 1. See chap. 27. 9, 15. and 23. 26.

neither hearken to your dreams, which ye cause to be dreamed] Or, which ye dream: those fancies which ye conceive within your selves, of some speedy delivery, which are indeed no better than dreams: or, which ye make (your dreamers) to dream, (a form, though irregular, yet whereof a parallel is found, 2 Chron. 28. 23.) by giving heed to them; which if ye did not, they would not dream them. Yet the words may well be rendred, as some do, neither hearken to your dreamers (your men of dreams, your dreamwrights) whom (by listning unto) ye make to dream; ye give occasion and encouragement to devise dreams, wherewith to delude you. See Chap. 27. 9. Of these dreams also, Chap. 23. 25-28.

V. 9. For they prophesie falsly unto you in my name] Heb. they prophesie in a lie: as chap. 27. 15.

I have not sent them, saith the Lord,] So chap. 14. 14. and 23. 21. and 27. 15. and 28. 15.

V. 10. For thus saith the Lord, that after seventy years be accomplished at Babylon, Or, but (as Chap. 14. 12. 13. thus hath the Lord said, (as opposing what God himself had indeed said to their lying relations fathered on him) that after seventy years accomplished at Babylon: nor before, nor sooner, as your Prophets bear you in hand, and diviners and dreamers falsly enform you, chap. 28. 3. verſ. 8. 15. of these seventy years, which by this place appear to commence from the time of their deportation, whom the Prophet wrote this letter to, see on chap 25 12. Heb. saith the learned Scholiast, according to, or at the mouth filling, of seventy years: but the term that he rendreth month, is nothing but a syllabical adjection, joyned frequently, both with this as Exod. 16 21. Num. 6. 21. and 7. 5, 6. and with other prepositions of the like nature with it; as 1 King. 17. 1. Prov. 27. 22. than which also in the Rabbines Commentaries nothing is more rife.

I will visit you] In mercy and for good: as Ruth 1, 6. chap. 27. 22. Luke 1. 68.

and perform my good word toward you, in causing you to return to this place] Heb. to cause you to return, or to bring you back. See the like, chap. 18. 15. and 28. 6.

V. 11. For I know the thoughts that I think towards you saith the Lord, thoughts of peace, and not of evil;] I well know what my purposes are concerning you: not such as concern your evil, but your welfare and prosperity; peace: as before, verſ. 7. See Esai 55. 8. Act. 15. 18.

not of evil] Heb. not to evils: such as may tend to your hurt; as chap. 38. 4.

to give you an expected end] Or, in giving you (as before v. 9) an expected end: in not failing your expectation. Heb an end and expectation. Such an end as your selves hope for, desire, and expect. Of the form of speech, see on Esai 4. 5. Some render it, an end and an end of expectation; which cometh much up to the former. Howbeit, whereas by end they would have understood a reward; (because the word is so used Prov. 23. 18.) and so also expound that 1 Pet. 1. 9. receiving the end (that is, the reward) of your faith: end, for, reward; because the reward cometh usually at the end. I suppose over-nice, and unnecessary, either in the one place, or in the other, though of reward some mention be made in this argument, Chap. 31. 16. but I conceive the end, or issue onely to be here intended. See Psal. 9. 18. and 37. 37.

V. 12. Then shall ye call upon me, and go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you.] Then, Heb. And: as chap. 28 5, 9 go and pray; or go to pray: addreſſe and fet your selves seriously thereunto: as did Daniel, Dan. 3. 9. See the like promise made, Esai 65. 24. prefled by Daniel; and performed by God, Dan. 9. 17 19 23. and 10. 2.

V. 13. And ye shall seek me and find me,] A defect of the pronoun in the latter sprig, supplied from the former: as Psalm 139. 1. Chap. 15. 16. but it may well be rendred without the supply; Ye shall seek me and finde: not misse, or fail of what ye seek for, Esai 45. 19. Mat. 7. 7, 8.

when ye shall search for me with all your heart,] Or, because you shall seek unto me (as Ezek. 36. 37.) with all your heart: Psal. 119. 2. that is, sincerely and entirely. See Chap. 4. 7. Deut. 4. 29. being thoughtly humbled by your fore-palled afflictions, for all your former transgressions and rebellions against me, Levit. 26. 40, 41. Ezek. 6. 9. and 36. 31.

V. 14. And I will be found of you, saith the Lord] As Psal. 32. 6. Esai 55. 6. and 56. 1. A speech borrowed from those that are willing to be spoken with by those that repair to them for advice, aid, or relief.

and I will turn away your captivity,] Or, bring back, or turn again; as Psal. 14. 7. and 126. 1. captivity, for, captives: those of you, that are in captivity. So ver. 1. 4. See chap. 30. 3.

and I will gather you from all the nations, and from all the places, whither I have driven you, saith the Lord] Heb. which I have driven you there, or thither: as chap. 13. 7. See the like promise, Deut. 30. 3. Esai 11. 11, 12. Ezek. 11. 16, 17. and 20. 34, 41.

and I will bring you again into the place, whence I have caused you to be carried away captive] Or, from whence I had transported you. Heb. which from there; as before. See Chap. 24. 6. and 32. 37.

V. 15. Because ye have said, Or, Because ye say. The Prophet here turneth his speech from them, at least, from the well-affected among them, and the gracious promises of good intended by God to them, unto those that listned unto the false Prophets among them, whom he had given them warning of before, verse 8. and unto those more especially that remained yet at Jerusalem; foretelling how God intended to deal with them, howsoever their false Prophets gave them affurance of the contrary, ver. 16 —— 19. and withall what should befall those false Prophets abiding with them at Babylon, ver. 20 -----23.

The Lord hath raised up Prophets in Babylon] Some Interpreters here depart from the received both reading and interpretation of this verse, rendring the words on this wise, as depending upon ver. 14. without reference to what ensueth; Then will I deal thus with you, when ye shall say, (that is, acknowledge) The Lord did indeed raise us up Prophets, (who told us) that we should be carried captive to Babylon: like that, Ezek. 2. 5. and 33 33. But this forced expofition they seem to have pitcht upon, in regard of that word, the termination whereof commonly importeth motion to a place, rather than of abode in it: but that couple may eaſily be removed, for divers places may be produced, wherein words so formed, are used in this latter notion: as here, to Babylon, for, in Babylon: so, to teach the earth, for, on the earth, Gen. 28. 13. and, to the altar, for, on the altar, Exod. 29. 13, 16. Lev. 16. 25. and, to the North, for, in the North, Chap. 46. 6, 10. as it is afterward there expounded: and this cleared. there is nothing left, that may perswade much leſs enforce us, to depart from the received interpretation of the place. See further on ver. 16. Because some among you are over-prone to heed these counterfeits, to wit, Ahab, Zedekiah, and Shemajah the dreamer, ver. 21. 24. hear how far it shall be from that which they would make you believe concerning the dissolution of your captivity, and your speedy return into your countrey; that those who remain yet there as liberty, shall within a shore time be transported and brought over unto you, after they have sustained much misery at home, ver. 17. 18.

V. 16. Know that thus saith the Lord,] This supply, I supposse, is needleſſe. The particle that beginneth the verse is in the original of various use, and the old Latine, which many herein follow, renders it, because or, For: which some thus knit on to the former relation; as if the Prophet had said, I have told you what God saith, but you listen to other Prophets who have brought you to Babylon, and are so far from furthering your delivery thence, that they would rather help to bring you thither, if you were at liberty in your own countrey; for thus saith the Lord concerning those that yet remain there. And this coherence would do very well, if the words of the foregoing verse would admit the sense here given them; which I see not how it can, even by any force, be wrung from them: and for that which seemeth to have put these also upon such tentering and torturing of the Text, enough hath been said before. The particle being rendred, Therefore; Therefore thus saith the Lord; as answering to that, Because ye say, verſe 15. the context will run on fairly and clearly, without need of help from any either superfluous supply; or over-strained coherence. So an Interpreter of prime note tendereth it: and so is the particle used, Psal. 116. 10. compared with 2 Cor. 4. 13. and in this Prophesie, Chap. 16. 5. and 20. 9.

of the King that sitteth upon the throne of David,] Of Zedekiah, verse 3. whom Davids throne shall not secure. See Chap. 22. 2.

and of all the people that dwelleth in this citie, and of your brethren that are not gone forth with you into captivity] dwelleth, or abide, remain: as Chap. 39. 14. and, even (as Esai 35. 4.) your brethren that went not forth with you into captivity; but were left behinde with Zedekiah, Chap. 24. 8.

V. 17. Thus saith the Lord of hosts,] This attribute is added to give the more emphasis to the menace subjoyned.

Behold. I will send upon them the sword, the famine, and the pestilence,] Chap. 24. 10. and 27. 8. so that they shall be in worse case at Jerusalem, than you are in Babylon.

and will make them like vile figs that cannot be eaten, they are so evil! Or, so bad, so naught. See Chap. 24. 8. and hence it seemeth to appear, that this prophesie, or epistle was penned and delivered some space of time after that there related.

make them] Heb. give them: as Chap. 9. 10. or I will deal with them: as Hosea 11. 8. How should I deal with thee. So the words would there be rendred; and so here: for God made them not so vile and bad; but they by their wickednesse having made them selves such, God justly resolveth to deal with them, as men are wont to do with such vile fruit, and rotten stuff, as is good for nothing but the dung-hill: the word rendred vile, is no where else in the concrete, or adjective, but in the abstract, or substantive Chap. 5. 30. and 18. 12. and 25. 14. See there.

V. 18. And I will persecute them,] Or, pursue them: the fitter term here: and so Psal. 35. 6. and 83. 15.

with the sword, and with the famine, and with the pestilence] As verse 17. with these evils will I follow them, whithersoever they go, and wheresoever they become. See Chap. 42. 16, 17. and 44. 12, 13.

and will deliver them to be removed to all the Kingdoms of the earth,] So Deut. 28. 25. 2 Chr. 29 8. See Chap. 15. 4. and 24. 9.

to be a curse and an astonishment, and an hissing, and a reproach] Heb. for a curse, &c. as Chap. 24. 9. and 25. 4 and 34. 17.

among all the nations whither I have driven them] As verse 14. or whither I shall drive them: as chap. 24. 9.

V. 19. Because they have not hearkened unto my voice, saith the Lord, which I sent unto them, by my servants the Prophets, rising early and sending them, but ye would not hear saith the Lord.] See chap 7. 23-26. and 11. 7, 8 and 13. 11. and 17. 23 and 25. 4. a pallage from person to person: as chap. 23. 4. 5. 17.

V. 20. Hear ye therefore the word of the Lord all ye of the captivity, whom I have sent from Jerusalem to Babylon.] Or, Hear ye also Unto you of the captivity I now turn my speech again, to let you know from God, what will shortly befall those your Prophets, unto whom some among you give too much credit, through the just judgement of God upon them. Heb. And hear ye (and, for, also: as verse 24. chap. 1. 3. and 14. 6) all the captivity, or the whole captivity: captivity, for, captives; as verse 1. 4.

I have sent] See chap 24. 5. verse 4. 7. 14.

V. 21. Thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel,] As verse 4. of Ahab the son of Kolaiah,] Or, Achab; as the Greek rendreth it: and so Achaz. See Esai 1. 1. Of this man and his parentage there is no mention elsewhere. Some ridiculous stories the Talmudists tell us of loose pranks played by him and his companion here mentioned, not worthy the recital.

and he shall slay them before your eyes.] That your selves may be eye-witnesses of Gods just judgement upon them, in that cruel death that the King of Babylon shall put them to, as from Gods mouth I now foretell you.

V. 22. And of them] Or, From them.

Shall be taken up a curse] This shall they leave their names for a curse, Esai 65. 15.

by all the captivity that are in Babylon] Or, captives: as verse 1. 20. those of their own nation.

saying, The Lord make thee like Zedekiah, and like Ahab, whom the King of Babylon roasted in the fire.] Or, burnt with fire: but it may seem by the use of the participle and verbals of it, applied to green corn parched with the fire, Lev. 2. 14. (for the verb it self is found onely in this place) that it importeth a putting of men to torment, and so to death, by a slow roasting or scorching of them with fire, so as they are not suddenly confumed, or slain with it, but endure much extremity of pain therewith ere they die: and such a kinde of death, it is very probable that these two wicked wretches did by that Heathen Kings appointement endure; being a kind of death not unusuall among the Chaldeans, Dan. 3. 6. 21. for venting such things as might cause disturbance in the State. Heb. whom he roasted them: an elegant redundancy very frequent in Heb. as Psalm 1. 4.

V. 23. Because they have committed villany in Israel,] The reason is here rendred, not so much, wherefore the King of Babylon burnt them, as for which God in his secret providence, and by his just judgement so disposed of them that they should fall into his hands, and be so handled by him: villany, or folly: the form is used commonly of corporal filthinesse and uncleannesse. See Genes. 34. 7. Deut. 22. 21. 2 Sam. 13. 12, 12.

and have committed adultery with their neighbours wives,] Or, in committing adultery with their neighbours wives: herein concurring with those of the same stamp with them at Jerusalem, Chap. 23. 14. where another word is used instead of that rendred villany here, that signifieth vilenesse; whereof those vile figs verse 17. The like syntax, Ice Esai 31. 5. Chap. 6. 13. and 8. 6. and 9. 19.

and have spoken lying words in my name, which I have not commanded them,] Chap. 14. 14. and 23. 21, 32. verf. 9. 21. Heb. a word of falsehood, or a false thing: as Prov. 13. 5.

So chap. 7. 11. and 13. 27. and 23. 13, 14. See those generals, Job 24. 15, with 34. 21, 22. Prov. 5. 20, 21. and 15. 3, 11, chap. 17. 9, 10.

a witnesse] Both judge and witnesse: no other shall need both to convict and condemne them for these their carriages. See Mal. 3. 5.

V. 24. Thus shalt thou also speak to Shemaiah the Nehelamite, saying,] Or, say thus also. Heb. And thus shalt thou say: as verse 20. Chap. 27. 4. This latter part of the Chapter containeth a relation of a latter date than the former: in likelyhood after the return of those messengers, mentioned verse 3. back from Babylon, concerning Shemaiah, who had given information by letters from thence, of that which Jeremy had written unto his countreymen at Babylon; with an heavy doom by God passed upon him for the same.

Shemaiah the Nehelamite] Or, dreamer: for such a notion the word hath in it. Which whether it have any reference to some place of his birth, or abode in time past, or to his parentage and descent, is uncertain: though it bear the name of such a kinde of appellation whereby men are usually described from their countrey, citie, descent, parentage, kindred, and the like: but it may seem to have been a term coined or purpose to intimate his profession and practice: as if we would say, one of dream-land one of the house, or lineage of dream-wights: for he was one of those in likelyhood that professed and practised that special kinde of imposture, whereof, see verse 8. Chap. 23. 25, 32. and 27. 9. yet seemeth there not to be any probability of that, which a Writer of special note hath that he should be a Nahamite, one of the stock and lineage of that Nabam, mentioned 1 Chronicles 4. 19. and by insertion of a letter, so termed as here, for some glance at this his practice.

V. 25. Thus speaketh the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel,] As verse 21.

saying, because thou hast sent letters in thy name unto all the people that are in Jerusalem, and to Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the Priest, and to all the Priests, saying.] Letters. Heb. books. So verse 1. books, for, letters: and it may seem that he wrote, and sent more than one: though the sum of that one to Zephaniah be here onely related, verse 26-28. which yet seems to have been directed by name indeed to him, but withall, to the rest of the Priests together with him See verse 26.

in thy name] Or, thine own name, (as, thine own way, chap. 4. 18.) of thine own head; without warrant, or commission from me. So Joh 5 43. if another come in his own name.

Zephaniah] The second under Serajah, who was then High-Priest, chap. 52. 24.

the son of Maaseiah] Not the immediate son of this Maaseiah; as it is not unlikely that Zedekiah the false Prophet was to one of that name verse 21. but of the ifsue and family of Maaseiah, and a Priest of that course, whereof Maaseiah was as first the head. See chap. 21. 1.

V. 26 The Lord hath made thee Priest in the stead of Jehojada the Priest, that ye should be officers in the house of the Lord, for every one that is mad and maketh himself a Prophet, that thou shouldst put him in prison and in the stocks.] Of this Jehojada, by whose example this flattering parasite would encite Zephaniah, as one endued with his spirit of zeal for Gods glory and the good of his house, to proceed with all severity and rigor against Gods own Minister & messenger for no other matter than the free and faithfull delivery of his Masters message, see 2 Kings 11. and 12. Thus there is no act so injurious, or impious, but that wicked wretches and false Prophets will not onely attempt it against such as out of conscience and duty to God either crosse and oppose them, or refuse to comply with them in their corrupt courses and carriages; but colour it also, so with some specious pretence of piety and zeal for Gods glorie. See Esai 66. 5. Joh. 16. 2. and 19. 7.

made thee Priest] Heb. given thee to be Priest: as chap. 1. 5. and 6. 27.

instead of Jehojada] Hence doth one of the Jewish Commenters gather, that Zephaniah was High-Priest, as Jehojada was: but the contrary was before shewed from chap 52. 24. So also, 2 King. 25. 18. nor was that therefore the reason why he mentioneth Jehojada; but as pretending Zephaniah to be for spirit and zeal such another as he: as John Baptist is said to have had the spirit and power of Elias; and hath his name therefore given him, Mal. 4. 5. Mat. 11. 10, 14. Luke 1. 17. and 7. 27.

ye should be officers] Or, overseers. See chap. 20. 1. thou and the rest of the Priests unto whom also together with him this letter seems to have been directed, verf. 25. So the Jewish Doctor here. Howbeit, the Text may rather be rendred, that there might be officers; for that ye is not in the Text: thou being at present the second under the chief Priest, who it may be is either through infirmity of body, or some other employment, restrained from looking after these matters as he should, oughtest to take care that there be not a fail of such officers as may be assistant to thee for the restraining and punishing of such counterfeits as this Jeremy: to which purpose he may seem also to make mention of Jehojada, who disposed and appointed officers in several places to be assistant to him in the setling of the State, 2 King. 11. 4. in the house of the Lord,] A defect of the particle in, as 2 King. 18. 15.

that is mad and maketh himself a Prophet] Or, every madman (so have Gods messengers been from time to time deemed, 2 King. 9. 11. Act. 26. 24.) that feigneth himself a Prophet; that in a mad fit, or a frantick humour acteth the part of a Prophet, when as indeed he is not: for these reciprocal forms in Hebrew have oft times a notion of counterfeiting in them: so make thy self sick, for, feign thy self to be sick, 2 Sam. 13. 5. and, make thy self mourn, for, feign thy self to be a mourner, 2 Sam. 14. 2. and, making, that is, feigning her self to be a stranger, or some other, 1 King. 14. 2. and, he made, that is, feigned himself mad, 1 Sam. 21. 13. The like the Captains charged Jeremy with, when he crossed them in their design, chap. 43. 2.

that thou shouldest put him] Heb. and (as verf. 6.) thou shalt give him; as chap. 20. 2.

in prison] As Pashur had before done, chap 20. 2. of the word here also used, see there: nor was there any ground to render it stocks there, and prison here.

and in the stocks.] Thus this beast, not content to have Gods Prophet imprisoned, or to dealt with as Pashur had formerly done; but would have him yet more contumeliously abused, and further extremity to be exercised on him. That the term here used, signifieth some engin used for stricter restraint, or painfull torture is generally agreed; but of what kinde, or in what manner, is not easily determined. One of the Jewish Doctors expoundeth it by a word that signifieth in the first place the stock of a tree, and from thence the stocks t which we commonly so term; as our version here rendreth it; so used by the n in that common proverb with them, The workman striketh in the stocks of his own making: but another of them reflech us that it is an engine of iron for the hands: whence some render it manicles; adding withall, that the term cometh from an Arabick word, that signifies to straiten, or pinch in. A learned Interpreter rendreth it in the skif, and would have it to be a wo d compounded of t o terms; the one signifying a skif, or boat; the other having a notion of sucking: fuppoling by it to be underftood fuch a kinde of engine invented to put men to cruel pains, as Plutarch in the life of Artaxerxes reporteth to have been in use among the Perfians: this he defcribeth to have consisted of two hollow frames made boat-wife, of equal size, between which the whole body of man being close shut up, his head, hands, and legs onely extant, at places fitted and left open for that purpose: the party fo enclosed is, to prolong his pains, and encrease his misery, through the nasty plight, and that he muft of neceffity be in they enforced to eat; and inftead of drink, to take in milk mixed with honey: which, faith this learned Interpreter, the Hebrews termed, the fucking-skif: and becaufe it might be objected, that this favage and cruel courfe of torment is not found to have been in ufe among the Jews, (though another late Writer affirmeth, that it was at leaft known to them) to prevent this, he fubjoyneth, that the Jews ufed this term for any the ftricteft and painfulleft courfe of reftraint. But to me the notation of the term feems ove far-fetcht: nor is any proof brought of the word fo ufed: it is no where found in Scripture fave in this place: nor do I finde any place produced fave the Chaldee here, wherein mention is made thereof in the writings of their Rabbines: nor are themfelves, as ye fee, agreed upon the fignification of it in particular; whi h cannot therefore, I fuppofe, with any certainty be determined.

V. 27. Now therefore why hast thou not proved Jeremiah of Anathoth, which maketh himself a Prophet to you?] Heb. And now (as chap. 27. 9.) why hast thou not rebuked? as it is commonly rendred; that is, taken him up, and reftrained him: for the word is ufed moft commonly, of an active, as well as of a verbal rebuke, Ruth. 2. 16. Pfal. 9. 5. and 68. 30. and 76. 6. and 106. 9.

CHAP. XXX.

Verſ. 1. The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying,] This inſcription (the like whereunto ſee Chap. 18. 1.) extendeth it ſelf unto that entire Sermon, or Prophecy laid down in this Chapter and the next, conſiſting both mainly of gracious promiſes concerning the reſtitution of Gods people.

V. 2. Thus speaketh the Lord of Israel, saying, Write thee all the words that I have spoken to thee in a book.] In theſe words is a ſpecial charge given by God to the Prophet, either to gather together thoſe Prophecies that he had formerly delivered unto him, or to enter thoſe upon record that he ſhould at preſent acquaint him with, being of the ſame ſubject, and to engroſſe them, and make them up in a book; thoſe of them eſpecially which concerned the future welfare of Gods people, that they might not be loſt, but remain to poſterity, and that the faithfull might have them wherewith to ſupport their faith, and keep up their ſpirits in an hopefull expectation of Gods goodneſſe intend to them, during the time of their long captivity. So Habb. 2. 2.

V. 3. For lo the dayes come, saith the Lord, that I will bring again the captivity of Israel, and Judah, saith the Lord:] The reason for which he would have this book written, to wit, to make his people from time to time of his mercy intended to them: which he taketh occasion also thereby at large here to relate.

lo the dayes come,] Heb. Behold, the dayes coming: as chap. 23. 5. to be seen with the eye of faith, Joh. 8. 56. 2 Cor. 4. 18. Heb. 11. 13. and as sure to come, as if coming, yea, or come already, Hab. 2. 3. Heb. to. 37, 38.

bring again the captivity] So Chap. 22. 27. and 29. 10, 14. there is an elegant consonancy and vincinity of sound between the verb and the noun here uled: that which occasioned a miſtake in the old Latine, rendring the words as if both belonged to one root, I will convert your conversion: which albeit, it be a palpable miſtake, and the same verſion elſewhere render it aright; yet divers Popiſh, even learned Interpreters admit, and defcant upon, as found and genuine. The word moſt commonly uſed in ſcripture here uſed is intransitive, and ſignifieth to return: but in this frame of ſpeech ſeems rather to be uſed for to reduce, as here, ſo verſ. 18. and Pſal. 85. 1, 4. V. 4. And these are the words, that the Lord spake concerning Israel, and concerning Judah.] Or. Now (as Chap. 29. 1.) these are those things (as verſ. 1.) that the Lord had ſpoken: as Gen. 12. 1. if we ſuppoſe it to have reference to former prophecies: otherwiſe it ſeemeth to relate to what at preſent was delivered; as the Jewiſh Doctors underſtand the words of the charge before related, verſ. 2. which to reconcile, we may with good ground ſay, that what here followeth is the main matter, ſum, and ſubſtance of all that God had formerly revealed at ſeveral times unto Jeremy concerning the deliverance and reſtitution of his people: for by words in the charge ſeems to be imported, as Chap. 29. 1. not ſo much the preciſe terms themſelves, as the matter therein compriſed.

V. 5. For thus saith the Lord,] Or, Thus then, or, Therefore, (as Chap. 29. 16.) hath the Lord ſaid: for there is no reaſon here rendred of ought foregoing, but a paſſage onely unto the relation of that matter, that was to be recorded.

we have heard a voice of trembling, of fear; and not of peace.] Or, as ſome render it, (which the Hebrew pauſes favour, and which way the ancient Greek goeth) fear there is, but peace is not, or, there is no peace: as Chap. 8. 11. This ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, whom not a few of ours concur with, underſtand of the dayes of the Meſſia, and thoſe of the expedition of Gog and Magog, Ezek. 38. theſe of the troubles raiſed in the world in way of oppoſition to Chriſtian profeſſion, Mat. 10. 30. 34. Luke 12. 49, 51. But the founder fort of ours and theirs conceive the times intended of the Babylonian Invaſion, when the Chaldeans by their approach to Jeruſalem, and the aſſaults thereof much more, filled all places thereabout with terrour and dread, Chap. 4. 9. and 6. 4. beforehand mentioned, to ſhew how they ſhould then be roufed up out of that ſleep of ſecurity, wherewith the falſe Prophets at preſent by preaching and promiſing nothing but peace to them, had ſo deeply poſſeſſed them, that Gods Prophets could hardly wake them out of it, Chap. 14. 13. for thoſe ſeem to ſtray fartheſt from the ſcope of the place, who expound it of the Medes and Perſians invading the Babylonian State, and ſtriking a grievous terrour into the Chaldeans, Iſai 13. 8.

V. 6. Ask ye now and see whether a man doth travel with child:] The old Latine here rendreth the words ſenſleſly, Ask and ſee, if a man begetswhereas the Jewiſh Doctor noteth aright upon the place, that the man begetteth, the woman beareth, or bringeth forth: and ſo the Text is word for word here, Demand, or Enquire now and ſee, if, or whether, (as Chap. 2. 28.) a male bear, or bring forth: or as it may well be rendred, Enquire now and ſee: doth a male bear? or bring forth? make enquiry and try, whether it were ever ſeen, or known, that a man, or male, (ſo Iſai 66. 7.) brought forth.

wherefore do I see every man with his hands on his loins, as a woman in travel?] Why do men generally, even the ſtouteſt and hardieſt, ſeem to be affected, as if like women, they were in travel? See the like demand, chap 46. 5.

every man] The word here uſed, ſignifies according to the notation of it, a ſtrong, or mighty man. See Eſai 22. 17. chap. 31. 22. not the feeble and the faint-hearted only, but the ſtrong & ſtout-hearted ones.

with their hands on their loins] The wonted poſture and geſture of women in travel, ſtriving and ſtraining themſelves to get eaſe of their pains.

and all faces are turned into paleneſſe?] As is wont to be in extreamity of fear, Joel 2. 6. the word properly implieth the colour of corn blaſted, Deut. 28. 22. the old Latine rendreth it by a word that ſignifieth the diſeaſe commonly termed the yellow jaundiſe.

V. 7. Alas, for that day is great, ſo that none is like it:] Or, Surely, (as chap. 22. 22. and 23. 8.) that day will be ſo great a day, (to wit, for calamity and miſery: as Joel. 2. 31.) as none hath been like unto it; or as the like unto it hath not been. V. 9. But they ſhall ſerve the Lord their God,] More freely and more cheerfully than formerly, they did, or could, when ſuch ſtrange Lords and Maſters domineered over them, under whom they were captives. See Deut. 28. 47, 48. Pſalm 137. 4. Eſai 26. 13. a bleſſed alteration; whereby they ſhould make ſuch an exchange, inſtead of harſh and cruel Maſters, Eſai 19. 4. to ſerve a moſt milde, mercifull, kinde, bountifull, Lord, in a moſt free, holy, honeſt, and honourable ſervice. See 2 Chr. 12. 8. Hoſ. 3. 5. Luke 1. 74, 75. Rom. 6. 19, 23. 1 Cor. 7. 22. But. Heb. And. as chap. 28. 12.

and David their King, whom I will raiſe up to them.] Such of Davids lineage, as I ſhall from time to time ſet over them: the name of David, fay ſome, uſed of ſuch as ſucceeded him in the government of Judah, called the Throne of David, chap. 22. 2. and 29. 16. as the title of Pharaoh of the Egyptian Kings anciently, of Ptolomy in latter times: fulfilled in Zorobabel and others after the captiviy, Hag. 2. 23. but moſt abſolutely accompliſhed in the Meſſias, of whom they were types, who came of the ſtock of David, Eſai 11. 1. 10. Matth. 1. 1. Rom. 1. 3. and was for ever to ſit on the Throne of David, Luke 1. 32, 33. See Ezek. 34. 23. and 37. 24. And of him both the Chaldee and Jewiſh Doctors expound it. See Hoſea 3. 5.

raiſe up] The term uſed, as of the Judges and deliverers of that people after Joſhua's dayes, Judg. 2. 16. and 3. 9. ſo of Chriſt more ſpecially, Luke 1. 69 Act. 2. 30. and 13. 23, 33.

V. 10. Therefore fear thou not. O my ſervant Jacob, ſaith the Lord; neither be diſmayed, O Iſrael.] Be not utterly diſcouraged and diſheartened in regard of thy preſent dejected and diſtreſſed eſtate: for he ſpeaks unto them now as under captivity. See the like ſpeeches of encouragement, Eſai 41. 8, 10, 13. and 43. 5. and 44. 2. chap. 46. 27. Jacob and Iſrael here, one and the ſame; as in the places cited.

for lo, I will ſave thee from afar, and thy ſeed from the land of their captivity;] Heb. lo I am ſaving thee; I intend and promiſe in due time to ſave thee; that is, to bring thee ſafe from afar: out of the fartheſt parts whereunto ye have been, or ſhall be driven and diſperſed. So Zach 8. 7. I will ſave my people (that is, bring them ſafe) from the Eaſt lands, and from the Weſt: and Act. 24. 44. they were all ſaved (that is, came all ſafe) to land.

thee and thy ſeed] Them and their children; or thee, Jacob, (as if he ſpake to him as one yet ſurviving) and thy ſeed, or poſterity: which in effect will be one and the ſame. See the like, Eſai 44. 2, 3.

from the land of their captivity] From Chaldea, where moſt of them remained captives, ſaid to be a far country, Eſai 39. 3. or land, put collectively, for, lands; whereſoever they ſhould be in captivity: the land of one captivity; as 1 Chr. 6. 36, 38. chap 46. 27. wherein one is captive: as, the land of his nativity; where he was born, Gen. 11. 28. and 24. 7. and 31. 13.

and Jacob ſhall return, and ſhall reſt and be quiet] The poſterity of Jacob, as before, ſhall return to their own land again: as verſe 3. and enjoy it quietly; or ſhall again reſt and be quiet: to return and reſt, for, to reſt again: as, to return and dig, for, to dig again, Genel. 26. 18. to return and tempt, for, to tempt again, Pſalm 78. 41.

and none ſhall make him afraid.] Heb. and there ſhall be no frighter: as Lev. 26. 6. Ezek. 34. 28. none that ſhall invade them, or diſturb their quiet and peaceable poſſeſſion.

V. 11. For I am with thee, ſaith the Lord, to ſave thee:] As Chap. 15. 20. to preſerve and ſupport thee in thy preſent difficulties, and to give a good iſſue to them, and deliver thee out of them in due time. So Eſai 41. 10, 12. and 43. 1, 2. Ezek. 11. 16, 17.

though I make a full end of all nations whither I have ſcattered thee; yet will I not make a full end of thee:] See on Chap. 5. 10, 18. So Amos 9 8.

but I will correct thee in meaſure,] Heb. and: (as verſe 9.) I will chaſtiſe thee to judgement, or according to judgement: with diſcretion and moderation. So is the word uſed, Pſalm 6. 1. and 112. 5. chap. 10. 24. I will deal by way of chaſtiſement, in another ſort, in a milder and more temperate manner with thee, then with others; far for meaſure beneath that, which I intend to do unto thine enemies. See Eſai 26. 14, 19. and 27. 7, 8.

and will not leave thee altogether unpuniſhed,] Heb. acquitting acquit thee: as Exod 34. 7. Num. 14. 18. Nah. 1. 3. Chap. 25. 29. The old Latine rendreth it, that thou mayeſt not deem thy ſelf guiltleſſe; but I ſee not how the words can yield it. And whereas a learned Writer would have it rendred, I will not cutting off cut thee off, I ſuppoſe the word is no where found ſo uſed; it ough he affirm it: but producing no clear place for ſuch uſe of it: for that Zach 5. 3. elſewhere produced by him, is queſtionable, and by divers of good note otherwiſe rendred. Others of the Jewiſh Criticks would have it here taken in a notion of ſweeping away, and deſtroying; because by ſweeping away and caſting out of duſt and dirt, an houſe is ſaid to be cleanſed and purged: of which uſe of the word, ſee on Eſai 3. 26. But this alſo ſeemeth too far fetcht; the uſe of the form ſo oft uſed elſewhere, carrying it ſtrongly the other and plainer way. See this whole paſſage again repeated, chap. 46. 28.

V. 12. For thus ſaith the Lord, Thy bruiſe is incurable] Heb. Mortal, or deſperate to thy breach, or rupture; but the particle ſeemeth vacant here; as chap 18. 19. and 40. 2. deadly, or deſperate. See Chap. 15, 18. in regard of humane hopes, or helps; ſuch as God alone is able to help and heal, Hoſ. 5. 13. and 6. 1. Mic. 1. 9. Their condition by reaſon of their long captivity, Chap. 29. 18. ſeemed deſperate and paſt all hope of cure, Ezek 37. 11.

and thy wound is grievous.] Heb. thy ſtroke (wherewith I have ſtrucken thee) grievous. See chap. 14. 17. and yet nothing like ſo grievous as that wherewith he had ſtruck, or intended to ſtrike thoſe, by whom he had ſtricken them, Eſai 27. 7.

V. 13. There is none to plead thy cauſe,] Heb. there is none judging, or deciding, thy judgement, or controverſie: that offereth to debate, and decide thy cauſe aright, that juſtice may be done thee, and reparatins made for the wrong that hath been offered thee. See Eſai 40. 27. verſ 15.

that thou mayeſt be bound up;] Or. for binding up: as the margent rendreth it: ſo it ſhould be a term borrowed from the binding up of wounds, for the cloſing of them: as the like is Eſai 1. 6. and 3. 7. but the word rather may ſeem to ſignifie unto compreſſion, or cruſhing out: and ſo it ſhould be a metaphor, taken from the cruſhing out of ſuch corrupt mature, as feſtred ſores are peſtered with, and muſt be voided, ere any ſound cure can be had; whereunto therefore way is wont to be made by the cruſhing of it out: that which ſeemeth alluded unto in another word uſed alſo, Eſai 1. 6. and because either of theſe actions tend to cure, moſt ſo render it, unto cure, or healing. Howbeit, becauſe the word ſeems elſewhere uſed for an ulcer, or ſore, that needeth and requireth ſuch compreſſion, or cruſhing, Hoſea 5. 13. Obad. 7. ſome render the text, there is none that judgeth thy cauſe, concerning thy ſore. And one of the Jewiſh Doctors ſeems to go ſomewhat this way, though rendring the word rather for healing, or cure, yet thus expounding the text, There is none that can give any judgement, or paſſe any doom, concerning help, or healing that may be had for thine hurt, they ſay all, there is no cure, no help for it: for he ſuppoſeth the words following to be conceived as the ſpeech of thoſe that had conſidered of her eſtate, as not unwilling to ſteed her, and recover her, if they could; not unlike that of Babels friends and aſſiſtants, chap. 51. 9. But for the word it ſelf I encline ſtill to the former ſenſe of compreſſion, or cruſhing. But becauſe there is a two fold cruſhing; there is a cruſhing of the fleſh, to put to pain, and to vex; and there is a cruſhing of it, to get out ſomewhat that annoyeth, and hindreth healing: I ſuppoſe that in the other places produced, the word may ſignifie rather a bruiſe, that cometh by an exceſſive preſſure, or over-hard compreſſion of the fleſh, rather than a wound, or ulcer, as moſt inconſtantly render it, ſometime the one, and ſometime the other; but here a cruſhing in the latter notion, as tending to help an healing. Howſoever we take it, There is in the Text, a paſſage from one ſort of cure, or help to another; from a judiciary to a chirurgical courſe; ſome kinde of cure being intended in either, of a mans body in the one, of his ſtate in the other. Yet an Interpreter of prime note here diſtinguiſheth the terms, as containing ſeveral notions, thus diſtinctly delivered; There is none that decideth the cauſe; there is no medicine, or cure unto healing for thee: which might be admitted, if the pauſes in the original were not directly againſt it. I rather accord with another learned Writer, who thus paraphraſeth this paſſage; Thy wound is ſo great and thy ſore ſo grievous, that it paſſeth the skill of any Phyſician to tell what may be done to it, or to preſcribe any courſe for the managing and handling of it, whereby any hope of cure may be had: one way of dealing with an hurt being put for all; cloſing up, as he ſuppoſeth, cruſhing out, as I conceive.

thou haſt no healing medicines] For the ſenſe of this place in general, there is no great diſagreement, to wit, that there is in this paſſage an intimation of ſome incurable hurt, of an irrecoverable condition: But about both the right conſtruction of the Text, and the genuine notion of the words here uſed, there is no ſmall difference, not without ſome difficulty; the former word coming from a root that ſignifieth to cure, or heal: (whence alſo one that cometh very near to it, is for healing, or health, Prov. 3. 8.) is by ſome rendred medicines, as here, ſo chap. 46. 11. though by others there alſo, curing, courſes of cure; for the word is plural: yea, ſome ſo render it, Ezek. 30. 21. who yet render it the other way here; and as I conceive, ſhould rather have ſo done there: for the words are, ſpeaking of a broken arm, it ſhall not be bound up, to give curings, or healings; that is, any degree, or help, of cure, or healing at all; as thoſe plurals are alſo in an exceeding notion uſed; whereof ſee on Eſai 27. 11. for to render it, as they there do, it ſhall not be bound up with medicines put in, to me ſeemeth a verſion of thoſe words over-harſh. But the old Latine (for the Greek runs here at random, and the Chaldee is as ambiguous as the Hebrew) rendreth it curings or courſes of cure: which though it may ſeem not to differ much from medicines; yet it is of a larger extent than that term, as we commonly uſe it: and I ſuppoſe this to be the proper ſenſe. But the latter word hath more difficulty in it; it cometh of a word that ſignifies to aſcend, or go up: and it is uſed ſometime for a trench, or a water-courſe; whereof ſee on Eſai 7. 3. but being applied, as here, and chap. 46. 11. to matter of cure, what it ſhould ſignifie is queſtionable. Some render it a plaiſter, both here and there; which ſhould be ſo called, becauſe it goeth up upon, and is applied unto, the hurt, or ill-affected place for its eaſe, or cure: but other render it much after the ſame manner with the former term, health, or healing, ſuppoſing it, ſome of them, to be ſo termed from a word that ſignifies to profit, or avail; becauſe where cure is efficacious, it is available for health: but the form of the word will hardly admit that deduction; though one of the Jewiſh Maſters here ſeem to allow of it. But others rather therefore from the root beforementioned, becauſe in curing, or healing of a wound, or ſore, where the courſe uſed taketh effect, the fleſh groweth up, and either the skin, or ſome skar is drawn over the place, where the wound, or ſore, before was: whence that phraſe frequently uſed in caſes of that kinde, cure, or healing, is gone up: as Chap. 8. 22. and I will make cure, or healing, to go up, or to come unto thee, verſ. 17. and chap. 33. 6. whereof more hereafter: though cure, or healing may be ſo termed, either in regard of the impoſition of plaiſters, or the like upon the place ill affected; or from the procuration and bringing of eaſe and recovery thereunto: and this latter more general ſenſe the word ſeemeth to have. But concerning the conſtruction of the two words here uſed, a new controverſie ariſeth; for ſome joyn them in regiment together, as the one governing the other; and they render them curings, or curing courſes, of aſcenſion, to wit, of fleſh, or skin; that is, ſay they, courſes of cure contrailing a ſkar. Others, curings, or curing courſes of utility; that is, available for recovery: and ſo after one of the Jewiſh Criticks, the old Latine rendreth it. But others render the words apart; ſome in way of oppoſition, curings of cure, plaiſter there is none at all for thee; or none at all ſhall avail thee: ſome in way of conjunction ſupplying the copulative, oft wanting as Eſai 32. 13. Hab. 3. 11. rendring the words, curing (that is, courſes of cure) and healing (or, means uſed for recovery) there is none for thee. So one of the Jewiſh Commenters, who alſo affirmeth both words in effect to ſignifie the ſame; and that the ſame thing is in divers terms expreſſed to make the ſentence the more vigorous: whom the rather I concur with; becauſe I finde the very like, in ſome fort the ſame, the copulative being there ſupplied, in a parallel place, where God promiſeth to do that for his people, which by humane help is here intimated not to have been feacible, I will cauſe to aſcend, or, bring her (this citie and ſtate) healing, or health, (a word anſwering to the latter here) and cure: a word from the ſame root with the former:

mer: and he verb, or participle rather, that, from whence the latter here arifeth.

V. 14. All thy lovers have forgotten thee, they seek thee not:] Thy pretended friends and cofederates, the Assyrians and Egyptians, whom thou hadst wont to entertain with presents, 2 Chron. 28. 21. Chap.2. 18. Hos. 12.1. are now fain off from thee, and fail thee in thy present affliction, Chap. 4. 30. Lam. 1. 2, 17, 19.

thy lovers] So Hos. 2. 7. 8, 12.

have forgotten thee: Neglect thee: regard thee no more, than as if they had clean forgotten thee. So is the word used, Psal. 31. 12. & 45. 10. & 106. 21.

they seek thee not] They seek not to thee; or, enquire not after thee: as in times past they had wont to do. See Chapter 15. 5.

for I have wounded thee with the wound of an enemy] Or, because; (as Esay 64. 5 as rendring a reason, and shewing the cause why they had withdrawn themselves from her; to wit, because they saw in what case she was by reason of Gods heavie hand upon her, Lam. 1. 19, 21.) or, when (as chap. 10. 2.) God shall have stricken, or smitten thee (So is the Hebrew; as Esay 1. 5 & 27, 7. 1 King. 20 37.) with the stroke, or, blow, (as chap. 10. 19. & 14. 17. verse 12.) of an enemy: a sore and grievous one; not such as friends sometime in displeasure and anger give to those whom they yet love and affect dearly, Prov. 17, 6. but such as enemies are wont to strike enemies with, Job 13. 24. & 16. 9. & 19. 11. Esay 63. 10. For the phrase, see the like, but in a divers subject, Esay 60. 5. and if we take the particle here for an adverb of time, then the so mer branch is to be rendred in the future; All thy lovers will forget thee, they will seek, or, look, no more after thee, when I have thus smitten thee.

with the chastisement of a cruell one; Such stripes, as cruell and hard-hearted persons are wont to inflict. So Job complaineth, that God was become cruel to him, Job 30. 21.

for the multitude of thine iniquities; because thy sins are increased] Or, are many: See of the word on chap. 5. 6 & 15. 8. It is fin alone that enforceth God to these harsh and enemy-like carriages toward his people; chap. 4. 18. the causal is wanting: so verse 15. see the like defect of it, chap. 36. 29.

V. 15. Why cryest thou for thine affliction? thy sorrow is incurable, for the multitude of thine iniquity, because thy sins were encreased, I have done these things unto thee] Or, Why dost thou cry out of thine hurt Heb. breach, or rupture, as verse 12.) and (a defect of the copulative; as verse 13.) of thy deadly, or, desperate, grief; that thy grief, or, disease, is deadly, or, desperate: a defect of the particle that: as chap. 27. 8. See chap. 15. 18. verse 12. what reason hast thou so much to complain of thy present pressures, and desperate condition, when as thou sufferedst nothing, but what by thy manifold sins and excesses thou hast procured to thy self, chap. 2. 17. & 4. 18. see ver. 14. and the like argument, Lam. 3, 39.

V. 16. Therefore all they that devour thee shall be devoured] Those that thus render the compound particle here used, are compelled to give the words here following a reference unto what went before, ver. 10 11. and to enclose all that lieth between that and this within the compasse of a parenthesis: and yet with all their contrivance the context cannot easily be brought to hang handsomly together. And one of the Rabbines would have it taken in the nature of an oath. But it would rather be rendred, Notwithstandings; or, Nevertheless, or, Yet: as taken, not in an illative, as most commonly it is, but in a discretive notion, as in many places of necessity it must: that which having not been by any, that I can hitherto find, observed, hath in divers passages of Scripture produced very uncouth connexions, and needless hyperbations, to the puzling of the reader, and disjoynting of the context: whereas, being duly regarded, it would much conduce to the clearing of it in places not a few, See Esay 7. 14. & 30. 18. & 51, 21 a place not unlike to this: as also, chap. 16. 14. Ezek. 39 15. Hos. 2. 14. let the places be well weighed: and this here admitted, the coherence of this passage with the very next before-going will be cleare to wit, that albeit, they had no just cause to complain of what they had suffered; susteining nothing but what they had brought upon themselves by their sinnes, and deserved therefore to be left still in that calamitous condition: yet notwithstanding all this, God would out of his meer mercy take a course for their delivery, and for the effecting thereof, inflict the like heavie and harsh things upon those, at whose hands they had sustained the same. Those, saith he, that have devoured thee, or, eaten upon thee (see chap. 50. 17.) shall be devoured. Heb. eaten on, or, eaten up. That shall be renewed, and made good again that formerly had been, when Israel was a thing consecrated to God at his first fruits, when all that did eat upon him attracted guilt, and some evill or other befell them for it, chap. 2. 3. See Esay 41. 11. & 49. 26.

And all thine adversaries shall every one of them go into captivity,] They that captived thee, shall themselves be captived. Thus will God shew himself to be an enemy unto those that have been adversaries to his people, Exod. 23. 22. See Esay 14. 2.

And they that spoyle thee, shall be a spoyle,] Some render it, they that tread on thee shall be for a treading on to others: as Esay 42. 22. & 51. 22 but the general use of the word confirmeth the received Version. See Zach. 2. 9.

and all that prey upon thee will I give for a prey.] See Esay 33. 1.

V. 17. For I will restore health unto thee] Heb. I will cause health, or, healing to come up to thee, or, come unto thee. The word here used some render a plaster; and, say some of them, properly a long plaster, so called from the length of it; because the word originally hath a notion of length, or; prolongation, rendred long chap. 29. 28. and lengthening, Dan 4. 27. and so the form should have reference to the putting of a plaster on or over the hurt, or pained part, fully proportionable to the wound or sore. Some other would have it to signifie a skar: and so should it have relation to the skinning of a wound, or ulcer, which, where it hath been deep, is seldome done without some skar. So they say it is used in the Chaldee tongue, and in the Writings of the Rabbines: for which yet I see no cleare place produced out of either: for that of the Chaldee, Psal. 147. 3. to this purpose alledged by more than one of them, is altogether as ambiguous, as the word it self is in the Hebrew. Thus taken here, it should be as if he had said, I will bring a skar upon, or, over thy wound: and such a notion of it here would rather blemish, than commend Gods work, who in healing is not wont to leave skars behind, but to make a full and fair cure of what he undertaketh to heal, and in that tenour his promises of restitution are wont to run. See Esay 54. 4. —— 14, & 60. Besides that, in Esay 58. 8. to render the word either of these wayes, thy plaster, or, thy skar, shall speedily spring forth, were palpably to wrong the text. I see no reason, therefore, why we should recede from the signification of the word, as having a notion of health, and healing, in it, and being so commonly received: which if it be supposed to arise from that root, as it signifieth to lengthen or, to be long: health or, healing, may be so termed; because it is often times long in coming, and long looked for, before it come. We have a proverb, that sickneesse comes on horse-back, but goes away on foot; intimating the suddennesse of falling into maladies, together with the slownesse of recovery out of them: but it may rather have its ground from another notion, that the same root hath in the Chaldee, to wit, of expectation, and hope; Psal. 147. 11. Lam. 3. 18. health being an usual subject matter as well of hope, as of expectation and desire, chap. 8. 15. now this health, or, healing, is said to come up, chap. 8. 22. or, to be made to come up, as here, and chap. 33. 6. as I conceive, not so much in regard of the coming up, or bringing up of flesh and skin to cover the parts, that were bare either before: 2 Ezek. 37. 6. as of accrewing, or coming unto the part or party healed: for the word that properly signifies to go up, is very commonly also used in a larger notion, for to passe from place to place, to come to, or, to go from, without any special reference unto ascent, or descent: as Numb. 16. 24. 27. chap. 4. 7. Joel 1. 6. and so I conceive it to be taken in these and the like forms, wherein health, or healing, is laid to come, or to be brought unto one: as diseases are said to come and go at Gods command, Mat. 8, 8, 9. and health consequently being the removall of them, as in the same place is implyed. So that the meaning is no more than this, I will bring health, or, healing to thee; or, cause it to come home unto thee: and it is not unworthy our observation, that the same form is used also of walls, that healing is brought, or caused to come to them, when they are repaired, Neh. 4. 7. and healing, or, health, is said to come to a bulinesse, when it is brought to a good issue, or to a full end, 2 Chron. 24. 13.

and I will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the Lord; Or, of thy hurts, Heb. from thy strokes, or, blowes; as verse 12. a word of larger extent than wounds. Gods restitution of his people, being as great a recovery of life and health unto them, is very fitly called an healing of them. See Esay 6. 10. & 19. 22. & 57. 18, 19. chapter. 3. 22. & 17. 14.

because they called thee an out-cast,] The particle thus rendred, the words should import a reason, why God would the rather be induced to help and heal his Sion, to wit, thereby really to check and controll that conceit, that her adversaries had of her, that she was a meer abject and out-cast, one that God had utterly cast off and abandoned, one that neither God, nor Man, regarded. And it is true, indeed, that the insolent insultations of profane wretches over Gods people in times of their dejection and distresse, is a motive sometime to induce God the rather to shew mercy unto them: in delivering and raising them up again. But I suppose the particle hath rather here a discretive, or adversative notion, and would be rendred although: as Gen. 8 21. Josh. 17. 18. Psal 23, 4, chap. 12. 1. & 30. 11. though they so deem of thee, yet I will, by the delivery and restitution of thee, shew it to be otherwise with thee, than they imagine. Heb. they called an out-cast to thee; that is, thou hast been called and accounted (as Mal. 1. 4) an out-cast, Mic. 4. 6. Zeph. 3. 19. So Esay 62. 4. Forsaken shall not be said any more to thee; that is thou shalt no longer be so accounted. See the like form, Esay 1. 26. & 64 4. 12.

saying] Supplyed: as Psal 105. 15. Chap 4. 31. and 11. 19.

This is Zion, whom no man seeketh after] Heb. Zion it, or, it is: the pronoun demonstrative, for the verb substantive: as chap. 29. 28. verse 7. and they seem in way of derision to have played upon her name: the term Sion, signifying originally, a dry, or, wastle place, Psal. 63. 1. & 107. 35 chap. 2. 6. & 50. 12. as if it were in regard of its desolation, for dryneſſe, and wasteneſſe, a place not worthy worthy the looking after. Heb. Seeker, or, seeking to her none is: she is utterly disregarded both of God and man: for the speech is of her, as of some lome goodly and beautiful person, that in time past, living in a rich and honourable estate, had been much sought unto by many, but now fallen into misery, was utterly abandoned by those that had fought unto her before. See ver. 14.

V. 18. Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will bring away the captivity of Jacobs tents, and have mercy on his dwelling places] A further gracious promise of the restauration of their decayed and ruined cities, and dwellings, and constitution of their State.

Beh ld, I will bring again the captivity] Heb. Lo I am bringing again the captivity See ver. 3.

the captivity of Jacobs tents] In these and the like forms of speech, the term captivity is commonly used for captives. See on ver. 3, but here it hath reference not so much to persons, as to places, which cannot be properly said to be captived, especially in the Hebrew, where the word hath a notion of transmigration and deportation. But it may be observed, that the term of captivity is in Scripture sometime used to denote any calamitous condition in general: as where it is said, that the Lord turned the captivity of Job, Job 42. 10. though Job was never in proper sense a captive: which may the rather be admitted here, because this desolation, either with, or by reason of the peoples captivity, befell the places of their wonted abode.

Jacobs tents] As, Israels tents, 2 Sam. 20 1, 1 Kings 12, 16. and Davids Tabernacle, Amos 9. 11. an allusion to the ancient Patriarcks dwelling in tents, Heb. 11. 9. and the Israelites in the wilderneſſe, Numb. 24. 5.

have mercy on his dwelling places] Or, dwellings, or, tabernacles; as it is rendred, Numb. 24. 5. Psal. 43. 3. & 84. 1. on them for him, Esay 54. 1. See the like phrase, Psal. 10. 2. 14.

and the city shall be builded upon her own heap,] Or, her heap; and the city shall be builded upon her own heap,] Or, her heap; where before was nothing but a ruinous heap of stones and rubbish, Psal. 79. 1. Esay 25. 2. & 37. 26. So is the word used, Deut. 13. 16. Josh. 8. 28. Chap. 49. 2. or; as others, upon her little hill: which the margent of our bibles exhibiteth: as if the word signified an hillock, or, a knole; such as Jerusalem stood upon, though situate in a plain. See chap 17. 3. But this the Jewish Doctor not content with, would have it, an high hill: for Jerusalem, saith he, is the highest ground in all the land of Israel: (though therein we need not believe him) and a participle or participial from this root hath a notion of height, and is rendred eminent, Ezek. 17. 22. on a mountain lofty and eminent. Howbeit, others take it more generally, as the Chaldee, who here rendreth it, upon her places; that is, upon her seat, or habitasome: upon her former foundation: as the term seemeth to be taken without special regard to hill, or dale: term seemeth to be taken without special regard to hill, or dale: Josh. 11. 13. the cities that stood still upon their seat, or sail: and had not been ruinated in the surprisal. Though that term seem ufed both there and here; because cities were usually built on some rising, or the ground at least raised for the founding and rearing of them: and from hence divers towns and cities had their appellations, as Telmilach, Ezr. 2. 59. Telabar, Esay 37. 12. Telabib, Ezek. 3, 15. But see Zach. 12. 6. & 14. 10.

and the palace shall remain after the manner thereof.] By the palace, here some understand the Kings house, or court; Others, palace, here some understand the Kings house, or court; Others, and so the Chaldee, Gods house, the Sanctuary, the Temple which was as Gods palace, Psal. 11. 4. & 68. 29. Others; both: the middle seems best.

remain] Heb. sit, that is, be founded, and seated, and setled, Esay 13. 20. Chap. 50. 39. abide; as Numb. 35. 28. Psal. 9. 7. & 29. 10.

after the manner thereof Heb. upon its right, or, judgement; that is, say some, seated in its former or wonted place: or, as others, so built, so used and so frequented, as formerly it had been: the word is of a very large extent. See 1 Sam. 2. 13. & 27. 11. 2 King. 1. 7. & 17. 26.

V. 19. And out of them shall proceed thanksgiving, and the voyce of them that make merry] The comfortable effect of this restitution, chearfulnesse of heart, and thankfulnesse to God for his goodnesse therein towards them, Chap. 31. 12.

out of them] That is, from the tents of Jacob and his dwellings, ver 18. and the people restored to them.

shall proceed thanksgiving] That is, because the noun and the verb are of different genders; sacrifice of confession, or, praise, or, thanksgiving: so called, Lev. 7. 12, 13. Chap. 17. 26. & 33. 13. as some; or, as others, both Jews, and ours, the voyce of praise, or thanksgiving, supplyed from the next branch: as 1 Chron. 1. 15. Esay 28. 7. & 30. 17. so Psal. 28. 7. & 42. 4. John. 2. 10. See Esay 12. 1. & 26. 1. & 35. 10. & 51. 11.

the voyce of them that make merry] Heb. that laugh. See on chap. 15. 17. and it seemeth, as some not amisse deem, to allude to the wonted mirth, musick, and jollity, that was exercised by Gods people, at their solemn Festivals, and repaire to Gods house, Psal. 42. 4. & 118, 15. Esay 30. 29. Chap. 31. 12. Esay 30. 29. but it may well be taken in a larger extent: as Chap 31. 13. & 33. 11. See there, Zach. 8. 4 & 9. 15, 17.

and I will multiply them, and they shall not be few] Or, they shall not be diminished; as Psal. 107. 39. Prov. 13. 11. Esay 21. 17. See Chap. 31. 27. Ezek. 36. 11. & 36. 26. Zach. 10. 8, 9.

and I will glorifie them, and they shall not be small.] Or, mean; or, of small account, Psall 119. 141. and so is the word also used in the Syriack. Mat. 13. 57. & 22. 7. Mar. 12. for they straiten the text too much, (which yet many, both Jewish, and others do) that make this branch no other than the same, though in other terms delivered, with the former.

V. 20. Their children also shall as aforetime,] Their issue (Heb. his; to wit, Jacobs, verse 18.) shall be setled in as good and fair an estate and condition as they were before the time of their captivity, Esay 44. 3, 4. chap. 33. 11. Lam. 5. 21.

and their congregation shall be established before me] There shall be a constant succession of them, either protected by me, or attending upon me, Esay 66. 22. Chap. 31. 36. and 35. 19.

and I will punish all that oppresse them] Heb. visit upon (as chapter 29. 32.) all his oppressors: as Judg. 2. 18. & 6. 9. See verse 16.

V. 21. And their Nobles shall be of themselves, and their governours shall proceed from the midst of them.] Heb. his noble, or, magnificent, or, honourable one: as Esay 10. 34 2 Chron. 23. 20. and, his ruler, or, governour, from the midst of him; that is, from among them: as Num. 14. 13. Josh. 7, 12, 13. This some restrain to Christ, the King and ruler of Gods Church, Psal. 2. 6. Esay 11. 1. Mic. 5 2. Acts 2. 36. and some of the Jewes themselves expound them of the Messias. Howbeit, the words seem collective; and to imply, that strangers should no more rule over them, and keep them in subjection; but they should have rulers and governours of their own, Deut. 17. 15. fulfilled in Zorobabel, and others in those times, Zach 4. 14. & 6. 11. 14. but principally indeed in Christ, of whom he was a type, chap. 23. 6. & 33. 16.

and I will cause him draw near, and he shall approach unto me.] This some understand of the Ruler, or Rulers, before-mentioned, that God would take them to be near unto him, in regard of his favour toward them, and protection of them, whereupon the safety and prosperity of the people under them would very much depend, 2 Sam. 7. 14. Psal. 20. 4. & 89. 24 28. See Hagg. 2. 23. Others, of Jacob or Israel, Gods people in general; a people near unto God, and received into favour again with God, as before. Exod. 19. 5. Deut. 4. 20. Psal 148. 14. Zach. 10. 6 Others, of Christ, who as a Priest maketh his approaches unto God for us, and by whom we have also accesse unto God, Josh 14. 6, Eph 2. 18, Heb. 4 15, 16. & 9. 11, 12, & 10. 21, 22. 1 Pet. 3. 18. in whom without question this was most consummately made good: and the order of the context is not amiss by divers observed: as implying, say those that go the first way, that no man may intrude himself into any office of government without call from God, Deut. 10 8 & 17. 14. Prov. 8. 15. those that go the second, that come unto God, unless God convere them, and work them to himself by his Spirit, chap. 10. 23. & 31. 18. Lam. 5. 21. John 6. 44 65. those that go the last way, that Christ was by his Father designed unto his office, before he undertook it, Psal. 2. 6. & 110. 1, 4. Joh. 6. 27. & 10 36. Heb. 5. 4, 5. 9. 1 Pet. 1. 20.

for who is this that engaged his heart to approach unto me? saith the Lord,] This clause is very difficult, and Interpreters are much divided about it: those, I mean, that take notice of it; for many of them let it pass without any regard had of it, Those that take special notice of it, few of them expound it of Christ; but diversly: some in way of admiration of his dignity and excellency. For who is this (that is, how excellent a person is he (that hath given his heart (that is, his soul) for a pawn, or, pledge, or, engagement, to procure accesse to me? Esay 53 7. 10. Heb. 7. 22. Others in way of approbation, and exclusion of all others; who but he hath engaged, or can engage? who can engage his heart to approach unto God, in that manner, as Christ did? 1 Tim. 5. or, as others, who dare in that manner offer to approach unto God, or, take upon him the office of mediating between God and man; unless he be by God himself called and assigned thereunto? Heb. 5. 4. But others, not a few, apply it to Gods people; whom I rather concur with: and these go again two wayes. For some would have it spoken in way of admiration, as intimating the paucity of those at present, that did apply themselves to draw near unto God; and they render the words, For who is he that engageth his heart to approach unto me? So it should be like that, Esay 53, 1. Who believeth our report? that is, few or none: and Esay 64. 7. there is none that stirreth up himself to take hold on thee. Others, in way of consmation, as rendring a reason, why he had said he would make them to approach, that they might come near to him; to wit, because he could do it of himself, Cant. 1. 4. John 6 44 & 15. 3 Others, again, in way of stipulation; like that, Psal. 25, 12. and that Esay 50. 10. and one of those that goeth this way, giveth a two-fold syntax of the terms he: e used: the words may, saith he, be rendred, either, who is he that hath engaged, or, undertaken for his heart to draw near unto me? as thy servant hath engaged himself for the lad, Gen. 44. 32. or, that hath made a covenant, or, agreement with his heart (that is, hath sincerely obliged himself and made a covenant with his heart) to approach unto me? as he saith. Make a covenant, or, agreement, with my Lord, Esay 36. 8. and as Job, I have made a covenant with mine eyes, Job 31. 1. though this word be not there used: and he supposeth that the words may have reference either to what went before, of taking rest to him, such as had any hearty desire and resolution thes to approach and come home to him. c. 24. 7. & 30. 4, 5. 1 Joh. 6. 37. or to that which followeth, that if any such were found, whosoever they were that should be so affected, they should be his people, and he would be their God, ver. 22. unto which one of the Rabbines going also this way, adderh, that this is adjoyned to intimate, that not those of that nation, whom God formerly had taken to be near him, but such Gentiles also as dwelt among them, and were in this manner affected, should be taken in together with them, to enjoy the like communion and inwardnesse with him Deut. 9. 11, 12. & 31. 12, 23. Esay 56. 5, 8. And this last seemeth very probable; though the Rabbies additional seem a little over-curious and needlesse. For as for that of a learned Writer, who because the word here used hath sometime a notion of sweetnesse, chap 6. 20 & 31. 26. Psal. 104. 34 Prov. 3. 24. & 13. 19. Hos. 9. 4. Mal. 3. 4. would have it rendred, who is he that hath sweetned his heart to draw near to me? beside the uncouthnesse of the phrase, it cannot have place here; because the word in all the places pointed to, where alone it is certainly found in that notion, is constantly used in a passive, not an active sense for, to be sweet, or, pleasant; not for to make such. However there is here either a defect of the relative, as chap. 23. 29. or the demonstrative put for it; and the other for the verb substantive: as Psal. 25. 12. & 44. 4. Esay 66. 1.

V. 22. And ye shall be my people, and I will be your God.] A stipulation renewed between God and his people. So chap. 24. 7. & 31. 33. & 32. 38. A passage from person to person: as chap 29, 19. ver. 8 and from number to number: as Psal. 127. 5. & 140. 7.

Jer. Both Judah and Israel ver. 3. all the families of Israel, Chap. 31. 1.

V. 23. Behold the whirl-wind of the Lord goeth forth with fury.] See before on chap. 23, 19. where the same denunciation in effect is found: the only matter of difference here concerning the persons against whom it is denounced. It was there denounced against the wicked among Gods people, and the false Prophets by whom they were seduced: and so would some have it to be here; as foretelling what shall befall the obstinate wicked among them, that kept aloof from God either in heart, or in life, or in both, Chap. 12. 2. notwithstanding the gracious goodnesse of God exhibited and made good unto those that sincerely drew near unto him, verse 21. which they should have no share in, but should taste deeply of his wrath. So Esay 65 20, Chap. 17. 5, 6. But others rather the most and best, conceive it to concern here the heathen people, the enemies of God and his Church, before pointed at, ver. 16. 20. the destruction of the one being usually joyned with, and making way to the deliverance of the other. See Esay 14. 1.

a continuing whirl-wind] Because the old Latine hath two several terms here, a whirl-wind, and a tempest, or storm; some Popish Writers stand descanting upon and distinguishing of them; but to no purpose: for the Hebrew word is in either member the same, save that it is of a masculine forme in this latter, of a feminine in the former: (as the like, Esay 3. 1. Jon. 2. 1, 10. But of the attribute given to it, there is some question; for some render it, grievously cutting, as with a saw; which from hence is deemed to have its name, 1 Kings 7. 9. which seemeth to receive some strength from that in the parallel place, chap. 23. 19. where the word is grievously paining, or putting to grievous pain: for these reciprocal forms, where they have no reciprocal signification, carry a notion of aggravation and vehemency with them: and this I take to be th genuine sense of the word. Howbeit, some other, referring it to another root, render it, some, an affrighting, or, terrifying, one; because that root hath sometime a notion of terrour, Job 19. 29. some a whirling or, involving one; such an one as gathering it self together, should so wheel about them, and environ them, that they should not be able any way to get out of it, because the word hath sometime a notion of gathering together, Esay 54. 15. Hos. 7. 14. some, a continuing one, whom our version followeth, or, a sojourning one; that is, such of them, one that shall as an unwelcome guest take up his goods and lodgings with them, and so pass in progress incessantly from place to place, untill it have gone thorow their whole land, and made an utter riddance of them; because the same root hath also other-while a notion of sojourning Lam. 4. 15. and the term is used for a sojourner, 1 King. 17. 20. But I adhere to the first.

V. 24. The fierce anger of the Lord shall not return untill he have done it, and untill he have performed the intents of his heart.] See Chap: 23. 20. the pronoun it, needed not here more than there.

in the latter dayes ye shall consider it.] See likewise on chap 23. 20. where only the phrase of considering, or, understanding, is by a gemination made more emphatical.

CHAP. XXXI.

Verse 1. At the same time, saith the Lord,] This introduction evidently sheweth that the fore-going Chapter, and this do joyntly make up one Sermon or Prophecy. For in it the Prophet after a close of that, with a denunciation of destruction to the enemies of Gods people; doth in this return again to the prosecution of Gods gracious promises to his people; in the reduction of them into their own land again; restitution of their state, multiplication of their issue, collation of peace and plenty upon them in abundance, ver. 1 —— 28. renovation and amplification of his covenant with them, ver. 29 —— 34. and the continuation of these his favours with them to their posterity for ever, verse 35 —— 40.

At the same time] In the latter times pointed to, Chap. 30. 24. (for where that Chapter ended this beginneth) that is, after the return from the Babylonian captivity in part, but more compleatly, and principally, under the Messias, Chap 30. 9. of whose times the Jewish Doctors themselves observe, that the Prophets use to speak in those terms, Esay 2. 2. Chap 48. 47. & 49 39. Hos. 3. 5. Mich. 4. 1.

will I be the God of all the families of Israel, and they shall be my people.] Not of Judah alone, but of Israel also, of all the twelve Tribes and of all other that shall be called and adjoyned unto them, Chap. 3. 18. & 30. 3 4. 22. for to that last this hath reference. See to the same purpose, Ezek. 37. 19, 22. Hos. 1. 10. & 2. 24. Acts 2. 39. Rom. 11. 26.

V. 2. thus saith the Lord, the people that were left of the sword found grace in the wilderness,] God, to put them in hope of further favours, minded them here of his former mercies, So chap. 2. 2. The words most read, as we have them here in the time past, by the people left of the sword, understanding, either those that escaped the sword of Pharao, who pursued them with a full purpose to cut them off and destroy them. Exod 14. 9, 10. & 15. 9. or, as some, they that survived the execution done by the Levites among them for their idolatry, about the golden calf, Exod, 32. 27, 28 or, as others, the sword of the Amalekites and Amorites that fought to intercept them, and cut them off in their way. Deut. 17. 8. Numb. 21. 22 33, Deut. 2. 5 17, 18. (but the former rather here intended) found favour with God being by him supplyed with all necessary accommodations, in their passage thorow the vast and waste wilderneste into the land of Canaan. Deut. 2. 7, & 8. 2. ——4. 5, 16. & 32. 10 —— 12. or, as those that go the latter way; they were for all that their horrible idolatry, at Moses intercession and intreaty for them, reconciled to God, and brought into favour again with him, Exod 33. 17. Deut. 9 19. But some read and render the words in the future; The people that are left of the sword shall find favour as in the wilderness; that is, say they, those that have escaped the sword of the Chaldeans, shall after the dissolution of that captivity, in their return home again, find the same favour with me, for matter, both of protection and provision. that their fore-fathers did in their journying thorow those aismall deserts. Now true it is, that God doth oftentimes parallel the deliverance out of Babylon, with the bringing of them out of Egypt, and describe the passages of his providence concerning their return home in the latter, by those dispensations exhibited to them in the former, Esay. 11. 15, 16. & 43. 19 — 20 as also that the note of similitude is oft wanting, where of necessity it is to be supplyed: Esay 11 8. & 12. 2. & 66. 3. But where there is no necessity, and the sense is plain and clear of it self without it; there to force it in, and force a Scripture to farther-fetche strains, seemeth neither fair, safe, nor fit,
